1751 Nov. 25 Treasurer of this Colony for the time being, together with James Livingston Esquire, Mr. Benjamin Nicol, and Mr. William Livingston." Their duties are defined. They are enabled to receive proposals from any city or county in the colony which desires to have the college erected there; and they are required to render a sworn accounting "to the Governor Council and General Assembly, when by them or any of them thereunto required."—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 842. For a fuller exposition of the duties and plans of the trustees, see Jan. 20, 1752. See, further, March 5 and 23, 1752. The powers of the trustees were enlarged, and the funds at their disposal increased, by an act of July 4, 1751 (q.v.), which appropriated for their use part of the revenues from the excise upon strong liquors. The trustees were discharged by the act of Dec. 1, 1756 (q.v.), which transferred their obligations to the college governors.

" An act is passed "for mending and keeping in Repair the Public Road [Bloomingdale Road] or highway from the House of John Horne in the Bowry Division of the out Ward of the City of New York through Bloomingdale Division in the Said Ward to the House of Adrian Hoogelandt." Pursuant to a previous statute (see Oct. 23, 1713), a road four rods in breadth had been built from the dwelling of John Horne (23d St. and Fifth Ave.—See 1716) through "Bloomingdale District or Division" to the present dwelling of Adrian Hoogelandt (115th St. and Riverside Drive). The inhabitants of the "Bloomingdale District or Division, who are but few in Number, have been under great hardships not only by Keeping the Said Road in Repair, (which is double the breadth Necessary) but also by having been obliged to Work on the Repairing the Post Road between New York and Kings Bridge." The justices of the peace for New York City are therefore ordered to appoint annually a resident of the Bloomingdale district as surveyor of the public road. His duties are to lay out the road two rods in breadth and make all necessary repairs. He is authorized to summon any number of inhabitants of the Bloomingdale district with carts, spades, and pickaxes a team, wagon, and driver shall be regarded as the equivalent of three days' work. Every inhabitant failing to appear shall be fined at the rate of six shillings per day. No person can be compelled to work more than three days at a time nor more than six days a year on the road; nor need any inhabitant of the Bloomingdale division work on the post-road from New York to Kingsbridge.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 844-47. See also June 19, 1703.

" An act "to prevent frauds in Debtors" is directed against persons who have estates sufficient to discharge their debts but depart from the colony and order their effects to be sold, thereby securing the proceeds. The act is also aimed at debtors who conceal themselves somewhere in the colony. To end these fraudulent practices, if an absconding debtor owes more than £50 to one creditor, the sheriff of any city or county in the colony may be empowered to attach the estate of such debtor. A judge is then directed to have a notice inserted in all the newspapers of the colony that the property will be sold unless the absconding person returns within three months. If he or she fails to appear, the judge is to appoint three trustees, who are to sell the property at auction, receive moneys due, and settle equitably with the creditors.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 835-42.

" A statute is enacted "to prevent the breaking or otherwise Injuring Glass Lamps in the City of New York." Some of the inhabitants are "willing at their own Expence to hang out, or fix up in the Night time before their Dwelling Houses large Glass Lamps to illuminate the Streets of the Said City [see Nov. 23, 1697], but are discouraged therefrom for fear that Such Lamps may be broken, taken down, destroyed, or Carried away, or the lights therein put out." Such offences hereafter will be punished by a fine of £20.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 855-57. See Dec. 23.

Dec. 23 Following the statute of Nov. 25 (q.v.) against breaking glass lamps in New York City, several persons have set up lamps in the streets before their houses. Many others intend to do so.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 23, 1751.

1752

— In this year, Benjamin Franklin established the relation between electricity and lightning, and introduced lightning conductors for the protection of buildings. See Oct. 1750.

— In this year, also, William Walton erected a large mansion, one of the finest of the period, on a lot inherited from his father near the family's ship-yards on Water St. The date is determined, approximately, by a notice which appeared in the N. Y. Post-Boy, May 14, 1753, advertising a house for sale "in the upper end of Queen Street, next door but one to Captain Walton's new House, near Peck's Slip." For a detailed description of the house, see 1832; here, however, the date of erection, as erroneously stated by John Pintard, is given as 1754. A similar error was committed by Dunlop, in his Hist. of the New Netherlands (1840), II: 143, and by Wilson in the Mem. Hist., II: 305. Watson, in his Annals (1846), 350, gave the date as 1757; and Valentine, in the Man. Com. Coun. (1858), 524, as about 1760. The building stood for 127 years at 326 Pearl St., facing Franklin Sq., and was widely known as "The Walton House;" it was demolished in 1881 (see Nov. 12, 1781).—See "Sketches Biographical and Historical," by John Austin Stevens, Jr., 60, in Colonial Records, Chamber of Commerce, 1768-1784 (pub'd., 1867); and Mag. Am. Hist., II: 40. Valentine indicates the style of furnishing of the house at a later period than that of its early magnificence, including an inventory of the family silver-plate.—Man. Com. Coun. (1858), 524. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 953. William Walton was a son of Capt. William Walton (see M. C. C., VIII: 459), an eminent merchant of New York, who died May 23, 1747 (N. Y. Post-Boy, May 25, 1747).

Walter Rutherford, writing in 1800, recorded that fact that in 1752 there were 2,011 houses and 382 store-houses, stables, etc., in New York City, "as counted by a gentleman" he knew.—Rutherford, Family Records and Events, 198.

In accordance with the provisions of the act of parliament of March 18, 1751 (q.v.), "for regulating the commencement of the year," the "New Style" goes into effect in Great Britain and her colonies. See also Chambers' Encyc. (1888), II: 641.

"Our River is full of Ice. Several Vessels on sailing here have been detained for a considerable Time, till Saturday last, and, with the rest of our shipping, squeezed into Rotten Row for shelter. It was a happy Turn, the Corporation acted with that Prudence, in not consenting to the Views of a few self-interested People, to get the only Place for Shelter of our Shipping fill'd up."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 6. "Rotten Row" (Hunter's Key) lay along the East River front from Old Slip to Wall St.—See Feb. 9, 1713; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 990. For further reference to it, see May 21, 1754.

Gov. Clinton issues a proclamation offering a reward of £100 for the discovery of the author of "a letter signed W. P. dated the fourth Instant, directed to Mr. Robert Levinson," which "was lately found fastened to the Door of the Dwelling-House of Robert Gilbert Livingston, Merchant, of this City, demanding him, if he had any Regard to his Life or Family, to inclose in a letter the sum of Fifty Pounds, to be left at the Exchange Coffee House, under direction thereunto mentioned, and threatening that his House should be set on Fire, unless prevented by his Compliance therewith."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 13, 1752; Col. Hist. MSS., Eng., 600.

The river and bay are frozen over, so that a double sledge is driven from Long Island and back, and a number of people walk across the river.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 13, 1752. See Jan. 6.

The following advertisement by the college trustees is the first published statement of their purpose and duties under the act of Nov. 25, 1751: "Whereas, by an Act passed the last Sessions, the eldest Councilor residing in this Colony, the Speaker of the General Assembly, and the Judges of the Supreme Court, the Mayor of the City of New-York, and the Treasurer of this Colony for the Time being, together with James Livingston, Esq; Mr. Benjamin Nicol, and Mr. William Livingston, are appointed Trustees for managing the Sum of l. 3443-18s. raised for erecting a College within this Colony, and any other Sum or Sums of Money, Lands, Goods or Chattels, which may be contributed or given by any Person or Persons whatsoever, for the erecting, compleating, and establishing such College, for the Advancement of Learning. All which Monies the said Trustees, or the major Part of them, are empowered and directed to put out at Interest, yearly, and every Year, together with the Interest arising thereon, until the same shall be employed for the Use and Purpose aforesaid; and to let to farm any Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments that may be given towards founding the said College. And the said Trustees are, by the said Act, enabled to receive Proposals from any of the Cities or Counties within this Colony, which shall be desirous of having the said College erected within their said Cities or

1752

Jan.

1

6

11

"

20

- 1752 Counties, touching the placing or fixing the same therein, respectively, of all which the Majority of the said Trustees, have ordered this publick Notice to be given; and, at the same Time, desire all such Person or Persons, who shall have Occasion to take up at Interest, any of the said Monies, (not less than Two Hundred Pounds) or be inclinable to make any Proposals touching the placing or fixing of such College, or otherwise, that they will apply to the Treasurer of this Colony, or any other of the said Trustees, and they shall be further informed."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 20, 1752.
- 25 A woman is sentenced to death for burglary. On the day set for the execution, Feb. 14, she was pardoned on condition that she leave the province before July 2d.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 27, Feb. 17, 1752.
- 27 Several of the glass lamps put up about the city are taken down and left whole in the Meal Market. "It is thought to be done by some daring Rakes, in order to convince the Owners, how easy those Lamps might be demolished without Discovery."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 3, 1752. See Nov. 25 and Dec. 23, 1751.
- " William Wood advertises: "The Albany Post sets out on Saturday next: Letters may be left at Mr. McEwen's near the City-Hall, or at the North River, at the House of the said Post."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 27, 1752. For his change of address, see Dec. 4.
- Feb. 3 George Burns, keeper of the Cart and Horse Tavern, "near the Long Bridge" (see July 30, 1750), advertises for the recovery of a run-away "Servant Man . . . of Irish Descent, . . . of about 23 Years of Age," who "Had on when he went away, a Bear-skin Coat made Frock Fashion, with a scarlet Jacket green Velvet Lepells, and a strip'd Flannel Jacket under it, a check Shirt, and Bucksin Breeches, white or blue Worsted Stockings, a brown bob Wig, and a large brim'd Beaver Hat, round toed Shoes, with square Steel Buckles."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 3, 1752.
- " Christopher Blundell, "next door to the Post-Office," advertises imported vegetable and flower seeds for sale.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 3, 1752.
- 6 An ordinance is passed which provides that all neat cattle shall be killed at the public slaughter-house of Nicholas Bayard (see Aug. 14, 1750), instead of at the old public slaughter-house "by the Water Side."—M. C. C., V, 357. For later amendments to this ordinance, see Ibid., VII: 25-26, 287-88.
- 13 "Messrs Livingston and Lefferts Appearing at this Board alleging that they had been at a much greater Expence in Erecting their Stillhouse and Works behind Trinity Church than they Expected to be at and prayed this Board to Consider the Same and Grant them Thirty Years Lease Instead of Twenty five Years which they Agreed with the Committee for which request being Considered it is Order'd that the Lease for the said Stillhouse and Ground be for Thirty Years upon the Rent of Thirty pounds  $\frac{1}{2}$  Annum formerly Agreed upon."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See also May 26, 1758.
- " Trinity vestry orders "That an Advertisement be Incereted in Mr Parkers next News Paper for letting that part of the Churches Farm to the Northward of the Stockdoes Either Intire or in parcels."—Trin. Min. (MS.). The advertisement, which was published, recites: "That Part of the Church's-Farm, (commonly called the King's-Farm) which lies to the Northward of the Stockdoes" is to be let, "either entire or in Parcels," and those interested are directed to apply to Col. Joseph Robinson.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 17, 1752. See March 25.
- " Adam van Denberg, who has maintained a tavern and garden on the church farm, at the present Broadway and Vesey St., since 1735, and probably earlier, agrees with the vestry of Trinity Church to lease "the old Bowling Green" for 21 years from March 25, 1752, "the part of it already let to Elias De Gruchie [see May 25] to be Excepted."—Trin. Min. (MS.). Van Denberg's mead-house, on Broadway, and the "Old Bowling Green" (later Vauxhall), which was on the Hudson River near the present Greenwich and Chambers Sts., are very clearly shown on the MS. Map of 1735 (Pl. 30, Vol. I). Elias de Grusha had a ropewalk which extended from Broadway to a point beyond Church St., between Warren and Chambers Sts. See Pl. 34, Vol. I, and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 981. See also Feb. 17, and April 1.
- 24 Parker, the publisher of the Post-Boy, having antagonized a number of readers by articles printed in his paper, makes a defence. He "fears God; honours the King; loves his Country, and would serve all Mankind," but reminds his readers that "the Press is esteemed one of the grand Bulwarks of English Liberty," and he, himself, placed by Providence "to be the Instrument of using it."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 24, 1752. See also April 27.
- 24 Sidney Breeze, about to leave New York for England, advertises various goods for sale, including, "Lately imported from London, 72 Volumes, in Folio, all Manuscript, neatly bound, gilt, and letter'd, being the Minutes of the House of Commons, for above 40 Years, from which many Presidents [sic] may be quoted, very useful to Representatives of this or any other Province; they were Part of the Duke of Chandos's Library."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 24, 1752.
- Mar. 2 On petition from lawyers practicing in the mayor's court for an ordinance on fees, the provincial council orders one prepared.—Cal. Coun. Min., 383.
- 5 Trinity vestry agrees "that a propossal be made to the Commissioners Appointed to Receive propossals for the Building a Colledge [see Nov. 25, 1751] that this Board is willing to give any Reasonable Quantity of the Churches Farm which is not let out for the Erecting and use of a Colledge."—Trin. Min. (MS.). This proposal was presented to the trustees of the college on April 8 (q.v.). A similar resolution was adopted by the vestry, with a very material condition added, on May 14, 1754 (q.v.). See also Nov. 1, 1754.
- 6 The common council orders that three lamps be purchased, and two erected in front of the city hall and one in the rear, and that they be provided with oil and kept clean.—M. C. C., V, 358. For the initial step taken to light the city with lamps, see Nov. 23, 1761.
- " Benjamin Peck (see Dec. 21, 1750) releases to the city "a peer or Wharf by him made on the North East side of his Lotts in Montgomerie Ward."—M. C. C., V, 358. Peck's Wharf is shown on Pls. 26, 27, 27A, Vol. I, and on later plans.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 990.
- " The "House of George Burns fronting the Long Bridge" is the place designated by the common council for leasing the stalls and standings of the markets, and the docks and slips, of the city.—M. C. C., V: 358. (For lines omitted from the printed record, see Ibid., VIII: 251.) His house was again appointed on Dec. 14, for leasing the ferry between New York and Nassau Island.—Ibid., V: 389. This was the King's Arms Tavern, just north of the corner of Broad and Water Sts. See Oct. 3, 1748.
- " The common council appoints a committee "to agree with fit persons to make a Vault Behind the Watch House of this City for the use of the said House," and also to "have a Box or Tourrette made over the said Work House to hang a Bell therein."—M. C. C., V: 359. On Nov. 8, payment was made "for making a Vault at the alms House."—Ibid., V: 386. In the printed Minutes of the Common Council subjects relating to the workhouse and alms-house are indexed under "Poorhouse."—See M. C. C., VIII: 380-81.
- 12 Joris Brinkerhooff and others, in a petition to the common council, state that "they have Lately taken into their possession a Small parcel of Ground Contiguous and Adjoyning to Copeys Battery on Which they have been at a Considerable Expence in Erecting Some Small Buildings thereon Since which they have been Informed that the said Ground belongs to this Corporation and therefore pray this Corporation w'd be favourable pleased to Grant the Same to them under Such Rents Reservations and Restrictions as they Shall Seem meet."—M. C. C., V: 360, 442.
- " One of the city's labourers who is an object of charity is permitted by the common council "to Set in any of the Publick Markets of this City and there Expose to Sale by Retail Buttons knives Pins &c" for the period of three months.—M. C. C., V: 360.
- 14 On account of the small-pox in New York, Gov. Clinton issues a proclamation to prorogue to April 28 the meeting of the general assembly, which was to convene on March 31.—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 16, 1752. See also Jour. Leg. Coun., 1094; and Oct. 16.
- 23 The trustees of the college fund (see Nov. 25, 1751) agree to meet every Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the common council room in the city hall. "And all Persons having Occasion to take up at Interest, any of the said Money, upon Mortgage, are desired to apply to Mr. William Livingston, Attorney at Law, and lay their Title Deed before him: And those who shall be minded to have any upon good personal Security, may apply to him, or any other of the said Trustees, at any Time."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 23, 1752. See also Aug. 20.
- " The once noted Horse and Cart Inn, in the City of New York is revived by Edward Willett."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 23, 1752. See June 3, 1751.

- 1752 Trinity Church (see Feb. 13) leases to Adam van Denberg, for Mar. 25 five years from this date, that part of the "Church Farm" in the West and Out Wards north of the "Stockadoes," except what will be needed for building a college and four acres leased to a man named Burnham.—Bogardus vs. Trinity Church, Sandford's Chancery Rep. (1847), IV: 62-53. See April 27. Van Denberg retained the farm for five years, according to the lease. On Nov.
 29, 1756, the farm, "or any part of it," was advertised by the vestry of Trinity Church to be let from March 25, 1757.—N. Y.
Post-Boy, Nov. 29, 1756. By March 21, 1757, it had been laid out into lots.—Ibid., March 21, 1757.
- Apr. 1 "Order'd. That the Pews in the Chappell of Ease [St. George's] be let for one Year to the Highest Bidders on Monday the Thirteenth of this Instant April . . ."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See, further, July 1.
- " At a meeting of Trinity vestry, an agreement signed by Adam van Denberg as lessee, "for the Churches Farm to the Northward of the Stockadoes," is produced.—Trin. Min. (MS.). By this instrument Trinity Church leases to Adam van Denberg, for a term of five years from March 25, 1752, all of the Church Farm north of the stockades (with exception for King's College, etc.)— Sandford's Chancery Rep., VI: 696. Van Denberg was on part of the land as early as 1735.—See Pl. 30, Vol. I. He was a tenant in 1746, and Cornelius van Denberg was there in 1757.—See depositions in Bogardus vs. Trinity Church, Sandford's Chancery Rep., IV: 690, 695-96.
- "The old farm-house, attached to the King's farm, stood upon the site of the present Astor House. The various tenants, so far as we have been able to discover them, were, successively, John Ryerson, Francis Ryerson [see July 20, 1721], Mr. [Robert] Harrison [see same date], Mr. Balm, Cornelius Cozine [see May 1, 1732], and Adam Vandenberg. The house was long kept as the Drovers' Inn. In connection with the tavern business, were also a public garden and place of amusement. . . . Vaadenberg was still in the occupation of these premises at a period close on the time of the Revolution, as we find from a liberty pole being erected opposite to his house [see Jan. 30, 1770], "where the two roads meet."—
Man. Com. Coun. (1865), 547. As appears by the Maerschalk Plan [see 1755], Pl. 34, Vol. I, part of the Church Farm was at that time laid out into building lots. See "The Queen's Farm," Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 947. See also April 27, 1752.
- 8 The Rev. Henry Barclay, rector of Trinity Church, informs the trustees of the college that it has been unanimously agreed, at a meeting of "the Rector, Church Wardens, and Vestry Men, of Trinity Church," to make a proposal to the trustees that they are willing to give a reasonable quantity of the Church Farm for the purpose of erecting a college; a copy of the vestry's resolution or agreement is delivered to the trustees (for which, see March 5), attested by Richard Nicoll, clerk, as "A true Copy."
- "Which being read, Mr. Chief Justice returned the Thanks of the Trustees to the Representatives of the Church, for said Offer." It is "Agreed, That the said Trustees go and view the Lands mentioned in the above Agreement and Proposal; which was accordingly done."—Assemb. Jour., II: 298. See also Nov. 1, 1754.
- 16 The King gives instructions to Gov. Clinton, ordering a revision of the public laws, statutes, and ordinances in force in New York Province, and requiring him in lieu thereof to frame and pass a complete and well digested body of new laws, and to transmit the same for his majesty's approbation or disallowance.—Cal.
Hist. MSS., Eng., 600. These instructions require, among other things, that no law be passed "without a clause be inserted therein, suspending & deferring the execution thereof until our royall will & pleasure may be known thereupon."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI:
 755-56. See May 30, 1753.
- 20 John Hutchinson, merchant, who has just imported "a Parcel of likely Welsh and West Country Servants, Men, Women, and Boys, of most Trades," advertises that "Their Times, from 4 to 7 Years," will be disposed of by him, or by the shipmaster on board the vessel, or at the Royal Exchange Tavern.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 20, 1752. Cf. Sept. 11, 1732, Addenda.
- " A horse-race is advertised to take place "on Hampsted-Plains," on May 26, for a purse of silver of about £20.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 20, 1752.
- 27 The name "King's Farm" still clings to the extensive piece of pasture land formerly belonging to the crown, but which, since Nov. 23, 1705 (q. v.), has been the property of Trinity Church.
- Cornelius van Denberg, the lessee (see March 25), advertises Apr.
 27, 1752; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 947. See also Feb.
 17, and April 1.
- Several lots are offered to be let near "Sir Peter Warren's
 New-Wharf, at the North-River."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 27, 1752.
 The Warren Wharf adjacent Mesier's Slip.—M. C. C., VII: 185.
 This was at the foot of Cortlandt St.—Landmark Map Ref. Key,
 III: 990.
- Parker prints, at the request of a subscriber, the so-called reply of an Indian to a Christian missionary. The sentiments are uoorthodox and call forth a great deal of criticism. Parker was presented before the grand jury, and made a statement in his own defence on Aug. 3.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 27, May 4, and Aug. 3, 1752. See also Feb. 24 and May 14, 1752, and Sept. 7, 1753.
- "This is to acquaint the Curious, That there is Just arrived in this City, a famous Posture-master, who transforms his Body into various Postures, in a surprizing and wonderful Manner;
 with many Curious Dancings and Tumbings, exceeding any Thing of the Kind ever seen here: He also performs The slight of Hand, with great Dexterity and Art; and to make the Entertainment more agreeable, the Company will be diverted with the Musick of a Dulcemer. To be shewn every Evening this Week, at Mr. Beekman's, at the Spring Garden."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 27, 1752.
- Gov. Clinton, who has sold his household furniture and sent his baggage on board ship to return to England, is required by the lords of trade to remain in America.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 761-62, 770.
- A committee of the common council is appointed to regulate and pave Dock Street with the aid of a surveyor.—M. C. C., V: 362, 367. The reference shows the retention of the same Dock Street at this time, although the street was one with Pearl Street as early as 1730.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 998, 1007.
- Cornelius van Horn, member of assembly for the city and county of New York, dies.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 11, 1752. He bequeathed to three of his sons all his lands in New York, with the buildings which he bought from Joseph Latham "Lying near the Creupel Bosch [Crippel-bush] and known as my Corde yard."—Abstracts of Wills, IV: 390-91. See "The Swamp," "Beekman's Swamp," or "Crippel-bush," in Landmark Map Ref.
 Key, III: 967.
- The provincial council receives a royal mandamus appointing John Chambers to the council in place of Stephen Bayard; he is sworn in and takes his seat.—Cal. Coun. Min., 384.
- Benj. Franklin writes from Philadelphia to Cadwallader Colden:
 "Sir,
 "I find Parker [James Parker—see April 27] has been indiscreet enough, to print a Piece in his Paper [the Post-Boy] which has brought him into a great deal of Trouble. I cannot conceive how he was prevail'd on to do it, as I know him to be a thorough Believer himself, and averse to everything that is commonly called Free thinking. He is now much in his Penitentials, and requests me to intercede with you, to procure from the Governor a Nol.
 Pros. in his Favour, promising to be very circumspect and careful for the future, not to give Offence either in Religion or Politics, to you or any of your Friends, in which I believe he is very sincere.
 —I have let him know, that I pretend to no Interest with you, and I fear he has behav'd to the Governor and to you in such a Manner as not to deserve your Favour. Therefore I only beg Leave to recommend the poor Man's Case to your Consideration; and if you could without Inconvenience to your own Character, interest yourself a little in his Behalf, I shall, as I am much concern'd for him, esteem it a very great Obligation.
 "As to the Cause of Religion, I really think it will be best serv'd by Stopping the Prosecution: For if there be any evil Tendency apprehended from the Publication of that Piece, the Trial and Punishment of the Printer will certainly make it 1000 times more publick, such is the Curiosity of Mankind in these Cases. It is besides, an old Thing, has been printed before both in England, and by Andrew Bradford here; but no publick Notice being taken of it, it dy'd and was forgotten, as I believe it would now be, if treated with the same Indifference.—I am, with great Respect,
 "Sir,
 "Your hum'l Serv't
 "B Franklin"
 —From the original letter, with Colden Papers, in N. Y. Hist. Soc.

1752 "Notice is hereby given to the Curious. That at the House of May Mr. James Trotter in the Broad-Way, there will be exhibited, to 18 begin on Thursday next, and continue from Day to Day, (the weather being suitable) for two or three Weeks, a Course of Experiments on the newly-discovered Electrical Fire, containing, not only the most curious of those that have been made and published in Europe; but a considerable Number of new Ones, lately made in Philadelphia; to be accompanied with methodical Lectures on the Nature and Properties of that wonderful Element.—N. Y.
Merc., May 18, 1752.

" Joseph Leddel, Jr., informs the public that he sells "at his House in Smith-Street, opposite to Mrs. Carpenter's, at the most reasonable Rates; all sorts of Pewter-ware, by wholesale or retail, and makes Worms for Stills of all Sizes, by a compleat Way at the lowest Price: Likewise, makes Hoghead, Barrell, or Bottle Cranes, either with or without Cocks, and makes the Infusion-Pots, so much approv'd of in Colds, and any uncommon Thing in Pewter, in any Shape or Form as shall be order'd; likewise does all sorts of Lead-work, either House or Ship-work.

"He also engraves on Steel, Iron, Gold, Silver, Copper, Brass, Pewter, Ivory, or Turtle-Shell, in a neat Manner, and reasonably." —N. Y. Post-Boy, May 18, 1752. See also Stauffer, Am. Engravers on Copper and Steel, I: 159.

23 William Bradford, the printer, dies.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 25, 1752. The newspaper account states that he was "in the 94th year of his Age;" also that he came to America "upwards of 70 years ago, and landed at a Place where Philadelphia now stands, before that City was laid out or a House built there." This statement, as well as the one on his tombstone, which gives his age as 92 years, are in error; for he himself is authority for the statement, printed in 1739 in Leech's Almanack, under date of May 20, that "The Printer [was] born the 20th 1663." This would fix his age at 89 years.
 See also description of Pl. 27, I: 259-60.

25 An advertisement refers to "Elias Degrushe [see Feb. 13], of this city, Rope-maker, at the upper End of the Broadway."—N. Y.
Post-Boy, May 25, 1752. Degrushe's ropewalk extended west from Broadway in the block above Warren St.—See Pl. 34, Vol. I.

June The lords of trade write to Gov. Clinton, and to each of the 3 other governors of the British colonies, their express directions not to depart from their instructions, which, of late years, "have been dispensed with and neglected, upon slight & unwarrantable pretences." These instructions are intended "for the support of His Majesty's Prerogative and the protection of his subjects in their just rights, for the establishing and preserving good government in his Colonies."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 760-61. Regarding the violation by the people of New York of the king's "prerogative," see Aug. 6, 1751. See also Andrews, The Colonial Period (1912).

8 "The Still-House near the Battery fronting the Guard-House" is offered for sale. Enquirers are directed to John Livingston or Dirck Lefferts.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 8, 1752.

10 Steps are taken to build a new exchange. Regarding the first one, see March 24, 1670. "Several Gentlemen in this City having Voluntary Subscribed to wards Erecting an Exchange at the Lower End of Broad Street near the Long Bridge," John Watts appears before the common council "with a plan thereof" for their approbation. It is unanimously approved, and "for the Encouragement of so Laudable an Undertaking," it is voted that the mayor issue his warrant to the city treasurer to pay £100 to the managers of the building to be applied toward that object. A member of the board, John Livingston, is appointed to assist the building managers chosen by the subscribers.—M. C. C., V: 367-68.
 The following proceedings are recorded in connection with the construction of this building:

"While the work was in progress, the common council resolved, on Aug. 27, 1752, to have a room built, 12 feet high, "over the Exchange," at the city's expense, and to borrow £200 to purchase materials; a committee being appointed to execute the order.—
Ibid., V: 375. On Sept. 1, it was ordered that the west side of the foundation be taken up, "and that the same Be made four feet Wider then it now is."—Ibid., V: 376. On Oct. 4, it was ordered that "the whole or so much of the foundation on the East side of the Exchange . . . as is Necessary Be taken up, and, that five Arches Be made on each side instead of Six, with two at Each End;" and that materials be procured for completing the building.
 —Ibid., V: 380-81. On July 13, 1753, it was ordered "that the second Store [storey] of the Exchange . . . be not Exceeding fifteen feet in height and not Less than fourteen, and that the Room be arched from the height of the Said fourteen feet and that a Cupola be Erected on said Exchange under the Direction of the Committee appointed for Compleating the said Exchange."

 —Ibid., V: 408.

From time to time, from Dec. 14, 1752, to Nov. 1, 1754, payments were made by the city for labour and materials, and to repay the money advanced to prosecute the work.—Ibid., V: 389, 393; 405-6, 407-8, 409, 413, 415, 439, 432, 434, 437, 441, 443;
 448, 451, 456, 467, 474. Among the materials and labour provided were sash, window-frames and glass (p. 405), one lot of 13,333 bricks costing £20 (p. 434); another lot of 1,000 bricks costing £1:13 (p. 456); painting (p. 451), and carting sand (p. 467).
 The building had progressed so far toward completion by Feb. 1, 1754 that it was ready for occupancy.—See Jan. 15, 1754. The "Exchange" was "a House belonging to the Corporation of the said City."—Ibid., VI: 342, 348. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 924.

The first Moravian church in the city is dedicated. For outline of its history, see June 16, 1751. See also description of "The Shoemakers' Land," Pl. 24-a, I: 237.

Nicholas Duplessis, a surgeon, recently arrived from London, 22 advertises that he may be found "at his House in Crown-Street
 [Liberty St.], near Pot-Baker's Hill, opposite the House of MF
 Jonathan Fish."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 22, 1752. This "Pot-Baker's Hill" was not the one known as "Crolius," described in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 967; and Man. Com. Civ. (1856), 469. A few later advertisements serve to show its exact location, and the period when the name was used: The Widow Sommer lived "next Door to MF Laffert's on Pot-Baker's Hill in Smith [William] Street."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 14, 1753. The address of Cornelius Kupper, a painter and glazier, was "on Pot-Baker's-Hill, next Door to Mr. Dirck Lefferts."—Ibid., Nov. 10, 1755. Richard Curson sold wines "on Pot-Baker's Hill, near the New-Dutch Church" (cor. Nassau and Liberty Sts.).—Ibid., Jan. 17, 1757.
 James Watt, a book-binder, was "At the House of William Eustick, on Pott-Bakers Hill, near Joseph Haynes's." Jarvis Roebuck, a cork-cutter, lived "at the foot of Pot-Baker's Hill, between the Fly Market [Maiden Lane at Pearl St.] and the New Dutch Church."—N. Y. Gaz., Feb. 4, 1763. Benj. Coates lived on "Pot Baker's Hill in the house opposite the New Dutch Church."—Ibid.,
 May 16, 1763. Sam'l Brown's address was "at the foot of Pot Baker's Hill between the New Dutch Church and Fly Market."— N. Y. Merc., Feb. 9, 1767. The "nailery" of Harry Ustick was "on Pot Baker's Hill in Smith Street."—Rivington's Gazetteer, March 3, 1774. A house and lot offered for sale were "in Smith Street, on Pot-Baker's-Hill, near the New-Dutch-Church" (the North Dutch Church on William St., between Fulton and Ann Sts.).—Ibid., Jan. 19, 1775. The North Dutch Church, it should be noted, was built in 1767 (q.v., July 2), on lots inherited under Har-pending's will in 1724 (see Jan. 15, 1767). Pot Baker's Hill was therefore the declivity lying eastward from William St., north of Liberty St.; and is indicated approximately as Block 68, on Landmark Map, Pl. 174, Vol. III.

The trustees of Georgia surrender their charter, and the colony 23 becomes a royal province.—Windsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 389.

St. George's Chapel (see Jan. 14, 1751) is consecrated. The 1 dignitaries of Trinity Church, attended by 52 charity scholars, walk in procession from Trinity vestry-room in the charity schoolhouse to the city hall, where they are joined by the city officials.
 Then all proceed to the newly-finished chapel, where divine service is performed, "with the utmost Decency and Propriety."—N. Y.
Post-Boy, July 6 and 13, 1752.

St. George's Chapel was built in 1748-52 (q.v.) on the northwest corner of Beekman and Cliff St. The architect was Robert Crommelin, a member of the vestry. The building was 92 feet long, exclusive of chancel, and 72 feet wide. It was faced with hewn stone and had a tiled roof. The steeple, 172 feet high, contained a large bell. On Jan. 5, 1814 (q.v.), the chapel burned, but was immediately rebuilt, and the new edifice was dedicated Nov. 7, 1815. In 1846, a site for a new church, on Rutherford Pl. and 16th St., was given by Peter G. Stuyvesant, and a new building was begun on June 23 of that year; it was opened for service Nov.
 19, 1848. The old church on Beekman Street was conveyed, July 21, 1851, to the Church of the Holy Evangelists, and continued

1752 to be known as "St. George's Chapel," or "Old St. George's Chapel." In 1860, the Church of the Holy Evangelists withdrew, and for a time thereafter the chapel was maintained as the Free Church of St. George's Chapel, but in 1868 it was sold to the firm of Phelps, Dodge & Co., and soon demolished.—Anstice, Hist. of St. George's Church, 23-24, 61-62, 68, 167-68, 178-79, 192-93, 211-14; Berrian, An Historic Sketch of Trinity Church, 82. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 933.

6 An advertisement offers for sale the "Still-House near the Battery fronting the Guard-House," with all the utensils for making rum, as well as a stock of liquor. Inquiries are to be made of John Livingston or Dirck Lefferts.—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 6, 1752.

" George Goodwin, "who lately liv'd with Mr. Dawson," announces that he has taken stables to keep horses "at the Sign of the Dolphin facing the Common, being the Place where Mr. Dobbins lately used to keep Horses."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 6, 1752. The "Sign of the Dolphin" was a tavern which stood near the site of the present county court-house. See Aug. 28, 1749. Roper Dawson was a patron of the race-track.

8 The common council appoints "Managers for the Ordering and Causing to be made a Good and Sufficient Stone Drain arch with Brick of Two foot and a half high and Two foot Wide in the Clear at the End of the Meal Market to Carry the fifth mud and Dirt from thence into the East River."—M. C. C., V: 370. On Aug. 27, 1787; 32½ was paid for this work.—Ibid., V: 374.

" The common council changes its plan for building a pier at the end of Coenties Dock (see April 26, 1750). It now orders that "instead of Carrying on the pier at the Southermost End said Dock Eighteen foot to the Westward and forty foot to the East ward, that there Be now added forty foot to the Thirty foot Already laid to the East ward."—M. C. C., V: 371.

" A committee of the common council, appointed "to See the Lands of Adolph Benson and Jacob Duyckman Run out in the Outward" (M. C. C., V: 367), reports that "there is Vacant Lands Between the Bloemendal patent, and Harlem line;" also that Benson and Duyckman desire to lease from the city whatever lands belonging to the city they have held. A committee is therefore appointed to survey the city's lands "Between Harlem patent and Bedlows patent."—Ibid., V: 370-71. Unfortunately, at the present time there is no map of the common lands known, earlier than 1785, showing the location of these properties; see, however, description of Pl. 82-b-b, III: 554-55, for references to the lands of Duyckman and Benson. See also Riker, Hist. of Harlem; and the Maerschalck map of the Harlem line of 1750, referred to under date of Jan. 9, 1750.

14 Archibald Kennedy receives a grant of "a Small Lot of Ground in the City" where formerly stood the custom-house. His petition reads as follows: "To his Excellency. The petition of Archibald Kennedy, Collector of his Majesty's Customs Humbly Sheweth: That upon the Surrender of this Country by the dutch, there was a lott of ground with a store house upon it, belonging to the Dutch West India Company, the which became vested in the crown and being a Proper Situation at that time for a Custom House it was Sett apart for that Purpose, but our Assembly having Neglected to Keep it in repair though often requested by your petitioner as may appear from the several memorials laid before them. The house became ruinous, and was at Last presented by a Grand Jury as a Nuisance & by order of Court demolished; your petitioner has been obliged ever since to Shift from Place to Place with the books and Papers belonging to the Office to the no small Inconvenience both of the Officers and traders & charge of the Crown for the rent of a house to keep the Custom House in.

"That the said lott of ground is of no use at present to the Crown but likely to become a Dughhll & a Nuisance to the City.

"That the granting the said lott in fee Simple for such a yearly rent as the grantee can Afford and applying that rent yearly to the Lessening the Charge of the rent of a Custom House will be so far useful to the Crown forever.

"Your Petitioner therefore humbly Prays he may have a grant of the said Lott, reserving such rent to be Applied towards the hire of a Custom House as your Excellency & Councillie in your Great Wisdom may think the Value of the Thing Will bear & your petitioner will ever pray &c. Arch. Kennedy."

It is endorsed: "The Petition of Archibald Kennedy, Esqf for the Grant of a Small Lot of Ground in the City New York.

"1752, July 14th. Read in Council and granted under the annual quit-Rent of four pounds. Geo. Banyar, D. Clk. Coun."

This was followed by a warrant from Gov. Clinton to William Smith, the attorney-general; and a plan or survey, dated July 21, 1752, showing the lot between Bridge and Dock Sts. with land of Capt. Hilton on the west and of John Watts on the east. The survey of the land is signed by Franc. Maerschalck, city surveyor, and within the four lines of the house plot is dated 16th July, 1752.—Land Papers, XIV: 171-72. This is the plot formerly occupied by the pack house of the West India Co., which was erected in 1649 (q. v.). See Castello Plan, II: 265-66; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 987; Pl. 174, Vol. III. See also June 4, 1739; March 13, 1745; and "Custom House" in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 974.

Sir Peter Warren dies in Dublin. His life and character were reviewed in the New York papers of October and November following. A monument, bearing an inscription extolling his virtues, was erected to his memory in Westminster Abbey. He is there referred to as "Knight of the Bath, Vice-Admiral of the Red Squadron of the British Fleet, and Member of Parliament for the City and Liberty of Westminster."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 16, 23, 30, and Nov. 6, 1752; Wilson, Mem. Hist. N. Y., II: 267.

On May 16, 1753, before a notary in London, Lady Warren, of Cavendish Square, "widow, relict and acting executor," made Sir Henry Frankland, Charles Apthorpe, and Thomas Hancock of Boston her attorneys to collect, settle and adjust with the debtors of the late Sir Peter Warren in Massachusetts, "subject to follow in all things the orders and directions from James De Lancey, Peter De Lancey, Oliver De Lancey, and John Watts of New York." On Dec. 20, 1753, Oliver de Lancey and John Watts authorized Frankland, Apthorpe, and Hancock to settle with several debtors and remit to Lady Warren.—Registry of Deeds (Suffolk Co., Mass.), Liber 83, p. 156 (entry of Jan. 8, 1754).

Lady Warren herself made her will about the same time, it being dated Jan. 1, 1754, and filed in Somerset House, London (cited Prerogative Court of Canterbury, 79 Taxender). Letters of administration were issued on Feb. 14, 1772 on the estate of "Dame Susan Warren, late of the parish of St. George, Hanover Square in the county of Middlesex, widow deceased," to "the Honble Ann Fitz Roy (wife of the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Charles Fitz Roy), Susanna Skinner (wife of William Skinner Esqf), and the R<sup>t</sup> Hon<sup>ble</sup> Charlotte Countess of Abingdon (wife of the R<sup>t</sup> Hon<sup>ble</sup> Willoughby, Earl of Abingdon), the daughters of the said deceased and residuary legatees."—Ibid.

The farm property owned by Sir Peter Warren in New York later became the residence of Abraham van Ness.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 953; Man. Comm. (1854), 528. See also A. Pl. 5-b, Vol. III.

The common council directs that a common road be laid out for Elbert Herring (Haring), "for him to go to his Land, Lying to the Westward of Jacob Duyckmans House and Ground."—M. C. C., V: 372. The road, when laid out, was Amity Lane, running from Broadway to Macdougal Street.—See Pl. 41, Vol. I; and Pl. 175, Vol. III (reference nos. 535-41). See also Holmes's Map of the Haring Farm. Amity Lane is now obsolete; it should not be confused with Amity Street (now West Third Street).

Judging from the date and number of the earliest issue located (that of Aug. 31, 1752), the first issue of Hugh Gainé's weekly, The New-York Mercury, was published on this day, and bears this date. Writing 13 years later, Gainé stated, however, that Aug. 8, 1752, was "the Day this Mercury was first published here" (N. Y. Merc., Oct. 28, 1765).—Early Newspapers, II: 422. Ford, in his annotation of the Jour. of Hugh Gainé, I: 4-9, gives an account of the printer's various offices, and says that the fifth number indicates that the paper was first printed "on Hunter's Key, next Door to Mr. Walton's Storehouse." See May, 1753.

"The Laws of the Province of New-York, being now finished, are ready to be deliver'd to the Subscribers, . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 10, 1752. These were the compilation made by Livingston and Smith (see Nov. 24, 1750). On June 1, 1753, the general assembly, in a communication to the governor, refers to this revision as "not in every Point exactly agreeable to the Plan proposed from the Lords Justices;" but they are nevertheless "persuaded" it "will not be disappointed, when properly presented to our most gracious Sovereign."—Assem. Jour., II: 338. This set of laws comprises those in force at this time, which have been enacted by the province of New York from 1691 to 1751, inclusive.—Col. Laws N. Y., I: v ("Explanatory Note"). The same compilers published another collection in 1762 (q. v.).

1752 "There is also a Subscription on Foot for erecting a little Aug. College in this Province; But I think the Multiplication of such 20 small Seminaries, tho' it may a little increase Knowledge, will not advance Learning to any remarkable Pitch; as the Endowments must be small, and their Libraries ill-stocked, to what those of one general College or University might be."—Mascarran, America Dissected (Dublin, 1753), 21. See Nov. 25, 1751; March 23, 1752.

27 "The common council appoints a committee "to View the Long Bridge at the Lower End of Broad Street," and estimate the cost of up-keep for five years.—M. C. C., V: 374.

Sept. "New Style begins to take Place in all the English Dominions, 3:14 when that Day, which would have been the 3d, must be reckoned the 14th of September, and from thence forward, our reckonings of Time will be agreeable to that of most modern Nations."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 31, 1752. More correctly speaking, the New Style began on Jan. 1, 1752. This was in conformity with the act of parliament passed for the purpose March 18, 1751 (q.v.).
 The civil year (as distinguished from the solar year), according to the ancient Roman method, began with March 25; it was moved to January 1 by the Gregorian system (or New Style). When, therefore, this system was adopted, Jan. 1, 1752 became the beginning of the year 1752 in New York. For a clear and concise explanation of the Old Style (or Julian Calendar) and the New Style (or Gregorian Calendar), historically considered, see Lardener's Cyclopaedia (1833); for a more technical explanation, see Encyc. Britannica, title "Calendar." See also 1582, Addenda.

When the Gregorian Calendar was put into effect by Great Britain and her colonies, 11 days were dropped without being reckoned in the calendar; the holders of bills, promissory notes, etc. were obliged to abide by this arrangement, and landlords were obliged to make the same allowance to their tenantry.—Diary,
 Feb. 16, 1797.

19 "As the calendar is reckoned by the common council, this day is Tuesday. The last meeting, one week ago, was held on Tuesday, Sept. 1. The New Style is therefore now in operation, as, by the Old Style, the 19th would fall on a Saturday; 11 days have therefore been dropped.—M. C. C., V: 375, 376. At the next meeting, Friday, Sept. 29, the Minutes themselves state that that date is "Newstyle."—Ibid., VI: 378.

25 John Watson and Hannah Jones now keep the ferry-boat on Staten Island, where Thomas Lepper lately lived. Watson has taken a lease of this ferry for a term of years.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 25, 1752.

29 A proclamation is issued proroguing the general assembly to
 Oct. 23, then to meet at the house of Jacob Dyckmann, near Harlem, in the Out Ward.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 601; *Jour. Leg.
 Coun.*, II: 1098.

Oct. "Last Week arrived here Capt. Pickeman from Holland, with 2 about 230 Palatines on board"—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 2, 1752.
 The same issue of the paper contains an advertisement of "A Parcel of healthy Palatine Servants, Men, Women and Children, among which are several Tradesmen," to be disposed of on "board the Snow Johannes, Capt. Pickeman," or by application to Richard Tole, near the Old Slip Market.

12 "Another ship-load of 200 Palatines arrives; 50 died on the voyage.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 16, 1752.

16 News reaches New York, by way of Philadelphia, of the death of Sir Peter Warren at Dublin, on July 12 (q.v.).—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 16, 1752.

"There are said to be very few families in New York that have not been visited by the small-pox, so that it is believed the city will soon be clear of the epidemic.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 16, 1752.
 See also March 14, 1752, and May 30, 1753.

23 The anonymous author (later disclosed as William Smith—see March 2, 1753) of the "Pastoral" on the death of Sir Peter Warren published in the Post-Boy of this date announces in the same issue that to-morrow will be published and sold, at the "New Printing-Office in Beaver-Street," at the price of one shilling,
 "Some Thoughts on Education; with Reasons for erecting a College in this Province, and fixing the same at the City of New-York.
 To which is added, a Scheme for employing Masters and Teachers in the mean Time; and also for raising and endowing an Edifice in an easy Manner. The whole concluding with a Poem, being a serious Address to the House of Representatives."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 23, 1752. Evans makes no mention of this work.

The publication of this essay called forth an appreciative effusion in the next issue (Oct. 30) of the same paper, signed "Lover of Merit." He says in part: "To set apart the Interest of the Money already raised, as a Salary for Masters or Teachers, and the raising the Edifice by an easy Lottery, is certainly the best Method; for to set about building, while our Youth are neglected in the mean Time, would be very preposterous; but by this Scheme both may be done at the same Time; and if two Masters are not found sufficient, there are many Gentlemen in New York who, I hear, would willingly subscribe to encourage one or two more, till a greater Sum shall be raised and added to the present Capital (3443 l.) for that End. In a Word, I am now in full Hopes this Assembly will at last do something to the Purpose in such a needful Work, and give that Attention which is due to such a publick-spirited Essay as that is of which I now speak . . ."—Ibid., Oct. 30, 1752.

Other comments of the same nature, signed "Philo-patrie" (very probably written by William Smith himself, or possibly William Livingston; cf. March 15, 1756), appeared in ibid., Nov.
 6 (Supp.), 1752. This writer suggests ". . . that it should first set out under the Presidency of a grave and learned Provost (if I were to give the Name) or any other Name which the Charter may give to the Head of the College; and therefore it seems as if the first Step must be, to obtain of his Excellency the Governor a proper Charter, well devised, to vest in proper Persons the several Powers and Authorities necessary to give Dignity to the College, and Privileges to the Members of it. Suppose the Corporation be stiled, The Governors of ——— College, in the Province of New-York; the Provost for the Time being, always to be one.
 . . . But at present it seems very certain, that no Place is so proper as the City, for beginning collegiate Instruction, (I mean after the Small-Pox is out.)

"1st, The City-Hall may furnish Room for some Years. 2d,
 The City may furnish a tolerable good Library, to serve until a better may be expected from charitable Donations; for which Application may be made with Prospect of good Success, after a Charter is obtained for a Corporation. 3d, If the Gentlemen of the Church think fit, the Provost of the College may serve as a Minister for their new Church, and their Contribution for that Service, enable him to subsist honourably upon a less Salary from the College; which sort of Oeconomy will be very convenient, especially at first setting out; and perhaps Dr. Johnson, of Stratford [see April 15, 1747], may give Satisfaction to both, if he can be prevailed upon to accept it. . . ." See, further, March 2, 1753. Johnson was in due time appointed.—See Nov. 22, 1753.

Gov. Clinton recommends William Smith to the lords of trade for appointment to the place in the council made vacant by the death of Sir Peter Warren. Smith had been serving as attorney-general by Clinton's appointment after the death of the late attorney-general (cf. June 28, 1749), but that place had already been "pre-engaged" by William Kempe, who was appointed attorney-general in England on Nov. 21, 1751. Kempe arrived in New York with his family on Nov. 4, 1752.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 766, citing Commissions, 31, and N. Y. Gaz.

"Whereas there hath been a Stage carried on for one whole 30 Year past, by Boats and Waggon, from New-York to Philadelphia, by way of Amboy and Borden's-Town, and by Experience, been found to answer the End it was designed for, as much as we could expect in so short a Time

"These are to inform the Publick, that Daniel O'Brian, being provided with a Boat exceedingly well fitted, with a very handsome Cabin, . . . proposes to give his Attendance at the late Col.
 Moore's Wharf, every Wednesday and Saturday, (and may be spoke with at the House of Scotch Johnney), and next Day, Wind and Weather permitting, to proceed for Amboy Ferry, to John Cluck's, where a Wagon kept by John Richards, will be ready to receive either Goods or Passengers, and proceed with them to Borden's Town, where a Stage Boat will be ready to carry them to Philadelphia; and the same Method will be followed from the Crooked-Billet Wharf at Philadelphia, up to Borden's-Town, and shall proceed Load or no Load twice a Week, by which Means Passengers or Goods may never be detained on the Road. They expect to give better Satisfaction this Year, than last, by Reason they are more acquainted with the Nature of the Business, and have more convenient Boats, Waggon, and Stages, and will endeavour to use People in the best Manner they are capable of,

Oct.
 23

24

30

- 1752 and hope all good People will give it the Encouragement it de-Oct. serves. . . .
 30 "Daniel O'Brian.
 "Joseph Richards.
 "Joseph Borden, jun."
- N. Y. Post-Boy*, Oct. 30, 1752. Cf. Oct. 13, 1750. The Almanack of B. Franklin and D. Hall for 1753 describes this transportation line, mentioning the stage-boat of Joseph Borden, Jr. and "Daniel Ohrvant."
- Nov. William Kempe, the new advocate and attorney-general, to succeed the late Richard Bradley (see Aug. 28, 1751), arrives from London with his family.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 6, 1752.
- 6 "To be Sold on board the Brigantine York, Thomas Grefnal Master, from London; A Parcel of likely English Servants Time, both Men and Women, among which are the following Tradesmen, viz. A Smith, Shoemaker, Garder, Weaver, Baker, and Butcher."
 —N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 6, 1752.
- An advertisement informs the public that "John Baptiste Guerbois, just arrived here from Paris, teaches Latin, French, Arithmetick and Writing; and will wait on any Gentlemen or Ladies, that shall please to encourage him in his Employment, with the utmost Care and Exactness: He may be spoke with at Mr.
 Bury's, Tailor in Beaver-Street."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 6, 1752.
- 7 The assembly resolves to allow £51 for repairing Copey bat-try.—Assem. Jour., II: 335. See also Sept. 25, 1750; July 4, 1753.
- 9 Trinity vestry orders that there shall be "a fit Bell for the Chappell of Ease" (St. George's).—Trin. Min. (MS.). Regarding the erection of the steeple, see Oct. 3, 1751.
- 15 Christopher Blondel, the store-keeper of the fort, petitions for a lease of a certain lot and tenement situated on the Hudson River to the north-westward of the north-west corner of Fort George, on the south side of the street (now Battery Pl.) leading westward to the Hudson River between the Bowling Green and the fort.
 It was formerly granted by Gov. Hunter to Thomas Elde (armour-er of the fort), who has used it for "about 40 years, and no repairs having ever been made, the house is become ruinous and a sort of Pest House for the sick of the city as well as a nuisance both to the neighbors and Garrison."—Land Papers, XV: 25 (sec. of state's office, Albany). On Nov. 16, the council granted it for 99 years at 25. 6d. quit-rent, and an order was issued on Nov.
 23 for a lease.—Ibid., XV: 29. The building is seen in Pl. 44 and described at pp. 347-48, Vol. I. See also Landmark Map Ref.
 Key, III: 949 (house of Thos. Coker). For earlier references, see Dec. 8, 1683; May 5, 1687.
- 16 The governor's council at New York receives the act of parliament relating to the correction of the calendar, and its publication is ordered.—Cal. Coun. Min., 386. This was doubtless "An act to amend an act made in the last session of parliament [see March 18, 1751] (intituled An Act for regulating the commencement of the year, and for correcting the calendar now in use)." This act of amendment was the act of 25 Geo. II, Chap. 30;
Pickering, Statutes at Large (1765), XX: 368.
- 21 For "stealing Linen out 'a Washing-Tub," a man named William Bishop is "whipp'd at the Cart's Tail, from the City-Hall, thro' Wall-Street, Hanover-Square, and Broad-Street, up to the Hall again: After which he was to depart the City in 48 Hours, and never to be seen here again under very severe Penalties."—N. Y.
Post-Boy, Nov. 27, 1752.
- 30 The first number of The Independent Reflector, a weekly paper published by James Parker, appears. It might be classed as a magazine, the first one published in New York. Although it bore the appearance of a newspaper, and concerned itself with the topics of the day, it consisted of miscellaneous essays and letters, mainly of a political and religious nature. William Livingston used this weekly to express the views of Dissenters on the relations between Church and State, and to voice opposition to the control of King's College by the Anglicans (see March 22, 1753).—Sedgewick, Life of William Livingston; Corwin, Manual of Reformed Church, Chap. 7. With its 52d number, dated Nov. 22, 1753, the paper was suppressed "by exciting fears in the printer."—Eclesi-astic. Rev., V: 3456-60. Livingston then brought out a title-page and preface of 31 pages, dated Jan. 19, 1753 (error for 1754), 9.v.
 —Early Newspapers, II: 421; Brigham, "Bibliog. of Am. Newspapers," in Am. Antiq. Soc. Proc. (1917), 443.
- Dec. "William Wood [see Jan. 27], being Albany Post for this Sea-4 son; proposes, to set out for the first Time, on Monday, next.
- Letters may be left for him, at Mr. Benjamin Paine's, at the Old Slip, or at his own House, on Thurman's Dock at the North-River."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 4, 1752.
- A contributor to the Reflector complains of the numerous dogs in New York. He says, in part: "It appears, Sir, from the most accurate Calculation, that we have in this City, at least a Thousand Dogs; I do not mean of the human kind. . . . These Creatures are a perfect Nuisance to the Inhabitants, and with respect to Forty Nioe in Fifty, answer not one valuable purpose in Life."
 They "consume as much eatable Provision, as would suffice Five Hundred Men." The writer wants to secure "a Law of the Corporation," whereby "we may speedily be Witnesses of their perpetual Exile."—Independent Reflector, Jan. 18, 1753.

1753

In this year or the next, the Baptists held meetings for a short time in the old "rigging-loft" on Horse and Cart (William St.— Benedict, Hist. of the Baptist Denom. in the U. S. (1820), 263. See also 1767.

Adam Dobbs advertises for sale a house on the west side of Whitehall Slip, "formerly the habitation of Mr. Leisler." "The House is two story and a half high, has 3 rooms on a floor and is about 25 feet front and 44 feet back with a good gang-way into the yard. The whole lot is 29 feet front and about 100 feet deep with a good Brick Kitchen, Stable and Grass plat."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 1 and 8, 1753. Jacob Leisler's house stood on the site of the present 36-38 Whitehall St. He bought the property from Nicholas Verlet, May 16, 1669 (Liber Deeds, B: 155, New York), demolished the Verlet house, and built his residence mentioned in the advertisement. He lived there until 1685.—Liber Deeds, XXI: 34 (New York). See Pl. 17, Vol. I.; Castello Plan, II: 278-79.

James Parker and William Weyman succeed Parker alone as printers of the Post-Boy, and with the issue of this date the title is changed to The New-York Gazette; or, the Weekly Post-Boy. See Jan. 4, 1743. For the next change in name, see March 19, 1759.

A writer, who contributes "A Proposal of some further Regulations, for the Speedier and more effectual Extinguishing of Fires, that may happen in this City," mentions "the amazing Celerity, with which my Fellow-Citizens cluster together, at the ringing of the Fire-Bell;" also "the Companies, lately formed for the preservation of Goods at fires." He further says: "It hath more than once been observed that our Engines are incapable of throwing water to such a Height as is sometimes necessary. Of this we had a dreadful Instance when the Steeple of Trinity Church took Fire [see Feb. 23, 1750]. On that Occasion we observed, with universal Terror, that the Engines could scarce deliver the Water to the Top of the Roof. The Spire however, was far beyond its Reach; and had not Providence smiled upon the astonishing Dexterity and Resolution of a few Men, who ascended the Steeple within, that splendid and superb Edifice had, in all Probability, been reduced to Ashes.

"We are therefore in want of at least one Engine of the largest Size, which throws Water about one Hundred and Seventy feet high, discharges two Hundred Gallons in a Minute, and costs about Sixty Five Pounds Sterling.

"It is usual for People, in Cases of Fire, to form themselves into two Lines, the one to convey the full Buckets to the Engine, and the Other to return the empty Ones. . . . He suggests that, when word is given at fires to "Stop Water," there should be a large cedar hoghead near the engine, into which to pour the water, to prevent "Confusion in the Ranks," and cessation in conveying the water which permits the fire to gain fresh headway. "From this capacious Tub, three or four Men might constantly and equally keep the Engine replenished."

"Again, Fires often happen so remote from Water, as to occasion a Want of People, and in Places where the Passage is too narrow, to admit of a sufficient Number of double Lines to supply the Engines. . . . He proposes a new arrangement for the lines of men.

The tubs "will, in great Measure, secure the Engines against being clogged and choked with the Sand and Pebbles emptied into the Buckets at the River Side; For the Buckets being scooped into them, the Sand and Pebbles will sink to the Bottom, and the Water only be thrown into the Engines.

" . . . many Parts of the City, too remote from the River, to be supplied with Water from thence, are very deficient in public Wells. . . . He advocates "making more public Wells in the 1753 Streets," rather than use the wells in people's yards; for the latter method would afford opportunity for "robbing the Houses, thro' Jan. 11 which the Water is brought," an evil "almost as bad as the Fire itself."—Independent Reflector, Jan. 11, 1753. Cf. Oct. 30, 1750.

31 Trinity vestry orders that John Brown be paid £100 in full for "the Workmanship & Materials found and Provided for Rebuilding and furnishing the Churches School."—Trin. Min. (MS.)

Feb. 1 There appears to be corruption in the common council's policy of disposing of water lots. It is stated in a newspaper of the day that a certain petition presented to the common council on June 28, 1748 (q.v.), and the proceedings thereon, together with the astonishing proposals made by the petitioners to a committee of the common council, are now become "a common Coffee-House Topic." It is claimed by this newspaper that the grant which is sought will in 20 years, amount to about £6,000. At the meeting with the committee, the petitioners sought to obtain the water lots gratis for 20 years, and offered, at the expiration of this time, to pay ninepence a foot per annum thereafter. The writer urges that these lots be sold at public auction, and cites as a precedent the sale of lands to Col. Moore and others who paid 18 pence a foot. He adds that "none who have purchased from Low-Water Mark, into the East River, pay less than Eighteen Pence, and some even One Shilling and Nine Pence, a Foot, to wit, from Cruger's to Coentie's Corners."—Independent Reflector, Feb. 1, 1753. The common council, however, voted to grant these water lots at private sale.—See April 17.

2 James Alexander writes from New York to Cadwallader Colden in part as follows: "I wish you could be here Some Days before the 6th of May next to assist in preparing things for the observing the transit of Mercury over the Sun then, and in making the observation, for Except your Self & me, I believe there's none in this province any way acquainted with Observations of that kind, and our Observing that transit might show some young men how to Observe the transit of Venus in 1761.

"There are three reflecting Telescopes in town any of which will Serve for taking the moments of inner & outer Contacts at the End of the transit of Mercury—my Clock has a Second hand & the proprietors Quadrant will do to rectify the Clock, & the other matters proposed in M<sup>r</sup> d'Lyse's directions," etc.—From the original letter, with the Colden Papers, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Writing again to Colden on May 10 in regard to the transit on May 6, Alexander said: "the Clouds debarred us here of the Sight of the transit of Mercury though we were pretty well prepared for the observation."

16 Jonathan Oden, of New York, innholder, leaves property by will, including his tavern, which, according to Pelletreau, was "on the north side of Pearl street, next east of where the Harpers', Publishers, building now stands." This was the tavern where the eastern stages put up over night.—Abstracts of Wills, IV: 420, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections. See July 23, 1750.

23 The common council orders the deputy clerk to purchase a copy of the provincial laws and leave it in the desk of the common council chamber.—M. C. C., V: 392. See Nov. 24, 1750. See also Assemb. Jour., II: 338.

" John Ellison petitions the common council for "the Sole Right of ferrying from this City to the Jersey Shore and Back again from the half Moon Battery to Dominies Hook for the Space of seven Years under a Reasonable Rent."—M. C. C., V: 394. The half-moon battery was that built by Leisler at the Battery (see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 945), and Dominic's Hook was a projection in the North River between Chambers and Warren Sts. (ibid., III: 965). Ellison, therefore, sought a ferry monopoly on that side of the city. Consideration of the petition was deferred. A similar petition was presented by the inhabitants of the South Ward on March 23 (q.v.). For the first suggestion of a ferry to the Jersey shore, see Oct. 22, 1742.

Mar. — The "Argo," a schooner fitted out at Philadelphia through the exertions of Dr. Franklin, sails under the command of Capt. Swaine to explore the Arctic for a north-west passage. The ship succeeded in entering Hudson's Strait late in June of this year, but the mass of ice here was so great that the attempt to penetrate farther westward had to be abandoned. Swaine carefully examined the coast of Labrador and then returned to Philadelphia in November. In 1754, he set out again on the same quest, but he was once more unsuccessful.—Windsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 81-82.

Trinity vestry orders "That M<sup>r</sup> [William] Tuckey have the Use of the Charity School Room and also of the Vestry Room two Nights in the Week for the Teaching of his Singing Scholars, till further Orders."—Trin. Min. (MS.)

22 William Livingston (see Nov. 25, 1751) publishes in his Independent Reflector "Remarks on our intended College." The subject is continued in the succeeding issues, of March 29, and April 5, 12, 19, and 26. He announces the principle that: "The true Use of Education, is to qualify Men for the different Employments of Life, . . . to improve their Hearts and Understandings, to infuse a Public Spirit and Love of their Country; to inspire them with the Principles of Honour and Probity; with a fervent zeal for Liberty, and a diffusive Benevolence for Mankind, and in a Word, to make them the more extensively servicable to the Common-Wealth. . . ." (pp. 67-68). He pleads for freedom of thought, a non-party college; although he would always, "for political Reasons, exclude Papists from the common and equal Benefits of Society" (p. 74). He opposes a college founded on a royal grant, on account of the danger of the introduction of arbitrary power. He thinks "a Charter College will prove inefficacious to answer the true End of the Encouragement of Learning." (pp. 75-76).

Instead, he says, "I would propose, that the College be founded and incorporated by Act of Assembly, and that not only because it ought to be under the Inspection of the civil Authority; but also, because such a Constitution will be more permanent, better endowed, less liable to Abuse, and more capable of answering its true End," which, he conceives, "is to capacitate the Inhabitants of this Province, for advancing their private and public Happinees; of which the Legislature are the lawful Guardians" (pp. 79-80). He urges several arguments in favour of such incorporation (pp. 80-82); and points out eleven features which he deems necessary or desirable to embody in the incorporating act. For example, "That all the Trustees be nominated, appointed, and incorporated by the Act," and that vacancies be supplied "by Legislative Act;" that they hold office "only at the good Pleasure of the Governor, Council and General Assembly; And that no Person of any Protestant Denomination be, on Account of his religious Persuasion, disqualified for sustaining any Office in the College." Secondly, "That the President of the College be elected and deprived [discharged] by a Majority of the Trustees . . ." who, in turn, report to the assembly. By this means, "the President, who will have the supreme Superintendency of the Education of our Youth, will be kept in a continual and ultimate Dependence upon the Public." His fifth proposal for the articles of incorporation is "that no religious Profession in particular be established in the College; but that both Officers and Scholars be at perfect Liberty to attend any Protestant Church at their Pleasure." Likewise, his seventh proposal is "That Divinity be no Part of the public Exercises of the College, I mean, that it be not taught as a Science: That the Corporation be inhibited from electing a Divinity Professor; and that the Degrees to be conferred, be only in the Arts, Physic, and the Civil Law" (pp. 83-86). He develops further, in his last paper, the idea of making the college non-sectarian, but "founded on a free and catholic Bottom." He asserts that "an equal Toleration of Conscience, is justly deem'd the Basis of the public Liberty of this Country" (p. 90). See also Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 5-6; and Feb. 29, 1754.

These doctrines were embodied in an assembly bill, written by Livingston, the next year, after a charter had been granted, giving the college the use of the Episcopal ritual, etc.—See Nov. 1, 4, and 6, 1754.

For "removing a Shift the Property of one of her Neighbours," one Mary Wilson is "oblig'd to hugg the Post opposite the City-Hall, when she receiv'd the Discipline of Thirty One" (lashes).—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 26, 1753.

Inhabitants of the South Ward petition the common council for the establishment of a ferry "from this City to Harsimis" (Horsimus Island, of which Paulus Hook is a projection; see Pl. 50, Vol. I), with a landing-place "at or near the west End of pearl Street." Consideration was deferred, and no further action appears to have been taken.—M. C. C., VI: 395. See Feb. 23. The first ferry established across the North River—a private enterprise, is revealed by an advertisement in the Post-Boy, June 28, 1764 (q.v.).

William Smith publishes a signed pamphlet (including a postscript dated April 10) presenting his ideals of an American college. Apr. 10

- 1753 Courses of study and buildings are described in detail. His work is Apr. 10 entitled: A General Idea of the College of Mirania; with a Sketch of the Methods of teaching Science and Religion, in the several Classes; and Some Account of its Rise, Establishment and Buildings. Address'd more immediately to the Consideration of the Trustees nominated, by the Legislature, to receive Proposals, &c. relating to the Establishment of a College in the Province of New-York. It contains an "Advertisement" stating, in part: "The following Sheets were plan'd at the same Time with the Pamphlet on the Situation, &c. of our intended College, publish'd last October [see Oct. 23, 1752]; and design'd to follow it whenever the Public, by a more general Attention to the Concerns of Education, shou'd seem prepar'd to receive it. . . . The pamphlet is printed and sold by Parker and Weyman, at one shilling, sixpence.
- 16 The "New-York Subscription-Plate" (see Aug. 27, 1750) is advertised to "be Run for at Greenwich" by American-bred horses on May 22.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 16, 1753.
- 17 The common council votes to dispose of the water lots sought by Alderman Lisenpander, Cornelia Rutgers, and others, at a private sale.—M. C. C., V: 398-99. The board thus defies public opinion (see Feb. 1, 1753), which appears to favour a public auction of this property, as being more profitable to the city.
- 30 A royal mandamus is received by the provincial council, appointing William Smith to the council in place of Sir Peter Warreo, deceased; Smith is sworn in and takes his seat.—Cal. Coun. Min., 387.
- " The assembly is prorogued to meet at the court-house in Jamaica.—Cal. Coun. Min., 387.
- May 1 The Mercury contains this paragraph: "The Printer hereof [Gaine] takes this opportunity to give Notice of his Removal from the House of Mr. Roger Magrah, on Hunter's Key [see Aug. 3, 1752], to that wherein Mr. Josiah Crane, lately lived, opposite the Old Slip."—Journal of Hugh Gaine, I: 7-8 (editorial note). Gaine's next change of address was made May 6, 1754 (q.v.).
- 3 Augustus van Cortlandt delivers to the common council his appointment, signed and sealed by Gov. Clinton, to the several offices of "Common Clerk, Clerk of the Court of Record and Clerk of the peace" and of the Sessions of the peace for the City and County of New York; also the king's commission under the great seal of the province for these offices during good behaviour. He succeeds John Chambers, resigned. He is sworn in, and Lambert Moore is sworn in as his deputy. The common council orders that Chambers deliver to Van Cortlandt the charter, city seal, the public records, seal of the mayor's court, and all papers belonging to the corporation, to be kept by him.—M. C. C., V: 402-3. Van Cortlandt had been deputy to Chambers.—Ibid., V: 331. He held office until the Revolution.—Man. Com. Coun. (1860), 609.
- 14 Garrat Noel advertises a variety of goods for sale in the House where Mr. Dirck Brinkerhoff, lately lived," and into which Noel has moved, "opposite Mr. Jacob Franks, Merchant, in Dock-Street, near Coenties Market."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 14, 1753. This appears to be a reference to the remaining portion of the property covered by the first city hall, after the demolition of the building, or part of it, in 1700.—See 1700, and March 14, 1700.
- " . . . The Widow of Balthasar Sommer, late from Amsterdam, now lives next Door to Mr. Laferri's, on Pot-Baker's Hill in Smith-Street, New-York, Grinds all sorts of Optic Glasses to the greatest perfection, such as Microscope Glasses, Spraying Glasses of all Lengths, Spectacles, Reading-Glasses, for near-sighted People or others: Also Spraying-Glasses of three Feet long, which are to be set on a common Walking-Cane, and yet [can] be carried in a Pocket-Book. . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 14, 1753. For this "Pot-Baker's Hill," see June 22, 1752.
- 17 A letter from the Earl of Halifax (see May 28, 1751), written to Cadwallader Golden from "Grosvenor Square" (London), and sent by way of Halifax, reads in part as follows: "I am very sensible of your Abilities, and the part you have acted in support of his Majesty's Rights, when it has been made a point to maintain and preserve them; but as the Affairs of the Government of New-York have long been in a state of disorder and distraction before I was in a Situation to apply any remedy to them, I must be excused entering unnecessarily into so disagreeable a Detail, and recapitulating the variety of Incidents that occurred, and variety of Measures pursued thro' the Course of such unhappy Divisions.
- " This However it might now become my indispensable duty May to do, but that his Majesty has render'd it needless by having named Sr Daughters Osborn as a Successor to Mr Clinton in his Government, and I hope he will be in readiness to set sail for New-York in about six or seven weeks time at latest; so that Mr Clinton may return home before the winter season, which on account of his State of Health, both he and his Friends apprehend may prove of dangerous consequence to him.
- " The same Zeal and Loyalty which you have hitherto shewn in the support of His Majesty's Rights, I flatter myself you will continue to exert; and I hope that all such as have a true regard to the happiness of the Province will unite in their Endeavours to support it's Constitution, which may as effectually be destroyed by unjust attacks on the Prerogative of the Crown on the one Hand, as on the Rights and Liberties of the People on the other. My Earnest wish is that even the Remembrance of former Animositities may no longer remain, and that the only Contention for the future may be who shall most effectually promote the welfare, Peace, and Tranquillity of the Province."—From the original letter, with Colden Papers, in N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- 28 Andrew Ramsey, "late of Long Island Ferry" (the unexpired lease of which he had purchased from Daniel Bloom in July, 1750), has "revived" the "Trenton Ferry," where "all Travellers [between New York and Philadelphia], who are pleased to put up at his House, may depend on having good Entertainment for themselves and Horses." He is "providing a Stage Wagon to go from Brunswick to Trenton, and a Stage Boat from Philadelphia to Trenton." Dates of departure, etc. are given.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 28, 1753.
- 30 The assembly meets at the house of Benjamin Hinckman in Jamaica, L. I. (the court-house of the town being "an inconvenient Place to sit in"), and responds to a summons to meet the governor and council in joint session "in the Council-Chamber, at the House of the Widow Stillwell," where the governor delivers a message. The location, he explains, is "free from the Infection of the Small-Pox;" whereas the city of New York, while almost free of it, might cause uneasiness.—Assemb. Jour., II: 337. Clinton recommends that they pass the complete and well digested body of new laws ordered by the king on April 16, 1752 (q.v.).
- He also calls attention to the ruinous condition of frontier forts; the intrusion of others upon the lands of this province, etc.
- He says further: "The Resolution you made at the Close of the last Session [see Nov. 25, 1751], for establishing a Seminary for the Education of Youth within this Colony, is laudable and worthy your diligent Prosecution, and most serious Attention."—Jour. Leg. Coun., 1110.
- Although business was transacted by the governor at the fort (Assemb. Jour., II: 340, 342), and at Flushing (ibid., II: 347), sessions of the assembly continued at Jamaica until prorogued on July 4.—Ibid., II: 350-51. See also March, 1752.
- The "Small-Pox is entirely ceased, except in one Family" June this information is published by Parker, "to inform our Country 4 Readers."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 4, 1753.
- " Richard Haddon, who "intends to quit the business of tavern Keeping," offers his house "on the New Dock" for rent.—N. Y. Merc., June 4, 1753.
- " . . . Abraham Webb being provided with a Boat exceedingly well fitted, with a very handsome Cabin, and all necessary Accommodations; proposes to give his Attendance, at the White Hall Ship, every Mooday and Thursday; and the same Day, Wind and Weather permitting, to proceed for Amboy Ferry, to John Cluck's, where a Waggon, Kept by John Richards, will be ready to receive either Goods or Passengers, and to proceed with them to Borden's Town, where a Stage Boat will be ready to carry them to Philadelphia; and the same method will be followed from the Crooket-Billet Wharf at Philadelphia, up to Borden's Town, and shall proceed, Load or no Load, twice a Week, by which Means, Passengers or Goods may never be detained on the Road. . . . The notice is signed by Abraham Webb, Joseph Richards, and Joseph Borden, jr.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 4, Oct. 8, 1753. Cf. Aug. 12, 1751; Oct. 30, 1752.
- 12 Gov. Clinton holds a conference at Fort George with a deputation of 17 Mohawk Indians, representing one of the Six Nations, the object of which is to renew the "Covenant Chain," and to hear complaints of the encroachment of white men on Indian lands.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 781-88. The Indians present a 1753 letter of introduction from Arent Stevens, the agent and interpreter, dated Schenectady, May 3.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 603.

 June 12 The Indians left the conference hastily, "expressing great resentment and declaring they considered the alliance and friendship between them and the Province of New York to be dissolved."—Ibid., VI: 799. For digest of the transactions of this conference, see Cal. Coun. Min., 387-88. See, further, Sept. 18.

Stevens reported to Col. Johnson by letter of June 21 that the "Mohocks" returned much dissatisfied with their visit to the governor, and threatened to interrupt all communications with the Five Nations. The Canajoharie Indians wrote to Clinton that they had parted from him forever; that Arent Stevens should not pass their castle to the Five Nations, and the Five Nations should not come down.—Ibid., 605. On June 22, in an address to the assembly, Clinton recommended that a conference be held at Albany with the Six Nations.—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 1115. See July 3. Regarding the location of the three Mohawk "castles" (forts), see Hist. Mag., 2d ser., II: 15.

David Grim, writing from memory in 1813 (at the age of 75), describes the following facts connected with the visit of the Indians, which he erroneously ascribes to the year 1746. He remembers having seen: "a concourse of Indians, of the Mohawk and Oneida tribes, come from Albany in their canoes, with their squaws and papposes, (their wives and children,) a few hundreds, in order to hold a talk with the British Governor, George Clinton, Esq. They were encamped at the North river, in front of (now) St. John's Church. Those Indians, in a solemn train, marched from their encampment down the Broadway to Fort George, in which the Governor lived; in their parade they exhibited and displayed a number of human scalps, suspended on poles, by way of streamers, which scalps they had taken from the French and Indians, their enemies; after which the Governor, with the principal officers of the colony, and a large number of citizens went in a procession, from the Fort to the Indian encampment, and presented to them the customary presents on those occasions. This was the last time the Indians came to New York to hold a conference; after which the Governor met them at Albany."—From statement on back of Grim's General Plan of N. Y. City, in N. Y. Hist. Soc., printed in Man. Con. Com. (1855), 584-86. See also description of Pl. 32-a, Vol. I, p. 271.

18 There is advertised to be sold "at public Vendue" on June 20, "at the House late of old Mr. Delancey, near the English Church," household plate, fine china, furniture, etc.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 18, 1753. This mansion was built about 1700 (q.v.), at the present 115 Broadway between Thames (Stone) and Cedar Sts., by Etienne (Stephen) de Lancy, the founder of the American family of this name. Just below it, on the south side of Stone St., stood the Van Cortlandt mansion, in the rear of which was the Van Cortlandt sugar-house, a stone building at the north-west corner of Trinity churchyard which, in Nov., 1769 (q.v.), was destroyed by fire. The U. S. Realty building now occupies the site of the De Lancy mansion; and the Trinity building that of the Van Cortlandt mansion. The De Lancy mansion was of grey stone, two storeys high, with grounds in the rear sloping to the Hudson. A cupola adorned the roof.—See March 4, 1735. On April 15, 1754 (q.v.), Edward Willet opened the house as the Province Arms Tavern. For outline of its early history and later occupancy, see "City Tavern" in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 977.

"The public is informed that "The Ferry-house from Long-Island to Staten-Island, commonly known by the Name of the Upper-Ferry [see July 8, 1745] otherwise Stillwell's Ferry, is now kept by Nicholas Stillwell, who formerly occupy'd the same: He has two good Boats well accommodated for the safe Conveyance of Man or Horse, across the Narrows. He also purposes to carry, if requir'd, Travellers either to Staten Island, Elizabeth-Town Point, Amboy or New-York, and that at the most reasonable Terms."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 18, 1753. Andrew Ramsey had but recently kept the Long Island ferry-house.—See May 28.

"John Lane now "keeps the ferry at Yellow Hook, 6 miles below the New-York ferry on Long Island," and advertises that he is ready to go at any time (wind and weather permitting) to "Smith's ferry on Staten-Island," even with a single passenger.—N. Y. Merc., June 18, 1753.

25 "Sunday the 24th ult. being the Anniversary of the Festival of St. John the Baptist, the Ancient and Right Worshipful Society of Free and Accepted Masons, of this City, assembled at Spring

Garden the next Day, and being properly clothed, made a regular Procession in due Form, to the King's Arms Tavern in Broad Street, near the Long Bridge, where an elegant Entertainment was provided; . . .—N. Y. Merc., July 2, 1753. The Post-Boy's account refers to this tavern as "the house of George Burns . . . near the 'Change."

"Robert Wallace, Joyner. Living in Beaver Street, at the Corner of New-Street, makes all Sorts of Cabinets, Scrutores, Desks and Book Cases, Drawers, Tables, either square, round, oval, or quadrile, and Chairs of any Fashion. . . .—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 25, 1753.

An account of William Hallam's recent coming to New York with his players is thus given in the Mercury, as an introduction or appeal to the public:

"The Case of the London Company of Comedians, lately arrived from Virginia, humbly submitted to the Consideration of the Publick; whose Servants they are, and whose Protection they intreat.

"As our Expedition to New York seems likely to be attended with a very fatal Consequence, and our selves haply censur'd for undertaking it, without Assurance of Success; we beg leave, humbly to lay a true State of our Case before the worthy Inhabitants of this City; if possible, endeavour to remove those great Obstacles which at present lie before us, and give very sufficient Reasons for our appearance in this part of the World, where we all had the most sanguine Hopes of meeting a very different Reception; little imagining, that in a City, to all Appearance so polite as this, the Muses would be banished the Works of the immortal Shakespear, and others [of] the greatest Geniuses England ever produc'd, deny'd Admittance among them, and the instructive and elegant Entertainment of the Stage utterly protested against: When, without Boasting, we may venture to affirm, That we are capable of supporting its Dignity with proper Decorum and Regularity.

"In the Infancy of this Scheme, it was proposed to Mr. William Hallam, now of London, to collect a Company of Comedians, and send them to New York, and the other Colonies of America. Accordingly he assented, and was at a vast expence to procure Scenes, Clothes, People, &c. &c. And in October 1750, set over to this Place, Mr. Robert Upton, in order to obtain Permission to perform, erect a Building, and settle every Thing against our Arrival; for which Service, Mr. Hallam advanc'd no inconsiderable Sum. But Mr. Upton on his Arrival found here that Sett of Pretenders, with whom he joined, and unhappily for us, quite neglected the Business he was sent about from England; for we never heard from him after.

"Being thus deceived by him the Company was at a Stand, till April 1752, when by the Persuasion of several gentlemen in London, and Virginia Captains, we set sail on Board of Mr. William Lee [sic], and arrived after a very expensive and tiresome Voyage, at York River [Va.], on the 28th of June following: Where we obtained Leave of his Excellency the Governor, and performed with universal Applause, and met with the greatest Encouragement; for which we are bound by the strongest Obligations, to acknowledge the many and repeated Instances of their Spirit and Generosity. We were there eleven Months before we thought of removing; and then asking advice, we were again persuaded to come to New York, by several Gentlemen, &c. whose Names we can mention, but do not think proper to publish: They told us, that we should not fail of a genteel and favourable Reception; that the Inhabitants were generous and polite, naturally fond of Diversions rational, particularly those of the Theatre: Nay, they even told us, there was a very fine Play-house Building, and that we were really expected. This was Encouragement sufficient for us, as we thought, and we came firmly assured of Success; but how far our Expectations are answered, we shall leave to the Candid to determine, and only beg leave to add, That as we are People of no Estates, it cannot be supposed that we have a Fund sufficient to bear up against such unexpected Repulses. A Journey by Sea and Land Five Hundred Miles, is not undertaken without Money. Therefore, if the worthy Magistrates would consider this in our Favour, that it must rather turn out a publick Advantage and Pleasure, than a private Injury; They would, we make no Doubt, grant Permission, and give us an Opportunity to convince them, we were not cast in the same Mould with our Theatrical Predecessors; or that in private Life or publick 1753 Occupation, we have the Affinity to them."—N. Y. Merc., July 2, 1753. For the first performance in New York by the Hallams and their company, see Sept. 17.

June 25

July 2

"William Hallam, the originator of this company, had been the manager of the theatre in Goodman's Fields, London. . . .

"The company was formed on the sharing plan, and consisted of twelve adult individuals and the three children of Lewis Hallam. The shares were eighteen—each adult performer being entitled to one, and the manager one in addition for his services in that capacity, and one for his three children, and each shareholder being entitled to a benefit night. Four shares were assigned to the property, from which the profits of the speculation were to be realized by the originator and his brother, who were made equal partners in the scheme. The business is supposed to have resulted very favorably, for, in 1754, William Hallam arrived from England, where he soon returned with his proportion of the profits and the value of his two shares, which he sold to his brother Lewis for a handsome premium."—Ireland, Rec. of the N. Y. Stage, I: 16-17.

"By a Person lately arrived in this Town, Painting upon Glass, (commonly call'd burning upon Glass) is performed in a neat and curious Manner so as to never change its Colour; Perspective Views neatly colour'd for the Camera Obscura. N. B. Young gentlemen and Ladies are instructed in either of the above. . . . By the same Person, Land survey'd, Designs for Buildings, Plans and Maps neatly drawn. Enquire at Mr. John Ditcher's, Tallow-Chandler and Soap-Boiler in the Slat."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 9, 1753.

"Charles Love, Musician, from London, at his lodgings . . . in the first lane from the Bowling-Green, that leads to the North-River, proposes teaching gentlemen musick on the following instruments, viz. Violin, Hautboy, German and Common Flutes, Bassoon, French Horn, Tenor, and Bass Violin, if desired."—N. Y. Merc., July 2, 1753.

3 On account of the rupture in the allegiance of the Mohawks (see June 11), the council and assembly, in a representation to Clinton, recommend that Col. Johnson be appointed to meet the Indians at Onondaga, to remove their uneasiness, to bury the hatchet, and to preserve the friendship of those nations.—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 1122.

The general assembly finds it necessary to deny a rumour that, "in Case the Money raised by Lottery, for erecting a College within this Colony, should prove insufficient for that Purpose, the General Assembly intend to supply the Deficiency by a Tax on the People;" and a rumour that the people are to be taxed for the maintenance of the college, and that £500 is to be appropriated out of the excise fund for establishing the college. All these reports are declared to be "groundless, false and malicious."—Assemb. Jour., II: 350. See July 4.

4 The province authorizes the following appropriation: £375 for "repairing Copey battery [see earlier appropriation, Nov. 7, 1752; see also April 9, 1754] and Several other Repairs Necessary for Fort George in New York and for the Governors House in the Said Fort."—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 916-24.

"An act is passed for raising £1,125 by public lottery "for a further provision towards founding a College for the advancement of Learning within this Colony." Peter van Brugh Livingston and Jacobus Roosevelt are appointed managers, their duties are defined, and the details of the operation of the lottery are prescribed. The terms are similar to those enacted for the earlier college lotteries (see Dec. 6, 1746; April 9, 1748).—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 899. See July 23.

An act is passed "further to continue the Duty of Excise and the Currency of the Bills of Credit emitted thereon for the purposes in the former Act and herein Mentioned." The title does not reveal the chief purpose of the act, which is to appropriate provincial funds for the benefit of the college. The act recites the passage of an act "for laying an Excise on all Strong Liquors retained in this Colony" for the term of 20 years ending Nov. 1, 1734, which by several subsequent acts was prolonged to the year 1757. Then it states that "it has been the Intention of the Legislature for Several Years Past to Establish a Seminary within this Colony for the Education of Youth in the Liberal Arts and Sciences And as at present no other means can be devised than by a further Continuance of the Aforesaid Act and the Bills of Credit Issued thereupon and his Excellency the Governor having been pleased to approve of the Intentions of the General Assembly to proceed upon that good design at this Session as Signified by their Votes at their last Meeting," it is enacted that "the before Mentioned Act" shall continue from Nov. 1, 1757, to Nov. 1, 1767.

"And be it further Enacted by the Authority aforesaid That the Treasurer of this Colony for the time being is hereby Enabled and Directed to Pay into the Trustees Mentioned and appointed . . . [by the act of Nov. 25, 1754, p. 10] out of the Money's arising by the Duty of Excise the Annual Sum of Five Hundred Pounds for and during the Term of Seven Years to Commence from and After the first Day of January now next Ensuing to be by them apportioned and distributed in Salaries for the Chief Master or head of the Seminary by whatever denomination he may be hereafter Called and for Such and So many other Masters and Officers uses and Purposes Concerning the Establishment of the Said Seminary as the Said Trustees Shall from time to time in their discretion think Needful, Allways Provided that the whole Charge and Expence of the Same do not exceed the Above Sum. . . ."

The trustees are empowered "to Appoint and Appoint the Quantum of the Salary's of the Several Masters and officers of the Seminary hereby intended to be Established and to direct the Payment hereof by Quarterly or half Yearly Payments as they in their discretions Shall think Most fitting And Convenient."

Also, the trustees "Shall Ascertain the Rates which each Student or Scholar Shall Annually Pay for his or their Education at the Said Seminary for all which Sums they Shall Account with the Governor or Commander in Chief for the time being the Council or the General Assembly when by them or any of them thereto Required And which Said Sums Shall be applied to and for Such use or uses as Shall be directed by Act or Acts hereafter to be passed."

Finally, this act disposes of "all the Residue of the Money arising by the Said Duty of Excise" by applying it "towards Cancelling the Bills of Credit Emitted on the Said Fund," unless the bills be all cancelled by this fund before 1767, in which case the residue shall remain in the treasury.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 908-10.

Concerning the later application of this act in organizing the college work, see Benjamin Nicoll's A Brief Vindication of the Proceedings of the Trustees (1754), 7. The trustees were relieved of the duties imposed in this act by the act of Dec. 1, 1756 (q.v.), which transferred these duties to the college governors.

"Bedloe's Island, alias Love Island," is offered to let, "together with the Dwelling-House and Light-House, being finely situated for a Tavern, where all kind of Garden Stuff, Poultry, &c may be easily raised for the Shipping, outward bound and from whence any Quantity of pickled Oysters may be transported; it abounds with English Rabbits."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 9, 1753. In 1755 the island became a quarantine station.—See May 3, 1755. It was owned during this period by Archibald Kennedy.

Letters received from London, dated April 30 and May 12, mention the appointment of "Sir D'Anvers Osborn, Kt. to the Government of the two Provinces of New-York and New-Jersey;" and state that he is to embark from England within six weeks from the latter date.—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 16, and 23, 1753. See July 19.

"Left at Mr. Charles Sullivan's, tavern-keeper, at the Fresh-Water, in the out-ward of this city, on monday the 18th ult. a grey horse; supposed to be stolen. . . ."—N. Y. Merc., July 16, 1753. Sullivan's tavern may be identical with the later "Plow and Harrow." See Jan. 3, 1765.

Of twenty-two "Ladies of Pleasure, who were taken out of several Houses of ill Repute in this City," and committed to the workhouse, five, who can give "but a poor Account of themselves," are condemned "to receive 15 Lashes each, at the Whipping Post." The sentence is "performed accordingly, before a vast Number of Spectators, with Orders to depart the Town in 48 hours after, under Pain of Imprisonment."—N. Y. Merc., July 23, 1753.

The draft of a commission is approved by the king in council for Sir Danvers Osborn to be governor of New York, and it is ordered that a warrant issue to pass it under the great seal.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 791-92. It was ordered, Aug. 10, that his instructions be prepared.—Ibid., VI: 793-94.

The new lottery to raise money for the college (see July 4) is advertised. It consists of 5,000 tickets, to be sold at 30 shillings each, 1,094 of them "to be fortunate." There are 3,906 blanks. The capital price is £500; 15 per cent. is to be deducted from the prizes to cover expenses. Receipts from sales will amount to

Nov-27-84, April 20, 1878

Advertisement.

BY a Law passed the last Session, a Publick Lottery is directed, for a further Provision towards Founding a College for the Advancement of Learning within this Colony, to consist of 8000 Tickets, at 30 s. each, 1304 of which to be foranite, viz.

Number of Prizes.	Value of each.	Total Value.
1	9000	£ 9000
1	3000	£ 3000
2	2000	£ 4000
10	1000	£ 10000
30	500	£ 15000
40	200	£ 8000
50	150	£ 7500
1000	10	£ 10000
	5	£ 5000

1000 Prizes, 6000 Blanks, 8000 Tickets, at 30 s. each makes £. 12,000,

15 per Cent. to be deducted from the Prizes. As such a laudable Design will greatly tend to the Welfare and Reputation of this Colony; it is expected the Inhabitants will readily be excited to become Adventurers. Publick Notice will be given at the precise Time for putting the Tickets into the Boxes, that such Adventurers as shall be unskilful to see the same done, may be present at the doing thereof. The Drawing to come on the 1st of September next at the City-Hall of New-York, under the Inspection of the Corporation, who are empowered to appoint two or more of their Body to inspect all at every Annulation of the said Lottery; and two Judges of the Peace, or other reputable Freeholders or Inhabitants of every County in this Colony, if they see Cause to depose the same at their own will be any Independent general Sessions of the Peace. Notice will be given in the New-York Gazette fourteen Days before the Drawing. The Managers are sworn faithfully to see the Ticket repaid in them, and have given Security for the faithful Discharge of the same. As the said Lottery have given general Satisfaction, the same Care will be taken, and the same Regulations observed in this, with respect to the Ticket, the Drawing, keeping the Books, and other Particulars, as near as may be. Such as large or counterfeit any Ticket, or alter the Substance, and are thereof convicted, by the said Act are to suffer Death, unless of Felony. The Prizes will be published in the New-York Gazette, and the Money will be paid to the Possessors of the Ticket either as soon as the Drawing is finished.

Tickets are to be had at the Dwelling Houses of Mr. John P. Falter, and Peter Van Brugh Livingston, who are appointed Managers.

- 1753 £7,500. Drawings are to commence at the city hall the first Tuesday in November, "or sooner if full" (that is, if all tickets are sold). Aug.
- July "The Managers would acquaint the Publick, that upwards of One 13 23 Thousand Tickets are already engaged to the Haad in Hand and American Fire Companies in this City, to whom the Tickets are already delivered."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 23, 1753. The results of the drawings were published in ibid., Nov. 19. Another lottery for the same object was soon on foot.—See Dec. 12.
- 25 The attorney and solicitor-general of England report, in answer to queries, that the commission of James De Lancey, as chief-justice of the province of New York, was not revoked except for misbehaviour.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 792, 951. After being lieutenant-gouverneur he returned to the office of chief-justice (Jan. 21, 1756).—Ibid., VII: 32.
- 28 A third member of the supreme court is added by the appointment of Daniel Horsmanden to that office by the governor, with the advice and consent of the council.—Cal. Coun. Min., 389; N. Y. Merc., Aug. 6, 1753.
- 30 "The Post Office, Will be removed on Thursday next [Aug. 2] to the House of Mr. Alexander Colden, opposite to the Bowling Green, in the Broad-Way, where the Rev'd Mr. Pemberton lately liv'd; where Letters will be receiv'd and deliver'd out every Day, (Saturday Afternoon till the Arrival of the Posts, and Sundays excepted) from Eight in the Morning till Twelve at Noon, and from Two in the Afternoon till Four, except on Post Nights, when Attendance will be given till Ten of the Clock at Night: And all Letters for Persons living in Town that remain uncall'd for on Post Nights, will, on Monday Morning, be sent out by a Penny Post provided for that Purpose.
 "N. B. No Credit for the future will be given for Postage of Letters.—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 30, 1753; see also N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 799.
- Aug. 6 A gentleman in London writes to a friend in New York: "Sir Danvers Osborne, who is appointed your Governor, sets out, in a day or two, for Portsmouth, to embark on board his Majesty's Ship the Arundel. . . ."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 1, 1753. See Aug. 13.
- "Margaret S. Maurice, Capmaker, from London, at the printing office opposite the Old-Slip-Market, makes and sells all sorts of mens and womens velvet riding caps, mens morning caps, Bath bonnets, and hats for ladies, bags and roses for gentlemen's wigs, pillarens and hoods, and hats for children, all in the neatest manner and newest fashions. She grafts stockings in the neatest manner, and has an assortment of leather caps ready made."—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 6, 1753.
- 9 The dwelling-house at the corner of the Old Slip belonging to the estate of Elizabeth Klock, and in possession of Martin Cregier, tavern-keeper, is offered for sale at public vendue.—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 9, 1753. As early as 1736, Martin (or Mattina) Cregier had a tavern "on the Dock," probably in this same house.—N. Y. Gaz., July 25-Aug. 2, 1736. John Cregier, later proprietor of the "Cross Keys" on the Kingsbridge Road, was occupying the "corner-house at the Old Slip" in 1745.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 12, 1745. Still earlier in the city's history, Martin Cregier, perhaps the father of John and Martin, kept tavern at the present No. 3 Broadway. See 1659. For a view of the Klock house at the Old Slip as it appeared in 1718-9, see Pl. 25, Vol. I, and description, p. 247. For John Cregier's tavern, see 1756.
- 11 Archibald Kennedy, collector of customs, seizes the colony's gunpowder stored in the magazine of the city, on the pretence that it was unlawfully imported.—Assemb. Jour., II: 363-64. For the action of the colony in this matter, see Dec. 4.
- 13 The instructions to Sir Danvers Osborn, of this date, refer to "Disputes and Animosities" in the province of New York, as a result of which the course of justice has been obstructed, and the royal prerogative "invaded in a most unwarrantable and illegal Manner." The new governor is instructed to inform both the council and the assembly of the king's displeasure over "their Neglect of, and the Coontempt they have shewn to, our royal Commission and Instructions, by passing Laws of so extraordinary a Nature, and by such their unwarrantable Proceedings; and that we do strictly charge and enjoin them for the future, to pay to our said Commission and Instructions, due Obedience." The governor is forbidden to receive any gift or present from the assembly. His salary is fixed at £1,200, but the assembly may settle an annual sum upon him, in addition, provided the same be done "by the first Assembly, and within a Year" after his arrival in the province. This additional allowance is permitted because it has been represented to the king that £1,200 per annum is not sufficient "for the Support of our Governor, and the Dignity of our Government."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 947-50, 960. In a message to Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, the assembly defended its position.—See Nov. 6.
 "This is to inform the Publick, That there is just arrived in this City, and to be seen at a new House built for that Purpose, in Mr. Adam Van Denbergs Garden, This Evening being Monday, the 13th Instant, The Surprizing Performances of the celebrated Anthooy Joseph Dugea . . . On a Slack Wire scarcely perceptible, with and without a Balance." Particulars describing the performance follow.—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 13, 1753. Van Denbergs' old garden and tavern were on Trinity Church property at Broadway and Vesey St. Van Deoberg had also acquired the pleasure resort on the North River called the Old Bowling Green (see Feb. 13, 1752), but the performance now advertised was undoubtedly held in a new building on Broadway where, on Dec. 29, 1755 (q.v.), Richard Breckell, a clockmaker, advertised a puppet show.
 A ship-load of 500 Palatinos has recently arrived.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 20, 1753.
 An advertisement of a house to let describes it as on William St., opposite the Sign of the Three Pigeons (probably a tavern).—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 15, 1753. The "Sign of the Three Pigeons" is more definitely located in an advertisement of Nov. 19, 1759, in which Richard Curson, "Near the Widow Rutger's Brewhouse, and opposite the Three Pidgeons," offers madeira, teneff, and other liquors.—Ibid., Nov. 19, 1759. This locality was known as Golden Hill.
 James Parker introduces a new weekly paper called The Occasional Reverberator. In his other paper, The New-York Gazette: or, the Weekly Post-Boy, for Sept. 17, he published the following item regarding it:
 "The Enemies of Liberty, and a freedom of Reflection, having by the most iniquitous Arts, engrossed the New York Mercury, and utterly excluded their Antagonists from a fair Hearing in that Paper; and the Printers of the Gazette declining the Insertion of any Thing that favours of political or religious Controversy, another paper, entitled, The Occasional Reverberator, has been set up, to be published every Friday, as often as Occasion shall require: the First Number was printed on the 7th Instant, and the Second on Friday last. Any person inclining to take them, or buy them, may have them at the Rate of 2s. 6d. per Quarter, reckoning thirteen Papers to a Quarter, or at 3d. a Piece single, at the New Printing Office in Beaver Street." Only four numbers of the paper were issued.—See Early Newspapers, II: 426; Brigham, "Bibliography of Am. Newspapers," in Am. Antiquarian Soc. Proceedings (1917), 472. The four issues of this paper are bound up with the Independent Reflector (which it followed) in the volume of the latter in the N. Y. Pub. Library.
 "Just imported in the Ship Fame, Capt. Seymour, from Hamburg, and to be Sold on board the said Vessel, by Joseph Haynes, or said Master; A parcel of very likely yellow Palatinos, of all Trades. As also Women and Children, &c."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 10, 1753.
 "The Company of Comedians, who arrived here the past Summer [see July 2], having obtained Permission from proper Authority, to act, have built a very fine, large and commodious new Theatre in the Place where the old One stood; and having got it in good Order, desire to begin this Evening: As they propose to carry here but a short Time, we hear they design to perform three Times a Week."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 17, 1753. According to this announcement, the "new Theatre" was erected between July 2 and this date. As it stood "in the Place where the old One stood," it was on the site of Van Dam's building in Nassau St.—See Feb. 26, and March 5, 1750. See also description of Pl. 30, I: 265 (the year 1751 mentioned in I: 262, being an error for 1753). For later history of the site, see "Nassau St. Theatre," and "First German Reformed Church (first site)," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 985, 935.
 The advertisement of the opening performance at this theatre is also published in the above-mentioned issue of the Post-Boy. The play announced is "The Conscious Lovers," with the names of the characters, and also of the players, including Mrs. Hallam, Miss Hallam, and Master L. Hallam, but not Mr. Hallam. The "Prices" are: "Box, 8s. Pt, 6s., Gallery, 3s. . . . Gentlemen and

- 1753 Ladies that chuse Tickets, may have them at the New-Printing-Office in Beaver Street. To begin at 6 o'clock." See Sept. 21.
- 1753 " There is advertised, to be given, "By Permission," on this evening, at "the usual Place," for the benefit of "the poor Prisoners, now under Confinement, in the City-Hall," an exhibition "by Anthony Joseph Dugee, the young Indian and little Negro Boy," of "the accustomed surprizing and entertaining Performances, on the Stiff-Rope, and Slack-Wire . . ." followed by "the wonderful Feats of Strength and Activity, of Mrs. Dugee, which has given so much Satisfaction to her Royal Highness the Princess Dowager of Wales, and the Royal Family of Great-Britain, that they were pleased to call her, The Female Sampson." These feats of strength are detailed in the advertisement. The performance is "to conclude with a Dance, called, the Drunken Peasant."—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 17, 1753.
- " "A Parcel of young healthy Palatines, both Tradesmeo and Farmers, just imported in the Snow Johannes, Capt. Pickeman, from Holland, to be disposed of. Enquire of Richard Tole, Merchant, or the said Captain on board."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 17, 1753.
- 18 "The lords of trade write to Sir Danvers Osborn, the new governor, on the proceedings between Clinton and the Mohawks (see June 11), and direct that a treaty be arranged between the Indians and all the colonies.—Doc. Hist. N. Y., II: 555; N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 800.
- 21 "Philip Schuyler, a young man of 20 years, visiting New York from his home in Albany, attends one of the performances at the little theatre in Nassau St., which is under the management of Lewis Hallam. Writing to a friend in Albany, he says: "A player is a new thing under the sun in our province. . . . We bought our play tickets for eight shillings apiece at Parker and Weyman's printing-office in Beaver Street. . . . We had tea at five o'clock, and before sundown we were in the theatre for the players commenced at six." The play was Steele's "The Conscious Lover," in which Mr. and Mrs. Hallam appeared. Young Schuyler was evidently not much impressed by the performance, for he writes: "I was no better pleased than I should have been at the club, where, last year, I went with cousin Stephen and heard many wise sayings which I hope profited me something."—Life and Times of Philip Schuyler, by Benson J. Lossing (N. Y., 1860), 68. Cf. Sept. 17.
- 24 "John Predmore and Daniel O'Brian advertise the revival of the Burlington stage-wagon to Philadelphia. Twice a week, "Wind and Weather permitting; Daniel O'Bryant [sic], with a commodious Stage Boat, well fitted for that Purpose, will attend at the White-Hall Slip, near the Half-Moon Battery, at the House of Scots Johnny, in New-York, in order to receive Goods and Passengers, on Saturday and Wednesday; and on Mondays and Thursdays will set out, and proceed with them to Perth-Amboy Ferry, where there is kept a good Stage-Wagon ready to receive them, who will on Tuesday and Friday Mornings, set out and proceed with them to the House of Jolio Predmore in Cranberry, where there is kept a fresh Set of Horses and Driver, who immediately proceeds with them the same Day, to the House of Jonathan Thomas, in Burlington, where there is kept a commodious Stage-Boat waiting for their Reception, Patrick Cowan, Master, who immediately sets out and proceeds with them to the City of Philadelphia."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 24, 1753. See also O'Brien's advertisements in ibid., July 8 and Sept. 23, 1754. See, further, Feb. 23, 1756.
- 25 "The petition of John Teller, Jacobus Stoutenburgh and Mary Van Vlack in behalf of themselves and others" seeks a grant of "Some Lands belonging to this Corporation in Exchange for the Negro burying place, as also for a small Slip of Land on which a Pott house &c: are built." Consideration of the subject was deferred to next meeting of the board.—M. C. C., V: 416. It was not reported further in the Minutes.
- 29 "Payment of £8 is advanced" towards the Expence of fixing a Pump in the well at the South west Corner of the New Dutch Church [Middle Dutch Church] in the North ward."—M. C. C., V: 419. The city was the owner of the public wells and pumps. See titles "Well," and "Pump" in M. C. C., VIII: Index. See also Dec. 12.
- Oct. "An advertisement signed by Lewis Hallam announces a performance to be given this evening at the "New Theatre in Nassau-Street." The comedy "The Constant Couple, Or, A Trip to Jubilee," and the farce "The Anatomist, or, Sham-Doctor" will be presented by "a Company of Comedians from London." Hallam adds that "The Company intend to play on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 1, 1753.
- The ship "Arundel" arrives at Sandy Hook, having on board Sir Danvers Osborn, the newly appointed governor of the province.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 8, 1753. On the following day, he landed at White Hall Slip. Clinton being at his country-seat at Flushing, the new governor was received "by his Majesty's Council for this Province, the Mayor and Corporation, the Officers of the Militia, and most of the principal Gentlemen of this City, and from thence proceeded to the Governor's House in his Majesty's Fort George, where an elegant Entertainment was provided for his Reception, and his Majesty's with all the Loyal Healths were drunk, as are usual on such Occasions."—Ibid., Oct. 8, 1753.
- On Oct. 8, Clinton arrived from Flushing, and Sir Danvers was entertained at a public dinner by the members of the council.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 15, 1753. The next day, the common council gave directions for an address of welcome to the governor, voted him the freedom of the city, with seal in a gold box, as usual, and ordered a dinner "at the house of George Burns, near the Long Bridge." The committee in charge was also directed to "Cause a Bonfire to be made in the Commons Near the work house and Procure three Dozen of Wine to be sent to the said fire, that the City Hall, the Alms house and the ferry house be illuminated, that half a Barrell of Cannon powder be provided by the said Committee to Discharge some Cannon that Lay in the Commons, near the Bonfire."—M. C. C., V: 420-21.
- On Oct. 10, Ex-Gov. Clinton delivered to Chief-Justice De Lancey, in council, the king's commission appointing De Lancey lieutenant-governor (see Oct. 27, 1747; Nov. 6, 1753).—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 804. At the same time, Clinton was granted a leave of absence.—Cal. Coun. Min., 389.
- Sir Danvers published his mission in council on that day, "and while the usual Oaths were taking, the Corporation, the City Representatives, the Militia Officers, the Clergy, and all the principal Inhabitants, assembled in the Parade [lower end of Broadway—see Pls. 26, 27, 27-A, Vol. I] and together with the Council, waited on his Excellency, attended by a Company of Foot, and a vast Concourse of People, to the City Hall, where his Excellency's Commission was a second time published. Thence his Excellency, in like Manner attended, returned to the Fort, amidst the repeated Shouts and Acclamations of the People, where the usual loyal Healths were drank; the Guns in the Common and Harbour firing, and the Bells of all the several Churches in the City ringing. As soon as the Crowd was a little dispersed, the Corporation waited upon his Excellency" with an address.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 15, 1753. In this address the common council expressed the hope that the new governor would "be as averse from Countenancing as we from Brooking any Infringements of our Inestimable Liberties, Civil and Religious."—M. C. C., V: 422. This address displeased Sir Danvers Osborn considerably, but he finally gave a brief reply to the corporation.—Smith, Hist. Province of N. Y., II: 183.
- He then dined with the corporation, but left soon after and declined to go out to the bonfire, complaining of "a great Disorder in his Head and that his Thoughts and mind were much disturbed."—From affidavits in office of secretary of state, Albany (see Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 609-10), copies of which are with "Misc. MSS.," N. Y. Hist. Soc. "Two and Forty Cannon were discharged in the Common: Two large Bonfires were erected: Some Thousands of the Populace crowded the Commons; and the whole Town was for several Hours most beautifully illuminated."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 15, 1753. "But his Excellency found himself indisposed, retired to his Lodgings soon after Dinner, and could not attend the Rejoicings in the Evening: It gave great concern to many. On Thursday, he still complained of his Disorders. . . ."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 15, 1753.
- On Oct. 12, Sir Danvers, who was staying at the house of Joseph Murray until his own residence in the fort could be prepared, was found dead in Mr. Murray's garden, suspended by a handkerchief fastened to a spike on the top of the garden fence.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 609-10.
- A meeting of the council was held the same day, with James Alexander presiding, and James de Lancey was sworn in as lieutenant-governor. His commission "was published in the Fort, and in the Parade near the Fort, without any other Formality than the attendance of the Gentlemen of the Council, and the officers of the Garrison, the mournful occasion forbidding, as his 1753 Excellency was pleased to declare, any other."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 15, 1753. He immediately issued a proclamation that the government had devolved upon himself.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 15, 1753. The instructions of Sir Danvers were also read in council, appointing Cadwallader Colden, James Alexander, Archibald Kennedy, James de Lancey, George Clarke, Jr., Joseph Murray, John Rutherford, Edward Holland, William Johnson, John Chambers, and William Smith, of the council.—Cal. Coun. Min., 390.

A committee of inquest on Sir Danvers' death was appointed, consisting of Mr. Alexander, the eldest councillor present; Mr. Chambers, the second justice of the supreme court, and Mayor Holland, all members of the council.—Ibid., 390; N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 804. The following depositions were made regarding the case: 1, by John Milligan, surgeon, as to having ineffectually endeavoured to resuscitate Sir Danvers; 2, by Thomas Pownall, his secretary, giving an account of his excellency's previous health; 3, by Lieut. James Cunningham, of Col. Warburton's regiment (Nova Scotia), giving an account of the low spirited and depressed condition of Sir Danvers during the voyage from England, and after his arrival at New York; 4, by William Keen, Sir Danvers' valet, describing the distress in which the governor appeared to be on the night of Oct. 11, stating that about 12 or 1 o'clock he was engaged in burning his papers and walking the floor, suffering great pain in the head, and the next morning was found hanging on the fence at the foot of Mr. Murray's garden; 5, by Joseph Murray, member of the council, that Sir Danvers stayed at his house after his arrival at New York, and until his residence in the fort could be prepared, that he was low spirited and dejected, complained of being unwell at supper, and that next morning Phillips Cosby informed him that Sir Danvers had hanged himself.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 609-10. Despite disturbing rumours, it was generally accepted that the governor died at his own hands. A committee was also named to take an inventory of his estate and arrange for his funeral.—Cal. Coun. Min., 390.

On the 13th, his body was temporarily placed (until May 27, 1754, q. v.) in a vault in the chancel of Trinity Church.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 15, 1753; Smith, Continuation of the Hist. of the Prov. of N. Y., in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1830).

Philip Livingston, writing to John Winthrop concerning the governor's suicide, under date of Oct. 15, said, "You Cannot imagine, Sir, what an Excessive Damp this Affair Struck upon people's Spirits, for a Gentleman of an Independent fortune, at the head of a Government where he was rec'd with the Utmost demonstrations of Joy, by all ranks of people, & Every thing y<sup>e</sup> was great & good was Expected from his Administration as his Character was that of an honest Virtuous & Truly religious man as well as a man of Sense & Learning I say for a man of such a Truly good and Amiable a Character, to be left all of a sudden to Exercise upon himself a murder so horrid and shocking, is amazing, & Indeed I Can truly say That I never saw a number of people so affected & Truly Sorrowful as the people of this City, upon this Occasion. The Coroners Inquest found him by their Inquisition, Lunatick so that his Corps had an honourable tho' private burial in the great Church & his Estate is Saved To his Children. . . . M<sup>r</sup> De Lancey Our Chief Justice now Commands this province. Last week we had three Governours In Less in [than] 48 hours."—Winthrop Papers, XIV: 153, in Mass. Hist. Soc.

With the affidavits (which were presumably made at the inquest) was an inventory of Sir Danvers' personal effects. The affidavits showed that on the evening of Oct. 11 the governor had been engaged in burning his papers and documents.—See list of affidavits in O'Callaghan's Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 609-10. On Oct. 29, Oliver de Lancey, Thomas Pownall, and Charles Williams were appointed administrators of Sir Danvers' estate.—Cal. Coun. Min., 390. The news of the governor's death, contained in a letter, was published in a London paper of Dec. 14, 1753.—Upcott Coll., in N. Y. Hist. Soc., I: 239. It is there stated that "the Hon. George Clinton, Esq; who for many Years has been Governor of that Province, and was to have embark'd the Day that Sir Danvers Osborn died, put off his Departure till Directions are received from England how to act." This is followed by a brief account of Sir Danvers Osborn's life.

The body of Sir Danvers Osborn was taken "home" to England on, or immediately after, May 27, 1754 (q. v.).

"All Persons indebted by Bond, to the Trustees of the College of New York, are hereby desired to pay the Interest due on their respective Bonds, without further Delay, or which they may depend on being prosecuted without further notice."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 8, 1753. See Nov. 1, 1754.

Two New York oath rolls are begun on this day, consisting of two rolls of parchment, each measuring 30 in. long by 12½ in. wide, stitched together at the top. One is the abjuration oath; the other the declaration against transubstantiation, both with signatures. An additional strip of five inches is sewed to the lower edge of the former oath, increasing its length to 35 in. The latter oath is endorsed "Rolls begun the . . . day of . . . 1753," with spaces for day and month left blank. The date on which the two rolls were begun is determined by an examination of the names, in comparison with the mentions of the arrival, inauguration, etc. of Gov. Osborn, as published in the N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 8 and 15, 1753. This is fully explained in a study of the "New York Oath Rolls of 1753-57," in N. Y. Pub. Library Bulletin, I: 44-50. The rolls are preserved in the MSS. Div. of the N. Y. Pub. Library.

The earliest known reference to the famous Blue Bell Tavern, which stood on the old King's Bridge Road, at about the present 181st St., is found in a letter attributed by Benson J. Lossing to Cadwallader Colden, and published in an article on old taverns in Appleton's Jour., Dec. 13, 1873. Colden writes:

"I had a very pleasant ride from Fishkill to Van Cortlandt's, where I lodged, passing easily through the mountains. I baited my horses at Denyce's, a tenant of Hercules Lent, near Peekskill, and arrived at the manor-house at dusk. Young Pierre and his charming wife keep up the hospitalities of the house equal to his late father. It was a pretty hard day's drive; but, being in haste, I kept steadily on. The roads were dry and generally pretty smooth, and the woods were gay with autumn colors.

"I started early yesterday morning, and dined with Phillippe, at Yonkers. Mary has become a pretty young lady. I expected to reach New York early in the evening; but when I approached the King's Bridge, it began to rain smartly. It was sunset; and, as the moon would not rise before nine o'clock, I knew it would be a very dark evening. So I concluded to stop for the night at the Blue Bell, where I found our nephew, James Delancey, who had halted because of the storm and darkness. This tavern is very well kept by a Dutchman named Vandeventer, and our food and lodgings were very comfortable. At a very early hour we started for the city, where I saw a terrible sight. It was the body of Sir Danvers Osborn, lately arrived, hanging by the neck to his garden-gate . . . " (See Oct. 6).

This letter is not to be found in the Colden papers in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. One written on Oct. 14 by Colden to his wife, however, refers to the same incident. This circumstance suggests that another hand than Colden's penned the letter above quoted, and that Lossing, therefore, was mistaken in attributing it to him. Colden's letter of Oct. 14 states: "I got in good health to this place the next day after I left you between 7 & 8 at night. As the sleep passed Greenwich M<sup>r</sup> Nicholls called to me to come a shoar. When I was informed of the most surprising end of S<sup>r</sup> Danvers Osborn that morning. . . ."

The Blue Bell was mentioned on several occasions during the Revolution. When the British frigates moved up the North River in July, 1776, one account states "that the most damage they received was in passing the batteries at Powle's Hook and the Blue Bell."—Connecticut Courant (Hartford), Aug. 9, 1776. On Oct. 4, 1776, a court-martial was held "at Mount Washington, at the Blue Bell."—Am. Archives, 5th Ser., II: 832. Again, it is said that the American army, on its triumphal reentry into New York in 1783, was reviewed by Washington in front of the Blue Bell. The proprietor of the tavern in 1776 was probably Jacob Moore, who paid excise in this year, his house being described as "within 3 miles of King's Bridge."—Cal. of Rev. Papers, I: 287. Apparently, the tavern was closed for a time during the Revolution, for, on June 10, 1784 (q. v.), Stephen Dolbeer announced that he had "Revived" the "Blue Bell Tavern, at Fort Washington." In 1793, and until 1802, when the property was sold, David Wilson was the proprietor. It later came into the possession of Blazin Moore.—Daily Adv., Feb. 20, 1793; Mag. Am. Hist. (1881), VII: 375-76.

The site of the early Blue Bell Tavern is fixed on the east side of the Post Road, according to a manuscript map of the "Attacks of Fort Washington . . . under . . . Sir Willm<sup>o</sup> Howe," dated Nov. 16, 1776, and now in possession of the N. Y. Hist. Soc.

- 1753 Kitchen's "Map of New York I." also shows the tavern on the east side of the Post Road in 1778. The old house is said to have been destroyed by fire about 1819 or 1820. In later years, there was another Blue Bell Tavern, on the west side of the Post Road. For an interesting discussion of the sites of these two old houses, see Mag. Am. Hist. (1881), VII: 299-300, 375.
- 19 The common council presents an address to James de Lancey, the lieutenant-governor, on his taking up the duties of chief executive of the province.—M. C. C. V.: 426-28.
- 25 This being the last day of the October term of the supreme court, the justices of this court, the attorney-general, and the counsellors and attorneys attending the court go in procession from the city hall to the house of the lieutenant-governor, to present an address to him. "After which his Honour the Lieutenant Governor, attended by the whole Body of the Laws went in Procession to the House of Mr. Edward Willett, where an elegant, Entertainment was provided, where his Majesty's and all the other loyal Healths were drank, as usual on the like Occasions."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 29, 1753.
- 29 The provincial council appoints Oliver de Lancey, Thomas Pownall, and Charles Williams administrators of Sir Danvers Osborn's estate. Pownall was his private secretary.—Cal. Coun. Min., 390; Wilson, Mem. Hist. of N. Y., II: 293, passim.
- 31 Lieut-Gov. De Lancey, in an address to the assembly, thus refers to the death of Sir Danvers Osborn: "As he was a Gentleman of Birth, of liberal Education, and distinguished Character, we had well grounded Expectations of being a happy People under his Administration."—Assemb. Jour., II: 351. He informs the house that the king is highly displeased "at the Neglect and Contempt shown to, his royal Commission and Instructions," by the passing of obnoxious laws and by other "unwarrantable Proceedings." The instructions of the king to Sir Danvers Osborn are read (see Aug. 13).—Assemb. Jour., II: 351-53. The house replied on Dec. 6.
- " Gov. Dinwiddie of Virginia sends George Washington as bearer of letters to the French to protest against their occupation of lands on the Ohio River "known to be the property of the Crown of Great Britain," and making certain proposals.—Doc. Hist. N. Y., X: 258. The French rejected the proposals of the English, and both sides armed for the struggle.—Tlwautes, France in America, 158-61. See also May 4, 1754. A clash occurred on May 28, 1754 (q. v.), marking the beginning of the French and Indian War.
- " De Lancey informs the legislature that "the Provision lately made for repairing his Majesty's Fort and Copsay Battery [see July 4], will from the great Damage done to the latter by the late Storm, fall very short of answering those Purposes. I must therefore, recommend to you, to make further Provision for this End."—Assemb. Jour., II: 351; Jour. Leg. Coun., 1127.
- Nov. George Clinton, former governor of the province, sails with his family from Sandy Hook for England.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 12, 1753. He became a member of parliament, and governor of Greenwich Hospital, a sinecure which he held until his death, on July 10, 1761.—Wilson, Mem. Hist. of N. Y., II: 285.
- 6 The house, in adopting an address to Lieut-Gov. De Lancey, compliments him on his administration of the government. Replying to the statements contained in the instructions of Sir Danvers Osborn (see Aug. 13), the members of the house declare that they have been "maliciously misrepresented." Former Gov. Clinton is charged with commissioning judges "of known ill Character and extreme Ignorance." They add that the existing method of raising money has been pursued for the past 15 years.—Assemb. Jour., II: 353-54. On Nov. 8, De Lancey, on receiving the address "at his House in the Broadway," replied that he had "never observed any disaffection on the part of the people towards his Majesty."—Ibid., II: 356.
- 10 A letter from Lord Holderness to Sir Danvers Osborn, regarding the encroachments by foreign powers and the mutual assistance of the colonies, is referred by the council to the assembly.—Cal. Coun. Min., 390.
- 12 "Last Week an Express arrived here from Virginia, by whom we have a Confirmation of the Advice lately received from England, of Benjamin Franklin, Esq; of Philadelphia, and William Hunter, Esq; of Williamsburg, [Va.] being appointed Post-Masters General of America."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 12, 1753.
- " The earliest known American play-bill, except that of March 26, 1750 (q. v.), is one for "King Richard III" and "The Devil to Pay," which were presented on this date at the Nassau St. Theatre. This, like the earlier play-bill, is in the Harvard Univ. Library. See Dec. 20, 1753.
- Hugh Gainé is ordered before the house for printing in his paper, The New-York Mercury, part of the proceedings of the house, including several articles of his majesty's instructions to Sir Danvers Osborn.—Assemb. Jour., II: 358. On Nov. 14, Gainé appeared and begged the pardon of the house. On the following day, he was reprimanded, and dismissed after paying costs.—Ibid., II: 359.
- An essay on the "natural Advantages" of New York province contains the following: "Our Harbour, or rather Road, is as safe as others generally are, most of them being subject to important Objections, and often indebted for their Security to very expensive Improvements of Art. The mooring Ground is good, free from Barrs, and not incommoded by Rocks, the Water of an equal and convenient Depth, and the Shore bold to the very Edges; and but for floating Cakes of Ice in the Winter, our Shipping would be intirely exempted from Danger. Nor is it difficult perfectly to secure them from that Inconvenience. The Place called Rotten-Row, has hitherto been their only Assylum, tho' unhappily of late, it annually becomes less and less fit for that Purpose. . . .
- "The City of New-York consists of about Two Thousand Five Hundred Buildings. . . . such is its Figure, its Center of Business, and the Situation of its Buildings, that the Cartage in Town from one Part to another, does not at a Medium, exceed one Quarter of a Mile: The prodigious Advantage of which, to a trading City, is more easily conceived than expressed. It facilitates and expedites the lading and unlading of Ships and Boats, saves Time and Labour, and is attended with unnumerable Conveniences to its Inhabitants. . . .
- "Tho we abound in no one Kind of Fish sufficient for a Staple, yet such is our Happiness in this Article, that not one of the Colonies affords a Fish-Market of such a plentiful Variety as ours. Boston has none but Sea Fish, and of these Philadelphia is intirely destitute, being only furnished with the Fish of a fresh Water River. New-York is sufficiently supplied with both Sorts. Nor ought our vast plenty of Oysters to pass without particular Observation: in their Quality they are exceeded by those of no Country whatsoever. . . . They continue good eight Months in the Year, and are, for two Months longer, the daily Food of our Poor. Their Beds are within View of the Town, and I am informed, that an Oysterman industriously employed, may clear Eight or Ten Shillings a Day."—Independent Reflector, Nov. 22, 1753.
- " The trustees of the funds of the proposed college (see Nov. 25, 1751), nine in number, of whom six are Episcopaliaes (see July 5, 1754), agree "that a Letter be wrote to Doctor [Samuel] Johnson, of Stratford [Conn.], proposing to call him [see the proposal of his name, Oct. 23, 1752] for the President, for the Seminary of New-York, and that he be offered Two Hundred and Fifty Pounds, per Annum, for his Salary, to commence from the first Day of May next; and that another Letter be wrote to Mr. Chauncey Whittlesey, of New-Haven, offering him the Sum of, Two Hundred Pounds, per Annum, as second Master of the said Seminary, to commence as aforesaid; and that Mr. William Livingston, prepare the Draughts of the said Letters.
- "As the Trustees are sensible that the salary proposed for Doctor Johnson, (though as much as they are enabled to offer) is inadequate to his Merit, and that the Vestry of Trinity Church will readily agree to make a sufficient Addition;" it is "Agreed, That the Gentlemen of the Vestry, who are Trustees, do recommend it to the Vestry to make such additional Proposals, as may induce him to accept the above Proposal.
- "On the 7th of January following [1754], the several Draughts of the Letters to Mr. Johnson, and Mr. Whittlesey, were read [at a meeting of the trustees], and approved of, and ordered to be copied, sent, and signed by William Livingston, in Behalf of the Trustees; which were accordingly copied, signed, and sent the Day after, each inclosing a Copy of the Act of Governor, Council, and General Assembly of the fourth of July then last past [1753, q. v.] and containing the several Proposals before mentioned; and as a further Inducement to Doctor Johnson to accept the said Proposals made to him, the Trustees in the said Letter, acquainted him, that as they were informed since the Draught of that Letter, by some of the Trustees, who were of the Vestry, that the Corporation of Trinity Church had agreed to call him as an Assistant Minister, they made no doubt that the additional Provision which they would allot him for that Service, might be a further 1753 Inducement to him to accept the above Offer, in Case he should think (as they themselves could not help imagining) that what was in their Power was insufficient.—Assemb. Jour., II: 398.

Nov. 22 The Rev. Dr. Johnson was a minister of the Church of England. Franklin had written Dr. Johnson, in 1750, expressing the wish that the latter might come to the "Academy" at Philadelphia when that should become a college (see letters of Aug. 9 and Sept. 13, 1750, among Johnson Papers, MS., in Columbia Univ. Lib.). Mr. Whittlesey was "a Presbyterian Gentleman, late a Tutor of Reputation, in the College there" (New Haven).—Benjamin Nicoll, A Brief Vindication of the Proceedings of the Trustees (1754), 6; Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 14, citing Chandler's Life of Johnson. For Dr. Johnson's reply, see Jan. 17, 1754; and for Mr. Whittlesey's, see Feb. 21, 1754.

Dec. 3 "The Confusion in this City, occasioned by counterfeit Copper English Halfpence amongst us, is almost inconceivable;—for notwithstanding the large Quantities of good Pence we have long had, there is now hardly any Sum offered, but there are counterfeit Ones intermixed; and to such a Degree of Suspicion, is the common People raised, that many good Pence, which have passed current for above 20 Years past are now refused."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 3, 1753. The situation was so bad that on Dec. 12 the assembly appointed their next meeting-day (the first one after May 1 next) on which to consider a method of ascertaining the value of copper half-pence and farthings in the colony.—Ibid., Dec. 17, 1753.

4 The assembly asks the lieutenant-governour to assign counsel for the assistance of Abraham Hardenbrook, keeper of the powder-house, in the suit against Archibald Kennedy for the latter's seizure of the colony's gunpowder.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 611. This matter was still undecided, June 25, 1755 (q.v.).

6 The assembly orders the preparation and presentation of an address "to his Majesty, to express his just Indignation of this House, at those groundless Imputations of Disloyalty, which have been most falsely and maliciously thrown out against the People of this Colony, and their Representatives in General Assembly."—Assemb. Jour., II: 366. The draft of this address was approved by the assembly Dec. 11.—Ibid., II: 367. In an address to the lords of trade, approved Dec. 12, the assembly threw the blame for all the troubles in the assembly upon Gov. Clinton's alleged mal-administration. Among other charges, Clinton was accused of having engaged, in the beginning of the French War, in privateering voyages, hiring out the cannon for his own private advantage, and leaving the colony exposed; of applying to his own use a great part of the money raised by the colony for presents to the Indians; of having pretended to form two Indian companies and demanding provisions for them "when no such Companies, ever really existed;" and of making extravagant grants of land in remote parts of the colony, for which he exacted a fee, etc.—Ibid., II: 368-72.

12 The first law is passed requiring the recording of mortgages in New York Province, "for preventing frauds by Mortgages which shall be made and Executed after the first day of June in the Year One thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty four." City and county clerks shall keep registers of mortgages, showing property descriptions, acknowledgment by mortgagors and mortgages, discharge of mortgages, etc.—Col. Laws N. Y., II: 957. See also Register Donegan's Three Years' Report, 1918-1920, p. 6.

" An act is passed for raising £1,125 by public lottery "for this Colony for a further provision towards founding a College within the Same." Abraham van Wyck and Abraham Lelyusen are appointed managers, and regulations are prescribed with more than the usual details for operating it.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 930. These were published in the N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 31, 1753. The drawings, ordered by this law to begin on June 1, were postponed by act of May 1, 1754 (q.v.), and were held on July 25.

" An act is passed to enable the Dutch Church of the city of New York to sell the Manor of Fordham, Westchester Co. The act defines the church's title to this property (granted to it by the will of Cornelius Steenwyck and his wife, Nov. 20, 1684, for the support of its minister; the original will is in the author's collection). It also recites the incorporation of the Dutch Church by William III on May 11, 1696.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 983. The act was approved by royal order collected on Dec. 6, 1755 (q.v.).—Cal. Coun. Min., 399.

" As the "present Method of Collecting the duty of Excise on Strong Liquors retailed in this Colony by letting the Same to Farm is found Grievous to the Several Retailers by the Exorbitant and Excessive Exactions of many of the Farmers," a new system is established in the province. The mayor, recorder, and aldermen of New York City are appointed commissioners for collecting the excise in the city.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 951-57. The municipal officers lost this power by a provincial act of Dec. 7, 1754 (q.v.).

" A provincial act is passed enabling the city of New York to raise a "Tax for Mending and keeping in Repair the Publick Wells and Pumps in the Said City to the South of Fresh Water." The statute recites that "keeping the Publick Wells and Pumps . . . in constant repair hath been greatly Serviceable to the inhabitants thereof in cases of Accidents by Fire and hath furnished them with Constant Supply of Water whereby great Fires have been Extinguished and prevented from Spreading." The common council is annually to appoint in each ward, save the Out Ward, one inhabitant as overseer of pumps and wells. It is to be his duty to see that the pumps and wells are maintained in good order. From the proceeds of this tax, compensation is allowed to owners of fire-buckets which are burnt, destroyed, or lost. The same act inflicts a fine of 40 shillings upon any one found guilty of cutting the ropes of public wells, or breaking the handles of pumps.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 942-47.

18 Seventy-two New York merchants sign the following announcement: "We the Subscribers, being sensible that the Importation of British Copper Half-Pence is prejudicial to the Interest of this Colony, and a great Means of depreciating our Currency, legally established, Do, for the Prevention thereof, on our Words of Honour, declare, That we will not, after this Day, receive Copper Half-Pence, otherwise than Fourteen for a Shilling, and that we will pay them away at the same Rate."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 24, 1753. On Dec. 31, announcement was made that "several other Merchants and Shop-keepers . . . have . . . determined to take or pay Copper Half-pence no other ways than Fourteen to the Shilling, particularly, the Majority of Coentie's-Club."—Ibid., Dec. 31, 1753. See Jan. 11, 1754.

20 It is unanimously resolved by Trinity vestry "That the Revd Doct<sup>r</sup> Samuel Johnson of Stratford be Called as an Assistant Minister of Trinity Church And that he be Allowed for the Same the Sum of One Hundred and fifty pounds £150 And the Rector & Church Wardens are Desired to write to the Said Doct<sup>r</sup> Johnson and Acquaint him with the Resolution of this Board And that his Said Sallery Commence from the day of his leaving his Parish at Stratford."—Johnson Papers (MS.), in Columbia Univ. Lib. This action appears to have been the outcome of correspondence between Dr. Johnson and Rector Barclay of Trinity. The former hesitates to accept the presidency of the college and the latter is earnest for him to do so, telling him that "The Trustees are all Strenuous Church Men save two, who are notwithstanding very hearty for having you." He says, further, that Mr. Murray, Mr. Chambers, and he himself are all invited to dine with the lieutenant-governour, "that we may consult what may be done to give you Satisfaction."—Letter (without date) of Barclay to Johnson in Johnson Papers (MS.). Mr. Murray, Mr. Robinson, and the rector wrote a joint letter to Dr. Johnson on the 24th (q.v.).

" Another very early American play-bill (see also March 26, 1750, and Nov. 12, 1753) is one for the comedy "Love for Love," which was given on this date "At the New Theatre in Nassau-Street," for the benefit of the poor. A photograph of this play-bill was presented to the N. Y. Pub. Library by Mrs. H. R. Hoyt, June 5, 1901.

24 De Lancy, having been addressed by "the Ministers, Elders, and Deacons of the Dutch Church in New York," recommends them to the lords of trade and bespeaks for them the favour of the king. They "have some Pieces of Ground in this City, that are leased out on Ground Rents on which the buildings are mean, these they intend to purchase in and build good houses in their stead, which will Increase their income, and enable them to maintain their Ministers in a better manner than they now do."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 819.

" Joseph Murray, Joseph Robinson, and Rector Barclay of Trinity join in a letter to Dr. Johnson in which they express the hope that the salary as assistant minister (see Dec. 20) together with that as head of the college (see Nov. 22) will afford him "a genteel subsistence."—Johnson Papers (MS.). In a separate letter of the same date, the rector writes: "Your living will not be to the full equal to mine, and I doubt not but we shall enjoy 1753 much Happiness with each other." In the same letter the rector acknowledges the receipt of a copy of a "College Liturgy," and Dec. 24 adds: "I should like [it] much were I not in hopes that the Morning and Evening Prayers according to the Common Prayer Book would be Established, and therefore I shall not yet offer It to any ones Perusal."

It is apparent that Dr. Johnson had expressed himself to Dr.
Barclay as averse to Whittlesey's appointment as sub-master, because the letter continues: "As to W—y we shall do what we can to prevent his having any Offer made him & yet how to come off is a Difficult matter, having been inconsiderately resolved, but If he should be call'd and Accept, I hope such a Subscription will be Thrown in his way as his present principles if he has any conscience will not permit him to swallow."—From original letter among Johnson Papers (MS.).

27 The festival of St. John the Evangelist is celebrated with elaborate ceremonies by the Masons.—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 31, 1753.

31 "To be Shot for, on Tuesday the 22d of January next, a good Mahogany Chest of Drawers, with Eagle's Claw Feet, a Shell on each Knee, and fluted Corners, with good Brass Work and Locks:"
The chest may be seen at George Peters's, next to Peter Maerschald's, in Broad St., corner "Flatten-Barragh."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 31, 1753.

1754

— In this year, Archibald Kennedy issued a pamphlet at New York: ("Printed for the Author"), regarding the attitude of the English toward the French, and other political considerations of the time. It is entitled Serious Considerations on the Present State of the Affairs of the Northern Colonies.

— In this year, Hendrick Rutgers (son of Hermanus—see Jan. 9, 1728) began the erection of his mansion, which was completed the following year.—See "The Rutgers Family," by E. H. Crosby, in N. Y. Genial. and Biog. Rec., April, 1886. It stood in the middle of the block bounded by Clinton, Jefferson, Cherry, and Monroe Sts. (Monroe St. was earlier known as Rutgers Pl.) It was a noted landmark of the old Seventh Ward for a great many years.
During the Revolution, it was occupied by the British as a hospital.—Ibid.: The house was demolished in 1875.—Liber Deeds, MCCCXIX: 80 (New York); Greatorex, Old New York, I: 104.
For views of the house in 1850–5, see Pls. 109-a and b, and description, pp. 612–13, Vol. III. See also description of Pl. 36-a, I: 277;
and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 952; Pl. 175, Vol. III.

— In this year, Livingston's sugar-house, on the site of the present 28–36 Liberty St., was erected.—Liber Deeds, XLII: 14. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 963; Abstracts of Wills, VI:
145. It was five storeys high, each storey being very low, and divided into two apartments, ventilated by small windows.—*Man. Com.
Coun.* (1852), 414; Thorburn, Reminiscences (1845), 166–78. It was used as a prison during the Revolution (see 1777), and stood until the week of June 3, 1840 (q.v.). An undated survey or sketch showing the sugar-house is in the Bancker Coll., in N. Y.
Pub. Library.

— "I saw in the Dutch calvinist Chh. at New York a small Organ, which was the first there & had been there I doubt not many years."—The Literary Diary of Ezra Stiles, I: 58.

Jan. 7 William Livingston, in behalf of the trustees of the "intended Seminary," officially informs Dr. Johnson of his unanimous election as the head of the institution, at £250 per year (see Nov. 22, 1753),
"your Salary to commence from the first day of May next or as soon as you shall remove for that Service Mr Whittlesey of New Haven was at the same time pitched upon as second Master and voted the Salary of £200

"We are not insensible Sir that the above Stipend allotted You, is far inferior to your Merit, and heartily wish it were in our power to increase it suitable to your Accomplishments. But as you'll observe us restricted to a certain Sum, We doubt not Your generous Desire of diffusing amongst us that useful knowledge and Literature in the Propagation of which you have been so signally instrumental in Connecticut will render our offer less acceptable to you in the light of a Reward,—than as furnishing you with an Opportunity of doing such Extensive Service to Mankind."— Johnson Papers (MS.). For Dr. Johnson's reply, a rough draft of which he penned at the end of the letter above-mentioned, see
Jan. 17.

11 Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey issues the following proclamation:

"Whereas great Numbers of disorderly and evil-minded Persons, Jan.
11 appeared this Morning in several Parts of this City, assembled together in a riotous and tumultuous Manner, and others have since appeared in the Streets, armed with Clubs and Staves, having a Drum beating before them, in open Breach and Violation of the Peace, and to the great Terror of his Majesty's good Subjects within this City: In order therefore to preserve and maintain the publick Peace, I have thought fit, by and with the Advice of his Majesty's Council of this Province, to issue this Proclamation, herby in his Majesty's Name, strictly charging and commanding all and every Person and Persons so unlawfully assembled, immediately to disperse and separate, on Pain of being prosecuted with the utmost Rigour of the Law . . . —N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 14, 1754; Cal. Coun. Min., 391. Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 612. The grand jury investigated the disorder, and reported that it was caused by "some deluded People, most of them Strangers," who thought they were defending the cause of the poor.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 21, 1754. See Sept. 8, 1750, and March 19, 1754. Hardship among the poor had been caused by the increase in the value of the half-penny.
—See Dec. 3 and 18.

The common council agrees to lease "the Exchange Room" 15 to Oliver de Lancey, at £50 for one year, payable quarterly, beginning Feb. 1.—M. C. C., V: 435. This was the room built at the city's expense as the second storey of the "Exchange."—See
June 10, 1752.

Payment is made by the common council "to Defray the Ex-" pence of Sinking a well Opposite to Spring Garden in the West Ward."—M. C. C., V: 435. This pump is probably the one shown on Pl. 68-b, Vol. I.

Col. Washington brings to Gov. Dinwiddie at Williamsburg a 16 letter from the French commander refusing to vacate the territory held by the French west of the Alleghanies. For one result of this situation, see Feb. 19.

In reply to the letter of William Livingston informing him of 17 his election as head of the "intended Seminary" (King's College), Dr. Johnson writes that his age and the fear "lest he be disappoint-anticipation" make him hesitate to accept. He is also concerned regarding the expense of living in New York and the possibility that he might "take small pox."—Johnson Papers (MS.). See
Feb. 11.

Lord Holderness writes to Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, ordering 18
the immediate equipment of the independent companies, and that two complete companies march to Virginia and put themselves under the command of Gov. Dinwiddie.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 612.

"A Handsome Electrical Apparatus" is offered for sale by Feb. 6
the printer of the Post-Boy.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 4, 1754.

The trustees of the college read a letter from Rev. Dr. Johnson, 11 dated "Jan. 7" (error for Jan. 17, q.v.), in answer to the letter from the trustees (see Nov. 22, 1753). It contains "neither a positive Acceptance nor Refusal of the said Offer and Proposal, but his Request of further Time to consider of the Matter."—
Assemb. Jour., II: 398. See April.

Keen and Lightfoot announce the opening on this day of the 19
New Exchange as a "Coffee Room."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 4, 1754. The "New Exchange," on Broad and Water Sts., had just been completed by the city of New York to replace the old "Exchange" on the same site. The upper room of the "Exchange" was used as the "coffee room," and seems to have acquired immediate popularity. On April 30, subscribers to the "Publick-Library," to be established in New York, met at the Exchange Coffee Room —Ibid., April 29, 1754. The room was used for concerts and balls during succeeding years. On Feb. 26, 1756, Keen and Lightfoot dissolved partnership, Lightfoot continuing in the business.—
N. Y. Merc., March 8, 1756. The "Exchange" itself was often referred to as the "Royal Exchange." The house was let by the year and seems to have had several different tenants. In 1766, it was run by a Mr. Jackson.—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 24, 1766. In 1769, this upper chamber became the meeting-place of the Chamber of Commerce. See Feb. 15, 1769. See, further, Landmark Map Ref.
Key, III: 924.

Andrew Gautier is paid £1:8 for a table for the use of the 16 council chamber.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 668.

A proclamation is issued by Gov. Dinwiddie of Virginia, 19 offering 200,000 acres of land, in addition to pay, to those who will volunteer to erect and support a fort on the Ohio River, at the 1754 forks of the Moonogohela.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 613. See further, March 14.

21 A letter from Mr. Whittlesey, dated Feb. 11, in answer to the letter of the college trustees (see Nov. 22, 1753), is read at a trustees' meeting. It explains, "in Substance, that as the Constitution of the College, or the particular Service expected from him, could be but partially collected from the Letter he had received, or the Act of Assembly inclosed, he had proposed a Visit to Doctor Johnson, in hopes to obtain a more full Understanding of these Matters, but had hitherto been prevented by Indisposition; from which being in Part recovered he purposed, as soon as able, to pay the Doctor a Visit, and perhaps (if his health permitted) to do himself the Honour to wait on them in New-York, and learn (unless otherwise informed) what would be expected from him in the Trust assigned him."

It is agreed by the trustees that William Livingston shall prepare drafts of answers to Dr. Johnson (see Feb. 11) and Mr. Whittlesey, respectively. Such letters were written on March 13, stating: ". . . we [the trustees] should be glad to have a Conference with you in this City on the Subject of the College, and the Particulars contained in your Letter, as early in the Month of April next, as your Affairs will permit you, to do us that Favour." See, further, April, and May 9.

At the trustee's meeting to-day, it is also required of Mr. Livingston "That a Copy of the List of the Amount of the Monies raised by the second and third Lottery, paid into the Treasury, for erecting a College within this Colony, drawn up by the Treasurer, he made for each of the Trustees."—Assemb. Jour., II: 398-99.

29 An "Advertisement," preceding the title-page and preface in the bound volume of the Independent Reflector, bears this date, although the first number of the paper is dated Nov. 30, 1752 (q. v.). It reads: "Just Published, And to be sold by Robert Mc. Alpine, Bookbinder, in Hanover-Square, in New-York, Price Two Shillings; A Preface to the Independent Reflector, containing Observations on the Conduct of the Author's [William Livingston's] Adversaries, and the secret Springs of their Opposition—The flagitious and arbitrary Measures for the Suppression of his Writings—A Vindication of his Sentiments against the Clergy—A full Reply to every Thing of Consequence that hath appeared against him—Important Remarks on the intended College, with a Display of the various Devices to pervert that noble Design, to the contemptible Purposes of a Faction.—A Refutation of the vile Calumnies thrown on several Members of the General Assembly, the Trustees of the New-Jersey College, and the Presbyterians in New-York—A Detection of the infamous Stratagems of some Episcopal Bigots, to disperse and ruin the Dutch Congregations; with a List of the Subjects he intended to have handled, had he not been most tyrannically excluded the Press. The whole containing Thirty-two Pages in Folio." A bound volume of the Independent Reflector, complete with the Preface, is in N. Y. Pub. Library. Gov. De Lancey is sworn in as chancellor.—Cal. Coun. Min.,

Mar. 13 392. The provincial council receives a letter from Gov. Dinwiddie stating that the Virginia assembly has granted £10,000 for operations against the French on the Ohio; also proclamations. A general plan of campaign, to be concerted, is decided upon, and the Virginia proclamation is sent to Connecticut.—Cal. Coun. Min., 392. See April 15 and 17.

William Walton and others (the same coterie, probably, who received from the city the grant of water lots in 1752.—see M. C. C., V: 354-55), now petition the provincial government (see Cal. Coun. Min., 392) for letters patent for making their wharf a free wharf for the shipping and unloading of goods, wares, and merchandise. It is situated in Montgomerie Ward, fronting the East River, from Robert Livingston's lot to the east end of James Desbrosses' lot (east of Beekman St.). On April 29, the council granted the petition.—Cal. Coun. Min., 393. On May 17, a warrant was issued for the attorney-general to prepare the patent.—Cal. Land Papers, 281. See Pl. 64, Vol. I; and Feb. 19, 1756.

18 Tickets for "the new Theatre in Nassau Street" on this date, when "The Beggar's Opera" and "The Devil to Pay" are to be performed, are on sale at Mr. Parker's and Mr. Gaine's printing-offices, the playhouse, "the Royal Exchange," "the Kings-Arms," and "Scotch Johns."—N. Y. Merc., March 18, 1754.

19 A large quantity of counterfeit British half-peace (see Dec. 3, 1753) is seized by G. Harrison, the surveyor and searcher of customs, and lodged with the mayor. A hundred pounds reward is offered for information regarding the importer or anyone handling counterfeit coins which will lead to conviction.—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 25, 1754; Cal. Coun. Min., 392. On April 2, Harrison made another seizure in a store of about 150 pounds of counterfeit pence, which were turned over to Alderman Filkins.—Ibid., April 8, 1754. During the week between April 29 and May 6, 30 pounds more of counterfeit half-pence were seized.—Ibid., May 6, 1754. See April 22, 1754.

In this month, Dr. Samuel Johnson, of Stratford, Conn., assumed, on trial only, the duties as president of the proposed college, for which a charter had not yet been granted. He would not positively accept until after the passage of the charter, which would determine the conditions under which the college should proceed.—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 16. See, further, June 3. For the charter, see May 30, and Oct. 31.

Dr. Johnson came to New York on receipt of the trustees' letter of March 13 (see Feb. 21), and "began the Education of Youth, according to a Plan agreed upon by the Trustees, being further encouraged to that Undertaking, by the Offer of £. 150, by the Vestry of Trinity Church, to him, in Addition to what was offered him, by them; without which additional Salary from the Vestry, or some other Provision equal to it, it could hardly be expected he would have been induced to have engaged in so arduous an Undertaking."—A Brief Vindication of the Proceedings of the Trustees . . . , By an Impartial Hand [Benjamin Nicoll], 1754.

"Notice is hereby given, That a Purse will be run for the fifth Day of April next, behind Mr. Kysicks, in New York, by any Horse, Mare, or Gelding bred in America, each Horse, Mare or Gelding getting two Heats in three, and saving their Distance the Third Heat, is intitled to the Purse;" etc.—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 11, 1754. This race-track was on the Church Farm, and Mr. Kysick (Kuyssick, Kissick) was a tavern-keeper at what are now Nos. 253-254 Broadway, south of Warren St., the later Montagne's tavern.

Kuyssick was still keeping tavern in 1759, but by June 2, 1760 (q. v.), Benjamin Keats had evidently rented the house and hung out the "Sign of the King of Prussia," formerly used by John Downers on his tavern at Fulton St. and Broadway (see Feb. 6, 1758). Kuyssick appears to have removed to a house on upper Queen, or Pearl St., where he entered into the business of a "vintner" and grocer. Keats was still in occupation of the tavern on Broadway in December, 1762, when Kuyssick offered the house for sale (see Dec. 27, 1762), but had removed before May, 1763, when Richard Howard took over the house (see May 16, 1763). Howard was in turn succeeded before March 12, 1764 (q. v.), by "Edward Barden," or Barden, who now hung out the sign of the King's Arms. This, apparently, was Barden's initial venture as a tavern-keeper in New York, and evidently was a successful one, for he remained here five years. In the spring of 1769, the house was again advertised to let, and by April 20 Abraham de la Montagne had become proprietor of the tavern.

"Americanus," writing in the N. Y. Mercury of June 14, 1770, explains, more or less truthfully, that De la Montagne, having relied upon the assured support of Isaac Sears to secure for him the office of inspector of pot and pearl ashes, had "declined entering into any particular business," but was "cruelly disappointed and deceived" to learn that Sears had pocketed the office for himself; "luckily for D. L. M. — e, a few days after he had received undoubted intelligence that S — s had deceived him, and procured the office for himself; Mr P — p K — k, who had some time before taken Barden's house in the Fields, was obliged (for reasons needless to be here mentioned) to quit the house, and by this accident D. L. M. — e got it." Montagne later received this coveted appointment. His tavern was at once popular. Like Hamden Hall, just north of it, it was a favourite headquarters of the Sons of Liberty, and, like Hamden Hall, it was attacked by British soldiers on several occasions preceding the Revolution. See Jan. 13 and Jan. 17, 1770.

Montagne died between 1774 and Jan. 17, 1776, when his widow, Mary Montagne, was paid in full of her account by the common council.—M. C. C., VIII: 125.

John Amory, a manufacturer of horse-whips, became the next proprietor.—See Sept. 19, 1778; Nov. 3, 1779. On March 16, 1780, Amory inserted a notice in Rivington's Royal Gaz., that the

Mar. 19

Apr. —

5

- 1754 Apr. "Gentlemen who supped at the late Widow de la Magnagnie's on the 17th of September, 1776, (after taking down the Liberty Pole) are informed in this public manner that their bid for the supper and liquor still remains unpaid . . ." Amory offered the house for rent in 1781 (see Sept. 17, 1781), and was succeeded in October of this year by John Kirk, who had been keeping the "Mitre Tavern" on Broadway.—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 22, 1781. Kirk retained proprietorship of the house during the Revolution, and was succeeded in 1785 by Henry Kennedy. Kirk gave the name of "Prince Wm. Henry" to the house, but it was always referred to as "Montagnes." Kennedy hung out the "sign of the two friendly brothers," and in his announcement stated that he had supplied himself with an abundance of mead and cakes, which "cannot fail to prove inviting to the Fair Sex; who, as a further inducement, will again be pleased to point out to themselves the very eligible and romantic situation of the Gardens."—N. Y. Packet, June 9, 1785. For the later history of this interesting old house and garden, see Feb. 23, 1786.
- 8 "A Subscription is now on Foot, and carried on with great Spirit, in order to raise Money for erecting and maintaining a publick Library [see March 11, 1713] in this City [New York]; and we hear that not less than 70 Gentlemen have already subscribed Five Pounds Principal, and Ten Shillings per Annum, for that Purpose. We make no Doubt but a Scheme of this Nature, so well calculated for promoting Literature, will meet with due Encouragement from all who wish the Happiness of the Rising Generation."—N. Y. Merc., April 8, 1754. This was the beginning of the New York Society Library.—See, further, April 29, and Oct. 21, 1754; and Keep's Hist. of the N. Y. Society Lib., 133-36.
- Nearly £600 were thus raised "towards promoting a spirit of inquiry among the people by a loan of the books to non-subscribers." The project was started "at an evening convention of a few private friends: Messrs. Philip Livingston, William Alexander (afterwards known by the title of the Earl of Stirling), Robert R. Livingston, William Livingston, John Morin Scott, and one other person." The remote object of the projectors was an incorporation by royal charter, and the erection of an edifice, at some future day, for a "Museum and Observatory, as well as a Library . . ."—From Smith's Continuation of the Hist. of N. Y., in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1830), V: 171.
- 9 Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey informs the legislature that Copesey battery is in a "ruinous Condition," and he urges appropriations for its repair.—Assemb. Jour., II: 374. The assembly, on April 17, allowed £344 for the repair of Copesey and Flat Rock Batteries.—Ibid., II: 378.
- 15 The provincial council receives a letter from the lords of trade, approving resolutions to assist other colonies when invaded; it is referred to the assembly.—Cal. Coun. Min., 393.
- "Edward Willett, who had been proprietor of the "Horse & Cart" on William St., announces that he has removed into the house of the honourable James de Lancey, Esq., in the Broadway near Oswego Market, and has opened a tavern "at the sign of the Province Arms."—N. Y. Merc., Apr. 15, 1754. The De Lancey mansion was erected about 1700 (q.v.), and stood on the west side of Broadway in the block between the present Thames and Cedar Sts.—See June 18, 1753. The house was an unusually handsome one, and under the able management of Willett immediately sprang into great popularity, being patronised by the elite of New York society. It was referred to in the various newspaper references to happenings there as the "Province Arms," "York Arms," "New York Arms," and "City Arms." In the spring of 1762, John Crawley succeeded Willett (see Apr. 29, 1762), and a year later George Burns removed here from the King's Head Tavern at Whitehall.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weeyman), May 16, 1763. The house, under various innholders, continued until 1793, when it was demolished, and the N. Y. Tontine Hotel, or City Hotel, was erected on its site. For a list of its innkeepers, its various names, and references to views, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, Vol. III: 977.
- 17 The French capture the Virginians at their stockade at the forks of the Ohio River, on the site of the present city of Pittsburg, later erecting a stronger fortress which they named Fort Duquesne.—Parker, Montcalm and Wolfe, I: 142-43.
- "John and Samuel Burling, merchants of New York City, present to the assembly a petition stating they propose to erect near New York City one or more wind-mills for grinding corn. They say "they have applied to the Corporation of the said City for a Piece of Ground convenient for that Purpose; That as the Mills proposed by them to be built, will be more perfect in their kind than any heretofore built within this Colony, they will consequently be more expensive . . .; that as there are no Wind-mills within, or near this City," the petitioners seek the monopoly of "grinding Corn and Grain, with such Wind-Mill or Wind-Mills, for such a Space of Time as to the honorable House shall seem meet."—Assemb. Jour., II: 376. Neither the Assemb. Jour. nor the M. C. C., nor any other known records, show a mill belonging to Burling.
- The confusion occasioned by counterfeit half-pence (see March 19) increases, people refusing good and bad alike. "At the lowering of Half-pence it was a popular Cry, that the Merchants did it, with a Design to ship them away;" a writer feels that the citizens of New York, by refusing all half-pence, are obliging merchants to do this very thing.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 22, 1754.
- James Wells gives notice that he will run a stage-boat from the Whitehall Slip to Amboy-Ferry every Monday and Thursday; thence by wagon to Borden's Town, and from Borden's Town by stage boat to Philadelphia; "And the same Method will be followed from the Crooked-Billet Wharf at Philadelphia" etc.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Apr. 22, 1754. For earlier Amboy ferries, see April 3, 1738; Sept. 9, 1745, etc.
- Having a boat for hire, Wells announces that he "is to be spoke . . . at Capt. Lewis's at the Sign of the Devonshire Mao of War opposite to Benjamin Nicholls Esq."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Apr. 22, 1754. Benjamin Nicholls' house was on Whitehall and Bridge St. It later became the King's Arms Tavern. See May 1, 1763.
- A "Number of Gentlemen" stake considerable money on a horse-race against time, the horse to start "from one of the Gates of the City," and cover the distance of 14 miles to Kingsbridge and back inside of two hours. The horse and rider performed this feat in one hour and 46 minutes.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Apr. 29, 1754. The "Gates of the City" were those in the palisades, erected across the city above the present Chambers St. (cf. Stevens, "The Physical Evolution of New York City . . ., 1807-1907," in Am. Hist. Mag., 1907, II: 30), for the location of which see July 6, 1745, and "Palisades of 1746" in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 945.
- "The Gentlemen, who are Subscribers to the Public-Library, 29 which is to be erected in this City [see April 8], are hereby Notified, that To-morrow, being the last Tuesday in April, is the Day appointed by the Subscription Articles for their Meeting; in order to elect Twelve Trustees, who are to have the immediate Care and Management of the said Library, for the Year ensuing. They are therefore desired to convene for that Purpose, To-morrow Morning . . . at the Exchange Coffee-Room in Broad-Street. As it will be the first public Transaction of the Subscribers, in Advancement of this excellent and useful Design, it is hoped, that Gentlemen will not fail to give a very general Attendance."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Apr. 29, 1754.
- Hugh Gaine announces in his paper that he "is now moved next door to Mr. Robert G. Livingston, in Queen [Pearl] Street, between the Fly and Meal Markets" (between Maiden Lane and Wall St.).—N. Y. Merc., April 29, 1754.
- Alexander Coldea announces: "The Post Office will be removed Tomorrow, to the House wherein William Walton, Esq; lately lived, near the New-Exchange; where due Attendance will be given, and all Letters received and delivered out as usual."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Apr. 29, 1754.
- At a meeting of the subscribers, the following are chosen 30 trustees of the public library (see April 8): James de Lancey, James Alexander, Joseph Murray, John Chambers, John Watts, William Walton, Henry Barclay, Benjamin Nicolls, Robert R. Livingston, William Livingston, William P. Smith and William Alexander.—N. Y. Merc., May 6, 1754. See May 12, 1755.
- On the refusal of the general assembly to meet the council in 1 May 1755 on the bill entitled "An Act to apply several sums of money for the use and security of this Colony," because it is a money bill (see Assemb. Jour., II: 381), the council makes a representation to Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey that this is not a money bill, as no money is given by its provisions to the king, but only money applied which has already been granted. They add: "And were it even a Money Bill, we can produce many instances of Conferences desired by the House of Lords, on Money Bills before them, and those conferences agreed to by the House of Commons and

1754 remember not of any instance before this, in this Province of a
 May refusal to confer on a Money Bill [see, however, Feb. 21, 1746].

1 "As we declined amending this Bill, so for the like Reason we decline entering into any Contest with the Assembly at this extraordinary Juncture, on this their refusal to confer. And tho' we cannot pass the Bill as it stands, so directly repugnant to his Majesty's Commission and Instructions [to the late Sir Danvers Osborn], yet we think it improper to reject it, least it should be from thence suggested that we did not think the services therein proposed to be provided for, to be necessary, which we are of opinion are highly so . . ." They suggest that the assembly be prorogued. De Lancey replies that, on the council's rejecting the bill, he will prorogue the assembly, and at its next meeting will "recommend to them again to provide for those services in a manner not liable to the same objections."—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 1153-54.

An act is passed to extend, from June 1 to the first Tuesday in October, the time for drawing the lottery provided for by the act of Dec. 12, 1753 (q.v.), to raise £1,125 for the benefit of the college.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 993. The full extension of time was found unnecessary, as all the tickets were sold by July 25; and the drawings therefore began then.—See July 8.

2 The assembly agrees to meet the lieutenant-governor on this day at the house of Edward Willett.—Assemb. Jour., II: 382. This was the old De Lancey mansion at the present 115 Broadway (Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 977), which Willett had opened as a tavern on April 15 (q.v.).

" The common council appoints a committee to confer with Henry Cruger about widening his pier in the Dock Ward about four feet, at his own expense, "so as to Range the same with Pains Peer, in order to make the said Peer more Commodious for the passing and Repassing of Carts &c on said Pier."—M. C. C., V: 449. On May 21, a proposal from him was accepted,—that he make the pier four feet wider, "providing he has the right of one Sea Vessel Lying within the Pier to be Exempted from paying Any wharfage or Dockage to the Corporation."—Ibid., V: 453-54, 455, 456. Cruger's Wharf is shown on Pls. 34, 41, 42, 64, Vol. I. Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, in a message to the house, expresses his disappointment at their failure to provide for the transporting and victualling of two companies for service in Virginia. The assembly, in reply, shifts the responsibility upon the council. De Lancey answers that he will represent the whole matter to the king "that it may be judged who are truly chargeable with the Delay." He dismisses the assembly.—Assemb. Jour., II: 384-85. For De Lancey's later address on this subject, see Aug. 20.

" A provincial statute is enacted enabling the City of New York to prevent and remove particular nuisances south of the Fresh Water. This action was taken because certain unenclosed lots, whose owners were unknown, had become nuisances chiefly "by throwing, upon them all kinds of Filth and Dirt as also for want of Paving the Streets fronting the Same." In such cases, the city is empowered to "surround with good and Sufficient Board Fence and to Remove all Such Filth and Dirt wherewith Such Lott or Lotts of Ground are Covered or incumbered," and, further, to pave the streets fronting the same "with good and Sufficient Pebble Stones."—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 996-98. For application of this act to Little Queen St. in 1755, see M. C. C., VI: 15.

6 The committee appointed April 5 (M. C. C., V: 445) "to Regulate the Streets from the City hall to the New Exchange, and from M<sup>r</sup> Furmans Corner to M<sup>r</sup>s Carpenters Corner the Former of which Street is Called Broad Street and the Latter is part of Smith and Queen Street in the Dock ward," makes its report. This modifies the plan for the grade in Broad St. which was submitted by the surveyors. The modification is approved. It calls for a regular descent for 250 feet from the city hall, and from there one regular descent "to the Common Shore [sewer?] Near the New Exchange."—Ibid., V: 450.

" Hugh Gaioe announces: "The Printer hereof is now removed from the House he formerly lived in, at the Old Slip [see May, 1753], to that lately possessed by Mr. Anderson, Taylor, next Door to Mr. Robert G. Livingston's, in Queen Street, between the Fly and Meal-Markets."—N. Y. Merc., May 6, 1754. See Oct. 6, 1755.

Dr. Johnson writes to his son: "As to the College we have been very diligent in private Conversations in preparing Such a Charter as I would have, & the Gentlemen have no doubt of it's passing; but we have had no meeting yet of the Trustees in a Body by reason of the public Affairs, for the Assembly did not break up as was expected the week before but at last last week, there being some pretty warm Disputes between the Council & Assembly which I conclude you'll see in the papers . . . It seems a plain Case that either I must stay here or the College must come to nothing, & all the Gentlemen with whom I have conversed, who are the chief Managers of the Public, are intent on making my Life as comfortable as possible."—Letter of Dr. Johnson to his son, Johnson Papers (MS.).

The provincial council appoints commissioners to settle the boundaries with Massachusetts.—Cal. Coun. Min., 393.

The provincial council receives a letter from Gov. Hamilton enclosing one from Major G. Washington.—Cal. Coun. Min., 393, citing Colonial MSS., LXXVIII: 111 (Albany). See May 13.

" The trustees of the college write again to Mr. Whittlesey (see Nov. 22, 1753; Feb. 21, 1754), informing him that the Trustees hope "speedily to open the College," and would "be glad to know his Resolution in Relation to their Proposals."—Assemb. Jour., II: 399. The poor condition of Mr. Whittlesey's health is disclosed in correspondence now preserved with the Johnson Papers (MS.), for the year 1754.

13 A crude wood-cut of a snake, broken into eight parts, each part representing one of the American colonies, and with the legend "Joio, or Die," appears in the N. Y. Merc. and the N. Y. Post-Boy, beneath a message from Major Washington. Both device and paragraph are taken from the Penn. Gam. of May 9, and were probably inspired by Benjamin Franklin, one of the publishers of the Penn. Gazette.

Washington's message, which arrived by "Express" on May 6, was to the effect that a part of the English forces on the Monongahela under Capt. Trent had been compelled to abandon their positions to the French, and had joined Washington, who had advanced with three companies of Virginia forces as far as the "New Store near the Allegheny Mountains." English traders on the Ohio had been seized, and English settlers were terrified. The writer of the paragraph says that the confidence of the French "seems well-grounded on the present disunited State of the British Colonies, and the extreme Difficulty of bringing so many different Governments and Assemblies to agree in any speedy and effectual Measures for our common Defence and Security; while our Enemies have the very great Advantage of being under one Direction, with one Council, and one Purse . . ."

The Boston Gazette and the Boston News-Letter reprinted the paragraph and the device in their issues of May 21 and May 23, and the paragraph was copied, in whole or part, in most American papers. The device of the broken snake was employed later in times of great peril, when a union of the colonies seemed most imperative. In 1765, it appeared as the head-piece of a curious paper, The Constitutional Courant (see Sept. 21, 1765), and, in 1774, a similar design was used by John Holt as the head-piece of the N. Y. Jour. (June 23, 1774), the legend beneath reading "Unite or Die" (cf. ibid., Dec. 15, 1774). See Albert Matthews, The Snake Device, 1754-1776, reprinted from the publications of the Col. Soc. of Mass., Vol. XI.

14 It is unanimously agreed by Trinity vestry "that this Board will give for the use of the College Intended to be Erected A Certain Parcel of Land belonging to this Corporation to Erect & Build the Said College upon and for the use of the Same That is to Say a Street of Ninety feet from the Broadway to Church Street and from Church Street all the Lands between Barclays Street and Murrays Street to the Water Side upon this Condition that the President of the Said Colledge for Ever for the time being be a Member of and in Communion with the Church of England And that the Morning and Evening Service in Said Colledge be the Liturgy of the Said Church or Such a Collection of Prayers out of the Said Liturgy as Shall be Agreed upon by the President and Trustees or Governors of the Said Colledge."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See March 5, 1752; July 5 and 10, and Nov. 1, 1754; May 12, 1755.

16 At a meeting of the trustees of the college, "a Draft of a Charter for constituting the College, and erecting the Building on Lands, belonging to Trinity Church in this City" is read, and William Livingston offers his protest in writing against this, giving "twenty Reasons" (see May 20), and requesting that the protest may "be entered on the minutes of the Proceedings of the Trustees," which is refused. He then asks that it may be recorded that he has offered such protest, but the entry of this also is refused, "he was also opposed by the Rest of the Members, who

May 6

9

"

13

14

16

1754 at last agreed that the Entry be, that he offered such Protest, and May that the Members agreed to take the said Protest into further 16 Consideration before the same be entered on the Minutes. The Rest of the Members agreed to the Draught of the said Charter."
 See, further, May 20.

At this meeting, also, Mr. Chambers, the mayor, and Mr. Nicoll informed the trustees "that the Vestry of Trinity Church offered the Vestry Room in the New School House, to begin Tuition, for so long Time as they shall think proper;" the trustees thankfully accepted; and it was agreed "that Dr. Johnson's Salary, should commence from the Time he left his Habitation on the Service of the Seminary, according to the former Proposal made by the Trustees" (see Nov. 22, 1753; Feb. 11, and April, 1754). It was also agreed "that the Scholars that shall be entered into the Seminary, shall pay for Tuition, Five Shillings, a Quarter."—Assemb. Jour., II: 399.

For the steps leading to the trustees' decision to apply for a charter, see Benjamin Nicoll's A Brief Vindication of the Proceedings of the Trustees (1754), 6, passim.

20 The following notice appears: "Whereas we have great Reason to believe, from a Variety of Circumstances, that there will very soon be a Rupture with the French, and very probably, we shall be attacked among the first. And whereas our greatest Security seems to depend, upon the Difficulty of the Navigation from the Hook upwards; all Masters of Vessels, or such as are thoroughly acquainted with that Navigation, are requested to concert among themselves, by what Means this Difficulty may be improved, by sinking of Vessels or otherwise; what Points of Land may be most proper for Batteries, to take up any Ships as they pass."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 20, 1754. See Jan. 27, 1755.

" At a meeting of the college trustees, Mr. Chambers and the mayor state that Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey has "given them Leave to present a Petition, in the Name of the Trustees, for a Charter for the College," and, the petition having been prepared, it is read. It recites the following provisions:

"That divers Sums of Money having been raised by several Acts of the Governor, Council and General Assembly of this Province . . . for the establishing a College . . . your Petitioners by Acts afterwards made [see Nov. 25, 1751], were appointed Trustees, for putting the said Monies at Interest, and to receive Proposals, accept Donations, and procure Masters and Tutors, in order to make a Beginning of the said Seminary, . . .

"Your Petitioners, further shew . . . that in Pursuance of the said Trust, they have endeavoured to get a proper Master, and Tutor, for the said intended Seminary, but find that as your Petitioners are enabled to give Salaries for seven Years only, that they are under great Difficulty to procure a fit and proper Person, to undertake the Office of Master, or Head of the said Seminary.

" . . . that the Rector and Inhabitants of the City of New-York, in Communion of the Church of England, . . . have offered upon your Petitioners a very valuable Parcel of Ground, on the West Side of the Broad-Way, in the West Ward of the City of New-York, for the Use of the said intended Seminary or College, and are ready and desirous to convey the said Lands for the said Use, on Condition that the Head or Master of the Seminary or College, be a Member of, and in Communion with the Church of England as by Law established, and that the Liturgy of the said Church or a Collection of Prayers out of the said Liturgy be the constant Morning and Evening Service, used in the said College for ever. Which said Parcel of Land so offered by the said Rector and Inhabitants, your Petitioners considering as the most proper Place for erecting the said Seminary or College upon. And that their obtaining his Majesty's Charter, to them or such others, as your Honour shall think proper for the said Trust, will the better enable your Petitioners, in Conjunction with those your Honour shall appoint by his Majesty's Charter, to provide a proper Master or Head of the said Seminary, and Tutors for the Education of Youth, and thereby greatly tend to promote and further the Intent and Design of establishing a Seminary or College . . .

"Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray, that in order to procure so good a Design and the more effectual obtaining a Grant of the said Parcel of Land, for the Use and Benefit of the said Seminary or College; that your Honour would be pleased to grant your Petitioners, or to such other Persons as your Honour shall think proper, his Majesty's Charter of Incorporation, with such privileges as to your Honour shall deem meet, . . ."

Although signed "William Livingston. In behalf of the Trustees," it is approved by all the trustees except Livingston himself, and it is agreed to present it to the lieutenant-governor by Mr. Chambers and the mayor.—Assemb. Jour., II: 399-400.

This petition was presented on the same day to Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey in council.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 617; Cal. Coun. Min., 393. For the result, see May 30.

At the trustees' meeting of May 20, it is also agreed "that the Protest offered at the last Meeting [see May 16] by William Livingston, be entered on the Minutes, and the said Livingston, did then protest against presenting the said Petition, for the Reasons contained in his Protest aforesaid, from the entry of which said Protest, Mr. Mayor dissented, and prayed Time for assigning his Reasons in writing." The protest consists of twenty reasons offered to the trustees against applying the college funds as prescribed in the proposed charter. He contends:

I. That the Church of England is not established in this province, where all subjects are under a perfect equality; and the proposed establishment will be partial to that denomination, and an encroachment on the rights and privileges of the others.

"II. That, even admitting (what is hereby absolutely denied) that the Church of England by Law established in South Britain, is also established in this Province; yet the Establishment of the Liturgy of that Church, in the said College by Charters, and without the Consent of the Representatives of the People, will be unjust, and an Invasion of their undoubted Rights and Privileges, seeing that if the Money raised by the said two Acts of Assembly, shall be applied to the Support of the said Charter College, all the Inhabitants of the Province will be obliged to contribute to its Support, and a vast Majority of the Province are Protestants, dissenting from the Church of England."

III. He asserts that Trinity's offer, made to the trustees on April 8, this year, was the unconditional grant adopted by the vestry on March 5, 1752 (q.v.), not that of May 14, 1754, which contains the condition that the president of the college shall be a minister of the Church of England, and that the liturgy of that church shall be used in the college; therefore, he contends that the acceptance should not include these conditions.

The deductions contained in the remaining "Reasons" include the assertion that a recent act (see July 4, 1753) enabled the treasurer of the province to pay the college trustees certain moneys to be by them applied "in Salaries for the chief Master or Head of the Seminary, and for such and so many other Masters and Officers, Uses and Purposes, concerning the Establishment of the said Seminary, as the said Trustees shall from Time to Time, in their Directions, think needful, being intended for the Masters and Officers of a free College, or the College of New-York." If, however, Livingston contends, the trustees take the oath prescribed by the proposed charter, they will "aid and abet the said Trinity Church, in defrauding the Province out of the Monies so, as, aforesaid, to be paid to the Trustees, for the Use of the College of New-York; and applying them to the Use of the College of Trinity Church, as established by the said Charter."

Such charter, therefore, he holds, is dangerous to liberty. It will "reduce Parents to the Necessity either of educating their Children at the said College of Trinity Church, contrary to their own Sentiments and Consciences, or of leaving them without an Academical Education in this Province." This will be the means of carrying large sums of money out of the province into neighbouring colonies for the education of our youth. It will obstruct charitable contributions "by those to whom the College of Trinity Church will be disagreeable, who are a vast Majority of the Province, and who would cheerfully contribute to the College of New-York, and the Advancement of Literature." It will tend "to raise public Disorder and Animosity, at a Time when his Majesty's Interest, by Reason of the Encroachments of the French, requires the greatest Concord and Unanimity."

The proposed charter, he further contends, would create a conflict of authority in the control of funds by the appointment of persons not mentioned in the act of Nov. 25, 1751 (q.v.). He conceives that, because "the College of Trinity Church" will consist of other trustees, and be otherwise incorporated, and enjoy other powers than "the College of New-York," there will be two distinct colleges, and "that the said Trinity Church College, is set up in Opposition to the College of New-York," etc.

1754 He believes "that the several Branches of the Legislature of May this Province, reserve solely to themselves the Establishment of 20 the Plan of Government to be exercised in the New-York College, as they have the Disposition of its Situation, and the Monies raised for it by the several Lottery Acts."—Assemb. Jour., II: 400-2.

This protest of William Livingston formed part of his individual report to the assembly on Nov. 1 (q. v.), the day after the granting of the charter by the lieutenant-governour. Benjamin Nicoll published an anonymous answer to it near the end of the year, entitled A Brief Vindication of the Proceedings of the Trustees, pp. 9-12 (see Nov. 4).

21 William Walton and others, proprietors "of Sundry Houses and Lotts of Ground on Hunter's Key" (see Feb. 9, 1713), which lay along the East River front from Old Slip to Wall St. (see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 990), petition the common council for a grant of 200 feet into East River, "or as many feet as will make the Same on a straight or direct Line With the Keys on both sides." The petition is referred to a committee, which is to meet the petitioners and receive proposals.—M. C. G., V: 453.

This application was opposed by several contributors to the newspapers. One writer urged that "Rotten Row, where ships harbour" be retained by the corporation "till such Time as another Harbour can be made for the Safety of our Shipping."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 3, 1754.

Another communication, in the Gazette of June 10, 1754, reviewed at length the subject of grants of water lots in this locality, stating that "the Corporation have not in their Power to make or pass a grant or grants to either the present or late Petitioners" (see April 26, 1750). The writer explained that the corporation had formerly granted to the petitioners or their ancestor "from High to Low-Water Mark," on condition that they should make "a good and sufficient Wharf and Street, of Thirty Foot in Breadth," and keep them in repair as a "common and public Wharf, Street and High-Way for ever;" and that, as the water became shallow later, the proprietors petitioned for an additional grant of 25 ft. into the river from the wharves, and this was approved upon the same conditions as the first. This latter grant took place "several Years before the Corporation procured their last, or new Charter, whereby they have the Grant of the Soil, from a Place upon the North-River, called Bestaver's Kiltje; to the Fort, comprehending 400 Feet below Low-Water-Mark; as also the Soil of the East-River, from Corlaier's Hook to the White-Hall, also comprehending 400 Feet from Low-Water Mark; with an express Proviso, not to wharf out before those who have prior Grants of Keys or Wharfs below Low-Water Mark, without the actual Agreement or Consent of the Owners of such Keys or Wharfs." From this the writer argued that, as "in strict Propriety the Owners and Proprietors of the Keys and Wharfs in Question, are all and every individual Inhabitant of this City; and . . . all and every Stranger that now is in, or shall hereafter come into the same," no grant could be made without everybody's consent. He added also that the present petitioners had forfeited any right they might have, because they had not fulfilled the conditions, and that, if it were necessary to fill up the place, the lots should be sold at "publick Vendue to the highest Bidder."

A third communication appeared in the Gazette of July 29, declaring that the committee of the common council appointed "to pitch on Methods to prevent its being a publick nuisance, . . . soon found the Petitioners Aim; and it was worth petitioning for, being 375 Feet in Length, and 200 in Depth, that is, as far as out as the New, or Cruger's Dock. At £300, each lot, which I am sure it would sell for, 25 Feet to a Lot, amounts to £4500,—well worth asking for."

No further action on the petition of William Walton and others was recorded at this time in the Minutes. It was revived in 1761 (q. v., May 22) by William Brownjohn and others, but the water lots in this locality were not granted until seven years later.

Announcement was made on May 6 of a public vendue to begin on May 21, at the fort, "of sundry goods & Effects belonging to the Estate of the late Sir Danvers Osborne, Bart."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 6, 1754.

27 Dr. Johnson writes to his son that the trustees of the college have "waited on the Gov<sup>t</sup> with a petition for a Charter & he promised to call the Council as soon as he could, but was engaged in writing Letters to England by a man of war now going, (by whom poor S<sup>r</sup> Danvers's Body goes home,) & said he was ready to grant the Charter they desired, if the Council would advise to it, as it is not doubted they will . . . All that is wanted of the Assembly is to vest the Lottery Money in the Corporation to be made by Charter . . . they do not doubt it will pass, but this they say is not at all necessary for my Security with regard to the Salary which is already vested in the Trustees by Assembly for 7 years." He says, further, that it is "extremely probable" that he will remain in New York, where he is "universally treated with great Kindness & Respect," and where he "may do a great Deal, more Good" than anywhere else.—Johnson Papers (MS.).

"To be sold, The Corer House and Lot of Ground on the Great-Dock, wherein John Downas now lives, at the Sign of the Queen's Head, opposite to the House of the late Col. Moore, and near the New-Exchange; said Lot is 29 Feet 6 Inches both Front and Rear, and 16 Feet 4 Inches Deep, with the Liberty of Wharfing out a considerable Way; the House thereon is two Story high. Whoever inclines to purchase the above Premises, may apply to the said John Downas, who will agree on reasonable Terms, and give an indisputable Title to the same."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 27, 1754. The "New Exchange" was at the foot of Broad St. The "Queen's Head" was an ever popular tavern sign in colonial New York. In 1731, a tavern on William St. bore this sign. In 1762, Samuel Francis opened, at the south-east corner of Broad and Pearl Sts., his well-known house with the Sign of Queen Charlotte, later shortened to the "Queen's Head." In 1778, Smith had a tavern on Cherry St. which bore the sign of the Queen's Head; and in 1779 James Hearn conducted an inn on Brownjohn's Wharf, which was known as the Queen's Head Tavern and Indian Chop House.

"This is to inform all gentlemen & ladies, who have honoured Mr. David Cox, with their custom, that the same business is now carried on at the same shop, next door to the King's Arms tavern, and opposite the Royal-Exchange, by Timothy Powell, hair-curler and peruke-maker from London . . ."—N. Y. Merc., May 27, 1754. David Cox had combined the business of tavern-keeper and hair-dresser during his brief proprietorship of the King's Arms Tavern. See Oct. 3, 1748.

Washington, with a force of Virginians, defeats the French at Great Meadows in the Ohio Valley.—D'Arvaite, France in America, 161-62. This engagement marks the outbreak of the so-called "French and Indian War," the last of the intercolonial conflicts between England and France in North America. Washington's force on July 3 was captured at Fort Necessity.—Channing, Hist. of the U. S., III: 562.

Cadwallader Colden, writing from "Coldenham," apparently to Peter Collinson of London, says in part: "The bad Opinion which it seems is entertained of M<sup>r</sup> Clinton's administration may in some measure affect me as it has been thought that he acted by my advice. What are cried out against as arbitrary acts are strongly exaggerated. It is not proper to enter on particulars. Many things were done without my knowledge & others contrary to my advice but I have a full justification of my conduct in a Letter which the Earl of Halifax did me the honour to write me dated the 17th of May last year. He had before him all that was said on both sides & was well informed from the minutes of the Council of the part which I acted I have no interest with him either by personal knowledge or by any friend. He therefor formed his Judgement freed from any prejudice of that kind. I wrote to him a few days since by a sloop of War which carries S<sup>r</sup> Danvers Osborns corps" (see May 27).—From the original draft of the letter, with Colden Papers, in N. Y. Hist. Soc.

29 William Smith writes to Messrs. Miller and Cornwall, representatives to the assembly from Suffolk and Queens counties, respectively, of "the Designs of some Persons here to pervert the Noble undertaking of the Legislature of this Province for founding a College, to the little mean End, of Topping the Church of England, above all the other protestant Denominations in the Province." He calls their attention to the fact that "by several Lottery Acts a Very Considerable sum of money, has been raised for a College.—That Trustees have been nominated to farm the money so raised, & that £500 per Annum is payable to them, out of the Excise to begin a Seminary. What is meant by the word Seminary has been, and still is matter of considerable Dispute—some insist that the Legislature intended by the Act, only to enable the Trustees to set up a good Grammar School, to prepare youth for their

May 27

"

"

28

"

29

1754 Entrance into the future College, & one of the members of the May House told me, he understood the Term Seminary, as synonymous 29 with Grammar School, & that the great & Important Affair of the founding of the College, was to be with Solemnity & Caution plan'd and established by a future Law. If this was the General Sense, it is very certain that the Act was carelessly drawn." Smith, further, says he suspects there may have been some "Artifice in in the Drawing of the Act," traceable to churchmen on the board of trustees, who are resolved "to found the College according to their Wishes by Charter and not by Act of Assembly." Such a charter has been drawn "in such a manner, as throughout to cast the Balance of power on the side of the Church of England," and "the Dissenters here whether English or Dutch, are extremely jealous of the Designs of a few Bigots, & esteem a Charter an un-secure method of Establishing so important and Costly an Undertaking."—From original draft among Wm. Smith MSS., in N. Y.
 Pub. Library, folio 189. See Sept. 20. Regarding the Smith Diary and MSS., see Aug. 26, 1778, and Bibliography.

The first "publick vendue" advertised to take place at the new "Exchange" was to occur on this day.—N. Y. Merc., March 4, 1754.

30 A committee of the provincial council reports on the petition for a college charter (see May 20); this report is approved, and the council orders that a warrant be issued to the attorney-general to prepare the charter. From this report, James Alexander and William Smith dissent.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 617; *Cal. Coun.
 Min.*, 393. See May 29; Oct. 31, Nov. 1, and Dec., 1754.

" Instructions are issued to Cadwallader Colden, Joseph Murray, William Smith, Benjamin Nicoll, and William Livingston, New York's commissioners, who are to meet those of Massachusetts to settle the boundary line.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 617.

June Rev. Samuel Johnson, president-elect of the college (see Nov. 22, 3 1753; and April, 1754), which is beginning its work, makes the first public announcement of the requirements for admission, the general scheme of education, and other feature of the teaching plan. In an "Advertisement," dated May 31, addressed "To such Parents as have now (or expect to have) Children prepared to be educated in the College of New-York," he states:

"I . . . that it is proposed to begin Tuition upon the first Day of July next, at the Vestry Room in the new School-House, adjoining to Trinity Church in New York, which the Gentlemen of the Vestry are so good as to favour them with the Use of in the Interim, till a convenient Place may be built.

"II. The lowest Qualifications they have judged requisite, in order to Admission into the said College, are as follows, viz. That they be able to read well, and write a good legible Hand; and that they be well versed in the Five first rules in Arithmetic, i. e. as far as Division and Reduction; and as to Latin and Greek, That they have a good Knowledge in the Grammars, and be able to make grammatical Latin, and both in construing and parsing, to give a good Account of two or three of the first select Orations of Tully, and of the first Books of Virgil's Aeneid, and some of the first Chapters of the Gospel of St. John, in Greek. In these Books therefore they may expect to be examined; but higher Qualifications must hereafter be expected; and if there be any of the higher Classes in any College, or under private Instruction, that incline to come hither, they may expect Admission to proportionably higher Classes here.

"III. And that People may be the better satisfied in sending their Children for Education to this College, it is to be understood, that as to Religion, there is no Intention to impose on the Scholars, the peculiar Tenets of any particular Sect of Christians; but to inculcate upon their tender Minds, the great Principles of Christianity and Morality, in which true Christians of each Denomination are generally agreed. And as to the daily Worship in the College Morning and Evening [see observations of William Livingston in the Independent Reflector, 84-85], it is proposed that it should, ordinarily, consist of such a Collection of Lessons, Prayers and Praises of the Liturgy of the Church, as are, for the most Part, taken out of the Holy Scriptures, and such as are agreed on by the Trustees, to be in the best Manner expressive of our common Christianity; and, as to any peculiar Tenets, every one is left to judge freely for himself, and to be required only to attend constantly at such Places of Worship, on the Lord's Day, as their Parents or Guardians shall think fit to order or permit.

"IV. The chief Thing that is aimed at in this College is, to teach and engage the Children to know God in Jesus Christ, and to love and serve him, in all Sobriety, Godliness and Righteousness of Life, with a perfect Heart, and a willing Mind; and to train them up in all virtuous Habits, and all such useful Knowledge as may render them creditable to their Families and Friends, Ornaments to their Country, and useful to the publick Weal in their Generations. To which good Purposes, it is earnestly desired, that their Parents, Guardians and Masters, would train them up from their Cradles, under strict Government, and in all Seriousness, Virtue and Industry, that they may be qualified to make orderly and tractable Members of this Society; . . . and above all, that in order hereunto, they be very careful themselves, to set them good Examples of true Piety and Virtue in their own Conduct. For as Examples have a very powerful Influence over young Miuds, and especially those of their Parents, in vain are they solicitous for a good Education for their Children, if they themselves set before them Examples of Impiety and Profaneeness, or of any sort of Vice whatsoever.

"V. And, lastly, a serious, virtuous, and industrious Course of Life, being first provided for, it is further the Design of this College, to instruct and perfect the Youth in the learned Languages, and in the Arts of reasoning exactly, of writing correctly, and speaking eloquently; and in the Arts of numbering and measuring;
 of Surveying and Navigation, of Geography and History, of Husbandry, Commerce and Government, and in the Knowledge of all Nature in the Heavens above us, and in the Air, Water and Earth around us, and the various kinds of Meteors, Stones, Mines and Minerals, Plants and Animals, and of every Thing useful for the Comfort, the Convenience and Elegance of Life, in the chief Manufactures relating to any of these Things: And, finally, to lead them from the Study of Nature to the Knowledge of themselves, and of the God of Nature, and their Duty to him, themselves, and one another, and every Thing that can contribute to their true Happiness, both here and hereafter.

"Thus much, Gentlemen, it was thought proper to advertise you of, concerning the Nature and Design of this College: And I pray God, it may be attended with all the Success you can wish, for the best Good of the rising Generation; to which, (while I continue here) I shall willingly contribute my Endeavours to the Utmost of my Powers,

"Who am, Gentlemen,
 "Your real Friend,
 "And most humble Servant,
 "Samuel Johnson.

"N. B. The Charge of the Tuition is established by the Trustees to be only 25s. for each Quarter" (see May 16).—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 3, 1754.

For the president's next announcement, see July 1; and for the first meeting of a class in the college, see July 17. For sarcastic reflections on the foregoing "Advertisement," made by William Livingston, see Aug. 22. See also Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 16.

"The Honourable John Penn, Esq; Richard Peters, Isaac Norris, and Benjamin Franklin, Esqrs," commissioners from Pennsylvania to the colonial congress (to be held in Albany from June 19 to July 11), arrive in New York. On the next day, Benjamin Tasker and Major Abraham Barnes from Maryland arrived.
 They left on the following Sunday for Albany.—N. Y. Post-Boy,
 June 10, 1754. See June 19.

"The Members of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons in New York, are desired to meet at the House of Mr. Edward Willet in the Broad-Way, on Wednesday the 19th of June Inst. on special Business. By Order of the Grand Master.
 H. Gaine, Sec."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 10, 1754. This was the Province Arms Tavern.—See April 15.

President Johnson of King's College publishes the following notice: "This is to acquaint all whom it may concern, that I shall attend at the school-house, near the English-Church, on Tuesdays and Thursdays, every Week, between the hours of nine and twelve, to examine such as offer themselves to be admitted into the college. Samuel Johnson."—N. Y. Merc., June 13, 1754;
Post-Boy, July 1, 1754.

The common council appoints a committee to receive proposals from the inhabitants of the neighbourhood of the Fly Market for lengthening the market-house; the committee may permit the inhabitants to enlarge it at their own expense.—M. C. C., V: 455.
 See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 958; Pl. 174.

"The Old Slip-Market, at the Foot of Smith-Street, which 1754 for a long time has remained in a very ruinous Condition, is, by June Order of the Mayor and Corporation, now repairing, having a good 17 Stone Foundation already plac'd, and a strong boarded Floor preparing for the same; and will in a very little Time, from the close Application of the Workmen, be in an extraordinary good Condition to receive both City and Country Produce: We are told that the front Part (if not the whole) of the Market is to be re-shingled."

—N. T. Post-Boy, June 17, 1754. On Sept. 20, the common council ordered payment of £100 to Petter Clopper for advances made by him for repairing the Old Slip Market.—M. C. C., V: 459.
The repairs were evidently finished by Nov. 1, when the common council appointed a committee of the Dock and East Wards "for the Letting of the Sellars under the Slip market."—M. C. C., V: 475.

Thomas Brookman's account for furniture, etc., for the council room and public offices, bears this date.—Cal. Coun. Min., 668.

19 A colonial congress convenes at Albany, the primary object of which is to re-establish the "Covenant Chain" (see June 12, 1753) with the Six Nations. It evokes, however, the larger plan of a union of the colonies of Massachusetts Bay, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina, for their mutual defence and security, and for extending the British settlements in North America.—N. T. Col. Docs., VI: 853-97; 901-6; 916-20; 930-33; Proceedings of the Commission on Indian Affairs
(extra-illustrated), in Emmet collection, N. Y. Pub. Library.

This was perhaps the most important of the several congresses convened at Albany (see 1684; Aug. 15, 1694; 1722; July 23, 1748), based on the principle of colonial representation. Among the commissioners from the several colonies were Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Hutchinson, William Johnson, and James de Lancey. The congress lasted until July 11. For brief digest of the transactions, see Cal. Coun. Min., 394-95. New York City's interest in this congress appears in the following statement made by Franklin in his autobiography:

"In our way thither, I projected and drew a plan for the union of all the colonies under one government, so far as might be necessary for defence, and other important general purposes. As we pass'd thro' New York, I had there shown my project to Mr. James Alexander and Mr. Kennedy, two gentlemen of great knowledge in public affairs and, being fortified by their approbation I ventur'd to lay it before the Congress. It then appeared that several of the commissioners had form'd plans of the same kind. A previous question was put whether a union should be established, which passed in the affirmative unanimously. A committee was then appointed, one member from each colony, to consider the several plans and report. Mine happen'd to be prefer'd, and, with a few amendments, was accordingly report'd."—Works of Benj. Franklin (ed. by Bigelow), I: 242-43.

A communication, dated Oct. 28, 1788, printed by Matthew Carey in The Am. Museum (1789), V: 190-96, 285-87, 365-68, contains the first publication of the text of Franklin's plan for a union, presented under the following heads:—I. Reasons and motives on which the plan of union for the colonies was formed;— II. Reasons against partial unions;—III. The plan drawn by dr. Franklin, and unanimously agreed to by the commissioners
... This is copiously annotated, either by Carey or Franklin, and at the end (p. 368), apparently part of the text (but not printed in either the Sparks or Bigelow editions of Franklin's writings) there appears the following pertinent conclusion: "On reflection it now [April, 1789] seems probable that if the foregoing plan, or something like it, had been adopted and carried into execution, the subsequent separation of the colonies from the mother country might not so soon have happened, nor the mischief suffered on both sides have occurred, perhaps, during another century.
For the colonies, if so united, would have really been, as they then thought themselves, sufficient for their own defence; and, being trusted with it, as by the plan, an army from Britain, for that purpose, would have been unnecessary. The pretences for framing the stamp act would then have existed, nor the other projects for drawing a revenue from America to Britain by acts of parliament, which were the cause of the breach, and attended with such terrible expense of blood and treasure; so that the different parts of the empire might still have remained in peace and union.
... The crown disapproved it, as having placed too much weight in the democratic part of the constitution; and every assembly has having allowed too much to prerogative: so it was totally rejected."

See Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 611-13, where is given an historical digest of references (not including the above) to the subject of intercolonial congresses and plans of union. An original manuscript journal of the Albany congress is noted in the Catalogue of the Carter-Brown Library, Providence (Vol. III: item No. 1067).
See Aug. 9, and Dec. 17. For a list of the various printed treaties with the Indians, see De Puy, A Bibliography (1917).

The "Members of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons" are requested to meet on this day "at the House of Mr. Edward Willet in the Broad-Way."—N. T. Post-Boy,
June 10, 1754.

Gov. Dinwiddie writes to 'Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, among other things, regarding an action with the Indians by a party under Col. Washington.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 618.

During the July term of the supreme court, which ended on July Aug. 2, a man named Patrick Cramer was tried for killing a Mr.
Cregier, and found guilty of manslaughter; he "was burnt in the Hand accordingly."—N. T. Post-Boy, Aug. 5, 1754.

A French force defeats Col. Washington at Fort Necessity; the Virginians capitulate.—Parkman, Montcalm and Wolfe, I: 151-61. See Aug. 28.

Subscribing himself "Your quondam Pupil," William Smith writes to Rev. Silas Leonard, of Goshen, that it is now "become apparent that the Church of England aims at monopolizing the Government of the College" (see May 29). The steps that have been taken "relating to the College" he portrays to him thus:
"Our Assembly have since the year 1748 at several times raised large sums of money by public Lotteries for a College to be Established here [see Dec. 6, 1746; April 9, 1748; July 4, Dec. 12, 1753]
—so good a Desigo met with Universal Encouragement. The Church soon began to work privily in Order to engross the Government of it—The first Thing was the appointing Trustees to put that money out at Interest for the College whenever it should be constituted [see Nov. 25, 1751]. Altho' 9/10<sup>ths</sup> of the Province are Dissenters yet they got among these Trustees who were Nine in Number six Episcopalians—Last year £500 per Annum out of the Excise Fund [see July 4, 1753] which brings in about £1000 a year was enacted to be paid for seven years successively to these Trustees to begin a Seminary by which some of the Assemblymen understood was meant a Latin or Grammar School to prepare Lads for the future College but so artfully is it drawn that by the Equivocation of the Term Seminary they are determined to open a College—The Trustees in next place called Dt Johnson of Stratford to be President of the College [see Nov. 22, 1753] for now its plain they so construe the Word Seminary [see Nov. 22, 1753]—
But how to get the Possession of the public Monies raised is the Question for it cannot be applied but by Legislative Act—The Trustees having a power to receive Gifts and proposals relating to the plans to be offered for erecting the College the Church in New York offered them a part of their Lands [see April 8, 1752].—
Then the Trustees drew up a Petition to the Governor for a Charter [see May 14]. . . . the Gov't has not granted the Charter but will it is supposed w<sup>ill</sup> till he can be sure of the approbation of the Assembly [see Oct. 31]. Endeavours will undoubtedly be pushed all manner of Ways by some to gain the Monies raised, from the Hands of the Assembly into the Possession of the Trustees—And here lies all the Security which the Friends of Liberty have All our Dependence is on the House—The Utmost Care therefore must be taken to impress the Members with Right sentiments of the Importance of the Affair."—From an original draft among Wm. Smith MSS., folio 189. See Aug. 20.

Abraham Van Wyck and Abraham Laysen, managers of the lottery for the benefit of the college (called "the New-York Lottery," because confined to this province—see Dec. 12, 1753), publish a notice fixing July 23, at 9 a. m., at the city hall, as the time and place "to put the Lottery Tickets into the Boxes," and July 25, at the same hour and place, for the commencement of the "Drawing." A few tickets are left, which may be had of the managers at their homes.—N. T. Post-Boy, July 8, 1754. The drawing began on the 25th, "when Number 4803 drew the highest prize of 1000 l. and we are informed is the Property of a young Lady in this City. . . . The drawing continued until July 30, and the other winning numbers were published in ibid., Aug. 5.

William Smith, Jr., writes to Benjamin Hinckman of Jamaica,

June 19

"

20

July

4

5

8

"

1754 signing himself "A Lover of Liberty," and enclosing the draft of July a petition to be circulated in Queen's County to gain legislative support for the proposed college on the lines which he outlines. He says this method "is a practice common in England when matters of general & great importance are on the Carpet and I believe you will think the Establishment of a College of as much or perhaps greater moment than any thing that has ever fallen under the Consideration of our Legislature. Tho' your members [of the legislature] should be well affected to a Free College yet the Petition will be proper since it will free them from the Troublesome solicitations of those who may be more obstinate in their Contention for a contracted Scheme . . ."—From the original draft of the letter among Wm. Smith MSS., folio 189, N. Y. Pub. Library.

The draft of the petition is not with these MSS., but is probably similar to that sent to the representatives in the assembly for the county of Ulster, which is with them. In this he makes the plea, for the freeholders to sign, that the proposed college may be "established upon a Catholic Bottom," instead of having its "plan & Government savour of Civil or Religious party;" and he suggests some particulars which "ought to be attended to in the Constitution of the College." These include: "1. That the . . . Trustees be not all of any one particular Religious Denomination; That they be men of Capacity Estate Catholicism & Integrity & that their Number be not less than Twenty four."

"2 That they be Incorporated by an Act of Governor Council & General Assembly and all future Vacancies among the Trustees supplied no otherwise than by Legislative Acts and that no protestant shall be on Account of his Religious Opinions disqualified from holding any Office in the College."

"3 That no Religious Profession in particular be Established in the College but that all the officers and students be at perfect Liberty to attend any protestant Church at their pleasure respectively and that the Corporation be absolutely prohibited the Making of any By Laws relating to Religion except such and only such as Compel the Students to attend at some one protestant Church or other every Sabbath Day."

"4 That Morning and Evening Worship be maintained in the College and that to this End the Trustees draw up and report to the Legislature with all convenient speed a few general Forms of Prayer to be approved and established for the Daily Worship of the Seminary."

"5 That all the Officers of the College besides taking the State Oaths be sworn to preserve the Rights of the Scholars secured by this Act and that an Action be given at Law to every Scholar for any Violation of his Rights & Privileges Granted by the Law."

The petition further asks that the proposed act be printed and published in the form of a bill, "that it may be more critically examined . . ."—Ibid.

"An advertisement of this date reads: "Lawrence Kilburn, Linmer, Just arrived from London . . . hereby acquaints all Gentlemen and Ladies inclined to favour him in having their Pictures drawn, that he don't doubt of pleasing them in taking a true Likeness, and finishing the Drapery in a proper Manner, as also in the Choice of Attitudes, suitable to each Person's Age and Sex and giving agreeable Satisfaction, as he has heretofore done to Gentlemen and Ladies in London. He may at present be apply'd to, at his Lodgings, at Mr. Bogart's, near the New Printing-Office in Beaver-Street."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 8, 1754. For further information concerning Kilburn, see Dunlap, Hist. of Arts of Design, I, 191."

10 "At the conference in Albany (see June 19), a report of the Massachusetts boundary commissioners is read, and additional instructions are given.—Cal. Coun. Min., 394-95."

"Rev. Samuel Johnson writes to the Archbishop of Canterbury that he has been chosen head of the proposed college at New York (see Nov. 22, 1753); that a charter for the college is being projected by the trustees (see May 20); and that the president is always to be of the Church of England. This charter has been passed in the council (ibid.), and is "preparing for the Seals. . . ."

In consideration of which conditions, the gentlemen of Trinity Church will give a tract of land excellently situated, whereon to build it, with 7 or 8000 pounds" (see May 14).—N. Y. Cal. Doccs., VI, 849.

17 Rev. Samuel Johnson, recently appointed president of college (see Nov. 22, 1753), for the first time meets his first class, consisting of ten students, in the vestry-room of the schoolhouse belonging to the corporation of Trinity Church.—Beadsley, Life and

Correspondence of Samuel Johnson, 194-95. This college or "seminary" was soon given by charter the name of King's College (see Oct. 31), and eventually became Columbia University.

25 Minutes of the proceedings at Albany (see June 19) are laid before the provincial council at the fort in New York.—Cal. Coun. Min., 395. See Aug. 9.

"Rev. George Whitefield arrives in New York from South Carolina. He preached every day to very large audiences, and started for Philadelphia on July 30.—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 29, 1754. See Sept. 1.

30 Trinity vestry orders: "That Messrs Livingston & Lefferts have Liberty to take in Sixteen feet of the Churches Ground at the Rear of their four Lotts on which their Stillhouse is Erected On Condition that they Build a Stone Wall Six feet high at least at the Extent of the Said Sixteen feet the whole Breadth of the four Lotts they have Leased from this Corporation being one hundred feet That they Enjoy the Same during the Continuance of their Lease of the Said four Lotts and that they leave the Said Stone Wall for the use of this Corporation at the End of the Said Term."—Trin. Min. (MS.). For location of the still-house, see description of A. Pl. 3-b, III, 863. The nature of this still-house is possibly revealed in an advertisement of the following year for the sale of turpentine there.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 5, 1755.

"Peter Collinson, writing from London to Cadwallader Colden, says he determined to wait on Lord Halifax and "hear from his own Mouth" about Colden's status: "He received Mee in a Very Affable Manner & after He had Heard Mee revive your request [for the place of lieutenant gov. of N. Y. and salary as surveyor general of the province] to his Memory—He answered Mee very friendly & told Me He had received y<sup>r</sup> Letter was no Stranger to you or your Merits & that He had a high Esteem & Value for you I deduced like a Polite Courtier He Said so many Handsome things of you I will not discompose you by reciting them—"

"He Said it was a Little to be regretted that you Embarked with the Late Governor—but Said He, it might be well for the Governor else he had gone greater Lengths."—From the original letter, with Colden Papers, in N. Y. Hist. Soc.

The plan for a union of the colonies, which was proposed at the Albany conference (see June 19), is referred by the provincial council to a committee for consideration.—Cal. Coun. Min., 395.

9 On the back of a letter of this date which Dr. Johnson received from his son, the first president of King's College made a rough sketch of what he had in mind for the college seal. In this are seen suggestions for the seal finally adopted (see June 3, 1755); the Latin Motto VIGILIBUS LUMEN IN LUMINE TUO appears, also the Greek and Hebrew characters. The central female figure is standing rather than sitting, and the sun is a full luminary instead of a partial orb. The Biblical verses suggested by the inscription which now appears at the base of the central figure evidently were not in Pres. Johnson's mind at that time.—Johnson Papers (MS.). For reproduction, see Addenda. Cf. "The Device of the College Seal" in Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 19-20, also cuts of seals in ibid., 444.

14 Hugh Gainé begins the publication of a political weekly, entitled The Plebeian, edited under the pseudonym of "Noah Meantwell." The date of the first issue is known from Gainé's announcement of it in the N. Y. Merc., Aug. 12, 1754. Although both Hildeburn and Ford were unable to locate a copy, the N. Y. Society Library No. 5, which is dated Wednesday, Sept. 11, 1754.—Early Newspapers, II, 427.

20 Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey addresses the council and general assembly in the council chamber in the city hall, urging a union of the colonies for defence. He desires particularly that this province aid the Virginians against the French and Indians, who have "lately attacked and defeated the British Troops under the Command of Col. Washington, on this Side of the Ohio" (see May 28). He says that "we cannot with any Decency, should this Province be attacked, call upon the other Governments on the Continent, or with Reason expect Assistance from them, unless we now cheerfully throw in our Contributions, to enable the Virginians to repel the French, and drive them out of the Limits of his Majesty's Dominions . . ." He calls attention to the defenceless state of the province: ". . . View the Fortifications of this City, and let your own Eyes inform you what Repairs are necessary, and what other Works wanting to strengthen and defend it." Albany also is exposed and defenceless. Among other things, he advises reviving the Militia Act, with a provision added for forming companies

- 1754 of those exempted by law who are able to bear arms; and to provide arms, etc., to be kept in New York and Albany ready for emergencies.—Assemb. Jour., II: 385. The assembly answered the address on Aug. 22 (q.v.). See, further, Nov. 28.
- Aug. 20 " In a long and detailed account of the attempts made by the Episcopalians to secure a charter for the college, Smith writes: "The . . . Time was now approaching in which the Petitioners for the Charter expected the Grant. The Govt had put them off till the sitting of the Assembly and then all Arts were to be used by him & them to prevail upon the House to recommend or approve the Charter and Invest the Trustees with the Cash raised for a College.—On the 20 August the Assembly were convened.—But their Expectations were most surprizingly disappointed.—Such had been our unwearied Endeavours in the several Counties by Letters and Agents where the Episcopalians have but a slender Influence that no sooner were the County Members come in than the Designs of the Church respecting the College were universally exploded and condemned.—A party College was the most unpopular Thing in the World—All the Town was alive with that subject."—From an original (without date) among the Wm. Smith MSS., in N. Y. Pub. Library, folio 189. See Aug. 23.
- 22 " The general assembly presents an engrossed address to Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, in reply to his speech of Aug. 20 (q.v.). It begins: "We are of Opinion with your Honour, that nothing is more natural and salutary than a Union of the Colonies for their own Defence, and that it is a reciprocal Duty to be aiding and assisting to each other in Case of an Invasion, but these Principles your Honour will not extend to an unlimited Sense, . . ." They point out that the province of New York is now itself most in need of protection. Nevertheless, they assert their readiness to "make such a Provision for the Assistance of our fellow Subjects of Virginia and Pennsylvania, as the Circumstances of the Colony will admit of."—Assemb. Jour., II: 387-88. See March 26, 1755.
- " William Livingston writes to Chauncey Whittlesey of New Haven concerning the college. He says: "It was opened last June [see June 3, and July 17] in the vestry-room of the school-house belonging to Trinity Church. It consists of seven students, the majority of whom were admitted, though utterly unqualified, in order to make a flourish. They meet for morning prayers in the church, and are like to make as great a progress in the liturgy as in the sciences. The doctor's [Samuel Johnson, president of the college] advertisement [see June 3] promises stupendous matters. He is even to teach the knowledge of all nature in the heavens above us. Whether he intends to descend as low as he soars on high, and conduct his disciples to the bottom of Tartarus, he doth not inform the public."—Life of William Livingston, by Theodore Sedgwick, Jr. (N. Y., 1833), 91.
- " Barent Bartheit, in his will of this date, bequeaths to his wife several buildings, including a house and lot fronting on "Huddleston Street." Referring to this property, Pelletreau notes that in 1695 William Huddleston, schoolmaster, and William Greene, bought "two lots on the north side of 'Nassau Street,' . . . with the condition that each was to give a certain number of feet for a 'new street,' this new street is now Gold Street, north of Fulton Street. 'Nassau Street' was afterwards called 'Fair Street,' and now Fulton."—Abstract of Wills, VII: 54, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections.
- 23 " A number of Episcopalians, finding that there is great hostility in the assembly to their petition for a college charter, call on Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, and urge him "to pass the Charter without Delay." Smith writes of this: "But he [the governor] thought it best to defer the Matter till the Heat of the people was a little abated. They then pressed that it might pass the Seals, with so much importunity that he refused it with some Warmth saying, What will you force it upon me!—The News of this Interview affected People very differently. The Bulk of the People were well pleased—pleased beyond Expectation for the Hopes of the Episcopalians were strong & very few Persons knew the pains we had taken to render it unpopular and the success we had reason to promise ourselves. The — of the party Scheme on the other hand roared aloud, and turned on their Fury upon the Govt.—They charged him with Trimming and Insincerity—and said openly that he had at first projected the Design but to preserve his popularity now disappointed them.—There was by this Means a strong party ag<sup>t</sup> him and I believe he met now with a great Blow and made more Enemies than he had at any time since Cosby's Administration.—The prime Conductors of the Petition were prodigiously Chagrined & as is common their Under Agents expressed the Sentiments of their Leaders.—They declared in the open Streets they would never ask the Govt again for a Charter but would go to the King his Master and acquaint the Bishops also of his Conduct especially his Grace of Canterbury who was the Governors only Patron in England.—After a few Days the House adjourned till the 3<sup>d</sup> Tuesday in Oct<sup>r</sup>."—From an original manuscript (without date), entitled "D<sup>t</sup> Acc<sup>o</sup> of the Colles," among the Wm. Smith MSS., folio 189. See Sept. 11.
- " The provincial council is informed by a letter from Gov. Dinwiddie that Col. Washington has been defeated.—Cal. Coun. Min., 395. See July 4.
- " Spring Garden, lying south of Ann St., between Broadway and Nassau St., is partitioned by deed, to which is annexed a plan of the lots. A copy of this plan, made May 12, 1800, is in the Banker Collection (box B-G, folder 71), in N. Y. Pub. Library. See also Jan., 1758. For an historical and topographical account of Spring Garden, see Nov. 1, 1712.
- 29 " The legislature passes an act for paying £5,000 "toward's the Assisting the Colony's of Virginia and Pensilvania to dispose the French and Indians who have Settled and Erected Forts on his Majesty's Lands on the River Ohio and parts Adjacent thereto."—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 98. The contribution was toward the Braddock expedition.—Man. Com. Coun. (1859), 510.
- " During each succeeding year, for a dozen years, the province was heavily taxed to contribute towards the expense involved in the conquest of Canada. The British government reimbursed a portion of the moneys contributed by the colonies; but, however glorious the result, the people of America felt that the great burden fell upon their shoulders. These causes contributed materially in producing the revolution which resulted in the independence of the United States. For a brief summary of such taxation in this province, see ibid. (1859), 510. For a contemporaneous and concised history of the period, see Smith's Continuation of the Hist. of N. Y., in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1830), Vol. V.
- Sept. 1 " The reverend Mr. Whitfield, having returned from Philadelphia on Aug. 31, preaches in the "Presbyterian Meeting" at 5 o'clock before an audience of "near 2000 Persons." He is "extremely pathetick with regard, to the Disturbances, not only on the Frontiers of this Province, but likewise on those of our Neighbour's." Other clergymen in the city speak on the same subject.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 2, 1754. On Sept. 8, Whitfield preached a farewell sermon in New York, intending to start the next day for Boston (ibid., Sept. 9), but on account of bad weather proceeded to Philadelphia instead, "preaching in divers Places as he pass'd along, to large Assemblies."—ibid., Sept. 16, 1754.
- 11 " In a letter to the Rev. Chauncey Graham, at Fish Kills, Dutchess Co., William Smith repeats his account of the efforts of the Episcopalians to get control of the college (see July 5). He adds: "The Eyes of the Dutch begin to be opened and could they be brought Acquainted with the History of that Lust o<sup>r</sup> Domination for which the Church of England has long been remarkable and their Abuse of the Dissenters in England we might hope they would exert themselves in Conjunction with the English Presbyterians to oppose the most distant appearances of an Episcopal Establishment which is aimed at and will in a few Years be the Consequence of their Monopoly of the Grand source of Education."—From original draft among Wm. Smith MSS., folio 189.
- 12 " Hon. Robert Hunter Morris, lieutenant-gouverneur of Pennsylvania, arriving from England, comes on shore "near the Flat-Rock Battery." He is conducted to the house of James Alexander in Broad Street. Gov. Morris's nephew, captain of the Independent Company (which was formerly Governour Clinton's in this garrison), arrives with him.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 16, 1754.
- 20 " Writing to Mr. Miller, member of the provincial assembly from Suffolk, William Smith expresses confidence that the bill creating a free college in New York will pass the legislature because of the popularity of the idea "both in City and Country." He apprehends that the council may oppose it. He says his father has perused the draft of incorporation, which he is now sending to the assemblyman for his examination.—From original draft among Wm. Smith MSS., folio 189.
- " The provincial council issues a warrant to pay Henry Brasier for going express to Virginia.—Cal. Coun. Min., 396.

1754 Thomas Lepper, "Storekeeper to the Glass House Company, Oct. living at their Store on the late Sir Peter Warren's Dock, at the North River, near Mr. Peter Mesiers," advertises all sorts of bottles and other glassware for sale.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 7, 1754. This "Store" was on the Hudson River near Liberty St., and the Glass House was near 35th St.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, Vol. III: 953. Lepper had been a tavern-keeper, his last known tavern venture being the Staten Island ferry-house.—See Nov. 19, 1750. In 1758, Matthew Ernest was advertising bottles, flasks, etc., at "the new erected Glass-House, at Newfoundland, within four Miles of this City."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 30, 1758. The "Glass House" was opened as a tavern and road-house under Edward Agar (see May 30, 1763), who also offered "genteel apartments" to ladies and gentlemen who "chuse to reside in the Country."—N. Y. Merc., Apr. 23, 1764. On April 8, 1766 (q. v.), Matthew Ernest offered the place for sale, and on April 5, 1768, sold off all his farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture by public vendue.—N. Y. Merc., Apr. 4, 1768. John Taylor, having failed of his "Expectations" as an upholsterer, determined to take a hand at tavern-keeping, and opened the Glass House in the spring of 1768 (see May 9, 1768). To encourage patronage, Taylor established a regular stage, which started for the "Glass House" every afternoon at 3 o'clock from the house of "Mr. Vandenberg, Stable-keeper, in the Fields, near St. Paul's."—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 1, 1768. Less than two years later, he was advertising the property for sale or lease.—Ibid., Feb. 5, 1770. Thomas Bayaux, at one time proprietor of the Bulls Head Tavern in the Bowery, succeeded Taylor, and offered country lodging, but notified the public that the house would no longer be "open'd for public entertainment."—Ibid., May 4, 1772. In 1779, when again offered for sale, the property was described as a "pleasant farm, called the Glass-House, Containing thirty acres of land."—Rivingtoot's Royal Gaz., Apr. 10, 1779.

10 Until Christmas, the post between New York and Philadelphia will set out at 8 a. m. Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, arriving at about 5 o'clock in the afternoon of Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday. The notice is signed by "William Franklin, Comptroller, By Command of the D. Postmasters General."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 14, 1754.

14 It is ordered by the common council that a chimney "be made in the Goal over the Library Room" in the city hall.—M. C. C., V: 470. See Grim's Plan, Pl. 32-b, Vol. I, where this room can be identified as that on the north-west corner of the top floor, labelled "Prison for small crimes." The "Library Room" on the floor below was furnished and so designated first in 1730 (see June 27, 1729). For several years prior to 1754, the library had no keeper and the room was otherwise designated by Grim, but the former designation is evidently again in use.—See Oct. 21; also 1756.

" The returns from the various branches of the city's revenue for the past year have been as follows:—ferry rent, £650; dock rent, £380; rent of market stalls, £188; rent of water lots, £126; 3/10; exchange rent, £50; brick yard, £26; land rent, £618; licenses, £182; 6/9; total £1609; 8/7.—Journals of the City Chamberlain, III: 145, deposited with the N. Y. Hist. Soc.

20 Dominic Deronde preaches "an Oratorical passionate Sermon in which he represented in a lively manner the Danger their [the Dutch] Churches were in of Arminianism and the Reasonableness of Instituting a Calvinistic Professor in the Intended College—He moved the Whole Auditory addressed the Consistory & particularly the Members of Assembly 9 of whom were present for the Assembly met the 15th of this Month. This was a Coup de grace to the Charter . . . the Town rung with the Unreasonableness of the Church Claims and Designs respecting the College."—From an original manuscript (without date) entitled "Df Ac<sup>o</sup> of the College," among the Wm. Smith MSS., folio 189.

21 "Notice is hereby given to the Proprietors of the New York Society Library [see April 8] that the books belonging to that Library, lately imported, are placed for the present, by Leave of the Corporation, in their Library Room [see June 27, 1729] in the City Hall; And that the Same will be open twice a week."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 21, 1754.

25 A resolution of the assembly orders that the trustees of the college funds "do, by Friday next, deliver to this House, an Account of what has been done by them, in pursuance of the Powers and Authorities given them by the said Act" (of Nov. 25, 1751, q. v.).—Assemb. Jour., II: 392. See Nov. 1.

A petition of "the Ministers, Elders and Deacons of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church in the City of New-York" is presented to the assembly, setting forth "That as the establishing a College within this Colony for the Instruction of Youth in the liberal Arts and Sciences, has given Rise to various Debates, and is of the utmost Importance to their civil, but more especially to their religious Liberties, they conceive it highly necessary, that they as Guardians of the Ecclesiastical Interest of the Dutch Congregations of this City in particular, and the other Dutch Churches in this Province in general, should by all proper Means endeavour to add to the Privileges and Liberties they have heretofore enjoyed under the auspicious Smiles of the British Government; that a College for the Instruction of Youth, in sound Literature, will be very advantageous in general, but unless Provision be made for a Professor of Divinity for the Benefit of the Dutch Churches in this Country, they will lose a main Advantage thereby (and which they prefer to every other Benefit expected from a publick Seminary of Learning) as the Youth intended for the Ministry, will, without that Privilege, at a vast Expence to the Parents, be obliged to reside several Years in Holland or other foreign Protestant Countries; that the Institution of such a Professor would make the Intended College more numerous and flourishing, as their Youths would thereby be encouraged to the Study of Divinity; that as the Dutch are the greatest Number of any single Denomination of Christians in this Province, it may reasonably be expected, that in all provincial Contributions, they will be the greatest Benefactors of the intended College; and therefore humbly praying, that the honourable House will be favourably pleased, whenever the Matter of the said College comes under Consideration, they may by the Act for incorporating and establishing the same, be entitled to a Divinity Professor with a reasonable Salary, to be nominated by the Ministers, Elders and Deacons of the Dutch Reformed Protestant Church in this City, and that the said Professor may freely and without controul, teach the Doctrines of Faith maintained by their Churches, as established and approved of by the national Synod of Dort, in the Years 1618 and 1619.

"Ordered, That the said Petition be taken into Consideration, when the House proceeds on the Consideration of establishing a College for the Education of Youth within this Colony."—Assemb. Jour., II: 392-93.

The provincial council, William Smith dissenting, approves the draft of a patent to the governors of the college of the province of New York (King's College).—Cal. Coun. Min., 396.

"The Charter of the College of New-York" (King's College) bears this date. For reproduction of the original, engrossed on vellum, and which is still preserved in the archives of Columbia University, see Pl. 37, Vol. IV. The following extracts are taken from the first printed issue, 1754 (see Nov. 14). It is granted in the name of the king, beginning: "George the Second, by the Grace of God, of Great-Britain, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c. To All to whom these Presents shall come, Greeting."

The preamble refers to "divers Sums" which have been raised by lotteries under the provisions of several provincial acts [see Dec. 6, 1746; April 9, 1748; July 4, and Dec. 12, 1753], and appropriated "for the founding, erecting and establishing a College in Our said Government." It recites that Trinity corporation has "set a-part a Parcel of Ground for that Purpose, of upwards of Three Thousand Pounds Value, belonging to the said Corporation, on the West Side of the Broad-Way, in the West-Ward of Our City of New-York; fronting Easterly to Church-Street, between Barclay-Street and Murray-Street, Four Hundred and Forty Foot; and from thence, running Westerly, between and along the said Barclay-Street and Murray-Street, to the North River; And also a Street from the Middle of the said Land, Easterly, to the Broad-Way, of Ninety Foot, to be called Robinson-Street;" and that that corporation has declared it is "ready and desirous, to convey the said Land in Fee, to and for the Use of a College, intended and proposed to be erected and established in Our said Province, upon the Terms of their said Declaration mentioned."

The preamble also recites that the trustees, appointed by the act of Nov. 25, 1751 (q. v.), "esteeming the said Lands offered and set a-part" by Trinity corporation "the most convenient Place for the building, erecting and establishing a College in Our said Province," have petitioned Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, in council (see May 20), for "Letters Patent of Incorporation, for the better

SURVEY BY FRANCIS MAERSCHALCK, C.S., OF MANHATTAN ISLAND BETWEEN 34TH AND 155TH STS., SHOWING THE "DIVISION LINE BETWEEN HARLEM AND NEW YORK COMMONS, 1750. SEE P. 617.

1754
Oct.
31

establishing, erecting and building a College on the said Lands, and the more effectual governing, carrying on, and promoting the same, and instructing of Youth in the Liberal Arts and Sciences."

The terms of the grant, in two paragraphs, follow, thus:

"Wherefore, We being willing to grant the reasonable Request and Desire of Our said loving Subjects; and to encourage the said good Design of promoting a liberal Education among them, and to make the same as beneficial as may be, not only to the Inhabitants of Our said America, Know Ye, That We, considering the Premises, do, of our especial Grace, certain Knowledge, and meer Motion, by these Presents, will, grant, constitute and ordain. That when, and as soon as the said Rector and Inhabitants of the City of New-York, in Communion of the Church of England as by Law established, shall legally convey and assure the said herein before-mentioned Lands, to the Corporation, or Body Politick, erected and made by these Our Letters Patent, that there be erected and made on the said Lands, a College, and other Buildings, and Improvements, for the Use and Conveniency of the same; which shall be called and known by the Name of King's College, for the Instruction and Education of Youth, in the learned Languages, and liberal Arts and Sciences: And that in Consideration of such Grant, to be made by the Rector and Inhabitants of the City of New-York, in Communion of the Church of England, as by Law established, the President of the said College, for the Time being, Shall, forever, hereafter, be a Member of, and in Communion with the Church of England, as by Law established: And that the Governors of the said College and their Successors, for ever, shall be one Body Corporate and Politick, in Deed, Fact and Name; and shall be called, named and distinguished, by the Name of The Governors of the College of the Province of New-York, in the City of New-York, in America: And them, and their Successors, by the Name of, The Governors of the College of the Province of New-York, in the City of New-York, in America, one Body Corporate and Politick, in Deed, Fact and Name, really and fully, We do, for Us, Our Heirs, and Successors, erect, ordain, make, constitute, declare and create, by these Presents; and that, by that Name, they shall and may have perpetual Succession.

"And We do, for Us, Our Heirs and Successors, for the Continuance and better Establishment of the said College, will, give, grant, ordain, constitute and appoint, that, in the said College to be erected and built upon the Lands aforesaid, there shall from henceforth, for ever, be a Body Corporate and Politick, consisting of the Governors of the College of the Province of New-York, in the City of New-York, in America."

The following persons are appointed "Governors:" "The most Reverend Father in God, Our Trusty and Well-beloved Thomas Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, and the most Reverend the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury for the Time being; The Right Honourable Dunk Earl of Halifax, First Lord Commissioner for Trade and Plantations, and the First Lord Commissioner of Trade and Plantations for the Time being; Our now Lieutenant Governor and Commander in Chief of our said Province for the Time being; The eldest Councilor of our said Province, now and for the Time being; The Judges of Our Supreme Court of Judicature of Our said Province, now and for the Time being; The Secretary of Our said Province, now and for the Time being; The Attorney General of Our said Province, now and for the Time being; The Speaker of the General Assembly of Our said Province, now and for the Time being; The Treasurer of Our said Province, now and for the Time being; The Mayor of Our City of New-York, in our said Province, now and for the Time being; the Rector of Trinity-Church, in Our said City of New-York, now and for the Time being; The Senior Minister of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church, . . . ; The Minister of the ancient Lutheran Church, . . . ; The Minister of the French Church, . . . ; The Minister of the Presbyterian Congregation, . . . ; The President of the said College, appointed by these Presents, and the President of the said College for the Time being, to be chosen as hereinafter is directed; and Twenty-four other Persons . . . Archibald Kennedy, Joseph Murray, Josiah Martin, Paul Richard, Henry Cruger, William Walton, John Watts, Henry Beekman, Philip Ver Planck, Frederick Phillips, Joseph Robinson, John Cruger, Oliver De Lancey, James Livingston, Esquires; Benjamin Nicoll, William Livingston, Joseph Read, Nathaniel Marston, Joseph Haynes, John Livingston, Abraham Lodge, David Clarkson, Leonard Lisenpard, and James De Lancey, the younger, Gentlemen."

Oct.
31

The cosmopolitan character of the board of governors is notable; also the fact that it includes the ministers of the different churches. "It is perhaps due to this circumstance that Columbia, almost alone of all the pre-Revolutionary Colleges in the United States, has never had a theological Faculty connected with it."—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 17.

Samuel Johnson, D.D., is appointed by the charter "the first and present President . . . for and during his good Behaviour." He and "the President for the Time being after him, who shall also hold his Office during good Behaviour," shall have "the immediate Care of the Education and Government of the Students."

"The governors of the college, as "a Body Politick and Corporate," are made capable in law "to sue and be sued," etc. They and their successors are given power "to purchase, take, hold, receive, enjoy, and have, any Messuages, Houses, Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, and real Estate, whatsoever, in Fee-simple, or for Term of Life or Lives, or Years, or in any other Manner howsoever, for the Use of the said College: Provided always, the clear yearly Value thereof, do not exceed the Sum of Two Thousand Pounds Sterling: And also, Goods, Chattels, Books, Monies, Annuities, and all other Things of what Nature and Kind soever."

They and their successors have power and authority "to erect and build any House or Houses, or other Buildings, as they shall think necessary or convenient;" and also to dispose of, in any manner, any land, chattel or anything else "as to them shall seem fit, either in the Payment of the Salary or Salaries of the President, Fellows, and Professors of the said College, or any other Officers or Ministers of the same;" excepting that they "shall not do, or suffer to be done . . . any Act or Thing, whereby . . . the Lands set a-part, and offered to be conveyed . . . [by Trinity corporation], for the Use of the College, or any Part thereof, shall be vested, conveyed or transferred to any other Person, contrary to the true Meaning hereof, other than by such Leases as are hereafter mentioned; . . . no Grant or Lease of the said Land, or any Part thereof, shall be made by the said Governors . . . which shall exceed the Number of Twenty-one Years; and that either in possession, or not above three Years before the End and Expiration or Determination of the Estate or Estates in Possession."

On receipt of the letters patent, and before proceeding to any business concerning the college, the governors "except always the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury for the Time being, and Our first Lord Commissioner of Trade and Plantations" shall, at their first meeting, take the oaths appointed by the act of parliament of 1 Geo. I, Chap. 13 (the text of which is found in Pickering, Statutes at Large, XIII: 187; see also Aug. 20, 1715): shall subscribe to the declaration required by the Test Act, 25 Chas. II, Chap. 2 (Pickering, op. cit., VIII: 389; see also March 29, 1673); and also to an oath to execute their trust faithfully. The justices of the supreme court are authorized to administer these oaths to those who become members of the college corporation.

The governors shall meet yearly, on the second Tuesday of May, in New York City. Fifteen or more, being met, shall constitute a quorum. A major part of them shall have power to adjourn "from Day to Day, as the Business of the said College may require." The Archbishop of Canterbury and the "First Lord Commissioner for Trade and Plantations for the Time being" may appoint proxies. If five members of the college corporation shall deem any other meeting or meetings necessary at any other time, they are empowered to direct in writing the clerk of the corporation to give notice of such meeting by an advertisement in one or more newspapers at least seven days before the meeting. The governor of the province, and in his absence the next in rank, or the eldest member of the college corporation, is to preside at meetings.

In case of a vacancy in the presidency, the governors have power and authority, at such meeting or meetings, to "appoint any Person" to be president during good behaviour, provided he is a member of the Church of England; also "to elect one or more Fellow or Fellows, Professor or Professors, Tutor or Tutors, to assist the President," to hold office "at the Will and Pleasure of the Governors of the said Corporation, or during his or their good Behaviour." These shall take the oaths and subscribe to the declaration before mentioned.

1754
Oct.
31

If, in case of death, removal, or refusal to qualify, or any other reason, the place of a governor (not holding the office by reason of some other station or office) becomes vacant, the governors are to elect another in his stead. In case of misdemeanor in the office of president, fellow, professor, or tutor, the governors are given power and authority to suspend or discharge such incumbent, upon complaint in writing, examination, and due proof.

The major part of any fifteen of the governors may and shall appoint, from time to time, a treasurer, clerk, and steward for the college, and determine "their respective Business and Trusts."

They shall "direct and appoint what Books shall be publicly read and taught in the said College, by the President, Fellows, Professors and Tutors."

They shall, "under their Common Seal," make laws for the government of the "College and Students, and Ministers thereof;" but these shall not be repugnant to the laws of England or this province, and shall "not extend to exclude any Person of any religious Denomination whatever, from equal Liberty and Advantage of Education, or from any the Degrees, Liberties, Privileges, Benefits, or Immunities of the said College, on Account of his particular Tenets in Matters of Religion." (This section of the charter was published in the Post-Boy on Nov. 4.) Such "Laws Ordinances and Orders" are, "by these Presents, for Us, Our Heirs and Successors," ratified, confirmed and allowed "as good and effectual, to bind and oblige, all and every the Students and Officers, and Ministers of the said College."

The governors, or the major part of any fifteen or more of them, at any of their meetings, shall put forth such laws, etc., as inflict upon the students "the greater Punishments of Expulsion, Suspension, Degradation and public Confession;" while the president, fellows, and professors, or any of them, shall put forth such laws, etc., as inflict "the lesser Punishments."

The charter next ordains "That there shall be forever hereafter, public Morning and Evening Service, constantly performed in the said College, Morning and Evening, for ever, by the President, Fellows, Professors or Tutors of the said College, or one of them, according to the Liturgy of the Church of England as by Law established; or such a Collection of Prayers out of the said Liturgy, with a Collect peculiar for the said College, as shall be approved of, from Time to Time, by the Governors of the said College, or the major Part of any Fifteen or more of them, convened as aforesaid."

The governors are given power and authority to visit, punish, place, or displace officers or students, and "to order, reform and redress, All, and any the Disorders, Misdemeanors and Abuses in the Persons aforesaid, or any of them," as directed and declared in the charter.

Also, "for the Encouragement of the Students of the said College, to Diligence and Industry in their Studies," the governors are empowered, "by the President of the said College, or any other Person or Persons by them authorized and appointed," to give "any such Degree and Degrees, to any the Students of the said College, or any other Person or Persons by them thought worthy thereof, as are usually granted by any or either of Our Universities or Colleges, in that Part of Our Kingdom of Great Britain, called England." The president, or other person appointed for the purpose, is authorized "to sign and seal Diplomas or Certificates of such Degree or Degrees, to be kept by the Graduates, as a Testimonial thereof."

The college corporation is given a common seal by the charter, under which the governors "shall and may pass, all Grants, Diplomas," etc., and which shall be engraved "in such Form, and with such Devices and Inscription, as shall be agreed upon by the said Governors . . ." and it is made lawful for them, "as they shall see Cause, to break, change, alter and new make the same . . ."

The governors shall appoint "all other Inferior Officers or Ministers, which they shall think convenient and necessary for the Use of the College, not herein particularly named or mentioned," who shall hold their positions during the will and pleasure of fifteen or more of the governors, "convened as aforesaid."

Lastly, the charter, on being entered of record or enrolled, shall be effectual in law, "notwithstanding the not Reciting or Miscirecal, or not Naming or Misnaming of the aforesaid Officers, Franchises, Privileges, Immunities," etc.; and "notwithstanding a Writ ad quod Damnum, hath not issued forth, to enquire of concerning the Premises, or any of them, before the Ensealing hereof: Any Statute, Act, Ordinance or Provision, or any other Matter or Thing to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding."

"In Testimony whereof, we have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our Province of New-York, to be hereunto affixed, and the same to be entered of Record, in Our Secretary's Office, of Our said Province, in one of the Books of Patents there remaining. Witness Our Trusty and Well-beloved James De Lancey, Esq; Our Lieutenant Governor and Commander in Chief, in and over Our Province of New-York, and the Territories depending thereon in America; in, by and with the Advice and Consent of Our Council of Our said Province, this Thirty-first Day of October, in the Year of Our Lord One Thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty-Four, and of Our Reign the Twenty Eighth.

"Clarke, junior."

See also Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 230.

Because "the clamour was so great," the charter was not delivered to the governors of the college until May 7, 1755 (q.v.).—See Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 10, citing Chandler's Life of Johnson.

The conveyance of Trinity's lands to the college was made on May 13, 1755 (q.v.).

In a letter to the governors of King's College, Dr. Johnson accepts the appointment to the presidency, on condition that he shall "be at liberty to retire to some place of safety in the country whenever the small-pox should render it dangerous for him to reside in the city."—Chandler, Life of Samuel Johnson (1805), 92. No copy of the original letter is found with the Johnson Papers at Columbia Univ. The conditional character of Johnson's acceptance of the appointment appears, further, from Barclay's letter to him of Nov. 4 (q.v.).

Estimates and drafts of the fortifications proposed for New York City and adjacent places, are brought from the governor to the assembly.—Assemb. Jour., II: 403.

In response to the order of Oct. 25 (q.v.), William Livingston, one of the trustees of the college funds, delivers his report (signed by him alone) to the assembly. Soon after, Benjamin Nicoll and James Livingston, two of the other trustees under the same act of appointment (see Nov. 25, 1751), present a report signed by John Chambers, Daniel Horsmanden, Edward Holland, James Livingston, Benjamin Nicoll, and Abraham de Peyster,—all the other trustees. It is ordered that the two reports be entered at large "on the Journal of this House."

The latter report, which is entered first, shows that they advertised "that the said Monies [£3,443:18] were to be let to Interest, and have accordingly put out the same, and also the Monies raised by the third Lottery," as shown by a schedule annexed. "They further shew, that an Offer or Proposal, hath been made to them by the Rector and Inhabitants of the City of New-York, in Communion with the Church of England, as by Law established, to give any reasonable Quantity of the Church Farm (which was not let out) for erecting and Use of a College [see May 14]. And the said Trustees further shew, that no Proposal hath been made to them by any other Person, nor any Donation given, to their Knowledge. They further shew, that they have agreed, and ordered, that an Advertisement be published again [see Oct. 8, 1753] in the News Papers, to notify all Persons in arrears for Interest on their Securities, to them, to discharge the same without Delay, or they may expect to have their Bonds put in Suit. And that the Trustees have more Money to let, on the Terms in their former Advertisement mentioned, being great Part of the Money raised by the last Lottery; very lately paid in by the Managers of said Lottery. They have further agreed, and ordered, that particular Letters be wrote to those Persons whose Securities appear in the least dubious, to discharge the same, or give better Security, or that they must expect Suits for the Recovery of what is due from them respectively." The schedule annexed, it is stated, shows "the Amount of the several Lotteries hereinafter mentioned directed to be paid unto the Trustees for erecting a College . . ." It shows, first, a list of bonds, and one mortgage (and bond), 11 securities in all, ranging in value from £143:18 to £500, and totalling £3,443:18, to which are added two bonds and one mortgage (and bond), making a complete total of £4,493:18.

This is followed by a statement of returns from the several lotteries, thus:

Oct.
31

Nov.

"

"

1754	"1747 By the Total of the second,	£. 1930	18	o
Nov.	By ditto of the third,	1513	o	o
1		£. 3443	18	o
1754,	By ditto of the fourth, £. 997	15	6
1755,	By do. of the fifth in Part, 923	1	o
		1920	16	6
1753,
November 22,	By Interest,	35	o	o
April 10,	By do. £. 14 1754, May 27,	28	o	o
	By do. £. 14
July 14,	By ditto,	14	o	o
December 1,	By ditto,	21	o	o
December 3,	By ditto,	14	o	o
December 6,	By ditto,	21	o	o
		£. 5497	14	6"

William Livingston's report covers about six folio pages of the printed Assembly Journal. He announces that, at a trustees' meeting on Oct. 30, he protested against the incompleteness of the majority report; because it did not contain "the whole of the Proceedings of the said Trustees, in pursuance of the Act . . . ; and particularly a certain Petition [see May 20, 1754] preferred by the said Trustees to his Honour the Lieutenant Governor, for a Charter of the said College, and the said William Livingston's Protest against the said Charter and Petition." He prefaces his report with a logical explanation of his reasons for making it. The report itself is a review of the transactions of the trustees. He mentions the advertisement ordered by the trustees on Jan. 12 and published in the Post-Boy of Jan. 20, 1752 (q.v.). For the financial results of their efforts, he refers to the schedule attached to the Nov. 1 report of the other trustees (vide supra). He then refers to the order of land made by Rev. Henry Barclay for the vestry of Trinity Church to the trustees on April 8, 1752 (q.v.). He next makes reference to the letters written to Rev. Dr. Johnson and Mr. Whittlesey, and their replies (see Nov. 22, 1753; Feb. 11 and 21, and May 9, 1754), inviting them to come as "President," and "second Master," respectively. Finally, he reviews the proceedings of the trustees of May 16 and 20, 1754 (q.v.), concerning the presenting to the lieutenant-governor, for his approval, the draft of a charter; and he concludes his report with his extended protest of "twenty Reasons," dated May 16, and considered by the trustees in their meeting of May 20, 1754 (q.v.).—Assemb. Jour., II: 306-402.

The assembly ordered that the two reports be taken into consideration on Nov. 6.—Ibid., II: 402. On that day, it was "Resolved, Nemine Contradicente, That this House will not consent to any Disposition of the Monies raised by Way of Lottery, for erecting and establishing a College, within this College for the Education of Youth or any Part thereof, in any other Manner whatsoever, than by Act or Acts of the Legislature of this Colony, hereafter to be passed for that Purpose."

At the same session of the assembly (Nov. 6), Capt. Robert Livingston, a member of the assembly from Livingston Manor, moved "for Leave to bring in a Bill, further to establish and to incorporate a College within this Colony [see De Lancey's charter grant of Oct. 31], for the Education and Instruction of Youth in the liberal Arts and Sciences." It was ordered "That Leave be given accordingly."—Ibid., II: 404. See Nov. 6, for Livingston's bill.

For the Rev. Henry Barclay's and Mr. Benjamin Nicoll's views of the proceedings of Nov. 1, see Nov. 4.

David Provost and others petition the common council for a contribution toward buying a house and lot adjoining the passage from Bayard (now Stone) St. to Mill St., as they desire to widen this passage into a street. They explain "That at present the only passage thro Mill Street Commonly Called the Jews Ally is a Narrow Ally of about four feet wide from the upper end of the Said Street to Duke Street and that for want of a more convenient Passage and [sic] to the Said Mill Street of a sufficient Breadth to admit the passing of Carts and other Carriages the Inhabitants of y<sup>e</sup> Said Street Labour under many and Great Inconveniences Nor would The Petitioners only reap the Convenience of a Passage Through the S<sup>d</sup> Street but it would as they Conceive be of General Utility and more especially to the Carmen as furnishing them with a much Shorter and better way for Carriage many Goods which they are [at] present obliged to carry round either through Duke Street or Princes Street." The petition further recites "That the Inhabitants and proprietors of the Houses and Lotts in the Said Mill Street have now an Opportunity of purchasing at a very reasonable price a House and Lott of Ground adjoining to the Said Small Ally which they conceive to be the most proper place for opening a good Passage into the Said Street as it adjoins to the Head thereof." They add "that the removal of the Said House would be a great and Singular Advantage in Case of a Fire at the upper end of the Said Mill Street of which this City has had a recent Proof in the Danger and Extremity to which the Neighbourhood was reduced for want of a free Passage on the Like melancholy Occasion." The petitioners, only six in number, have contributed £205 for the purpose and need £77:11 to supply the deficiency. This they ask the common council to grant. It is ordered that £50 be "allowed and paid to the said petitioners this Day three years; provided they will Convey to this Corporation . . . the Ground mentioned in the Said petition to be and Remain a free and publick Street to and for the Inhabitants of the Said City for Ever."—M. C. C., V: 475-76.

On April 9, 1755, the mayor "produced to this Board the Releases of David Provost, Cornelius Clopper, Mathias Earnest, and Elias De[s]j[bro]sses" and others "of the House Joining the alley Leading from Bayards Street to Mill Street, for the use of a Publick way or Street for Ever, for the Consideration of fifty Pounds to be paid to them, the first of November 1757," and it was ordered that the releases be recorded in the books of City Grants, and that the mayor execute a bond for the payment of the £50.—Ibid., VI: 8-9. On June 20, 1759, the city paid the amount to the bondsmen.—Ibid., VI: 176. The passage, widened according to these provisions, is now Mill Lane.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1006.

The common council repeats the fifth clause of the "Law for paving & Cleansing the Streets Lanes and Alleys . . . and for preventing Nuisances." This clause relates to encumbrances. Instead, it is now provided that "if any person or persons what Soever Shall Encumber any of the Streets Wharfs or peers of this City with boards, planks, Staves, Dungs, pitch, Tar Turpentine, Grin Stones, anchors, or any kind of Lumber or Timber," for more than eight days, he will be fined 50 shillings for each offence.—M. C. C., V: 476-77. For summary of earlier provisions relating to encumbrances, etc., see Dec. 31, 1675.

An amendment is passed by the common council to the first clause of the "Law to prevent Strangers from being a Charge to this Corporation" (see April 22, 1731), the new provision requiring that the master of a vessel shall, within two hours after arrival, report to the mayor, recorder, or the alderman of the ward where the master shall land, the names of all passengers or strangers whom he brings into port.—M. C. C., V: 476. For an early ordinance of this character, see Jan. 20, 1676.

Rev. Henry Barclay writes to Rev. Dr. Samuel Johnson, the president of the college, reviewing the assembly transactions of Nov. 1 (q.v.), including William Livingston's submission of a separate report, "containing his famous Protest, etc." He continues: "This occasioned a great ferment in the House, and issued for that day in a resolve that Livingston's Report should be printed at large, and the affair postponed to farther consideration on Wednesday next [Nov. 6, q.v.]. They had a majority of fourteen to eight, but three of our friends were absent, and it was with much difficulty that they were prevented from censuring the conduct of the Trustees and returning thanks to Livingston. We were all afraid that this would have retarded the Sealing of the Charter, and some well wishers to the thing would have consented to the retarding of it, had not the Governor appeared resolute and come to town on Saturday [Nov. 2] and fixed the Seal to it [see also Post-Boy, Nov. 4, to same effect]; and to do him justice, he has given us a good majority of Churchmen, no less than eleven of the Vestry being of the number. There are but eight of the Dutch Church, most of them good men and true, and two Dissenters. We are, however, puzzled what to advise you as to resigning your mission [at Stratford, presumably]. I have been with Mr. Chambers this morning, and thought it be the opinion of most of the gentlemen that you ought to resign and trust to Providence for the issue of things and come away immediately, yet we would rather choose, if possible, that you should put off the resignation 1754 for a fortnight or three weeks, and come down immediately, because some are not so clear with regard to the £500 support [see Nov. 4, 1753], though others think we cannot be deprived of it. But since this conversation with Mr. Chambers we have had some glimmering light. I went from Mr. Chambers' to Mr. Watts' . . . , and met two Dutch members coming out of his house, who, as he told me, came to make proposals for an accommodation, and all they desired was a Dutch Professor of Divinity, which, if granted, they would all join us, and give the money. This I doubt not will be done unless the Governor should oppose it, who is much incensed at the Dutch for petitioning the Assembly on that head, but I make no doubt but he may be pacified . . . The whole number [of governors] is forty-one: seventeen ex officio and twenty-four private gentlemen, in which number there are at present but eight of the Dutch Church, the French, Lutheran, Presbyterian Ministers, and Will. Livingston,—so that we have a majority of twenty-nine to twelve, and in these twelve are included Mr. Richards, John Cruger, Leonard Lispenard, and the Treasurer, all our good friends."—Hist. of Columbia Univ., 7-8, citing Beardsley's Life of Johnson.

Nov.
1

4

Another explanation of the proceedings which determined what the charter provisions should be is contained in an anonymous pamphlet, the title-page of which reads: A Brief Vindication of the Proceedings of the Trustees Relating to The College. Containing A Sufficient Answer to The Late Famous Protest, with its Twenty Unanswerable Reasons. By an Impartial Hand. New-York: Printed and Sold by H. Gaine, at the Printing-Office in Queen-Street, between the Fly and Meal-Markets, 1754. The author was Benjamin Nicoll, a lawyer of distinction in New York, one of the trustees named in the act of Nov. 25, 1751 (q.v.), and one of the governors named in the charter (Oct. 31); he was a vestryman of Trinity Church and stepson of the Rev. Dr. Johnson.—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 12. Referring to William Livingston's papers in the Independent Reflector (see March 22, 1753), he says: ". . . The Drift and End of those Papers, I clearly perceived by this Time, was, to set the different Sects of Christians, at Variance with the Church of England, and to embarrass and obstruct the Affair of the College, as much as was possible; that in the Interim, the favourite College of New-Jersey, founded on a Scheme, agreeable to his own Sentiments, and vigorously prosecuted at Home and Abroad, might take such Root, as not easily to be hurt by any Thing that could afterwards be done in this Government, even though we all should join in erecting a College here. . . . The Members of the Vestry of Trinity-Church, (who, as several of them assured me, at first, thought of no such Thing) finding with what Warmth and unbecoming Zeal, they were attacked, and that this Writer was not only stirring up all the other Sects of Christians against them; but also was endeavouring entirely to banish Religion from the College, as much as in his lay: They then thought it their Duty, as Christians, and in Justice to their Constituents, to take at least some Care, that they did not part with the Lands they were intrusted with, unless for Interest of Religion; and therefore, I must say, I think wisely, came to this Resolution, viz. That they [Trinity corporation] would not part with their Lands, but upon the Conditions since mentioned in the Charter. The Vestry of that Church (as one of the Trustees [of the college], whose Veracity I can depend upon, assures me) acquainted the Trustees with this Resolution. Thus I have stated the Fact, as to this Transaction of the Members of the Vestry of Trinity-Church, as the same truly happened; and are the only Steps that I have heard, or is pretended, have been taken by them, in order to obtain a Charter; and thus much I thought necessary to relate, that it might clearly appear, how far they are to be blame, and whether there was any Reason to sound the Trumpet against the Church, whatever there may be against a few particular Members of it. [p. 5.]

. . . I must beg Leave to observe, the extreme Fairness of his [Wm. Livingston's] Proceedings, in wisely setting up a Man of Straw, a meer Chimera and Imagination of his own over-heated Brain, which he has pleased to call, Trinity-Church-College [see May 20], which Thing, or Being, is I am certain, no where to be found, on the Face of the Earth; A Notion which, I think, it is impossible could have been introduced for any other End, than to raise a Clamour and Noise against the Members of that Church, as though they were ingrossing, and had actually taken into their Hands, the sole Government of a College, that then did not, nor ever will, I believe, exist; whether this was acting the Part of a Man of Candour and Honour, I shall leave others to judge."—Nov. 4 (p. 8.) Nicoll then answers Livingston's twenty "unanswerable Reasons" (see May 20). (pp. 9-12.) Presumably, his Vindication made its appearance about the middle of November.

"Mr. Livingston" (Capt. Robert Livingston of the Manor of Livingston) introduces a bill in the assembly, as permitted on Nov. 1 (q.v.), entitled "An Act, further to establish and to incorporate a College within this Colony, for the Education and Instruction of Youth in the liberal Arts and Sciences." It had its second reading the next day, and was "committed to a Committee of the whole House."—Assemb. Jour., II: 404. On Nov. 26, when the bill was "to be the Subject of this Day's Deliberations," further consideration of it was postponed to the next meeting, on motion of Capt. Walton, who said the bill was "of the utmost Consequence to the People we have the Honour to represent, with Respect both to their religious and civil Liberties, and the Season of the Year being so far advanced, as not to admit of so much Time, as will be necessary to consider all the Parts of it, with that Attention its vast Importance requires." The house ordered that, in the mean time, it be printed by the public printer, James Parker.—Ibid., II: 412-19. It is printed in the Journal of the assembly of the same date.

This bill, which William Livingston was the author, is an extended amplification and modification of the terms of the college charter (see Oct. 31), and embodies the points raised by Livingston in his recommendations published in the Independent Reflector the year before (see March 22, 1753). Nothing further appears to have been done with the bill; it being evidently supplanted by further measures to raise money for the college by lottery (see Dec. 7, 1754), and by The Additional Charter of 1755 (see May 30, 1755). See also Dec., 1754.

It is worthy of note, also, in this connection, that the names of the dignitaries, officials, and gentlemen, appointed by the charter as governors (see Oct. 31) were placed on record in a document of this date, endorsed "Names for Gov<sup>rs</sup> of Kings College," which is now preserved in the State Library, Albany (Col. MSS., LXXXIX: 90).

The provincial council at New York considers letters relating to the campaign against the French on the Ohio and the Kennebec, and refers them to the assembly; also one from the lords of trade relating to a general union of the colonies (see June 19 and Aug. 9), which is likewise referred.—Cal. Coun. Min., 396-97.

The provincial council orders that the charter for King's College be printed.—Cal. Coun. Min., 397. Four days later, its publication was announced by the following advertisement: "Just published and to be sold at the New-Printing-Office in Beaver Street Price one Shilling and three pence covered with Marble-Paper; and one Shilling in blue Paper.

"The Charter of the College of New-York in America: Printed by Order of his Honour the Lieutenant Governor, in Council.

"Also, to be sold at the same Place, Price Nine Coppers, "The three Sheets of the Votes of the General Assembly, wherein is contained the Reports of the Trustees appointed to receive the Monies raised for the College in this Colony."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 18, 1754.

The title-page of the printed charter reads: The Charter of the College of New-York, in America. Published by Order of His Honour the Lieutenant Governor, in Council. New-York: Printed and Sold by J. Parker and W. Weyman, at the New Printing-Office in Beaver-Street, MDCCLIV.

The provincial council grants a patent to Rodman and Woolley for a ferry between New Rochelle and Sands Point, L. I.—Cal. Coun. Min., 397.

De Lancey, in a written message to the assembly, states that he has lately received a letter from the lords commissioners for trade and plantations, "In which," he says, "after observing the Unreasonableness of the Assembly's meddling in the executive Part of Government, and the Propriety of allowing all publick Money to be drawn out of the Treasury by Warrant of the Governor and Council only, agreeable to his Majesty's Instructions; their Lordships take Notice, that as it is a Point insisted on by you, that the Revenue, even for Services of a permanent Nature, should be granted only from Year to Year, they are afraid that this Reserve of granting the Revenue only annually, may, from Time to Time, revive the Pretensions of the Assembly to a Share in the executive Part of the Government, since such annual Grants may be annually

1754 employed to the Purposes of wresting from the Crown the Nomina-
Nov. tion of all Officers, whose Salaries depend upon the annual Appoint-21 ment of the Assembly; and of disappointing all such Services of Government as may be necessary, even to the very Existence of the Colony." De Lancey presents an argument in support of this position of the British government.—Assemb. Jour., II: 409.

On Nov. 25, the assembly replied to the message by saying they had no inclination to encroach "on any of his Majesty's just and rightful Prerogatives, or to endeavour to wrest out of his royal Hands, any Part of the executive Powers of Government, by the Nomination and Appointment of Officers, or in any other Respect whatsoever." They added: "But as we humbly conceive, the Method of an annual Support is no Invasion of any of his Majesty's Prerogatives, and is a Method, which not only we, but our neighbouring Colonies have, and do enjoy; we humbly beg Leave, to declare to your Honour, that in Faithfulness to the People of this his Majesty's loyal Colony, we can by no Means recede from it."

—Ibid., II: 411-12. These and other statements in the assembly's reply evince the determined resistance, already grown strong, to Great Britain's efforts to divert the colonies of these powers of local self-government. See April 15, 1741. See also Becker, "Hist. of Political Parties in the Prov. of N. Y., 1760-1776," in Bulletin of Univ. of Wisconsin, No. 286, History Series, Vol. II, No. 1.

A joint committee from the two houses having been appointed to consider the model of a floating battery, invented and exhibited by Capt. Morke, report that they consider it "an ingenious Invention," but more calculated to be employed against fortresses on land, where it can be anchored in shallow water, than in deep water.—Assemb. Jour., II: 408.

25 Dr. Johnson writes to his son that the assembly has not yet approved the money for the college, but that hopes are entertained that a bill "which gives us the money & at the same time provides for a Dutch professor" will secure enough votes of the Dutch members to ensure passage. If not, they will raise money by subscription to "answer the End for the present." It is said by the mayor, Johnson states: "that I am to have £125 paid me this week.—I believe I must send my final Resolution next post to resign.—But the Reflectors [see Mar. 22, 1753] you see have got Gain[e] to print for them & are got to scribbling again." He expresses a desire to have his "Desk & Book Case & Books to it" and a few other things sent to him.—Johnson Papers (MS.).

Hugh Gainé begins publishing, in The New-York Mercury, a numbered series of weekly political essays entitled "The Watch-Tower." These continued through Nov. 17, 1755 (No. 52). The N. Y. Hist. Soc. has Nos. 1 to 6. Hildeburn says that the series was issued also separately; but Ford found none in separate form, excepting No. 53 (Jan. 16, 1756), which appeared as a broadside.—
Early Newspapers, II: 429. Reference is made to "The Watch-Tower" in the first issue of John Englishman (see April 9, 1755).

28 In a message to the assembly, Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, answering an address of the house, points out "The ruinous Condition of the Fortifications, the Necessity of repairing them, and of erecting others." He also states: "The Paper Money in this Province hath fallen very little in its Value, and held its Reputation, so that Twenty Shillings, passes now equal to Eight or Nine Pounds, of the Bills of some other Provinces, owing in a good Measure to the solid Funds upon which the Bills of this Colony were emitted." He therefore recommends passing a bill "with a suspending Clause," for emitting £40,000, "to be sunk by a Tax of Five Thousand Pounds a Year, on Estates real and personal, to commence in the Year 1757, when the present Taxes will cease.
The Bills to be declared not legal Tender for Debts contracted in Great-Britain. As this Fund would sink the Bills in eight Years, which is no long Period, I am persuaded they would keep up their Credit, and be readily received in all Payments."—Assemb. Jour., II: 420-21.

"The Mail being frequently delay'd in passing the New-York-Bay," notice is given that only two trips a week will be made hereafter.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 28, 1754.

Dec. A manuscript without date among the Wm. Smith papers has — the indorsement: "D<sup>r</sup> of Protest intended to have been made by Mess<sup>rs</sup> Alexander and Smith [see May 30] in case the College Bill in Dec<sup>r</sup> 1754 came up from the House and was rejected by the Council." It reads:

"Being Deeply sensible of the Importance of the Trust reposed in us by his Majesty for the maintenance of the Just Rights and prerogatives of his Crowne—the Rights and Liberties of his Subjects both civil and religious and the General Good and prosperity of this province We have thought fit for the Justification of our Conduct to Declare the Necessity we are under to Dessent to the major Vout of this house in rejecting this Bill for the reasons following to wit

"Because it appears to us.

"1st That there are But two ways of Establishing a publick College or Seminary for the Instruction of our youth in the Liberal Arts & Sciences One by Charter the Other by Act of Legislation—
That a Charter College tho in its first Establishment formed to advance the public Good Yet in the very nature of it's Constitution cannot be so stable but that by additional Clauses in future Charters or by Surrender or forfeiture it may be Subject to frequent Modulation in New Grants and by the Interest of a few made in future times a public Grievance and prove Greatly Injurious to the Civile Rights and Liberties of the greatest part of the people

"2<sup>d</sup> That the Charter Lately Granted is not only Liable to this in Convenience but by it's excluding every Denomination of protestants (Who are not in Communion with the Church of England) from the president Ship of the said College and the Imposing a Liturgy for Divine Service without the Consent of the Legislature of this province is Dangerous to the Honour and peace of his Majesty's Government an Invasion of the Civil & Religious Rights and Liberties of his people and Inconsistent with the present Quiet and ease of his Majesties Subjects and the pleasures [omission] and Prosperity of this Province and pregnant with all those Mis-chiefs and Inconveniences and many more than are Contain [sic] in our Protestation and Dessent to the Grant of the prayer of the Petition for that Charter enterd in the minutes of Council of the Thirteenth of May Last

"3<sup>d</sup> Upon perusal of the said Charter since it was printed and published That in the Constitution of it's powers Rights and Remedies for Injuries it is extremely Deputive and in Divers respects Contradictions Inconsistent & Inadequat to the Ends proposed and is Calculated to serve the particular times and Designs of Scarce one Eighth part of the people of this province with [omission] Injustice & Oppression to the use.

"4th That according to the maxims of sound Policy founded on the General Good of the Whole Community no College can be erected within this province that is not agreeable to the sense and mind of the People and the Rejection of this Bill will probably tend to Defeat this Design and prevent the Erection and support of a provincial College among us by any act of Legislation

"5th That the Public money already raised by acts of Legislature for the maintenance and Support of a College within this Province Cannot be applied to that purpose without the Consent of all the Branches of the Legislature and the rejection of this Bill tends to Lead the House of Representatives to ? the application of the money first raised and intended for a College within this Province to public use in Some other way to the utter Ruin of the first Design—

"6th That the Design of the Bill brought up by the House of Representatives is intirely free from all the Objections aforesaid and is formed to Establish a free College for the Education and Instruction of our Youth in the Liberal Arts and Sciences without any Exclusive Clauses or religious tests or Imposition or the least Violation of the Rights of Conscience and private Judgment in matters that Consen the Worship of God and is calculated to secure an equal Rights to all protestants of every Denomination to Collegiate officers and Preferment provided they are found in other respects Sufficiently Qualified for the Discharge of those officers which is a Temperament well suited to the present State and Condition of this province and so well adapted to the Known Equity and Justice of his majesties most Gracious Disposition and the Wisdom and Policy of the present Government in Great Britain and the Common Good of all the people of this Province of whom at Least Seven Eighths will not be pleased with any other form of Constitution

"7th That the passing of the Said Bill into the Law will remove the Jealousies of the people already raised preserve the Union [that] at Present happily Subsists among the Several Branches of the Legislature tend to Lead the House of Representatives [omission] they said their Civil and religious Liberties safe [omission] to think of ways and means to fortify this province against

1754 support the Common Enemy and be an inducement to them Cheerfully to
 Dec. the King's Majesties Government and to pass good and wholesome laws for his majesty's Service & the promotion of the General Good of the Whole Community and Establish a Lasting peace Tranquillity harmony and Good Agreement amongst his majesty's Subjects of the Several protestant Denominations within this province Whereas the rejecting of this Bill in Order to make way for the Establishment of a College by the Charter lately Granted and an attempt to Draw the Public money raised by the several acts of this province to the erecting and Support of that Charter College in opposition to the minds of the people as Declared by their Representatives in the present Bill will probably be attended with quite Contrary Effects wherefore We dissent to the vote for the Erecting [rejecting] of this Bill.—From the original among the Wm. Smith MSS., folio 189.

2 Dr. Johnson writes to his son "that the Reflectors [see Nov. 25] have made such a Stir among the Dutch that it was not tho't advisable to try for a vote of the Assembly this Session, so that that is postponed till the next. . . . Mean time it is resolved to have a Subscription to begin with & doubtless money enough will be got twice told to build a presidents house which will begin early in Spring [see July 21, 1755]. And as to my Security, the Trustees resolve to meet this week & confirm what they did before, nothing doubting but the 500 p<sup>r</sup> an<sup>m</sup> is in their power & unalterably at their Disposal for my Support.—Johnson Papers (MS.).

5 Wm. Wood, "The Albany Post," advertises that he sets out on the 17th for Albany "from his House on Thurmao's-Dock."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 5, 1754. "The post," as used in these early records, was synonymous with mail-carrier, and not with post-office or mailing system. See also April 6, 1733; and "Thurmao's Slip Market-Place" in De Voe's Market-Book, 260-63.

7 An act is passed for raising £1,125 by public lottery "for a further Provision towards founding a College for the advancement of Learning within this Colony." Abraham van Wyck and Abraham Leynsen are appointed managers of this lottery; and the methods for conducting it appear to be the same as those prescribed in previous acts for this object (see Dec. 6, 1746; April 9, 1748; July 4, and Dec. 12 1753). These provide that, if all the 5,000 tickets are not sold by the first Tuesday in June, 1755, the money received for the tickets sold shall be returned, and the lottery shall be void.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 1027. See June 30, and Aug. 14, 1755.

" The legislature appoints Francis Maerschalck and Cornelius Clopper, Jr., commissioners for collecting the excise duty from retailers of liquor in New York City.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 1000-8. This act amended a previous statute appointing the mayor, recorder, and aldermen as commissioners of the excise.—See Dec. 12, 1753.

" The Militia Act of Feb. 27, 1746 (q. v.), is continued by an act of the legislature, which makes this slight alteration: The former act required "that the Dress of the Troopers of the City of New York when they appear in Arms Shall be Red," but it is now enacted that their dress when under arms "Shall be Blue."—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 1016. The next complete act for regulating the militia was passed Feb. 19, 1755 (q. v.).

17 Gov. Shirley, having laid before Benjamin Franklin a new plan of colonial union (cf. June 19), which provided for a colonial congress and British taxation, Franklin sends letters to Shirley, on Dec. 17, 18, and 22, giving his reasons for disapproving of the plan.—Works of Benj. Franklin (Sparks ed.), III: 56-68.

" Joseph Murray, chairman of the committee of the council, appointed by Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey on Jan. 31 to consider the controverted boundary line between New York and New Jersey, makes an extended report to him. This was printed and sold by Parker, by order of the lieutenant-gouverneur, 1754.—See copy in N. Y. Pub. Library.

" Orders are issued by the governour and council that the ship "Neptune," recently arrived from Rotterdam with Palatines, be removed from Rotten Row to Turtle Bay for quarantine.—Cal. Coun. Min., 397.

The provincial council also orders that French subjects are to leave the city.—Ibid.

20 Fire breaks out in the city hall, but is overcome without doing any considerable damage.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 23, 1754.

24 The council orders that cannon be lent to Gov. Shirley on his demand.—Cal. Coun. Min., 397.

Some time prior to this year, the Friends' meeting-house was erected on Liberty St., 40 ft. west of Liberty Pl.; the congregation coming to this site from its first location, on Liberty Pl. See Pl. 34, Vol. I. This building was demolished in or about 1802.—Greenleaf, Hist. of the Churches, 116-17; cf. Liber Deeds, LXXVI: 431 (New York). See 1802; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 928; Pl. 174, Vol. III.

Some time prior to this year, the sugar-house of John van Cortlandt and George Petterson was erected, at the north-west corner of Trinity churchyard, on the line of the present Church St., south of Thames St.—See Pl. 34, Vol. I. The partnership was dissolved on or about Jan. 17, 1757.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 17, 1757 (in archives of the Hist. Soc. of Penn., Phila.). The building was gutted by fire Nov. 3, 1769 (q. v.). An advertisement of 1802 showed it to be opposite No. 40 Thames St.—N. Y. Gaz., Feb. 19, 1802. It is said to have been demolished in 1852.—Wilson, Mem. Hist. of N. Y., III: 301. The same authority states that it was used as a prison during the Revolution but it has not been possible to substantiate this statement. The only sugar-house used as a prison seems to have been Livingston's, on Liberty St.—See 1769; 1777; Oct. 11 and 12, 1777.

Some time prior to this date, Nicholas Bayard erected a windmill on his land, the present location of which would be on the west side of the Bowery, about 100 ft. north of Canal St. It appears first on the Maerschalck Map of 1755 (Pl. 34, Vol. I). It was still standing in July, 1776.—N. Y. Gaz., July 29, 1776; cf. Liber Mortgages, III: 97 (New York). See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 961.

Before this year, Rodman's or Burling's Slip was again called Lyons Slip. See Pl. 34, Vol. I; see also Aug. 9, 1692; 1730; May 5, 1736; Aug. 13, 1761; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 988; Pl. 174, Vol. III.

In this year, New York Province was described as "the principal frontier against Canada," and said to be "provided with no very strong fort in the capital, and wants some to secure the entrances of its harbour . . . . The advantageous situation of the city of New York, . . . marks it for the capital of the English governments on the American continent. The number of inhabitants in this colony, in 1732, was taken by the constables of every town, parish, or district; and they were found to be near 65,000. At the same time the houses in the city were counted by the alderman of each respective ward, and they were found to be something under 1500. Since that time the town has increased in wealth and inhabitants. Many families removed to it from Albany, and the frontiers, in the late French war; yet, by losses from the Indians and French in the exposed back settlements; by the Cartagena expedition, enlistments, presses, and privateering the natural increase of the colony was in some measure retarded by that war. It has received little foreign increase since; and the redundancy on Long Island, forced out by the barrenness of its inland parts, mostly removed to New Jersey. So that allowing to the city of New York as many inhabitants as are allowed to Boston; and supposing the whole colony at present to be 100,000, that number will be fully adequate." The writer goes on to say that Philadelphia is New York's only rival for superiority, but the fact that the former's harbour is frozen up "nigh three months" of the year must give New York the preference. In 1749, the houses in every ward of Philadelphia "were counted exactly by a set of courteous gentlemen, the united sum was 2076 private ones, and 11 houses of worship [see Oct. 12, 1750]. In the description written under a very handsome prospect of it, taken in 1753 [the Nicholas Scull View], the number of houses are said to be nigh 2300. It is therefore certain that it can't far exceed Boston or New York in people."—State of the British and French Colonies in No. Am. (London, 1755), 19, 134-35.

In this year, G. Duyckinck published "A Plan of the City of New York from an actual Survey Anno Domini M,DCC,LV," by F. Maerschalck, City Surveyor." This plan, which shows the fortifications built in 1745, during the war with France, was printed from the original copper-plate of the Bradford Map, extended and very much altered. Among other features, it shows the part of the Trinity Church farm, which lay north of Fulton St., on the west side of Broadway, already laid out into lots. cf. Man. Com. Coun. (1865), 536. It is reproduced and described in Vol. I, Pl. 34. The Library of Congress contains a manuscript plan of the 1755 north-east section of New York drawn during the period 1755-7, showing the Rutgers house, the Bayard and De Lancey estates, and many interesting topographical and other features. This drawing is reproduced and described in Vol. I, Pl. 36-a. Plate 36-b reproduces an original survey of approximately the same territory, dated Sept. 17, 1757, belonging to the N. Y. State Library.

The negroes' burial-ground, east of Broadway, north of the present Chambers St., and extending to an indefinite eastern limit near the Fresh Water Pond, is first shown and named on the Maerschalek Map of 1755 (Vol. I, Pl. 34). Undoubtedly, however, negroes executed near Fresh Water, in connection with the Negro Plot of 1741 (q.v.), were buried here. Later, this burial-place became a general pottersfield. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 927. The negroes' quarters in 1639 were on the East River opposite Blackwell's Island.—See the Manatus Map, Pl. 42 (F), and II: 207.

About this year, a block-house was erected at the southern extremity of the island, within the present limits of Battery Park, as shown on Pl. 34, Vol. I.

On the laying out of Banker Street (now Madison Street) in 1755, the rear of the Jews' burial-ground was extended to it. When, after the Revolution, Fayette Street (now Oliver Street) was opened, that part of the burial-ground which extended across this street was taken; and when, at the beginning of the nineteenth century, Chatham Square was regulated and paved, a part of the front of the burial-ground was taken. There is no absolute proof that this was the original burial-ground which was first granted to the Jews in 1656 (q.v.), but there is a likelihood that the Dutch grant of 1656 was in this locality. There is proof of a purchase here in 1682 (q.v.). The burial-place was enlarged in 1729 (see Dec. 17, 1729), and thus gradually was altered in size and shape. It remained, with few material alterations, until 1823, "when the Congregation Shearith Israel, the Mill Street Synagogue, applied to Chancellor Kent for liberty to sell the part fronting on Chatham Square, 45 feet to the depth of 88 feet,"—which, being granted, it was accordingly sold to the Tradesmen's Bank for $15,000. Mr. Daly says: "How or in what way this Congregation obtained or could convey any title to it, does not appear."—Daly, Settlement of the Jews in No. Am. (1895), 43; see, however, on this point, Mr. Oppenheim's letter, under Dec. 17, 1729. Referring to its later history, Daly says: "Finally, a few years ago, the Hovery was extended through what remained of it, and all that is now left is the small enclosure fronting the New Bowery, before referred to." See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, II: 927.

In this year, according to Edmund Burke, the export of flaxseed from New York Province to Ireland amounted to 12,528 hogsheads. He wrote that the inhabitants numbered between 80,000 and 100,000. The condition of the lower class was easy; the better class was rich and hospitable. The entrance of foreigners was rendered easy by a general toleration of all religious persuasions.—An Account of the European Settlements in America, II: 185.

A report states that there have been no census returns for the province of New York since 1738, but according to the best accounts the white population numbers 55,000, of whom 12,000 are capable of bearing arms. The total white population of the British Colonies in America is 1,062,000.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 993. This statement is erroneous, as census figures exist for 1746 and 1749.—See June 4, 1746; May 10, 1749.

Walter Rutherford, in 1800, recorded that in 1755 the number of houses in New York was 2,200.—Rutherford, Family Records and Events, 198. See also the Banker MSS. in N. Y. Pub. Library.

In this year, Hugh Gainé printed A Catalogue of Books in History, Divinity, Law, Arts and Sciences; . . . To be Sold by Garret Noel. It was an 8vo pamphlet of 14 pages. So far as discovered by Evans (see No. 7519), it was the earliest known bookseller's catalogue printed in New York. Several earlier ones are known to have been printed in Boston and Philadelphia, the first being one of 1693 (q.v. in Addenda).

When the second class in King's College was admitted, in this year, an assistant to its president, Dr. Johnson, was appointed as a fellow or tutor. This was his son, William Johnson, M. A. (Yale). Together, they conducted all the exercises of the college.—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 18. The results of their labours passed under the observation of the trustees.—See Sept. 1.

Jan. 10 The provincial council issues a proclamation calling an assembly to make provisions for driving the French from the Ohio.—Cal. Coun. Min., 398.

An order on Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, to John Waldron, for £412, for putting cannon and stores on board Capt. Barnes' sloop, for Boston, bears this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 669.

The common council orders "that one Thousand Muskets fired with a Bayonet, one Cartridge Box and a Belt for each Cartridge Box be immediately Sent for, Each muskett with its accoutrements not to Exceed Twenty five Shillings." Alderman Oliver de Lancey's offer to lead the money for the purchase is accepted.—M. C. C., VI: 2-3. See also Aug. 7, regarding a lottery to discharge the debt.

A new Staten Island ferry was established this year. In 1748, Solomon Comes had been granted the right of making his ferry a public one, with an established scale of fees.—See May 15, 1747. Possibly his ferry did not succeed, or the city desired to secure similar advantages for itself; for, now, on Jan. 16, 1755, the common council appoints a committee "to Enquire into the properest Method for the Erecting and Establishing a ferry to and from this City to Staten Island or to any other Place."—M. C. C., VI: 4. On March 7, they reported their opinion that "the best and properest method to Let and Establish said ferry" was "to treat with those persons Living on Staten Island, who have a Grant from the Crown to Ferry from S<sup>d</sup> Island to this City, or any other persons who Incline to farm said ferry." The committee was ordered to treat with such persons as they might think proper "for the Letting of the ferry to be Erected & Established to and from this City to Statan Island, or to any other place for a Term of Years Not Exceeding five."—Ibid., VI: 7.

On Sept. 22 (q.v.), the following notice was published: "This is to give Notice, to all Gentlemen Travellers, and others, that may have occasion of having themselves, Horses, Chaises, or any other Goods, transported to or from New York, to Staten-Island, that the Ferry is now continued to be kept by Otho Van Tyle, at Staten-Island, and Abraham Boeckee, at the Whitehall Ship, in New York, in Company, they having three Boats, well fitted for the Purpose, for the Dispatch of Business: Any Gentleman in the City of New-York, having Occasion, may (by giving Notice to Abraham Boeckee) have Boats at the Times appointed to attend."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 22, 1755. See also March 11, 1756; and "Staten Island Ferry" (from foot of Whitehall St.), in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 933. A ferry between New York and Staten Island was first established in 1713 (q.v.).

The common council orders that the new "Exchange" be let to Keen & Lightfoot, at £30 for one year, commencing Feb. 11.—M. C. C., VI: 3. This firm advertised to open it on that day as a "coffee-room."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 4, 1755. This was the room over the "Exchange" proper.—See June 10, 1752; Jan. 15, 1754. The lease was renewed to Alexander Lightfoot, on Jan. 29, 1756, at £40 a year, commencing Feb. 11.—M. C. C., VI: 47. On Jan. 25, 1757, it was renewed to Mrs. Sarah Lightfoot, at the same rate, from Feb. 11 to May 1, 1757, and from then to May 1, 1758.—Ibid., VI: 78. For the next occupancy, see Feb. 18, 1758.

Sir Peter Warren having petitioned the common council for water lots opposite his property on the North River (M. C. C., V: 299), it is ordered "that the water Lotts fronting the Up Lotts belonging to the Heirs of St Peter Warren Deceased in the west ward of this City Lying in the North River be granted to them pursuant to y<sup>e</sup> agreement formerly made with this Corporation by Mr Richard Nicolls for and in Behalf of s<sup>d</sup> Mr Warren."—M. C. C., VI: 2. The heirs paid the city "four pence  $\frac{3}{4}$  foot."—Ibid., VI: 15.

Parker and Weyman publish an editorial reviewing the reasons for the needed defence against the French (see May 20, 1754), and the ways and means for accomplishing it. They begin with the hypothesis: "If Prudence, watchful Prudence, be our Guide, Then every other Power is on our Side." While they refer in general to the state of the entire province, they make the following specific reference to New York City:

"If we view the Inhabitants of this City, shall we find them fully instructed in the Art of War, and able to defend to the utmost what they have purchased with infinite Labour and unwearied industry? Here also, whatever may be our Captivity, we shall doubtless fall short of that Perfection which the Rules of good Discipline strictly requires. And yet unprepared as we are, against the dreadful Day, we are loitering away our Time, regardless of those Means that are necessary to put us in a Posture of Defence. Perhaps we confide in our Numbers. Vain Confidence indeed!

1755 An unerring Omen of impending Destruction! . . . Would our Jan. Fortifications cover us from the Fire of our Enemies? No: . . .
27 and tho' by a continual Supply of fresh Forces, we might be able to prevent the Enemy from landing, what would secure us against the dreadful Explosion of flaming Bombs, which, with swift Destruction, would reduce our Houses to Ashes? . . .

"A well-grounded Prospect that our Assembly will speedily complete our Fortifications gives us Hopes . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 27, 1755.

29 By the king's order in council, Sir Charles Hardy is named Governor of New York.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 934-35; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 626. For his instructions, see N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 947-50, 960.

Feb. "Since the 4th of February, 1754, to the 3d of February, 1755,
3 428 Sail of Sea Vessels, arrived in this Port; and during the said
Time, 390 sailed from hence."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 3, 1755.

"Postmaster Alexander Colden makes the following announcement: "It being found very inconvenient, to persons concerned in trade, that the Post from New-York to New-England, has heretofore set out but once a fortnight, during the winter season; the stages are now altered, . . . and the New-England Post is henceforth, to go once a week the year round; whereby correspondence may be carried on, and answers obtained to letters between New-York and Boston, in two weeks, which used in the winter, to require four weeks; and between Philadelphia and Boston, in three weeks, which used to require six weeks. But to obtain this good end, it is necessary, on account of the badness of the ways and weather, in winter, to dispatch the Post some hours sooner from New-York. Notice is therefore hereby given, that he begins his weekly stage on Monday next, being the 10th instant, and will be dispatched precisely at 9 o'clock in the morning, on that day, and every Monday following."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 3, 1755.

4 De Lancy reminds the legislature that the fortifications of New York City are in need "to be repaired, altered, or other works made." He has already applied to Gen. Braddock for an engineer.
He adds that "every Estate in the Province, depends on the Trade, and of Course on the Safety of this City."—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 1182. See, further, Feb. 7.

5 As the negroes are becoming insolent, the council orders the issuance of a proclamation for enforcing the laws against them.
The militia is ordered to do guard duty in the city.—Cal. Coun. Min., 398. The proclamation prohibits the "unlawful meeting of negro slaves."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 626.

6 The provincial council resolves to apply to New Jersey for the erection of a beacon near Sandy Hook.—Cal. Coun. Min., 398.

7 The assembly resolves itself into a committee of the whole house to consider the lieutenant-governour's message of Feb. 4 on the subject of defence, in which he said, among other things: "In the first Place then, the Fortifications of this City ought to be repaired, or altered, and other Works made, where the Commander in Chief with the Advice of the Council, and the Assistance of the best Engineers that can be had, shall think most conducive to the common Safety; with this View, and in full Dependence that you will not neglect your own Security, I have already applied to General Braddock, to send an able Engineer to this Place, if one can be spared. Nothing can be more evident to a considering Man, than that the Value every Estate in the Province, depends on the Trade, and of Course on the Safety of this City, so that there is the highest Reason it should be effectually secured." The house passes a resolution expressing the opinion "that for putting the Colony into a proper Posture of Defence, and furthering his Majesty's Designs against his Enemies in North-America, there be allowed the Sum of, Forty Five Thousand Pounds," for which a tax be laid on all estates, real and personal, within the colony for five years; and that bills of credit be emitted on the credit of the tax to that amount. Such a bill is therefore presented for its first reading.—Assemb. Jour., II: 433-35. See also description of Pl.
46A-c, I: 360. The bill was passed on Feb. 19 (p. v.).

13 The first issue of the Mitchell Map of the "British and French Dominions in North America" bears this date. It is an official map, prepared under instructions from the lords of trade and plantations from surveys completed in 1750 (cf. Dec. 4, 1756). A later edition, containing, according to Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., VII: 180-81, "numerous important changes," was issued with the same date. A comparison of the two issues in the N. Y. Pub. Library reveals only one variation in the engraving: the words "British and French Dominions" are changed in later issue to "British Colonies."

However, from reproductions in Cavendish's Debates in House of Feb.
Commons, 1774, cited by Winsor, it is evident that an earlier 13 edition with many faults existed. The map was reissued in Paris in 1776 by Le Rouge. According to Sparks (Franklin, 1882 ed., X: 447), the Mitchell map was used by the peace commissioners of 1782-3 in determining the boundaries. An official copy of this map, showing the boundaries as established by the Treaty of Utrecht, and also the "Boundary as described by Mr. Oswald," is preserved in the British Museum (Crown Collection). See litho-graphic reproduction in N. Y. Pub. Library (Div. of Maps). See also Pl. 37A, Vol. IV.

Col. Joseph Robinson of New York is ordered to place out duty 15 at Fort George the militia under his command.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 627. The order was again issued on April 5.—Ibid., 629.

An article signed "Oppressed Common-wealth," suggesting 17 numerous reforms in the city, is printed by Gaioe. It declares:

"In the last Session of General Assembly, there was an Act passed into a Law, to enable Justices of the Peace, to try Causes for Five Pounds, or under, throughout the Colony, except the Cities of New-York and Albany, and Borough of Westchester: Now I humbly conceive, that if that Law was wanted, and will be of Utility to the Rest of the Government, that it was, and is more wanted, and would be of greater Service to those Places which are excluded, especially to New-York, than to any other Part of the Province, as there are more People there, and probably more Actions for such Sums than in all the Colony besides . . .

"Another Act passed at the same Time, relating to the Excise, provides, That all Retailers of strong Liquors, excepting those who sell only to be carried from their Houses, shall take Licence for that Purpose; for which they shall pay Three Shillings, and no more; only New-York and Albany, who are to pay according to Custom; which is affirm'd to be 30s. by them who have Authority to grant it in New-York; and they accordingly take that Sum for each Licence, for retailing Liquors; which commonly falls on the poorer Sort of People; so that I am persuaded, that many of them do thereby pay at least 5 per Cent. of all they sell.

"As the above Acts are manifestly abridging the Inhabitants of New-York, Albany, and Borough of Westchester, from the Privileges enjoyed by the other Parts of the Colony; I seem to flatter myself, that the Legislature will, for the Future, take it into their Consideration, and put the excluded Places on a Par with their fellow Subjects in the Counties: . . .

"Another Custom I have observed in New-York, . . . is, that those Persons who have either heretofore farmed the Excise in New-York, and they appointed for that Purpose, by the present Act, have, when they have agreed with any Person for the Excise, and taken his Bond for Payment, obliged him to pay 6s. for the Bond; whether that is not an unreasonable Charge, I must refer to better Judges; tho' its notorious, any Person who is capable, will write them for 18d. a Piece: . . . and as the present Farmers are to be allowed 5 per Cent. for their Trouble, by the Act, whether it hath not an Appearance of F—— for them to take any Thing, especially such an exorbitant Sum.

"Another Thing which is a Custom in New-York, and also a Law (a By-One of the Corporation) I've often thought of no great Benefit to the Publick, which is this; That if a Person dies, being never so poor, leaving never so necessitous and distressed a Family, he cannot be buried, without their being at the Expence of 18s.
to some Person authorised by the Mayor, to invite People to the Funeral; nor can any Friend do it gratis, without subjecting himself to be fined 40s. if any one complains against him.

"The City Watch [see Dec. 21, 1742; Feb. 19, 1755] appears to me, to be a Matter also something extraordinary, for the Custom is . . . for every Householder, alternately to be summoned, and must either attend, or a Person is ordered to supply his Place . . .
whom he must pay; by means whereof, the poorest Mechanick, or Labourer, is put to as much Expence, as those of the greatest Fortune and Wealth; it will not require half an Eye to distinguish, whether it's reasonable, just, and equitable, that poor People; who have neither House, nor any Thing else, but what they must Labour for, should pay as much as those, who have half a Dozen, perhaps ten, fifteen, or twenty Houses, besides large personal Estates, do.

"As it is now ordered, that the Militia shall keep Guard at the Fort, . . . I may judge whether it is reasonable or not, that poor Men who have nothing but their Hands to get their Living with, or a Man who is a Mechanick, and hath three or four Apprentices listed in the Trainbands, shall be obliged to attend on that 1755 Service, each of them, perhaps once a Month, or oftener, for 12

 Feb. Hours, or pay his Fine for himself, and each of his Apprentices, 17 whilst any and every Person, who have had a Commission are exempted from it: And as it's notorious, that its commonly Persons of Fortune on whom they are bestowed, the Consequence is, that the Opulent and the Wealthy, are freed from the Burthen: So that I am of Opinion, that this Method is oppressing the Poor; and must be of the Mind, that if it is necessary that the Fort should have Guard kept in it, that it will be a more equitable Method to have Persons hired for that Purpose, to be paid by a Tax, laid on the Inhabitants; as likewise for the City Watch: . . .

"The keeping the Highway in repair, hath long been carried on by a Method something singular [see Nov. 25, 1751]: People are sent to, and warned to work on it, as often as the Overseer thinks proper. If you do not attend, you must pay 3s. for some Body that will say, he was in your Room, and did it for you . . .
 This is likewise compelling the poorest Housekeeper in this City, to pay as much as the richest Man in it; which, how equitable, needs no Illustration; but conceive, some Person to be hired for a certain Sum, and paid by a Tax according to Peoples Estates, must, at least, be as much so."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 17, 1755.

19 A new Militia Act, somewhat more developed and better arranged than previous ones, contains most of the old provisions, with additions. For the more recent military laws, see Oct. 3, 1739; Nov. 27, 1741; Dec. 17, 1743; Sept. 21, 1744; Feb. 27, 1746; Dec. 7, 1754. New provisions of this act require that the articles of war shall be printed by the public printer. A new beacon (cf. Nov. 27, 1741) is provided for,—namely on "Mr.
 Kennedy's Island" (Bedloe's Island). Each new beacon "shall be made of twelve or a greater Number of poles set in the Ground at proper Distances asunder, and a pitch Barrel on each pole; and the respective persons living nearest to the same, shall upon seeing the Beacon which may be erected near Sandy Hook, or other place, on Fire, or upon the appearance of six or a greater Number of large Ships, which from proper Glasses they may judge to be ships of War, set fire to a like number of such pitch Barrels; and at every of the said places where Beacons are appointed to be erected, there shall be Lodged a Cannon or Great Gun, with a sufficient quantity of Gun powder, and immediately after the said Beacons shall be so set on fire, such Gun shall be discharged from each Beacon, once for every large Ship that appears in sight." A guard or watch shall be kept at each beacon when the governor or commander-in-chief shall so order, in which case the colonels of regiments in the counties where the beacons are shall see that the order is executed by detachments of men from their regiments. These beacons are intended to spread the alarm to New Jersey and Connecticut as well as New York. In case of alarm, every soldier, on notice thereof, is "immediately to Repair Armed in his Colours or parade," on penalty of £25, "which parole shall be understood to be the Habitation of his Captain, unless it be otherwise ordered." Special provision is made in this act for the defence of the county of Suffolk, which is so exposed that "a Descent may be made on the Eastern part thereof by Water."

The master or mistress of every slave over 14 years of age is required, within two months after publication of this act, to deliver to the captain of the company, in the respective districts where they reside, a list of their slaves, both male and female. The captain shall list all of these slaves, indicating by name the sex and the number belonging to each owner, and shall transmit the list to the governor. In case of invasion, each captain shall appoint a detachment of his company to guard against an insurrection of the negroes. If one or more slaves, over 14 years of age, at the time of alarm or invasion, "be found at the distance of one mile or more from the Habitation or Plantation of their respective owners, without a Certificate from their respective Owners signifying the Errand or Business they are sent upon, it shall be adjudged a Felony without Benefit of Clergy in such Slave or Slaves, and it shall and may be lawful for the person or Persons finding such Slave or Slaves, at or beyond the said distance or Limits, to shoot or otherwise destroy such slave or Slaves, without being impeached censured or prosecuted for the same."

In case of an alarm or invasion, "every Person, able to bear Arms, that shall leave the City or County invaded, or apparently in danger of being Invaded, without the order of the Commanding officer . . . or shall refuse to obey the just and legal Orders of his proper officer shall suffer the pains of death, by being shot at at the head of the Company to which he belongs; and if he be an officer he shall be shot at the head of the Regiment, being first duly convicted by a Court Martial."

Regulations are provided at some length for keeping "Military Watch and Ward" in certain emergencies.

This act is the first of the militia acts of the province to contain provisions relating to Quakers, "who from Religious or conscientious scruples are averse to the bearing of Arms or Military Service."
 They are not liable to greater fine than 20s for not enlisting, or for refusing or neglecting to do duty in the militia. Refusing to serve on military watch, or to send a substitute, subjects the Quaker to a fine of 10s. Provisions are enacted also to apply to the members of the church or congregation known as "Unitas Fratrum, or United Brethren," for whose encouragement an act was passed by the parliament of Great Britain, whereby they are exempted from bearing arms or doing military service in any of the colonies, but shall make money payments in lieu of such service. This act provides the same amount of levy and penalty for them as for Quakers. Like the Quakers, also, who refuse to bear arms, they shall, in the time of alarm or invasion, "severally appear provided with one good spade, Iron shod shovel, and pick ax, and six Empty Bags, each Bag sufficient to contain two Bushells, and shall serve as Pioneers or Labourers, or upon any other than Military service in such manner as shall be directed by the Governor or Commander in Chief . . ." The rates, penalties, fines, and forfeitures collected from the Quakers and United Brethren shall be applied toward purchasing arms and ammunition for the use of the respective cities and counties of the province. The act is to be in force for one year.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 1051-71.

The enrollment of the Quakers of N. Y. City was made on May 19 (q. v.)—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 623. Nevertheless, an additional act, Feb. 19, 1756, was required to effect the collecting of sums levied upon the Quakers and United Brethren. The same act provided for the employment of "Outscouts or Rangers" by the military organization of Albany County.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 16-18. The enrollment of the Moravians took place on May 5 and 6, 1756.—Doc. Hist. N. Y., III: 623.

There was another amendment on Feb. 26, 1757, requiring (as "more safe") that the beacons should be "Constantly Watched by fit Persons particularly Appointed for that purpose," instead of by detachments from the militia of the several counties where the beacons are. This amendment also extended the provision for the enforcement of payments by the Quakers and United Brethren.
 It provided that a court-martial should consist of 13 of the eldest of those who should attend to form the court-martial.—Ibid., IV:
 178-80. For the passage of the next Militia Act, see Oct. 20, 1764.

The levying of a direct tax of £45,000 is ordered by the provincial legislature, for defences, cancellation of bills of credit, and other purposes. The sum of £20,000 is allowed to Christopher Banker (see Jan. 14, 1758) and John Dies for repairing the fortifications of New York City and erecting such other works as the lieutenant-governor or commander-in-chief shall direct (see March 10).
 —Col. Laws N. Y., III: 1058-50. See Feb. 4 and 21. See also description of Pl. 46A-C, I: 360; and Man. Com. Com. (1839), 510.

Commissioners, appointed to purchase materials for fortifications, and the repair of Copey battery, are given instructions by the provincial council.—Cal. Coun. Min., 398. See Feb. 19.

Gen. Braddock arrives at Williamsburg, Va., from Ireland, and takes command of the British forces.—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 17, 1755.

An order of council requires that entries in the records shall be separately kept for government affairs and those concerning private persons.—Cal. Coun. Min., 399. It will be observed that, beginning on this date, this has been done.—cf. ibid., 414.

G. Duyckinck advertises for sale "The Plan of the City of New-York, shewing the several Wars, Streets, Lanes, and Allies, Churches, Meeting Houses, Markets, Sugar and Distilling Houses,
 Water Lots, with the additional New Lots . . . to this present Year. Done from an actual Survey."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 17, 1755. This plan is reproduced as Pl. 34, Vol. I. See also Winsor,
Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 255, 256.

The ferry at the Narrows, "commonly called Stillwell's Ferry"
 [see Apr. 3, 1740; June 18, 1753], together with the Dwelling House, Barn, Out Houses, Orchard, and Land therunto belonging," is to be let for five years, application to be made to Denyse Denyse (Van Tyle) at the Lower Ferry.—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 3, 1755.
 Regarding Van Tyle's interest and influence in water front property on Staten Island, see May 15, 1747.

Feb.
 19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

19

1755 Parker and Weyman advertised on March 10: "Last Thursday
Mar. [March 6] was published in this City, A Small new Paper, entitled, 6 The Instructor, to be continued Weekly if suitable Encouragement, at the reasonable Price of Two Coppers each; and with the Proviso, that whoever shall preserve them, neat, clean, and entire to the End of the Year, and then return them to the Printers, they shall have One Copper a-piece back again . . . The Design of that Paper is to communicate to the Publick Select Pieces on the Social Duties, and such Historical or Speculative Remarks as may be thought useful, to be collected from the best English Writers; which if read either in a Morning at Tea, or after Dinner, by the younger Sort, cannot fail of leaving a good Effect upon the Mind, as well as improving them in their Reading and Morals. If any Gentlemen [sic] of Taste will please to recommend any particular Pieces, all due Regard shall be paid to them in their Turn. They are printed in such a Manner, as that they may be bound up in One or more Volumes, and if kept together, may be worth preserving, especially to those who cannot readily come at the Originals.
. . . Occasional News will sometimes be added likewise. N. B. No Controversy of any Kind will have Admittance. Printed and sold by the Printers or [sic] of this Paper."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 10, 1755.
The advertisement is repeated in ibid., March 24, showing it as "now publishing," and with the added statement: "Any Gentlemen who chuse to take this Paper yearly, on sending in their Names, shall be waited on with them at their Houses." No copy of this paper has been found.—Early Newspapers, II: 421; Brigham, "Bibliog. of Am. Newspapers," in Am. Antiq. Soc. Proc. (1917), 444.

7 The city buys 4,000 shingles for £311.—M. C. C., VI: 5.
The messenger and door-keeper of the common council receives a quarter year's salary of £3:15. The public whipper's quarterly salary is £5.—M. C. C., VI: 5.

" Payment is made by order of the common council for "Building a fire Engine House on a vacant Lott Commonly Called Rutgers Walk in the East ward."—M. C. C., VI: 6. Rutgers' ropewalk extended along the present Division St. from Chatham St. east to Eldridge St.—See Pls. 36-a and 42, Vol. I.

" A blacksmith and a carpenter are appointed city "Engineers."
—M. C. C., VI: 8. Their duties are not defined. They probably were employed in connection with the fire-engines.

10 The provincial council receives proposals from Gov. Shirley to join in sending an expedition against Crown Point.—Cal. Coun. Min., 414.

" Christopher Bancker and John Dies, having been appointed managers for purchasing materials for fortifications (see Feb. 19), advertise for stone, lime, timber, plank, iron trucks for carriages, and cannon ball. They will pay ready money, but will purchase only the best material and at the cheapest rate. Applications are to be made Tuesday and Thursday mornings at the King's Arms Tavern near the New Exchange.—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 10, 1755.

14 Thomas Pownall, commissioner from Massachusetts, confers with the provincial council at New York regarding defensive measures. It is ordered that the assembly be called to meet him in joint committee session. Announcement had been received on March 3 from Gov. Shirley regarding this proposed meeting.—Cal. Coun. Min., 414. At this meeting, which was held at the house of Edward Willet, innkeeper, on the evening of March 26, the council was represented by John Chambers, Edward Holland, and William Smith, and the assembly by Mr. Verplank, Capt. Livingston, Mr.
Nicoll, Mr. Cruger, Capt. Walton, and Mr. Thomas. Lieut.-Gov.
De Lancey's message to the assembly, on the morning of the 26th, had pointed out the need of considering the subject of raising, equipping, and quartering troops, etc., "until such Time as a Plan of general Union of his Majesty's Northern Colonies for their common Defence, can be perfected, according to his Majesty's Pleasure signified to me by a Letter of the 26th of October last, from the Right Honourable Sir Thomas Robinson, already laid before you." The results of the committee conference are shown in the records the next day, when they were adopted. These endorse a scheme of defence proposed by Gov. Shirley, and contain a resolution "That this Colony join therein if the General appointed by his Majesty to command the Forces in North-America, approves of the said Scheme."—Assemb. Jour., II: 438-39.

Thomas Pownall's rise in official life in America is reviewed in Wilson's Mem. Hist. of N. Y., II: 294 (with portrait, 293); see also Oct. 29, 1753; Jan. 5, 1758.

Scarroyady, a Delaware sachem or half-king of the Indians on the Ohio, while in attendance at the provincial council in New York City, reports on his visit to the Six Nations, and Gov.
De Lancey makes reply. On May 13, the council issued a warrant to pay Adam van der Bergh for entertaining Scarroyady and his companions at his tavern.—Cal. Coun. Min., 414, 416.

A proclamation is issued offering a reward for the discovery of the persons who plundered the house of James Alexander, in New York.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 628. The published proclamation reveals a burglary of more than £300 of gold, silver, and paper money. It offers "his Majesty's most gracious Pardon" to any accomplice who shall "discover" the person or persons guilty.
In a newspaper notice, Alexander offers a reward of £30 on conviction,
"out of the Mosey recovered."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 24, 1755.

Trinity vestry agrees "with Christian Stouwer That he have a Lease of the Ground formerly Lease to Arthur Wilkinson being to the Northward of Elias De Gruches Rope Walk [see May 25, 1752] & between that & the Stockadoes and to contain Fifty feet in Breadth & Six hundred feet in Length along the Said Rope Walk for the Term of Twenty one Years from the 25th Instant he paying Twelve pounds  $\frac{1}{2}$  Annum with a Covenant that if this Board within the Term Shall think fit to Open Church Street through the Said Land that then for that time he Shall only hold the Land from the Broadway to Church Street & pay only Eight pounds  $\frac{1}{2}$  Annum from that time."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

Trinity vestry appoints "a Committee to have Lamps put up before the Church in Such Manner as they Shall think proper Not Exceeding the Number of three."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

"To be Lett, For a term of years, in lots of 25 feet each, with half the depth of the land behind each front, from street to street, for yard room, and a garden. The person who hires, to build an house pursuant to the articles allowed by Trinity-Church, to the tenants on said church farm. Any person inclining to hire any lot or lots on the premises, commonly called the Vineyard, adjacent to Spring Garden, may apply to Col. Thomas Dongan, on Staten-Island; or Mr. John Charleat, at Dr. Farquhar's, in New-York."—N. Y. Merc., March 24, 1755. Regarding the location of, and title to, the Vineyard, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 946.

De Lancey notifies the assembly of Gen. Braddock's arrival with two regiments for Virginia.—Assemb. Jour., II: 438. See Aug. 20, 1754, for De Lancey's plea for New York to aid Virginia.
Regarding the expedition against Fort Duquesne, which terminated in Braddock's death, see Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., I: 294; V: 151, 575; and plans, V: 498, 499, 500. See also July 9, 11, and 28.

Gen. Braddock, in advices sent to New York, desires Gov.
De Lancey to come to Annapolis, Md., with Gov. Shirley.—Cal. Coun. Min., 414. See April 6 and 23.

The assembly adopts a resolution "that the Barracks in Fort-George, in the City of New York, be repaired, and such others erected, as may be necessary for accommodating such of his Majesty's Troops as may be posted in this Colony;" also that an address be presented to the lieutenant-governour, "that he will be pleased to give Directions" for this purpose, the expenses to be paid out of the £5,000 "lodged in the Treasury for such Services
. . ."—Assemb. Jour., II: 439. The law of Sept. 21, 1744
(q. v.), provided for the rebuilding of the barracks in the northwest part of the fort. Maerschalck's Map (1755) shows no other barracks than those in the fort (see Pl. 34, Vol. I), and Smith, in his Hist. Province of N. Y., refers only to barracks in the fort. In 1757, however, new ones were erected on the Commons.—See Oct.
19 and 31, 1757.

The governour signs a proclamation inviting enlistments in Sir William Pepperrell's regiment.—Cal. Coun. Min., 414.

Dr. Johnson writes to his son that the "Embarrassments of the College" are "bad enough," through the "good-for-nothing management of our chairman [the reading at this point is doubtful], who is every day so overwhelmed with W—e &c. as to be hardly capable of other Business, much less of y<sup>e</sup> Coll. so that nothing has been done yet, more than was.—He has indeed been infinitely to blame, (& has made himself thoroughly despised) that nothing has been done while it might with ease, notwithstanding the Opposition.
But as things have been of late, & are, & like to continue, on Acc<sup>t</sup> of our Danger & the Affairs in view, we cannot blame him as to

- 1755 y<sup>e</sup> Coll. which must lie by, & go on as it is & does, till the present
 Mar. Alarm is over, for nothing can now be tho't of but war. & tho' as 31 I said, we were got pretty calm, yet now things look some what terrifying again, & I imagine they will come to an open rupture, & in that case how God will deal with us he only knows."
 ". . . we are repairing our Fortifications & think to make more & hope we shall be safe.—Johnson Papers (MS).
- Apr. The provincial council issues an order to proceed with the fortifications from the Flat Rock Battery to Tennis River's house, which must be purchased. It also orders that beacons be erected as provided in the Militia Act.—Cal. Coun. Min., 414-15. See April 9.
- 5 Orders are issued to Col. Joseph Robinson, commanding the militia regiment of New York, for the defence of the city.—Cal.
Hist. MSS., Eng., 629.
- 6 Gov. De Lancey intends to go to Annapolis in obedience to orders from Sir Thomas Robinson. Orders are sent to colonels of militia in Richmond, Kings, Queens, Suffolk, Westchester, and Orange Counties, as well as New York. The council is authorized to open letters arriving for the lieutenant-governour during his absence. Warrants are signed to Christopher Bancker and John Dies for purchasing materials for the fortifications.—Cal. Coun.
Min., 415. See April 23.
- 7 The council holds its meeting on this day in Joseph Murray's house. Archibald Kennedy presides in the absence of De Lancey at Annapolis.—Cal. Coun. Min., 415.
- 9 The common council orders the payment of 40 shillings to Dr.
 John Bard for "Visiting Sundry Sick palatines in this City."—
M. C. C., VI: 9.
- " The common council orders that the gaoler of the city allow a shilling a day to each of the two French prisoners now in his custody, one of whom was committed to jail by the governour and council and the other by the mayor.—M. C. C., VI: 9.
- " The common council orders that in future it be a standing rule
 "of this Board, that whenever any of the publick Wharfs of the Said City be out of Repair," the alderman and common councilman of the ward where the wharf lies shall have liberty to repair it and charge the expense to the corporation.—M. C. C., VI: 10.
- " The provincial council orders that guns be mounted on Copey and Flat Rock batteries, and that Jacob "Twick" (Turck), the gunsmith, repair the small arms.—Cal. Coun. Min., 415.
- " The first or preliminary number of a new periodical (undated) appears, having for its title (which follows a prefatory paragraph) the title of an essay which occupies its two printed pages, namely John Englishman's true Notion of Sister-churches. It's date is indicated by an announcement of its expected publication "On Wednesday next," N. Y. Post-Boy, April 7, 1755. Near the end of the second page, above the colophon of "J. Parker and W. Weyman," is the following "Advertisement": "The Public may expect a Paper of this Length, as often as shall be thought needful: And the author will gratefully acknowledge the Correspondence of such Gentlemen, as shall be disposed to write any Thing in Defence of the Colledge, and the English Constitution, who may direct to John Englishman, to be left with the Printers hereof." The second and later issues bear the title John Englishman, In Defence of the English Constitution. See the file of the paper in the N. Y. Pub. Library, which possesses copies of all but one of the known issues, Nos.
 1 to 10 inclusive (excepting No. 9), these being dated (after the undated one of April 9) as follows: Nos. 2 and 3, April 18 and 25;
 Nos. 4, 5, and 6, May 2, 16, and 30; Nos. 7, and 8, June 7 and 14;
 No. 10, July 5. It was published, therefore, at intervals of one and two weeks. Like the Independent Reflector (see Nov. 30, 1752), it consisted of a series of essays on political and religious subjects.
 The prefatory note at the head of the first issue makes reference to The Watch-Tower (see Nov. 25, 1754).
- 10 The account of Francis Barra, of this date, for lime; that of John Myers, April 15, for blacksmith work; and that of Tobias Ten Eyck (£10:12:6), for lumber, are expenses incurred on improvements at Fort George.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 668-69.
- 11 The provincial council orders that John Dies select places for beacons between Rockaway and Staten Island; and that branch pilots be instructed to be on the lookout.—Cal. Coun. Min., 415.
 A warrant was issued on July 5 to Dies for the expense of erecting beacons.—Ibid., 418.
- 14 In a colonial congress at Alexandria, Gen. Braddock and five colonial governours decide upon a plan of campaign against the French, and recommend taxation of America by parliament.—
- Parkmao, Montcalm and Wolfe, I: 191-96, and authorities cited.
 The news of Sir Charles Hardy's appointment as governour reaches New York by letter from London.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 14, 1755. The official notification from John Powall, secretary of the board of trade, apparently, did not reach the governour and council, until May 29.—Cal. Coun. Min., 416.
- The account of Johannis Samuel Pruyn, for lumber for the barracks, bears this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 669.
- "Two Dwelling Houses, a Kitchen and a Stable, on the Church Farm, adjoining Mr. Kuyssick's," are offered for sale, on a lease from Trinity Church of which 18 years still remain.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 21, 1755. From other advertisements, it appears that Kuyssick's house was on Broadway south of Warren St. (see Apr. 5, 1754), and the two houses advertised were probably on Broadway and Robinson St. In 1762, these same houses, which had been acquired by John Dower, were again advertised for sale. One of them was at this time a tavern, having the Sign of King George III.—See Jan. 25, 1762.
- Gov. De Lancey returns from Annapolis (see April 6).—N. Y.
Post-Boy, April 14, 28, 1755. The council of war, composed of colonial governours, which was held at Alexandria, Va., having required that the garrison at Oswego be re-enforced, an order to that effect is given by the provincial council of New York.—Cal.
Coun. Min., 415. See also April 29. A warrant was issued on July 10 to reimburse De Lancey for his expenses on his journey to Virginia.—Ibid., 418.
- In this council, three expeditions were planned against the French: against Fort Duquesne; against Fort Niagara; and against the fort at Crown Point.
- Gen. Braddock appoints William Johnson superintendent of Indian affairs.—Cal. Coun. Min., 415.
- Gov. Thomas Fitch of Connecticut writes to the provincial authorities at New York that his colony will raise 500 men for the intended expedition against Crown Point.—Cal. Coun. Min., 415.
 He issued orders to that effect on Aug. 23.—Ibid., 420. See April 26.
- An account of John Dies' for materials for beacons, bears this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 668.
- A French dancing-master, whom the lieutenant-governour 26 of Halifax, Col. Lawrence, on April 6, accused of being a spy, is arrested and jailed in New York.—Cal. Coun. Min., 415.
- To provide for military preparations, the provincial council advises the governour to assent to a further emission of bills of credit.—Ibid.
- The provincial council decides to raise 500 men in Connecticut for the New York troops. Gov. Fitch consented to this on May 17.—Cal. Coun. Min., 415, 416.
- Gov. William Shirley, of Massachusetts Bay, and Lieut-Gov.
 29 Robert Hunter Morris, of Pennsylvania, arrive soon after noon from the Westward" (Annapolis, Alexandria, and Philadelphia, —see April 23). "They landed at Whitehall . . . under the Discharge of the Cannon in Fort-George; and were welcomed ashore by his Honour Governor De Lancey, the Members of his Majesty's Council, and other of the principal Gentlemen of this City. The City Militia was ordered to muster . . . and the Streets were lin'd with the Men on their Rest, while his Excellency and the Gentlemen pass'd on into the Fort, where his Majesty's, and all the loyal Healths, with Success to the English American Enterprises, being first drank, they proceeded, through the Line still formed by the Militia, to the New-York Arms in the Broad-Way, where an handsome Entertainment was provided . . . ;
 and where the aforesaid Healths were repeated, and went round with great Cheerfulness and Alacrity. The Militia was discharged between two and Three in the Afternoon . . . ; the Doors, Windows, Balconies, and the Tops of the Houses, being particularly decorated with Red-Cloaks, &c. added no small Beauty to the same, and Diversion of the Time." Gov. Shirley left for Boston on May 3.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 5, 1755. The "New-York Arms" was the Province Arms, at the present No. 115 Broadway, kept by Edward Willett.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 977.
- A horse-race is advertised in New York, to be held on this May day "round the Beaver Pond in Jamaica, on Long-Island," the 1 horses to be entered the day before with John Comes.—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 24, 1755.
- The provincial council issues a warrant to John Dies as part 2 payment for expenses in building bateaux.—Cal. Coun. Min.,
 415. A similar warrant was issued on Dec. 6.—Ibid., 424.

1755 A provincial statute is passed "for impressing Ship Carpenters May House Carpenters Joyners Sawyers and their Servants and all 3 other Artificers and Labourers for the Building of Battoes." (For similar action during King George's War, see June 13, 1746.) But such persons living in the city and county of New York are not liable to impressment for service outside the county.—Col.
Laws N. Y., III: 1093-96.

" The initial steps are taken to establish a quarantine at Bedloe's Island. It is enacted by the general assembly that "all Vessels having the Small Pox Yellow fever or other Contagious Distemper on Board and all Persons Goods and Merchandizes Whatsoever coming or imported in Such Vessels and all Vessels coming from any place infected with such Distempers Shall not come into any the Ports or Harbours of this City or Nearer the Same City than the Island Commonly called Bedlows Island [see June 28, 1738], And shall be obliged to make their Quarantine there."—Col. Laws
N. Y., III: 1071-73. This act was to remain in force for one year only. For its revival, see March 24, 1758, when the administration of the quarantine was transferred from city to province. See also
 June 28, 1738.

On May 6, a proclamation was issued ordering that quarantine regulations be observed.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 633. On May 25, John Baird, a surgeon of New York, was appointed to examine all vessels suspected of having any contagious diseases on board.
 —Ibid., 634. An explanatory act was passed on Sept. 11 (q.v.).
 Bedlow's Island was later purchased as a site for a pest-house.—
 See Oct. 19, 1756.

Gov. Shirley asks the New York council for cannon for the Niagara expedition.—Cal. Coun. Min., 416.

5 The news is published in New York that the Hon. William Johnson (one of the council of this province), who left New York for Albany on May 4, has been appointed by Gov. William Shirley, of Massachusetts, to be "Major General and Commander in Chief of the American Forces to be employed in an Expedition to the Northward: As also of such Indians as shall assist his Majesty in the same."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 5, 1755.

" J. Belcher, A. M., "Vicar of Barton, in the County of Camber-and, and Chaplain of His Majesty's Ship the Norwich," proposes the publication, by subscription, of a work to be printed in a quarto volume, "upon a Demi-royal Paper, and new Letter" dealing with the provinces of New York, the Jerseys, Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Virginia. The price of the book is to be one pound, and delivery is to be made in the spring of 1756.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 5, 1755. No copy of this work is known to bibliographers.

6 The governor and council order that bastions "be built between Copsy and Flat Rock batteries." John Dies is directed to impress workmen on the fortifications; and disposition of ordnance is made. A proclamation is issued to enforce quarantine measures.
 —Cal. Coun. Min., 416. See May 29. For earlier references to Copsy battery, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 946.

7 The first meeting of the governors of King's College is held, at the House of Mr. Edward Willet, at the Sign of the New-York Arms" (see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 977), the deputy-secretary of the province being present, with "his Majesty's Royal Charter of Incorporation." Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey orders that it be read; "and after having addressed himself to the Governors, in a very affectionate, genteel and suitable Manner upon the Occasion," delivers the charter to them. They are then "qualified to execute the important Trust reposed in them, by taking the Oaths to the Government, and that of Office, and subscribing the Declaration as prescribed by the Charter, before the honourable Daniel Horsmanden, Esq; one of his Majesty's Justices of the Supreme Court of Judicature. . . ." The governors "returned his Honour the Lieutenant Governor, their most grateful Acknowledgments for the Honour he had been pleased to confer on them in their Appointment, and hoped their Conduct as Governors of that Corporation, would always merit the Continuance of his Honour's Protection, Favour and Countenance; and convince the World, they had nothing more at Heart than to promote the Glory of God, the true Protestant Religion, and the generous Education of our Youth in the Liberal Arts, and Sciences; and that they doubted not but it would please God to bless and prosper their Undertakings therein."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 12, 1755.

At this first meeting of the governors, there is unanimously adopted a proposal of the Rev. Joannes Ritzema, senior minister of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church, and one of the governours named in the college charter, asking for an additional charter.—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 1. See, further, May 7 19 and 30, June 3.

10 Gen. Braddock having advanced through Virginia, arrives at Wills Creek (Fort Cumberland). Here he assembled his force of 2,200 men, and refused the aid of Indian scouts and frontiersmen, believing he had experienced troops on whom he could rely for all purposes. On June 10, he set out from Fort Cumberland to attack the French at Fort Duquesne.—Parkman, Montcalm and Wolfe, I: 196-204, and authorities there cited. For the disastrous result, see July 9.

12 The draft of a grant of the land (part of the Queen's Farm) from Trinity corporation to the governors of King's College (see March 5, 1752; May 14, 1754) is produced at the vestry meeting; also "the Engrossed Deed." The vestry orders that the seal be affixed, and that the rector and church-wardens deliver the grant to the governors of the college at their next meetings.
 —Trin. Min. (MS.). This they did the next day (q.v.). See also
 Aug. 19, 1762.

" A contributor to the Mercury writes: "About fourteen Months ago [see April 6, 1754], a Number of Gentlemen in this City, sensible that the good People of the Province, thro' an inveterate Habit, of suffering others to think for them, had often been duped by the perfidious Arts of designing Politicians, set on foot a Subscription for a public Library: Well judging that an Acquaintance with Books, would tend to unshackle the Minds of their fellow Subjects. A Design so disinterested, one would think could never have given Umbrage, to the most flaming Partisan; unless to one, whose partial Prospects terminate, in the total Extinction of human Knowledge. Such however, was the Case. No sooner were the Subscriptions complete, and a Day appointed for the Election of Trustees, thaa a dirty Scheme was concerted, for excluding as many English Presbyterians as possible, from the Trusteeship:
 concerted, not by Trinity Church in this City; but by some of her unworthy Members. . . . This Scheme a certain Gentleman in this Province, undertook to execute; and by his Emissaries dispersed among the Subscribers, a Number of Copies of such a List of Trustees, as best suited his known Humour and Inclination, and advised many of them, carefully to avoid electing any Presbyterians to the Trusteeship. Strongly prepossessed in favour of his own judicious Choice, the good Man, doubtless expected it would be submitted to, by many of the Subscribers, with a most obsequious Deference. How well his Expectations were answered, the Event of that Election, will best determine. Thus much however is certain, that in spite of his utmost Efforts, the Subscribers were so obtusely impartial, as to chuse Persons who, from their Acquaintance with Literature, they imagined were able to make a proper Collection of Books."—N. Y. Merc., May 12, 1755.

13 This being the second Tuesday in May, the day appointed in the charter of King's College for the annual meeting of its governours, they meet again at "the New-York Arms" (see May 7)
 "to proceed upon Business." It was previously announced that those who were nominated governors, and were not qualified at the last meeting (see May 7), might be qualified if they were pleased to attend on this day.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 12, 1755.

At this meeting, the corporation of Trinity Church (see May 12) conveys to the college governors, in fee, "for & in consideration of the sum of ten shillings, . . . all that certain piece or parcel of ground situate, lying & being on the West side of the Broadway in the West ward of the City of New York fronting easterly to Church Street between Barclay street and Murray street four hundred and forty foot and from thence running westerly between and along the said Barclay street and Murray street to the North River." These streets were only projected at this time; they were laid out several years later.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, Vol. III, under "Streets." The value of the land is placed at "upwards of £3,000."—Assemb. Jour., II: 447. The "express condition" of the grant is that "the President of the said College forever for the time being shall be Member of and in communion with the Church of England as by law established & that the Morning and Evening Service in the said College be the Liturgy of the said Church, or such a Collect peculiar for the said College as shall be agreed upon & approved of by the President and Governors of the said College."—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 11;
 cf. May 14, also the charter of Oct. 31, 1754.

1755 At this meeting, a committee is appointed to prepare devices
 May and inscriptions for the college seal, also to make "Laws and 13 other regulations for the College."—See letter of May 14 from Dr. Johnson to his son in Johnson Papers (MS.); and Recs. of Trustees (MS.), Vol. I. Both the seal and the laws were adopted by the governors on June 3 (q.v.). For the design of the seal as originally proposed by Dr. Johnson, see Aug. 9, 1754.

" An account of Thomas Cornell, for erecting beacons, etc., at Rockaway, bears this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 667. See the Militia Act of Feb. 19.

17 The provincial council receives the act of parliament which provides punishment for mutiny and desertion; also a royal order to increase the regiments of Sir Peter Halket, Col. Dunbar, and the Nova Scotia regiments to 1,000 men each, the assembly to provide the means. Gov. Fitch agrees that New York may raise 500 men in Connecticut.—Cal. Coun. Min., 416.

19 The council issues a favourable order on a petition from the governors of King's College for an additional charter, enabling them to appoint a Dutch professor of divinity.—Cal. Coun. Min., 399. See May 30.

" Quakers seeking exemption from military service are enrolled in the office of the town clerk of New York City.—*Cal. Hist.
 MSS., Eng.*, 634. This is pursuant to the Militia Act of Feb.
 19 (q.v.). They number 17, and include Walter "Frankling" and others of that family name, Robert Murray, the Burlings, etc.—
Doc. Hist. N. Y., III: 623.

20 Gov. Shirley wants more cannon (see May 3); the council orders that they be loaned.—Cal. Coun. Min., 416. See June 6.

23 Sir William Pepperrell, colonel of the 51st Regiment, quartered in New York, arrives here.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 26, 1755. On June 7 (q.v.), Sir William, "who commanded the Forces at the Reduction of Louisbourg" (see June 17, 1745), received a commission as major-general.

26 M. Jean Sylvestre and his wife, French deserters who have fled from Canada, are examined before the governor's council. They give an account of an expedition sent by the French to Detroit and other places on the Ohio, and much information relative to the military strength of the French in Canada and elsewhere.—From Henkels' (Phila.) catalogue of Oct. 22, 1919, offering for sale (item
 No. 491) a copy of the record of examination, signed by "Geo.
 Banyon" (error for Goldsbro' Banyer), clerk. See also *Cal.
 Coun. Min.*, 416.

29 Directions are given by the provincial council to construct the merlons of the batteries in New York of white cedar wood; and to finish the north line, and also "the line from Hunt's within the Half Moon battery."—Cal. Coun. Min., 417.

" An account of Nicholas Stillwell, for erecting beacon-poles at Gravesend, L. I.; also one of Goelot & Curtenius, for hardware for the barracks, bears this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 667.

30 The draft of an additional charter for King's College, enabling its governors to appoint a Dutch professor of divinity, is submitted to the provincial council (probably by the attorney-general), and approved.—Cal. Coun. Min., 399. As appears by the printed copy of this charter (see June 5), it bears this date, at which time it was signed and sealed.

It is given, as was the first charter (see Oct. 31, 1754), in the name of the king. Its preamble outlines the petition to Lieut.- Gov. De Lancey from the governors (see May 7 and 19), which sets forth "That although by Our Letters Patent of Incorporation, bearing Date the Thirty First Day of October last past [q.v.], the sole Power of electing Professors in said College, is vested in the said Governors: Yet the said Petitioners humbly conceived, that it would tend to the Prosperity of the College, and the Increase of the Number of Students, if Provision could be made for establishing a Professorship in Divinity in the same, for the Instruction of such Youth as may intend to devote themselves to the sacred Ministry, in those Churches in this Province that are in Communion with, and conform to the Doctrine, Discipline and Worship established in the United Provinces, by the National Synod of Dort; and any other Students that may be desirous to attend his Lectures." The petitioners asked that an additional charter be granted for this purpose, "and that the Nomination of such Professor, from Time to Time, be in the Minister, Elders and Deacons of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church in the City of New-York."

In making the grant of this additional charter, is cited the 8th article of the Articles of Surrender of 1664, whereby the Dutch were permitted to enjoy "the Liberty of their Consciences in Divine Worship and Church Discipline;" and mention is made of the king's desire that the members of the Dutch churches, "who are very numerous in Our Government of New-York," shall continue to enjoy such liberty and that they "may always have learned Pastors and Teachers to instruct and assist them therein," and also his wish "to promote the Prosperity of the aforesaid College, and the Increase of the Number of Students therein."

The charter briefly grants the petition, with the stated requirement that the professor of divinity, before entering upon the duties of the office, shall take the oaths and subscribe to the declaration as provided in the first charter; that he shall hold office
 "during his good Behaviour, or during Will and Pleasure, according to such Agreement as shall be made between him and the said Minister, Elders and Deacons of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church, . . . at the Time of his Nomination and Appointment." He is to be entitled to powers and privileges like those granted to other professors in the college; shall conform to such rules as they are obliged to conform to, and be suspended or discharged in the same manner as they.

This charter is sealed with the great seal of the province, and entered of record in one of the "Books of Patents" in the secretary's office. Granted by De Lancey, at the fort, it, like the first charter, bears the signature of "Clarke, junior."

It was delivered to the governors on June 3 (q.v.).

The provincial council issues a warrant to Baocker and Dies, commissioners (see Feb. 19), for expenses in building fortifications.
 Later warrants were issued on June 14, July 5 and 25, and Sept.
 10 and 13.—Cal. Coun. Min., 417, 418, 421. See, further, Feb.
 19, 1756.

A committee of the common council is appointed "to Lay out the Rhoad or high Way from the House of Mr Benjamin Peck Contiguous and adjoining to the House he now lives in near the Fresh Water, and Likewise the Rhoad or high Way from the Spring Garden to the said Fresh Water."—M. C. G., VI: 12. The latter road was the present Park Row.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 996. The Peck residence near the Fresh Water has not been located.

Ten members, comprising the major part of the city vestry, set forth in a petition to the common council that the keeper of the almshouse, Robert Provoost (see March 21, 1750), does not discharge the duties of his office. It is voted that he be removed from office on or before June 14, and Capt. Jacobus Kierstead is appointed in his place.—M. C. G., VI: 12-13.

Two accounts bear this date: that of John G. Lansing, for painting and glazing at the barracks in New York; and that of Frederick Simonson, for carrying down the bay two great guns, and loading one at Staten Island and the other on Long Island, with tar barrels and posts for beacons.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 667.

The additional charter of King's College (see May 30) is delivered to the governors at their meeting on this day.—See
Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 10, where it is also observed that "The Ministers, Elders and Deacons" seem to have been satisfied with the grant of an authority which they never exercised." See, further, July 26.

At this meeting, the governors adopt a device, prepared by President Johnson (see May 13), for the college seal. The same device, with only a necessary alteration in the name, continues to this day that of Columbia University. For detailed description and explanation of this device, see ibid., 19-20, where is found the added statement that "In a list of the Benefactors to King's College" it is stated that "Mr. George Harrison presented us with the Engraving of the Seal which cost 20 Guineas." See

At this meeting, the "Laws and Orders of the College of New York" are adopted. They relate to admission, graduation, public worship, moral behaviour, behaviour towards authority and superiors, college exercises, and due attendance. These are printed in full in ibid., Appendix B. They were superseded by a "Plan of Education," adopted by the board of governors on March 1, 1763, which is also printed in ibid., Appendix B.

The provincial council records its opinion concerning an application from the engineer of the Crown Point expedition, Capt.
 William Eyre, for more artillery.—Cal. Coun. Min., 417.

William Wamstley is paid £25:8:10 for repairing the barracks and magazine in Fort George; and Benjamin Hildreth is paid £3:14:9 for fuel for Sir Wm. Pepperrell's regiment, encamped on

May 30

"

"

"

June
 2

3

"

"

"

"

157 Nutten (Governors) Island.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 667, 668.
 June Later accounts for straw for this regiment, bear dates of Aug. 23 5 and 28.—Ibid.

3 The provincial council orders that the additional charter for King's College (see May 30) be printed.—Cal. Coun. Min., 399, 417. As it consists of only two pages and a title-page, doubtless it was promptly produced. Its title-page reads: The Additional Charter Granted to the Governors of the College of New-York, in America. Published by Order of His Honour the Lieutenant Governor, in Council. New-York: Printed and Sold by J. Parker and W. Weyman, at the New Printing-Office in Beaver-Street, MDCCLV. For its contents, see May 30.

6 Cannon are returned from Boston.—Cal. Coun. Min., 417.
 Capt. John Waldron, military store-keeper at New York, is ordered to deliver to Messrs. Morris and Alexander, agents for Gov. Shirley of Massachusetts, certain cannon lying in the pasture near the fort.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 636.

7 The provincial council refers to the proper authorities an account of charges for repairing the barracks in Fort George; and, on June 12, an account for erecting beacons.—Cal. Coun. Min., 417.

"Sir William Pepperrell, Baronet, who commanded the Forces at the Reduction of Louisbourg," receives "a Commission as Major General in His Majesty's Army." The news report adds: "and we doubt not will again distinguish himself in the intended Attack upon the French Encroachments on our Frontiers; his Regiment being almost 700 strong, all pickt Men, great Part of them already on Duty."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 9, 1755.

10 Benjamin Watson is paid for carrying ten empty tar barrels (for beacons) to Col. Stillwell at Gravesend.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 668.

12 In a petition to the assembly, "sundry of the Governors" of King's College ask that a bill be passed "in order to vest in the Petitioners for the Uses aforesaid [as stated in the college charters], the several Sums of Money, so as aforesaid raised, by publick Lottery and the Duty on Excise, with the Increase or Profit arisen thereby, and also grant unto them, such further and other Assistance and Encouragement, the better to enable them to carry on the useful Work aforesaid, as to the honourable House shall seem reasonable and consistent with the publick Good." Consideration of the petition is postponed until after September first.—Assemb. Jour., II: 446-47. The subject awakened opposition, and was not presented again in the assembly until Dec. 18 (q.v.). See also comments under June 28, July 5 and 26.

"Philip Schuyler and John de Peyster are appointed commissary and paymaster of the New York troops, in place of Philipp Verplanck, who refuses to serve.—Cal. Coun. Min., 417.

14 The provincial council receives an address from the Moravians, relative to their exemption from military service, and charging that this has not been observed by the local authorities; it is referred to the latter.—Cal. Coun. Min., 417.

17 Plans for forts to be erected at Albany, Schenectady, and Kinderhook, together with Philipp Verplanck's account for making these plans, are referred to the assembly by the council (sitting at New York)—Cal. Coun. Min., 417-18. Verplanck had received orders on March 3 to view the grounds and make the plans.—Ibid., 414. A warrant was issued on July 10 to pay him for his services.—Ibid., 418.

22 Two hundred of the soldiers belonging to Major-Gen. Pepperrell's regiment, who were encamped on Governor's Island, embark on a sloop for Albany.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 26, 1755.

23 Several transports, having Boston, Rhode-Island, and other forces on board, have arrived at New York during the last week, and sailed for Albany.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 23, 1755. On this day, 20 transports arrive from Providence. On June 24, two others arrived, having on board Gov. Shirley's regiment, and the Rhode Island forces, and all "weigh'd Anchor for Albany."—Ibid., June 26, 1755. See also July 1.

25 The matter of the seizure of gunpowder by Archibald Kennedy, in 1753, remains still unsettled.—Assemb. Jour., II: 450. See Aug. 11 and Dec. 4, 1753.

28 Writing to the Rev. Chauncey Graham at Fish Kill, William Smith continues his account of the happenings relative to the college. He says that "on the 12th Instant [q.v.] the Governors appointed by the late Charter, presented a Petition to the Assembly, to pass a Bill for confirming their Establishment, and vesting them, with the public Monies that have been raised for a free College—The Dissenting Interest was now in eminent Danger, for (1) There was but a thin House, and several of the Members who were absent, would have been with us (2) Some of the Members had been appointed Governors by the Charter, and (3) as the Church Party knew that the strength of the House, and of the Opposition, consisted in the Disaffection of the Dutch, it was given out that a New Charter, had been passed for Granting a Divinity Professor, in order to lull them asleep. Under these melancholy prospects, we judged, that the wisest Expedient we could take, would be to postpone the Consideration of the Church Petition, imagining that some of the Members, who would have been ag<sup>d</sup> us upon a Decisive Vote, out of fear of their Constituents, would be glad of an Opportunity, to put off] the Matter . . . . . Cornell carried a Motion for postponing the consideration of the Church Petition, till after Sep<sup>r</sup> next . . . . . Universal Joy possessed every Breast upon this Occasion, for the Dutch, after having with great Difficulty got a sight of the Charter, found it an idle Business, that gave with One Hand, & took away with the other . . . . . But what most conduced to the satisfaction of the People, upon this Dis-appointment of the Church Project, arose from their Prospects (1) That Gov<sup>r</sup> Hardy will probably arrive in a few Days, and according to Custom, Dissolve the Assembly, and give thereby the People a new Election, which it is hoped, they will carefully improve by a proper Choice of Representatives, for their perpetual security against any future Designs to abridge their Privileges or (2) If there should not be a Dissolution, every County, 'tis hoped, will petition the Assembly, and thereby intimidate them from ever granting the Prayer of the Petition."—From an original draft among the Wm. Smith MSS., folio 189. On July 26, Smith sent the same information to "Dom<sup>o</sup> Van Bright at Tappan."—Ibid.

"Whereas the late Lottery Act [see Dec. 7, 1754], for raising a certain Sum towards founding a College, being expired by its own Limitation of Time, and no further Provision made for continuing the same: This is to give Notice to all Persons that have purchased Tickets of the Managers, Abraham Van Wyck and Abraham Lysen, that on the Return of said Tickets, they shall be repaid the Monies by them paid for the same."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 30, 1755. The act of Dec. 7 was, however, revived by another act on Aug. 14 (q.v.), which, while cancelling and repaying the old tickets, diverted to a new and different object the money then to be raised.

Choice Newbern turpentine is offered for sale by Thomas Vatar "at the Still-House behind the Old English Church, or at his Dwelling House near Alderman Cortlandts."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 30, 1755. The ground on which this still-house stood appears on A. Pl. 3-b, Vol. III.

Gen. Shirley returns from Boston, in "the Province Sloop of the Massachusetts-Bay." See also April 29. He embarked for Albany on this sloop on July 3, "being conducted to the Water Side, by his Honour Governor Delancy, most of the Members of his Majesty's Council, and a great Number of the Gentlemen of this City; and was saluted on his going off, with fifteen of the Cannon belonging to Fort-George, and a general Huzz of great Numbers of the Inhabitants . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 7.

The remainder of Gen. Pepperrell's regiment (see June 22) leaves Governor's Is. for Albany.—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 7, 1755. The feeling of opposition and resentment over the passage of the King's College charter is reflected in the following published declaration:

"Whereas it has been reported to the Reproach and Prejudice of David Jones, Esq; Speaker of the General Assembly, that He used his Endeavours, for the obtaining the Charter for establishing the College, with the Exclusion of all Professions (but those of the Church of England) from being President; These may serve to shew, that we have had great Opportunities to know his Sentiments in this Affair, and never have observed or discovered, in any one Instance, his Application, or Inclination, for having the Charter in the Form and Manner it now is, touching the Limitation aforesaid; but, on the Contrary, have often seen him shew his dislike thereto, and heard him declare his Opinion against it.

"Wm. Walton. "Johannes Lott.
 New-York, July "Eleanor Miller, "Pieter Winne, 5th, 1755. "Wm. Nicoll, "Tho. Cornell."
 "Jacobus Mynderse,
 —N. Y. Post-Boy, July 21, 1775.

- 1755 One Richard Aldridge, sentenced for horse stealing, is pardoned on condition of his enlisting as a soldier.—Cal. Coun. Min., 418.
- July 5 In a list of unclaimed letters remaining in the post-office at New York, occur the following names: "Thomas Barton, Care of John Marshall, at the Sign of the Sun and Pine-Apple;" "Alexander M'Dougall, to the care of Nathaniel Hazard;" "Lewis Morris, Esq.;" "John Thompson, alias Scotch Johnny."
- 7 The statement adds: "N. B. Whereas David Prevost, and some few other Persons, refuse to take up Letters directed for them, remaining in the Post-Office at New-York: Notice is hereby given that no Letters directed to those Gentlemen for the Future will be forwarded from any of the Post-Offices in America, or deliver'd out of the Office at New-York, until all the Letters remaining in the Office at New-York for those Gentlemen be taken up."—N. Y.
Post-Boy, July 7, 1755.
- 9 Near Fort Duquesne (Pittsburg—see April 17, 1754), Gen.
 Braddock is surprised by a party of French and Indians; his 1,200 choice troops are routed, and he is mortally wounded. Col. Washington tries to rally the remnant of the army; he has two horses shot under him, and, though his coat is shot through, he escapes unscathed. The news of the defeat filled the colonies with consternation.—Parkman, Montcalm and Wolfe, I: 204-33, and authorities there cited; Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 498 passim.
- " A committee is appointed by the common council "for the Regulating of the pavement from the Pump in Wall Street Down to the Meal Market."—M. C. C., VI: 14. On July 11, they reported the regulation agreed upon.—Ibid., VI: 15.
- " The common council orders that Little Queen Street (later Cedar Street) and Thames Street be regulated and paved.—M. C. C., VI: 15. Payment was made for part of this labour Oct. 4, 1757.—
Ibid., VI: 103.
- " The common council appoints a committee "to View, Dig, Regulate, Lay out and pave all the Streets in Montgomerie ward."
 —M. C. C., VI: 14. On July 11, they reported that they had "Viewed and measured Queen Street," and they recommended a certain regulation, but a substitute regulation was adopted instead.
 —Ibid., VI: 16. On July 18, they reported that they had "Regulated and Laid out the Street that Leads down from Beekman Street Called [name not given, but evidently Gold] Street to Ferry Street," and they found a certain grade.—Ibid., VI: 18, 26. On Sept. 8, they reported having "Regulated and Laid out the Street Called George Street" [see Post. Old Streets, 20]; also William Street between Beekman and Frankfort Streets.—Ibid., VI: 25-26.
 On Sept. 24, they reported that they had "Laid out and Regulated for paving Ferry Street," from the lower end of "Cliff [Cliff] Street" to Queen Street; also Pecks Slip from Queen Street to high-water mark.—Ibid., VI: 31, 23. On July 30, 1756, they reported having "Laid out and Regulated for paving Cherry Street," and levelled part of Queen Street from "the Westermost part of the Widow Montanye's Gate" to the middle of Rutgers' Street.
 The surveyor for all of this work was Francis Maerschalck.—Ibid., VI: 60-61. Another committee was appointed in 1757 to regulate the streets of this ward.—Ibid., VI: 97. For the locations of these streets on the modern map of the city, see "Streets" in the Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 992 et seq.
- " Robert Livingston, Jr., writes from Clackenbergh to Lieut.- Gov. De Lancey in regard to casting cannon balls at his furnace.
 —Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng. 640.
- 11 The common council appoints a committee "to View Dig Regulate Lay out and pave all the Streets in the North ward."—
M. C. C., VI: 17. On July 18, they reported that, with the assistance of Francis Maerschalck, city surveyor, they had "Regulated and Laid out the Street in the Rear of Spring Garden," grading it to Beekman St.—Ibid., VI: 17-18. This was Kip St., the present Nassau St.
- " Letters begin to come to Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey giving particulars of the defeat and death of Gen. Braddock.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng. 640-41. See July 9. For fuller particulars, see July 28.
- 17 An account of Tennis Jacobs', for labour on the barracks in Fort George, bears this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng. 668.
- 19 Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey writes to Maj.-Gens. Shirley and Johnson and Gens. Fitch and Phipps regarding the defeat of Gen. Braddock and the need of reinforcing the troops.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng. 641.
- 21 Dr. Johnson writes to his son that "a Subscription was begun which had last Wednesday been subscribed only by 27 persons July which had made it above 1500*l.* so that it is hoped we shall gain 21 3000 sufficient to build a presidents house & a hall—you will see
 I suppose a Letter giving An Acc<sup>t</sup> of Gen<sup>l</sup> Braddocks Defeat.—
 This put you yesterday in a great panic, but we hope there may be no great matter in it, if anything. I suspect however that there must at least be something bad."—Johnson Papers (MS.).
- The provincial council prohibits the exportation of provisions. 25
 The next day an exception was made in the case of vessels laden with provisions and bound for Halifax, Annapolis, or Chignecto, in Nova Scotia.—Cal. Coun. Min., 418, 419. See also May 24, 1756.
- Writing to "Dom. Van Bright" of Tappao, William Smith 26 says, in part: "The Charter [of the college] I suppose you have seen, its Partiality and the Designs of it doubtless you detest. . . .
 As the Dutch Church of New York petitioned the General Assembly for a Professor the Advocates for a party College fearing the powerful Opposition of the Dutch might render their Scheme Abortive it was thought proper a Month or two ago to pass a New Additional Charter to grant a Professor . . ." He says that a copy of this additional charter could not be obtained "at the public office" until June 12 (q.v.), when the college governours
 "petitioned the Assembly to confirm the two Charters by a Law to deliver over into their Hands the Monies which had been raised for a free College. A copy of the second Charter was then procured, and the Reason for Concealing it [is] now evident to all for (1) It appointed No Salary for the Dutch Professor. (2) It subjected him to attend upon the service of the Liturgy of the Church of England
 (3) He was subordinate to the Governors of the College A vast Majority of whom were and always would be Episcopalians and
 (4) They had the absolute Power of expelling him at their Pleasure. . . ."—From the original draft with Smith MSS., folio 189.
- The provincial council receives a letter from Robert Orme, 28
 Gen. Braddock's aide, announcing the general's death in the action on the banks of the Monongahela on July 9.—Cal. Coun. Min., 419.
 An account of this disaster to British arms was published in the N. Y. Post-Boy of Aug. 4, 1755.
- Sir Thomas Robinson informs the provincial council that 29
 Admiral Boscawen or Commodore Keppel may be called upon if necessary for naval assistance. Admiral Boscawen writes about the movements of his fleet.—Cal. Coun. Min., 419.
- The council issues a warrant to pay James Parker for printing Aug.
 bills of credit.—Cal. Coun. Min., 419.
- A letter, received by the provincial council from Gen. William 4 Johnson, expresses fears of the bad effect upon the Indians due to Braddock's defeat.—Cal. Coun. Min., 419.
- The provincial council orders that the wall from the east line 11 of the battery along the west side of Whitehall Slip be continued.
 —Cal. Coun. Min., 419.
- A proclamation is issued for a day of fasting, on account of 6
 Gen. Braddock's defeat.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng. 641; N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 11, 1755.
- A proclamation is issued offering a reward of £25 for the dis- 11 covery of the person or persons who broke open the consistory room of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church, and stole "about Sixty Pounds in Silver, Paper, and Copper Money."—Cal. Hist.
MSS., Eng. 641; N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 6, 1755.
- A petition to the general assembly is drafted by order of the 7 common council, reciting that the corporation is very much in debt, but, "being apprehensive of a Warr with france," they have sent to England (see Jan. 16) for a thousand stand of arms, in order to furnish those who have not Arms of their Own in case of an Attack from the Enemy;" and that these arms will cost the city more than £3,000, a sum which "the Corporation Cannot Raise without the utmost Difficulty and Indangering the Interest of the Corporation." They therefore ask that, "as the Late Act for a Lottery [for a further provision towards founding a college] is now Expired by its own Limitations," the assembly will pass a bill in favour of the city "for a Lottery on the Same Terms and According to the provisions in the said Late Act," for raising a sum to pay for the arms recently ordered.—M. C. C., VI: 19-20, 21.
 This was done on Aug. 14 (q.v.).
- On Aug. 18, bonds were executed by the mayor to Oliver de 4
 Lancey and John Watts for £729:16:1, each payable on the 4th of June following, with interest at 7% from the 4th of last June.

- 1755 On the same day the common council appointed a committee
Aug. "to Receive forty Chests Two Cases and three Casks of sundry 7 Arms &c: Imported in the Ship Irene Nicholas Garrison Commander from England, being the thousand Stand of Arms sent for, by Messrs Watts and De Lancey for this Corporation, and that the said Committee Cause the said Arms to be Carefully put up in the Common Council Chamber and Such other parts of the City Hall as the said Committee shall think proper."—Ibid., VI: 21-22, 54. On Sept. 24, Capt. Garrison was paid £53 for the freight on these arms.—Ibid., VI: 30. See, further, Jan. 25, 1757.
- 8 The expense (£40) is paid by the common council for "Digging, Regulating, Levelling and paving the Street in the Broad Way fronting the Lott Lately fenced in Lying a Little beyond the Oswego Market on the West Side of the said Street in the West & North Wards."—M. C. C., VI: 21. This was Cortlandt Street, which had been given to the city May 25, 1733 (q. v.).
- 12 The snow "Irene," from London, with small-pox on board, is quarantined at Bedloes Island.—Cal. Coun. Min., 419. On Sept.
13, it was allowed to come up to the city and unload.—Ibid., 421.
- 14 An act is passed "to revive" the lottery act of Dec. 7, 1754 (q. v.), which expired of its own limitation on the first Tuesday in June (see June 30), and which was intended to raise £1,125 "for a further provision towards founding a College . . ." This reviving act, however, contains the following important alteration: "Whereas the Mayor Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New York by their humble Petition [see Aug. 7] have prayed that they may have leave to raise by a publick Lottery a Sum of Money to be Appropriated and Applied towards Payment of the Debts due and owing by them Occasioned by their Sending for one Thousand Stand of Arms in order to furnish their Poor Inhabitants with in case of invasion Insurrection or other Exigence," the old act is continued, to remain in full force until the last Tuesday in November, and the 15 per cent. to be deducted "upon the whole Number of Fortunate Tickets" is ordered paid by the lottery managers to the mayor, etc. of the city, instead of to the trustees of the college, to be applied by the mayor, etc., towards paying "The Debt by them Contracted as Aforesaid," after allowing stated sums to pay the necessary expenses of the lottery.—
Col. Laws N. Y., III: 1127. The details of this lottery are more fully explained in an advertisement in N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 18, 1755; see also editorial reference to it in ibid., Nov. 23, 1755, and the results of the drawing in ibid., Dec. 15, 1755.
- " The Rhode Island committee of war applies to the New York council for permission to export flour from New York, which had been prohibited on July 29.—Cal. Coun. Min., 419. Such permission was given on Aug. 28 and Oct. 10, on application by Gov.
Hopkins of Rhode Island; but a similar request from Lieut.-Gov.
Nichols of that colony, on Aug. 29, was refused.—Ibid., 420, 422.
- 16 Massachusetts, the council is informed, will raise 800 men for the Crown Point expedition.—Cal. Coun. Min., 419.
- 25 Lewis Evans advertises: "Just published, A General Map of the Middle British Colonies, in America, New-Jersey, New-York, Connecticut, and Rhode-Island, the Country of the Confederate Indians, &c." He states that "This map includes all the Country depending on the English and French Passages to Ohio, Niagara, Oswego, and Crown-Point. With the colour'd ones will be given a Pamphlet of four large Sheets and a Half, containing, An Analysis of the Map, and Description of the Face of the Country, . . .
The Price of the plain Maps, on Printing Paper, is One Piece of Eight. And the colour'd ones, on superfine Writing Paper, and Pamphlet, Two Pieces of Eight. To be sold in Philadelphia by the Author in Arch Street, and in New-York at the Post-Office, and by Garrat Noel, in Dock Street, near Coenties Market."—N. Y.
Post-Boy, Aug. 25, 1755. Cf. March 6, and 13, 1749.
- " The trustees of the "New-York College" (King's College) visit and examine the pupils who are "under the Care of the Revd.
Dr. Johnson," and are "mighty well pleased with the Proficiency" they have made both in Latin and Greek.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept.
1, 1755.
- Sept. Mrs. Van der Bilt, a nurse on Bedloes Island, is granted per-1 mission by the provincial council to return to Staten Island.—Cal.
1 Coun. Min., 420.
- 2 Sir Charles Hardy, the new governor, arrives on board H. M.
S. "Sphinx," nine weeks from Portsmouth. He remains on board over night.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 8, 1755. See Sept. 3.
- 3 Gov. Hardy lands at Whitehall from the barge of the "Sphinx," under "the Discharge of her Cannon," and is received by the lieutenant-gouverneur, De Lancey, the members of the council and general assembly, the mayor and common council, the clergy, and "all the Gentlemen of the Town." A royal salute from Fort George is fired, and the gouverneur is conducted there through lines of militia.
- After the usual ceremonies, he was conducted to the city hall, where his commission was published (Assemb. Jour., II: 457) "with the Acclamations of the People." He returned to the fort, and received the compliments of the officials and citizens; then proceeded to the City Arms, where he dined, on invitation of the lieutenant-gouverneur, with these gentlemen. At night, "the Windows in the City were ornamented with Lights, and two large Bonfires erected on the Commons; where several Hampers of good old Madeira (which prov'd brisker than bottled Ale) were given to the Populace, and where Sir Charles's Presence, about Eight o'Clock in the Evening, clos'd the joyful and merry Proceedings . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 8, 1755; N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 999; Cal. Coun. Min., 420. The "City Arms" was the Province Arms or New York Arms Tavern, kept by Edward Willett, at the present 115 Broadway.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 977.
- Gov. Hardy writes a circular letter to the several gouverneurs, notifying them of his arrival at New York, and his appointment as governor, etc.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 643.
- Gov. Hardy finds that smuggling is practised, and takes action to prevent it.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 271.
- The common council appoints a committee "to prepare the Draft of an Address to his Excellency Sir Charles Hardy Knight &c on his Safe Arrival to This his Government."—M. C. C., VI: 24.
The draft of it was read at the next meeting (Sept. 8) and approved; and "the Draft of a freedom" was also agreed upon. The engrossed copies were presented to the new gouverneur on Sept. 10, the seal of the freedom being as usual enclosed in a gold box, and he expressed his appreciation.—Ibid., VI: 28-30.
- Fifteen hundred British troops, having sailed from Boston in the spring to subdue the French in Acadia, Nova Scotia, and having succeeded in doing so in less than a month with very small loss to themselves, now wantonly banish about 4,000 of the inhabitants to the British colonies, and burn their property. The Acadians were Catholics, and refused to take the British Oath of Supremacy.—Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 415-17.
- Christopher Bancker's account for materials, etc., furnished the new battery, bears this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 646. See
Feb. 19, 1755.
- Col. Ephraim Williams, with 1,000 men, leaves Lake George, and marches for the defence of Fort Edward, on the Hudson;
but is ambushed by French and Indians under Baron Dieskau, and driven back. Williams is killed in the encounter. Dieskau and his men marched on to Lake George, where they attacked the English under Johnson. The French were completely routed, and Dieskau is taken prisoner.—Parkman, Montcalm and Wolfe, I:
285-313, and authorities there cited.
- A committee of the common council reports that it has carefully regulated and laid out George Street.—M. C. C., VI: 25-26.
This was the present Spruce Street.—See Landmark Map Ref.
Key, III: 1000.
- Mayor Holland turns over to the common council "Thomas Mitchells Map of Hudsons Bay &c which his Excellency St Charles Hardy Knight Desired him to present to the Corporation."—
M. C. C., VI: 30.
- To explain the statute establishing quarantine regulations (see May 3), the provincial legislature passes another act, authorizing the use of force to compel persons coming ashore from infected vessels to return on board. Quarantine is also extended to cover all persons with contagious diseases.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 1141-42.
- The province authorizes the raising of £8,000 to be contributed to Connecticut for the expense of a reinforcement of 2,000 men to be sent to Maj.-Gen. Johnson in the expedition against Crown Point.—Col. Laws N. Y., III: 1131-39.
- The provincial council at New York receives news of a battle at Lake George.—Cal. Coun. Min., 421.
- Upon receiving news of the engagement near Lake George, which occurred on Sept. 8 and 9, between the English and French, in which the French were defeated, Baron de Dieskau taken, and Gen. Johnson wounded, Gov. Hardy immediately orders a large

- 1755 supply of provisions, ammunitions, and war supplies shipped to the scene of action by Albany sloops, and, with some members of the council, including Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, embarks for Albany.
- 14 N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 15, 1755. See also N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 1002-3; Cal. Coun. Min., 421.
- Before leaving, Hardy issues a proclamation appointing Thursday, Oct. 2, a day of public thanksgiving for the victory gained by Maj.-Gen. Johnson over the French.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 15, 19, 22, 1755; Cal. Coun. Min., 421. The party arrived at Albany on Sept. 20.—Post-Boy, Sept. 29, 1755.
- 15 On this day, and on Sept. 19 et seq., news of the war, particularly the action near Lake George, the repulse of the French and Indians, etc. (see Sept. 8), was published in New York.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 15, 19, 22, 29 et seq.
- 20 The provincial council sits at Albany, with Gov. Hardy presiding, and James de Lancey, Daniel Horsmanden, and John Rutherford present.—Cal. Coun. Min., 422. The meetings of the council continued here through Nov. 22; on Nov. 30 they began again at Fort George in New York. During this interval, the business transacted related to the Indians, supplies, fortifications, troops, etc.
- 21 In New York, a committee of the provincial council, sitting in the secretary's office, with James Alexander presiding, receives from Gen. Johnson the returns of killed and wounded, and orders a copy sent to Secretary John Pownall of the board of trade, London.—Cal. Coun. Min., 421.
- 22 The ferry to Staten Island is now kept by Otto van Tyle, at Staten Island, and Abraham Boeke, at Whitehall Slip. Three boats are regularly maintained.—See Jan. 16. Denyse van Tyle was drowned, with ten other men and three horses, in a ferry-boat wreck near Oyster Island on March 11, 1756 (q.v.). Regarding Van Tyle's affairs, see also May 15, 1747; March 3, 1755.
- 23 The ferry-house at Staten Island, lately kept by John Watson, is now run by Martin Ducket, "where the best of Entertainment may be met with, both for Man and Horse, and the utmost Expedition in transporting to and from New York."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 22, 1755. A week later, Ducket advertised his partnership with "Scotch Johnny," a tavern-keeper near the Whitehall Slip.
- 29 James Murray, apothecary, having received orders to send fifty pounds of old linen for bandages for wounded soldiers, appeals to the patriotism and zeal of the women in New York for aid in filling the order, citing the example of "a neighbouring Province."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 29, 1755.
- 30 The making of garments for the soldiers at the frontiers, such as waistcoats, socks, and mittens, is being considered or undertaken.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 29, Nov. 3, 1755; Jan. 19, 1756.
- 31 "It is whispered about Town, as if a certain Set of People [Quakers] in this and the neighbouring Provinces, (and particularly One to the Westward) designed to follow the Example of their Brethren in England, in the late Rebellion, by generously giving a sufficient Number of Woollen Waistcoats to the Soldiers on our Frontiers, the better to keep their Bodies warm during the ensuing cold Season, and to enable them to perform their Duty with the greater Comfort and Satisfaction. . . . This we presume, should it be accomplish'd, will largely compensate for their religious Backwardness, in not encouraging the Exercise of the Musket.
- "Even the Ladies in this City, we are told, seem to be anxious how to demonstrate their Loyalty in a particular Manner, on the present Occasion;—some purpose the making of the aforesaid Waistcoats themselves, whilst others wait for the Stuff."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 29, 1755.
- Oct. 6 With this issue of the Mercury, Gaioe names his office in Queen St. (see May 6, 1754), "the Bible & Crown."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 6, 1755; Jour. of Hugh Gaine, I: 8 (editorial note). See Jan. 12, 1757.
- 8 New York is appointed by the lords of trade as the place for a general magazine of arms and military stores.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 1016; Wilson, Mem. Hist. of N. Y., II: 309-10. See Jan. 16, 1756.
- 10 Gen. Johnson acknowledges "sundry Presents from the Inhabitants" of New York, forwarded through Oliver de Lancey. He has ordered an equitable distribution of the presents, and says that neither he himself, nor his family, officers, or servants, will share any of them, as he apprehends "the Rest of the Army stand in more need of them."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 27, 1755.
- 11 The provincial council at New York issues orders relating to Gen. Baron de Dieskau, the French general, and his aide-camp, M. Bernier, captured by the English in the engagement at Lake George; other orders regarding De Dieskau were issued on Oct. 14. On Oct. 15, the general's (proposed?) quarters at Mrs. De Joccourt's, near the harbour (see Nov. 11, 1751), were ordered charged to Charles Arding's, near the Commons, as more convenient. Capt. La Coste was lodged at Mrs. Dimmock's on Broadway; other French prisoners were more closely confined.
- On Oct. 20, Baron de Dieskau, having been brought down from Albany, was landed at "about nine o'clock at Night, to avoid a Crowd of People assembled to see him," and was "carried to Lodgings prepared for him in Nassau-Street, where he now lies [Oct. 27] dangerously ill of his Wounds." His aide-camp accompanied him.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 27, 1755. On Oct. 23, M. Beroier was ordered to keep within his limits; and again, on Oct. 25, he was forbidden to send letters without leave.—Cal. Coun. Min., 422.
- 22 The king's coronation day is observed "with the usual Rejoicings." A salute of 21 guns each is fired from H. M. S. "Sphinx" and "Garland," lying in the North River. At night, "Illuminations, firing, &c. concluded our Loyalty for that Twenty Four Hours." Two persons were badly wounded "by the Discharge of a Petteraro, which suddenly went off as they were, with an Iron Rod, ramming the Chamber of it."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 27, 1755.
- 27 The governor and the gentlemen with him continue at Albany.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 27, 1755.
- Nov. 1 The great Lisbon earthquake occurs, extending over an area of 5,000 miles, and destroying many lives. See Nov. 17.
- 5 The anniversary celebration of the discovery of the conspiracy to blow up King James I and the "Three Estates of England" (see Nov. 5, 1605) is held. It is a mock ceremonial. The "Devil, Pope and Pretender" are carried about the city on a bier at night, "hideously formed, and as humourously contrived, the Devil standing close behind the Pope, seemingly paying his Compliments to him, with a three prong'd Pitchfork in one Hand, with which at Times he was made to thrust his Holiness on the Back, and a Lantern in the other, the young Pretender standing before the Pope, waiting his Commands." It becomes a rout, during which the crowd "stood at the French General's Lodgings, where a Guard was ordered to prevent Mischiefe." The general sends down "some Silver to the Carriers," with which, "after giving three Huzaas, they march'd off to a proper Place, and set Fire to the Devil's Tail, burning the Three to Cinders."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 10, 1755. This disorderly form of the "Gunpowder Treason" celebration was first recorded as held in New York on Nov. 5, 1748 (q.v.).
- 7 In a letter to Secretary Baconroft, the Rev. Henry Barclay, rector of Trinity Church, writes: "We have also resolv'd to lay the Foundation of a large Chapel of Ease to Trinity Church early in the Spring, our Congregation becoming so numerous that the Church cannot contain them."—Trin. Min. (MS). See also Dec. 21, 1748.
- 8 Gov. Sharpe of Maryland arrives from Philadelphia, and in the evening is "genteely entertain'd on board the Sphinx Man of War, where several Rounds of eleven Cannon were discharged between eight and nine o'clock at Night" on drinking some of the "most loyal Healths."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 10, 1755. See Nov. 25.
- 10 The following advertisements present glimpses of certain industrial activities of the time: "Robert Mc'Alpine, Book-Binder, who lately lived in Haover-Square, is removed into the House where Mr. Fielding, Gold-Smith, formerly lived, at the corner of Broad and Princes Streets, a few Doors above James Alexander's, Esq; where he continues to bind all Sorts of Books at the cheapest Rates; and Supplies Merchants and others with various Kinds of Blank Books, such as Day Books, Journals, Ledgers, etc.—Books left at the New Printing-Office in Beaver-Street, will be immediately delivered to him, and dispatch'd with all Expedition."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 10, 1755.
- G. Duyckinck sells imported goods "at his House on the Dock, next Door to the Sign of the Prince of Orange, near the Old Slip." Goodall and Cowper, in Haover Square, keep a general retail store where they sell the following variety of goods "just imported" from Bristol—"Fine and coarse Broad Cloths, napp'd Friezes, Ruggs, Mix'd hair and worsted Shag, Serges, Shaloons, Calimancoes, Cross-bar'd and Irish Stuffs, wide Damasks, Tammies,

- 1755 Cotton Velours for Waistcoats, black and scarlet Lastings, Ameos, Nov. Quality Bindings, Garterings, Worsted Caps, Hosiery, black and buff Breeches Pieces, Hats, Whips and Thongs, Twist and Hair Buttons, Hatbands, and looping Ribbons, Paper, Buttons of all Sorts, Buckles, Sleeve Buttons, Snuff Boxes, Amber Beads, Spectacles, Knitting and Brace Pins, Hooks and Eyes, Jewelry, Sewing and Darning Needles, Leather and Brass Ink Pots, Split Bone Knives and Cuttoo Knives: with a Variety of other Sorts of Cutlery, and Goods suitable for the Season.—Ibid.
- 1755 "James Lawrence, living opposite to the Province Arms in this City, between the Old English Church and Oswego Market, at the Sign of the Riding Chair, mends and makes all Sorts of Coaches, Chares, Chaises, Chairs, Kitterreens, Waggon, Carts, etc. etc. after the best and neatest Manner, with the greatest Dispatch."—Ibid. Lawrence was the second coach-maker to do business in New York.—See Jan. 22, 1750.
- 1755 In a petition to the common council, Joseph Simson describes the fire risk arising from storing in near-by cellars or store-houses, or leaving on the wharves, such inflammable articles as pitch, tar, turpentine, etc., large quantities of which are annually imported and held for exportation. He offers to build a warehouse for such goods in a safe remote place on condition that he be allowed to charge reasonable storage. The petition is rejected.—M. C. C., VI: 41-42. An act for the prevention of fires was passed on Dec. 31, 1761 (q. v.).
- 1755 "A smart Concussion of the Earth was very sensibly felt here on Tuesday Morning last [Nov. 17] about Four o'Clock. The Morning was calm, not a Breath of Wind stirring, and the Hemisphere appeared somewhat dusky."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 23, 1755. Cadwallader Colden described it in a letter to Peter Collinson, F. R. S., of London, Dec. 9, 1755: ". . . I felt the bed under me and the house shaking . . . I plainly heard the noise like that of carts on pavements, going to the eastward, with now and then a noise like the explosion of a great gun at a distance. It was felt about four o'clock at Philadelphia, and half after four at Boston, and was more violent to the eastward than the westward; and there was an eruption at a place called Scituate, about twenty or thirty miles to the southward of Boston.
- "We have had the driest summer and autumn that ever was known: for some days before the earthquake, though the sky was perfectly calm and serene, the air was so light, that the smoke of the town by falling down was offensive to our eyes, as we walked the streets; and my watch, for some time before it, went unusually slow.
- "In the last remarkable earthquake, which happened about seventeen years ago, and nearly at the same time of year, the weather preceding it was much the same as now, attended with the falling of the smoke in the town."—Philosophical Transactions, Royal Society of London (1755-6), 443.
- William Smith, the historian, thus described it: "The moon was at the full, the sky bright and perfectly calm. About two minutes after four in the morning, a rumbling noise was succeeded by jarring vibrations for four or five minutes. The shocks appeared to be not undulatory, but horizontal. The house the author was in cracked, and the windows rattled, but no fissure was made in the walls, nor did a brick fall from the chimneys."—Continuation of the Hist. of N. Y., in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1830), V: 221.
- The first entry in the "Diary" of John Adams is a mention of this earthquake, which he felt at his home in Braintree, Mass.—See Life and Works of John Adams, ed. by his grandson, Chas. Francis Adams, II: 3. Lisbon, Portugal, had been the scene of an earthquake on Nov. 1, a description of which, by eyewitnesses, was published in the N. Y. Merc., Jan. 5, 1756.
- Gov. Hopkins of Rhode Island informs the governor and council of New York that he and Daniel Updike have been appointed commissioners to consult with Gen. Shirley and commissioners from other colonies.—Cal. Coun. Min., 422.
- Alexander Colden, the post-master at New York, publishes the following notice: "William Wood, the Albany Post-Rider, sets out from hence for Albany, on Wednesday the 26th Instant November, at Ten of the Clock in the Forenoon; and from Albany for New-York the Wednesday following. All Persons who have any Letters to send by him from New-York to Albany, are desired to leave them at the said Post-Office the Day before he sets out from hence; and those who have Letters to send by him from Albany, to leave them at Mr. Edward Williams's, Tavern-Keeper in Albany, the Day before said Post sets out from thence."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 24, 1755. Cf. ibid., July 31, 1756.
- An advertisement informs the public that "Henry Dawkins, engraver, who lately lived with Mr. Anthony Lamb [see Dec. 1, 1760], has now set up his business in the shop late Mr. Paiba's, opposite the Merchants Coffee-House, in New-York, where he engraves in all sorts of metals."—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 17, 1755. Dawkins was in New York as early as 1754, when he engraved a book-plate for John Burnet, an attorney in the city. He was in Philadelphia from 1758 to 1774, but in the latter year returned to New York. Subsequently, he was charged with counterfeiting Massachusetts and Connecticut money. As an engraver, Dawkins occupied himself chiefly with book-plates, bill heads, and map ornamentation. "This work is executed in line, and is fairly good."—Stauffer, Am. Engraver on Copper and Steel, I: 60-62; II: 78-80. See also Dunlap, Hist. of Arts and Design, I: 185 and footnote.
- Dawkins was prominent in early American Masonic circles, and engraved a number of Masonic notices, summonses, and other devices.—Fielding, Am. Engravers on Copper and Steel, 12, 89-91.
- Gov. Hardy, who left New York for Albany on Sept. 14 (q. v.), returns.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 1020-21.
- Gov. Hardy having received instructions from the lords justices to ask for the granting of a permanent revenue, his proposed speech to the council and assembly is first read to the council meeting, and is approved.—Cal. Coun. Min., 424.
- James Wilmot, Jr., advertises a stage-boat commanded by John Thompson (Scotch Johnny?), as attending "at the White-Hall Slip," and sailing every Monday and Thursday for Amboy. There passengers will be met by Joseph Borden, and proceed by stage to Bordentown, where boats will carry them to Philadelphia.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 1, 1755. For the earlier Bordentown route, see Oct. 30, 1752.
- Gov. Hardy, in a message to the assembly, states that he is commanded by the king to recommend without delay the passage of a law providing for a permanent revenue to support the government.—Assem. Jour., II: 461. The assembly, on Dec. 9, replied that it could not provide indefinite support.—Ibid., II: 464. This controversy between governor and assembly continued for a long time.—See July 2, 1756.
- The provincial council receives a royal order approving the act enabling the Dutch Church in New York to sell Fordham manor.—Cal. Coun. Min., 399. See Dec. 12, 1753.
- John Dies' account for making 61 bateaux bears this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 646. Dies is one of the commissioners of fortifications, with Christopher Banker.—See also their account of Feb. 19, 1756, in ibid., 649.
- Gov. William Shirley, of Massachusetts, writes from New York to Sir William Johnson, at Fort Johnson, advising him that he (Shirley) has been appointed commander-in-chief in North America, and giving instructions in regard to dealing with the Delawares and other Indians.—Correspondence of William Shirley, ed. by Charles H. Lincoln (1912), II: 336-42; N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 1024-27.
- The common council passes "A Law to Restrain and Prohibit the Giving or Selling of Strong Liquors to any of the Private Centinalls of His Majesties Garrison in the City of New York." The occasion for this law was the desertions and disorderly conduct resulting from the use of intoxicating liquor by soldiers in garrison and quarters.—M. C. C., VI: 44-45.
- Robert Livingston, James Desbrosses, and the other owners of a wharf extending from Beekman's slip to "the End of the Lot of Ground of the aforesaid James Desbrosses," submit a petition to the assembly, stating that they obtained this grant (of water lots between Peck's Slip and Beekman's Slip) from the common council (M. C. C., V: 249, 330), "with Liberty, at their own Expense, to dock out and fill up two hundred Feet, into the said East River, fronting their several lots, so as to make it more convenient for Vessels of large Burthen to lie at, in order to load." They have also received from the king a patent making their wharf "a free Key." The petitioners now seek a law establishing the rates for "wharfage and crantage."—Assem. Jour., II: 465. For the action of the legislature, see Feb. 19, 1756.
- In accordance with the king's instructions, a council of war composed of governors and field officers is held in New York City & to decide upon the operations of the next campaign.—13

1755 Correspondence of Wm. Shirley (ed. by Lincoln), II: 371; N. Y. Dec. Col. Docs., VI: 1023. The minutes of this council, which concern the plan to be pursued for the reduction of Fort Duquesne, were printed in New Hamp. Prov. Papers, VI: 463-67, and in Archives of Md., 31, 92. A contemporary manuscript copy of these minutes, attested as "a true copy" by Wm. Alexander, secretary of the meeting, was sold with the Rodney Papers (item No. 391) by Henckels, Phila., Oct. 22, 1919. This is now in the N. Y. Pub. Library. It is endorsed: "Entered in Minute of Council of 4th February 1756." It is evidently the officially attested copy which Lieut.-Gov. Morris, of Pennsylvania, sent with other papers to the house of assembly of Pennsylvania, Feb. 4, 1756, and which was engrossed in the minutes of the provincial council.—See Min. Provin. Coun. of Penn., VII: 1756-58 (Harrisburg, 1851), Proceedings for Feb. 4, 1756, pp. 18-19, 23-29.

The newspapers of the fortnight prior to the conference had recorded the arrival in New York of Gov. Hardy, Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, Lieut.-Gov. Thomas Pownall (of the Jerseys), Daniel Horsmoaden and John Rutherford (members of the N. Y. council), Col. Dunbar, Sir John Sinclair, Gen. Shirley, Chief-Justice Jochann Belcher (of Nova Scotia), Gov. Thomas Fitch (of Connecticut), Gov. Morris (of Pennsylvania), and the Rev. Richard Peters (secretary of that province).—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 1, 8, 15, and 29, 1755. The minutes of the meeting (vide supra) show that the following participated in the conference:

- "His Excellency William Shirley Esq<sup>r</sup> General & c.
- "His Excellency Sir Charles Hardy, Kn<sup>t</sup> Governour & Commander in Chief of the Province of New-York.
- "The Hon<sup>ble</sup> Horatio Sharpe, Lieut. Governour & Commander in Chief of the Province of Maryland:
- "The Hon<sup>ble</sup> Robert Hurter Morris Lieut Governour & Commander in Chief of the Province of Pensilvania.
- "The Hon<sup>ble</sup> Thomas Fitch Governour & Commander in Chief of the Colony of Connecticut
- "Colonel Thomas Dunbar
- "Major Charles Craven
- "Sir John St<sup>r</sup> Clair Deputy Quarter Master General
- "Major James Kinneer
- "Major John Rutherford."

See also Smith's Continuation of the Hist. of N. Y., in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1830), V: 224.

15 "Cut and taken from a saddle on a horse standing at the door of Mr. George Brewetron, at the sign of the Bull's-Head, in the out-ward . . . a knapsack containing the following articles, viz. A red jacket trimm'd with gold, a pair of breeches with velm button-holes and gold garters, three fine holland shirts mar'd M. T. ooe speckled shirt, a pair of shoes and a one quire book." A reward of three pounds is offered for the returo of these articles to the "Bible and Crown, in Queen-Street."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 15, 1755. The Bull's Head Tavern stood at the present Nos. 46 and 48 Bowery, and seems to have derived a large share of its popularity from its proximity to the slaughter-house, being a convenient place of meeting for cattle-men. Caleb Hyatt became the proprietor some time prior to June 23, 1763 (q.v.), when he was succeeded by Thomas Bayeux. By 1771, Cornelius Vandenbergh was in possession and offering entertainment to all "gentlemen travellers," as well as pasturing for horses, "at 1s. per night."—N. Y. Merc., May 6, 1771. Richard Varian, who had been appointed "Keeper of the Publick Pound," on June 17, 1773 (q.v.), seems to have become the next proprietor, but, before June 8, 1782 (q.v.), had been succeeded by Nathan Wetherel. Mrs. Varian had apparently returned to the house before Nov. 25, 1783, the day of the British evacuation and the triumphant entry of the American army, when citizens and troops met Gen. Washington and Gov. Clinton at the "Bull's Head Tavern, now kept by Mrs. Verien."—See Nov. 20, 1783. The Bull's Head was sold to Henry Ashdore (or Astor?) in 1785 (Liber Deeds, XLIII: 362), and by him to the N. Y. Association in 1826 (ibid., CCXV: 116-37). It was quickly demolished and the New York Theatre (later named the Bowery Theatre) was erected on its site.—See Pls. 102 and 175, and their descriptions, pp. 603-4, Vol. III; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 977, 982.

16 Dr. Johnson writes to his son: "Owt Gov. Keyes a good Friend to the Arts & to the College." He explains that Gov. Hardy asked to see the subscription paper (see July 21), and to their surprise "he at once put down 500 pounds. this gives new Life to our proceedings & great mortification to our Enemies, & we are now going to carry on our Subscription with vigor. M<sup>r</sup> Marston made his 1200 & we hope the Gov<sup>t</sup>s Influence may induce the Assembly to give us the money before they rise."—Johnson Papers (MS.). The Post-Boy of Dec. 22 speaks of this donation from Gov. Hardy; also of a £100 contribution from Maj.-Gen. Shirley, for "the Charter College about erecting in this City."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 22, 1755. Cf. Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 9-10.

It is explained by Chandler, in his Life of Johnson, that advantage was taken of the arrival of Gov. Hardy to present to him an inflammatory address, in the hope of securing his influence against the college. "But Sir Charles received it with coldness and treated it as it deserved. On the other hand, he received the address of the Governors of the College, presented by the President, with the greatest respect and politeness. He signified that he was desirous of seeing their subscription paper; and the next day, when it was brought to him, he generously subscribed, without any solicitations, £500 for the College. This was such a disappointment and mortification to its opposers, that from that time they were silent, and gave no further molestation. Not long after, the Board of Governors, who had an equitable and just right to the whole of the money raised by lottery, for the sake of peace agreed with the Assembly that it should be equally divided between the College and the public."—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 9-10. The agreement referred to is embodied in the act of Dec. 1, 1756 (q.v.).

William Livingston, John Morin Scott, and William Smith, Jr. deliver petitions to the assembly "from a great Number of the Freemen and Freeholders of several of the Cities and Counties in this Colony, against a supposed Petition of the Governors of the College of New-York, in the City of New-York in America, established by Charter." These state that the petitioners have been informed that the governours have preferred or are about to prefer a petition for passing a bill "to confirm the said Charter or Charters, and to invest the said Governors, with the Monies lately vested by sundry Acts in certain Trustees" (appointed by the act of Nov. 25, 1751, q.v.); that they conceive the subject matter of such petition "to be of the utmost Moment, and nearly affecting their civil and religious Liberties," and have "divers weighty and important Objections, against the granting of the Prayer thereof." They ask for a copy of the alleged petition, and permission to be heard by council "at the Bar of the House" on the subject before a resolution is made thereon. It is ordered that their petition be returned to them with the information that there is "no such Application made to this House by the Governors of the New-York College, as is suggested in the said Petitions; and that if such Application be made, this house will then be ready to receive the said Petitions."—Assem. Jour., II: 468; but cf. June 12. For the passage of such a bill, see Nov. 27, 1756.

Gov. Hardy, in a letter to the lords of trade, says, "I have this week [see Dec. 12 & 13] attended General Shirley at a Council of War for determining the operations to be carried on next year, for the removing the French from their incroachments, and securing His Majesty's Rights on this Continent, which I presume General Shirley will transmit to your Lordships."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VI: 1023.

A ball for the "Benefit of Jacob Leonard" is to be held on this day at the new exchange. Tickets may be had at Leonard's house, near the city hall, and of Mr. Hewlet, "at the King's Arms."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 15, 1755. The "New Exchange" was in the centre of the street at Broad and Water Sts, and the King's Arms Tavern was on the east side of Broad St. between Pearl and Water Sts.

Gen. Shirley writes from New York to Sir Thomas Robinson, secretary of state in London, that he arrived in this city from Albany "the second Instant." He transmits a copy of the minutes of the "Council of War which I held here the 12th and 13th Instant" (q.v.), and gives in detail his plans for a campaign against the French and Indians at Lake Ontario, Niagara, Lake Champlain, and other points to the north.

In another letter, written to Sir Thomas Robinson on the next day, Dec. 20, he gave an account of his conferences with the Indians in the Mohawk Country. He also reported on the opposition to him on the part of Sir William Johnson, and added: "I have the further Mortification to find that I have great reason to be persuaded that Colonel Johnson is Supported by the Governour of New York in the wroog Notions he hath entertain'd of the Effect

Dec. 16

18

19

19

1755 of his Indian Commission from General Braddock, with respect to Dec. excluding me from any Superintendency of Indian Affairs by 19 Virtue of my Commission." He encloses copies of his correspondence with Gov. Hardy.

These letters, with several of preceding and following dates, reveal the difficulties that confronted Shirley by reason of the jealousy existing between New York and Massachusetts, and Sir William Johnson's determination to continue his supremacy over the Indians of the Six Nations. To the end the opposition to Shirley was successful. His commission as colonial commander-in-chief was revoked, and he was recalled to England.—Correspondence of William Shirley, ed. by C. H. Lincoln (1912), II: 343-64. See July 4, 1756.

20 The provincial council issues a warrant to Goldsbor Banyar for carpenter work done in the secretary's office by Thomas Brookman.—Cal. Coun. Min., 424.

22 Included among houses and lots advertised for sale is a portion of "the Church-Laod in Division Street."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 22, 1755. Division St., also called Partition St., was the same as the present Fulton St., west of Broadway. Through the middle of it passed the line of Trinity Church property, the south line of the Aneke Jans farm. The lots to be sold belonged to Trinity.

" Examples of the business signs mentioned in advertisements of the period are as follows: 1755, Dec. 22,—"the Sign of the Unicorn and Mortar in Hanover Square;" "the Sign of the Gilt Dish in Dock Street, between the Old-Slip and Coenties' Market" (where pewter ware is sold); 1756, May 17,—"The Sign of the Indian King and Cross-Guns," in the Fly; June 28,—"the Hand and Shears, near the Coffee-House" (where tailoring is done); July 5,—"the Sign of the Stocking-Weaver's Loom, opposite the Great-Dock;" Aug. 2,—"the Dial" (a watchmaker's shop); Aug. 23,—"the Sign of the Golden Key in Hanover Square;" 1757, Jan. 3,—"the Sign of the Golden Lock, in Dock Street."—See N. Y. Post-Boy of these dates.

24 Gov. Morris and Sec'y Peters of Pennsylvania leave New York, "the Congress of Governors in this City breaking up but a few days before, when Governor Sharp set out for Maryland."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 29, 1755. See Dec. 12 and 13.

29 A concert of vocal and instrumental music is advertised to take place on this day at the new "Exchange" (see Feb. 11, 1754; and III: 924), for the benefit of Messrs. Cobham and Tuckey. Tickets are to be obtained of them, and also at the "New-York Arms," the "King's Arms," and "the new Printing-Office in Beaver-Street." An "Ode on Masonry" will be sung.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 22, 1755.

" Richard Breckell, clock maker, exhibits a musical machine at the house of Adam Vandenberg in the Broadway. A play, the tragedy of "Bateman," is performed by figures moved by clockwork. Admission is one shilling, "and for boys, six pence."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 29, 1755.

30 Major-Gen. Johnson, who defeated the French and Indians at Lake George, arrives in New York from Albany. A number of gentlemen went some miles out of town to meet him, and he was welcomed "by a general Huzza of Multitudes of the Inhabitants, by the firing of Cannon, displaying of Colours, &c. and by the Houses being ornamented with Lights in the Evening."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 5, 1756. He remained in town until Jan. 18.—Ibid., Jan. 26, 1756.

" Gov. Shirley writes from New York to Horatio Sharpe: "I enclose I send your Honour a Copy of the Minutes of a Council of War composed of Governors and Field officers according to his Majesty's Instructions held at this Place the 12th and 13th Instant [p. v.] upon the operations of the next Years Campaign, at which your Honour assisted. I doubt not but you will recommend to the Assembly within your Government in the Strongest Terms to Contribute their Just Quota of Men and Money towards carrying so Salutary a Plan into Execution."—Correspondence of Wm. Shirley (ed. by Lincoln), II: 371.

1756

— William Smith, the historian, writing in this year, gives the following description of New York: "The City of New-York . . . consists of about two thousand five hundred Buildings . . . The Streets are irregular, but being paved with round Pebbles are clean, and lined with well built Brick Houses, many of which covered with tiled Roofs.

"No Part of America is supplied with Markets abounding with greater Plenty and Variety. We have Beef, Porks, Mutton, Poultry, Butter, wild Fowl, Venison, Fish, Roots, and Herbs of all Kinds in their Seasons. Our Oysters are a considerable Article in Support of the Poor. Their Beds are within View of the Town; a Fleet of two hundred small Craft, are often seen there, at a Time, when the Weather is mild in Winter; and this single Article is computed to be worth annually 10 or 12,000 l . . .

"Upon the South-west Point of the City stands the Fort, which is a Square with four Bastions. Within the Walls is the House in which our Governours usually reside; and opposite to it Brick Barracks, built formerly, for the Independent Companies. The Governour's House is in Height three Stories, and fronts to the West; having, from the second Story, a fine Prospect of the Bay and the Jersey Shore. At the South End there was formerly a Chapel, but this was burnt down in the Negro Conspiracy of the Spring 1741. According to Governour Burnet's Observations, this Fort stands in the Latitude of 40° 42' N.

"Below the Walls of the Garrison, near the Water, we have lately raised a Line of Fortifications, which commands the Entrance into the Eastern Road, and the Mouth of Hudson's River. This Battery is built of Stone, and the Merlons consist of Cedar Joists, filled in with Earth. It mounts 92 Cannon, and these are all the Works we have to defend us. About six Furlongs, South-east of the Fort, lies Notten Island, containing about 100 or 120 Acres, reserved by an Act of Assembly as a Sort of Demesne for the Governours, upon which it is proposed to erect a strong Castle, because an Enemy might from thence easily bombard the City, without being annoyed either by our Battery, or the Fort. During the late War a Line of Palisades was run from Hudson's to the East River, at the other End of the City, with Block-houses at small Distances. The greater Part of these still remain as a Monument of our Folly, which cost the Province about 8000 l.—The Inhabitants of New-York are a mixed People, but mostly descended from the original Dutch Planters. There are still two Churches, in which religious Worship is performed in that Language. The old Building is of Stone and ill built, ornamented within by a small Organ Loft and Brass Branches. The new Church is a high, heavy, Edifice, has a very extensive Area, and was completed in 1729. It has no Galleries, and yet will perhaps contain a thousand or twelve hundred Auditors. The Steeple of this Church affords a most beautiful Prospect, both of the City beneath and the surrounding Country. The Dutch Congregation is more numerous than any other . . . Their Church was incorporated on the 11th of May, 1696 . . .

"There are, besides the Dutch, two episcopal Churches in this City . . . Trinity Church was built in 1666, and afterwards enlarged in 1737. It stands very pleasantly upon the Banks of Hudson's River, and has a large Cemetery, on each Side, inclosed in the Front by a painted palisad Fence. Before it a long Walk is railed off from the Broadway, the pleasantest Street of any in the whole Town. This Building is about 148 Feet long, including the Tower and Chancel, and 72 Feet in Breadth. The Steeple is 175 Feet in Height, and over the Door facing the River is the following Inscription [quoted at length in Latin].

"The church is, within, ornamented beyond any other Place of publick Worship amongst us. The Head of the Chancel is adorned with an Altar-piece, and opposite to it, at the other End of the Building, is the Organ. The Tops of the Pillars, which support the Galleries, are decked with the gilt Busts of Angels winged. From the Ceiling are suspended two Glass Branches, and on the Walls hang the Arms of some of its principal Benefactors. The 13th Allies [aisles] are paved with flat Stones . . .

"This Congregation . . . is become so numerous, that though the old Building will contain 2000 Hearers yet, a new one was erected in 1752. This, called St. George's Chapel, [Footnote: "The Length, exclusive of the Chancel, 92 Feet, and its Breadth 20 Feet less"], is a very neat Edifice, faced with hewn Stone and tiled. The Steeple is lofty [Footnote: "One hundred and seventy-five Feet"], but irregular; and its Situation in a new, crowded, and ill-built, Part of the Town . . .

"The Presbyterians increasing after Lord Cornburys Return to England, . . . purchased a Piece of Ground, and founded a Church in 1719 . . . [and were] enabled to erect the present Edifice in 1748. It is built of Stone, railed off from the Street, is 80 Feet long and in Breadth 60. The Steeple, raised on the South-1756 west End, is in Height 145 Feet. In the Front to the Street, between two long Windows, is the following Inscription gilt and cut in a black Slate six Feet in Length [printed by Smith in the original Latin].

"The French Church . . . is of Stone nearly a Square [Footnote: "The Area is seventy Feet long and in Breadth fifty"], plain both within and without. It is fenced from the Street, has a Steeple and a Bell, the latter of which was the Gift of Sir Henry Asshurst of London. On the Front of the Church is the following Inscription [in Latin, which states that the church was founded in 1704, and repaired within in 1714].

"The German Lutheran Churches are two. Both their Places of Worship are small: one of them has a Cupola and Bell. The Quakers have a Meeting-house, and the Moravians, . . . a Church . . .

"The Anabaptists assemble at a small Meeting-house, but have as yet no regular settled Congregation. The Jews, who are not inconsiderable for their Numbers, worship in a Synagogue erected in a very private Part of the Town, plain without, but very neat within. (See also Oct. 31, 1748, and Oct. 12, 1750.)

"The City Hall [cf. Grim's Plan, Pl. 32-b, Vol. I] is a strong Brick Building, two Stories in Height, in the Shape of an Oblong, winged with one at each End, at right Angles with the first. The Floor below is an open Walk, except two Jails and the Jailor's Apartments. The Cellar underneath is a Dungeon, and the Garret above a common Prison. This Edifice is erected in a Place where four Streets meet, and fronts, to the Southwest, one of the most spacious Streets in Town. The Eastern wing, in the second Story, consists of the Assembly Chamber, a Lobby, and a small Room for the Speaker of the House. The West Wing, on the same Floor, forms the Council Room and a Library; and in the Space between the Ends, the Supreme Court is ordinarily held.

"The Library consists of a 1000 Volumes, which were bequeathed to The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in foreign Parts. (See June 27, 1729.)

"In 1754 [q. v.], a Set of Gentlemen undertook to carry about a Subscription towards raising a publick Library, and in a few Days collected near 600l. which were laid out in purchasing, about 700 Volumes of new, well chosen, Books. Every Subscriber, upon Payment of 5l. Principal, and the annual Sum of 10s. is entitled to the Use of these Books . . .

"Besides the City Hall, there belong to the Corporation, a large Alms-house or Place of Correction, and the Exchange, in the latter of which there is a large Room raised upon Brick Arches, generally used for publick Entertainments, Concerts of Music, Balls, and Assemblies.

"The standing Militia of the Island consists of about 2300 Men, [Footnote: "The whole Number of the Inhabitants, exclusive of Females above sixty, according to a List returned to the Governour, in the Spring 1756, amounted to 10,468 Whites, and 4275 Negroes; but that Account is erroneous. It is most probable that there are in the City 15,000 Souls."] and the City has in Reserve, a thousand Stand of Arms for Seamen, the Poor and others, in Case of an Invasion.

"The North Eastern Part of New-York Island is inhabited, principally, by Dutch Farmers, who have a small Village there called Harlem, pleasantly Situated on a Flat cultivated for the City Markets."—Smith, The Hist. of Province of N. Y. from the First Discovery to the Year MDCCXXXII (London, 1757), 187-96. See 1757.

Walter Rutherford, writing in 1800, recorded that, in 1756, there were but "two houses of three stories" in New York; see, however, the Burgis View, of 1717, Pl. 25, Vol. I. Rutherford added: "A house rented for £40 where the Governours, Generals, Admirals, and principal strangers were entertained. Many houses in that street now [1800] rent for from £500 to £600 per annum."—Rutherford, Family Records and Events, 198. Compare with the list of private houses in New York in 1795.—Man. Com. Coun. (1855), 561.

— Because of a dispute on the question of psalmody, a part of the Wall Street Presbyterian Church withdrew in this year, and formed the Scotch Presbyterian or Associate Reformed Church. The congregation worshipped in a small wooden building on Little Queen (Cedar) St., between Broadway and Nassau St.—Wylie, Our Jubilee. The 150th Anniversary of the Scotch Presbyterian Church, New York 1756-1906, 13-14; Disoway, Earliest Churches in N. Y., 135-36. On the Ratzler Map (Pl. 41, Vol. I), which depicts the city as it was in 1766-7, it is called the "Seceders' Meeting." See also Pl. 42, Vol. I. It was occupied until 1763; and was replaced in 1768 (q. v.) by a more substantial structure of stone, 55 by 65 feet. This was occupied by Hessian troops during the Revolution, and, on Nov. 10, 1783, an appeal was made for funds to repair it. This church contained a pew for the governour, and a "gallery for persons of color." The edifice was still standing in 1828, at which time another Presbyterian church stood on the north side of the same street between Nassau and William Sts.—Picture of N. Y. (1828), 219, 220. The ground was sold on Oct. 13, 1836; and, in 1906, it was owned by the Equitable Life Assurance Society.

The second site of this congregation was on the north-east corner of Grand and Crosby Sts., where their church was erected in 1836 (q. v.). For its church history, see Our Jubilee, by Wylie (1906); Greenleaf, Hist. of the Churches of N. Y., 203-4; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 932.

Thomas Hamersly, silversmith, worked in New York in this year. Some specimens of his work are described in Met. Museum of Art. Cat. of Exhibition of Silver used in N. Y., N. J., and the South (1911), 30-31.

Gen. William Shirley writes from New York to the lords of trade in London, presenting the sketch of a plan that he proposes for the management of Indian affairs in North America under a single director-general. His plan comprises protection against the French; regulation of trade among them; regulation of the sale of their lands and protection of their hunting grounds; expelling the French missionaries, and introducing English Protestant ministers; convening general councils among them; establishing interviews between them and the English governours, and commissioners.—Correspondence of William Shirley, ed. by C. H. Lincoln (1912), II: 373-77.

Gen. Shirley proposes a winter campaign against Ticonderoga. The provincial council approves of his plan, and advises asking the assembly for the necessary means.—Cal. Coun. Min., 425. See Jan. 26.

Gov. Hardy reports to the lords of trade the amount of "Warlike Stores in the Magazine of this Fort." The list is not with the letter, but he observes: "Small arms we have none in the publick Magazine but six chests that belong to the four independent companies; this city has a stand of 1000 muskets, they provided last year; and what is in the possession of private People are chiefly for Indian Trade. The Militia are by law to furnish themselves each man one good muskett, with a due proportion of Ammunition, some of them are so indigent that they cannot purchase their proper arms. The Militia Law in Force in this Province, which I believe is not only the best, but the only one on the Continent that can effectually answer the good purposes of such a Law, will fully inform your Lordships of their musterings and training."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 2-3. See Feb. 19, 1755.

Gen. William Shirley, commander-in-chief of the English forces in America, causes a notice to be published calling for the enlistment of "Battoemen" for the following spring and summer. The notice contains detailed information concerning the pay, work, opportunity for advancement, etc.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 26, 1756.

Gen. Shirley leaves New York for Boston. "As he pass'd thro' Beaver street into Broad-Way, the Cannon on Fort-George kept firing."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 26, 1756. See Dec. 12 & 13, 1755.

For furnishing materials and building a kitchen in Fort George, the assembly allows £500 to Charles Jaudine; and for work on the governour's house, £172:8 is granted to Tenis Jacobs.—Assemb. Jour., II: 376-77. For further payment on house, see May 17, 1758.

The provincial council receives from Gen. Shirley his plan of operations, including the quota of the several colonies; the assembly is to be asked for an appropriation to raise 1,000 men.—Cal. Coun. Min., 425. See Jan. 29.

Gov. Hardy sends a message to the general assembly, transmitting the proceedings of the council of war held by Gen. Shirley at New York.—Jour. Leg. Coun., 1237. See Dec. 12 & 13.

The council receives the votes of the assembly for subsidising 1,000 men by new emission of bills of credit. The council advises the governour to consent to the continuance of the bills outstanding.—Cal. Coun. Min., 425.

The council issues a warrant to impress Johannes Quakenboss, Fy 9

1756

Jan. 5

9

16

19

21

24

26

27

29

1756 who is appointed head workman or director of the carpenters going Fy9 to Schenectady to build boats.—Cal. Coun. Min., 425. See Jan. 19.

A remarkable piece of mechanism, called the "Microcosm, or, The World in Miniature," which has been on exhibition in Philadelphia, is brought to New York. It was made by the late Henry Bridgman of London. It is a highly ornamental music-box, in the form of a Roman temple, with moving figures, astronomical representations, etc., which the late Prince of Wales "offer'd the Author Three Thousand Guineas for, and Two Hundred Pounds per Annum during his Life." It was placed on view in the assembly-room of the new Exchange on Broad St. until Feb. 23.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 2, 9, 16 et seq., 1756. On Feb. 16, a full column newspaper advertisement gave the following information about the mechanism:

"Its outward Structure is a most beautiful composition of Architecture, Sculpture and Painting. The inward Contents are as judiciously adapted to gratify the Ear, the Eye, and the Understanding; for it plays with great Exactness several fine Pieces of Music, and exhibits, by an amazing Variety of moving Figures, Scenes diversified with natural Beauties, Operations of Art, of human Employments and Diversions, all passing as in real Life, &c."

"1. Shews all the celestial Phenomena, with just Regard to the proportional Magnitudes of their Bodies, the figures of their Orbits, and the Periods of their Revolutions. . . . In particular will be seen the Trajectory and Type of a Comet, predicted by Sir Isaac Newton . . . likewise a Transit of Venus over the Sun's Disk . . . also a large and visible Eclipse of the Sun . . ."

"2. Are the nine Muses playing in Concert on divers musical Instruments, as the Harp, Hautboy, Bass Viol, &c."

"3. Is Orpheus in the Forest, playing on his Lyre, and beating exact Time to each Tune . . ."

"4. Is a Carpenter's Yard, wherein the various Branches of that Trade are most naturally represented, &c."

"5. Is a delightful Grove, wherein are Birds flying . . ."

"6. Is a fine Landskip, with a Prospect of the Sea, where Ships are sailing . . . On the Land are Coaches, Carts and Chaises passing along, with their Wheels turning round as if on a Road . . . and nearer, on a River, is a Gunpowder Mill at Work . . ."

"7. And lastly, is shewn the whole Machine in Motion, when upwards of twelve Hundred Wheels and Pinions are in Motion at once . . ."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 16, 1756.

A full column poem "On that Matchless Piece of Art, called The Microcosm," written "By an unknown Hand," appeared in the paper two weeks later.—Ibid., March 1, 1756. On two different occasions when Washington was in the city, he visited the exhibit, "treat Ladies to ye Microcosm" (see Feb. 15 and March 9).

13 Gov. Hardy recommends the erection of a pest-house.—Assemb. Jour., II: 482. See Oct. 19.

15 "Col. Washington, of and from Virginia, but last from Philadelphia," arrives in New York. He left on Feb. 20 for Boston, "there, tis thought to consult with General Shirley, Measures proper to be taken with several Tribes of Indians to the Southward, and particularly the Cherokees, some Hundreds of whom, from the back Parts of the two Carolinas, it is reported, have assured the Western Governments of their coming in, and firmly adhering to the Interest of the English, in Opposition to the French."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 16; N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 23, 1756.

A letter of Washington to Gov. Dinwiddie of Virginia, written just prior to his departure, gives further evidence that he was on official business. On the other hand, there is evidence that this first visit to New York of the young military officer of 24 had its social side as well. "Notes on his Journey to Boston," in the form of a table of expenditures, survive, and much may be read between the lines. Just before leaving Philadelphia, he notes:

"[Feb. 13 By Cash to the Taylor	21. 9.0	} Pensa. Money to the Hatter	2.14.
to the Jeweller	1. 7. 6
to the Sadlers	1. 9. 7
to the washer-woman	16.11

£27.17.0. is in Virga. Cury.

22. 5. 7½." While in New York, he notes, under "15 to 18" (February), the following expenses:

"By Cash for my Club at Tavern.	5.1	} New York for treat. Ladies to ye Mm. [Microcosm—See Feb. 9]	1. 8.

at Mrs. Baron's Rout	6	} New York
Club at Willets	4.2
Sadlers acct.	10.
A pr. of shoes	14.
Taylor's Bill	3. 3.7

£6.10.10. is in Virga.

Cury. 4. 14. ½." More expenses, from the 18th to the 25th, also in "New York M <sup>y</sup> ," include

"By cash, by a pr. of slippers	16.
treating Ladies to ye Microcosm	1. 4.
hiring a person to get horses	8.
Mr. Robinson's Servts.	1. 8.6.
lost at cards	8 "

—Writings of George Washington (ed. by Ford), I: 229-32. Washington returned to New York from Boston on March 9 (9.v.).

The population of the province of New York, taken from the returns of the sheriffs of the several counties of the province, in pursuance of warrants to them of this date, shows a total of 96,765, of whom 83,223 are whites. Of these, there are 13,040 in the city (and county) of New York, of whom 10,768 are whites.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to. ed.), I: 473; and the Miller Papers, Vol. II, in archives of the N. Y. Hist. Soc.

"Nine negroes were recently "whipt at the Whipping Post" for illegally assembling on Sunday, Feb. 8. Their offence was a violation of the provincial act aimed to prevent "the Conspiracy and Insurrection of Negro and other Slaves" (see Oct. 29, 1739); and also of the city ordinance which required that not more than three negroes should be seen together at one time, except in their own's service, under penalty of being whipped.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 16, 1756.

"A "Magazine to be erected in N. Y." is referred to in a letter from one William Elphinstone to William Alexander, asking for a clerkship there.—See Letter in the "Lord Stirling Papers" at N. Y. Hist. Soc. There appears to be no reference in the public records of the time to any proposed new magazine or powder-house, or to the writer of this letter; yet the letter indicates that a rumour of such proposed construction had spread abroad. Cf. Nov. 12, 1755.

18 John Winslow is commissioned by Gov. Shirley to be general and commander-in-chief over the forces to be raised in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Hampshire, New Jersey, and Rhode Island.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Engg. 649.

19 Another warrant is issued to Bancker and Dies, commissioners, for expenses in building New York fortifications.—Cal. Coun. Min., 425. These continued to be issued on April 23, May 29, July 5 and 10.—Ibid., 426, 428, 429. See also May 30, 1755, and June 8, 1757.

"The council orders the building of barracks near Whitehall Slip.—Cal. Coun. Min., 425. See also March 3.

"A provincial statute establishes the rates for wharfage and craning in New York City. The act recites that the "Several Wharfs called Burnetts Key the wharf between the Smiths Fly Slip and Burling's Slip all fronting to the East River or Harbour" have proved very servicable, but the laws fixing rates of wharfage have not secured full profits for the owners of these wharves. The proprietors of Rodman's Slip, of Burling's Slip, and of a wharf "extending in length from the Lot of Robert Livingston Esquire to the East end of the Lot of James Desbrots" (see March 14, 1754), all three slips being in the "Montgomery Ward," also seek the benefit of the rates for wharfage and craning. The rates to be charged on all of these wharves are therefore fixed. However, this act does not "impair the Right which the Mayor Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New York have to the Dock and the Several Slips herein before mentioned."—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 23-27. The province had previously passed an act fixing the rates for "Burnetts Key."—See June 22, 1734.

23 A long letter is published, defending New York against the slanders of New England newspapers. It is principally a defence of Gen. Johnson's conduct at the battle of Lake George. It contains the following: "They constantly speak of us in their public News Papers, as a Province whose whole Politicks consists in forming Schemes to enrich ourselves, at the Expence of every thing, that ought to be held sacred amongst Men, united together in civil Society: one need go no further back, than the last Boston Gazette, of February 2d. for Proof of this vile Aspersion, 'shou'd' another Expedition be form'd (says a Writer in that Paper) and manag'd just as the last was, it would bring Money into their

- 1756 Feb. 23 Coffers (meaning the People of New-York Government) which is the only Thing, so far as we can judge, that they desire."—N. Y. Merc., Supp., Feb. 23, 1756.
- Notice is given by Daniel O'Brien, "who some Years ago [see Sept. 24, 1753] first began, and ever since, with great Success, carried on, a Stage-Boat from this City to Amboy;—and likewise, (for the greater Expedition of Passengers and Goods,) first proposed Stage-Waggons from thence to Burlington, where Boats constantly attend the Carriage of Things to Philadelphia;—Has, from a Multiplicity of Business, been obliged to set up two Boats (extraordinary well fitted for Gentlemen, Ladies and others, as Passengers) to ply between New-York and Amboy; one of which Boats commanded by James Magee, is to give constant Attendance at the White-Hall Stairs, every Monday; and the other, being a commodious Sloop, commanded by Daniel O'Brien himself, will be kept ready to go off with Goods and Passengers from the same Place, every Thursday."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 23, 1756.
- 26 Trinity corporation and Dirck Dey draw up an agreement stating that, "Whereas the said Dirck Dey hath left fifteen foot of Ground in breadth from the Broadway to the North River on the North Side of his Ground Adjoining to the Churches Farm towards the making a Street there, But it being Consider'd That the Said Fifteen foot of Ground will not be Sufficient for half a Street It is Therefore Agreed Between the Said Parties That the Said Rector & Inhabitants Shall leave out of their Farm Twenty five feet of Ground in breadth from the said Broadway to the North River Adjoining the Said fifteen foot of Ground So left by the Said Dirck Dey So as to leave a Street there of Forty foot wide And the Said Dirck Dey in Consideration thereof Doth Covenant and Agree with the Said Rector & Inhabitants to pay to them or their Successors the Sum of Sixty Pounds Current Money of New York on or before the first day of May next." The street referred to was Partition Street (now Fulton Street, west of Broadway).—N. Y. Hist. Soc. Bulletin (Jan, 1924).
- 27 Samuel Francis, or Frances, famous in later years as the founder of the noted Frances Tavern, and as the steward of Washington's household, on this day dissolves partnership with James Taggart.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 14, 1756. They had been "Retailers of Strong Liquors." Taggart continued the business alone, and Frances opened a tavern, with the sign of the Mason's Arms, at Warren St. and Broadway. See March 19, 1759.
- Mar. 1 There is advertised to be let "The noted tavern wherein John Cregier now lives, between King's-Bridge and New-York, ten miles from the former, and four from the latter; 'tis very convenient for a house of entertainments, having six fire-places, with a good garden, stable, and many other conveniences. . . ." Applications are to be made to Johannes van Zandt.—N. Y. Merc., March 1, 1756. See account of the Cregiers under date of Aug. 9, 1753.
- 2 The council learns that Massachusetts will raise 3,000 men, and decides to recommend to the assembly that New York increase its quota.—Cal. Coun. Min., 425. See March 15 and 18.
- 3 Connecticut agrees to raise 2,500 men conditionally (but see April 13). New York will raise forces for service against the Indians. The council issues orders regarding the building and altering of barracks (see Feb. 19).—Cal. Coun. Min., 425.
- 8 Old linen being "extremely much wanted for the Use of the Hospital in this City," James Murray, apothecary, advertises that he will pay "full Value" for it. The women of the city are urged also to donate old or new linen for hospital use.—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 8, 1756. See also Sept. 29, 1755.
- 9 Col. Washington returns "hither from Boston . . . in his Way home to Virginia."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 15, 1756. Referring again (see Feb. 15) to his "Notes on his Journey to Boston," we find that his previous expenditures are dwarfed by those made just prior to his return to this city, such as (in Massachusetts money) "For a Hatt 12. 10. Silver lace 94. 17. 1 Tailors Bill 95. 7. 3 2 pr. of Gloves 1. 18. 1"—Writings of Geo. Washington, I: 233. Ford says that the colonel, while in New York, was the guest of "a Virginian friend, Beverly Robinson, who had the good luck to marry Susannah Phillips, a daughter of Frederick Phillips, one of the largest landed proprietors of the colony of New York. Here he met the sister, Mary Phillips, then a girl of twenty-five, and, short as was the time, it was sufficient to engage his heart. To this interest no doubt are due the entries, in his accounts of sundry pounds spent 'for treating Ladies' and for the large tailors' bills then incurred."—Ford, The True George Washington, 90.
- One of the ferry-boats of Otto van Tyle and Abraham Bockee (see Jan. 16, Sept. 22, 1755) from Staten Island is sunk near Oyster Island by high seas, and Denyse van Tyle with ten other men and three horses are drowned.—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 15, 1756. For the location of Oyster Island, see and compare Pls. 40 and 45, Vol. I.
- The king has appointed the Earl of Loudoun commander-in-chief of all his forces in America, and expects the "governors in North America" to co-operate with him in every way possible.—N. Y. Cal. Docs., VII: 75. See, further, March 25.
- River Indians come to New York with complaints to the provincial council regarding their treatment by the white people. While here they boarded at the tavern of Adam van den Bergh (see Oct. 11, 1742), whom the council paid on April 23 for their expenses.—Cal. Coun. Min., 426.
- Rhode Island has voted to raise 500 men. Massachusetts will increase her contingent to 3,500.—Cal. Coun. Min., 426.
- An advertisement reads: "Engraving in gold, silver, copper, and other metals, by John Lamb, at Sir Isaac Newton's head, on Hunter's Key, New York."—N. Y. Merc., March 15, 1756. Lamb was also a silversmith.—Stauffer, Am. Engravers on Copper and Steel, I: 155.
- St. Patrick's Day is observed by Irishmen in the city with "a grand Entertainment at the Crown and Thistle near Whitehall: at which were present His Excellency our Governor, who wore a Cross in Honour of the Day; sundry Members of his Majesty's Council, and others of the General Assembly of this Province."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 22, 1756.
- New Jersey has voted to raise 200 men. New York assembly increases the quota to 1,715. The council issues a proclamation calling for volunteers.—Cal. Coun. Min., 426.
- For the benefit of a poor man, a concert of "Vocal and Instrumental Music" is announced to be held on this day at the city hall where "a New Organ, made by Gilbert Ash," will be used. Tickets may be had "at Mr. Cobham's in Hanover-Square, at the Gentleman's Coffee-House, at the Bible & Crown in Queen-street, and at Mr. Ash's, joining Mr. Willet's in Wall-street."—N. Y. Merc., March 8, 1756.
- Luke Clarke, who "lately lived with Mr. John Thompson [Scotch Johnny], Tavern-Keeper, near the White-Hall Sign," announces that he is now keeping the "noted Tavern formerly kept by Mr. Benjamin Kierstead, behind the Work-House."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 22, 1756.
- "To be sold by Thomas White, at his store in the house of Mrs. Farara, in Queen-street, within two doors of the sign of the Bible & Crown, a parcel of choice Bristol short pipes, by the box."—N. Y. Merc., March 22, 1756. Mrs. Ferrara had removed her tavern to Maiden Lane before May 1, 1760, when she mortgaged the house and lot to Charles Arding.—Liber Mortgages, I: 171. She was still in Maiden Lane on July 31, 1769 (q. v.), when the well-known traveller, and artist, Du Simitiere, announced that he was lodging at her house; but she had taken over the old Merchant's Coffee House on Wall and Water Sts. some time prior to April 29, 1772 (q. v.), when she advertised that she was removing into the new coffee-house on the opposite cross-corner.
- A London letter of this date states that Lord Loudoun (see June 29) is to leave Great Britain the beginning of April, for America, "with the several Regiments under this Command, and a proper Convoy; there to dispute his Majesty's Right by Sword, . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 24, 1756.
- An attempt to burn Fort George is discovered. Three men, "Deserters from the King's Forces, had been taken and confined in a Place under the Ramparts, which had formerly been a Magazine, and its supposed they set Fire to some Combustibles left in it, which burnt the Door open; but by the timely Help of the Inhabitants, it was extinguished, with little other Damage than the three Men's Death, who were found suffocated at the Bottom of the Steps, . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 5, 1756.
- "A Small Quantity of Gun-Powder, and Tobacco is to be Sold, at Public Vendue, . . . at Eleven o'Clock, at the King's Store House on the Flat-Rock-Battery."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 29, 1756. See Supp. Landmark List, Vol. IV.
- Henry Fox, the first Lord Holland, secretary of war and state, writes from Whitehall to Gov. William Shirley (of Mass.) ordering him to come back to England to give information on affairs in North America, and informing him that Colonel Webb is appointed commander-in-chief in North America in his place.—From the

- 1756 original "A. L. S.," sold by Henkels, Phila., Oct. 22, 1919. See, Apr. however, June 24.
- Mc13 Oliver de Lancey, Beverly Robinson, and John Cruger are commissioned as paymasters and commissaries of the forces. They were given instructions on April 8.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 651.
- Apr. The council advises the governor to sign the bills, received 1 from the assembly, for paying debts due from the colony and for raising 1,715 men.—Cal. Coun. Min., 426.
- 2 The death of James Alexander occurs. He was not only an eminent lawyer, a member of the provincial council, and attorney-general, distinguished by "his superior Knowledge and long Experience in public Affairs," but in "these Parts of the World few Men surpassed him either, in the natural Sagacity and Strength of his intellectual Powers, or in his Literary Acquirements," and in "the mathematical Sciences his Researches were very great."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 5, 1756. For brief sketch of his life, see Man. Com. Coun. (1864), 563.
- " The auditing committee of the common council reports that the treasury has a balance of but £14:1, while the outstanding debts due to the city total £2,827:3:9.—M. C. C., VI, 49.
- " The common council orders that the committee appointed Aug. 7, 1755 (q.v.), to take charge of the arms then imported shall purchase "fifty pound Weight of Pistoll powder and Ball in proportion to fit," make them into cartridges, and "fill the Cartridge Boxes belonging to the City arms."—M. C. C., V, 49, 64.
- 13 The council learns from Gov. Morris of Pennsylvania that his government will raise 400 men to build a fort at Shamokin, and then march against the Indians; also that a reward for scalps has been offered of which he does not approve. The council refers the letter to Sir William Johnson.—Cal. Coun. Min., 426.
- Connecticut will supply 2,500 men, unconditionally. New Hampshire has voted to raise 500 men.—Ibid., 426.
- The council at New York orders independent companies to proceed to Albany; and the militia to do guard duty in Fort George during their absence.—Ibid., 426.
- 14 The last body of the king's forces, which have wintered at Fort George, in New York, embark for Albany, and the inhabitants of the city begin to mount guard at the fort.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 19, 1756.
- " There is delivered to Gov. Hardy a schedule of papers relating to Spanish free negroes, many of whom are held in bondage in this province. These documents consist of correspondence of the last six years between the governor of St. Augustine and Gov. Clinton, with lists of such negroes, and affidavits relating to them, showing their names, and the names and locations of persons with whom they are living. Contrary to the law of nations, many of these negroes have been captured on merchantmen at sea by privateers, and sold into slavery at New York. Letters and documents show an agreement between Great Britain and Spain that all prizes made after Aug. 9, 1748, should be restored; under which agreement, the claim was made that certain Spanish prisoners in New York (in 1752 and later) should be restored to their vessels. Courts of vice-admiralty were held in New York to hear some of these cases, to determine whether certain negroes were free or slave.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 660-63. See Sept. 24.
- 19 The "New Exchange" is designated as the place for the election of 12 trustees for the New York Society Library, on the last Tuesday in April.—N. Y. Merc., April 19, 1756.
- 21 The provincial council is informed that Oswego is besieged by French and Indians; and that Sir Wm. Johnson intends to march for its relief, and has ordered militia to reinforce Forts William Henry, and Edward. Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey is to go to Albany.—Cal. Coun. Min., 426.
- 23 Oliver de Lancey, Beverly Robinson, and John Cruger, paymasters of the forces, receive warrants for paying the troops.—Cal. Coun. Min., 426.
- 26 On this day a census return is made of the inhabitants of New York City, among census returns from the several counties bearing various dates from April 1 to Nov. 22.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 651. The figures are not printed in the Calendar.
- 30 The provincial council, on being informed that people are being sent to New York from Nova Scotia (Acadians or French neutrals) by order of Gov. Lawrence, gives directions as to how to place them. On May 6, the council records show that the several families of Acadians were distributed to various points on Long Island, Staten Island, and in Westchester Co.—Cal. Coun. Min., 427. See also Wilson, Mem. Hist. of N. Y., II, 309.
- The governor and council order the issuing of a proclamation for a day of fasting.—Cal. Coun. Min., 427. See May 1 and 21.
- On proving cannon in the Fields this month, a 32-pounder belonging to the battery burst, and destroyed an 18-pounder nearby. The next day a 12-pounder broke, and later three others.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 24, 1756.
- A proclamation is issued for a day of fasting and humiliation, on account of the earthquake, which was very severe in both this and the neighbouring colonies.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 652.
- A committee is appointed by the common council "To Remove the Gallows from where it now Stands [City Hill Pl. between Pearl and Duane Sts.] to the place where the Negroes were Burnt Some five years ago, at the foot of the Hill Called Catiemuts Hill near the fresh water" (intersection of Pearl and Centre Sts.).—M. C. C., VI, 51. See also May 10, 1756. For an early use of the new gallows see Feb. 4, 1757. For locations of the gallows on the modern plan of the city, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III, 972.
- The council issues a warrant to James Parker for the expense of printing bills of credit.—Cal. Coun. Min., 427.
- The subject of strengthening the fortifications, and particularly of providing musket-proof "mantlets," is also considered by the council.—Ibid., 427.
- A counterfeiter, described as "the forty thousand Pound Mooney-maker," is haaged, his execution having been deferred from the 7th for want of a hangman, and because of the cutting down of the gallows by persons unknown.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 10, 1756. Before dying, he confessed to having struck off nearly £12,000 of Rhode Island money; about the same amount of New Hampshire money; £3,000 of Connecticut money, and of New York money to have "printed large Sumcs of four different Emissions." When asked the denomination of these bills, he refused to say, leaving it, he said, to their learning to find out, and "so died obstinate."—Ibid., May 17, 1756.
- Elizabeth Wragge advertises a school "to teach young Masters and Misses the first Rudiments of Learning viz. A Gentle Behaviour, Spelling, Reading, and Needle work etc."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 10, 1756.
- Louis Joseph, Marquis de Montcalm, informs Gov. Vaudreuil that he has arrived at Quebec to assume command of the French forces in place of Baron Dieskau.—Journal du Marquis de Montcalm durant ses Campagnes en Canada, de 1756 à 1759, 64; Parkman, Montcalm and Wolfe, I, 362-68.
- After fighting the French for two years, Great Britain makes an open declaration of war by act of parliament. France formally declared war against Great Britain on June 19.—Thwaites, France in America, 198. On June 22, hostilities were formally proclaimed at Albany, the declaration having been brought by express to Gov. Hardy, then in that city.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 2, 1756.
- Gov. Hardy proclaims this a day of "general and publick Fast," because of the preservation of the colony during the recent earthquakes (the great Lisbon earthquake of Nov. 1, q.v., which was felt in New York on Nov. 18, q.v., 1755), and to implore divine protection for the king, his family, his kingdom, his colonies, and his fleets and armies.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 3, 1756. Pennsylvania also observes the day as one of fast and humiliation.—Ibid., May 10, 1756.
- Vessels containing provisions are forbidden to leave port. For an earlier order, see July 25, 1755. This action corresponded to that taken in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.—Cal. Coun. Min., 428. Exceptions were made in certain cases on June 10 and 24, and July 5.—Ibid., 428. The embargo was continued by council order of July 10 (ibid., 429); was taken off Nov. 27 (ibid., 431), and was again imposed, with certain limitations, by order of the lords of trade, on Dec. 29 (q.v.).
- The council orders that cannon belonging to private persons be mounted on the river front.—Cal. Coun. Min., 428.
- In a long editorial, James Parker objects to the recruiting of men for Halifax, which has taken, among others, an employee of the Post-Boy, whose duty it was to deliver the paper. The editor observes: "To have it [the Province] pilged of our best Men, by a foreign set of Cormorants, is almost insupportable."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 24, 1756. The editorial is significant as reflecting the spirit of the times.
- Benjamin Palmer gives public notice that he proposes to erect a "Free-Bridge" across the Harlem River, since "the toll charged on the Kings-Bridge [see June 12, 1693], is thought a heavy tax upon the publick." He intends to raise funds for building the 1756 bridge through subscription papers.—N. Y. Merc., May 24, 1756.

 May When completed, this bridge, known as the "Farmers' Bridge," 24 crossed the creek from the modern Muscoota St., Manhattan, to Muscoota St., The Bronx. The creek was filled in and the bridge finally discontinued in Aug., 1911 (q. v.).—Ann. Rep., Dept. of Bridges (1912), 282; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 925.

28 An account of Dies and Bancker, for moneys laid out for the fortifications in New York and elsewhere, bears this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 653. Their next account was dated July 5.—Ibid., 654.

29 An attempt is made to set fire to the Lutheran Church "by conveying a Number of live Coals in a Quantity of Rags and Shavings into the said Church." But the fire is discovered before it can make any headway. The elders and deacons of the church offered a reward of £5 for the arrest of the incendiaries.—N. Y. Post-Boy,
 June 14, 1756.

31 This is the day set by Dr. Johnson, president of King's College, for the beginning of examinations for admission to the third class.
 Two years have nearly passed "since the Beginning of Tuition in the College of New-York."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 24, 1756.

" Peter Durand, "lately from Holland," advertises that he "intends to teach Gentlemen and Ladies to read and write French, and likewise Singing. . . . He may be spoke with at James Heroy's, near Alderman Benson's."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 31, 1756.
 The advertisement is typical of those of the period.

June The names of several Moravians and Quakers are enrolled in the 10 clerk's office in the city.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 652. A similar enrollment was made May 19, 1755 (q. v.).

14 Bernard Lintot, "at Mr. Graham's near the New-Exchange," advertises, "The best superfine and other Cloths, figur'd Broilios, Fustians, scarlet and black Baze, Everlastings, Serge, Denim, etc., likewise fine Irish Cloth, Bleafey, Brown Hollands, Buckrams, Shalloons, glazed Linnens, a great variety of Silk and Worsted Lace, fine Sweet oil, Starch, Stone and Powder Blue, Sealing-Wax, Brushes of all sorts, the best superfine Cards, and sundry other Articles," which have just been imported from London.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 14. The following year, the "corner-house (late Edward Graham's) near the exchange, wherein Mr. Delanoy oow lives," was advertised for sale.—Ibid., Jan. 10, 1757.

15 After a passage of nine weeks and three days out of Plymouth, the "Grafton," of 74 guns, and the "Nothingham," of 60 guns, with four transports under their convoy, arrive at Sandy Hook, two other transports having become separated from the others in a storm. In the "Grafton" come Major-Gen. Abercrombie, commander-in-chief of the British forces in North America (second in command under Loudoun), Capt. James Abercrombie, of the Highlanders, as aid-de-camp, and Lieut. William Abercrombie, of the Royal American Regiment. The "Grafton" being "too large to come into the Hook, they came up to the city on the following morning in one of the Transports, and were saluted by the Cannon on the Battery."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 21, 1756. On the 22d they left for Albany.—Ibid., June 28, 1756.

17 By order of Gov. Hardy, Capt. Hunt, in the "Olive Branch," sails down to the "Grafton" and "Nothingham," men-of-war, which lie at anchor outside the Hook, with a present of "two large fat Oxen, upwards of forty Sheep, most Kind of Roots and Greens, Cherries, &c."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 21, 1756.

24 A letter from Henry Fox, secretary of state, informs the provincial council that the Earl of Loudoun has been appointed commander-in-chief in America. The council also considers the subject of recruiting; a parliamentary grant, for the war, to New York, New Jersey, and New England; indentured servants, and trade with the French.—Cal. Coun. Min., 428.

27 Abercrombie, at Albany, billets his soldiers upon private houses, and proceeds to while away the summer.—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 5, 1756.

28 Imported arms and ammunition are advertised for sale by local tradesmen of New York. For example, on June 28, muskets and swivel-guns; on July 5, small arms and gunpowder; on Aug.
 9, cannon-shot and hand-grenade shells; and on Dec. 26, 1757, cannon powder, French pike muskets, bayonets, and bullets.—
N. Y. Post-Boy, of the dates mentioned.

29 Gov. Hardy informs the assembly that the Earl of Loudoun has been appointed commander-in-chief of all the British forces in North America (see July 26, 1756), and that it is the king's pleasure that the regiments in America shall "be recruited as soon as possible to their full Complement" of 1,000 men each. Parliament has given £15,000 to be distributed in the provinces of New England,

 New York, and New Jersey.—Assemb. Jour., II: 493. See Aug. 16.

From this month until Jan., 1763, 128 privateers belonging to this port were fitted out for service in the war. For their names, with the number of their guns, and names of their commanders, see Man. Com. Coun. (1870), 868-72. See also Nov. 22.

1 Mayor Holland shows the common council "the Modell of a Hay Machine, for the weighing of Hay for Sale in this City." It is resolved that three of these machines be erected: "one at or near the White Hall Slip, in the South ward, one other at or near the Oswego Market in the west ward, and one other near the Widow Van Curen's in Montgomerie ward."—M. C., VI: 58-59.

2 The assembly, resolving itself into a committee of the whole house on the subjects contained in the governor's message of June 29, reviews various measures of defence for the province, undertaken at the expense of the province, and records, among other things, the observation that "the Provision of, Twenty Thousand Pounds, made to erect Fortifications for the Defence of the City of New-York; which, though no trifling Sum, is an Expence that most of the other Colonies have been Strangers to, since the late Incroachments and violent Proceedings of the Enemy" (see also Sept. 27). Asserting "That this Colony has already greatly exerted itself, in raising Men and Money for recovering his Majesty's just Rights in America, more particularly the last Year . . .," the committee of the whole house records the opinion "that when a common Fund shall be established for the general Uses of American Affairs, by his Majesty's other Colonies on the Continent, this Colony ought then to continue to contribute its just Share towards such Fund (having already begun a Contribution of that Kind, by granting Five Thousand Pounds, to the Colony of Virginia, and Five Thousand Pounds more, chiefly disposed of by General Braddock's Directions) and that the same be issued and applied to the general Service, in such Manner as the Captain General shall direct."—Assemb. Jour., II: 496. See also description of Pl. 46A-C, I: 360; and Dec. 3, 1755.

4 Gov. William Shirley, in a letter to Henry Fox, secretary of state in London, announces his arrival from Albany, where, on June 13, he was in receipt of orders (see March 31) to return to England, the Earl of Loudoun having been appointed to succeed him as commander-in-chief. In this and in several letters immediately following, he reported upon the military situation as he left it.
 In a letter to Secretary Fox, of July 26, he announced: "Tomorrow
 I purpose to embark for Boston, and upon the Arrival of the Frigate there which is appointed to carry me to England, I shall lose no time for going on board it."—Correspondence of William Shirley, II: 478-92; N. Y. Merc., July 12, 1756. See July 23.

5 A proclamation is issued notifying those who enlist in the king's regiments that, on their discharge, they shall have a grant of 200 acres of land each, in the province of New York, New Hampshire, or Nova Scotia.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 654.

" It is ordered by the governor and council that a battery be erected near Coenties Dock.—Cal. Coun. Min., 429.

6 The assembly receives from a number of freemen and freeholders of the city a complaint against a house built by Henry Brasier in the Montgomerie Ward, "across Orange and Montgomery Streets." The building not only obstructs passage from one street to the other, but also the attendance upon service in St. George's Chapel. As Brasier has refused many advantageous offers for his property for a public street, the petitioners ask the assembly to remove the building and convert the ground for this purpose.—Assemb. Jour., II: 497.

7 The council receives a letter from Gen. Shirley asking for battering cannon for the Crown Point expedition; and one from Maj.-Gen. Abercrombie, who affirms that more artillery is necessary.
 Gov. Hardy intends going to Albany.—Cal. Coun. Min., 429.

8 Six "18 Pounders" are "taken off our Battery, and shipped on board a Sloop for Albany; We hear they are to be employed in the Crown-Point Expedition."—N. Y. Merc., July 12, 1756.

10 The governor gives instructions to the council before his departure for Albany. Repairs on Fort George are to be completed.—Cal. Coun. Min., 429. See July 11. He was in Albany from July 19 (q. v.) to Aug. 11 (q. v.).

" The council orders that the great seal of the province be repaired.—Cal. Coun. Min., 429.

11 Sir Charles Hardy goes up the river to Albany with Mr.
 De Lancey and Mr. Chambers.—Smith's Continuation, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1832), 235; N. Y. Merc., July 12, 1756.

- 1756 According to a notice of July 5, signed "Lamb. Moore, Cl.", a meeting of the governors of the "College of the Province of New York" (King's College) was scheduled to be held on this day "at the House of Edward Willet, at the Sign of the New-York Arms."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 5, 1756. This tavern was again selected the next month as the meeting-place of Gov. Hardy and other persons of note, when they participated in laying the cornerstone of King's College.—See Aug. 23. In 1762, when John Crowley was proprietor, meetings of the governors of the college were still held here.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 3, 1762.
- At this meeting, plans for a college building, already approved by Gov. Hardy, are adopted by the board of governors.—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 20. For the cornerstone laying, see Aug. 23.
- 19 There is held in Albany a conference, or council meeting, attended by Gov. Hardy, Lieut.-Gov. De Laezy, Sir Wm. Johnson, and Mr. Chambers. The defence of Oswego is considered.—Cal. Coun. Min., 429.
- 22 The assembly of Philadelphia orders an address to be transmitted to Benjamin Franklin, one of its members, "now at New York, to be by him presented to General Shirley in the Name and Behalf of this House." The address is one of thanks for Shirley's expression of appreciation of that colony's conduct during the war, and of hope for his safety during his voyage to England.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 16, 1756.
- 23 The Earl of Loudoun, "General and Commander in Chief of all his Majesty's Forces in North America, Colonel of the Royal America Regiments, and Governor of Virginia" (see June 29), arrives on the "Nightingale" man-of-war, and comes up to the city from Sandy Hook in a pilot boat, between three and four o'clock in the morning. "His Lordship thus taking the Advantage of the City in coming up so privately, prevented the Inhabitants giving that publick Testimony of Joy and Respect on his Arrival as was intended, by their appearing under Arms: And when at Suarise it was noticed to him their Intention still to master, he recommended it as needless. However, when he was conducted to his House at Whitehall, the Guns on the Battery fired, being about Six o'Clock in the Morning." At about 11 o'clock, such members of the council and the general assembly as were then in town waited upon him with congratulations on his safe arrival, and with thanks for engaging in so important a service. "As did likewise at the same Time the Mayor and Corporation, the Clergy, and all the Gentlemen in Town:—And at Night the City was handsomely illuminated."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 26, 1756.
- Benjamin Franklin, in his autobiography (written in 1771), probably referred to the events of July 23 when he described incidents which he witnessed "at the entertainment given by the city of New York to Lord Loudoun on his taking upon him the command," in place of Gen. Shirley.—Works of Benj. Franklin (ed. by Bigelow), I: 289.
- Gov. Hardy being still in Albany on the arrival of the Earl of Loudoun with the king's declaration of war against France, expresses are immediately dispatched to him.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 2, 1756. See further, July 31.
- The Earl of Loudoun was accompanied on the voyage to New York by Mr. Pownall, the secretary of the British board of trade.
- Gen. Shirley, who had returned to New York on July 4, awaited Loudoun's arrival, and, on Aug. 1, sailed to Providence for Boston, and thence to England, and was followed a fortnight afterward by Mr. Pownall.—Smith's Continuation in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1830), 235; Dickerson, Am. Colonial Government (1912), 74, 77. See Aug. 3.
- " A French prize, the "Centaur," is brought into port by the "Nightingale" man-of-war. It is a vessel of 350 tons, loaded with sugar, cotton, and coffee; has a crew of 30 men, and is pierced for 20 guns, six having been thrown overboard before she was captured. The prize is valued at £20,000.—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 26, 1756.
- " Oliver de Lancey, by letter to Gov. Hardy, asks for a commission for the sloop "Hardy" as a privateer, of which he and Messrs. Cruger, Watts, and Henry Cayler, Jr., are owners.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 657.
- 26 The Earl of Loudoun (see June 29) receives an address from the speaker and several members of the general assembly (see Assemb. Jour., II: 499), expressing the determination that "every Measure calculated for His Majesty's Service and the Security and Prosperity of his America Subjects, will be executed with the utmost vigour."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 2, 1756.
- Gov. Hardy writes from Albany to Archibald Kennedy, the presiding councillor, evidently, under Hardy's instructions of July 10, to take measures to prevent the introduction into New York of the small-pox, which is raging in Philadelphia.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 657.
- Gov. Hardy writes to Mr. Kennedy that he has published the declaration of war in Albany, and orders that it be published in New York City and throughout the province.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 657.
- A report is made to the common council on the laying out and regulating for the paving of Cherry Street.—M. C. C., VI: 60-61. Cherry Street was originally laid out prior to 1730, and was first shown on the Carwitham Plan, Pl. 27, Vol. I. It was ordered continued to Rutgers' Slip, May 28, 1790.—M. C. C. (MS.), IX: 390.
- An order is received by the council in New York from Gov. Hardy, at Albany, to publish at the city hall the king's declaration of war against France, which he sends.—Cal. Coun. Min., 429. At four in the afternoon, the proclamation is read at Fort George before all the members of the council and assembly who are in town, the civil and military officers, and the magistrates of the city. After the usual drinking of healths, the company proceed to the city hall, where the proclamation is again published, "After which the Company proceeded to the City-Arms, where His Majesty's immortal Memory, and numberless other loyal Healths were repeated, and every Thing conducted with great Order and Decency."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 2, 1756.
- " We owe have in this Harbour, fitted out, and fitting for Privateers, one Snow, two Brigs, one Schooner, and five Sloops; and we are told there are several large Vessels to be immediately put on the Stocks, and finished with all Expedition, in order to cruise against his Majesty's Enemies" (the French).—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 2, 1756. See also description of Pl. 35, I: 276.
- Major-Gen. Shirley sails from New York to Rhode Island.—N. Y. Letter in The Penn. Gaz., Aug. 12, 1756. See July 4 and 23.
- Gov. Hardy, about to leave Albany for New York, issues a warrant to Sir John St. Clair to impress materials for building, artificers, workmen, labourers, bateaux, etc., for the public service.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 658; Cal. Coun. Min., 429.
- Ten transports from Plymouth arrive at Sandy Hook. They carry "about 900 Men, including a Number of Officers, and some private Men for the Royal American Regiment, and a very complete Train of Artillery, besides the Teats and Arms belonging to Lord John Murray's Highland Regiment, and a vast Quantity of all Kinds of Warlike Stores." On Aug. 16 and 17 (q.v.), the transports came up to New York.—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 23, 1756.
- Fort Ontario (Oswego) capitulates to Montcalm.—Parkman, Montcalm and Wolfe, I: 405-16, and authorities there cited.
- Sir Charles Hardy returns to New York, "disgusted with the Earl of Loudoun, who had checked his intermeddling in military concerns, and denied his request of two independent companies for his guards."—Smith's Continuation of the Hist. of N. Y. in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1830), V: 235-36.
- One Edward Thompson, an officer of the British navy, writes from his ship, anchored in New York Bay: ". . . I had no idea of finding a place in America, consisting of near 2,000 houses, elegantly built of brick, raised on an eminence and the streets paved and spacious, furnished with commodious keys and ware-houses and employing some hundreds of vessels in its foreign trade and fisheries—but such is this city that a very few in England can rival it in its show, gentility and hospitality. . . . There are very few Indians on this island, being all either cut off by intestine wars or diseases; the laborious people in general are Guinea negroes, who lie under particular restraints from the attempts they have made to massacre the inhabitants for their liberty, which is ever desired by those (you find) who never knew the enjoyment of it. . . ."—Wilson, Mem. Hist. N. Y., II: 314.
- The following advertisements are published:
- " Lately come to this City from Philadelphia, John Elliott, who hangs House and Cabin Bells, in the neatest and most convenient Manner, as done at London, with Cranks and Wires, which are 'oot liable to be put out of Order, as those do with Pullies. He also gives ready Money for broken Looking-Glasses; and may be heard of at John Haydock's, in the Fly, opposite Beakman's Slip."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 16, 1756.

1756 "Wanted in an airy Part of the Town, somewhere between
Aug. Pearl street and Oswego Market up the Broad-Way [at Liberty 16 St.] a good convenient Dwelling-house, the Yearly Rent not to exceed Forty Pounds per Annum."—Ibid., Aug. 16, 1756.

" Merchants of New York petition the governour to remove the embargo against the exportation of provisions.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 658. It is so ordered.—Cal. Coun. Min., 429.

16 Eleven transports come up from Sandy Hook, where they arrived on the night of Aug. 14 (q.v.) from Plymouth, under convoy 18 of H. M. S. "Stirling Castle," of 70 guns.

"The Money brought by the Stirling Castle, amounting to £115,000 Sterling, in Silver and Gold, for reimbursing the Provinces Part of the Charge of last Year's Campaign, was landed here on Wednesday last [Aug. 18], and filled 24 Carts."—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 23, 1756. This was the precise sum granted by parliament.
—See June 24 and 29; Cf. Aug. 19.

19 A vessel from Glasgow (Capt. Galbraith) arrives with 100 Highlanders for Lord John Murray's Regiment . . . conveyed Part of the Way by a Bomb Ketch."—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 23, 1756.
See also J. P. Lean's Historical Account of the Settlements of the Scotch Highlanders in Am., Prior to the Peace of 1785 (Cleveland, 1900).

"The provincial council receives a letter from Mr. West, secretary of the treasury in England, regarding the quota of money granted by parliament (see June 24), New York's share being transmitted with a letter from Messrs. Tomlinson and Hanburg. On Aug. 21, the provincial treasurer reported to the council on the subject of this fund.—Cal. Coun. Min., 430. See also Aug. 16 to 18.

22 Mayor Holland makes a report concerning French neutrals sent back from Georgia.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 658. The provincial council gave orders accordingly on Aug. 24 for their distribution.—Cal. Coun. Min., 430. For their names and destination, see ibid., 427, 430, under dates of May 6 and Aug. 25. These evidently were Acadians, as appears by the record of April 30 (q.v.).
They were under strict surveillance.—See ibid., 434 (July 11).

23 The "First Stone of King's College" is laid, by Gov. Hardy.
The news report of the event states that "the Honourable James De Lancey, Esq; our Lieutenant Governor, with the Governors of the College, and Mr. Cutting, the Tutor [vide infra], with the Students, met at Mr. Willett's, and thence proceeded to the House of Mr. Vandenberg, at the Common, whither his Excellency came in his Chariot, and proceeded with them about One o'Clock to the College Ground, near the River on the North-west Side of the City, where a Stone was prepared, with the following Inscription;
. . . " This was inaccurately quoted in the newspaper; it was printed as follows in Hist. of Columbia Univ., 21, from the original stone, which is still preserved by the university:

HVJVS COLLEGI, REGALIS DICTI, REGIO
DIPLOMATE CONSTITVTI IN HONOREM
DEI O.M. ATQ; IN ECCLESIE REIG; PVBLICE
EMOLVMENTVM, PRIMVM HVNC LAPIDEM POSVIT
VIR PRÆCEL LENTISSIMVS, CAROLVS HARDY, ÆQVVS AVARATVS, HVJVS PROVINCIÆ
PRÆFECTVS DIGNISSIMVS. AVGTI. DIE 23<sup>a</sup> AN.
DOM. MDCCCLVI

The newspaper account gives the English translation thus:
"This first Stone of this College, called King's, established by Royal Charter, for the Honour of Almighty God, and the Advancement of the public Good, both in Church and State, was laid by his Excellency Sir Charles Hardy, Knight, the very Worthy Governor of this Province, August 23d, An. Dom. 1756." The account continues:

"After the Stone was laid, a Health was drank to his Majesty, and Success to his Arms, and to Sir Charles, and Prosperity to the College, and to the Advancement of true Religion, Loyalty, and Learning, under his Administration; Upon which the Reverend, Dr.
Johnson, President of the College, made the following short congratulatory Speech in Latin. . . " The Latin address is printed in full; and is followed by its English translation, thus:

"Gentlemen, the worthy Governors of this College, established by Royal Charter, ["Addressing the Governors of the College"]
"I do most Heartily Congratulate you on this happy Occasion of laying the first Stone of this Edifice; and that his Excellency Sir Charles Hardy, Knight, our most worthy Governor, hath condescended to do us this Honour . . . And, ["Turning to the Governor"] Most honoured Sir, I gladly take this Opportunity, in the Name of this Corporation, very humbly to thank your Excellency, both for the Favour you have now done us, and for your most generous and noble Donation, towards promoting this Foundation; on which Account, your Memory shall ever be dear, both to us and our Posterity. . . . And you also, Honour'd Sir, ["Turning to the Lieutenant Governor"] the worthy Lieutenant Governor of this Province, who have founded this College on a Royal Charter, to whom we do moreover render our humblest Thanks. . . . May God Almighty grant, that this College, thus happily founded, may ever be enriched with his Blessing; that it may be increased and flourish, and be carried on to its intire Perfection, to the glory of his Name, and the Advancement of his true Religion and good Literature; and to the Greatest Advantage of the publick Weal, to all Posterities for evermore."

The account closes:

"Which being done, the Governors and Pupils laid each his Stone, and several other Gentlemen, and then they returned to Mr. Willett's; where there was a very elegant Dinner; after which all the usual local Healths were drank, and Prosperity to the College; and the whole was conducted with the utmost Decency and Propriety."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 30, 1756.

The "Tutor" referred to in this account "was Mr. Leonard Cutting, of Pembroke Hall, Cambridge, England, who replaced
Mr. William Johnson [see 1755] in 1756, the latter having gone to England to take orders in the Episcopal Church."—Hist. of Columbia Univ., 21. The meeting-place, "Mr. Willett's," was the Province Arms (or "City Arms"), at the present No. 115 Broadway.
—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 977. The "House of Mr. Van-denbergh" was west of Broadway, between Vesey and Barclay Sts.—Ibid., III: 981. For an outline history of this building, with references to views in this work, see ibid., III: 940.

At some period after the laying of the corner-stone, the college governours sent an undated letter to the Bishop of London, saying in part: ". . . we are also building a neat and convenient edifice for public Schools & Lodgings (being one side of a Quadrangle hereafter to be carried on) on a very valuable and most agreeably situated lot of Ground adjoining to this City which is a donation of the Rector Church wardens & vestry of Trinity Church."— Extract from documents of the Soc. for Propagating the Gospel, London, made by Rev. F. L. Hawks, filed with Hawks MSS., in Church Mission House. See also description under May, 1790.
According to recollections of Judge Egbert Benson, the site of the College was a race-course.—Watson's Annals (1846), 192.
For references to this race-course, see Aug. 27, 1750; April 5, 1754.

News from Albany is published in New York that, on Aug. 19, a large Army of French and Indians had arrived at Oswego to lay siege to that garrison; but that forces under Gen. Abercrombie are at the "Great Carrying Place," and it is hoped, will arrive at Oswego in time to frustrate the French attempt. "The French News-Writers say, that the Conquest of Oswego would secure to them the quiet possession of Pennsylvania, and give them a free Entrance into the Province of New-York."—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 23, 1756.

Mayor Holland having reported, on Aug. 24, about the French neutrals (see April 30) who have been sent back from Georgia, the provincial council now distributes these families in Westchester and Orange Counties, and in other localities in the vicinity of New York.
—Cal. Coun. Min., 430.

Abraham de Peyster conveys to Archibald Kennedy, receiver-general of the province, the property No. 1 Broadway, for a consideration of £600.—Liber Deeds, XXXIV: 246-49 (New York).
In the description of Pl. 98, in III: 589, this conveyance is incorrectly cited as in Liber Deeds, XXIV: 246-49. See Aug. 25, 1644.
On the same day, Kennedy absolves De Peyster from the payment of quit-rent on the water lot in the rear of the house, reciting that De Peyster has decided to him (Kennedy) "that lott on the South side of the house wherein I now live, formerly granted to William Smith and lately of Mrs. Martha Heathcote; and by her made over to Charles Sleigh upon which there is reserved for his Majesty five pounds, 1 shilling, Proclamation Money, as the yearly quit-rent."
This proves that the receiver-general lived in the next house north of No. 1 Broadway. See a codicil to his will, dated March 13, 1745, reading: "I by this codicil devise my two houses in Broadway, in the city of New York, near the Fort, which I have lately purchased of the widow of Peter Bayard, in one of which I now live and in the other the Custom House is kept . . . to my dear wife during

Aug.
23

- 1756 her life, and after her death, to my daughter Catherine." Kennedy Oct.
 Aug. had bought (c. 1744, q.v.) from Eve Bayard, widow of Peter 26 Bayard, a plot 41 ft. wide north of No. 1 Broadway, which Bayard had purchased of Cregier in 1685.—Liber Deeds, XIV: 245 (Albany). From this evidence, it must be concluded that on the Cregier plot, in the year 1745, there were two small houses fronting Broadway, and that the custom-house must have stood on either the north or south half of the lot at No. 3 Broadway.
 Whether it was removed to No. 1 Broadway after the receiver-general bought that property, no authentic record seems to declare.
 See also description of Pl. 44, in I: 348, and Landmark Map Ref.
 Key, III: 974.
- 27 The provincial council receives intelligence that the east fort of Oswego has been taken by the French, Lord Loudoun calling for assistance. The council needs more particular information from him. On Sept. 6, a repeated call for assistance came from Loudoun.—Cal. Coun. Min., 430.
- 28 The mayor informs the common council that Colonel Young (speaking for Colonel Stanwick) requests that the city furnish straw and wood to "his Majesties forces to be Encamped on Nutten Island," during their stay there. The board agrees to advance, "on the Credit of the Government," a sum not exceeding £50.—M. C. C., VI: 62-63. On Oct. 19 payment of £92 was made to Christopher Baecker for this object.—Ibid., VI: 71. For further action, see Nov. 9.
- " The committee appointed by the common council "to dig Regulate and pave the Street called Cortlandts Street in the west ward" reports the grade agreed upon.—M. C. C., VI: 64. See other references to this street in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 997.
- 30 Edward Willett, "at the York-Arms Tavern" (see City Tavern
 —Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 977), advertises that "Any Gentleman going to Boston in a Day or two, may have the Use of a Curricle and a Pair of Horses."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 30, 1756.
- " One Stephen Callow advertises as an upholsterer and tent-maker at the "Crown and Cushin" (one of those symbolic sign-boards of the period, indicative of the tradesman's business), in Smith St., near the Old Dutch Church.
- " Another advertisement notes that "Water casks, from the Transports" are to be sold at auction "by the Bowling-Green, near the Fort."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 30, 1756.
- Sept. 6 The council calls for a report on foreigners and strangers in the 6 city.—Cal. Coun. Min., 431.
- 7 James Mackenzie, master of the ship "Fortress" (12 guons), petitions, in behalf of himself and a firm of London merchants (owners), for a "commission of marque," which, in case of his death, shall go to his first lieutenant, and, in case of the latter's death, to his second lieutenant.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 659. On this day, also, the owners of the brigantines "Hawk" and "Ploy" and the snow "Cicero," petition for commissions for their commanders, with the same succession of command.
- From this time on, throughout the war, such commissions were sought each month for commanders of privateers about to embark on their venturesome projects. When the "commission of marque" and "letters of marque" are distinctly specified in the Calendar, these have been so noted in the Chronology, as a distinction is evidently intended to be made between such cases, having power and authority to make reprisals, and those cases of privateers whose commanders seek power merely to make seizures and annoy the commerce of the enemy. See Nov. 13, and April 28, 1757.
- In this month, other commissions are petitioned for, for the commanders of the following privateers: the ships "Longville" and "Hercules," the schooner "Peggy," the brigantine "King George," and the privateers "Dreadnaught," and "Charming Sally."—Ibid., 659, 663.
- 24 The provincial council appoints a committee to act on the Spanish free negro cases.—Cal. Coun. Min., 431. See April 14.
- 27 The assembly orders that the treasurer of the colony, before
 Oct. 12, deliver to the house various accounts under oath, including "An Account of his Payments of the £20,000 lodged in his Hands, towards fortifying the City of New-York, by Virtue of an Act, entitled, An Act, for raising a Supply of £45,000 . . ." (see Feb. 19, 1755).—Assemb. Jour., II: 502; Cal. Laws N. Y., III:
 1043. See also description of Pl. 46A-C, I: 360.
- Oct. 1 Gov. Hardy issues a proclamation ordering the arrest and imprisonment of all subjects of the French King, wherever they may be found.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 11, 1756.
- In October, petitions are made, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the following privateers: the Oct.
 "Harlequin," the sloops "Squirrel" and "Weazel," the brigantine
 "Prince George," and the ship "Earl of Halifax."—Cal. Hist.
MSS., Eng., 664.
- " James Parker protests against a provincial act prescribing a stamp duty on newspapers. He describes the hardships of operating a newspaper in New York. "The late Mr. Bradford printed a News-paper in this City about 20 years; he was a sober diligent man and in all that time had the same price, and the same salary from the publick, as is given now, and at that time money was intrinsically worth more than it is now; yet he could acquire but a bare livelihood, and died poor. Another News-paper [the Journal] was printed many years in this city by an ingenious man [Zenger] but under those disadvantages that Few ever thrive by, and the issue accordiog. This weekly paper has been printed here now upwards of 14 years, and the proprietor thereof, amidst a constant series of diligence and sobriety, joio'd to the strictest parsimony, was many years tempted to leave the place as unable to hold out,
 And even yet is far from catching the fore-horse by the mane
 . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 4, 1756. The "Stamp Act" was passed Dec. 1, 1756 (q.v.).
- 6 About this time, the first British packet-boats commenced running between Falmouth and New York. Edmund Atkin, superintendent of Indian affairs for the southern colonies, writing to the lords of trade from New York on Dec. 27, said: "By the Earl of Leicester Packet I sent your Lordships advice of my arrival here on the 6th Oct<sup>r</sup> by the General Wall Packet being the first that sail'd from Falmouth after I received my Despatches . . ."—
N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 208.
- 9 The lords of trade, in a letter to Gov. Hardy, direct that an embargo be laid on vessels clearing with provisions, except to other British colonies.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 664.
- 13 A case of small-pox is reported in New Street; measures are taken by the provincial council to prevent the disease from spreading. A sloop from St. Croix is ordered into quarantine at Bedloes Island; it was discharged on the 29th.—Cal. Coun. Min., 431. For Dr. John Bard's report on quarantine inspection of this sloop (the "Dolphin"), see the original MS. in the "Collection of autograph letters, etc., 1674 to 1872," in Columbia Univ. Library.
- 19 The common council appoints a committee "to Confer and Treat with the City Members of the General assembly, for this Province, Concerning the Building of a Pest house [see Feb. 13], and of Erecting proper and Convenient Goals on Some Grounds to the Southward of Fresh water."—M. C. C., VI: 71. See Nov. 2.
- The common council orders payment of £109:15:3 to Peter Clopper for his advances "for Repairing the Meal and fly markets."—M. C. C., VI: 70.
- " The common council orders payment of £22:7:6 to Philip Livington for his advances "for two Iron Backs for the ferry house and for Stone &c: for the meal Market."—M. C. C., VI: 71.
- " The form of a warrant for privateers, directed to Lewis Morris, commissary and judge of the court of admiralty, although undated, is entered of record after an item of this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 664.
- 22 Paul Richard, former mayor of New York, and representative in the present general assembly, dies. On Oct. 24, his body was interred in Trinity Church.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 25, 1756. He left a legacy of £400 to King's College, "now erecting in this City."—Ibid., Nov. 8, 1756. On Nov. 8, Oliver de Lancey was elected to his place as representative.—Ibid., Nov. 15, 1756.
- 27 Hardy informs the lords of trade that "Fort George has gone through great repairs and is now completed—Two side & three Bastions Command the Rivers leading to the City, and should properly have heavy Cannon mounted, for the defence of the Harbour; . . . In the spring other works are to be constructed in the east River for the defence of the Harbour, that will require twenty or twenty four, twenty four Pounds." He also advises that "some heavy cannon should be mounted in the Narrows, and upon Nutten Island."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 164; Wilson, Mem. Hist. of N. Y., II: 310.
- Nov. 2 The provincial council registers its objections to the following acts: An act for the salaries of the several officers of the government; an act for erecting and establishing a stamp office in this province; and an act for laying an excise upon all tea of foreign growth within the province.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 665.

1756 In November, petitions were made, beginning on this day, for Nov. commissions for the commanders of the following privateers: the 2 "Prince of Orange," the sloop "Blakeney," the brigantine "Mary," and the ship "Blakeney" (sic).—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 665.

" A minute of council bearing this date answers the assembly regarding the application of the funds for the college to the building of a pest-house, new jail, etc. (see Oct. 19), and the assembly's proposal to take half the funds, etc.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 665.

8 Oliver de Lancey is unanimously elected to represent the city and county of New York in the assembly in the place of Paul Richard, deceased (see Oct. 22).—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 15, 1756. He had been elected alderman of the Out Ward on Sept. 29, but now refused to be qualified.—M. C. C., VI: 66, 73-74. Henry Ryker succeeded him as alderman for one meeting only, and was in turn succeeded immediately by John Morin Scott.—Ibid., VI: 75, 76 (footnote).

9 The common council orders payment of £54 to Jacob Brewington for straw sent "to the Governors Island for the Royall Americans."—M. C. C., VI: 73.

" It is also ordered that "the Kings Troops" which lately arrived from Albany, and the others that are daily expected, be furnished with wood and straw for a period not exceeding 30 days, to be paid for "out of the Monies belonging to this province, on account of the Excise now Remaining in the Hands of this Corporation."
 —M. C. C., VI: 74. This was in response to an order issued to the governor by Lord Loudoun (see Gov. Hardy's report, in Nov. 16, 1756). An assembly act for billeting soldiers was passed Dec. 1, 1756 (q. v.).

" A bill is introduced in the assembly for raising £1,125 by a lottery, "towards erecting a new Goal, in the City of New-York, in Lieu of that which is now in the City-Hall."—Assemb. Jour., II: 513. For the final form of the bill as enacted into law, see
 Dec. 1.

10 Mayor Edward Holland dies. The next day the governor appointed John Cruger, Jr., a merchant, to be mayor, water bailiff, clerk of the markets, and justice of the peace.—M. C. C., VI: 74.
 Mayor Cruger was continued in office ten years.—Ibid., VI: 101, 148, 184, 223, 265, 304, 346, 391, 432. For a short sketch of Cruger's life, see Man. Com. Coun. (1853), 409.

13 Gov. Hardy receives an order of the king, dated June 30, for issuing letters of marque in the colonies, with forms of warrants and commissions, and instructions for privateers.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 654.

15 A message from Gov. Hardy to the assembly states: "His Excellency the Earl of Loudoun, having demanded Quarters in this City for a Battalion of the Royal American Regiment; and his Lordship having informed me they were soon to embark from Albany, and Part of them are already arrived, and are now encamped, I have ordered the Barracks to be prepared, and the Block-Houses to be fitted up, for the Reception of as many Men as can be quartered therein; but as the whole Number cannot be thus disposed of, it is necessary that Provision be made for the Remainder.
 The Troops in the Barracks and Block-Houses, must be provided with Fire, Candle Light, and Beds: Articles of Expence included in that of Quarters."—Assemb. Jour., II: 514. Regarding the action of the assembly on this message, see Nov. 26, 1756.

19 The St. Andrews Society of New York is organized by Scotchmen. Philip Livingston is elected first president.—Thomson, Hist.
Sketch of the St. Andrews Soc., 3.

22 A list of privateers belonging to New York is printed, of which 19 are on cruise, five in the harbour, one expected from London, and three in the stocks, "which when fitted out will make a Fleet of Twenty-Eight Sail from New-York."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov.
 22, 1756. See also July.

23 The governor's council having requested a conference with the assembly on the bills for establishing a stamp office, and for laying an excise on tea of foreign growth, the assembly replies that as these are money bills they cannot consent to a conference.—
Assemb. Jour., II: 518. See Dec. 1.

26 The assembly, having considered the governor's message of Nov. 15 (q. v.), with respect "to quartering one Battalion of the Royal American Regiment, in the City of New York," agrees in the opinion "that, notwithstanding the distressed State of his Majesty's Colony, by its being the principal Seat of the present War in America, the great and heavy Burdens it lies under, by keeping 800 Men in continual Pay, to be ready on all Emergencies, to support and assist his Majesty's regular Troops, by providing Pay for the Militia so frequently called out on Alarms, by providing for great Numbers of French Prisoners, and People called neutral French, brought into this Colony, by paying for Horses and Carriages, impressed and lost in his Majesty's Service, and Numbers of other Articles of the like Kind; yet as the Troops cannot possibly subsist at this rigorous Season without Firewood and Candles, and Beds to lie on, immediate Provision should be made for furnishing such of them as are to be quartered in the Barracks and Block-houses in the City of New-York, with those necessary Articles." A committee is appointed to convey this opinion to the governor, and express the "desire that his Excellency will be pleased to give Directions to the Commissaries of New-York, to furnish the Troops . . . with Beds . . . Firewood and Candles, sufficient for them for the Time they are to continue in Winter Quarters; and to assure his Excellency that this House will provide for the Expence attending the same."—Assemb.

Jour., II: 520.

An act is passed to repeal the fourteenth clause or section of each of the first four lottery acts, to raise £2,250, £1,800, £1,125, and £1,125, respectively, for King's College (see Dec. 6, 1746; Apr.
 9, 1748; July 4, and Dec. 12, 1753). The clause referred to is that which required that a deduction of 15 per cent. "upon the whole Number of Fortunate Tickets" should "be paid into the hands of the Trustees," to be by them "put out at Interest . . . until the Same Shall be employed by some future Act for and towards founding a College . . ." and which provided for salaries and other expenses in conducting the lotteries.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 104. The fifth lottery act, that of Dec. 7, 1754 (q. v.), is omitted from this repeating act for reasons explained in the act of Aug. 14 (q. v.). Final disposition of the moneys raised by the four college lotteries is provided for by the new act of Dec. 1 (q. v.).

Because "the Present Exigency of Affairs" requires the raising of large sums of money "to promote the services of the Colony," and as taxes upon "all Kinds of Luxury" are of "Publick Utility," the legislature passes an act "for laying an Excise upon all Tea of foreign Growth retailed within this Colony." Retailers of tea in quantities less than 100 pounds must be licensed, and pay sixpence for every pound retailed.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 105. On Dec. 20, 1756, Abraham Lynsen, collector of the excise for New York City, notified all retailers to apply to him for licenses.—N. Y.
Post-Boy, Jan. 3, 1757. The act expired, Jan. 1, 1760.—Col. Laws
N. Y., IV: 364.

" It is conceived by the provincial legislature that revenue may also be raised "by a Stamp Duty without being over burthensome to the Inhabitants of this Colony." An act is therefore passed "for Erecting and Establishing a Stamp Office in this Colony for Stamping all Vellum Parchment and Paper." That is, a stamp of some one of five denominations, from a ½ penny to 4 pence, is required to be affixed to every skin or piece of vellum or parchment, and every sheet or piece of paper, whether written or printed upon.
 The law presents a detailed schedule of the various legal documents and papers requiring the stamps of different denominations. (See Dec. 27.) Abraham Lott, Jr., and Isaac Low are appointed by the governor to be managers of the stamps for the province, and to keep an office in the city of New York. They shall provide the stamps after Jan. 1, 1757.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 110. The act expired Jan. 1, 1760.—Ibid., IV: 290.

" The province does not possess enough barracks to quarter the forces raised or sent here by the king. An act of the general assembly is therefore passed "for Billeting and Quartering His Majesty's Forces within this Colony."—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 123.
 It was continued by later acts until it expired Jan. 1, 1762.—
Ibid., IV: 476.

The Earl of Loudoun, after the loss of Oswego, sent a thousand of his troops to New York. The magistrates of the capital crowded the private into the barracks, and left the officers (about 50) to find lodgings for themselves. When the earl came down in December, he sent for Mayor Cruger and insisted that the officers be exempted from expence, saying that this was everywhere the custom; and that he had, in consideration of New York's efforts, put the army to inconvenience by so wide a dispensation, but that, if Cruger made difficulties, he would convene all his troops here and billet them himself.—Smith, Hist. of the Late Province of N. Y.
 (1830), II: 292.

An act is passed for raising, "by a Publick Lottery for this

Nov. 26

27

Dec. 1

"

"

"

"

1756 Colony," the sum of £1,125 "towards Erecting a New Goal in the City of New York." It is intended for "the Reception of such Prisoners of War as shall be brought in this Colony." Ebenezer Grant and Theodores van Wyck are made managers of the lottery, the particulars of which are described in the act.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 126-34. The advertisement of the lottery in the Post-Boy, Dec. 6, 1756, and Jan. 3, 1757 (q. v.), states it is to raise money "towards building a commodious New-Goal . . . , in Lieu of that now in the City-Hall of the said City." For details of the building of the jail, see March 1, 1757. For the lottery drawings, see April 9, 1757. See also the act of Dec. 1 (infra), relating to the college lotteries, containing a provision for the benefit of the new jail.

A legislative act for the payment of several provincial debts allows £5:15 "for Building a watch House Near the Beacon at Rockaways;" and £20:14 for building one near "the Beacon at the Narrows on Staten Island."—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 145.

By another act, Robert Charles, the agent of the province in Great Britain, is allowed £200 as a reward for his services from Sept. 1, 1755 to Sept. 1, 1756. Other provincial officers, including the governour, are allowed various salaries.—Ibid., IV: 151.

An act is passed "for appropriating the Moneys Raised by diverse Lotteries for Erecting or founding a College in this Colony." This provides that the sums of money raised by lotteries for this object, and "now vested in the Trustees" appointed by the act of Nov. 25, 1751 (q. v.), and which have been "put out at Interest from time to time and not Yet disposed of by any Act for that purpose Made," shall be thus disposed of: One "Moiety" or half part, with interest, etc. is vested in the governours of King's College, "and may be disposed of by them in Such manner as to them shall seem best for the advancement of Learning in the said College . . ." The receipt of the governours or their treasurer, given to the treasurer of the province for this moiety, "shall be good and sufficient discharges to him for the same."

The other "full and equal Moiety," with interest, etc., or such part of it as shall be needed for the purpose, "shall be applied for and towards the Purchasing (if Necessary) a Sufficient and Suitable Quantity of Land in or Nigh the City of New York and for Building and Erecting there on a proper Pest House for the Reception of Such Persons as may be infected with any Contagious Distempers." All "the Residue of the said Money shall be employed to and for the Erecting a New Publick Goal in the City of New York in Lieu of that which is now in the City Hall." The treasurer of the province is required "to pay the same" to the mayor, etc., and the receipt of the mayor, etc., given to the provincial treasurer, for this moiety, shall be "Sufficient discharge" to him.

The act also provides that the annual sum of £500, directed to be paid to the treasurer of the province by the act of July 4, 1753 (q. v.), for seven years, beginning Jan. 1, 1754, shall yearly hereafter be paid by the treasurer of the province "to the said Governours of the College of the Province of New York in the City of New York [King's College] and their Successors," together with "all the Moneys received or that is become due for the Tuition of the Scholars in the seminary;" as well as any part of the above-mentioned sum of £500 received by the treasurer of the province, and not expended by the trustees (with specified exception). The governours are made chargeable with all contracts entered into by the trustees with the "chief Master" (Dr. Johnson) or any other masters, as provided in the act of July 4, 1753. The trustees are discharged from such contracts, and the receipt of the governours of the college or their treasurer shall be sufficient discharge to the treasurer of the colony for the same.

The treasurer of the province is required to apply the sum of £500 ("part of the Said annual Sum now in his Hands or that Shall first come into his Hands in pursuance of the said Act") towards cancelling the bills of credit emitted on the credit of "the Duty of Excise on Strong Liquors retailed in this Colony" (see July 4, 1753). The trustees of the college funds are discharged from any further trust powers and authorities given to them by either the act of Nov. 25, 1751 (q. v.), or that of July 4, 1753 (q. v.).—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 160. For an explanation of this act, see Dec. 22, 1755. The common council took action on Jan. 25, 1757 (q. v.), to secure the funds granted to the city by this act.

3 The governour's council directs that "Inoculation for small-pox may continue."—Cal. Coun. Min., 431. See June 9, 1747.

4 This date is found on "AN EXACT DRAUGHT OF THE BATTERIES,

AND FORT GEORGE IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK, FOR THE HONORABLE THOMAS POWNELL ESQR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR OF NEW JERSEY N. B: THE ABOVE IS LAID DOWN BY A SCALE OF 16 FATHOMS OR 96 FEET TO THE INCH BY JOHN DIES." This drawing, which is in ink, on paper measuring 14½ in. by 20½ in., belongs to a splendid collection of 88 manuscript maps, charts, surveys, plans, and views, delineating the many points of interest along the eastern seaboard of North America, from New Foundland to Pennsylvania, the majority of which were made for the purposes of military operations during the Seven Years War, by William Alexander, William Bontein, Cadwallader Colden, Matthew Dixon, Richard Gridley, P. Macellar, Lieut. Elias Meyer, Capt. James Gabriel Montresor, Capt. Bernard Ratzer, Charles Rivez, Capt. G. C. Wetterstrom, John Williams, and several other British engineers, officers of the 60th Royal American Regiment. They cover a period from 1714 to 1760. This very important collection was formed by an English collector, probably in the third quarter of the eighteenth century, and is contained in a large folio volume bound in morocco, and elaborately tooled. The collection is at the present time (Dec., 1919) in the possession of Mr. L. M. Thompson, of New York.

The following references on the above-mentioned plan give a clear idea of its character and importance:—

- "y<sup>e</sup> above Batterys mounts 92 Guns Flank included.
- "1 the Breadth of the Platforms
- "2 the Prick'd Line the whole Breadth of y<sup>e</sup> Rampart
- "3 the East Block House
- "4 the Province Store House
- "5 the west Block House
- "6 Cap<sup>n</sup> Hunts House
- "7 Rivits House
- "8 A Still House
- "9 the Province Store House
- "10 Bundles House
- "11 the Governers Stables
- "12 Mr Kennedys House
- "13 Part of the Bouling Green
- "14 the Ravilin before the Fort Gate
- "15 The Secretarions office
- "16 Fort George
- "17 the Baracks
- "18 the N. W: Magazine
- "19 the S. E: Magazine
- "20 White Hall Street
- "21 White Hall Slipp
- "22 Staten Island Ferry Stairs
- "23 the General Course of the Ea: River warfs
- "24 the Governers House
- "25 the old Ruinous Chappel
- "26 this will Mount 4 Guns Amberlet"

Of the above references, Nos. 16, 17, 18, 19, 24, and 25 are within Fort George itself. This is the earliest known plan of Fort George drawn in such detail.

The same collection contains other important drawings of New York interest, as follows:—

1.—"Plan, and Sections of Fort George. Built upon Hudson's River: A. D. 1757." By J. Montresor. Scale 50 ft. to an inch. This is drawn in ink, on paper 16½ in. by 11 in. There are five references:—

- "A.—Barracks for 140 Men.
- "B.—Store-house, which will contain 2500 Flower-barrels
- "C.—Necessary-house
- "D.—Pladford [platform] for one Gun
- "E.—Gate of the Fort"

2.—"Plan, Elevation, & Section of the Store-house built at Fort George, which contains 2500 Barrels of Flower." Scale 30 ft. to an inch. Drawn in ink, tinted, on paper 11½ in. by 7½ in.

3.—"Plan, Elevation, & Section of the Barracks at Fort George which contains 140 Men." Scale 30 ft. to an inch. Drawn in ink, tinted, on paper 11½ in. by 6 in.

4.—"Plan of the Narrows. Shewing the several Batterys proposed to prevent ships coming up to New York." Signed by James Montresor, chief engineer. Scale 1,000 ft. to an inch. Drawn in ink and water-colour, on paper 15½ in. by 10 in. A beautifully finished drawing, showing six batteries, three on Staten Island and three on Long Island.

1756 5.—Map indorsed "Hudsons River," which is undoubtedly Dec. Cadwallader Colden's original map of the Province of New York.
4 Drawn in ink on paper 18 in. by 5½ in. Evidently elaborated from the imperfect draught at Albany, reproduced, in part, and described by Justin Winsor, in the Narrative & Critical History of America, V: 235 et seq. This map shows the early grants down to 1716, and is covered with interesting and important information regarding the early settlements, topographical features, etc.; probably the map prepared in response to a letter written by the lords of trade to Gov. Hunter, on Aug. 18, 1715:—"The Maps we have at present of America, being not so correct or particular as we cou'd wish, we desire you will send us the best Maps, you can get of New York and New Jersey, and likewise of any of your Neighbouring Colonies, or others which you can at any time procure."—N. Y.
Col. Docs., V: 422. Gov. Burnet wrote to the lords of trade on Dec.
16, 1723: "I have likewise enclosed a map of this province, drawn by the surveyor Gen<sup>l</sup> Dr. Colden, with great exactness from all the surveys that have been made formerly and of late in this province, which are in his hands, and from the French map of the lakes, corrected by some late informations in those places that lye near this province."—Ibid., V: 704. Colden himself wrote on Dec.
4, 1726, to Secretary Popple: "The far greatest part of the lands in this Province are now in the hands of a few persons paying trifling Quit Rents as will more fully appear by a Map of this Province which I am preparing by the Governor's Order for their Lord<sup>s</sup> & by my Memorial . . ."—Ibid., V: 806.

6.—"A Plan of the Harbour of New York." Without title or indorsement. Scale 10 miles to 6 inches. Drawing in ink on paper 17½ in. by 26 in. Evidently the original manuscript draught for the so-called "Carwitham Map," the only known engraved copy of which is described in Vol. I, Pl. 27A.

The collection contains also a number of interesting plans of cities, forts, battles, etc., including Albany (probably drawn by Capt. G. C. Wetterstrom, about 1756), Fort Edward, Fort Carillon, Fort Ticonderoga, Fort William Henry, Fort Cumberland, Fort Lawrence, Schenectady, Quebec, Annapolis-Royal, and a "Prospect of the City of Albany in the Province of New York in America," a carefully executed and most interesting drawing in monotone, on paper 11½ in. by 23½ in., evidently drawn about 1740-50.

10 In December, petitions were made, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the following privateers: the ship "Anne," and the snows "Hornet" and "Neptune."—Cal.
Hist. MSS., Eng., 666.

10 Lott and Low, the managers of the stamp office, give public notice that they are prepared to supply stamps.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 3, 1757. See Dec. 1.

13 Capt. Arnold of the privateer brig "King George" sends in to New York the French prize "Comte de Clermont," of 14 Carriage Guns, 6 Poundsers, and 42 Men, which he took in Lat. 28 and ½, Lon. 62, after a smart Engagement. . . .

"The above Prize is about 400 Tons, is loaded with Sugar, Coffee and Indigo . . ."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 20, 1756.

20 Hugh Gaine makes the following announcement to his customers: "As the Act lately passed by the General Assembly of this Province, for erecting a Stamp-Office in this Colony, commences the first Day of January 1757, by which all News-Papers, printed in this Province are liable to a Duty of one Half Penny weekly each; which amounts to Two Shillings and Two Pence, per Annum:
And as no reasonable Person can imagine, that the Printer of the Mercury should pay that Tax himself, 'tis thought advisable to give this public Notice, to all Persons concerned, That unless they incline to pay the Duty besides the former Price, they need not expect to be served with the Mercury any longer than the first Day of January next . . ."

"I flatter myself that the Mercury has given Satisfaction since its first Publication, which is now upwards of Four Years; and I assure my Readers, that no Cost, Diligence or Pains, shall be wanting to make its Continuance profitable and entertaining."—
N. Y. Merc., Dec. 20, 1756.

"By order of the governor and council, proclamations are to be issued giving notice of the New York stamp act (see Dec. 1), and for taking deserters."—Cal. Coun. Min., 431. See Dec. 27.

21 The provincial council issues a warrant to Gov. Hardy for the hire of expresses.—Cal. Coun. Min., 431.

23 A proclamation is issued to prevent soldiers straggling about the country without furlough or discharge.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 666.

In accordance with the provincial act of Dec. 1 (q. v.), laying a tax on paper, vellum, etc., and which is to go into effect Jan. 1, 1757, the governor issues a proclamation prescribing the design of the stamps to be used as follows: On each is to be engraved a "Crown, and under it so much of the Arms of the City of New-York, as appears within the Escutcheon; also the Words, New-York, in an Escroll under the Escutcheon; and in another Escroll, beneath the former, is engraved upon the Stamps respectively, the respective Sums to be paid for the Vellum, Parchment or Paper, stamped or marked therewith, as may be seen by their Impressions in the Margin." These respective sums are fourpence, threepence, twopence, and one half-penny. The half-penny imprint appeared on New York newspapers in 1757.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec.
27, 1756.

"Robberies, which, till of late, was scarce heard of amongst us, is now become so common, that not a Night passes, but some or other of the Inhabitants of this City are either stopped in the Streets, by loose vagrant Fellows, or surprized by finding such in their Yards, Out-houses, &c. and notwithstanding some of them have lately been whipped for pilfering Cloaths, &c. and others exalted on Carts, and carted round the Town, they continue to pilfer as much as ever . . . methinks it behoves the Inhabitants of this Place to be more vigilant than they heretofore have been, lest some of them by Experience may know what it is to shut the Stable Door, after the Steed is stolen."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 27, 1756.

By order of the provincial council, an embargo is laid on provisions except to the British Colonies, by order from the lords of trade.—Cal. Coun. Min., 431. See May 24.

1757

In this year, William Smith (2d), A. M., who, like his father, was later (see Nov. 4, 1767) a member of the provincial council, published in London a history of this province. It bears the title
The History of the Province of New-York, from the First Discovery to the Year M.DCC.LXXII. To which is annexed, A Description of the Country, with a short Account of the Inhabitants, their Trade, Religious and Political State, and the Constitution of the Courts of Justice in that Colony.

*Lo! swarming o'er the new discover'd World,
Gay Colonies extend; the calm Retreat
Of underv'd Distress—*

*—Bound by social Freedom, firm they rise;
Of Britain's Empire the Support and Strength.*
Thomson.

Nec minor est Virtus, quàm quaerere, parva tueri.
By William Smith, A. M. London: Printed for Thomas Wilcox, Bookseller at Virgil's Head, opposite the New Church in the Strand.
M. DCC. LVII.

It is dedicated (June 15, 1756) "To the Right Honourable George, Earl of Halifax, Viscount Sunbury, First Lord Commissioner of Trade and Plantations, &c. &c.," under whose direction the affairs of the British colonies have been for several years. Although most of the facts presented by Smith have been covered by the Chronology, his estimate of the character and efficiency of the several governours, and his references to governmental establishments are worthy of special notice. His opinions in some important particulars were not shared by Lieut-Gov. Cadwallader Colden, who expressed his views at length in a letter to his son, July 5, 1759 (q. v.). For the author's reply to a critic, see July 7, 1759. See also Bibliography, Vol. V. For Smith's description of New York, contained in his History, see 1756. For his continuation of his history of the province from 1732 to 1762, see Hist. of the late Province of N. Y. from its Discovery to the Appointment of Governor Colden in 1762 (pub. in 1829), Vol. II. For reproduction of the title-page of the original edition, and of a page of the manuscript of the Continuation, see Pl. 35, Vol. IV.

In January, petitions were made, on this day and on the 31st, for commissions for the commanders of the sloop "Harlequin" and
"George," respectively.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 660.

The "Scheme of the New-York Lottery" is published (see Dec. 1, 1756), for raising the sum of £1,125 "towards building a commodious New-Goal in the City of New-York, in Lieu of that now in the City-Hall."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 3, 1757. See, further, March 1, 1757.

"Uriah Hendricks, next door to the Golden-Key in Hanover"

Dec.

27

"

29

—

—

—

—

—

—

Jan.

3

"

"

- 1757 Square," sells imported goods at retail, looking-glasses, clocks, etc. Samuel Judah, "at his Store in Hanover-Square, opposite to John Cruger, Esq; Mayor," sells European and East-India goods, also "Castor and Felt Hats, and a Variety of Gold and Silver laced Hats."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 3, 1757. A fortnight later, Patrick Carryl, "at the Sign of the Unicorn and Mortar, in Hanover-Square," advertised a fresh supply "of the best merchandise."—Ibid., Jan. 17, 1757. Hanover Square was a centre of retail trade at this period.
- " Among the advertisements of the day are the following—"Peter Rushton, who lives adjoining to the Quakers Meeting-House, dresses all Kind of Furs, in such manner that they are not subject to the Moth coming into them. He likewise makes Muffs for Gentlemen or Ladies, in the newest Fashion."
- Richard Lyncall advertises to teach "the right Method and true Art of Defence, and Pursuit of the Small Sword . . . , and extraordinary quick and speedy, with all the Guards, Parades, Thrusts . . . , and the best Rule for Playing against Artists, or Others with Blunts or Sharps," at Mr. Hulet's Dancing School.
- "Imported in the last Vessels from London, a large Assortment of choice Drugs, chemical and galenical Medicines, to be sold wholesale or retail, by William Brownjohn, from London, near the Meal-Market."
- "Just imported in the Brig. Maria, Capt. Grant, from London, a large Assortment of fresh Medicines, Turlington's Balsam of Life, Surgeons Capital and Pocket Instruments, Cases of Artery Needles and Lancets; to be sold at the lowest Prices, by James Murray, Druggist, at the Corner House facing the Meal Market."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 3, 1757.
- 5 "There are now 30 Privateers out of this Place, and ten more on the Stocks, and launched. They have had hitherto good Success, having brought in fourteen Prizes, Value 100,000 l.—From a New York letter to a London merchant, in Man. Com. Conn. (1870), 872.
- 10 The Earl of Loudoun sets out for Boston.—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 17, 1757.
- 11 A proclamation is issued convening the assembly at Flatbush, on Feb. 8.—Jour. Leg. Conn., 1290.
- 13 Beverly Robinson asks Gov. Hardy by letter to issue a warrant on the treasurer for £2,000, for Henry van Schaick, paymaster of the New York regiment at Albany.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 669.
- 20 H. M. S. "Sutherland," of 50 guns, comes into the harbour. This vessel, "in coming up from Sandy-Hook, struck the Ground several Times; but stuck fast opposite our new Battery, until she was forced off by some Cakes of Ice."—Jour. of Hugh Gaine, ed. by Ford (1902), II: 4.
- " Joseph Richards causes the following notice to be published: "Whereas the Subscriber hath been instrumental of propagating a Stage between Philadelphia and New-York [see Oct. 30, 1752], and by Experience, finding some Difficulty some Times to pass by Water from Amboy Ferry to New-York: Notice is hereby given, That a Stage-Wagon is erected, to proceed from Mr. Isaac Dote's, opposite to Perth-Amboy, on Monday the 17th Instant, January, and to pass through Staten-Island, Load or No Load, to Mr. John Watson's, Mrs. Duckett's, and Mr. Vantile's, and on Tuesday proceed back to the aforesaid Dote's, and so in like Manner every Day in the Week. . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 24, 1757. Cf. Richards' advertisement in ibid., May 1, 1758.
- 24 There is advertised to be let: "A Small Lot of about 22 Acres, belonging to the noted Tavern, known by the Name of the Union-Flag, about 4 Miles distant from New-York, on the Post-Road, adjoining to the East-River, having a good Wharf, and a good Landing belonging to it: There is on it a good Orchard and Garden. Enquire of James Mc Kinney, living near Turtle-Bay."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 24, 1757. See also Feb. 6, 1738; Jan. 21, 1745.
- 25 The common council appoints a committee "to meet with a Committee of the Governours of the College to make a Division of the Lottery Money Given them" by the act of Dec. 1, 1756 (q. v.).—M. C. C., VI: 80. On Feb. 11, an agreement was entered into between committees representing the college governours and the common council, respectively, whereby certain bonds and mortgages "have fallen to the share of this Corporation" (representing, apparently, part of the investments made of lottery funds by the college trustees).—Ibid., VI: 94-95. On July 4, it was resolved that the treasurer or chamberlain of the city "Receive from Messrs Grant and Theodorus Van Wyck Managoers of the Late Lottery the monies Raised by the said Lottery," amounting Jan. to £1,001:18:6, and that the treasurer or chamberlain "Retain 25 thereout three Quarters of Cent for his Trouble in Receiving and paying out the Same."—Ibid., VI: 93-94. On July 22, it was necessary for the common council to empower John Morin Scott as attorney to sue certain ones of the "Obligors" on the bonds and mortgages.—Ibid., VI: 94-95. The next and last entry of record in the Minutes in this transaction was one of a year later, July 12, 1758, at which time the managers of the "Late Lottery" (see Aug. 14, 1755), exhibited their accounts "of the said Lottery" to the common council, showing that "There is due thereon" the sum of £996:10:3, and the common council ordered that they pay this balance to the city treasurer.—Ibid., VI: 139.
- " Payment is made for "sundry Necessaries" which have been provided for various persons "who were sent from this City to Mr Kennedys Island [Bedlow's Island—see May 3, 1755] with the Small Pox."—M. C. C., VI: 80. Another payment was made on April 14 (q. v.). Kennedy sold the island to the city Feb. 18, 1758 (q. v.).
- " A petition of New York merchants, with 41 signatures, is addressed to Gov. Hardy, setting forth the need of a pilot for Hell Gate, and recommending Richard Lawrence for the place. The petition recites that "the Passage through Hell Gate is known to be exceeding Difficult and Dangerous and in which many Vessels have been lost for want of able Pilots."—Emmet Collection, item No. 10858, in N. Y. Pub. Library.
- 29 Three more of the transports (see Jan. 20) come into port and land troops.—Jour. of Hugh Gaine, II: 4. (In a footnote Mr. Ford, the editor, gives a résumé of the various regiments that came to America prior to 1757; but is unable to identify the exact troops arriving in this convey.)
- 31 Beverly Robinson, in Stone St., sells "Fine and coarse Broad-Cloths, scarlet ditto, Frizes, Plains, Yorkshire Cloths, Shalloons, Thickers, scarlet Plush," etc.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 31, 1757.
- " William Walton, New York merchant, petitions Gov. Hardy for leave to supply the Spanish garrison at St. Augustine according to a contract with its governour.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 669. Granted, on Feb. 21.—Cal. Conn. Min., 432. On June 25, he petitioned for and obtained permission to continue.—Ibid., 434.
- Feb. Two young men, aged 18 and 25, are hanged "at Fresh-Water" for "House breaking, Street robbery, &c."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 7, 1757. For the erection of a gallows in this neighbourhood, see May 5, 1756.
- 5 In February, petitions are made, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the following privateers: the snows "Revenge" and "Mary Ann," the sloops "Fox" and "Catharine," the dogger "Decoy" (Isaac Sears, commander), and the ship "King of Prussia."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 670.
- 7 A contribution to the Post-Boy proposes a plan for "erecting and maintaining of a Light-House on Sandy-Hook, and a Residence for the Pilots at that Station." He would use it also for a watch-tower, and protect it with a battery. He states that such a proposal has been "hitherto omitted" among the various schemes advanced "to cultivate the Trade and Commerce of this Colony; and for the Safety of our Navigation."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 7, 1757. The light house was first petitioned for on March 13, 1761 (q. v.).
- 8 The common council orders payment made of £37:9:11 to William Coventry "for Several Coards of fire wood sent to the Camp for the Soldiers there."—M. C. C., VI: 81. The location of the camp was not mentioned, but was probably Natten (Governors') Island.—See Aug. 28, and Nov. 9, 1756. Again, on March 1, payment of 51s was made for straw "for the use of the Kings Troops."—Ibid., VI: 84.
- " Mathew Earnest (see Jan. 24) asks the common council for a permit "to Erect and run out a small Dock or peer of about thirty feet, on some part of the water Lott belonging to this Corporation Lying in the North River Between high and Low water marke, fronting his land in the out ward of this City, Commonly Called . . . New found Land, having on the south side thereof the land of the late Sir Peter Warren and on the North the land of one Mr Mandawell, and Contains in Breadth towards the River between four and five Hundred feet." Granted.—M. C. C., VI: 81-82. A "glass house," an establishment for the manufacture of glass bottles, etc., was erected there in 1758.—See Oct. 30, 1758. The Glass House Farm derived its name from this establishment. It was

DOMINIONS IN NORTH AMERICA, 1755. SEE P. 664.

1757 situated on the North River, at Bloomingdale, between 34th and Feb. 40th Sts.—See Landmark Map, Pl. 176, Vol. III. It is described 8 more in detail in an advertisement for its sale in the N. Y. Merc., Feb. 29, 1768. The Chemical Mfg. Co., which started the Chemical Bank at 216 Broadway on July 30, 1824, eventually became the owner of the property.—Hist. of the Chemical Bank (1913).

14 The provincial council receives a letter from Lord Loudoun, calling for 1,000 men as the New York contingent.—Cal. Coun.
Min., 432.

15 Gov. Hardy having prorogued the general assembly from time to time since Dec. 1, 1756 (see Cal. Coun. Min., 431-32), because of the small-pox in the city of New York, it reassembles by his direction "in the Assembly-Chamber" in the town of Flatbush, L. I.—Assemb. Jour., II: 523. Sessions continued here until Feb. 26, after which adjournments were taken from time to time until Aug. 31 (q. v.).

21 "A dreadful Fire," that broke out about four o'clock in the morning on Feb. 16, and burned more than an hour "before the Citizens had proper Notice of it," elicits sharp criticism of "our Nightly-Watch." The "most Judicious" persons in the city "have long since remarked" that if the watch were "under proper Regulations, and composed of Persons who have Estates to take care of, the many Burglaries, Street Robberies etc." would, in a great measure, be prevented. At present, the citizens are required, "at least four Times a year, to watch, or pay their Two and Six-pence to a Parcel of idle, drunken, vigilant Snorers, who never quell'd any nocturnal Tumult in their Lives; (Nor, as we can learn, were ever the first Discoverers of a Fire breaking out,) but would, perhaps, be as ready to join in a Burglary, as any Thief in Christendom. A hopeful Set indeed, to defend this rich and populous City against the Terrors of the Night!"—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 21, 1757. For more rigid regulations regarding the night watch, see March 13, 1758.

26 Gov. Hardy writes to Secretary Pitt that the assembly has, in its address to him, promised "to furnish Supplies for the Support of 1,000 Men required by the Earl of Loudoun." He adds: "The Transports from Cork with General O'Farrell's Regiment, and part of the Drafts, are arrived in this and the neighbouring Ports . . .
 The Baron Dieskau having recover'd his Health so as to enable him to take his passage in the Packet to England, I judged it best to permit him to leave this Province . . ."—Correspondence of Wm. Pitt with Colonial Governors, ed. by G. S. Kimball (1906),
 I: 11-14.

Mar. 1 The common council appoints a committee "to purchase Materials and Direct the Building of the New Goal [see Dec. 1, 1756] and they are Desired to proceed upon the Business with all Convenient Speed."—M. C. C., VI: 84. On April 14, it was resolved that the city treasurer be allowed "three Quarters p<sup>er</sup> Cent for all such Monies as shall be by him Received" for building the jail and pest-house.—Ibid., VI: 87. On June 20, 1758, it was ordered that £2,000 be paid to the committee "for further carrying on the said Goal."—Ibid., VI: 137. On Aug. 2, 1758 (q. v.), the common council ordered that another story be added.—Ibid., VI: 141.
 Re-imbursment for moneys advanced was made to John de Peyster (Jr.) on Sept. 26, 1758, and March 20, 1759, the amount of the latter being £2,600, "for Building the new Goals."—Ibid., VI: 145, 167. The building was completed on or about July 3, 1759 (q. v.).

Extensive payments for materials and labour were made after the work was completed. Thus, a payment was made to De Peyster on April 22, 1760, of £2,070, "for Monies by him Advanced and paid for the use of the new Goal" from April 12 to Dec. 19, 1759 (Ibid., VI: 212); on Aug. 27, 1760, of £789; 1268, "in Full of his Account for Monies by him Advanced and paid for the use of the New Goal," and, at the same time, of £30, "in Consideration of his Frequently Advancing and Laying out Several sums of Money for this Corporation in the Building of the Aforesaid New Goal" (Ibid., VI: 219). Further payments for the same object were made on May 28 and July 24, 1761 (Ibid., VI: 249, 256); and on Jan. 28, 1762, he was paid "for Materials found, and work done in Grating three fire places and double flooring three Rooms in the new Goals &c." (Ibid., VI: 282). On April 15, 1762, other parties were paid "for work done" and "for Iron found" (Ibid., VI: 286). On Jan.
 13, 1763, payment was made "for Smiths work;" and on Nov. 9, 1763, "for the use of Six Chimney Backs" and "for Lime and Labourers work" (Ibid., VI: 316, 356). Later expenses were for upkeep and alterations.

The jail was already in full operation on the last named date, Mar.
 for this payment was "for Vitralling Sundry Criminals and for Sweeping 26 Chimneys and Emptying 231 Tubs in the New Goal from the 18th Febr'y 1763, To the 28th of October foll<sup>w</sup> inclusive," etc. (Ibid., VI: 356).

In 1770, the jail yard was paved (Ibid., VII: 228); and in 1772 a new cistern of stone (VII: 364, 369), and a stoop in front of the building (VII: 373, 393), were built.

On Oct. 14, 1767 (q. v.), it was ordered by the common council that two rooms "in the New Goal House" be fitted up for a "Bridewell" (Ibid., VII: 87), and from that time the building served the double purpose until the construction of a separate building for a bridewell, the plans for which were adopted in 1775 (q. v.) (Ibid., VIII: 82), but were not fully executed when the British forces occupied the city in 1776 (Ibid., VIII: 134). For an account of the building of the bridewell, and of the purpose for which it was established, see Nov. 21, 1765.

For the later history of the "New Goal," known after the Revolution as the "Provost Jail," see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 972; where references to views in this work are given; also Chronology, 1869; Man. Com. Coun. (1855), 473; Ibid. (1866), 670-71, 693; Wilson, Mem. Hist. N. Y., III: 342, 367.

The embargo (see May 24, 1756) was extended to apply to 2 all vessels at the request of Lord Loudoun.—Cal. Coun. Min., 432;
Jour. of Hugh Gaine, II: 5 (where March 3 is given as the date).
 The embargo was partially lifted on June 25.—N. Y. Merc., June 27, 1757. An act of parliament was reported on July 9 (q. v.) forbidding exportation of provisions from the colonies, except to England and Ireland.—Cal. Coun. Min., 434.

Gov. Hardy issues an order to three master shipbuilders (Joseph Totten, Stephen Crossfield, and Thomas Cheeseman) and four mariners (John Griffith, Richard Jeffery, John Long, and Thomas Browne) to survey the transports.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 670.
 Five of these made report on March 21 (q. v.).

Lord Loudoun, writing from New York, informs Pitt that 10
 "This Port, has already produced, above the half of the Ships wanted [for transports]; but our Distress lies, in providing Sailors and Water Casks; but I hope, we shall get the better of those difficulties.—This has obliged me, to apply to Captain Falkingham of the Sutherland, to remain here, in order to assist, both in fitting the Transports, and securing the hands, which he has agreed to do."—Correspondence of Wm. Pitt with Colonial Governors, I: 19.

Gov. Hardy issues a warrant to John Roberts, sheriff of New York, to impress water casks, and also materials and workmen for making what may be deficient.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 670. He issued a warrant on March 14 to Nicholas Gouverneur and Leonard Lispenard to appraise the casks impressed.—Ibid.

The meeting of the common council is held at "the Work House," apparently for the purpose of appointing a committee
 "for Repairing the work House, House of Correction and alms House in such Manner as they shall Judge Necessary and Convenient," and to "Cause a small piece of Ground to the Eastward of and adjoining to the fence of the said Work House, of the Length of two Boards, to be Inclosed and fenced in, for a Buriall place for the poor belonging to the said work House."—M. C. C., VI: 85.

The shipbuilders and mariners appointed on March 8 (q. v.) 21 survey the transports make their report. A list of the vessels appointed as transports bears this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 670, 671. On March 22, a warrant was issued to the same inspectors to appraise all vessels chartered for the public service.—Ibid., 671.

The master of the privateer ship "Grand Duke" petitions 26 for a commission.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 671. See May 16.

"About the beginning" of this month, Benjamin Franklin came to New York, expectiog to sail immediately for Europe, but was detained until near the end of June by Lord Loudoun's indifference and inefficiency.—Works of Benj. Franklin (ed. by Bigelow), I: 285. The packet on which Franklin sailed accompanied the fleet on its expedition to Louisbourg (see June 20) for five days and then proceeded to England.—Ibid., I: 287. See May 25; June 3
 and 20.

The object of Franklin's visit to England is stated thus in his autobiography: "The Assembly [of Penn.] finally finding the proprietary [owners of that province] obstinately persisted in managing their deputies with instructions inconsistent not only with the privileges of the people but with the service of the crown, resolv'd to petition the king against them and appointed me their

Mar.

2

8

10

"

19

21

26

Apr.

—

- 1757 agent to go over to England to present and support the petition. Apr. 28
 . . . "—Ibid., I: 285.
- 9 The provincial council receives an account from Jacob Brewster for boarding the French neutrals (Arcadians), and ferrying them across the East River.—Cal. Coun. Min., 432. See Aug. 25, 1756. On April 30, the high sheriff of Westchester Co. submitted his bill for expenses on their account.—Ibid., 433.
- " The drawings are completed in the lottery (see Dec. 1, 1756) held at the city hall, to raise £1,125 to build the new jail. The capital prize is £500.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 11, 1757.
- 10 In a letter to Pitt, Gov. Hardy says: "Upon receiving his Majesty's Instructions, to lay an Embargo on all Ships Clearing out with Provisions, but such as are Loading, or to be laden for his Majesty's Islands or Plantations, I did myself the honour to acquaint the Lords of Trade, that I apprehended such a Prohibition would necessarily draw the French Privateers upon this Coast to Intercept such Provision Vessels. . . . I have great reason to think the suggestion well founded, and that this Coast will be greatly infested by the Enemy's Privateers; Some small Vessels lately arrived, have been Chased by a French Sloop Privateer (not more than twelve Leagues from this Port) and fortunately escaped in a Fog: As a Packet is daily expected, and Transports to come here from Philadelphia and Boston, it has been judg'd proper in a Conference with Lord Loudoun, to arm and fit out a Privateer Sloop mounted with Twelve Carriage Guns, and 100 Men, Seamen, and Soldiers, the first with an Officer to Command her out of his Majesty's Ship Sutherland, she being very foul and but a dull Sailor. The Sloop is now at Sea, and I hope will not only Protect the Trade bound here, but be able to get hold of the Privateer . . ."—Corresp. of Wm. Pitt with Colonial Governors, I: 31-32.
- 11 H. M. S. "Vulture" arrives in seven days from Halifax, on secret business. It is supposed that the captain "brought account" of the arrival of a large fleet from England.—Jour. of Hugh Gaine, II: 7.
- 14 Out of all the moneys received by the city treasurer, to be paid out "for Building a publick Goal and pest House" (see Dec. 1, 1756; April 9, 1757), he shall retain in his hands three-quarters of one percent.—M. C. C., VI: 87.
- " The common council pays John Brown "for the use of Mr Kennedys [Bedlow's] Island for suodry persons who were sent there (see Jan. 25) with the small pox by order of this Board."—M. C. C., VI: 87. For purchase of the island, see Feb. 18, 1758.
- 21 Transports from Boston, under convoy, arrive at Sandy Hook.—Jour. of Hugh Gaine, II: 7. On the following day, they came up the harbour.—Ibid., II: 7.
- 26 Joseph Murray, the New York lawyer, a member of the provincial council, and one of the officers of Trinity Church, after whom Murray St. was named, leaves, by his will of this date, to the governors of King's College, "by whatever name they are called," the residue of his estate (after making various bequests), to be applied in building and promoting the interests of the college.—Liber Wills, XX: 233, pub. in Abstracts of Wills, V: 165. Murray died the same month.—N. Y. Merc., May 2, 1757. The Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 428, must therefore be in error in stating that the earliest list of benefactors of King's College, "prepared in 1756," shows the Murray bequest.
- The information is also conveyed that he "bequeathed his estate and library, about £8000;" that "The Rev. Dr. Bristow, of London, bequeathed his library, about 1500 volumes;" that "Mr. Noel, book-seller, gave Roman's Ed. of M. Calaiso's Hebr. concordance, 4 vols. fol.;" and that "Suodry gentlemen at Oxford gave books, whose names are in them." Correctly speaking, this authority states that Dr. Bristow gave his library to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, suggesting that the society give it to the college of New York or to other institutions named, and that the society gave it to the college.—Ibid., 428.
- The library of King's College was the fifth one to be established in New York City.—Keep, Hist. of the N. Y. Society Library, 84-87, 120, in which is found, also, a full account of the later donations to the library of King's College. See also summary of early New York libraries, under 1698. Much of the King's College collection was despoiled by the British during the Revolution.—Man. Com. Coun. (1856), 560.
- 27 Transports come ic from Philadelphia and anchor in the North River with the other transports.—Jour. of Hugh Gaine, II: 7. See April 21, and May 5.
- In April, petitions were made, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the following privateers: the ships "Richard and Ann" and "Essex," and the brigantine "Achilles."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 671. See May 16.
- A list of vessels already commissioned to act as privateers, with the names of their owners and the dates of their warrants, is recorded under date of April, 1757.—Ibid.
- The sloop-of-war "Ferrit" having brought over a commission appointing Gov. Hardy rear admiral of the Blue Squadron, his flag is hoisted on the man-of-war "Nightingale," lying in the North River, and salutes are fired by the other men-of-war "and by near 100 sail of vessels at anchor in the harbour."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 9, 1757. The Mercury of May 9 recorded the event as happening on May 4, and the Jour. of Hugh Gaine as on the 6th. See also "The Chronological Diary," p. 19, in New Am. Mag. (Woodbridge, N. J., Jan., 1758).
- Gov. Hardy writes to Pitt: "I am now preparing to leave this Province, and expect by the Packet to receive his Majesty's Permission to resign this Government."—Corresp. of Wm. Pitt with Colonial Governors, I: 59.
- The provincial council receives a letter from Secretary William Pitt regarding the operations of the campaign. The militia are under standing orders to march when occasion requires.—Cal. Coun. Min., 433.
- Robert Charles, agent of the province of New York in London, writes to David Jones, speaker of the New York assembly, that there is a report in London "that Lord Loudoun is gone from New York for Halifax with 8000 Regulars & Irregulars, with a View it is thought of Meeting the Armament with Adm<sup>l</sup> Holbournes Squadron. In that Case it is hoped your Province is left in full Security from any hostile Attempt."—From a copy of the letter among the original Smith Papers (MSS.) in N. Y. Pub. Library. Loudoun did not actually sail until June 20 (p. v.).
- "The Public is desired to take Notice, That, this Day, the Printing-Office formerly kept in Queen Street [see Oct. 6, 1755], will be removed to the House next Door to Doctor William Brownjohn's in Hanover Square, near the Meal Market."—N. Y. Merc., May 12, 1757; Jour. of Hugh Gaine, I: 8 (editorial note). Gaine had an advertisement in the Post-Boy, Nov. 17, 1760, showing that his printing-office (the "Bible and Crown") was "but two Doors from the Meal-Market." On April 30, 1759, Gaine bought this property. For deed of purchase, see Liber Deeds, XLIV: 503 (register's office). For Gaine's removal from this place, see April 18, 1763.
- The owners of the ship "Scott" petition for a commission for her commander.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 672.
- Gov. Hardy writes to Lewis Morris, judge of the admiralty court, to issue letters of marque to the commanders of the ships "Grand Duke" (see March 26), "Richard and Ann," and "Essex" (see April 28).—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 672.
- Several merchants of New York meet to debate the subject of the importation of goods from Great Britain. They agree to wait a few weeks longer in hopes of hearing that the duty on tea (see Dec. 1, 1756) has been repealed. In the meanwhile, no orders for goods are to be sent over until further information arrives.—Upcott Coll. I: 289, in N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- The Earl of Loudoun reviews the Highland Regiment, together with Abercrombie's and Webb's.—Jour. of Hugh Gaine, II: 8.
- "At two o'clock this morning, about 3,000 soldiers were passed round this City, whilst many different parties patrolled the Streets, searched the Taverns, and other houses, where sailors usually resorted and impressed about 400, taking all kinds of Tradesmen and Negroes, near 800 were impressed on the whole, but not above 400 retained in the Service. This Night or the next Day about twenty soldiers, a Sergeant and a Subaltern, were sent on board every Transport in order to keep the men from getting on shore, and to prevent all kinds of Disturbance. The whole Number of Forces were embarked in a few days after [see May 25], and sailed for the Hook, with as much speed as the Nature of the Case required, and without running foul of each other on their way down."—Jour. of Hugh Gaine, II: 8-9. See May 25 and June 20.
- Gov. Hardy orders "that no Boatman or Marketman, coming to or going from this City, or bringing Provisions or other Necessaries to the King's Ships; or any of the Transports in His Majesty's Service, shall be impressed or detained on any account whatsoever."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 30, 1757.

- 1757 The fleet, bound for Louisbourg, drops down to Sandy Hook.— May "The Chronological Diary," 20, in New Am. Mag. (Woodbridge, 25 N. J., Jan., 1758). See May 20.
 26, 27 Five French prizes are brought into port by three privateers, being taken out of a fleet bound from Cape François to Bordeaux.
 "The Ships are 14 Carriage Guns each, are Letters of Marque, stobd a hot Engagement of some Hours, and our Vessels were obliged to board them before they struck." They are "deep loaded with Sugar, Coffee, Cotton, &c. And, we hear, one of the Ships has between 80 and 100,000 wt. of Indigo on board. The Whole, at the lowest Computation, is valued at about 70 Thousand Pounds Currency."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 30, 1757. See description of Pl. 35, I: 276.
- 30 Lord Loudoun writes from New York to Pitt concerning the "preparations made for the expedition against the French. He says:
 "Sir Charles Hardy, to whom . . . I had, on his offering to take the trouble, given the entire Management of the Transports, having Complained that Sailors, both from the Men of War, and Transports, had deserted, in order to get on board the Privateers, from the great profit they make there . . . and that those Sailors were harbour'd in Town, and that he could not retake them, without my Assistance; I immediately surrounded the Town with three Battalions, to prevent their making their Escape, whilst he Employed the Sailors in taking up the Deserters, who finding themselves overpowered, made no resistance, and the whole was finished by six in the morning, without any disturbance
 . . ."
- "Our Situation here, is, the Troops are all Embarked; and the last of the Ships, will probably get to the Hook, to-morrow or next day; for Convoys, we have one 50. Gun Ship, the Sutherland; We have two of 20. Guns, the Nightengale and Kennington; two Sloops, the Ferret and Vulture . . ."—Corresp. of Wm. Pitt with Colonial Governors, I: 69-71.
- June Gov. Hardy, having been made rear-admiral by the king (see 2 May 5, and Assemb. Jour., II: 538), receives orders from England to join the fleet of Rear Admiral Holburne at Halifax.—Cal. Coun. Min., 433. See also Man. Com. Coun. (1864), 583.
- "On the eve of his departure, the council offers a complimentary address to Sir Charles Hardy on his promotion in the navy, to which he replies appropriately.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng, 672.
- 3 The oaths are administered to Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, after the reading of his commission, and he presides at the council meeting.
 —Cal. Coun. Min., 433; Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 1301.
- 8 Isaac Sears, commander of the sloop-of-war "Catharine," is ordered by the provincial council to cruise off Block Island and the east end of Long Island, to intercept illegal traders between Rhode Island and Hispaniola.—Cal. Coun. Min., 434.
- "The council issues another warrant to the commissioners of fortifications, Bancker and Dies (see Feb. 19, 1756) for expenses.
 —Cal. Coun. Min., 434. Another was issued Oct. 22.—Ibid., 436.
 See, further, Sept. 27, 1758.
- "The council orders that the fortifications be completed.—*Cal.
 Coun. Min.*, 433.
- Philip Livingston and Edward Nicoll, New York merchants, petition for a commission for the commander of the privateer schooner "Aaron King."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng, 673. Other such petitions, this month, are for the brigantines "Pompey," "Hope,"
 "King George," "De Lancey," and "True Britain," the ships
 "Hercules," "King William the Third," and "Oliver Cromwell," the sloops "Charming Sally," "Goldfinch," "Tiger," "Charming Polly," and "Prince Edward," and the snows "Dreadnaught" and "Cicero."—Ibid., 673, 674.
- 20 The provincial council orders the issuing of a proclamation for a day of fasting.—Cal. Coun. Min., 434.
- "Lord Loudoun sails with the fleet from Sandy Hook for Halifax.
 —Jour. of Hugh Gaine, II: 10. In the fall of 1756, Loudoun had proposed to the English ministry the reduction of Cape Breton Island as an important step in the contemplated campaign for the ensuing year. Upon receipt of their sanction and promise of cooperation, plans were made for assembling a fleet at New York.— See April 21 and 27, 1757. By May 5, this was accomplished, and Rear-Admiral Hardy took command the following day (see May 5).
 As no news was received of the whereabouts of the English fleet which was to assist them, sailing was delayed until June 20, when they ventured forth, arriving in Halifax on June 30. The English fleet came in detached groups, and it was not until July
- 9 that all the forces were assembled.—Am. Mag. (Phila. 1758), June 90-93. See Aug. 30 for result of the expedition.
- The provincial council removes the embargo on the exportation of provisions.—Cal. Coun. Min., 434. But see July 9.
- A proclamation is issued appointing July 13 as a day of fasting, etc., on account of the war.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng, 674.
- After an interval of more than eleven weeks without a ministry, George II is forced to accept the one formed by the union of the Pitt and Newcastle parties. The new ministers "kissed hands" on June 29. As "Secretary of State for the Southern Department," Pitt had practically complete control of the administration. His great power and important work properly dates from this period.
 —Williams, Life of Wm. Pitt, I: 317-36; Thackeray, *Hist. of Wm.
 Pitt*, I: 289-94.
- The privateers and merchant vessels in New York harbour number 172.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 27, 1757.
- The ship "King William the Third," built by the Messrs.
 Cornwalls as a privateer, is launched. She is "esteemed by the most Judicious, as fine a Ship for the Purpose as has been built in America for a long Time. She is to carry 20 Nine Pounders, and 180 Men."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 4, 1757.
- Petitions, this month, beginning on this day, are made for commissions for commanders of the dogger "Decoy," the sloops
 "Charming Polly," "Squirrel," and "Wheel of Fortune;" the snows "Neptune," and "Revenge;" and the ship "Sturdy Beggar."
 —Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng, 675.
- The ship "Sturdy Beggar" comes into the harbour from East Jersey where she was built, the keel having been laid the preceding summer.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 30, 1756. The vessel is a double-decker, designed for a privateer, and mounts 26 guns. She is "esteemed the best Ship of War belonging to the Port, and is to be commanded by the experienced Robert Troup, who particularly signalized himself the last War in the Command of the Hester Privateer Brig."—Ibid., July 11, 1757.
- The provincial council receives an order from the Earl of Holderness to remove the embargo on vessels bound to England or Ireland with provisions. They receive from Secretary John Pownall an act of parliament forbidding exportation of provisions from the colonies except to England and Ireland. The council orders that the act be published in the New York Gazette.
 —Cal. Coun. Min., 434. See March 2.
- Gov. Hardy, on his departure from New York, advises the lords of trade of certain evasions of the navigation laws, whereby importation of dutiable goods from England is discouraged, and royal revenues consequently diminished. Vessels bring tea, canvas, arms, etc. from Holland, stop at Sandy Hook, smuggle in cargo, and go up to New York empty; others load at Holland and stop at some "out post in Britain," where they report and pay duty on only half their cargo.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 271-72.
- The council, having received royal orders with instructions for commanders of privateers, conveys them to the commanders and the admiralty judge. On July 16, the council ordered the publication of these orders by proclamation.—Cal. Coun. Min., 434.
- This day is proclaimed one of prayer, fasting, and humiliation throughout the province.—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 11, 1757.
- The provincial council orders the arrest and trial of Richard Hadden, commander of the privateer "Feggy," of New York, on charges of piratical behaviour made by Vice Admiral Townsend, just received by the council in a letter from the Earl of Holderness.
 —Cal. Coun. Min., 434.
- The proclamation is issued (see July 11), publishing the royal instructions to privateers relating to Spanish vessels, dated Oct.
 5, 1756.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng, 675.
- The common council orders that the mayor issue his warrant to the treasurer to pay Israel Dusseway £50 for making "an addition to the ferry Bridge on Long Island," 20 feet farther into the river, and "at the End of that a Dock or pier," 21 feet broad extending to feet into the river; also £15 for additional work on this pier.—M. C. G., VI: 96. Cf. Bakeswell View, Pl. 33, Vol. I.
- The common council allows Alderman Coventry £256:13:11 for sums expended on the "Guard Room."—M. C. G., VI: 97.
- News is published in New York of the loss, on July 21, of 280 men of the New York and New Jersey regiments, who were ambushed by the enemy near Niconderoga. Col. John Parker and Capt. Jonathan Ogden, of the New York regiment, are the only officers who escaped alive.—Supp. to the N. Y. Merc., Aug. 1, 1757.

- 1757 Aug. 2 Petitions were entered in this month, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the ships "Grace," and "Defiance," and the Schooner "Hardy."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 677, 678.
- 3 Letters are sent from Fort Edward and Albany to Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey that Fort William Henry is invested by 11,000 French.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 676. These were in the hands of the provincial council at New York on Aug. 6.—Cal. Coun. Min., 435.
- 4 The provincial council takes official cognizance of the defeat of Col. Parker and about 300 men by the French (see Aug. 1); and of the announcement that Gen. Webb will march to Fort William Henry. The news is sent to Gov. Belcher.—Cal. Coun. Min., 435.
- " On being informed that a large French fleet and a garrison of 6,000 men await him at Louisbourg, Gen. Loudoun abandons the expedition against it.—Parkman, Montcalm and Wolfe, I: 468-71.
- " Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, about to depart for Albany, leaves instructions for the council.—Cal. Coun. Min., 435.
- 5 Gov. De Lancey embarks for Albany to aid in the defence of Fort William Henry, which was attacked on the 3d by the French and Indians. He arrived in Albany on Aug. 8, and on the 10th received word of the surrender of Fort William Henry on the preceding day. Fearing that the enemy would penetrate farther into the country, De Lancey ordered a detachment of 500 men from New York, 600 from Queen's County, and the entire militia of Westchester to march at once to Albany.—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 1304. See also, N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 8, and Aug. 22, 1757.
- 6 The provincial council (Archibald Kennedy presiding) receives word from Capt. Christie and others that Fort William Henry is invested by 11,000 French, and orders the militia of Queens and Westchester Counties to go to Albany. The news is sent to New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Orders are issued for impressing provisions, and an embargo is laid on all vessels.—Cal. Coun. Min., 435.
- " A warrant is issued to Mayor Cruger, and to William Coventry, Henry Cuyler, Jr., and Anthony Ten Eyck, merchants, to impress horses, men, sloops, pilots, provisions, etc., for the use of the troops.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 676.
- 9 Col. Monroe, with about 2,600 men, after Gen. Webb's refusal to aid him with troops from Fort Edward, surrenders Fort William Henry (a useless wooden defence erected by Gen. Johnson at the foot of Lake George in Sept., 1755) to Gen. Montcalm, who has 11,500 men. The Indian allies of the French, maddened with rum, cruelly massacre the English prisoners at Bloody Pond.—Parkman, Montcalm and Wolfe, I: 474-514 and authorities there cited. See Aug. 14.
- 10 Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey writes from Albany to the council at New York regarding the surrender of Fort William Henry to the French, and ordering militia to be forwarded, and French prisoners and neutrals imprisoned.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 676. This communication reached New York on Aug. 14.—Cal. Coun. Min., 435.
- 11 Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey writes again from Albany to the council at New York, reporting the terms of surrender of Fort William Henry and the outrages committed by French Indians on the garrison, and urging that assistance be sent to Gen. Webb.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 676.
- 12 The provincial council in New York writes to Lord Loudoun, at Halifax, enclosing copies of De Lancey's letters of Aug. 10 and 11 (q. v.), and asking for reinforcements.
- " A warrant is issued to impress sloops and boats to carry reinforcements to Albany.
- " The council also writes to De Lancey regarding letters sent to Governors Belcher, Denny, Floyd, and Fitch.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 676-77.
- 13 The council writes to Col. Wm. Willet, of Westchester Co., to detach 600 men and send them to Albany. Letters are sent to the colonels commanding the militia of Queens Co. and Suffolk Co. asking that one-half of the militia ordered to Albany be posted in towns nearest to New York. Colonels Hicks, Stillwell, Dougan, and Willet are to have their regiments in readiness to march to Albany; and are to observe orders with regard to beacons. Capt. William Collins, of the privateer "Wheel of Fortune," is ordered to proceed with troops to Albany. The council writes to De Lancey that Capt. Farmer is to be ordered back to New York to command the batteries; and writes to the sheriffs of the several counties to secure the French prisoners and neutrals in their local jails.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 677. For the report, on Aug. 16, of the sheriff of Richmond Co., see ibid., 678.
- " The council issues an order on the military store-keeper, Francis Stevens, for powder and ordnance to the detachments going to Albany (see Aug. 6).—Cal. Coun. Min., 435.
- " The provincial council takes cognizance of the report that Fort William Henry has surrendered to the French, and that the capitulation has been broken by them (see Aug. 5). Gen. Daniel Webb needs reinforcements.—Cal. Coun. Min., 435.
- " The council writes to De Lancey that 600 men under Maj. Courtlandt had been sent to Albany; and that troops are to be sent from Queens Co. and New Jersey, 300 men having already gone from New Jersey. Gov. Belcher has written to De Lancey from Elizabethtown that 1,000 troops have been ordered for Albany, and 3,000 more are to be raised.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 677.
- " A court-martial is held at New York to determine why certain troops have not accompanied the troops to Albany. David Jones writes from Fort Neck, L. I., to Archibald Kennedy, the presiding counsellor, of the great intimacy between negro slaves and the neutral French.
- " Richard Floyd writes from Brookhaven to the council, advising them of the sailing of one-half the militia of Suffolk Co.
- " A signed opinion of several masters of vessels presents what they believe is the best mode of fortifying the city.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 677.
- 16 French prisoners are transferred from the New York jail to the care of Col. Richard Stillwell and Sheriff Maurice Lott of Kings County, who were called before the council the day before.—Cal. Coun. Min., 435. This is in accordance with a decision of the council on July 22.—Ibid., 435. On Aug. 18, such prisoners were ordered sent to Suffolk County by water.—Ibid., 436.
- " The council orders Francis Stevens, the king's store-keeper, and Christopher Blundell, store-keeper at Fort George, to deliver to John Brant, a pilot, material for the Neversink beacon fortifications.—Cal. Coun. Min., 435.
- " Jacob Golet, reporting on the proper places to mount cannon for the defence of New York City, recommends Dominies Hook on the North River, Des Brosses battery, and Albany pier on the East River, and it is so ordered.—Cal. Coun. Min., 435.
- " The embargo against the exportation of provisions is removed.—Ibid., 435.
- " The council hears from Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey (who is at Albany) that troops from Fort William Henry were returning in distressing condition; the militia of Suffolk and Queens Counties are to return home.—Ibid., 436.
- 19 The provincial council orders Christopher Blundell, store-keeper of Fort George, to deliver the key of the magazine under the north-west bastion of Fort George to Francis Stevens, king's store-keeper.
- " The council advises the lieutenant-governor to call the assembly to meet either on Long Island or in Westchester County (see Aug. 22).—Cal. Coun. Min., 436.
- " A report of the number of cannon and the amount of stores wanted for the battery and fort at New York bears this date; also a list of vessels, giving their names and the names of their captains, appointed for transport service, with appraisements.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 678.
- " Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey returns from Albany. The assembly is directed to meet at Harlem (see Aug. 31).—Cal. Coun. Min., 436.
- 23 The common council reimburses Mayor Cruger for advances, amounting to £263:18:9, paid by him "for officers Billets the last winter."—M. C. C., VI: 98. For later officers' billets, see July 12, 1758; May 24, 1759.
- " On account of James Brewerton for provisions and houses for French neutrals, numbering 78 persons, at the Brooklyn ferry, bears this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 678.
- " A warrant is issued to impress sloops, boats, and other vessels of small draft, for the public service.—Ibid.
- 26 The provincial council issues a warrant to Lieut. Duncan to impress vessels for transporting the Earl of Loudoun and his troops from Halifax to New York.—Cal. Coun. Min., 436.
- " Christopher Kilby, one of the contractors for victualing the forces, presents a memorial seeking a warrant to impress provisions for 8,000 men to be sent to Albany.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 678.
- 30 The council orders pilots to look out at Sandy Hook for Lord Loudoun's transports.—Cal. Coun. Min., 436.
- " The return of Lord Loudoun with his fleet from Halifax marks

- 1757 the beginning of the end of the expedition against Louisbourg. Sept.
 Aug. On Aug. 1 and 2, the troops at Halifax had embarked for a sup- 26 posed attack on that objective, but plans were suddenly changed 30 and the forces divided. On Aug. 18, Admiral Holbourn with his forces sailed eastward hoping to bottle up the French fleet at Louisbourg; Gov. Lawrence and his part of the fleet went to the Bay of Fundy; and the remaining vessels, under Loudoun, were convoyed to New York. On Sept. 24, Holbourn's ships were so shattered by storm that a definite end to the campaign for this year resulted. The men, who returned to New York, were sent immediately to Albany.—Am. Mag. (Phila., 1758), 138-42. See June 20, 1757; and March 4, 1758.
- 31 The assembly meets in the "Township of Harlem, in the Outward of the City of New-York," on account of the small-pox in the city.—Assemb. Jour., II: 538. See Feb. 15, 1757. Meetings continued here until Sept. 3.—Ibid., II: 539.
- Sept. Since the beginning of the war, 39 privateers have been fitted out at New York. For an enumeration of them, showing number of gus and men, see Man. Com. Conn. (1870), 873.
- 5 During September, petitions are made, beginning on this day,
 for commissions for the commanders of the following privateers:
 the sloop "St. George," "Little David," and "Harlequin;" and the ship "Hunter."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 679.
- " The following advertisement shows the operation of the early post-office: "A Letter is oow at the New-Printing-Office in Beaver-street, directed, To Mr. Zachary Kerby, at New York, Amboy, or Long-Island, with the greatest Dispatch: And as it is thought to be of great Consequence, this Method is taken to inform him of it."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 5, 1757.
- 9 The privateer "Harlequin" enters port and her captain reports that with the aid of a Rhode Island privateer he captured three French vessels bound from the West Indies to Bordeaux with cargoes of sugar, coffee, and cotton. One prize he brought into harbour with him; the other two were taken into a Rhode Island port.—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 12, 1757.
- 10 The July mail arrives from England. One item of news is that "a sumptuous Monument is erecting in Westminster Abbey, to the Memory of Sir Peter Warren."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 12, 1757. Warren died in Dublin on July 26, 1752 (q. v.)—Ibid., Oct.
 30, 1752.
- 16 The council receives a request from the lords of trade for an account of iron made in the colonies.—Cal. Conn. Min., 436.
- 17 Samuel Holland draws a plan of that portion of the city which extends about two miles north from the present Chambers Street, from river to river. It is entitled "A Plan of the North East En-vironis, of the City of New-York, Performed by Order of his Excellency the Earl of Loudon &c &c," and is evidently intended to show the line of palisades (see July 6, 1745) and the high ground in various parts of this region. One of these localities is "Bayards Hill commanding over all the high Grounds." Another, just north of the Hendrick Rutgers estate at Corlear's Hook, is described as "High Ground commanding all the Hills except Bay-ards." The plan shows, very clearly outlined, the Nicholas Bayard estate, with an avenue of trees leading to it from the "High Road" (Bowery Road); also the estate of Lieut.-Gov. "Somersdicks," to the north of Bayard's, but on the opposite (east) side of the High Road. It also shows the Widow Rutgers estate, west of the Fresh Water Pond; the slaughter-house, powder magazine, pot baker's, ropewalk (extending in a northeasterly direction from the present Chatham Square) and the Jews burying-ground. The plan is reproduced and described in Vol. I, Pl. 36-b (from the original in the state library); see also Man. Com. Conn. (1859), opp. p. 108. Writing in 1757, William Smith said that the palisades had "block-houses at small distances;" also "The greater part of them still stand as a monument of our folly, which cost the province about £8000."—Smith, Hist. of the Prov. of N. Y. (1757), 188.
 See also April, 1754; and May 8, 1761; and "Palisades of 1746," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 945.
- 26 Lorenzo Ghiglini, the owner of the ships, "Immaculate Conception and St. Ignatio de Loyola," sailing under a pass from the Pope, having been taken by two privateers, and set free, petitions that his agents, Lewis Morris, Jr., and Robt. I. Livingston, may land (presumably at New York) and sell articles of his to pay for refitting. A list of the articles, as filed of record, is attached to a libel of the commanders of the privateers "Revenge" and "Horn-net."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 679. Four certificates as to the repairs and stores needed bear date of Oct. 19. One of these Sept.
 asserts that a new suit of sails will cost £448.—Ibid., 680.
 "His Excellency Lord Loudoun, has removed his Dwelling from Whitehall into Fort-George, in this City."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 26, 1757.
- " The privateer "Royal Hester" arrives with two prizes, esteemed the richest brought into America during this war, "being valued at upwards of £30,000."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 3, 1757.
- Oct. During October, petitions were made, beginning on this day, 1
 for commissions for the commanders of the following privateers:
 the sloop "Lovely Martha," the ships "Spadil" and "Duke of Cumberland," and the brigantines "Earl of Loudoun," "Johnson," and "Betsey."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 679-80.
- 5 William Walton marries Miss Polly de Lancey, daughter of
 Gov. De Lancey, "at his Honour's House in the Bowery."—
N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 10, 1757. The alliance of these two families had more than passing interest in the history of the city. Both names figured prominently for many years in the official, commercial, and land-title, records of early New York.
- 10 "A List of Privateers fitted and fitting out of New York, since the commencement of the present War, to the 10th of October, 1757," was printed in The American Country Almanack for the Year of Christian Account, 1758 (pub. by Parker & Weyman).
 This was reprinted in the Hist. Mag., 2d ser., VI: 250.
- 17 In an advertisement of this date, mention is made of Benjamin Payne's "Corner House facing the Old Slip Market," where he sells "Rum, Wine, Arrack, Sugar, and Molasses, by Wholesale or Retail; also sundry shop Goods; Beef and Pork by the Barrel;
 And, Indian Corn."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 17. The general store of this kind is frequently mentioned in advertisements of the colonial period.
- " Ebenezer Grant, in Hanover Square, sells at wholesale or retail "Best Madeira, and other Wines, old Jamaica Rum and Brandy by the Five Gallons, or less Quantity; best Florence Oil by the Bette, Spices of all Sorts; Black Pepper, pounded Rhubarb; best Derham Mustard by the Bottle, Muscovado and Loaf Sugar, Coffee, Tea, and Chocolate, Currents, and Raisins; best French Indigo; and Scotts Suuff in Bladders."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 17, 1757.
- " As appears from an advertisement of this date, Gaine's printing-office in Queen Street is now the house of Garden Proctor, a watchmaker, where William Proctor sells Peruvian Cortex (Jesuits Bark).—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 17, 1757.
- " There are advertised for sale "The two corner houses and ground, belonging to the estate of the late Cornelius Depuyster, deceased, near the New-Exchange; the one fronting the Great-Dock, now in the tenure of Mr. Peter Goelet; the other fronting the street wherein the heirs now live; both pleasantly situated, and convenient for a merchant or a shopkeeper."—N. Y. Post-Boy,
 Oct. 17, 1757.
- " Lawrence Kilbrunn[,] Limner, from London, Continues as usual, to draw to the Life. Ladies and Gentlemen that have not as yet seen many of his Performances may now have an Opportunity of viewing sundry Pieces together, which he hath drawn to the entire Satisfaction of the Persons for whom they were designed. He may be applied to at his Lodgings, at the House of Mr. Peter Roosevelt, in Bayard's Street."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct.
 17, 1757.
- 19 Proceedings are commenced to build barracks on the Commons.
 These are for the use of the king's troops.—Assemb. Jour., II: 539.
 The common council appoints a committee to consult with the principal carpenters of the city to determine "what meethod Can be taken" for immediately providing materials for "the Carryng on and Compleating Barracks" to contain 800 men, and whether a sufficient number of carpenters can be had to complete the barracks in a fortnight.—M. C. C., VI: 108. The committee reported on Oct. 21 that it had consulted with "the most principall Carpenters of this City," and that they were of the opinion that it was possible to obtain the required materials in a fortnight. The common council resolved that the building be carried on forthwith under the direction and inspection of this committee, with power to treat with such persons and purchase such materials as they might judge proper. It was further ordered that the building should be 420 feet long by 21 feet wide, and contain 20 rooms, two storeys high, each 21 x 21 feet square; also that the building should be built "on some of the Common Lands of this Corporation,

- 1757 to the southward of freshwater Between the New Goal House and the house of Catemuts."
- 19 At the same meeting a committee was named "to wait on the Governour and Council, and Request of them to draw a warrant on the Treasurer of the Colony, in favor of this Corporation for a sufficient sum to build and Compleat said Barracks out of the monies in his hands Raised for fortifications," and that this committee shall have power to agree "that the monies so to be drawn for shall be Replaced by this Corporation in Case the General assembly shall not allow and approve of such Draught."—Ibid., VI: 111-12. On Oct. 22, the governour and council permitted the loan.—Cal. Coun. Min., 436.
- At a meeting of the common council held at the work house, Oct. 25, a committee was appointed to receive of Christopher Bancker and John Dies the £2,000 which "they Received of the Treasurer of the Colony out of the fortification money, by Virtue of a warrant to them from the Governour and Council the said sum to be applied towards Building of Barracks in or near this City, pursuant to a Resolution of this Board," on Oct. 21.—Ibid., VI: 113. The work of actual construction of the barracks was soon under way.—See Oct. 31, 1757.
- 21 A minute of the common council relative to building barracks for 800 men bears this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 680.
- 27 The remainder of the household furniture of Sir Charles Hardy is advertised to be sold on this day; "Also the Chariot, Horses, &c. and Stable Furniture."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 24, 1757.
- 31 A range of barracks (see Oct. 19) is being built "on the Common, near Fresh-Water," 422 feet long, to accommodate 1,000 soldiers. It is to be finished "at the Expense of the Corporation," and as soon as possible.—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 31, 1757. The first record of payment for equipment and operation of the new barracks is dated Nov. 29, 1757,—namely, £200 for firewood. Another payment was made the same day for firewood for the barracks at the Battery.—M. C. C., VI, 117-18. Presumably the building was then finished. John Dempsey was paid by the city, Sept. 26, 1758, a balance of £320. 28:33, in full payment for what he had advanced and expended on "the New Barracks."—Ibid., VI: 145. For the arrangement perfected to repay the sum borrowed of the provincial treasury (see Oct. 19) to build these barracks, see Dec. 24, 1757. For later references, see "Upper Barracks," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 924.
- Nov. The council orders that a warrant be issued for impressing 1 boats for military transportation.—Cal. Coun. Min., 437.
- 3 The brig "De Lancey" arrives in port with one of two "French-Dutch" ships captured on Oct. 22. The other prize arrived Nov. 15.—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 14 and 21, 1757.
- 4 The council receives from Cadwallader Coldea a map of the western frontier, and his recommendation for a line of blockhouses; this is adopted.—Cal. Coun. Min., 437.
- " An addition to the law "for the better preventing of fire" is passed by the common council. It prohibits the placing or keeping of "any Hay or Straw in Barracks or piles in his her or their Yard or Yards Garden or Gardens, or in any other place or places, to the Southward of Freshwater;" the keeping or putting of hay or straw "in any House Stable or other Building to the Southward of the Freshwater that is or shall be within Ten feet of any Chimney Hearth or fire place, or place for keeping ashes," etc.—M. C. C., VI: 116.
- 8 President Johnson of King's College having retired with his family to Westchester, on account of the small-pox in the city, to remain there a year, leaves in the college about thirty pupils, in the three classes; and the tutor, Mr. Cutting, being unable to do justice to them all, the board of governors appoints, as professor of mathematics and natural history, Daniel Treadwell, "a young gentleman of a very excellent character, educated at Harvard College, and recommended by Professor Winthrop as eminently qualified for that station." This was the first professorship established in the college. Mr. Treadwell had begun his duties on Nov. 1; his annual stipend was to be £100. Soon after this, mathematical and philosophical instruments were purchased, and Rev. Dr. Bristowe (see 1756) bequeathed to the college his library of about 1,500 books.—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 22, citing Chandler's Life of Johnson.
- At the meeting of the governors on Nov. 8, the vestry-room was assigned to Prof. Treadwell; and Mr. Cutting, the tutor, was obliged to take his classes in his private lodgings, for which he was - allowed £10 per annum, and his salary was raised from £80 to Nov. £100.—Ibid., 22-23. President Johnson returned in March, 1758. 8
- Ibid.*, 23.
- The provincial council (Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey presiding) receives a royal order approving the act disposing of part of the Philip van Cortlandt estate.—Cal. Coun. Min., 400.
- 17 During November, petitions were made, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the snow "Hester," the sloops "Keziah" and "Harlequin," and the brigantine "De Lancey."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 681.
- 19 Col. Peter Schuyler, who had been taken prisoner at Oswego on Aug. 14, 1755, and carried to Quebec, arrives in New York by way of Albany. "At Night, several publick Buildings, in this City, were handsomely illuminated, on the Colonel's happy Return; and an elegant Entertainment made on the Occasion, at the King's Arms Tavern. . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 21, 1757.
- 22 The council orders that warrants be issued to impress sloops for military transportation to Albany.—Cal. Coun. Min., 437.
- 29 Firewood is paid for by the common council "for the Gard House and Hospital."—M. C. C., VI: 117. A guard-house at the Battery is mentioned in Ibid., VIII: 116. Montross calls the barracks at the Battery the "Military Hospital" (Pl. 40, Vol. I).
- 30 The St. Andrew's Society holds its first annual meeting, at "Scott's Johnny's," after which the members, with a number of Scotch army men who are in the city, dine together "in a most elegant and sociable Manner. Many loyal and patriot Healers were drank on the Occasion, heartily, yet soberly. In the Evening, the same Company gave a Ball and Entertainment, at the Exchange-Room and King's Arms Tavern, to the Town; at which a large and polite Company of both Sexes assembled. The Ladies in particular, made a most brilliant Appearance; and it is thought there scarcely ever was before so great a Number of elegantly dress'd fine Woman seen together at one Place in North-America. As there were a great many of his Majesty's Officers present, several too of the first Rank, who had never before seen a publick Company of Ladies in this Part of the World, they were most agreeably surpriz'd and struck with the charming Sight. . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 5, 1757. For organization of this society, see Nov. 19, 1756.
- Dec. A large French prize ship of about 400 tons, loaded with sugar, is now "coming up."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 5, 1757. 5
- 6 H. M. S. "Norwich" arrives from Cork with "16 sail of transports," having on board "2000 men for the army in these parts."—The Chronological Diary, 44, in New Am. Mag. (Jan., 1758).
- " After adjournment from time to time since Sept. 3, the "House" (of Representatives) meets, by direction of the lieutenant-governour, "in the Assembly Chamber, at the House of Mr. Tenis Somersdyck, in the Bowery Division of the Out-ward."—Assemb. Jour., II: 539. This is on account of the small-pox in the city.—See Feb. 15 and Aug. 31, 1757. Meetings continued here until Dec. 24.—Ibid., II: 546.
- " The assembly again met here from Jan. 24 to Feb. 4, 1758 (ibid., II: 547); and again from March 7 to 24 (ibid., II: 548, 555), and from May 2 to June 3, 1758 (ibid., II: 555, 566).
- " Meetings were resumed in the city hall on Nov. 14, 1758.—Ibid., II: 566.
- " For location of the Somersdyck house, see Pl. 36-b, Vol. I; and cf. Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 952. On Dec. 18, 1761, the assembly allowed Somersdyck £50 for the use of his house by that body.—Assemb. Jour., II: 684. The foregoing official record of the meeting of the assembly of Dec. 6 is oddly different from the account as given by William Smith, who affirmed that, instead of the meeting being held (as by some said) at De Lancey's kitchen, they met "in an out-house occupied by the overseer of his own farm upon the skirts of the town."—Smith's Continuation of the Hist. of N. Y., in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1830), V: 258.
- 7 The surgeon of the man-of-war "Nightingale," from Halifax, reports contagious disease on board, and the council issues appropriate orders thereon.—Cal. Coun. Min., 437.
- " The council receives newspapers which contain mention of the appointment, in England, of Robert Cholmondeley as surveyor and auditor-general of the revenues in America.—Ibid., 437.
- 14 Four certificates of this date, by the master and wardens of the port of New York, attest that four shipmasters are each qualified for the office of branch pilot.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 681.
- " During December, petitions are made, beginning on this day,

1757 for commissions for the commanders of the ships "Col. Provost" and "William and Mary," the schooners "America" and "Samson," and the snow "Charming Sally."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 682.

14 The west range of barracks in the fort, with its stores, is destroyed by fire, caused by tailors working in one of the rooms, "who had been careless of their fire." At this time, Lord Loudoun lived in the governor's house in the fort, and Gov. Hardy lived in his own house half a mile out of town. The loss by this fire was £530.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 341-42. The N. Y. Post-Boy (Dec. 19) stated that the fire broke out on the 15th; but the N. Y. Merc. (Dec. 19) and the Penn. Gaz. (Dec. 29) reported it as occurring on the 14th; it was probably in the night.

19 The provincial-council refers to the assembly the following accounts, with others: that of Sir Charles Hardy and John Dies for repairs of a house in Fort George; of Margaret Stelles for boarding French prisoners; and of John van Rensselaer for express services.—Cal. Coun. Min., 437.

24 It is stated in a legislative act that "the Free quartering of Soldiers in the City of New York has by Experience been found too unequal as well as too heavy a burthen for the Inhabitants to bear." To relieve them, "the Corporation have Erected Proper and Convenient Barracks [see Oct. 19 and 31, 1757] in addition to those Already Built and furnished them with Cribs Beds Bolters [sic] Tables Benches Firewood Candles and other Necessarys;" and it is further stated that "the expense of free Quartering of Officers at the Requestion of the Earl of Loudoun together with the Necessary and Contingent Charges of the Corporation have so much Exhausted Their Treasury that they are at present unable to Pay and discharge the Debts Accrued in Building Barracks and furnishing them with Necessarys without the Aid . . . of the Legislature." It is therefore enacted that the common council may raise a sum not exceeding £3,500 by a tax upon the real and personal estates of all the "Freeholders Free-men Inhabitants Residents and Sojourners within the City of New York." The city is allowed to retain title to the soil on which barracks are built or to be built, as these barracks are "for the relief of the Inhabitants . . . from Billenting of Soldiers in time of War," and may be rented out at other times as the common council sees fit.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 211-14.

On Dec. 29, the common council took steps to put the act into effect. Receipts were filed by J. de Peyster, Jr., showing that he had received, for use on the barracks, sums aggregating £2,000, from Aldermen Livingston and Lisenpard.—M. C. C., VI: 119-20. On March 30, 1758, John de Peyster, Jr., was reimbursed in the sum of £200, advanced by him for firewood and caodles for the barracks, and £100 additional on April 1.—Ibid., VI: 128, 129.

On April 1, the day appointed in the act above cited, the collectors of the various wards turned over to the common council sums aggregating £3,298:13:8½, out of which Aldermen Lisenpard and Livingston paid to the treasurer of the colony £2,000 which they had borrowed (see Oct. 19, 1757).—Ibid., VI: 128-29. Later items of expense and payment for the barracks were as follows: On May 18, 1758, Abraham de Peyster, the colonial treasurer, was paid by the city £14:11:6, "being what this Board paid short on the two Thousand pounds by them Borrowed of the Government for Building of the Barracks the Last fall."—Ibid., VI: 134. On Oct. 17, 1758, the common council resolved to "provide fire wood Candles and Straw for the New Barracks the Ensueing winter for the Quartering of Such of his Majesties Troops as Shall be order'd to this City."—Ibid., VI: 153. On Nov. 23, 40 "pot Hooks & Chains" were provided.—Ibid., VI: 159. On Dec. 18, the mayor reported "that General Amherst Requests of this Corporation a Blanket for Each Crib in the New Barracks for his Majesties Troops there," and they were accordingly ordered.—Ibid., VI: 161. On March 7, 1760, David Provost was reimbursed for the expense for 92 "Trammels for the Barracks."—Ibid., VI: 207.

Regarding later accounting for the maintenance of these barracks, see ibid., VI: 212, 222, 256, 276, 308, 322, 328, 356 and 451. Regarding the use of the barracks after the French war, see Man. Com. Coun., 1865, 560; and "Upper Barracks" in Landmark Map Rep. Key, III: 924. The common council, Jan. 15, 1790 (q. v.), ordered the sale and removal of the buildings.

" Another act is passed (see Dec. 1, 1756) "for Raising by a Publick Lottery for this Colony" the sum of £1,125, "towards finishing a New Goal in the City of New York." The methods of conducting the lottery, and keeping the accounts, are defined in the act in the usual manner. The first Tuesday in April next is the time set for closing the sale of the 5,000 tickets.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 202.

Advertisements of this period reflect the material advantages enjoyed by the people. For example, Henry van Vleck, at his shop in Wall Street, sells "strapped blankets, red and blue duffils, kerseys, striped swanskins, flannels, green, red and blue pencinstons, cotton romalls, coat and vest buttons."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 26, 1757.

In a notice in the N. Y. Post-Boy of this date, mention is mad of "the Ferry-Stairs near the Fly-Market." Late in the year 1745 (M. C. C., V: 162) a committee of the common council was empowered to permit this neighbourhood "to Build a Convenient pair of Stairs in the Said Slip at their Own Expence." About a year later (ibid., V: 188), a similar record appeared. We have evidence in this newspaper extract that the stairs were actually constructed.

John Dalghish advertises a special sale at his shop, "at the Sign of the Royal-Bed, in Dock-Street, near Countj's Market."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 26, 1757.

John Rivers advertises the opening of his "Dancing-School, in the House of Mr. Ennis, at the Corner of Stone-street, where he also teaches the Noble Science of Defence."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 26, 1757.

A "wild Animal (lately brought from the Mississippi) called A Buffalo" is an exhibition "at the Sign of the Ship-a-Masting, at the Upper-End of Moravian-Street, near the Back of Spring-Garden."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 26, 1757.

Pitt informs Gen. Abercrombie that, in order to begin the invasion of Canada as soon as possible, the king "has been pleased to direct the Governor or Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>t</sup> of New York to provide such a Number of Boats, and such Vessels, as you and the said Governor or L<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>t</sup> shall judge sufficient for the use of the Troops, &c."—Corresp. of Wm. Pitt with Colonial Governors, I: 145. He wrote to De Lancey on the same day to induce New York to raise a large body of men for service against Canada.—Ibid., I: 151-53; N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 339.

A warrant from St. James's settles the rank of the provincial officers in North America.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 682.

Lord Jeffrey Amherst is appointed commander of a division of the British army in America; James Wolfe is his lieutenant.—Mayo, Jeffery Amherst, A Biography, 42-65.

1758

At some time prior to this year, and after 1754 when he opened a house at Trenton Ferry for travellers between New York and Philadelphia (N. Y. Post-Boy, Apr. 15, 1754), George Burns had returned to New York and become proprietor of a tavern on Wall St., opposite the First Presbyterian Church, where he hung out the sign of Admiral Warren (see Feb. 20, 1749, and May 29, 1758). In the spring of 1758, Burns replaced "Scotch Johnny" as inn-keeper of the noted Crown and Thistle, at Whitehall, but the Sign of Admiral Warren continued to be maintained at the Wall St. site.

Walter Brock was proprietor in 1763 (N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 17, 1763), and his house, generally called "Brock's Tavern," was often used as a meeting-place for committees of the common council, because of its proximity to the city hall. Brock died before Jan. 29, 1771, when the house, then in the possession of his widow, was offered for sale. It was described as 3 storeys high, having 7 fireplaces, and "completely finished."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 7, 1771. On May 20, 1773, Mrs. Brock announced that she had moved to Whitehall, "to that elegant and pleasant situated House . . . the Sign of the fry'd Oysters."—N. Y. Gen. Adv., May 20, 1773.

By 1774, the old tavern on Wall St. had become a hair-dressing establishment, but during the Revolution it was temporarily revived under the name of "Burrow's Tavern," and was a head-quarters for Loyalists.—Rivington's N. Y. Loyal Gaz., Oct. 18, 1777. On Feb. 16, 1778, the house was offered for sale by Stephen Kibble, and described as "A Large corner house at upper end of Wall-street, opposite the Old Presbyteryian Meeting, for many years past a noted tavern."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 16, 1778.

The German Reformed Church, writing to the classis of Amsterdam on Feb. 5, 1766, stated that, about 1758, it bought, for 1,250 dollars, the theatre building on Nassau St., and fitted it up for public worship, thereby incurring a debt of 2,000 dollars.—Eccles. Rec.,

- 1758 VI: 4038. The location was 64 and 66 Nassau St. on the east side of the street, between John St. and Maiden Lane. There is no deed of record, however, in either New York or Albany, showing a transfer from the estate of Rip van Dam to the German Reformed Church of the property at 64-66 Nassau St. A bond, dated July 30, 1765, is recorded in Albany (secretary of state's office), which, in form, appears to be a mortgage in trust, for church purposes, from one board of trustees to another, covering lots 5 and 6 on a map made by Francis Maerschalk of the Rip van Dam property bought by this church, on part of which the old theatre stood.—Liber Deeds, XIX: 368-69. See also, March 8, 1765; and "First German Reformed Church (first site)," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 935.
- Jan. A map is made of "the Lotts commonly called Spring Garden lotts" (see Aug. 28, 1754), as divided in this month. This is preserved in the Bancker Collection (box B-F, folder 71), N. Y. Pub. Library.
- James Parker, at Woodbridge, N. J., begins the publication of The New American Magazine, edited by Judge Samuel Nevil under the pseudonym of "Sylvanus Americanus."—Ford, Check-List of Am. Magazines, 6.
- 5 During January, petitions were made, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the ships "Thornton," "Phaeton," and "George," the brigantine "New York," and the packet "Curaçao."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 682.
- " Thomas Pownall, now governor of Massachusetts, communicates with the council at New York.—Cal. Coun. Min., 438. See March 14, 1755.
- 9 Fifty-nine prizes have been brought into New York from the beginning of the war to this day. Twenty-six others have been sent into other ports by New York privateers. For the list of these, see N. Y. Merc., Jan. 9, 1758.
- " Joseph Hancock advertises that he still continues to carry on the stage business, attending in New York at Whitehall Slip, and in Philadelphia at the Crooked-Billet Wharf. He conducts his stages in conjunction with Daniel O'Brian (see Feb. 23, 1756). This notice is given because "there is another Stage set up from the same Places, which may impose on the Publick."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 9, 1758.
- " Another stage-line between New York and Philadelphia, requiring the shortest "water carriage," is advertised: "Reuben Fitzrandolph attends with a good Boat at the Whitehall Slip in New-York, every Tuesday and Friday, to carry Goods or Passengers to the Blazing-Star where a good Wagon Kept by Isaac Fitzrandolph, will set out every Wednesday and Saturday for New-Brunswick, where another Wagon kept by Francis Hollman, will set out every Monday and Thursday for Trenton Ferry, and then another Wagon kept by Humphrey Mount will proceed every Tuesday and Friday, directly into Philadelphia. The said Mount sets out from the Sign of the George in Second-Street Philadelphia, every Monday and Thursday for Trenton; and weather permitting, the Wagons will be regular in meeting and exchanging their Passengers and Goods. And as this Way is by much the least Water-Carriage of any yet attempted between New-York and Philadelphia and is through the thickest inhabited Part of the Country, and the best Entertainment, it is hoped this Undertaking will meet with all due Encouragement, whilst the most careful Means shall be used to give Satisfaction to the Public . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 9, 1758.
- 12 The council directs that the list of French prisoners brought in by privateers be delivered to the mayor.—Cal. Coun. Min., 438.
- 14 The account of Christopher Bancker for moneys expended between 1755 and 1758 for a battery, blockhouses, etc., in New York, is submitted.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 682. See Feb. 19, 1755.
- 18 A committee of the common council is appointed "to sash the assembly Chamber in the City Hall and make such other necessary ornamental Reparation to the said Chamber as they shall Judge proper."—M. C. C., VI: 123.
- 20 The proclamation of the king's instructions against captures of Spanish vessels by privateers sailing out of New York bears this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 683.
- 30 John Philippe, "Teacher of the French Tongue," gives public notice to his scholars "that he is removed from Mr. Wragg's to Doctor Vanbureigh's, opposite to Alderman Livingston's Sugar Bake-House, in New Dutch Church-street; where he will attend them every Evening, from the Hour of Five, till Eight." He adds: "Any Person willing to learn, may depend upon being taught in the Most Modern and Expeditious Method; and according to Mr. Paillart's System; who had the Honour of Teaching the Royal Family."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 30, 1758. For more particulars about the teaching of French, see Jan. 26, 1761.
- The council orders that a warrant be issued to Capt. John Bradstreet for impressing workmen, horses, carriages, etc. for military uses.—Cal. Coun. Min., 438.
- John Dowers, tavern-keeper, near Spring Garden, advertises that a "single sleigh" has been left at his door, which the owner may have upon proof of his right.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 6, 1758. The tavern of John Dowers evidently stood at this time on the west side of Broadway at the south-east corner of the rectangular block between Ann and Fulton Sts., being a part of Spring Garden. As no building appears here on Maerschalk's map of the city, made in 1754-5 (Pl. 34, Vol. I), the house was probably erected between 1755 and 1758. On March 4, 1758, John Dowers, "Vintner," and Deborah, his wife, mortgaged this property to John Beekman.—Liber Mortgages, I: 75. On April 27 of the same year, a second mortgage was given to Simon Johnson (ibid., I: 82-83), and on May 28, 1759, it was again mortgaged by Dowers, to Richard Bidder.—Ibid., I: 123. It is to be noted that the first two mortgages do not mention a house, while the last recites one. Dowers offered the property for sale in October, 1759. He described it as a "Tavern, having the Sign of the King of Prussia, and next Door to Dr. Johnson's."—See Oct. 8, 1759. The lot was on lease from Trinity Church, and Dr. Johnson was the first president of King's College. Again, on March 31, 1760 (q. v.), Dowers was trying to dispose of the house. This he succeeded in doing, for by June 2, 1760 (q. v.), John Keats was conducting a tavern in the Fields, where he hung out the sign of the "King of Prussia," which he had evidently acquired from Dowers. The latter now removed to another site, on Broadway and Robinson St., where he opened another tavern, this time at the "Sign of King George III."—See Jan. 25, 1762. Dowers mortgaged this property on May 2, 1761, to John Morin Scott.—Liber Mortgages, I: 250-51. He was still keeping tavern in the West Ward in 1773 when his wife "Jane" was witness at an inquest over the body of a young woman who had been burned to death. The coroner's verdict seems to indicate that the Dover house and that of Mary Harvey next door were not altogether reputable. The verdict was that the woman "being intoxicated with Liquor, her Clothes accidentally, and by Misfortune took Fire, whereby she was badly burned, and languish'd from the 13th of April till the 1st of May, and then died, and so came by her Death in Manner and Form as aforesaid, and not otherwise."—N. Y. Jour., May 13, 1773. The old tavern of Dowers in Spring Garden had passed into the hands of John Kerby by Feb. 24, 1768 (q. v.).
- 10 Lord Loudoun requests all the governors to meet him (evidently for a council of war) at Hartford. Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey decides to go, and adjourns the assembly.—Cal. Coun. Min., 438. See Feb. 15, 16, and March 9.
- 13 The owners of the ship "St. George" petition for a commission for her commander.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 683.
- 15 Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, about to depart for Hartford, gives instructions to the council.—Cal. Coun. Min., 438.
- 16 Lord Loudoun sets out for Hartford, accompanied by Gov. De Lancey, to meet Gov. Thomas Pownall of Massachusetts, the commissioners of New Hampshire, etc.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 20, 1758.
- 18 Roper Dawson, merchant, secures a lease of the "upper part of the Exchange together with the Room under the stairs" for the term of three years, at £50 a year. The city reserves the right "of making use of the premises . . . four Days in Each Year."—M. C. C., VI: 125. Dawson afterwards advertised to sell "green tea, coffee, &c." at the "Long Room over the Exchange."—N. Y. Merc., July 10, 1758.
- " Two of the aldermen are required by the common council to "wait upon Archibald Kennedy Esqf. and purchase of him for this Corporation the Island Commonly Called Bedlows Island [see April 14, 1757] for any sum not Exceeding one Thousand pounds in order to Erect thereon a pest House and make Report thereof to this Board how and in what manner they have Treated with him for the same." They report immediately that they have agreed to pay Kennedy £1,000 in two payments, £500 on the first of May next, and £500 on the first of May, 1759.—M. C. C., VI: 124. This agreement was altered on May 10 as follows: The amount of £1,000 to be paid in two parts, £500 "on his Executing to this Board a Release for the same," and £500 on "the first of May next [1759] by bond without Interest."—Ibid., VI: 131. On 1758 May 18, it was ordered that the sum of £500 "be paid to the Clerk

Feb. of this Board by one or both of the managers of the Late Lottery
18 the said sum to be by him paid into the hands of Archibald Kennedy Esq<sup>r</sup> for his Executing a Release to this Corporation of the Island Commonly Called Bedlows," etc.—Ibid., VI: 173. In 1759, the city built a pest-house there.—See Jan. 30, 1759.

Mar. (The St. Andrew's Society meets "at the House of Mr. Keen,
2 (commonly called Vaux-Hall)."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 27, 1758.
The site of this earliest Vauxhall is unknown. In 1765, however,
Mr. Keen's house was between the new Dutch Church and the Fly Market,—evidently on Crown (Liberty) St.—See June 10, 1765.
Keen was a partner of Lightfoot for two years, when he conducted the "Coffee Room over the New Exchange."—See Feb. 11, 1754.

4 The king's ship "Squirrel," of 20 guns, arrives from England, with orders to Gen. Abercrombie to take command of all the forces in America. Lord Loudoun is called home.—Jour. of Hugh Gaine, II: 13. See also March 13 and 25, and April 17.

6 During March, petitions were made, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the brigantines "Columbine" and "Hawk," and the sloop "Mary and Ann."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 684.

9 De Lancey returns from Hartford. The council makes record of the fact that Lord Loudoun is ordered to England, and that Abercrombie is appointed commander-in-chief (see March 4). A letter is received from Secretary William Pitt with a plan for the ensuing campaign.—Cal. Coun. Min., 43; Assemb. Jour., II: 549.
The council receives from the lords of trade a letter regarding the New York-Massachusetts boundary line.—Ibid., 438.

10 De Lancey addresses a joint session of the legislature regarding a request of the British government to raise regiments in this province, to act under orders from Major-General Abercrombie, in conjunction with "a Body of the King's British Forces," in attempting "to make an Inruption into Canada." He adds: "We have no Time to lose . . . in a case a sufficient Number do not offer voluntarily, you will forthwith enable me by an effectual Law, to complete the Levies in due Time. I see no other Method of doing this than of draughting Men from the Militia."
—Assemb. Jour., II: 549. When this speech was published (Post-Boy, March 13), it "intimidated many Young People, in-so-much that many of them absconded, lest they should be detached and obliged to serve contrary to their inclinations."—Jour. of Hugh Gaine, II:
14. On March 14, the assembly adopted an address to De Lancey, in reply to his message, expressing their readiness to comply with his urgent request. It stated that "The great Number of private Ships of War fitted out from the Port of New-York, against his Majesty's Enemies, evince the Ardor of the People of this Colony."
The assembly promised to make "effectual Provision for levying, cloathing, and paying such a Body of Troops as the Number of our Inhabitants in these Circumstances will allow."—Ibid., II: 550.
A legislative act was accordingly passed on March 24, 1758 (q. v.).

12-13 Seven transports of Highlanders arrive in New York, by ship from Cork, to fill up the regiments.—Jour. of Hugh Gaine, II: 13.

13 Major-Gen. James Abercrombie arrives in New York from Albany. He is "looked upon and revered as Commander-in-Chief of all his Majesty's Troops in North America."—Jour. of Hugh Gaine, II: 13. See March 4.

" The "Law for appointing Establishing and Regulating a Good and sufficient night watch" (see Dec. 21, 1742) is amended by requiring every inhabitant residing in the six wards south of Fresh Water Pond who is able and fit to watch or to find a substitute to do duty successively as follows: The inhabitants of the West Ward are to keep watch nine nights, then those of the South Ward five nights, those of the Dock Ward five nights, those of the East Ward ten nights, those of the North Ward eight nights, and those of the Montgomery Ward—seven nights; after which they are to repeat in the same order.—M. C. C., VI: 126-27. For criticism of the night watch, see Feb. 21, 1757.

" The city grants to Oliver De Lancey, in trust for the heirs of Sir Peter Warren, a water lot, 106 feet 3 inches in width, and extending from the rear of the Warren estate at Cortlandt Street to a line 300 feet beyond low-water mark in the Hudson River, with the requirement that a wharf 40 feet in width shall be made across the inward end, another of equal width across the outward end, and also one 15 feet in width extending the whole length of the lot and fronting a public slip to be made on a line from Cortlandt Street to the river.—City Grants, Liber C: 227; M. C. C., VI: 127. The grant was between the present Liberty and Cortlandt Sts.

An embargo is laid on all outward-bound vessels of more than 50 tons, a count having been made ten days before of those in the harbour.—Jour. of Hugh Gaine, II: 13, 14; Cal. Coun. Min., 438.

The general assembly votes ten pounds bounty to each able-bodied man who voluntarily enlists in the king's service for the province of New York.—Assemb. Jour., II: 551.

De Lancey, writing to Secretary Pitt, says: ". . . the Country is drained of many able bodied men, by almost a kind of madness to go a privateering, many enlist in the Battoe service, and numbers are necessarily impressed for wagoons to carry up provisions etc, so that the Assembly have voted more Men [2680], than I had encouragement to expect from them.

". . . My Brother Oliver De Lancey having undertaken the Command, his example will I believe have a good effect on other Gentlemen, and facilitate the raising men . . ."—*N. Y. Col.
Docs.*, VII: 343.

Major-Gen. Abercrombie issues orders for the recruiting officers and the absent officers of various battalions of the "Royal Americans," and of Montgomery's and Fraser's "Highlanders," to join their regiments; and for those of the 17th and 22d Regiments "to repair to New-York." He offers pardon to deserters who shall return and join their regiments on or before May 1.—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 20, 1758.

The embargo is extended to vessels above 25 tons.—*Cal. Coun.
Min.*, 439.

A warrant is issued to the deputy quartermaster-general, to impress carpenters, etc., for fitting out transports, etc.—*Cal. Hist.
MSS., Eng.*, 684.

An act is passed to prevent bringing small-pox, yellow fever, and other diseases, into the colony. It provides that all vessels having persons with such diseases on board or clearing from infected ports shall quarantine at Bedlow's Island until released.—
Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 237-39. For earlier act, see May 3, 1755.
On April 17, printed copies of this act were ordered distributed among the pilots.—Cal. Coun. Min., 439. Despite all precautions, the city was visited by a serious outbreak of small-pox the next year.—See June 2, 1759.

The assembly passes the act desired by De Lancey (see March 10), for raising, paying, and clothing 2,680 soldiers, to join the forces of the neighbouring colonies (amounting in all to 20,000 men), to invade Canada "in conjunction with a Body of His Majesties Regular Troops." The sum of £100,000 is to be raised for this purpose by a levy on the real and personal estates of all "the Freeholders Inhabitants and Residents within this Colony." The quota of the city and county of New York is £3,000, payable in the next two years. Bills of credit are to be printed by James Parker, having on the right side "the Arms of the City of New York and under the Arms in the different Characters these words IT'S DEATH TO COUNTERFEIT THIS BILL." If volunteers are insufficient before April 15, the lieutenant-governour is empowered to supply the deficiency by detachments from the militia. New York City and County are required to furnish 320 effective men.—*Col. Laws
N. Y.*, IV: 215-35. See March 25.

De Lancey publishes a proclamation announcing the government act of March 24 (q. v.). He states that, as an encouragement to persons to enlist voluntarily, certain specified payments are allowed; also certain specified clothing for each man (which includes "a Pair of Buck-skin Breeches"), as well as tents and other necessities for the campaign.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 3, 1758.

An auction is advertised to be held on April 12, at Fort George, of "all the Horses, Coaches, Plate, and Furoiture belonging to the Right Honourable the Earl of Loudoun. Inventories of which may be seen at Mayor Robertson's."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 27, 1758.
See March 4, April 17.

Capt. John Montrose arrives in New York from his cantonment, by Abercrombie's orders, and is appointed "an Engineer on the Establishment," and ordered to proceed to Louisbourg.
The "Hamshire," "Diana," and "Scarborough" are in the harbour.—Montrose's Jour., in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1881), 152. Montrose was engaged for nearly two years, beginning Nov.
23, 1764 (q. v.), in important work as a military engineer in and about New York City.

Part of the 48th Regiment (300 men) arrive from Livingston's Manor, to join their regiment "at their Cantonments in the Jerseys."—Montrose's Jour. (op. cit.), 152. The movements of other troops and of transports are also recorded in this Journal.

- 1758 Apr. "The Ordnance ships loading as fast as possible with stores for the Expedition. Seven provided for that purpose. At the Ordnance wharf on that part of the town fronting the North River."—Montresor's Jour., op. cit., 152.
- 8 "De Lancy issues a proclamation asking all men who enlist, who possess arms of their own, to bring them "to the Rendezvous" (Halifax), believing they will prefer their own to those furnished by the Crown;" being lighter, and the owners being accustomed to them, "they will be much surer at their Mark." If lost or damaged in service, the commander-in-chief will make good the loss in money. "And as a Powder-Horn, Shot-Bag, with a Case for the Lock of their Guo, to preserve it from the Weather, are thought more proper for the present Service than the common Accoutrements, the Men are also to come provided therewith." De Lancy further requires that all justices of the peace and sheriffs shall cause diligent search to be made for arms concealed by deserters, to seize and send them to New York, to be delivered to Christopher Blundell, the store-keeper at Fort George.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 10, 1758.
- 12 "This is the day on which the sale of the belongings of the Earl of Loudoun was advertised to be held (see March 25), prior to his departure for home on April 28 (q. v.). See also April 17.
- 13 "The 17th and 22d Regiments arrive from Albany, and are ordered to remain on board their respective Sloops till their transports are ready to receive them. . . ."—Montresor's Jour., op. cit., 152.
- " "The city's possession and care of implements of war is shown in a record of a payment "for Cleansing the City's arms, fitting the Bayonets &c."—M. C. C., VI: 130. In 1682, the military watch appointed for the city was under orders from the provincial commander-in-chief, Brockhalls, who required, among other things, that each person appointed to be on watch should bring "his Sword and Gunn" (ibid., I: 91) but, in 1755, the city sent to England for 1,000 stand of arms, "in order to furnish those who have not Arms of their Own in Case of an Attack," and these arrived on or about Aug. 18 of that year (see Jan. 16 and Aug. 7, 1755).
- 14 "On receipt of a letter of advices from Sir Charles Hardy, who is at Halifax, the council orders that vessels carrying provisions there shall be free from impress, and that a proclamation to this effect shall be issued, as well as to discountenance desertions.—Cal. Coun. Min., 439. De Lancy issues such proclamation, which states that, as the king has ordered "a considerable Number of Troops, with a powerful Fleet, to Rendezvous at Halifax," he has thought fit "to encourage the Inhabitants of this Province, to carry Provisions thither, for their Refreshment." He therefore gives notice "that the Persons employed on Board of Vessels laden with Provisions, for the said Port, will be free from all Impress, and have the utmost Countenance and Protection from the Commander of his Majesty's Ships there. . . ." He also gives notice that, as "the Desertion of Seamen at this Time, when there is so great a Demand for their Service, to man the Transports fitting out in this Port, and a large Convoy of Transports are daily expected to arrive here from England, must be highly prejudicial to his Majesty's Service," he has thought fit that "all Persons, who shall harbour or conceal any Seaman, or other Deserter, belonging to any of his Majesty's Ships, or to any Transport Vessel, now, or which hereafter shall be in this Port, shall be prosecuted with the utmost Rigour of the Law." All magistrates, justices of the peace, sheriffs, constables, and other civil officers in the province, are commanded "to make, and cause diligent Search and Enquiry to be made for all such Deserters," to apprehend them, and cause them "to be sent to this City." To encourage enlistment in the transport service, those enlisting will be protected from impress during this service until their return home.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 17, 1758. See also April 23.
- " "A proclamation is issued setting apart May 12 as a day of fasting and prayer.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 685. See May 12.
- 15 "Several muster rolls, showing the number, names, ages, and size of the men enlisted in the several counties, bear dates from April 15 to May 15, 1758.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 685-86.
- " "Arrived in this harbour the Prince of Orange Privateer, her hands pressed as all vessels are when they come in. Genl Forbes set out from this place for Philadelphia for the Southern Expedition.—Montresor's Jour., op. cit., 152.
- 17 "The quarantine is still maintained off Bedloes Island; to it the brigantine "Prince of Orange" is ordered on this day by the council on report of Dr. John Bard. The council also orders that printed copies of the act "to prevent bringing in and spreading infectious distempers" be distributed among the branch pilots (of whom five were appointed on Dec. 19, 1757).—Cal. Coun. Min., 439, 437. On April 16, a privateer, with yellow fever on board, was ordered to quarantine. These vessels were discharged on May 5 and 8 respectively.—Ibid., 439.
- " "The house at White-Hall, now in the possession of Lord Loudoun," is advertised to be let to a private family.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 17, 1758. See March 25.
- 19 "John Pownall writes from Whitehall to Robert Charles, agent for New York in London, to send to Lieut.-Gov. De Lancy a copy of the commission for trying pirates.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 685. Charles did so on May 3.—Ibid., 687.
- 22 "The council takes action on quarantine regulations.—Cal. Coun. Min., 439.
- " "Orders given out this day for all officers to repair on board their respective transports bound to Halifax Field officers & Staff officers Except.—Montresor's Jour., op. cit., 152.
- 23 "Although it is Sunday, Capt. Jasper Farmer, "of the Militia Train," with several of his company, at about two o'clock in the morning, board the "Charming Jenny" (a vessel of the snow type), lying alongside the "new Dock," in order to impress men for the transport service. They impressed several; but "four of the crew, more obstinate than the Rest, retired into the Round-House, and there armed themselves with Blunderbusses; and altho' Capt. Farmer, and a Magistrate then standing on the Dock, desired them not go on board the Men of War, but serve on board the Transports, yet they obstinately refused, and fired their Blunderbusses thro' the Loop Holes, and wounded Capt. Farmer. . . . of which Wound. . . he died." These men did not surrender until a party of regulars, after firing a volley into the round-house, seized them. The coroner's inquest brought in a verdict of murder against four of the snow's crew.
- " "On the same morning, about five o'clock, while another party of the militia "were looking for Sailors in the Out-Skirts of the City, they fell upon a House wherein nine Dutchmen were lodged, (they lately being brought in by some of the Privateers) who at first would not surrender; whereupon an Officer with a Party came to the House, and ordered his Men to fire, altho' two of the Dutchmen in the Garret would have surrendered and come down, the other seven having secreted themselves. . . ." One of the two was killed and the other severely wounded. The coroner's inquest brought in a verdict of murder against the officer and against others unknown to the jury.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 1, 1758. This proceeding on the part of the militia and regulars, as well as the proclamation of Gov. De Lancy on April 14 (q. v.), were in direct violation of the statute of Queen Anne.—Dunlap, Hist. of the New Neth., Prov. of N. Y., and State of N. Y. (1840), II: Appendix V, p. lxx.
- 24 "The artillery ship "Dublin," with Capt. John Montresor on board, falls down to the Narrows.—Montresor's Jour., op. cit., 153. It moved to Sandy Hook on the 26th.—Ibid.
- 26 "The fleet of empty transports sails from the Narrows, where they have been at anchor, to Sandy Hook.—Montresor's Jour., op. cit., 153. The movements of other ships are also recorded. See May 3.
- 28 "Lord Loudoun embarks for England on the man-of-war "Hampshire," being saluted on leaving by a discharge of cannon on Flat Rock Battery; another salute was fired by the man-of-war on his safe arrival on board.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 1, 1758. See May 3.
- " "A review of Loudoun's proceedings in this country was published this year in London, having the following title: The Conduct of a noble Commander in America [Earl of Loudoun] Impartially reviewed; with The genuine Causes of the Discontents at New-York and Halifax, and The true Occasion of the Delays in that important Expedition; including A regular Account of all the proceedings and Incidents in the Order of Time wherein they happened.
- " "Thirty-one warrants are issued to pay bounties to volunteers in different parts of the province, and allowances to field officers. These total over £27,000.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 686-87.
- " "The movements of warships, transports, and privateers formed an important feature of the daily news during this stirring period. On this day it is reported that "The several transports taken up 1758 at this place for his Majesty's service" have dropped down to May Saady Hook, "there to meet and join those that lately arrived 1 thither from England," under convoy of H. M. S., "Devonshire," of 64 guns; the "Hind," 20 guns, and the "Hunter," 16 guns, "making in all near 60 sail." They are to be joined by the "Scarborough" and the "Gramont." The "Diana" has already arrived at this rendezvous. On April 30, Commodore Durell, who had arrived at New York early in March, went to the Hook on the "Gramont," to "take charge of the fleet from thence to Halifax, whither they sail in a few days."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 13 and May 1, 1758; New Am. Mag. (Woodbridge, N. J., 1758), p. 102 of "The Hist. Chronicle."

3 A return of men furnished by Kings Co. bears this date; and a muster roll of the several companies of Suffolk Co. is dated May 4; a "size roll" of Capt. Brewerton's company of New York troops is dated May 5.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 687.

" The Earl of Loudoun sails for England on the "Hampshire," and the 17th and 22d Regiments embark for Halifax, the fleet consisting of 45 sail.—N. Y. Merc., May 8, 1758. See May 1.

" "Set sail y<sup>e</sup> Fleet. Arr'd here from New York [apparently at Saady Hook—see April 24 and 26] the Hampshire with Lord Loudon to proceed to England. Signals fir'd this day from the Commodore for unmooring . . . The fleet sail'd, the Hampshire in Company the whole consisting of about 58 sail."—Montresor's Jour., op. cit., 153. This record proceeds with similar entries regarding movements of the ships, etc. The convoy of the fleet consisting of the "Devonshire" (74 guns), "Ludlow Castle" (40),
 "Diana" (32), and the sloops "Gramont," "Hunter," and "Win-chelsea."—Ibid.

5 Yellow fever having been reported on April 18 on the privateer
 "Oliver Cromwell," Dr. John Baird reports as to the sanitary condition of this ship and the "Prince of Orange," lying at quarantine.
 —Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 685, 687. The former was discharged from quarantine on this day; the latter on May 8.—Cal. Coun. Min., 439.

10 Since Feb. 18 (q. v.), the common council has come to a new agreement with Archibald Kennedy for the purchase of "Bedlows Island," which he owns, and the board approves the draft of a release of the island to the city.—M. C. C., VI: 131-32, 133.

12 De Lancey issued a proclamation on April 14, appointing May 12 as "a Day of publick Humiliation, Fasting and Prayer, to supplicate the Pardon of our Sins, and to implore the divine Protection and Blessing on his Majesty's sacred Person, his illustrious Family, his Kingdoms and Colonies, Fleets and Armies."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 17, 1758.

17 On receipt of a letter from Gen. Abercrombie, the council takes off the embargo on exports of provisions.—Cal. Coun. Min., 439.

Also at the general's request, the council issues a warrant to Lieut.-Col. John Bradstreet to impress bateaux men.—Ibid., 439.

" Jacob Goelt is allowed £14:8 for binding 47 volumes of old records of the colony, for examining them, and translating various old Dutch papers.—Assemb. Jour., II: 556.

" Mayor Cruger produces a letter at a meeting of the common council, which he has received from Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, in which it is stated that the writer has received word from Gen.
 Abercrombie regarding "the difficulty there is to supply the Provincial Troops with Arms." The lieutenant-governour desires that the 1,000 stand of arms belonging to the city may be delivered to Captain Macleod or other proper officer, with the assurance from the general that they will be replaced when the arms come from England "for the use of his majestys Troops." De Lancey's original letter is preserved in metal file box No. 4, city clerk's record-room. It is ordered that the following answer be given: "That as the arms Required of us, were purchased by this Corporation at a Very Great Expense for the use of the Inhabitants of this City and such other Bodies of the militia of the County as may be Called into our assistance in Case of an Invasion and as so Dangerous an Event may with some Reason be speedily Expected, it is with the utmost Concern and Reluctance the we who on all occasions are willing to Testify our obedience to the authority of Government, find ourselves Constrained from a sense of that duty which we owe as Trustees to the publick, to signify to Your honour our Incapacity to Comply with your Honours Request by Consenting to deprive the City of the use of their arms at this Critical and Important Juncture. Hoping therefore that your Honour will not attribute our non Compliance to any Disposition to oppose the Demands of Government but to our absolute Inability to Comply with them in this Instance, We are," etc.—M. C. C., VI:

 132-33.

On May 19, however, De Lancey having urged compliance with his desire, "fearing that should he be obliged to Impress them for the service it might tend to Establish a Disagreeable president" (sic), and having also represented to the common council that the want of these arms "would Cause an unavoidable delay to the great prejudice of his majestys service," the board decided to part with the arms, "as they are Immediately wanted in the service; and the necessity of them in the City this season is uncertain." The mayor was required to sign this answer, which stipulated that the arms were "to be paid for in Cash at the rate of Three pounds five shillings for Each Muskett, in which sum we Include the Cartouch Boxes Bayonets, fill'd Cartridges, flints and other accoutrements belonging to them," and that the city was ready to deliver them to the comptroller of ordnance, or any other person properly authorized to receive them, "upon his Giving us a Receipt in Writing for the same, in order to the obtaining of a Warrant, from Generall Stanwicks for the payment of the money which he has been pleased to assure the mayor he will Grant us Immediately upon producing such Receipt."—Ibid., VI: 135. See, further,
 June 20.

John Dies is allowed £560 for material and workmanship on the house in Fort George.—Assemb. Jour., II: 556.

During May, petitions are made, on this day and on the 26th, for commissions for the commanders of the sloop "Greyhound"
 and the brigantine "King George," respectively.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 688.

The assembly appoints a committee to wait on the governour with a complaint against the quartering of French prisoners for so long a time in the colony.—Assemb. Jour., II: 557. See July 24. De Lancey answered on May 23 that he would give orders to have them sent away as soon as possible.—Ibid., 557. See July 4.

Gen. Abercrombie writes from Albany to Pitt: "New York has . . . completed her Levies, four of their Companies came away at the same Time with me, and are arrived; the Remainder, I am told, are in Motion, so that we may expect them all in here soon
 . . . prior to my Departure for this Place . . . I embarked nine Companies of the 4th Battalion of Royal Americans, that had been in Garrison at New York during the Winter, and Cou'd not be removed any sooner, by Reason of their having been daily employed as Labourers, in embarking the Battering Train, artillery Stores &c for Halifax, which has been a great saving to the publick."
 —Corresp. of Wm. Pitt with Colonial Governors, I: 248-50.

John Thompson (Scotch Johnny), of the Crown and Thistle, near Whitehall Slip, advertises the sale, on this day, of all his household goods, kitchen furniture, etc. He also desires to settle all outstanding accounts.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 15, 1758. By May 29 (q. v.), George Burns had taken over the tavern. Scotch Johnny had been innkeeper of the Crown and Thistle since 1751, and probably earlier. See May 29.

A draft of the charter of a vessel for the transportation of 25 troops and stores is of record under this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 688.

"Ordered that Mr Nathaniel Marston have further Lease for the four Lots of Ground on which his Still house Stands behind the Church yard for the Term of Eleven Years from the 25th Day of March 1757, on which Day his last lease expired at the Annual Rent of Ten pounds and that the said Rent be paid free of all taxes and other charges . . ."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

George Burns (see May 22) announces that the "famous and 29 noted tavern lately occupied by Mr. John Thompson (known by the name of Scotch Johnny's) near the Whitehall-slip, is now kept by the subscriber in the same character, who lately removed thereto, from the sign of Admiral Warren, opposite to the Presbyterian Meeting-house."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 29, 1758.

In a letter to Pitt, De Lancey says: "There have been 5310 June 1 Small Arms sent up from hence 2250 of them collected and purchased in this City."—Corresp. of Wm. Pitt with Colonial Governors, I: 264.

During June, petitions are made, beginning on this day, for 2 commissions for the commanders of the following privateers: the ships "Lord Howe," "Lark," and "Eagle," the sloop "St. Joseph," the "brigantines" "Prince of Orange," "Duke of Marlborough,"

- 1758 and "Hoop," and the snows "Boscawen," "Royal Hester," and Jn.2 "Gen. Abercrombie."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 686-90. 21
- 10 A warrant is issued to Richard Jeffery to be master warden, and to Leonard Lispenard, John Waddel, James Jauncey, Henry Cuyler, Jr., John Griffith, Daniel Stiles, Thomas Vardil, and John Smith, to be wardens, of the port of New York.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 690. On June 23, allowance was made for their expenses.—Cal. Coun. Min., 440.
- " The governor and council receive a royal mandate to swear John Watts as member of the council, in place of James Alexander, deceased; he is sworn in and takes his seat.—Cal. Coun. Min., 440.
- " The council orders that timber be provided for the batteries at the Narrows according to the plans of Chief Engineer James Montresor.—Ibid., 440.
- 16 A journal to this date of the proceedings of the fleet and army off Louisbourg is among the New York provincial records.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 689.
- " M. Dorel, writing from Quebec to the Marshal de Belle Isle various particulars regarding the war in America, says "The sea swarms with English privateers, and we have not one."—N. Y. Cal. Docs., X, 718.
- 20 A committee of the common council is appointed to purchase 500 of "the subscription arms lately imported in this City and to pay for the same out of the monies, which arose by the Sale of the City's arms to Gen<sup>l</sup> Abercrombie [see May 17] and that the Remainder of the said monies be sent to England by the said Committee, for the purchasing there, for this Corporation, one Large fire Engine, one small D<sup>o</sup> and two hand D<sup>o</sup>s with Some Buckets order their Correspondent to Cause the same to be insured."—M. C. C., VI: 137-38. These purchases were made in London, through the London merchant, William Baker (see June 19, 1751), at a cost of £530 sterling.—From letter dated June 26, 1758, preserved in comptroller's office, box of vouchers no. 1. An invoice, of March 27, 1759, signed by Baker, consigns three fire-engines to John Cruger in New York, "for Account & Risque of the Corporation of the City of New York . . . by the Ship Britannia, Cap<sup>t</sup> George Massam." Baker received 2 1/2 per cent. commission for his part in the transaction. In another letter, of Jan. 7, 1760, Baker expressed to Cruger the hope that the three fire-engines "should come safe to your hands," and he made a new statement of the balance due him, on account of his having recovered three guineas insurance because the ship "Britannia" had been convoyed by himself part of the way.—From originals in Ibid.
- 21 The first "Commencement" of King's College is held. One who attended, describing it in a letter to the press as "the first Solemnity of the Kind, ever celebrated here," adds: "The Order of the Procession from the Vestry Room, where the College is now held, to St. Georges Chappel, was as follows: The President, with his Honour the Lieutenant Governor, who, by his Presence graced the Solemnity, were preceded by the Candidates for Bachelor's and Master's Degrees, with their Heads uncovered, and were followed by the Governors of the College, the Clergy of all Denominations in this City, and other Gentlemen of Distinction of this and the neighbouring Provinces. After short Prayers suitable to the Occasion, the Reverend Dr. Johnson, the President, from the Pulpit, opened the Solemnity, with a learned and elegant Oration Inauguralis. The exercises of the Bachelors were introduced by a polite salutatory Oration, delivered by Provoost, with such Propriety of Pronunciation, and so engaging an Air, as justly gain'd him the Admiration and Applause of all present. This was followed by a metaphysical Thesis, learnedly defended by Ritzema against Ver Planck and Cortlandt, with another held by Reel, and opposed by two Ogdens. The Bachelors Exercises were closed by a well-composed, genteel English Oration, on the Advantages of a liberal Education, delivered by Cortlandt, whose fine Address added a Beauty to the Sentiment, which gave universal Satisfaction to that numerous Assembly. After this, Mr. Treadwell, in a clear and concise Manner, demonstrated the Revolution of the Earth round the Sun, both from astronomical Observations, and the Theory of Gravity, and defended the Thesis against Mr. Cutting and Mr. Witmore, a candidate for the Degree of Master of Arts. This Dispute being ended, the President descended from the Pulpit, and being seated in a chair, in a solemn Manner, conferred the Honours of the College upon those Pupils who were Candidates for a Bachelor's Degree, and on several Gentlemen who had re- ceived Degrees in other Colleges. The Exercises were concluded 21 with a Valedictory Oration [in Latin] by Mr. Cutting, universally esteemed a masterly Performance. The President then address'd himself in a solemn pathetic Exhortation, to the Bachelors, which could not fail of answering the most valuable Purposes, and leaving a lasting Impression on the Minds of all the Pupils. The whole Solemnity being finished, by a short Prayer, the Procession returned back to the City-Arms [see Aug. 23, 1756], where an elegant Entertainment was provided by the Governors of the College.
 This important Occasion drew together a numerous Assembly of People of all Orders, and it gave me a sincere Pleasure to see the Exercises performed in a Manner, which must reflect Honour upon the College and incite every Friend of his Country, to promote so useful, so well regulated an Institution."—N. Y. Merc., June 26, 1758. See also Anstice, Hist. of St. George's Church, 28.
- " The names of the graduates and their degrees, from 1758 to 1774 inclusive, were published by Hugh Gainé, as a Catalogus, in the form of a broadside, probably in the latter year.—See reproduction, Pl. 53-b, Vol. I. This list shows nine who received the degree of bachelor of arts in 1758 (the name of the last, "Timotheus Wetmore, A. B.," being omitted from a similar list, which shows only eight, as printed in the Hist. of Columbia Univ., 1904, p. 23). The Catalogus shows only twelve receiving the degree of master of arts in 1758 (not thirteen, as stated in the Hist., p. 24).
- " Orders are issued by the provincial council for the militia to 28 do guard duty in Fort George.
- " It is also ordered that ordnance stores lost in the late fire in Fort George (see Dec. 15, 1757) be replaced, and that the barracks there be repaired.—Cal. Coun. Min., 440.
- " The governor and council receive a royal mandamus to swear 4
 William Walton as member of the council in place of Edward Holland, who died Nov. 10, 1756 (q. v.). He is sworn in and takes his seat.—Cal. Coun. Min., 440.
- " Plans are being executed for the dispersal of French prisoners (see May 19).—Cal. Coun. Min., 440. See, further, July 17.
- " The provincial council at New York holds a conference with 6
 Cherokee Indians who are going to join Sir William Johnson. On July 8, Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey answered a speech of these Indians, and gave them presents.—Cal. Coun. Min., 440. On Dec. 6, the council issued a warrant to pay Theodorus van Wyck and Jan Winne for presents given to Cherokees, and for boarding and transporting them.—Ibid., 443. Cf. July 8.
- " The French ambuscade the British advance near Fort Ticonderoga; Lord Howe, "the soul of the army," is killed, and the soldiers are dispirited, having no confidence in Abercrombie.—Parkman, Montcalm and Wolfe, II: 83-99, and authorities there cited. See July 8 and 12.
- " An account of John Winne, for transporting 21 Cherokee 8 Indians and an interpreter from New York to Albany, and one of Theodore van Wyck, for presents for these Indians, bear this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 690.
- " The Battle of Ticonderoga is won by the French.—Parkman, Montcalm and Wolfe, II: 99-113, 431-36 and, authorities there cited.
- " During July, petitions are made, beginning on this day, for 10 commissions for the commanders of the brigantine "Catherine," the snows "Prince Ferdinand" and "Argo," and the schooner "Betsy."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 690-91.
- " The council receives a letter from Capt. Cunningham, aide to 12
 Gen. Abercrombie, regarding the death of Lord Howe, and the sending of 140 French prisoners to New York; a letter from Capt. De Lancey, reporting the repulse of the English forces and the re-embarkation of cannon; and one from Brig.-Gen. Stanwix at Albany reporting the need of militia.
- " Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, about to depart by land for Albany, gives instructions to the council, as follows:
 An embargo is laid on all vessels.
 Packet boats are to do guard duty in the harbour.
 Details from the militia of New York, Queens, Suffolk, Kings, and Richmond Counties are to march to Albany.—Cal. Coun. Min., 441.
- " The mayor presents to the common council an account for 11 billington regular officers last winter on several persons. It is ordered that there be allowed 10s. per week for each captain and 6s. for a lieutenant, ensign, or surgeon; that Mrs. Play be allowed 10s. "for a Guard Room," and that the city chamberlain pay the

- 1758 several persons to whom these sums are due.—M. C. C., VI: 140; 1412 cf. May 24, 1759.
- 14 Seven French prisoners escape from the jail in New York. All sheriffs and other officers in the colony are ordered by the provincial council (Archibald Kennedy, presiding) "to cause Hue and Cry to be made from County to County" for these men.—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 17, 1758; Cal. Coun. Min., 441. Two of the prisoners who return say that three of the men have gone to the West Indies, and two are "skulking about Town."—Ibid., July 24, 1758.
- 15 Gen. Abercrombie has retreated with his army to the south end of Lake George; orders for forwarding militia are countermanded by the council at New York, and the embargo is taken off.—Cal. Coun. Min., 441.
- 17 Capt. Jeremiah Richards, of the Massachusetts forces, brings to New York 125 French prisoners, among them seven officers. A French captain, recommended by Col. Schuyler to Mr. Waters, is allowed to remain in town on parole; the rest are sent by water to Brookhaven, Suffolk County, to be placed there in charge of the sheriff.—Cal. Coun. Min., 441; N. Y. Post-Boy, July 17, 24, 1758.
- 26 Major-Gen. Amherst captures Louisbourg and the island of Cape-Breton by siege, which has lasted some weeks.—"The Hist. Chronicle," 210, in New Am. Mag. (Woodbridge, N. J., Aug., 1758); Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., V: 154, 418, 464 (with maps, pp. 465, 468, 469, 470). The news reached New York on Aug. 20 (q. v.). After an expedition intended to assist Abercrombie against Ticonderoga early in October, and a return to Halifax, Amherst came to New York on special summons on Dec. 11 (q. v.). See also McLennan, Louisbourg (1918); Bourinot, Historical and Descriptive Account of the Island of Cape Breton (1892).
- 27 Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey returns from Albany.—Cal. Coun. Min., 441.
- Aug. 2 The common council orders "that one other Storie be added to the New Goal now a Building, so as to make the same of three Stories high, and that the Carrying on of the Same be under the Direction and Inspection of the Committee formerly appointed for the Building of the said Goal."—M. C. C., VI: 141. For summary of the building operations, see March 1, 1757.
- 6 One John Smith, "a Dehotor, confined in the Goal of this City, airing himself under the Cupola of the City-Hall, unhappily fell over the Rails into the Street, and was instantly crushed to Death."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 7, 1758.
- 9 During August, petitions are made, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the ships "William and Thomas," "Bettie," "King of Prussia," and "Peggy," the schooner "Betsey," and the sloops "Four Friends" and "Harlem."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 691.
- 20 News of the fall of Louisbourg on July 26 (q. v.) reaches New York.—N. Y. Post-Boy, and N. Y. Merc., Aug. 21, 1758. The city celebrated the victory on Aug. 28 (q. v.).
- 25 The Indians commit murders and arson near Goshen, Orange Co., and the council at New York orders out detachments of the militia of Orange and Ulster Counties.—Cal. Coun. Min., 441.
- 27 The British, under Col. John Bradstreet, take Fort Frontenac (Kingston, Ontario), also 6 cannon, 9 vessels of war, and a large quantity of military supplies.—Parkman, Montcalm and Wolfe, II: 127-30 and authorities there cited.
- 28 New York celebrates the victory over the French at Louisbourg (see Aug. 20). At noon "the Cannon on Fort-George began to play, and continued till Sunset on the Succession of every Loyal Health drank at the Entertainment at the Province Arms in the Broad-Way, where his Honour our Governor with the principal Gentlemen of the City, dined." In the evening the houses were illuminated, and fireworks were displayed on the Common.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 4, 1758. See Oct. 12.
- Sept. 4 Sheriff John Rogers of New York is required by the council to hand in a list of all French prisoners-of-war in this city.—Cal. Coun. Min., 442.
- 9 Nicholas Bayard, having had two horses, seven sheep, and a number of pigs and poultry shot by hunters during the summer, besides having himself "ruo great risque of being shot," advertises his determination to prosecute the first person he finds gunning on his premises. He also offers a reward of £5 for the discovery of the person or persons who maliciously destroyed harnesses and plow gear, and who broke off "above twenty locust trees equal with the rails of the fence, which was planted along-side of the lane aback of my woods, as an ornament and conveniency for gentlemen, and others, who take their walks that way."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 11, 1758. Bayard's house stood in the block bounded by the present Grand, Broome, Crosby, and Lafayette Sts.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 948.
- 11 In September, petitions were made, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the ships "Terrible," "Duke of Cumberland," and "Hunter," and the sloops "Harlequin" and "Catharine."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 692.
- 14 "Ordered that the Church Wardens be desired to have all the Streets that are laid out on the Church Lands Registered according to the Several plans or Drafts thereof made."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- 16 Charles Lee, recovering from a wound at Albany, writes to his sister that the army is now "waiting for Six Regiments from Louisbourg, in order to cross Lake George a second time, and make another attempt on Tienderoga, but I'm afraid we shall make a scurvy figure. The Indians will not go with us. They told the General [Abercrombie] that the English Army had very fine limbs but no head. That he was an old Squah that he shoud' wear a petticoat, go home and make Sugar, and not by pretending to a task which he was not equal to, blunder so many braver men than himself into destruction."—From MSS. Letters of Charles Lee, 1756-81, in Harvard Coll. Library.
- 22 In a will of this date, reference is made to a lot on the north side of Van Cliff St., adjoining the churchyard of St. George's Chapel. It is described as "in a field commonly called the Beckman Pasture, which is laid out into streets, lanes, and lots for building for enlarging of the city."—Abstracts of Wills, V: 258, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections. See also "The Swamp," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 967.
- 25 Theophilus Hardenbrook, surveyor, advertises that he "Designs all Sorts of Building, well suited to both Town and Country, Pavilions, Summer-Rooms, Seats for Gardens, all sorts of Rooms after the Taste of the Arabian, Chinese, Persian, Gothic, Muscovite, Padian, Roman Vitruvian and Egyptian; also Water-houses for Parks, Keepers Lodges, burying Places, Niches, Eye Traps to represent a Building terminating a Walk, or to hide some disagreeable Object, Rotundas, Colonades, Arcades, Studies in Parks or Gardens, Green-Houses for the Preservation of Herbs with winding Funnels through the Wall, so as to keep them warm, Farm-Houses, Town Houses, Market Houses, Churches, Altar Pieces: He also connects all sorts of Truss-Roofs, and prevents their separating, by a new Method; and also all sorts of Domes, Spires, Cupolos, both Pile and hanging Bridges. Note. He designs and executes beautiful Chimney Pipes, as any here yet executed. Said Hardenbrook has now open'd a School near the New-English-Church, where he teaches Architecture from 6 o'Clock in the evening till Eight."—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 25, 1758. Theophilus Hardenbrook later became assistant alderman. On March 17, 1775 (q. v.), his plan for a bridewell was accepted by the common council.
- 26 The common council orders payment of £155:17:½ to William Coventry for advances made by him for repairing the Old Slip Market, Coenties Market, the great dock, etc.—M. C. C., VI: 145.
- 27 Archbishop Secker writes to Rev. Dr. Johnson of his desire to obtain the establishment of bishops of the Church of England in America.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 348. The movement for establishing Anglicanism in the colonies aroused considerable opposition among dissenters, and can be regarded as one cause of the Revolution.—Cross, Anglican Episcopate and the American Colonies (Harvard Historical Studies, IX, 1902).
- 29 Payment is made for "Sinking a Well [at] the upper End of Nassau Street Near the New Dwelling House of Charles Harding in the North ward."—M. C. C., VI: 148.
- Oct. — Pres. Johnson of King's College is again driven away from the city by fear of the small-pox.—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 25. See also Nov. 8, 1757. He returned in May, 1760 (q. v.), when "he found the scene so changed that the city appeared to him like a kind of wilderness. . . ."—Ibid., citing Chandler's Life of Johnson.
- 4 The provincial council receives from the lords of trade, through Robert Charles, the New York agent at London, a commission for the trial of pirates.—Cal. Coun. Min., 442. Piracy cases came before Lewis Morris, judge of the admiralty, in Oct., Nov. and Dec., this year, notably the cases of Richard Haddon, Christopher Miller, and Capt. Caldwell.—Ibid., 443.
- " The council issues a warrant to impress bread and flour to be

- 1758 sent to Albany for the forces. A committee is appointed to fix the prices of the provisions to be impressed.—Cal. Coun. Min., 442.
- Oct. 4 Beverly Robinson and John Cruger, paymasters, write to Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey for a warrant for £10,000 for two months, pay for the troops.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 692. The warrant is signed.—Cal. Coun. Min., 442.
- " In October, petitions were made, beginning this day, for commissions for the commanders of the following privateers: the ship "Tartar," and the brigantines "Polly and Fanny," "Ann," and "Nebuchadnezzar."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 692-93.
- 6 Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, about to go to Albany, gives instructions to the council.—Cal. Coun. Min., 442.
- " A fourth justice of the supreme court, David Jones, is appointed.—Ibid., 442.
- 12 Gen. Amherst, chief in command of the forces at the reduction of Louisbourg, arrives in New York from Albany. On the following morning and evening he was given a public ovation.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 16, 1758.
- 13 The council (Archibald Kennedy presiding) issues orders in response to Gen. Abercrombie's request for more ordnance, which has come through Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, at Albany.—Cal. Coun. Min., 442.
- 14 Again it is necessary to pass an ordinance imposing a fine for allowing swine to run at large south or west of the Fresh Water Pond.—M. C. C., VI: 152. Such an ordinance was passed 50 years before.—Ibid., II: 258. Indeed, this was a condition which frequently or generally prevailed throughout the Dutch and English colonial periods; and even far into the nineteenth century. See description of Pl. 85, Vol. III, p. 562.
- 19 Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey returns to New York.—Cal. Coun. Min., 442.
- " The council minutes record the list of ordnance which Christopher Blundell, the store-keeper at Fort George, is ordered to deliver to Mr. Furnis, comptroller of ordnance.—Ibid., 442. On Oct. 26, the order was increased.—Ibid., 443.
- 30 Matthew Ernest advertises that the new erected Glass-House, at Newfoundland, within four Miles of this City, is now at Work, and that any Gentleman may be supplied with Bottles, Flasks, or any sort of Glass agreeable to their Directions.—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 30, 1758. For location, see Feb. 8, 1757. The "Glass-House farm" comprised 30½ acres. When advertised for sale Sept. 27, 1762, it was stated that "The glass-house and out-houses can be taken off the place, if required."—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 27, 1762. It evidently did not long succeed as a glass manufactory, and was soon opened as a road-house.—See May 23, 1765. The farm-house, which was near the foot of West 35th St., apparently was not torn down until 1865.—Hist. of Commercial Bank (1913).
- Nov. 3 John Watts and William Walton are appointed commissioners for cancelling bills of credit.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 693.
- " A proclamation is issued for the apprehension of Richard Hadson, commander of the privateer "Peggy," on a charge of piracy, in seizing a Spanish schooner. Various depositions were taken during the month in this connection.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 694; Cal. Coun. Min., 443.
- 9 For a consideration of £300, Cornelius Clopper, Jr., and Catharine, his wife, convey by a trust deed to the trustees of the Jewish congregation (Daniel Gomez, Joseph Simson, Jacob Franks, and Myer Myers) the property now covered by parts of Nos. 18 and 20 South William St.—Liber Deeds, XXXV: 72-75. This land adjoined the Jewish synagogue on Mill St.—See Dec. 17, 1729.
- 13 An advertisement announces an auction sale, on Nov. 23, of a farm of about 100 acres in Bloomingdale, formerly the property of the late Nicholas Dyckman.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 13, 1758.
- 14 The first law enacted by the city to establish a closed season for fishing is passed. It is called the "Law to prohibit the Selling or Bringing Certain Fish into the City of New York, During the Time therein mentioned." It provides that "Bass or Twaalt" shall not be offered or exposed for sale or exchange, or given, or brought into this City or the limits or jurisdiction of it, in December, Jaouary, or February.—M. C. C., VI: 157. It was repealed on Jan. 28, 1762.—Ibid., VI: 279. See May 28, 1734.
- 18 In November, petitions were made, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the following privateers: the brigantines "True Briton," "Polly and Fanny," and "Sampson," and the ships "Ranger," "Fame," and "Resolution."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 693-95.
- 20 Capt. Kiersted, the present keeper of the "House of Correction, Work-House, and Alms-House," being ill, the common council appoints March 5, 1759, and the house of Edward Willett (115 Broadway) at the time and place of conference for a new keeper.—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 20, 1758.
- " The toll for crossing King's Bridge, "on the High-Road to Boston," has become very burdensome to travellers, particularly the inhabitants of Westchester and Dutchess Counties, being 9d. for each carriage, 3d. for each horse and each head of cattle, and 1d. for each foot-passenger. Certain "publick spirited Persons have lately contributed a large Sum of money, and therewith built a fine new Bridge across the said [Harlem] River, a little to the Southward of the said Bridge, which shortens the publick Road about Half a Mile." This bridge is free.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 20, 1758. See also Dec. 28; Jan. 2, 1759.
- 21 De Lancey reviews the events of the war, in an address to the assembly. Gen. Abercrombie is to disband the New York regiment as soon as possible, and this is daily expected to be done.—Assemb. Jour., II: 566-67.
- 24 The French abandon and burn Fort Duquesne at the approach of Gen. Forbes and Col. Washington, Bouquet, and Armstrong, with about 7,000 men. The English flag is raised, and the place is named Pittsburg after William Pitt.—Parkman, Montcalm and Wolfe, II: 131-63, and authorities there cited.
- Dec. 4 In December, petitions were made, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the following privateers: the ships "Mary," "Fitt," "Amherst," and "Morning Star," the snows "Montessor," and "Charming Sally," the sloop "Good Intent," and the brigantine "Resolution."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 695.
- 7 The assembly sends a message to the council relative to the appointment of a committee to prepare the draft of a representation to the king on the expenses of the colony in furnishing troops.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 695. Such a representation, asking for an allowance for this purpose, was in the hands of the council on Dec. 16.—Cal. Coun. Min., 444.
- 11 Major-Gen. Amherst, the conqueror of Louisbourg (see July 26, 1758), having been summoned by special express to come from Halifax, arrives in New York, where his commission has been received, by packet from England, appointing him general and commander-in-chief of all the British forces in North America, in place of Gen. Abercrombie, who is ordered home. Amherst takes up his residence in Fort George, "as being the center of the British Colonies." His baggage and stores also arrive there. Abercrombie is soon to sail for England on H. M. S. "Kenington," which is now at New York.—New Am. Mag. (Woodbridge, N. J., Dec., 1758), p. 317 of "The Hist. Chronicle."
- 13 De Lancey writes to the lords of trade: "A French letter of Marque of 26 twelve pounders . . . stopped to cruise on this Coast and has taken 25 Vessels coming to or going from this Port, Philadelphia and Virginia among whom one with the clothing and Baggage of the 47th Regiment. I mention this to Your Lordships to shew the necessity of having some of the King's Ships to cruise here: The great Success this Ship has had will without doubt encourage others of the Enemy to infest these Coasts next year."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 352.
- 16 As the method of taxing real and personal estates in the city and county of New York has been found uncertain and unequal, an act is passed requiring that all real estate there shall "be Rated or assessed, at two third parts of the Rent, or Yearly Income of the Same." For a more equal and just taxation of personal estates, the assessors of the several wards of the city shall agree upon one method or rule for rating the personal estates; that is, they shall determine "at what rate any Sum agreed on by them shall be Taxed, that persons of Equal Estates in the Different wards may be Rated in their assessments at Equal Sums."—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 306-9.
- 27 According to a notice of Dec. 23, signed "John Armstrong Secretary," the Masons are to celebrate on this day "The Feast of St. John" at the "Fountain-Tavern."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 23, 1758.
- 28 A theatre on Cruger's Wharf is opened, and the tragedy "Jane Shore" is acted "with great Applause, to a most crowded Audience."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 1, 1759.
- " Writing of the beginnings of the theatre in New York, O. G. Sonneck says: "Douglass arrived at New York in 1758. In the meantime, the Nassau Street Theatre had been converted into a place of worship and consequently Hallam's successor saw himself of Broad and Water St. had been opened as the "Fountain Tavern."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 8, 1759. It enjoyed only a brief popularity. By June 2, 1760, the "London Shoe Warehouse" was in possession of a part of the house, and "All the upper Part, two Rooms on the Lower Floor, and the Cellars of the late Fontaino Tavern" were offered to let.—Ibid., June 2, 1760; N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 17, 1760. In the spring of 1762, this corner house and the house adjoining it on the east, famous as the old Coffee House and the Fighting Cocks, were offered for sale. The former was owned at this time by Wm. Milliner, and the latter was described as "lately in the Occupation of Mr. Richard Waldron." The situation is "allowed to be the best in the City for Trade."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Apr. 26, 1762. Milliner mortgaged the old Coffee House to Philip van Cortlandt on June 13, 1762 (Liber Mortgages, I: 304-5), and Van Cortlandt sold the Fighting Cocks tavern to Waldron on Oct. 30, of the same year (q. v.).

1758 obliged to look for a suitable place for the erection of a theatre. Dec. He selected Cruger's wharf, and after having . . . softened the anti-theatrical hearts of the magistrates, he opened on December 28, 1758, with "Jaoc Shore."—Sonneck, Early Opera in Am., 26; Ireland, Hist. of the N. Y. Stage, I: 27. A comedy was presented at the theatre on Cruger's wharf on Jan. 29, 1759.—See N. Y. Merc., of the date.

The master of the Dutch schooner "Dolphin," brought into the port of New York by Nicholas Horton, commander of the privateer "Johnson," issues a representation or memorial concerning outrages committed on himself and his crew, with two supporting depositions showing that the vessel was plundered and an attempt made to hang the ship's doctor.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 696.

Abraham Sarzedas advertises for sale "a very pleasant Country Seat, situated north the North-River, about three miles from the City, generally known by the Name of Greenwich." It contains "near four Acres, all in Garden, inclosed with a good Board Fence, six Feet high, and Red-cedar Posts; a Dwelling-house, the best Part whereof is finish'd in the best Manner oot above six Years ago, fit for any Gentleman."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 15, 1759. The item shows that the name "Greenwich" was applied to a private estate as well as to the village or neighbourhood. The same is true of Oliver de Lancey's "Bloomendal" (Bloomingdale). For references to the villages of these names, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 986, 987.

Hugh Gaine advertises in his paper that he has just published and has for sale A New Manual Exercise, For the Foot. Very useful for the Army and Militia.—See N. Y. Merc., Jan. 15, 1759. Although no copy of this work was located by Ford (see Jour. of Hugh Gaine, I: 103), there is one in the archives of the Mass. Hist. Soc., and a photostat of its title-page is in the N. Y. Pub. Library.

Maj.-Gen. Abercrombie embarks on the man-of-war "Kennington" (Capt. Jacobs) for England; "early the next Morning the Cannon on Fort George were discharged, as a Compliment paid his Excellency's Embarkation, which was returned by the Man of War."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 22, 1759.

It is deemed necessary that a pest House be fourthwith Built on the Island Commonly Called Bedlows Island, which this Corporation lately purchased from Archibald Kennedy Esq for that purpose" (see May 10, 1758), and a committee is appointed "to order the purchasing of materials for Carrying on and Compleating the Same."—M. C. C., VI: 162. Payments were made "towards Carrying on the Building of the pest house," on June 20, July 20, Aug. 21, Sept. 19, and Nov. 13, 1759; and also on Jan. 9 (partly "for sundry Necessaries to be sent to such Sick as were Lately up on Bedlows Island"), Feb. 13, and Aug. 4, 1760 (his last date representing payment "for Painting and Glazing the Sick house or Hospital on Bedlows Island").—Ibid., VI: 175, 176, 178, 180, 196, 203, 205, 218.

The vestry of Trinity Church leases to John Marshall for 21 years from March 25, 1759, at an annual rental of £20, a piece of land described as the "Old Bowling Green" (see March 29, 1758), enclosed in a hedge fence, 130 by 223 ft. They also lease to Marshall another piece of ground, north and east of the "Old Bowling Green," between the ropewalk of Elias Degrusse and the palesades, "being in length from the northwest corner of the Bowling Green to the eastern most block house on the Church Farm, containing about four-fifths of an acre of land."—Sandford, Chan. Rep., IV: 657.

The minister, elders, and deacons of the Lutheran Church petition Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey for a charter. The petition is referred to the governour's council. On March 14, it was approved, orders being given for a "draft of such Charter of Incorporation" to be prepared and submitted for approval.—Cal. Coun. Min., 400. No further action was taken until a second petition was presented, Sept. 29, 1763 (q. v.).—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 297. The statements above recited were embodied in the later petition.

1759

— When Lieut. John Harriott was in New York as a boy in 1759, "a brig arrived from Ireland, full of passengers, most of whom were to be sold as servants for a number of years, to pay for their passage."—Harriott, Struggles through Life (London, 1807), I: 15. This is one of many such occurrences found in the early records. See June 19, 1728, for one of the earliest references to this custom; see also June 9, 1746. For an interesting selection of instances of the importation and "sale" of white servants, and their advantage over negro servants, see De Voe, Market Book, 96-101.

— In this year, the "Old Insurance Office" was kept at the Merchant's Coffee-House, where the clerks of the office, Keteltas and Sharpe, attend every day from 12 to 1 and 6 to 8. A rival office, the "New York Insurance Office," with Anthony van Dam as clerk, was established the same year, and a permanent office taken next door to the Coffee-House.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 27, Sept. 17 and 24, 1759.

— In this year, Benjamin West was painting portraits in New York.—Dunlap, Hist. of the Arts of Design, I: 44-47; Jackson, Benjamin West, His Life and Work, 41; Galt, Life, Studies, and Works of Benjamin West, 76, 84.

— In this year and the next, Cadwallader Colden wrote to his son a series of ten letters, four of which are dated, reviewed, with critical comment and reminiscence, William Smith's Hist. of the Province of N. Y., which was published in 1757 (q. v.). The letters are printed in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1868), 177-235; ibid. (1869), 203-12. For selected extracts, see July 5.

Jan. An account of arrearages of taxes in the several cities and counties in the province of New York, from 1713 to this date, is of record on the first of this year.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 696.

"In accordance with "his Majesty's Writ," directed to him, Sheriff John Roberts publishes a notice instructing the freemen and freeholders of the city and county of New York, within his "Balliwick," to assemble at a. m. on Jan. 9, "on the green near the Work-House," to elect four representatives to the general assembly.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 1, 1759. The proceeding illustrates the first steps in a popular election of the period.

"Philippe bridge" (see July 1, 1713) had remained the sole connection between Manhattan and Westchester County. A new bridge, constructed by subscription and known as the "Freebridge," is now opened at a point a little south-east of "Philippe bridge."—See Nov. 20, and Dec. 28, 1758. The following notice was published the day before: "These are to Acquaint the Publick; That To-morrow, being the 2d of January, The Free Bridge, erected and built across the Harlem River, will be finished and compleated." Gentlemen and ladies in this province and also in Connecticut are invited.

"On the same Day there will be a stately Ox roasted whole on the Green, for, and as a small entertainment to the Loyal People who come. N. B. All those Gentlemen that have any of the Subscription Papers in their Hands concerning this Bridge; are desired to bring or send them to Benjamin Palmer, . . . that the Account may be settled; the Cost of the Bridge, and the Monies received, made known, to the Satisfaction of all concerned."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 1, 1759.

3 In January, petitions were made, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the following privateers: the ships "Prince Ferdinand," "Phila," and "Dublin," the sloops "Bell Isle" and "Sally," and the brigantines "John" and "Polly."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 696-97.

6 George Washington marries Martha Custis at White House, a town in New Kent County, Virginia, a short distance from Williamsburg.—Welles, Washington Family, 128.

8 Some time prior to this date the old Coffee House on the corner

Jan.

8

9

15

"

19

30

Feb.

1

8

- 1759 Samuel Parker announces: "Whereas the Partnership between
 Feb. James Parker and William Weyman, in this City, being expired; 12 and the said James Parker having found his Health so much impaired, as to be obliged for some Years past to leave the City of New-York; he has therefore now assigned, sold, and set over to his Nephew, Samuel Parker, all his Right and Interest in the New-Printing-Office in Beaver-street: And as the said Samuel Parker has served a lawful and just Apprenticeship of Seven Years, to the said James Parker, in the City of New-York, he humbly hopes the Favour and Custom of his Fellow-Citizens, in the said Business . . . .
 "The New-York Gazette, will still continue to be carried on in the usual Manner, with the utmost Fidelity . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 12, 1759; Early Newspapers, II: 427. See also Jan. 4, 1743.
- 16 Gen. Amherst writes to Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey concerning the raising of additional forces and the collection of arms. An early commencement of the campaign is planned.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Engs., 697.
- " William Weyman publishes a prospectus issue of a new weekly newspaper, Weyman's New-York Gazette. This issue is numbered
 No. 00; issue No. 1 appeared Feb. 19, 1759.—Early Newspapers,
 II: 423; Brigham, "Bibliog. of Am. Newspapers," in *Am. Antiq.
 Soc. Proc.* (1917), 421. See Aug. 13.
- Weyman's imprint of this date shows that his printing-office is in "Broadstreet, in the House where Mr. John Cox now lives, opposite Synagogue Alley." This Alley was commonly known as Jews' Alley, and is now So. William St.—See Landmark Map Ref.
 Key, III: 1003.
- " The "house of Edward Willett" is designated as the meeting-place of a joint committee of the provincial council and assembly.
 —Assemb. Jour., II: 589. This was the Province Arms or New York Arms Tavern, at the present 115 Broadway.—See "City Tavern," Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 977.
- 20 A message from Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey is read to the council and assembly, in joint session at the city hall, concerning the ensuing campaign; also a letter from Gen. Amherst on the same subject.—Cal. Coun. Min., 444.
- 26 The council sends a message to the assembly recommending the passage of a bill to authorize drafts from the militia.—*Cal.
 Coun. Min.*, 444.
- " Since our last a Company of Carpenters consisting of 60 Men, arrived here from Philadelphia, on their Way to Albany."—*N. Y.
 Post-Boy*, Feb. 26, 1759.
- Mar. Francis Maerschalk, the surveyor, draws a "Map of the 2 Vineyard Property," which bears this date. It was filed on May 1, 1830, in the register's office of New York County, as map No.
 153.—See description of Pl. 72-a, I: 457.
- 5 "All Gentlemen Volunteers, Inclined to serve his Majesty, in the Service of the Province of New-York, in the present Expedition against Canada; are desired to come to Captain Elias Desbrosses, or Capt. Thomas Moore; or any other Officer having the Governor's Warrant to enlist Men in the City and County of New-York. . . .
 And upon passing Muster, will be entitled to the following Bounty, viz. The sum of Fifteen Pounds in Cash; one Blanket, one good Coat, one Pair of Buck-skin Breeches, two Shirts, two Pairs of Stockings, two Pairs of Shoes, and one Hat. . . . And further, besides their Pay, (which is One Shilling and Three Pence per Day) they shall receive One Shilling per Day for their Subsistance, from the Time of their Enlistment, until they pass muster. . . .
 They are to be discharged by Law, the First Day of November next; and possibly sooner. . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 5, 1759. This notice appears also to be the substance of a proclamation which the council, on the next day, authorized to be issued.—
Cal. Coun. Min., 445.
- " Among those who are taking subscriptions for "the Gentlemen and Ladies Military Closet Furniture" is "Mr. Michael De Bruls, Engraver, at Mr. Futer's, Silver-Smith, in French-Church Street."—N. Y. Merc., March 5, 1759. Between 1759 and 1763, De Bruls was the chief engraver on copper in New York.— Stauffer, Am. Engravers on Copper and Steel, I: 31-33. For advertisements of his work, see May 3 and Oct. 11, 1762, the latter having reference to proposed views of New York.
- " Also "Mr. Elisha Gallaudet, Engraver in Smith-Street" is taking subscriptions for "the Gentlemen and Ladies Military Closet Furniture."—N. Y. Merc., March 5, 1759. "Besides some early book-plates, the only known engraving of Elisha Gallaudet is a portrait of the Rev. George Whitfield, issued as a frontispiece to the 'Life of Whitfield' published by Hodge & Shober, New York, 1774. This plate is very poorly engraved, and is evidently a copy from an English print."—Stauffer, Am. Engravers on Copper and Steel, I: 95-96. This plate, and a book-plate of the N. Y.
 Society Library, by Gallaudet, are listed in ibid., II: 174.
- The legislature passes an act for raising £100,000 for levying, paying, and clothing 2,680 men and officers as part of an army of 20,000 men to be raised by this and neighbouring colonies, "To invade in Conjunction with a Body of his Majesty's Regular Troops the French Possessions in Canada;" and for emitting bills of credit for this sum, and cancelling them in short periods.—
Cal. Laws N. Y., IV: 317. See July 3, 1759; Feb. 16, 1760.
- "This, however, was but the beginning of the great expenditure involved in the campaign by which the Coaodas were conquered and maintained. The British government reimbursed a portion of the moneys contributed by the colonies. But, however glorious the result, the people of America felt that the great burden fell upon their shoulders. It is needless to refer to the influence of these causes in producing the revolution which resulted in the independence of the United States."—Man. Com. Coun. (1859), 510.
- "It having been represented to the House that a Regimental Hospital was absolutely necessary for the Use and Benefit of the sick and wounded New York Forces," it was resolved by the assembly that £500 be allowed, and placed in the hands of "the Commissaries and Paymasters to the Forces of the Colony," and applied to this object, "in Case . . . the Lieutenant Governor, shall find it necessary."—Assemb. Jour., II: 599. The city of New York was already provided with one hospital.—See Nov. 29, 1757.
- " The assembly appoints the mayor and the representatives of New York City as a committee to correspond with the agent of the colony of New York in England during the recess of the house.
 —Assemb. Jour., I: 599-600.
- 9 "Philip Kuyssick of the City of New-York, Inn-holder," makes a deposition before J. Morin Scott concerning an affair which took place at his tavern, where officers of the king attempted by trickery to enlist a man named Quackenboss into the king's service.—*N. Y.
 Merc.*, March 12, 1759. Kuyssick, or Kuyssick, had a tavern on property leased from Trinity Church. It stood at the present 252-254 Broadway, and was later celebrated as "Montagne's."—
 See April 5, 1754.
- 14 De Lancey issues a proclamation in reference to enlisting seamen for manning the squadron of his majesty's ships to be employed against the French.—See catalogue of sale of the Rodney papers, by Henkels, Phila., Oct. 22, 1919, when the original proclamation was sold (item No. 129).
- " The common council resolves to meet March 17, "near the Goal House in order for the Laying out in Lots some Ground Belonging to this Corporation which lies between the said Goal House and the House Commonly Called Catiemut," and the city surveyor is to attend and make a survey of the lots.—M. C. C., VI: 165-66. On March 20, it was ordered that advertisements to be published "for Letting to farm the several Lots of Ground Belonging to this Corporation that Lies between the New Goal House and the Dwelling House of Cap<sup>t</sup> John Browns near the palisades where the wind-mill formerly stood," for the term of 21 years, commencing the first of May next.—M. C. C., VI: 167. The results of the "Publick Outcry" for this purpose are recorded in the Minutes.—Ibid., VI: 173.
- " The "Goal House" is shown as landmark No. 8 in block 122 (in the Park), Pl. 174, Vol. III. Catiemut's Hill was the Windmill Hill Stone (Hist. of N. Y., 339) says that "Katey Mutz" had a garden
 "at Wind-mill Hill—more recently the site of the Chatham Street Chapel." The chapel was on the same site as Chatham Garden Theatre, in the present Park Row, near the corner of Pearl St.—
 See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 983.
- Cap<sup>t</sup>. John Brown, mentioned in the above records, lived at the north-west corner of Duane St. and Park Row.—See landmark 159-3 of Pl. 174, Vol. III. This was the site of the windmill (cf. also Liber Mortgages, I: 396), wherein a "Widow Brown" (evidently the relict of Cap<sup>t</sup>. Brown) was described as living in 1761. This designation of lots between the jail and the house of Cap<sup>t</sup>. Brown refers to the plot between Tryon Row, New Chambers St., Park Row, and Centre St., which was common land

1759 in 1769, the irregular plot beyond (see Leadmark Map) up Duane St. being probably included. In the entry of March 14, 1759, the house commonly called Catiemut's is merely a general direction, this house lying beyond Brown's on the same side of Chatham St.—Cf. N. Y. Jour., March 16, 1769, wherein a meeting of the "Friends of Liberty" is called to take place "at the House of Henry Van De Water, (otherwise called Catiemut's)." In both entries in the Minutes—March 14, and March 20, 1759—the same lots were alluded to; they were those facing Park Row (Chatham St.) from Tryon Row to Duane St. See also Man. Com. Coun. (1866), 604-5.

16 Brig-Gen. Monckton arrives at New York from Halifax.—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 19, 1759.

An order is issued to the colonels of regiments in the several countries to detach men from the militia, if volunteers do not offer before April 4, and to furnish them with directions where to march.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 698.

19 A French vessel, sent into port by two privateers, is thought to be the most valuable prize brought into New York since the outbreak of the war.—Upcott Coll., I: 359, in N. Y. Hist. Soc.

" Samuel Fraunces, "at the Mason's Arms, near the Barracks," threatens to prosecute, "to the utmost Rigour of the Law," the person who took "two sett Stock-Buckles, and one Bossom Buckle, from a Gentleman on last Sunday Evening," if not at once returned to him.—N. Y. Merc., March 19, 1759. The "Mason's Arms" was the first tavern which Fraunces conducted in New York, and was first opened by him after Feb. 27, 1756 (q. v.), when he and James Taggart, "Retailers of Strong Liquors," dissolved partnership. The site of the Mason's Arms is accurately fixed by a description of the property in a mortgage which Fraunces gave to Walter Rutherford on Jan. 13, 1762.—Liber Mortgages, I: 268-69. It stood on the south-west corner of Broadway and Warren St.

Fraunces turned over the tavern to John Jones in the spring of 1762, when he purchased the De Lancey Mansion on Broad and Pearl Sts., and opened the famous Queen's Head, later better known as Fraunces Tavern. Jones gave Fraunces a mortgage on the Mason's Arms on Feb. 3, 1762, and paid it off on Jan. 14, 1765.—Ibid., I: 69. Jones later (Feb. 28, 1765) acquired from Trinity Church a 63-year lease on this property, which was a part of the Church Farm.—Sanford, Chan. Rep., IV: 660. On May 13, 1765 (q. v.), Jones offered the tavern for sale. He described it as "The House, at the Sign of the Mason's-Arms, near the College . . . a very convenient House for a Tavern, and has always been occupied as such, where the best Company in Town resorted . . ." He announced that he would leave the house as soon as disposed of. Jones failed to secure a purchaser, and on June 12, 1765, mortgaged the premises to Roger Morris for 2,000 "milled Spanish pieces of Eight."—Liber Mortgages, I: 511-12. On Nov. 14, 1765 (q. v.), Jones, whose business relations with Fraunces seem to have been very cordial, took over Fraunces's tavern at Broad and Pearl Sts., and shortly thereafter Richard Howard became the new proprietor of the tavern "in the Fields."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 18, 1766. Howard's stay was brief. Alexander Smith succeeded him in Oct., 1766 (N. Y. Jour., Oct. 30, 1766), and on Feb. 26, 1767 (q. v.), Murray and Smith announced that they had "entered into partnership, for carrying on the business of Vintners, and Victuallers, at the Masons-Arms Tavern, in the Fields, lately kept by said Smith alone." They intended, they said, to "keep the said house with the same good reputation as in the time of their predecessor Mr. John Jones."—Ibid., Feb. 26, 1767. Jones made further efforts to sell the house in Dec. 1767, and finally announced that he would sell it by public vendue on Jan. 25, 1768.—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 11, 1768. By March 21 of that year, the tavern was in possession of Roger Morris, who offered it for rent.

Shortly thereafter, Edward Smith appears to have become proprietor. Under Smith, the house became one of the most popular meeting-places for the Sons of Liberty, and, when a disagreement occurred between the radical element of the party and Abraham de la Montagne, whose tavern had been engaged by the conservative faction of the Sons of Liberty for their annual celebration of the repeal of the Stamp Act on March 19, the house of Edward Smith was taken over by the former as a "proper House for the Accomodation of all Lovers of freedom on that Day, and for their Use on future Occasion, in the Promotion of the Common Cause."—See Feb. 19, 1770. Henry Bicker, who had recently been conducting a tavern in New Brunswick, at the "Sign of the Tree of Liberty," became the first proprietor, and the house was called "Hamden Hall." The liberty pole in the fields stood almost opposite the house in what is now City Hall Park, and a little to the north, in the fields, were the barracks of the British soldiers. Both Hamden Hall and Montagne's tavern, which stood on Broadway a few doors south of Warren St., were attacked by soldiers on several occasions preceding the outbreak of the Revolution. In May, 1774, John Cox, who described himself, evidently with some pride, as a prisoner for 12 years for debt, succeeded Bicker as landlord.—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 12, 1772. He, in turn, was succeeded, about May 14, 1774 (q. v.), by Edward Bardin. Within a year, Bardin left to open a house and gardens on Beekman St., and once more Samuel Fraunces became proprietor, with Campbell for a partner.—See May 29, 1775. During the British occupation of the city from 1776 to 1783, Montagne's tavern continued under British or loyalist innholders, but Hamden Hall ceased to exist. In 1788, Trinity Church leased the premises to Cornelius Cregier for 40 years.—Liber Deeds, CCXX: 374.

The name of the Post-Boy is changed to Parker's New-York Gazette; or, the Weekly Post-Boy—Early Newspapers, II: 427. See also Jan. 4, 1743. The partnership of Parker & Weyman had been dissolved, and, with the issue of Feb. 12, Parker again became the sole publisher.

The house of Joseph Deane is described, in a published notice, as "in New-English-Church-Street."—N. Y. Merc., March 19, 1759. This probably means Beekman St., where St. George's Chapel had been completed and consecrated July 1, 1752 (q. v.).

The minister (Rev. David Bostwick), elders, deacons, and trustees of the Presbyterian Church petition for a grant and confirmation of certain premises on the northeasterly side of Wall St.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 699.

The common council directs the clerk to make payment of £3 to Henry Play, "for the hire of his House as a Guard House for his majesties Regular Troops Quartered in this City the past year."—M. C. C., VI: 167. This was at the rate of ten shillings a week.—Ibid., VI: 140. The same house was used in the winter of 1757-8.—Ibid., VI: 140. It has not proved possible, from title records or other sources, to determine the location of this house.

The council hears from Secretary Pitt concerning the operations of the campaign.—Cal. Coun. Min., 445.

A new city ordinance is enacted "for Regulating the Lying of Vessels in the Great Dock and Slips of this City and Ascertainning the Rates to be paid for the Same, and for Preserving the Bridge and Common Sewer of the Same Great Dock." The former law on the subject (see March 22, 1684, and Nov. 18, 1731) is repealed. The new provisions, now enacted, are as follows: After May 1, 1759, dockage is to be paid yearly, by the master or owner of the vessel, on his first coming to "any of the docks, wharfs piers, Keys, Moles, or slips belonging To this Corporation." The rate on vessels belonging to the city, New Jersey, or Connecticut (except sea vessels that are not coasters), is six shillings yearly on vessels of five tons burden or less, and one shilling per ton above that burden. Dockage rates are prescribed for "Trading and Coasting Vessels" which come from as far "Eastward" as New Hampshire and as far "westward" as North Carolina, inclusive, with the customary allowance of only one month for the sojourn here; these rates being higher than formerly for vessels of 20 tons burden or over. The tonnage (or burden), when in dispute, is to be determined by the oath of the master or owner; or, in case of his refusal to swear or prove it, it shall be settled by the oath of the person suing or prosecuting. The penalty is raised from 6 to 20 shillings for every tide that a vessel stays at the mouth of the dock or slip longer than necessary to load or unload. No vessel is permitted to make fast or "hall down" (cf. Dec. 24, 1717) "by the Bridge in the Great Dock;" or load or unload ballast, flour, or goods there; or careen by the bridge or by "any of the docks Wharfs, Piers, Keys, Mole, or Slips" belonging to the city. Only at such docks, etc., in the Out Ward is it permitted to make or keep a fire on board at night. Only small craft, "Such as ferry Boats Market Boats Pettiaugers and Canoes," are permitted to come into "the Slip at the end of the Common Sewer, that Leads under the Market house Commonly Called . . . the fly Market, and empties itself into the East River." Sea vessels are permitted to "Come into or lie at or Within" any of the docks, etc., from Dec. 20 to March 20, paying dockage at the rate of six shillings a day while loading or unloading and one shilling sixpence a day

Mar. 19

"

"

20

"

23

26

- 1759 when not loading or unloading. Half the penalties and forfeitures recovered by the dock-master are to be paid to the church-wardens for the use of the poor, and the other half he is to retain.—M. C. C., VI: 168-72.
- 27 Jacobus Roosevelt, John Chambers, Oliver Roosevelt, Jacobus Roosevelt, Jr., Cornelius Roosevelt, and William de Peyster, who are the owners of several lots in the Cripple Bush, convey to the city land for a public highway, to be called Ferry Street, from Queen St. to the Cripple Bush.—Sessions of Streets, Liber I: 1 (in Bureau of Engineering, Division of Design, Dept. of Public Works, Manhattan. See March 15, 1749). The street was begun ten years before.—See March 15, 1749; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 999.
- 28 Depositions taken on this day and later show that the captain and first lieutenant of the brigantine "Hawk" cruelly chastised two negroes, one of whom died.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 699.
- 30 The council at New York is informed that Rear Admiral Saunders is appointed naval commander-in-chief in North America.—Cal. Coun. Min., 445. See April 13.
- " The Presbyterians make application for a charter.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 304. Regarding the unsuccessful outcome of this and a later petition, see March 18, 1766.
- Apr. 6 Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey intends going to Philadelphia with Gen. Amherst, after appointing John Johnson colonel of the provincial regiment.—Cal. Coun. Min., 445. See April 13.
- 7 The privateer "King George" (Capt. Learcraft), of this port, sends in here a small French sloop loaded with sugar and coffee.—Parker's Post-Boy, April 16, 1759.
- 13 Gen. Amherst, Gov. De Lancey, Christopher Kilby, and several officers of the army return to New York from Philadelphia. "The Guns upon Fort-George were discharged upon the Occasion."—Parker's Post-Boy, April 16, 1759.
- " "The same Day His Majesty's Ship Lizard, of 20 Guns, Captain Doake, arrived here from Plymouth: She sail'd the 18th of February [from England], in Company with Admiral Saunders's, with a Fleet of 8 Ships of the Line, and 20 Transports, bound for Louisbourg; and parted with them the 9th of March; so it is not doubted but they [the transports] are arriv'd [at Louisburg]. Major-General Wolfe, Commander in Chief upon the Expedition up the River St. Lawrence, is on board the Neptune of 90 Guns, the Admiral's Ship."—Ibid.
- " Part of Col. Fraser's Highland Regiment has recently arrived from Albany. "Tis said this Regiment is to proceed to Halifax, in order to go upon the Expedition up the River St. Lawrence, at the particular Request of Major. General Wolfe, who experienced their Bravery at the Siege of Louisbourg."—Ibid. See May 8.
- 14 Benjamin Franklin, about to take passage for England, and now in New York, writes at length to Dr. Lining, of Charleston, S. C., on the subject of experiments with electricity and fire.—See sales catalogue of Henkels, Phila., who sold the original holograph letter at auction, July 1, 1920. Franklin's letter does not reveal that, at this or any other time, he undertook such experiments in this city.
- 15 Brig.-Gen. Monckton, with several officers of the army, embark on board a sloop, and sail for Halifax.—Parker's Post-Boy, April 16, 1759.
- 16 News from Antigua is published in New York regarding the remarkable success of the privateer "Sturdy-Beggar" (Capt. Troup), of this port, in an encounter with the French fleet. Three of her captures, a ship and two snows, have arrived here.—Parker's Post-Boy, April 16, 1759.
- 23 " . . . the New York Regiment is by voluntary Enlistment, completed to 2500 Men; and as a remarkable Spirit for the Service prevails, there is not the least Doubt, but in a few Days we shall be entirely completed to 2680 Men [see Mar. 25, 1758], the full Establishment of this Colony."—Parker's Post-Boy, April 3, 1759. Cf. N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 354.
- " . . . the following Colonies have agreed to raise the following Number of Forces for the Service of the present Year 1759. Massachusetts-Bay 5000; Connecticut 3600; New-York 2680; New-Jersey 1000; Pennsylvania 2700; Virginia 1000. In all 15,980."—Ibid.
- 26 On this day, 27 warrants are issued to pay the bounty and enlisting money for volunteers, amounting to over £35,000. Warrants, to supply officers' tables, are also issued—to colonels-in-chief, £100 each; to colonels commandant, £75 each; to lieutenant-colonels, £50 each; and to majors, £40 each.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 700-1. On May 7, 1760, such warrants for the benefit of 2,522 men amounted to £40,078.—Ibid., 709.
- 28 Maj.-Gen. Amherst embarks for Albany on board the Hon. Mr. Kilby's sloop. The cannon on Fort George are discharged as a compliment to him.—Parker's Post-Boy, April 30, 1759.
- " The lease of a lot of 21 years by the city to Ezekiel Sneed describes it as "in the North Ward, marked in Francis Maerschalck's map [Pl. 34, Vol. I] between the New Gaol and the house of Capt. Thomas Brown near the stockadoes."—Emmet Coll., item No. 10872, N. Y. Pub. Library. The "stockadoes" were the palisades of 1746, stretching across the island in an irregular line above the city. They are shown on the same map; see also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 945.
- " A man, jailed on suspicion of counterfeiting bills of credit, is pardoned on condition that he enlist.—Cal. Coun. Min., 445.
- " The "XLII, or Royal Highland Regiment," which was "quartered in this City all the Winter Season," embarks "on board Sloops for Albany."—N. Y. Merc., May 7, 1759. Military items of this character, detailing the movements of commanders and troops, as well as maritime news (principally relating to privateers) fill the local news columns during these critical times. The Mercury is often compelled to print supplements.
- 7 During the week prior to this date, "upwards of 40 Sail of Transports arrived from England, being those that came out with Commodore Holmes. The Commodore, in the Somerset, with the Terrible, proceeded for Halifax, as soon as the above Vessels got safe into Sandy-Hook. . . .
- " Colonel Fraser's Highlanders are now all embarked, and most of the Vessels that have them on board, as well as others with Artillery, &c. are fell down to the Watering-Place, and some to the Hook. . . ."—N. Y. Merc., May 7, 1759.
- " Charles W. Athorp, financial agent for the army, writes to the provincial council of the difficulties in procuring money for the king's troops. Paymasters Oliver de Lancey, John Cruger, and Beverly Robinson are asked to lend from funds intended for the provincials, and the council accordingly issues a warrant on the treasurer for £24,000.—Cal. Coun. Min., 445; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 701.
- " The council issues a warrant for impressing ship carpenters.—Cal. Coun. Min., 445.
- " Lord John Murray's Royal Highland Regiment, which embarked on May 6 (q. v.), departs for Albany.—Parker's Post-Boy, May 14, 1759.
- 8 H. M. S. "Nightingale" (Capt. Campbell) and "Trent" (Capt. Lindsey) sail "from the Hook for Louisbourg, in order to join Admiral Saunders's Squadron, with the first Division of Transports under their Convoy, having Col. Fraser's Highland Regiment on board" (see April 13).—Parker's Post-Boy, May 14, 1759.
- 9 H. M. S. "Lizard" (Capt. Doake), which arrived from England on April 13 (q. v.), sails for Louisbourg, "with the second Division of Transports, having the 47th Regiment (that embark'd from Amboy) on board."—Parker's Post-Boy, May 14, 1759.
- " Gen. Amherst issues a proclamation offering exemption from impressment to persons who will convey to Lake George provisions for the troops destined for that point and beyond.—Parker's Post-Boy, May 21, 1759.
- 10 A race was advertised to be run on this day at "Greenwich Farm," the horses to be entered with James Ackland.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Apr. 16, 1759. Races had been held since 1753 at Greenwich, on the estate of Sir Peter Warren.—See May 14, 1753; and Bayles' Old Taverners of N. Y., 182.
- 11 A large French sloop arrives here, taken by the privateer brigantines "True Briton," "Masterson," and "Duke of Marlborough."—Parker's Post-Boy, May 14, 1759.
- 12 On this day and the next, the provincial troops furnished by this city as its quota of the 2680 men (see April 23), embarked for Albany. The Long Island troops embarked at the same time.—Parker's Post-Boy, May 14, 1759.
- 16 His Majesty's frigate "Diana" (Capt. Scomberg), with several transports under her convoy, sailed from Sandy Hook for Louisbourg. Major Morris is on board the "Diana" as a passenger.—Parker's Post-Boy, May 21, 1759.
- 17 In May, petitions were made, beginning this day, for commissions for the commanders of the following privateers: the ship

1759 "Two Friends," the snows "Royal Hester" and "Boscawen," My17 and the sloop "Charming Polly."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 702.
 18 The privateer sloop "General Abercrombie" (Capt. Valentine) returns to port with a French prize tartan of about 20 tons burden, having a valuable cargo of wine, brandy, raisins and nuts.—Parker's
Post-Boy, May 21, 1759.

24 Payment is made "for Carting dirt and Gravel to fill up the Street or peer at pecks Slip."—M. C. C., VI: 174. This is an example of the character of the construction work done by the city in extending the city's boundaries along the docks at this period. The grant of water lots to individuals as a rule required that such filling in be done at the expense of the grantee.

" The mayor presents to the common council an account amounting to £493:6:1, for billeting the officers of the 42d or Royal Highland Regiment on several persons last winter. This shows an allowance of 16s. per week for a colonel, 12s. for a major, 10s. for a captain, and 6s. for a lieutenant or ensign. It is ordered that the city treasurer or chamberlain pay these accounts to those to whom they are due.—M. C. C., VI: 174-75. For later officers' billets, see ibid., VI: 179; VII: 151.

June The council rules that persons stricken with fever and other serious maladies are to be removed from the city.—Cal. Coun. Min., 445. The small-pox epidemic raged in the city as late as Oct. 17, 1759 (q. v.), and again the next spring.—See March 11, 1760.

5 Oliver de Lancy, as trustee of the children and heirs of Sir Peter Warren, deceased, lets to "Christopher Kilby Esq<sup>r</sup> Ooe of the Contracters for Victualling His Majesty's Forces in North America," for "use of Himself and the other Contracters for Victualling His Majesty's Forces in North America," lots in the West Ward shown on Maerschalck's maps as 8, 9, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, and 23. The lease runs from Nov. 1, 1758, for 21 years, and Kilby is to pay 15 "Spanish Pieces of Eight" for each lot, amounting in all to 210 "Spanish Pieces of Eight."—From original MS. in De Lancy Papers, 1647-1804, in N. Y. Hist. Soc.

8 Gen. Amherst writes from Fort Edward to Lieut.-Gov. De Laney regarding the pecuniary distresses of the army, and asking for a loan of £150,000.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 702. On June 14, the council decided to ask the assembly to act upon the proposal.—
Cal. Coun. Min. See July 3.

12 In June, petitions were made, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the following privateers: the brigantines "Betsy" and "Hope," the sloops "Ann" and "Anne," and the snow "Jane."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 703.

27 Gen. Wolfe lands an army of about 8,000 a few miles below
 Quebec. A French force of more than 16,000 is in the city.—
Parkman, Montcalm and Wolfe, II: 195-210, 436-38, and authorities there cited.

30 Gen. Wolfe takes possession of Point Lévis, where he proceeds to erect batteries.—Parkman, Montcalm and Wolfe, II: 213-15
 and authorities there cited.

July The legislature passes an act (cf. March 7) for raising another
 3 huge sum (£150,000 in this instance) "to enable his Majesties General [Amherst] to Pay the Debts Contracted and to Carry on His Majesties Service in North America," and for retiring within a year the bills of credit to be emitted for this purpose.—Col. Lewis
N. Y., IV: 359.

" As the keeping of prisoners in the city hall has been very inconvenient, and as the corporation has completed a new "Goal" on the Commons (see March 1, 1757), with "proper and Commodious apartments," an act is passed by the legislature for removing the prisoners from the city hall to the new jail. The sheriff is required to remove them as soon as he is served with an order for that purpose by the common council. He shall deliver the keys of the city hall to that body or its representative; and thereafter he shall not occupy the city hall. The rooms in the new jail, designated as the "Goal or Goals of and for the City and County of New York," are "the two Cellar Rooms under the West side and towards the Rear of the said House lately Built by the Mayor Aldermen and Commonalty of the said City," the three Rooms or apartments in the West Side . . . in the Middle Story and the six Rooms in the Third Story.—Col. Lewis N. Y., IV: 355.
 The common council afterwards designated Oct. 1 (q. v.) as the last day for completing the transfer. Regarding the preliminary steps leading to the construction of the "Goal," and its subsequent history, see March 1, 1757; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 972.

In July, petitions were made, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the following privateers: the brigantines
 "Hope" and "General Amherst," the snows "Union" and "Dreadnaught," and the ships "York," "Bradstreet," and "Juno."
 —Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 705.

Cadwallader Colden writes from "Coldenham" to his son, continuing his critical review (see 1750) of William Smith's History of the Province of New York (pub. in 1757, q. v.). He thus defends constituted authority: "We may clearly see the the [sic] pernicious effects of liberty turned to licentiousness in New York, at the time of the Revolution [of 1789]. All the Governors of New York, even supposing them as bad as Mr. Smith represents them, did not produce half the mischief, in all the time of their Government, which was produced in one year by the suppression of legal Government. Blood shed, Rapine, confisca-tions, Arbitrary & tyrannic acts & animosities, which could not be stifled in many years, were the consequence. . . . This is too generally the case in all popular commotions, under the plausible outcry for Liberty. How cautious then ought every one to be in contributing anything towards the weakening of the legal powers of Government, or to do any thing which may give power to a disorderly Mob. A mob can never be directed by reason; but is hurried into the worst extremes, by prejudice and passion.
 The consequence generally turns to the destruction of those, who plumed them selves in their ability to incite the mob, which afterwards they are no more able to govern, than to govern a whirl wind. . . ."

"Our Enemies never fail to take advantage of intestine divisions & confusion. It is probable this induced the French at this time to attempt the Conquest of New York. Mr. Smith has given an account of this, from Charlevoix; but he has omitted to inform us of an Instruction given to the Count de Frontinaic, in case of success, which may be of use to the people to know. viz The French King ordered that all the Inhabitants should be driven out of the Country, Papists only excepted, who would swear allegioece to the King of France.

"Mr. Smith tells us that Coll Slaughter, the first Governor of New York after the Revolution, was utterly destitute of every qualification of government, licentious in his Morals, Avaritious & poor.
 Who can read this Character without thinking that it is greatly exaggerated? . . . Colonel Slaughter may well be thought weak, in having been prevailed on, while in liquor, to order the execution of a person whom he had resolved to have relieved till their Majesty's pleasure should be known, as I have been told he was resolved; but this is no proof of licentiousness of his Morals. Nor is there any thing in the History of New York to prove his Avarice. . . ."

"Mr. Smith's Character of Colonel Fletcher is that He was by Profession a Soldier, a man of Strong passions, & inconsiderable agents, very active, & very avaritious. I find several instances in the History of New York, which shew that Col. Fletcher pursued the Interest of his Country with zeal & activity; & I discover no want of talents, unless it be, that he seems not to have Studied much the art of cajoling an assembly; & this Mr. Smith might have excused, by his being bred a Soldier, had Mr. Smith any inclination to excuse any Governor. But I cannot discover the least instance of his Col. Fletcher's avarice. . . ."

"While Col. Fletcher was Governor, the Inhabitants of New York carried on a Trade to Madagascar, while that Island was frequented by Pirates. Many likewise of the Pirates came & dispersed on Long Island & round Delaware Bay. They brought a great quantity of Gold with them. When I came first to America, in the year 1710, no payments were made without a considerable part in Chickens or Arabian pieces, the scarce one of them be now to be seen. Several of the now principal families, I have been told, took their first rise from their commerce with the Pirates, some of them by Gaming. However it has been often remarked, that none of the Pirates made any use of their money to any real advantage to themselves, except one Jones, who settled on the South side of Long Island, whose son made a remarkable figure as Speaker of the Assembly, while Mr. Clinton was Governor: excepting this one, no remains of the others are to be discovered.
 That Col. Fletcher was really concerned in this commerce no where appears, so far as I know, or have heard. It would have been very difficult for him to have put a stop to it with his utmost in-deavour, where there are so many harbours, under the inspection

July 5

16

- of no officer, & where the temptations to concealment were so strong. . . .
- "I intend to remark no farther on Mr. Smith's Character of any Governor, because what I have wrote I think sufficient to shew how far his Characters are to be depended on. Notwithstanding of what I have observed, it does not follow that he has willfully & maliciously caluminated them. The force of early prejudice, from a narrow education, a weak Judgement & a stubborn temper of mind are sufficient to account for these & many more absurdities in such kind of writers. How differently, at all times, do different Sects & parties think & speak of the same actions. The truth often is hid between them, & neither of them discover it. . . .
- "I intend to make no farther remarks on Mr. Smith's History, till I come to the time in which I had opportunity to be well informed of the public transactions; only before I leave the subject I have been upon, I cannot forbear taking notice of that assuming air which these Independents take upon them, in Judging & condemning others, and in setting up for Patriots. This they know gives them authority among the gaping mob, . . . In place of argument, I think, it may be better to set the colony of New York, in its worst state of Government, while it was under the despotic rule of the Duke of York, in contrast with the Colony of the Massachusetts Bay, while it was entirely under the Government of genuine independent republicans, that we may see how much reason these modern independents have to boast. . . .
- "In New York a general liberty of conscience was allowed; not the least appearance of persecution on religious matters. In the Massachusetts Bay none but Independents were allowed the common privileges; all others were persecuted, either driven out of the country or severely whipt, & some put to death. . . .
- "In New York Mr Smith allows that Justice was speedily administered, the people remain'd easy & quiet in their possessions, & very few law suits any where, except in those parts which were peopled from New England. In the Massachusetts Bay, on the contrary, it is known, that the people were exceedingly litigious, on every little difference at law. Offences were multiplied by Positive Laws, restraining the innocent freedom & pleasures or diversions usual among men. A man was whipt at Boston who accidentally meeting his wife in the street, after long absence, kissed her. By this unnecessary restraint on our natural freedom, Hypocrisy was unavoidably introduced among all ranks. By these unnatural restraints a kind of Intusiasm prevailed in Boston, which, if it had not been restrained by the Kings Authority, had gone near to have unpeopled the Country, by the numerous prosecutions & Executions on pretense of Witch Craft. . . .
- "Lastly New York generally was at peace & in amity with the Indians and its neighbours; But New England was almost perpetually at War with the Indians, & at variance with its neighbours. . . .
- In closing, Mr. Colden gives discerning definitions of tyranny and of bigotry. The letter was published in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1869), 203-11.
- William Smith, whose well known work, The History of the Province of New-York, was published in 1757 (q. v.), replies to a letter he has received from Mrs. Farmer, a granddaughter of Jacob Leisler. He has chanced "to fall under the Displeasure" of Mrs. Farmer because of what he has written about her grandfather. He says he cannot hope to assuage her grief, but assures her that his account was "collected from the most authentic Materials . . . the original Letters and Papers of Mr Leisler & Mr Milbourne most of which are still in my Custody. The Facts asserted are indisputable and if my Observations upon them are not well founded I am sure they were not owing to any Brief in Favour of Mr Leisler's opponents for I had always a good Opinion of his Heart and Desires in setting up for the Prince of Orange and if there was not the greatest Prudence used by that Party it must be ascribed in a great Degree to the Confusion & Heat of the Times."—From a copy of the letter among the original Smith Papers (MSS.) in N. Y. Pub. Library. In a note to his revised work, History of the late Province of New York from its Discovery to the Appointment of Governor Colden in 1762 (pub. in 1829), I: 389-90, Smith printed the act reversing the attiaider (see May 3, 1695), a copy of which Mrs. Farmer had enclosed in her letter.—N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1868), 240.
- "Since our last the Troops that arrived here from Guadaloupe Yesterday Week, have embark'd on board of Sloops, in order to proceed to Albany, and so on.—Most of the Sloops have proceeded forward."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 23, 1759.
- Fort Niagara capitulates to the British under Sir William Johnson after a bloody battle. French communication between Canada and Louisiana is forever broken off.—Parkman, Montcalm and Wolfe, II: 242-49, and authorities there cited.
- The French garrison retreats from Fort Ticoderoga to Crown Point at the approach of Gen. Amherst. Later, they abandoned the fortress at Crown Point, and surrendered the valley of Lake Champlain without a battle.—Parkman, Montcalm and Wolfe, II: 235-42, 249-58, and authorities there cited.
- John Tabor Kempe is appointed attorney-general and advocate general in place of William Kempe, deceased.—Cal. Coun. Min., 446.
- Gen. Wolfe is checked in an impetuous assault on the French at Quebec, in which he loses 400 men.—Parkmen, Montcalm and Wolfe, II: 227-34, and authorities there cited.
- In August, petitions were made, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the following privateers: the brigantines "Charming Molly" and "Earl of Loudoun," the sloop "Elizabeth and Mary," and the ship "Eagle."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 704.
- News arrives at New York of the taking of Fort Niagara by Sir Wm. Johnson on July 24. A public celebration is accordingly held.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 6, 1759.
- News arrives at New York of the evacuation of Crown Point by the French on July 31.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 6, 1759.
- The provincial council learns that Crown Point has been occupied by Gen. Amherst, the French having destroyed and deserted the fort.—Cal. Coun. Min., 446.
- The title of Weyman's New-York Gazette (see Feb. 16) is changed to The New-York Gazette.—Early Newspapers, II: 423. See June 10, 1765.
- "Since our last Seven Sloops arrived here from Albany, with the Prisoners taken at Niagara by General Johnson, on board, amounting in the whole to 617 . . . And we hear, that two Sloops with 200 of the private Men, are to sail this Day for Norwalk, in Connecticut, in order to be distributed in that Government: Some of the Officers are sent to Long Island, and the rest remain, as yet, in this City, with the remaining Part of the Privateers, who are quartered in our Barracks, and proper Guards plac'd over them."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 20, 1759.
- Newly arrived French prisoners from Niagara are sent to Suffolk County. The week before, prisoners taken at Niagara were distributed to New Jersey, Connecticut, and counties of New York.—Cal. Coun. Min., 446.
- Gen. Amherst having sent for more cannon, the council orders Christopher Blundell to deliver them to Capt. Glegg of the artillery.—Cal. Coun. Min., 446.
- William Weyman, owner of The New-York Gazette (see Early N. Y. Newspapers, II: 423), is commissioned as public printer.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 704.
- The British army under Wolfe, having scaled the heights at Quebec, attacks the French under Montcalm on the Plains of Abraham and defeats them decisively. Wolfe is killed and Montcalm mortally wounded. The city surrendered to the English on Sept. 18.—Parkman, Montcalm and Wolfe, II: 259-326, 438-42, and authorities there cited. Great Britain won a vast empire by this single battle, which Bancroft calls "one of the most momentous victories in the annals of mankind." See Oct. 12.
- In September, petitions were made, on this day and the next, for commissions for the commanders of the privateer sloops "Relief" and "Hope," respectively.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 704-5.
- Israel Desoway is paid £262 "for Building a New Dock at the Out side of the Great dock."—M. C. C., VI: 181.
- At the suggestion of Gen. Amherst, the council orders that a proclamation be issued encouraging people to return to their settlements, etc.—Cal. Coun. Min., 446.
- A proclamation is issued for the arrest of William Heysham, master of the snow "Spedwell" of New York, for high treason, in giving comfort to the enemy.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 705.
- At the request of Gen. Amherst, the governor and council summon the assembly to make provisions for continuing the New York provincials in the service.—Cal. Coun. Min., 446. This was enacted on Oct. 18.—Ibid., 447.
- The council issues another warrant to Bancker and Dies (see 1759 June 8, 1757) for expenses in connection with the fortification Sept. (Cal. Coun. Min., 442); and again on Aug. 29 (ibid., 446), and Oct.

27 11, 1759 (ibid., 447).

Oct. In accordance with the act of July 3, 1759 (q. v.), regarding the 1 transfer of prisoners from the city hall to the new jail, the common council ordered on Sept. 19 that this should be accomplished before Oct. 1.—M. C. C., VI: 181-82. After this date, the city hall ceased to be used by the sheriff, or as a prison. For an outline of the history of the new jail, later known as the "Provost Jail," see March 1, 1757.

4 The common council gives orders for grading and paving Dey Street.—M. C. C., VI: 185-86, 190, 191-92. For other regulations of this street, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 997.

8 "To be sold, a House and Lot of Ground situate in the Broad-Way, at the Corner of the Spring Garden, now made use of as a Tavern, having the Sign of the King of Prussia, and next Door to Dr. Johnson's. It is two Story high, has five Fire Places, and 8 square Rooms in it, and a large Cellar Kitchen, with proper Cellars and Conveniences for Liquors. The House is 29 Feet Square, and the Lot 70 Feet deep. For further Particulars enquire of John Dowers. The Title is indisputable."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 8, 1759.

11 One of John Dies' accounts for work on the battery, barracks, and fort, at New York, bears this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 705.
" In October, petitions were made, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the following privateers:
the sloop "Harlequin" and "Nicholas," and the brigantines
"Rebecca," "Quebec," and "Catharine."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 705.

" Thomas Davis offers a reward for the return of a run-away slave to his house, "The Sign of the Harlequin at the White-Hall Slip."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 1, 1759. No other reference to this house has been found; it probably was a tavern. At this time, Capt.
Thomas Doran, commander of a fast-sailing privateer, the "Flying Harlequin," was also proprietor of a tavern. In 1768, his house, which stood on Burnet's Quay, fronting the East River, was offered for sale.—ibid., July 11, 1768. In 1770, the "house of Thomas Doran" was the "New Dock," near the Fly Market. Doran was still keeping tavern on Jan. 8, 1776, when the Marine Society held its annual meeting at his house.—ibid., Jan. 8, 1776.

12 To celebrate "the Success of his Majesty's Arms at the Battle of Quebec the 13th of September last, between General Wolfe and Mons. Montcalm, and, in Consequence thereof, of the Surrender of that Capital," the cannon on Fort George are fired.
The shipping in the harbour continues firing most of the afternoon;
colours are displayed, and at night the city is extraordinarily illuminated, "Besides two large Bonfires erected on the Commons, the one by the City, the other ('tis said) by the Company of Hatters."
—Parker's Post-Boy, Oct. 15, 1759.

16 The provincial council meets at the house of Edward Willet.—
Cal. Coun. Min., 447. See Feb. 16; and Oct. 17.

17 On account of the small-pox in town, the assembly again meets (see Dec. 6, 1757) at the house of Tunis Somerdyck, in the Bowery Division of the Out Ward.—Assemb. Jour., II: 603-4.
It adjourned the next day, and also from time to time thereafter until Dec. 4, when it reassembled in the same place, and continued its sessions until Dec. 24.—ibid., II: 615. Its next session was held here from March 11 to 22, 1760 (ibid., II: 615, 620); and again on May 13 and 14 (ibid., II: 620-21). Sessions began again in the city hall on May 15, 1760.—ibid., III: 621.

18 The provincial council meets briefly at Fort George to secure action by the assembly to continue the New York provincials in the service.—Cal. Coun. Min., 447.

26 John Morin Scott is made special attorney by the common council to file a bill in chancery for the city against the executors of the late Mayor Holland for the fees received by him for licenses granted to retailers of strong liquors during his mayoralty.—
M. C. C., VI: 190. His executrix, Mrs. Holland, filed the account with the board on Feb. 23, 1762, showing a balance due the city of £416:17:10, and she was ordered to pay this amount to the treasurer.—ibid., VI: 283-84. For the number of licenses granted, see April 18, 1749.

In the case of Mayor John Cruger, the younger, on Jan. 13, 1763 (q. v.), the corporation exercised its declared right of control and of disposition of fees from liquor licenses by granting him a specified portion.

31 The final plan for regulating Dey Street is adopted by the common council, the work to be finished by Nov. 15, under penalty of a fine for neglect.—M. C. C., VI: 191-93. The first order for grading and paving this street was over 10 years before (July 11, 1749); and the committee to survey the ground reported, April 26, 1750, showing their proposed descending grade from Broadway to the river.—ibid., V: 265, 290-91. See also Landmark Map Ref.

Key, III: 997.

Nov. There is advertised to be sold a dwelling-house, bake-house, and lot, "in Crown Street, commonly called Oswego Street."— 5 N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 5, 1759. For the origin of the name Oswego Street, see De Vos, Market Book, 271. See also July 2, 1766.

6 The meeting of the common council is held "at the Dwelling House of Samuel Francis in the West Ward."—M. C. C., VI: 193.
This was at the Mason's Arms Tavern, on the corner of Broadway and Warren St.—See March 19, 1759.

9 In November, petitions were made, on this day and the 19th, for commissions for the commanders of the privateer sloop "Postilion" and the packet ship "South Carolina."—Cal. Hist. MSS.,
Eng., 706.

10 The king's birthday is celebrated. "At half an Hour after Twelve o'Clock, the Royal Salute was fired from the Cannon on Fort-George; the Grenadiers, who were under Arms that Day, had, at their own Expence, a large Ox roasted whole, on the Banks of the North-River, with which they made Merry; . . . a deal of Fireworks play'd off near Mr. John Marshall's; his House hand-somerly illuminated, where his Majesty's and many other Loyal Healths were drank by his Honour our Governor, and other principal Gentlemen of this City."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 12, 1759. John Marshall's house was the "Old Bowling Green."—See March 29, 1738.

19 St. Andrew's Society meets at the house of George Buras, the sign of the Thistle and Crown, near Whitehall Slip.—N. Y. Post- Boy, Nov. 19, 1759. The anniversary meeting of this society was again held here in the next year, but in the interim the sign had been changed to "King George's Head."—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 17, 1760.

20 Benjamin Blagge is appointed manager of the excise on tea in New York City, in place of Abraham Lynsen, deceased.—Cal.
Coun. Min., 447.

22 Lieut.-Gov. De Launcey, writing to the lords of trade on Feb.
16, 1760, said: ". . . the 22<sup>d</sup> of November last was observed here, as a Day of Publick Thanksgiving, on the Success of His Majesty's Arms, by Prayer in the Morning, Firing of the Guns at Fort George at Noon, a Grand Dinner I gave to the Council, Assembly and principal Inhabitants, at which were present the whole Clergy of the several denominations in the City, and the Evening was concluded with Illuminations and Fire Works prepared for the occasion."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 426.

Dec. In December, petitions were made, beginning on this day, for commissions for the commanders of the sloop "Salley," the brigantines 5 "Polly" and "Charming Beckey," the schooner "Fly," and the ship "Hibernia."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 706.

6 In a message to the assembly, De Launcey refers thus to the existing law governing private lotteries: "And here it may be proper to point out to you, a Defect in the Act against private Lotteries, for though the Law be sufficient to restrain them in this Government, yet it seems to fall short of the End proposed, as it leaves this, a Mart for the Lotteries set on Foot in other Provinces."
—Assemb. Jour., II: 604; Ross, "Hist. of Lotteries in N. Y.," in Mag. of Hist., V: 148.

11 The assembly presents an address to De Launcey, in answer to his speech containing news of British victories at Ticonderoga and Crown Point. Special mention is made of Gen. Wolfe, "who with an almost unparalleled Disinterestedness has sacrificed his Life to the public Weal."—Assemb. Jour., II: 607. At some time between this date and 1762 (curiously enough it has not proved possible to fix the exact date), a monument to Wolfe's memory was erected in New York City. It appears on the Montresor Map and the Ratzel Map of 1766.—See Pls. 40 and 41, Vol. I, and description of A. Pl. 5-b, Vol. III. For more particular mention of this monument, see 1761; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 964, title "Obelisk Erected to the Memory of General Wolfe and Others."

30 An account of moneys expended by the province of New York, in carrying on the war in North America, from 1754 to 1759, inclusive, bears this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 706.

M. Pouchot, French commandant of Forts Niagara and Levis, and subsequently transported as an English captive to France via New York (see Oct. 6), in memoirs published at Yverdon in 1781, described New York as it was in 1760. Translated, his observations are as follows:

"The city is thrifty and quite commercial, and every one has an easy air. There are about fifteen or eighteen thousand souls.

"The principal harbor which is on the side towards Long Island, is always full of merchant ships which come and go continually, and there are usually two hundred and fifty or three hundred in port. Vessels of more than thirty guns cannot anchor there. It is a little deeper on the Hudson Riverside, yet it is much less frequented, because it is not there sheltered from the south winds. The bars that we meet near Sandy Hook, doubtless would prevent vessels of the greatest force from coming up the river.

"At New York they have coast pilots, for conducting vessels from Sandy Hook to the city, for which the charges are very high. Along the quays of this city, they have constructed piers to receive the vessels which come up directly to the shore, and unload by planks or flying bridges.

"This city is not fortified, and has only a citadel at the point of the two passages. This is square, and about sixty toises on the outside, revetted in good masonry, without ditch or covered way. It is well fortified with cannon. At the front, which is on the point of land, they have built upon some notches in the rocks, a wall twelve feet thick, which forms an intrenchment and a kind of false-braye to the citadel, when they have ninety pieces of cannon in battery, of from twelve to twenty-four pound balls. The platforms are all of large flat stones. These pieces are mounted on marine carriages, and sweep not only the bay, but a small island used as a hospital for the Quarantine."—From Memoir upon the Late War in North America between France and English, by M. Pouchot, translated by Franklin B. Hough, II: 84-86.

The following is found in a descriptive account of New York: "In the province of New-York [outside of Manhattan Island], to obtain a good title to the vacant lands, first there must be produced an Indian deed, which must be approved of by the governor and council, by warrant; it is surveyed by the provincial surveyor, and patented by the governor and council; the fees are very high."

"The valuations of the several counties may be taken from the quotas allowed each of them, in proportion to their respective taxes, when paper money was emitted upon loan; for instance 1738, they emitted 40,000 l. currency upon loan, whereof To New-York city and county 10,000 l. . . ."—From A Summary, Historical and Political (1760), by William Douglass, M.D., II: 254.

"Here is a court of chancery, a court not known in New-England; the governor is chancellor . . ."—Ibid., II: 257.

Copper ore, from Schuylers' mine in New Jersey, is shipped from New York.—Ibid., II: 258.

The earliest streets to be identified by number rather than by name were designated at about this time as First, Second, and Third Streets, shown on "The Ratter Map" (Pl. 41, Vol. I). Valentine (see Man. Com. Coun., 1855, p. 499) says they were "projected about 1760." They do not appear on the Maerschalck Plan of 1755 (Pl. 34, Vol. I). They are shown but not named on "The Montresor Plan" of 1766 (Pl. 40, Vol. I). The numbers were displaced by the present names, Chrystie, Forsyth, and Eldridge (heroes of the war of 1812), on March 24, 1817 (q. v.). See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 999, 1009, 1010.

Capt. Archibald Kennedy erected his spacious and famous mansion on the site of No. 1 Broadway at about this time.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 950. For a history of the plot, see Aug. 26, 1756, and dates there cited; for ground-brief, see Aug. 25, 1644.

The "Minutes of the estate of Philip & Stephen Van Cortlandt Esqrs<sup>r</sup> dec'd 1760" mention houses and lots in Stone St., "fronting the Exchange," also on Broadway, in De Peyster St., at the dock "behind the Treasurers," etc., and the names of those who rented them.

The original is with Miscellaneous MSS., N. Y. Hist. Soc. "The first lease from Trinity Church of property along Broadway which is found recorded, bears date in 1760, and was for four lots on the south-west corner of Murray street; the lessees were Bell & Brookman, carpenters; the term, twenty-one years, and the rental eight pounds per annum."—Man. Com. Coun. (1865), 547.

The domestic establishment of Abraham de Peyster, who lived in a three-story brick house, has been described by Valentine to illustrate the style of living among the wealthiest merchants at this period. Two leather-bottomed sofas were in the entrance hall. Mahogany and black walnut furniture, brasses, china, sconces, etc., are listed as distributed throughout the various rooms of the establishment. The best bed-room, which was on the second floor, was called the "wainscot-room." On this floor also was the "tapestry-room," so called from the old tapestry it contained, which had been preserved in the family. The house contained, besides the usual living rooms and bed-rooms, an office, an apple-room, a garret, and a wine-cellar. The stable, in the rear of the yard, contained a chaise, a two-horse sleigh, and a one-horse sleigh. The family plate presented an array of solid silver dishes, salvers, tankards, bowls, and a variety of other articles, weighing 1,272 ounces and valued at about $2,000.—Man. Com. Coun. (1858), 522-23.

From this date until 1764 Matthew Pratt occasionally painted portraits in New York. Colden was one of the prominent people who sat for him.—Dunlap, Hist. of Arts of Design, I: 114. For a history of Pratt's life and work, see ibid., I: 110-16.

Secretary Powall writes to Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey: "His Majesty's postmaster General, having represented to the Lords Commiss<sup>r</sup>s for Trade and Plantations, that the packet Boats, established for carrying on a correspondence between these Kingdoms and His Majesty's Colonies in North America, have frequently been detained considerably longer at New York, than the time allotted them to stay there, which is twenty days, . . . I am directed by their Lordships to recommend it to you, never to detain the packet Boat in return to sail, longer, than may be absolutely necessary for His Majesty's service, and especially when there are two or more Packet Boats laying at New York."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 419-20.

Secretary Pitt urges the governours in America to persuade their various assemblies to raise at least as large a force of men for the Canadian campaign as they did last year.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 420-21. See Feb. 16.

The committee appointed on May 11, 1758 (M. C. C., VI: 131), "for inspecting into the Incroachments made upon the Rights of the Corporation in the Outward," makes its report. They "have Caused Several Surveys to be made of a Number of Patents Contiguous to the Commons in the Out ward." The surveys which they have hitherto caused to be made have been chiefly confined to "that Tract of Land Surrounded by the Bowery Lane and Bloomandale Road the Road leading thence to the great Kills, The Road from the Great Kill to Greenwich Lane and the Greenwich Lane on its Extent from the Great Kill Road to the Bowery Lane," within which extent of ground several patents are included on which the present owners have made encroachments. These encroachments and the persons who have made them are enumerated and described in the report. They include "the Weylandt Patent;" second, an encroachment made by Peter van Orden; third, an unpatented "Vacancy" (belonging to the corporation) in the possession of "Antie Covenhoven Thomas Clarke and the Representatives of Sir Peter Warren on the one Side and John Dewit and Jacobus Horne on the Other;" and fourth, another "Vacancy," in the possession of Jacobus Horne. On the discovery of these "Vacancies," the committee reports, they "Convened" the various persons concerned, and demanded "what Terms they had to Offer to us in Behalf of this Board Concerning the same." Their replies are embodied in the report.

The committee further reports that it will determine by exact survey "the Stale [old] Controversy Between mr abraham Lefterre and John Dewor Concerning the Lands Belonging to this Corporation lying Between their Respective Tracts and the Road;" also that they are of the opinion that an ejectment suit ought to be brought against Dennis Hicks and those claiming under him, who have held a house and land in defiance of the board for several years; and that David Provost should be "Ejected by Course of Law" for holding over on a corporation lease and committing "great waste on the premises by Cutting down the Orchard and pulling Down the Dwelling house" and "destroying the wood."

The committee asks for instructions on certain points, and the common council orders that certain leases be made, and that Alderman Scott be given warrant of attorney to prosecute certain actions of trespass and ejectment.—M. C. C., VI: 198-202. For location of the roads and lanes, see Landmark Map Ref. Key (title, "Streets"), III: 992 et seq.

- 1760 "A Subscription some Days ago was set on foot, and carried
Jan. on with such Spirit throughout the several Wards in this City, for 21 the Benefit of the Poor thereof, that a very considerable Collection was soon made, and, by our worthy Magistrates, immediately laid out for the Relief of the Poor, in Wood, &c. all the Necessaries of Life, at this Time, being at a much higher Price than was ever known in this City."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Jan. 21, 1760.
- 30 It being represented to Trinity vestry "that the Pantiles on the Roofe of St Georges Chappell are too weighty for the Roofe and Walls of the said Chappell," it is ordered "that the said Tiles be removed and sold and the Roofe shingled."
- "Mr Robert Cromelin having Imported a Clock from Europe at his own Expence which he has offered to this (Trinity) Corporation at the prime Cost and it being accepted," a committee is appointed to have the clock placed in St. George's Chapel.—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- Feb. Whipping "at the Cart's Tail" (see Aug. 28, 1696) is still in 8 vogue. Four prisoners, convicted of petty larceny by the court of general sessions and possessed of "no Goods & Chatties," are sentenced to "be tyed [tomorrow] to a Cart's Tail and carted round part of the City and to receive each Thirty Nine Lashes upon their & each of their Bare Backs in manner following to witt five s[ic] [sic] Furmans Corner, five at the meal market five at the old slip market five at the Coenties market five at the Long Bridge five at John Livingston's Corner, five at Deals Corner and four at City Hall."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 1732-1762; N. Y. Merc.,
Feb. 11, 1760.
- 11 Frequent robberies at night show the inefficiency of the watch.—
Parker's N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 11, 1760. See Feb. 8, 1762.
- 13 The mayor having produced the draft of "a Law to prevent Raifing in the City of New York," it is approved by the common council and ordered published. It recites that "the Vending and disposing of goods, and Other things by way of Raifing, or otherwise, that determines and alters the property of goods, or other things, by lott or Casting the Dye," have proved pernicious,
"Especially in Corrupting the morals of Children, Apprentices, Servants and Slaves, and the Occasion of their Stealing, Pilfering and Robing their parents, masters or mistresses, and by often Doubtly advancing the value on such goods, or other things Beyond or above the real or Intrinsic Value." To prevent this, it is ordained that any person or persons so vending or disposing of goods, etc., "or by any other method . . . depending on, [to] be determined by lott or Chance," shall pay a forfeit of £5, "to be Recovered by any person or persons that shall and Will Sue and Prosecute for the same," one-half of this sum, when collected as prescribed in the law, "to be paid to the Church Wardens of this City, for the Use of the Poor thereof, and the other half or Moiety to the person or persons that shall sue."—M. C. C., VI: 204.
- 16 Gen. Amherst requires the same number of men for the ensuing campaign as in 1759 (see March 7, 1759).—Cal. Coun. Min., 447.
See March 22.
- 21 "Ordered that a Petition be preferred to the Mayor Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New York for a Grant of the Water Lots from the Rear of their Ground fronting on Hudsons River (Between the south bounds of their said Ground adjoining upon Division Street [the present Fulton St. west of Broadway] and the Stockadoes) to Low Water Mark and from thence two Hundred feet into the said River beyond Low water mark Excepting thereout nevertheless the Ground and Streets included in a Grant made by this Corporation to the Governors of the Colledge . . ."—Trin. Min.
(MS.).
- 25 John Burling advertises for sale the wind-mill "in the Out-ward of this City, near the Bowery-Lane." It has "two Pair of Stones, and is in good Repair."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 25, 1760. See also the references to various wind-mills in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 961.
- 26 The Mayor informs the common council "that Mr Watts and Others had sent for a Large Clock which they intended as a publick one, and desired of him to propose to the Common Council that if they would Take Charge of it, and Erect it in the Exchange at their own Expence it was at their Service." The board agrees to accept it.—M. C. C., VI: 206. John Watts was one of the original subscribers to the "Exchange."—See June 10, 1752.
- " "The Rector and Inhabitants of the City of New York in Communion of the Church of England as by Law Established" (Trinity corporation) petition the common council for a grant of "All the Land and Soil fronting their Land on Hudsons River from the North side of Division Street [same as Partition or W. Fulton St.]
to the Ground Granted to the Governors of the Colledge and from the North side thereof to the Stockadoes to Low water mark and the Soil Under the water from thence Two hundred feet into the said River upon such Reasonable Conditions as to this Corporation shall seem Meet." A committee is appointed "to Treat with the said Rector," etc., and make report "with All Convenient Speed."—M. C. C., VI: 206. No report of this committee is entered in the Minutes. Nine years later, April 7, 1769 (q. v.), the same petition was presented to the common council and another committee was appointed with the same instructions (ibid., VII: 159), and with the same result. On June 16, 1772 (q. v.), when the same petition was again presented, the board took it into consideration without referring it to a committee. See June 22, 1772.
- The location of the Meal or Wall St. Market is shown by an advertisement of this date, which reads: "To be sold at public vendue . . . a large and convenient dwelling-house, with the lot of ground thereunto belonging, on the corner of Wall Street and Queen [Pearl] Street, opposite to the Meal Market, near the Merchants' Coffee-House, now in the occupation of Mr. Daniel Bright."
—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 3, 1760. See also Landmark Map Ref.
Key, III: 959; DeVoe, Market Book, 247. See further, Aug. 4.
- Again, on account of the small-pox in town, the assembly meets at Somerdyck's house in the Out Ward.—Assemb. Jour., II: 615.
See also June 2 and Oct. 17, 1759.
- In an address to the assembly, Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey communicates the substance of Sec. Pitt's instructions (see Jan. 7), and then adds: "You must be so fully sensible that the Safety and Welfare of America, and of this Province in particular, are so nearly concerned in this Event that I cannot entertain the least doubt, but that you will proceed with the utmost Application and Dispatch, in this promising and decisive Crisis, and by speedy and vigorous Resolutions, enable me to have the Troops of this Province, in Readiness to attend the Commander in Chief, as early as it shall be practicable for him to begin his Operations."—Assemb. Jour., II: 617.
- The Baptist meeting-house is opened for worship.—Greenleaf, 14
Hist. of the Churches, 226. See 1728, and May 2, 1802. The site of this edifice, which is now covered by Nos. 35 to 43 Gold St., had been purchased and the corner-stone of the church laid in the preceding year (1759).—Greenleaf, op. cit. Although the congregation had come here from the "Anabaptist" meeting in Cliff St., which was the earliest church of this denomination in the city, the Gold St. meeting became known as the First Baptist Church. For later landmark history, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 928; see also Life of Spencer Houghton Cone, by his son (N. Y., 1856), 265-69.
- From this time until 1803, the promoters of the "Free Bridge" 21 (see Jan. 2, 1759) made several vain attempts to recover from the government the amount of their investment. On March 21, 1760, in a petition to the house, Jacob Dyckman, Jr., John Vermillie, and Benjamin Palmer, stated that they had erected the bridge at a cost of £830, and received but £530 in private subscriptions. They, therefore, now ask permission to raise the balance "by way of Lottery, or otherwise."—Assemb. Jour., II: 619. No action was taken; and on Dec. 7, 1763, Palmer and his associates again submitted their petition to the house, this time suggesting that a toll be allowed on all traffic across the bridge.—Ibid., II: 734. Once more the matter was pigeonholed until October 4, 1764, when the petitioners again sought reimbursement.—Ibid., II: 763. On October 12, the same house voted to reject the petition. Colonel Phillippe, whose monopoly at Kingsbridge had been broken by the erection of the "Free Bridge," voted against giving aid to Palmer.—Ibid., II: 767. For further attempts on the part of the builders of the bridge to regain their money, see Aug. 6, 1766, March 5, 1767 and April 18, 1769.
- On March 19, 1803, a committee of the assembly made the following report regarding the petition of Benjamin Palmer: "It appears from statements made by the petitioner, that a number of individuals with the petitioner, built a bridge across the Harlem river, in the year 1759 [1758], by subscription; and that the petitioner paid $500, more than his proportion, which sum with legal interest to this day, amounts to $1,800, which the petitioner prays may be paid him, either by a state tax or lottery. Your committee conceive that it would be improper to grant the prayer of the petitioner." The assembly also refused to grant the request.—Senate and Assemb. Jour. (1803), 216-17.
- The legislature passes an act for "levying Paying and Cloathing" 22

- 1760 2,680 soldiers, including officers. Forces from neighbouring colonies, combined with this New York contingent, will make an army of Mar. 20,000 "to Reduce in Conjunction with his Majesty's Regular 22 Troops Montreal and other Posts belonging to the French in Canada." Provision is also made for emitting bills of credit for £60,000 and for cancelling the bills in short periods. This amount is to be "Levied and Paid by the Freeholders, Inhabitants and Residents in the several Cities and Counties within this Colony during Eight Years" according to definite proportions. The yearly quota for New York City is £2,500.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 398, 418.
- 31 A private sale is advertised as "a very commodious house and Lot of Ground, situate in the Broad-Way, next Door to the Rev. Dr. Johnson's, being in Front and Rear 20 Feet, and in Breadth 32 Feet, two Stories high with 4 Fire-places in it, and a Cellar under the whole House. . . For further Particulars, enquire of Mr. John Dowers, who will give a good Title for the same."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 31, 1760. See Feb. 6, 1758.
- " The provincial council receives a letter from Gov. Pownall of Massachusetts, addressed to Lieut.-Gov. De Lancey, reporting that a fire has destroyed part of Boston (on March 20—see Boston Post-Boy, March 24). It is ordered that the assembly be asked for a grant to the sufferers, and that collections be made for their relief.—Cal. Coun. Min., 448-49. See June 10.
- Apr. Francis Maerschalk, one of the city surveyors, delivers to the 1 common council his report of a survey he has made "of the Road Leading to Bloomsdall Road," containing the following description:
 "Beginning at the North East Corner of Sir Peter Warrens Land [at the junction of the Abington and Bloomsdalle Roads.—
 21st St. and Broadway] Runing from the Corner of said Land North Eleven Degrees and Forty five minutes, East Above Ten Claims to the junction with the Old Post Road], from thence North fourteen Degrees [easterly] to the East side of a Large Split Rock in the Middle of the Road About One hundred Yards, to the north ward of Peter Van Ordens house." This house, which is shown on Pl. 86, Vol. III, stood on the west side of the road, south of 31st
 St.—Liber Deeds, XXXVIII: 307 (New York) ibid., XLII:
 64. The board accepts the report with the amendment "that the Road there to be made be four Rodds wide and done at the Expence of this Corporation," but afterwards repaired "by the Inhabitants of said Bloomsdall Division."—M. C. C., VI: 209; Man. Com.
Coun. (1862), 519. The road had been completed before Sept. 29, on which date payment "for Finishing the Bloomsdall Road as far as Peter Van Nordens" was ordered by the common council.
 —M. C. C., VI: 224. Prior to the changes covered by this survey, the Bloomsdalle Road had been very crooked at this point.
- May The King's College building is so far completed that the officers and students begin "to Lodge and Diet in it."—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 26, citing "the records." Pres. Johnson moves in and commences housekeeping, "a little over forty years after he had first done the same in the College at New Haven."—Ibid., 25, citing Chandler's Life of Johnson. The building, called King's College, in accordance with the terms of the charter (see Oct. 31, 1754), in honour of George II, was surmounted by an iron crown, which is still preserved by Columbia University—a witness to its royal foundation.—Ibid., 26. See also July 13.
- 2 Gen. Amherst, on embarking for Albany, is "saluted with the Canon on Fort George." Gen. Monckton sets out for Philadelphia.
 —N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 5, 1760.
- 5 "The 2680 effective men [see March 22], ordered to be raised by this Province for the approaching Campaign, are very near completed; and 'tis thought that within 8 or 10 Days, they will all be ready to proceed to the General Rendezvous at Albany."—
N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 5, 1760. See May 26.
- 19 A "Company of Rangers, independent," arrive in the city from New Jersey, on their way to Albany. "They are a Set of the likeliest healthy sturdy young Men that perhaps has met together for the Purpose during the War; and we make no doubt but that they'll convince the World they were not idly put together."—N. Y. Gaz.
 (Weyman), May 26, 1760.
- 20 An account of John Martin, for work done on the Copsy battery since July 28, 1759, bears this date.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng. 711.
- 26 News arrives in New York of the French attack on Quebec (April 26-28), and their repulse by the English troops under Gov.
 Murray.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 26 and July 7, 1760.
- " All the Forces raised in this Government [see May 5] are gone to Albany, under the Command of Col. Le Roux, of the 1st, Corsa
- of the 2d, and Woodhull of the 3d Regiment. Captains of the three companies out of this City and County, were Hubbell, De Forest and Burnes."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 26, 1760.
- A newspaper advertisement mentions "Benjamin Keats, at the Sign of the King of Prussia, in the Fields."—N. Y. Merc., June 2, 1760. This tavern, which stood at the present 253-254 Broadway, had been formerly run by Philip Kuyck. See April 5, 1754.
- The remainder of the "Cork Fleet (being six Sail)" arrives here,
 "loaded with Provisions, Stores, &c."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 9, 1760.
- The province, through an act of the legislature, contributes £2,500 to the relief of the sufferers in the recent fire in Boston, when 200 families were rendered homeless.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 454; Assemb. Jour., II: 621. In large measure this money came from citizens of New York City, and is an early indication of the broadly benevolent spirit shown in later years under similar circumstances.
- An act is passed "to regulate the Practice of Physick and Surgery in the City of New York." It is enacted (because "many ignorant and unskillful Persons in Physick and Surgery in order to gain a Subsistence do take upon themselves to administer Physick and practice Surgery in the City of New York to the endangering of the Lives and Limbs of their Patients"), that every person desiring to practice as physician or surgeon must be first examined and admitted before receiving a certificate. Jurisdiction in this matter is given to members of the council, judges of the supreme court, the attorney-general, and the mayor of New York City.—Col. Laws
N. Y., IV: 455-56.
- Payment is made "for sundry nights watches in the Steeple of the City Hall" from April 15 to May 13, 1760.—M. C. C., VI: 214.
 "Watching at the City Hall" was a matter of record twenty years before (July 28, 1741)—Ibid., V: 23.
- Francis Maerschalk delivers to the common council "the Draft or plan of a Road which he hath lately Laid out by the direction of this Corporation in the west ward of this City." It is thus described: "Beginning from the Spring Garden House [Broadway and Ann St.] where the street now is of the Breadth of Eighty Two feet six Inches, and Extending from thence North Thirty seven Degrees, East Thirty Minutes, Until it Comes to the Ground of the Late Widow Rutgers [Broadway, Church and Thomas Sts.] Leaving the street thereof Fifty foot in Breadth." The report is approved and ordered recorded.—M. C. C., VI: 214. The street was called Great George Street in 1775.—See "Broadway" in Landmark Map
 Ref. Key, III: 994-95, and description of Pl. 36-b, i: 278-79.
- The committee of the common council which had charge of the regulation and paving of Dey St. (see Oct. 31, 1759) in the West Ward, is required "to cause the Broad way Street from said Dey street as far as Division [now Fulton] Street on Both sides to be furth-with Regulated and paved, and Report the same to this Board with All Convenient speed."—M. C. C., VI: 214. They made no report, however, until July 24, 1761 (q. v.), when they recommended a specified grading for the convenience of buildings already erected on Division (Fulton) St. This was ordered to be executed.—Ibid., VI: 254.
- "We have now but two Privateers, on a Cruise out of this Port, viz. The Ship Duke of Cumberland, and Sloop Harlequin [see Aug.
 26], which has been on Foot from the Beginning of the War, and most of her Cruizes remarkably successful."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman),
 June 16, 1760.
- The first commencement of King's College in its own building is held.—Hist. of Columbia Univ., 26. A published account states:
 "On Tuesday last [June 24], a publick Commencement was held in this City. In the Morning the College Hall was opened with a short and elegant Latin Speech, by the Rev. President; from whence the Students and Candidates, dressed in their Gowns, and uncovered, proceeded to St. George's Chapel, followed by the Governors of the College, and other Gentlemen. . . . The Audience on this Occasion was large and polite, and expressed a great Satisfaction at the Order, Decency and Judiciousness, with which the whole was conducted."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 30, 1760. See also July 13.
- Andrew Burnaby, an English clergyman, traveling through the middle colonies, makes the following observations on New York.
 From Staten Island, "I embarked for New-York; and, after a pleasant passage over the bay, which is three leagues wide; and various delightful prospects of rivers, islands, fields, hills, woods, the Narrows, New York city, vessels sailing to and fro, and innumerable porpoises playing upon the surface of the water; in an evening so serene that the hemisphere was not ruffled by a single cloud, arrived there about the setting of the sun.

1760
July

"This city contains between two and three thousand houses, and 16 or 17,000 inhabitants, is tolerably well built, and has several good houses. The streets are paved, and very clean, but in general they are narrow; there are two or three, indeed, which are spacious and airy, particularly the Broad-Way. The houses in this street have most of them a row of trees before them; which form an agreeable shade, and produce a pretty effect. The whole length of the town is something more than a mile; the breadth of it about half an one. The situation is, I believe, esteemed healthy; but it is subject to one great inconvenience, which is the want of fresh water; so that the inhabitants are obliged to have it brought from springs at some distance out of town. There are several public buildings, though but few that deserve attention. The college [see May, 1760], when finished, will be exceedingly handsome: it is to be built on three sides of a quadrangle, fronting Hudson's or North river, and will be the most beautifully situated of any college, I believe, in the world. At present only one wing is finished, which is of stone, and consists of twenty-four sets of apartments; each having a large sitting-room, with a study, and bed-chamber. They are obliged to make use of some of these apartments for a master's lodge, library, chapel, hall, &c. but as soon as the whole shall be completed, there will be proper apartments for each of these offices. The name of it is King's College.

"There are two churches in New York, the old, or Trinity Church, and the new one, or St. George's Chapel; both of them large buildings, the former in the Gothic taste, with a spire, the other upon the model of some of the new churches in London. Besides these, there are several other places of religious worship; namely, two Low Dutch Calvinist churches, one High Dutch ditto, one French ditto, one German Lutheran church, one presbyterian meeting-house, one quakers ditto, one anabaptists ditto, one Moravian ditto, and a Jews synagogue. There is also a very handsome charity-school for sixty poor boys and girls, a good work-house, barracks for a regiment of soldiers, and one of the finest prisons I have ever seen. The court or stadhous makes no great figure, but it is to be repaired and beautified. There is a quadrangular fort, capable of mounting sixty cannon, though at present there are, I believe, only thirty-two. Within this is the governor's palace, and underneath it a battery capable of mounting ninety-four guns, and barracks for a company or two of soldiers. Upon one of the islands in the bay is an hospital for sick and wounded seamen; and, upon another, a pest-house. These are the most noted public buildings in and about the city."—Burnaby, Travels through the Middle Settlements in North-America (London, 1775), 105-8.

"The people carry on an extensive trade, and there are said to be cleared out annually from New York, near [blank] ton of shipping. They export chiefly grain, flour, pork skins, furs, pig-iron, lumber, and staves. Their manufactures, indeed, are not extensive, nor by any means to be compared with those of Pennsylvania; they make a small quantity of cloth, some linen, hats, shoes, and other articles for wearing apparel. They make glass also, and wampum; refine sugars, which they import from the West Indies; and distil considerable quantities of rum. They also, as well as the Pennsylvanians, till both were restrained by act of parliament, had erected several slitting mills, to make nails &c. But this is now prohibited, and they are exceedingly dissatisfied at it. They have several other branches of manufactures, but, in general, so inconsiderable, that I shall not take notice of them; one thing it may be necessary to mention, I mean the article of shipbuilding; about which, in different parts of this province, they employ many hands."—Ibid., 110-11.

"Arts and sciences have made no greater progress here than in the other colonies; but as a subscription library has been lately opened, and every one seems zealous to promote learning, it may be hoped that they will hereafter advance faster than they have done hitherto. The college is established upon the same plan as that in the Jerseys, except that this at New York professes the principles of the church of England. At present the state of it is far from being flourishing, or so good as might be wished. Its fund does not exceed 10,000 l. currency, and there is a great scarcity of professors. A commencement was held, nevertheless, this summer, and seven gentlemen took degrees. There are in it at this time about twenty-five students. The president, Dr. Johnson, is a very worthy and learned man, but rather too far advanced in life to have the direction of so young an institution. The late Dr. Bristow left to this college a fine library, of which they are in daily expectation."—Ibid., 112-13.

"The inhabitants of New York, in their character, very much resemble the Pennsylvanians; more than half of them are Dutch, and almost all traders: they are, therefore, habitually frugal, industrious, and parsimonious. . . . The women are handsome and agreeable; though rather more reserved than the Philadelphia ladies. Their amusements are much the same as in Pennsylvania; viz. balls, and sleighing expeditions in the winter; and, in the summer, going in parties upon the water, and fishing; or making excursions into the country. There are several houses pleasantly situated upon East river, near New York, where it is common to have turtle-feasts: these happen once or twice in a week. Thirty or forty gentlemen and ladies meet and dine together, drink tea in the afternoon, fish and amuse themselves till evening, and then return home in Italian chaises, (the fashionable carriage in this and most parts of America, Virginia excepted, where they make use only of coaches, and these commonly drawn by six horses), a gentleman and lady in each chaise. In the way there is a bridge, about three miles distant from New York, which you always pass over as you return, called the Kissing-bridge; where it is a part of the etiquette to salute the lady who has put herself under your protection."—Ibid., 113-14. See also Winsor, Nar. & Crit Hist. of Am., V: 245, 284; VIII: 489.

John Riker and others (over sixty persons are named), inhabitants on both sides of Burling's Slip in the East Ward, complain in a petition to the common council that, "Notwithstanding the good Intention of making or Leaving that space for a slip Called Burlings slip and the Erection and Building a market house there at the head of said slip," such purpose has failed, as the slip and market are almost totally disused "by Boats and Other water Crafts which Commonly apply to and attend market places;" that "the said slip and market house have Become more a Common Nuisance to the publick than a Convenience and Advantage by the Cattle of this City Sheltering and lying in the said market house and Idle people, Boys and Negroes spending their Masters Time by playing and Gaming and that the said slip by the Filth of higher parts Descending by force of Rains is in a Great Measure filled up so that Scarce any Craft but Very small can be Conveyed within several Rods Distance from the said market house, and that such Filth and dirt at many times and Generally in the Warm Season are Nautious and Offensive as well to the health of those Living Contiguous to the same as to such as Frequently pass and Repass." They further complain "that the Docks or wharfs on each side of the said slip are so narrow that when foot people meet Carts passing there it is Dangerous for them." This is especially true of "the dock or wharf on the west side of said Slip which has a Considerable descent from the walls of the houses to the Slip," so that "in Icy Times, it is with much Difficulty and Danger Both for Carts and Carriages as well as People on foot to pass. All which Obstructs a Communication and Negotiation of Business of the Residents and Others Between the Coffee house and Beekmans." The petitioners ask that the slip be filled up or that a foot-bridge be made across it.—M. C. C., VI: 215. This petition is opposed by a petition "of Sundry Persons Owners and Proprietors of Real Estates Lying in Queens Street," offered at the same meeting, and a hearing is ordered.—M. C. C., VI: 215-16. On Oct. 30, it was ordered that the Slip "be filled up and a Common Shoal [Shore?] made at the Expence of this Corporation."—Ibid., VI: 228. On Aug. 13, 1761, payment was made "for Filling up Burling Slip and Causing a Drain to be made and finished there."—Ibid., 258-59. The original petitions (MS.) are in the record-room, city clerk's office.

The market at Burling's Slip was never a popular one, as may be inferred from the foregoing petition. It had been standing for about 14 years, this being the market-house erected "in Rodman's Slip," by permission of the common council of Feb. 28, 1746 (q. v.). Rodman's Slip had been previously known as Lyon's Slip on the Lyne Survey of 1730 (Pl. 27, Vol. I). The market at Burling's Slip is referred to in an advertisement of Samuel Browne's in the Gazette of June 1, 1752.—"at Burling's Slip, near the new market." For the various changes in the name of this slip, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 988. The market ceased to exist about 1760.—De Voc, The Market Book, 279.

Nearly eighty of the "Soldiers taken Prisoners by the French

—

4

9

- at Quebec, the 28th of April" (see May 26), arrive in New York to be exchanged.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), July 14, 1760.
- 13 Rev. Samuel Johnson, president of King's College, writes to the Archbishop of Canterbury of having lately held a Commencement (see June 24), "when six were graduated Bachelors none having, till next May, sufficient standing for Masters." He describes the college building thus: "Our house, all at present intended, is now near finished, and is a very neat & commodious building, 180 feet in length by 30, 3 Stories in a very delightful Situation near Hudson's river, opening to the Harbor. This is designed for one side of a Quadrangle, to be carried on, and completed in time, as we shall need and be able."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 440-41.
- 28 A committee of Trinity vestry is appointed "to have a Cupolo Erected and a Bell hung upon the Charity School House."—Trin. Min. (MS.). The school stood on the south side of Rector St.; it was burned, Feb. 23, 1759 (q. v.), and rebuilt the same year.
- " "Our Army at Crown-Point, consisting of 5000 effective men, were all well the last Account we had from thence, and in high Spirits, and supplied with all Sorts of Necessaries in great Abundance."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), July 28, 1760.
- 30 Lieut.-Gov. James de Lancey dies suddenly. His funeral on the following day was thus described in the Mercury: "At three Quarters past Six, P. M. his Majesty's Ship the Winchester, of 30 Guns, . . . now in the North-River, fired a Gun for the Funeral to move, which was done from his Honour's Seat in the Bowery Lane. At the same Instant Minute Guns began firing from Copey Battery, and continued to 57, the Number of his Age. The Battery was followed by the Winchester, and she by the General Wall Packet, each firing the Same Number with the Battery." The order of procession to Trinity Church is fully described.—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 4, 1760. For sketch of his life, see N. Y. Post-Boy, July 31, 1760; Man. Com. Coun. (1864), 575; "Memoir" by Edward F. de Lancey, in Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4th ed.), IV: 627-39; Smith's Continuation of the Hist. of N. Y., in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1836), V: 281-83. For an account of his estate, see Man. Com. Coun. (1866), 584-85; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 949.
- Cadwallader Colden, as oldest councillor, is summoned by express messenger to administer the government.—Cal. Coun. Min., 448.
- 31 "James Parker & Co." is the imprint appearing on the issue of the Post-Boy of this date.—See Early N. Y. Newspapers, II: 427; and "Bibliography of Am. Newspapers," by Brigham, in the Am. Antiquarian Soc. Proceedings (1917), XXVII (N. S.): 417. Parker's partner was John Holt.—See Paltiss, "John Holt, Printer and Postmaster," in N. Y. Pub. Library Bulletin, Sept., 1920.
- Aug. 4 Cadwallader Colden, who arrived in town yesterday from his home in Coldenham, Ulster Co., is sworn in as president of the council and commander-in-chief; the seals are delivered to him and he takes the chair. He issues a proclamation giving notice of the death of Gov. De Lancey, and continuing all public officers in their places.—Cal. Coun. Min., 449; N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Aug. 4, 1760; N. Y. Merc., Aug. 11, 1760. Colden was several times called upon after this to serve as lieutenant-governour of the provinces; namely, from Aug. 8, 1761 to Oct. 26, 1761; Nov. 13, 1761 to June 14, 1762; June 28, 1763 to Nov. 13, 1765; Sept. 13, 1769 to Oct. 19, 1773; and April 7, 1774 to June 28, 1775. He died at Flushing, L. I., Sept. 21, 1776.—See Chronology, under these dates.
- " Payment of £43,005 is made by the common council for repairs made to "the metal Markett and the Dock and Drain there."—M. C. C., VI: 217. See, further, Feb. 23, 1762.
- 11 Colden invites Gen. Amherst to share the house within the fort with him. He proposes that the general have "all that part of the House on the left hand of the Stairs, or North part of the House, which contains all the large rooms, with the kitchen & Rooms over the Kitchen & likewise the two Rooms on the first floor where M<sup>r</sup> Appy kept his office. The other small rooms on the right hand above stairs will be sufficient for my family, with the Room on the first floor on the right hand of the stair case for a Kitchen."—N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1876), IX: 7. See Sept. 22.
- 26 The privateer sloop "Harlequin" (see June 16) arrives at New York. She "has made a saving Cruise, having taken 7 Prizes. She was chased by a Ship about the Lat. 37 or 38, but did not think proper to speak with her."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Sept. 4, 1760.
- 27 Inhabitants who live or own lots "adjoining to the Street which extends from the Market in the Broadway to the North River" petition the common council that this street be regulated, by lessen-
- ing the declivity and filling up the street at the lower end, near the slip, which at present is rendered of little value.—From petition (MS.) in city clerk's record-room, endorsed "Read and filed Aug<sup>t</sup> the 27th 1760."—M. C. C., VI: 219. Another petition in the same handwriting, accompanying this and undated, asks for the regulation "of the Street (leading from the North River to the Oswego Market) Commonly called Crown [Liberty] Street." Crown St. was regulated ten years later, Sept. 14, 1771 (M. C. C., VII: 315).
- The "Detachment of the Royal, and Col. Montgomery's Regiment of Highlanders" arrive in New York from South Carolina.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Sept. 1, 1760. See Oct. 16.
- Capt. Prescott, aid-de-camp to Gen. Amherst, brings to New York "An Account of the Success of his Majesty's Army, under General Amherst, in the River St. Lawrence."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Sept. 8, 1760. See Oct. 6.
- The French surrender Montreal to the English forces under Gen. Amherst. New York received the news on Sept. 17.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Sept. 17, 1760 (postscript). See Oct. 23.
- " A Ship bound to Virginia, from this Port, it is said, has been chased into the Hook by French Privateers."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Sept. 8, 1760.
- The following notice is published: "This is to inform the Public, that a Free School is opened near the New-Dutch-Church [Nassau St. between Cedar and Liberty], for the instruction of 30 Negro Children, from 5 years old and upwards. . . . which School is entirely under the Inspection and Care of the Clergy of the Church of England in this City. . . . N. B. All that is required of their Masters or Mistresses, is, that they find them in Wood for the Winter. Proper Books will be provided for them gratis."—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 15, 1760.
- Colden writes to Gen. Amherst: "Coll. [Oliver] De Lancey came to me this morning and informed me that he had made your Excellency an offer of his House in Town. . . . I have told Mr De Lancey that with his leave I would go into his house & leave the house in the Fort for your Excellency where you can be better accommodated than any where in Town & the other house is in every respect sufficient for my family."—Colden Papers in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1876), IX: 22.
- " The Gazette prints an account of the "Proceedings of the Army under General Amherst," from Aug. 10 to the reduction of Montreal.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Sept. 22, 1760.
- 25 "James Rivington, Bookseller, from London, has this Day opened a Store at the House of the late Doctor Ascough in Hanover Square. . . . He has brought with him a very large Quantity of Books in most Languages, Arts and Sciences . . . and a fine Assortment of Books for Schools and Country Stores, to be sold by Wholesale or Retail."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 6, 1760.
- Oct. 1 In a letter to John Whitlock in London, John Thurman says: "I have the pleasure to assure you James Rivington is Indefatigable in his business, & will not give himself time to go to a weekly club, & finds business enough to employ every moment of his time he declares he is contented & well satisfied as ever he is. . . . he is held in much esteem & look'd upon as a very useful man, & I believe will soon be a Rich man.—From "Extracts from the Letter Books of John Thurman, Jr.," in Hist. Mag., 2d ser., IV: 284.
- 6 "A few days since arrived here from Albany, the Prisoners (amounting to about 300) that were taken at Fort-Levi, on Isle Royale, in the River St. Lawrence, with their Commander, Mons. Pouchet" (Pouchot—see 1760).—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Oct. 6, 1760. On Oct. 1, the council ordered that they be quartered on Long Island.—Cal. Coun. Min., 450.
- 10 A committee of the common council is appointed "to prepare the Draft of an Address to his Excellency Gen<sup>l</sup> Amherst for his Success in the Reduction of Canada;" and it is resolved "that this Corporation Do present him with the freedom of this City, and that the Seal of this Corporation be Affixed thereto to be Enclosed in a Gold Box."—M. C. C., VI: 225. The draft of "an Address to his Excellency Jeffery Amherst Esq<sup>r</sup> Major General & Commander in Chief of all his Majesty's forces in North America," was submitted for approval on Nov. 24, and agreed to. It is an exceptionally eloquent and complimentary expression of the city's appreciation and gratitude, reciting Gen. Amherst's services "in Annexing the Extensive Country of Canada to his Majesty's Dominions in America," and in stopping depredations on the frontier which have checked "Husbandry" and reduced the production in this City of "its Staple." It sketches the circumstances and motives of the war against the Canadians, Indians, and French, and the success 1760 of the English; the extension of British dominion over new and Oct.

 10 productive territory; and the General's "Humane and Generous Use of Victory," which "must Convince the attentive World that Britons never Conquer to enslave." The draft of "a freedom" is also read at this meeting, and it is ordered that it "be handsomely Engrossed on parchment and the Seal of this Corporation affixed thereto to be Enclosed in a Gold Box" with an inscription in Latin engraved thereon, the text of which is recorded in the Minutes.
 The address and freedom were presented to Geo. Amherst on Nov.
 27.—Ibid., VI: 232-36, 237. The cost of the gold box was £27.—
Ibid., VI: 254.

14 The sundry branches of the city's revenue for the past year were: ferry rent, £650; dock rent, £500; licenses (for two years) £5240;33; rent of market stalls, £245; rent of water lots, £196;14:11;
 land rent, £122:18; Exchange rent, £50; total, £2888:12:4.—Jour. of City Chamberlain, III: 198. The fiscal year begins Oct. 14.—See Dongan Charter, April 27, 1686.

16 The companies of "Col. Montgomery's Highland Regiment" embark for Halifax.—N. Y. Gaz., Oct. 20, 1760. They arrived Aug. 31 (q.v.).

23 This day is appointed "for a general Thanksgiving to Almighty
 God, throughout this Province, for the Continuance of his Divine Presence and Blessing with the Forces of our most gracious Sovereign, and the Reduction of all Canada."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Oct. 20, 1760. See Col. Coun. Min., 449 (Oct. 1).

25 In the morning between seven and eight o'clock, "Our late most Gracious Sovereign, King George the Second, was suddenly seized, at his Palace at Kensington, by a violent Disorder, and fell down Speechless, and soon expired, notwithstanding all possible Methods used for his Recovery. His Majesty departed this Life in the 77th Year of His Age, and the 24th of His Reign; Beloved, Honoured, and Regretted by His Subjects for His Eminent and Royal Virtues."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Jan. 5, 1761; N. Y. Col.
Docs., VII: 449. Official notice of the king's death reached New York and was received by the common council on Jan. 1, 1761
 (q.v.).—See also Jan. 16, 1761. The new sovereign, King George III, reigned until Jan. 29, 1820.

"The old remarkable large Bass or Linder Tree facing Benjamin Stout's at the Entrance of the Bowery" is blown down.—N. Y.
Gaz. (Weyman), Oct. 27, 1760. "There was a merchant named Benjamin Stout, who lived at 6 Golden Hill when peace was declared after the Revolutionary War. Uncle Ben they used to call him."—Old Merchants of New York, III: 31.

26 John Thurman writes to John Sargent of London: "Our Good, therefore wise General [Amherst] is coming down tho' he has done all that can be done, & what none before him could do Success has crown'd all his undertakings, and he has restored Peace to this Land, without the Loss of many Men, he has secured the country he went thro' & restored safety to the Back Inhabitants, even in Times of Warr, tho' he has done this, & excluded the French from any commerce with the Indians, Relieved the Inhabitants from the Tyranny of the army, had a Strict eye to Justice, punishing all that were Faulty in the Army, as Civil Law dose in Government without respect to persons, after all this, many say more was in his power & he ought to have done it, & others as Ignorantly say all was done for him, & he has done Nothing, this shows the absolute Impossibility of Pleasing every Body, or Acting in a Publick Character without Blame. I hope those at the head of affairs may see & Reward his merit, and never give up the Great acquisitions, but annex them to the Crown, & Future Ages Bless the Man that's rooted out so noxious an enemy . . . The General has established
 New York Paper Money thro' all his conquests even to Quebec, this will be a Great advantage to this Government & a mighty support to the Credit of its money we dont know but war may Last another Year."—Hist. Mag., 2d ser., IV: 285-86.

27 "Last week a remarkable Tryal, which has been in the Law near 20 Years, came on in the Supreme Court here, between The Rector and Inhabitants of the City of New-York of the Church of Eogland, as by Law Established, and the Family of the Browsers, who sued for 62 Acres of the King's Farm; when the Jury after being out about 20 Minutes, gave their Verdict in favour of the Defendants."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 27, 1760. See Aug. 10, 1747.

28 From "Our Court at Saville House," the king addresses the following letter to Cadwallader Colden, "or in his Absence to the Commander in Chief of Our said Province for the time being:"
 "George R.

"Our Will and Pleasure is, and We do hereby Authorize and impower you to make Use of the Publick Seal made use of within Our Province of New York in America, during the Life time of Our dearest Grandfather, the late deceased King, for sealing all things whatsoever that are used to be sealed therewith, until another Seal shall be prepared and transmitted to Our said Province duly Authorized by Us. And for so doing this shall be Your Warrent."—

 From original letter among Colden MSS., in N. Y. Hist. Soc.

A committee of the common council is appointed "To Treat with Mr Henry Van Vlack Concerning the Rent of the Pott Bakers House Belonging to this Corporation near the Negroes Burying Place."—M. C. C., VI: 228. On Dec. 10, three lots were leased to Sarah and Eve van Vlack, on the representation of their brother Henry van Vlack, a merchant, who stated that "their Father Built a Pottling House pot oven and Sunk a Well Supposing at that Time the said Lands were his property."—Ibid., VI: 238.
 "Pot Baker's" is shown on Pl. 58-b, Vol. I.

It is ordered by the common council that "the Neighbourhood of Crown Street Slip have Liberty to Lay a Stone Wall a Cross said Crown Street Slip."—M. C. C., VI: 228.

The "Lords of the Privy Council" order that King George III (see Oct. 25) be proclaimed at New York (see Jan. 1, 1761). On Jan. 16, 1761, the order was read in council, and on the 17th the proclamation was published at the fort and city hall. The original order is preserved in the Emmet Coll., item No. 10728. This was done according to a form sent to Colden. On Feb. 28, he sent a printed copy of the proclamation to the lords of trade, in his report of the event, which he stated was conducted "with all the solemnity that could be in this place."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 458.

Postage amounting to 35 shillings was charged on two tracts accompanying a letter sent from New York by Rev. Dr. Johnson, president of King's College (see July 17, 1754), to the archbishop of Canterbury, at Lambeth Palace. It was considered exorbitant by the recipient, who advised Johnson "to wait a little for opportunities of sending books."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 448.

Francis Brown is found guilty in the court of general sessions of "Feloniously Stealing & Carrying away from out of one of the Stage Boats (see Aug. 28, 1770) Six Dozen pair of Stockings, and is sentenced to be "whipped Thirty Nine Lashes upon the naked Back by the Common whipper."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace
(MS.), 1732-1762.

The assembly thinks it necessary "that the Laws of this Colony, passed since the 25th of November, 1751, should be revised, digested and collected, in one Volume, and that a General Index be made and added to the same." As William Livingston and William Smith are willing to undertake the work for £100, the assembly resolves that, upon its completion by them, "this House, will at their Next Meeting thereafter, provide Ways and Means, for paying them the said Sum."—Assemb. Jour., II: 644. On May 16, 1761, the assembly decided that if Livingston and Smith would include also in their work all the laws passed since the resolution ordering the revival, they should be paid "in the same Proportion, they were to be paid by the said Resolution."—Ibid., II: 661. A similar provision was made on Jan. 5, 1762.—Ibid., II: 688. The laws were published in 1762 (q.v.), and payment for the work was made on Dec. 20, 1765 (q.v.). The laws passed from 1688 to 1751 had been printed by James Parker. See Nov. 24, 1750.

A legislative act is passed to "enable the Mayor Recorder and Aldermen of the City of New York . . . to order the raising a Sum not exceeding Five hundred Pounds by a Tax on Estates Real and Personal in the said City." The extra tax was necessary on account of the "expence of finishing the new Goal Purchasing the Island commonly called Bedlows Island and Building a Pest house thereon together with the heavy expence of Firewood and other necessaries for His Majesty's Troops Quartered in this City."—
Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 506-8. Four hundred pounds was the amount which the treasurer of the colony was ordered to pay to the president of His Majesty's Council for "providing fire wood and Candles for His Majesty's Garrison in fort George, in the City of New York," for one year ending Sept. 1, 1761.—Ibid., IV: 472. On Dec. 31, 1761, it was again necessary to raise money (£700), because the "expence of providing the Barracks belonging to this City with Fire-Wood Candles Bedding and other Necessaries for accommodating His Majesty's Forces Quartered within the City of New York has proved much greater than was expected, by which means the City is become greatly in Arrear."—Ibid., IV: 576-78.

This being the king's birthday (and the news of his death, on Oct. 25, not yet having been received), the cannon on Fort George

- are fired " and other Demonstrations of Loyalty and Joy shewn."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Nov. 17, 1760.
- "A general Assortment of European and India Goods suitable for the Season" is advertised for sale at the store of Robert and Richard Ray, "in Smith-street, near the Old Dutch-Church."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 17, 1760. Smith (William) St., was at this time one of the several retail shopping districts of the city.
- 26 Gen. Amherst arrives in the city. He is "saluted by the Cannon on Fort-George," and soon after "waited on by the principal Gentlemen of the City."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Dec. 1, 1760. On Nov. 27, he received from the corporation an address, unusual in its fervour. "The invaluable Services" of the general "in Annexing the Extensive Country of Canada to his Majesty's Dominions in America" are emphasized in the opening lines. Whereas numerous frontier settlements, "abandoned to the Relentless fury of an insatiate foe were soon Reduced to dismal and Undistinguished Ruin," and this city "famous for its Staple," now "The Peasant may Return in Security to his Fields; Husbandry will soon Revive; the face of nature smile with the Blessings of peace; and this Flourishing City rejoice in the Plenty of its Markets. This surprising Change we attribute with the most humble Gratitude to the paternal Care of our most gracious Sovereign in appointing Your Excellency to Conduct his Victorious Armies in America. . . . But, Sir while so Remarkable an Event will ever Fail to Furnish the most ample Testimonials of Your Military Accomplishments, the ingenious mind must at the same Time receive a peculiar Satisfaction from the Contemplation of an other part of Your uncommon Character; we mean your Humane and Generous Use of Victory. . . . Your Compassionate Treatment of the Vanquished Canadians must appear most Singularly amiable. To Require of a disarmed yet Implacable Foe whose Inhumanities have deserved the Severest Strokes of Vindictive Justice, nothing More than a quiet Submission to the Gentle Dictates of British Rule is indeed a Disinterested Virtue and must Convince the attentive World that Britons never Conquer to enslave. . . . Sir, that the God of Armies may Continue to Furnish your head with Wisdom, Your Breast with Fortitude and Your Arm with Strength; that he may Cover you as with a Shield and make you terrible to your Enemies in the day of Battle; that You may Long live to Enjoy the Gracious smiles of your Royall Master, the Greatfull acclamations of the British Nation and the peaceful Eulogiums of an approving Conscience: that Your name may Be Rememberd With Thankfulness by the Latest Posterity; and that You unwearied Labours for the publick Welfare may meet with their due Rewards here, and an unfading Crown of Glory hereafter; are the Earnest Wishes and Desires of Your Excellency's most obed<sup>t</sup> humble Servants." At the same time he is presented with the freedom of the city, with seal enclosed in a gold box.—M. C. C., VI: 23-25. He replied: "It Gives me very particular pleasure that the Success of his Majesty's Arms in the Reduction of Canada has Contributed so much to the Happiness of the people of this Continent, and it is my most hearty Wish that this City may Reap all the advantages it Can desire from this Conquest, and that it may prosper and flourish to the Latest time."—Ibid., VI: 237.
- Dec. 1 An advertisement reads: "Maps, Plans, Coats of Arms, Shop Bills, Monthly Returns, and other Engravings neatly done on Silver, Copper, &c. with Care and Dispatch, at all Sorts of Copper Plate Printing done in the best Manner, at reasonable Rates, at Anthony Lamb's at Sir Isaac Newton's Head, in New-York."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 1, 1760. As Henry Dawkins lodged with Anthony Lamb (see Nov. 17, 1755), Lamb "may have been an employer of engravers, rather than an engraver himself. No engraved work signed by Lamb is known."—Stauffer, Am. Engravers on Copper and Steel, I: 155.
- 5 Augustus Bradley writes from the "City Hall Jail, N. Y." to Gen. Amherst, informing him of the illicit trade between New York and the West Indies, and describing the ill-treatment he received from Aldermen Livingston and Bogart for exposing it.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 717. On Dec. 10 and 12, Bradley sent Colden lists of the vessels engaged in the illicit trade to Hispaniola.—Ibid., 718. For depositions relating to this subject, see ibid.
- 1761
- "should begin at least from the year 1761."—The Life and Works of John Adams, IX: 462. Cf. Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., VI: 15.
- The number of homes in the city is 2,737.—Banker MSS. in N. Y. Pub. Library.
- The earliest public monument recorded in the history of the city was probably erected this year. This was a stone "obelisk" in memory of General Wolfe and others on a site near the north-west corner of Eighth Ave. and 14th St., which was at that time the property of Oliver de Lancey. Because of the latter's very great interest in the hero of Quebec (see Dec. 11, 1759), it has generally been supposed that the funds as well as the site were donated by De Lancey himself.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 964. Cf. "The Wolfe Monument at New York" in Am. Scen. & Hist. Pres. Soc. Report (1914), 121-26. In this account the theory is advanced that De Lancey, who adhered to the side of the king during the Revolution, took measures for the removal of the monument, in 1783, when he went away to England with the evacuating British army. The facts that the monument is not shown on the Banker survey of the lands of Sir Peter Warren in August, 1773, and that the road is called "Old Greenwich Lane" instead of "Road to the Obelisk," appear to indicate its removal prior to that date, and to controvert Dr. Hall's theory.—See plate description, III: 866.
- A newspaper advertisement of July 12, 1762, gives this interesting description of a model of the De Lancey estate including the Wolfe monument: "This is to inform the Gentlemen and Ladies of this City, That there is just brought to Town, and to be disposed of . . . a most curious Piece of Work, representing a Country Seat, with the Chapel, Summer House, Flower Gardens and Grottos belonging to it; also a Monument in Memory of General Wolfe, on the Top of which is the Image of Fame, below which are the Ensigns bearing the English Standards; in the Body of the Piece is the Corps on a Couch, at the Foot of which is Minerva sleeping, at the Head is Mars, pointing to General Amherst, who stands at a small Distance, as meaning, Behold a living Hero, with other Pieces too tedious to mention . . . The whole is inclosed in a Glass Case."—N. Y. Merc., July 12, 1762. See also N. Y. Hist. Soc. Quarterly Bulletin, Oct. 1920. The monument is shown on Pls. 40 and 41, Vol. I, and it is possible Du Simitiere's faint sketch portrays it in A. Pl. 4, Vol. III (note the tiny outline near the city hall to the right). It does not appear on Pl. 42, Vol. I, as stated in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 964. See also plate description, III: 863.
- Hugh Gaine publishes A List of His Majesty's Land Forces in North-Am., with the Rank of the Officers in the Regiment and Army. It also shows the colours of the regimental uniforms. Although it is not dated, the year 1761 is the latest date appearing on any of the officers' commissions. There is a copy of this list preserved in the N. Y. Pub. Library.
- The council is notified officially of the death of King George II (see Oct. 25, 1760). "The new king is not to be proclaimed until the necessary papers have been received from England."—Cal. Coun. Min., 451. See Jan. 16.
- 2 It is resolved by Trinity vestry "that the Church and Chappell be put in Mourning on Account of the Death of his late Majesty King George the Second."—Trin. Min. (MS.). It is also resolved to raise £500 for a new organ.—Dis. Hist. Trin. Church, I: 296.
- The Gazette contains the following: "the Gentlemen, and most of the Inhabitants of this, City, entered into Mourning for the Death of our late most gracious Sovereign George the Second; when it was observed with great Reverence and Decency.—The several Churches in Town were hung in Mourning, and Sermons preached in each of them suitable to the Occasion;"—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Jan. 12, 1761.
- 16 Orders are received from the lords of trade "to proclaim George III., to use the old seal, to make change in the prayer for the royal family," and to continue "former officers in their places."—Cal. Coun. Min., 452.
- 17 About twelve o'clock, the new king, George III., is proclaimed at Fort George king of Great Britain, France, and Ireland. The proclamation is read, accompanied by the discharge of the royal salute, after which Cadwallader Colden, the president of the council, the governor of Georgia, the mayor of the city, and various other officials and gentlemen of the city, escorted by military companies, marched in procession up Broadway to the city hall, where the proclamation was again read while cheers were given and the royal

- 1761 salute repeated. The procession returned to the fort where healths Jan. were drunk and further salutes fired. It is noted that, "not with-17 standing the Severity of the Weather, the Whole began and concluded with great Order and Decency."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Jan. 19, 1761. See also Cal. Coun. Min., 452.
- 26 An advertisement reads: "William Clajon, in order to satisfy those Gentlemen and Ladies, who desire to be taught the French Language grammatically, and with a true Pronunciation, having, according to his Proposals, been examined at the College in this City, by the Revd. Mr. Carle, Minister of the French Church, and the Revd. Mr. Testart, another French Minister, in Presence of the Revd. Doctor Johnson, President of the College, and fully satisfied them of his Capacity; intends this Day to open his School, at the House of Mrs. Boskirk, two Doors from the Coffee House, in Dock Street. . . .
 "He takes no Children; his design being to perform within Six Months, what he promises to do, viz. to give a true Pronunciation to his Scholars, to enable them to translate French into English and English into French, so as to fit them to improve afterwards without any other Help, than the Method he will advise them to take.
 He therefore undertakes to teach no others, but such as are both willing and capable of Improvement, and is determined not to sacrifice his Honour and Character, either to the Caprice of Children, or to the Lavishness of some Parents."
 "He has compiled a Compendious Grammar of the English Language for such Gentlemen and Ladies as are unacquainted with Grammar."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 26, 1761. Clajon later (see May 19, 1766) established his school in close conjunction with the French Church.
- Feb. More than the usual amount of exposure to public ridicule is 4 involved in the punishment imposed on one Edward Dillow by sentence of the court of general sessions. After being "put into a Cart and carted round the City," he received 29 lashes at the whipping post. He was then confined for some additional days, but brought forth for 39 additional lashes before receiving his discharge.
 —Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 1732-1762.
- 5 An advertisement in the Post-Boy reads: "To be sold at a very reasonable rate, by Samuel Francis [see Jan. 15, 1762], at the sign of the Masons' Arms near the Green, New York, a small quantity of portable [potable?] soup, catched, bottled gooseberries, pickled walnuts, pickled or fried oysters fit to go to the West Indies, pickled mushrooms, a large assortment of sweetmeats, such as currant jelly, marmalade quinces, grapes, strawberries and sundry other sorts."
 —Parker's N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 5, 1761.
- Mar. Forty-three merchants of New York sign a memorial addressed 13 to Colden urging the necessity of a lighthouse at Sandy Hook (see Feb. 7, 1757). A loss of £20,000 by shipwreck within the last few months shows, they claim, that "more certain guide than Highland of Neversinks" is needed by mariners. They purpose also to build a pilot-house there and provide whale boats. The owner's demand, however, of £1,000 for four acres of "barren sandy soil"
 they therefore consider exorbitant.—See the original memorial, Emmet Coll. item No. 10759 in N. Y. Pub. Library. On March 23, the memorial was referred to the assembly.—Cal. Coun. Min., 452. A bill to raise £2,000 for the same by lottery was signed by Colden,
 May 19 (q. v.), but the drawings did not begin until June 14, 1763
 (q. v.). There is preserved in the Library of Congress a series of 22 wash drawings by Osanne, the official artist with the French fleet that visited our shores during the Revolution (see July 11, 1778).
 One of these drawings shows the fleet lying off the Hook, and the Sandy Hook lighthouse in the distance.
- 14 The council and assembly appoint a joint committee to draft an address condoling his Majesty, King George III, on the death of his grandfather, King George II, and congratulating him on his accession to the throne.—Assemb. Jour., II: 650.
- " Colden, by the king's orders, urges the assembly to provide for the raising two thirds of the number of men raised for the last campaign.—Assemb. Jour., II: 650. See March 26, for the assembly's action.
- " Notice is printed of a meeting of the governors of the college to be held on March 25 (q. v.) "at the house of Edward Willet, at the Sign of the New-York Arms."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), March 16, 1761.
- 17 The lords of trade propose to the king that Robert Monckton, Esq., "be appointed Capt. Gen<sup>l</sup> and Governor in Chief, Cadwal-lader Colden Esq<sup>r</sup> Lieu<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> and Benjamin Pratt Esq<sup>r</sup> Chief - Justice" of the province of New York. Monckton had been lieutenant-governour of Nova-Scotia. He and Colden received the appointment by order in council on March 20.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 460-61. Regarding Monckton's instructions, see ibid., VII:
 463-64.
- Francis Maerschalck makes a survey of the land at Greenwich 21 belonging to the heirs of Sir Peter Warren.—See the original with the Warren Papers (MS.), in N. Y. Hist. Soc.; see, also, May 26, 1762 and A. Pl. 5-b.
- " A fire which starts during the night "in a Block-House at the upper End of this City" is extinguished "without any other Damage than its total Reduction."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), March 23, 1761.
- Some New York merchants (not named) present a memorial to 23 the provincial council relating to a lighthouse at or near Sandy Hook; it is referred to the assembly.—Cal. Coun. Min., 452. See Mech. 13 and Apr. 3.
- Because of the small-pox in the city, an "Assembly Chamber" 24 is again established (see Dec. 6, 1757, and Oct. 17, 1759) in the house of Tennis Somersdyck in the Out Ward. Sessions continued to be held here until April 4 (Assemb. Jour., II: 650, 657), and again from May 5 to 19 (ibid., II: 657, 662). The assembly returned to the city hall on Sept. 1.—Ibid., II: 662. It was necessary to move again the following year (see May 19, 1762).
- Edward Willet is appointed steward of King's College. He is 25 to have the use of two rooms and a kitchen in the college, and such part of the garden as the president may allow; he is to keep the students' rooms clean and have their beds made, and provide for such as may choose to "diet with him" upon terms to be agreed upon. It is ordered by the college authorities that "the students Breakfast, Dine and Sup together in the College Hall, but that they be allowed no meat at their Suppers." The rent of rooms in the college building for students is fixed at £4 per annum. A committee, consisting of the Rev. Henry Barclay (rector of Trinity Church), the Rev. Samuel Johnson (the president), the Rev. Mr.
 Auchmuty, and Mr. John Livingston, is appointed "to settle the Rates that the students are to pay for their Diet." The rules established by the committee show weekly rates for one, two, and three meals a day (being 11s. a week for three meals a day); also the "Bill of Fare for Every Day in the Week."—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 27-28; and Moore, Origin and Early Hist. of Columbia College (1890). See March 16.
- The assembly resolves that inasmuch as his Majesty is about to 26 withdraw his regular forces in North America (see March 11, 1762), immediate provision should be made "for levying, paying, and clothing 1780 effective Men, Officers included, to be employed in securing the Possession of his Majesty's Conquests in North-America."—Assemb. Jour., II: 652. On March 27, the assembly resolved to allow £52,000 for the purpose.—Ibid., II: 653. On May 6, Colden complained that the new levies fell greatly short of the number provided for by the law passed at the meeting of the Assembly, and urged that the number be completed without delay.
 —Ibid., II: 658.
- "Nine French prisoners, "being the Remainder of the Garrison 31 of Fort Detroit," arrive at New York. Rumour says they are to be sent "to Jamaica on Long Island."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), April 6, 1761.
- In a message to the assembly, Colden says: "The Erecting a Apr. 3 convenient Building for a Light-House near Sandy-Hook is an Object so worthy your Consideration, and a Provision for it, so essential to the Welfare of our commercial Interests, and the Preservation of a very useful Part of the Community, that I cannot avoid recommending the Memorial I received on this Subject [see March 13] to your closest Attention."—Assemb. Jour., II: 655. A law for this purpose was passed on May 19 (q. v.).
- Cadwalader Colden, president of the council, gives his assent 4 to several acts which are published "in the usual Manner . . . without the Walls of the Fort."—Assemb. Jour., II: 657. Outside these walls, facing Bowling Green, was a usual and most conspicuous position for posting such bulletins.
- " A committee of correspondence is appointed to correspond with the agent of the colony at the court of Great Britain "concerning the public Affairs of this Colony."—Assemb. Jour., II: 657. See, further, Oct. 18, 1674.
- The anniversary feast of St. George is to be held "at the House 13 of James Elliott, at Corlear's Hook."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Apr.
 13, 1761. On Oct. 31, 1765 (q. v.), this tavern, which was owned by

- 1761 James de Lancey, was leased to James Ackland. Later (see Apr. 27, 1772) it was run by John Brandon and was called "Corlear's Hook Tavern." It can probably be identified as Campbell's tavern at Corlear's Hook, which was offered for sale or lease on June 9, 1777 (q.v.).
- 17 A wager of £50, "dependent on a Horse's going from Mr. Adam Vandenberg's to Kingsbridge and back again, in Two Hours and Ten Minutes, being 14 Miles and 3 measured," is decided. The horse covered the distance in one hour and 57 minutes.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman) April 20, 1761. Van Denberg was the proprietor of a tavern and garden at Broadway and Vesey St.
- 27 "Two Companies of the Men raising in this Province, for the ensuing Campaign, viz. Captain Byrns levied in this City and Captain Walter's levied in Richmond and King's Counties . . . are embarked on board Sloops; and will proceed directly to Albany. The Quota of Levies for the City and County of New-York is likewise very near compleat."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), April 27, 1761.
- May "The Men of War and Transports, lately preparing here to assist in some important Expedition against our common Enemy the French, fell down a few Days ago to Sandy-Hook, where they were left on Saturday last [May 2] all well, waiting for a fair Wind to push out. As the Wind yesterday Morning blew fresh from the Western Board, no doubt they took the Advantage of it."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 4, 1761.
- 8 According to a mortgage of this date given by John Marshall to Lawrence Read, the palisades and block-houses along the line of Chambers St. (see Pl. 34, Vol. I; Landmark Map, Pl. 174, Vol. III; July 6, 1745; Sept. 17, 1757) were still standing.—Liber Deeds, I: 211.
- 9 The members of the assembly pass a resolution refusing to increase the number of men which, on March 26 (q.v.), they ordered to be raised for the coming campaign.—Assemb. Jour., II: 660.
- 19 In accordance with its action of March 14 (q.v.), the assembly draws up an address to the king.—Assemb. Jour., II: 662-63.
- " An act of the assembly for raising by lottery a sum not exceeding £3,000 for the purpose of building a lighthouse at Sandy Hook (see March 13) is signed by Lieut-Gov. Colden.—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 1438. Additional funds were necessary to finish the work (see Dec. 11, 1762). The lighthouse was completed June 11, 1764 (q.v.).
- 22 Archibald Kennedy, Josias Brinckerhoff, and others petition the common council for "two Ferris Between this City of New York and the Island of Nassau the one of them from the present Ferry House on the said Island to Pecks Slip in this City and the other from the Land of Hendrick and Peter Remsen on the said Island to Coenties Slip in this City as also proposals of Hendrick Remsen and Peter Remsen Relating to the Same." Consideration of the petition is deferred.—M. C. C., VI: 247. On July 9, Peter Schuyler (3d) and others asked that they might be heard before such petition was granted; and they petitioned for "Liberty to erect and Build a peer from the Wharf of Colonel Peter Schuyler into the East River in order to make a more Safe harbour from thence to MF Crugers Wharf [see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 98] and also Easterly to Cromelien Wharfe upon the Same Conditions as the peer at Coenties was lately Granted." Consideration of this petition also was deferred.—Ibid., VI: 252. No further reference to either of these petitions appears in the Minutes. That a second ferry was not established at this time is shown by the fact that, in 1766, an application for a second one was again unsuccessfully made.—See Feb. 19, 1766.
- " The history of the proceedings begun on April 26, 1759 (q.v.), and renewed on May 21, 1754 (q.v.), to obtain grants of water lots at Hunter's Key (between Wall St. and Old Slip—see Pl. 47, Vol. I), is again revived when William Brownjohn, Rinier Skaats, and others, who are owners of houses and lots "fronting that part of the east River Commonly Called Hunters Key or Rotten Row," complain in a petition to the common council "that the Ground and Soil fronting their Respective houses and Lots of Ground" have become "Very Great nusances by Reason of the Filth that Floats there from the said River." That this condition led to the use, in jest, of the name "Rotten Row" may perhaps be the case; or, on the other hand, the commanding situation of this locality on the East River may have induced the residents there to borrow this aristocratic title from London. The neighbourhood was both residential and commercial. The petitioners ask on this occasion for a grant of the ground and soil "as far into the said East River as the present Wharfs on the East and west Sides do extend with the Benefit of Wharfrage on reasonable terms."—M. C. C., VI: 247. No further action is recorded in the Minutes regarding this petition at this time. "Rotten Row" was still a harbour for shipping.—See N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 17, 1760, advertising a sloop for sale, "as she now lies in Rotten Row, opposite to the Coffee House."
- Brownjohn's petition came up again on Aug. 23, 1765, and Feb. 27, 1766 (M. C. C., VI: 426; VII: 13), but action was deferred until July 9, 1766, when the common council agreed to grant "the right this Corporation have to the ground pray'd for, not to exceed 175 feet beyond the present wharf, renewing for the use of the publick, a slip on the east & west sides thereof," provided the petitioners accepted the board's terms. A committee was appointed to hear proposals and to have a plan of the ground made.—Ibid., VII: 22-23. Brownjohn protested, on Aug. 7, against the proposed use of the water lot fronting his house for a public slip, but the board considered the protest "insolent and impertinent" and ordered that it "be thrown under the table."—Ibid., VII: 27.
- Other citizens soon joined in the application for lots on Hunters Key, but their petitions were deferred.—Ibid., VII: 25, 32, 37. On Oct. 2, the committee appointed on July 9 reported that the petitioners had offered to pay for the water lots either an annual quit-rent of 5 shillings per foot, or £3 per foot, "Cash down," and a quit rent of 18d., provided the wharfrage of the wharfs they would build should remain to them and their heirs and assigns for ever. Action on this report was deferred to "some future Common Council."—Ibid., VII: 37-38.
- It appears that, at this stage of the proceedings, resort was had to legal advice, for, on Aug. 24, 1767, the mayor delivered to the common council "the Several opinions of William Smith Junf, William Livingston, James Duane and Benjamin Kissam, on the Case made before them, Respecting Hunters Key."—Ibid., VII: 79. The petitions for the water lots, the legal "opinions," and the petitioners' proposals were taken into consideration on Aug. 31, and the corporation decided to grant the lots "without Reserving a hundred feet . . . for the use of the Corporation," and to accept the offer of an annual quit-rent of 5 shillings per foot. A sufficient amount of ground in front of Brownjohn's property was to be reserved for a public slip.—Ibid., VII: 80-81.
- This decision concerning the public slip met with protests from William Weyman (the printer) and others, but, on Dec. 10, the board decided to adhere to it.—Ibid., VII: 84-85, 94; see also ante, p. 22. (The ground at the end of Wall St. was declared to be a public slip in 1776, q.v.) The granting of water lots at this part of the shore was now begun. John Burger's claim was approved on Jan. 14, 1768, and on March 2, 1768 (q.v.), further grants were decided upon.—Ibid., VII: 98-99, 106. For other references to Hunter's Key or Rotten Row, see advertisements in N. Y. Post-Boy, March 26, 1761; N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Feb. 25, 1765; N. Y. Merc., May 8, 1760, and Sept. 17, 1770; N. Y. Jour., Sept. 29, 1774; and Rivington's Gazetteer, March 3, 1774.
- The common council appoints a committee "to View and Cause to be Regulated and Paved Vesey Street as also Division Street and the Broad way Street in the west ward."—M. C. C., VI: 249. For the report of the committee, see July 24.
- A tavern kept by the widow Vernon at the "Sign of the Loudoun's Arms, on the New-Dock" is the meeting place of St. Andrew's Society.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 18, 1761. The society was still holding its meetings here in February, 1765 (N. Y. Merc., Feb. 11, 1765); before June 10 of this year, the widow Vernon had removed to Albany, where she opened the "King's Arms Tavern."—Ibid., June 10, 1765.
- King George III's birthday is observed "by a Discharge of Twenty three Pieces of Cannon from Fort-George, being the Number of Years his Majesty was then old." At night the city is "handsomely illuminated."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 8, 1761.
- Weyman publishes a notice "That by Order of the Deputy Post-Masters General, another Set of Posts are soon to be established between New-York and Boston, to set out on Thursdays from whence they will arrive at Hartford in Connecticut, from whence they will set out on Monday Morning, passing through the principal Towns, and will arrive at New-York and Boston on Wednesday, weekly."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 8, 1761.
- General Monkton arrives "at his Seat at Greenwich" from Philadelphia.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 15, 1761.
- An extract from a London letter reads: "Peace is in every Body's Mouth; but such Preparations for War was never made before."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Sept. 21, 1761.

1761 The public is warned against counterfeit "New-York Ten June Pound Bills" which are being circulated in the city.—N. Y. Gaz.
22 (Weyman), June 22, 1761.

24 The members of St. John's Lodge are asked to meet at "Mason's Hall, in Anne-street." The notice is dated at "Tyler Taverna."— 9 N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 22, 1761.

July The "Aldermen and Common Councilmen" of the Dock and 9 South Wards are appointed a committee to repair "the Long Bridge on the North Side of the Exchange." On July 24, they were required to repair "the Long Bridge to the Southward of the Exchange (the foundation of which to be of Stone)."—M. C. C., VI: 252, 253.
For the location of both the "Long Bridge" and the Exchange, see Pl. 30, Vol. I. Between Nov. 23, 1761, and Dec. 1, 1762, about £800 was expended on these repairs.—Ibid., VI: 275, 290, 295, 308, 312-13.

" It is ordered by the common council "that the Clerk of this Board prepare a Bond from this Corporation to the Ministers Elders and Deacons of the Reformed protestant Dutch Church of this City," in the penalty of £2,000, conditioned to pay £1,000 on or before July 24, 1762, with interest at five per cent., and dated July 24, 1761.—M. C. C., VI: 252. The interest (£50) due July 24, 1762, was paid Sept. 15, 1762, by warrant to Adrian Banker.—
20 Ibid., VI: 300.

20 The top of the steeple of the New Dutch Church is struck by lightning, which tears off some of the shingles "in the crooked Course of its Direction," and sets the building on fire. The flames are extinguished quickly so that the damage is "very inconsiderable." It is said "this is the third Time this Church has been struck with Lightning—probably occasioned by its Situation."—N. Y.
Gaz. (Weyman), July 27, 1761. This was the Middle Reformed Dutch Church. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 935, and Pl. 28, Vol. I. A similar accident happened to it two years later (see June 15, 1763). For earlier ones, see Oct., 1750.

24 After receiving reports from two committees, one appointed June 12, 1760 (q. v.), the other, May 28, 1761, recommendations are approved providing for the regulation and paving of Division (now Fulton, or, more exactly, that part of Fulton west of Broadway) and Vesey Sts., and also Broadway between those streets.
The committees are continued.—M. C. C., VI: 254-55.

" The chairman of the committee for regulating the streets in Montgomery Ward reports to the common council that he has caused "Frankford Street" to be regulated by the city surveyor with a specified grade. It is ordered that the owners and tenants of the property on this street be required to pave it at their own expense, in such manner as the alderman and assistant of this ward shall direct.—M. C. C., VI: 256.

27 " A Camp is now forming on Staten Island, near the Centre of which is the Watering-Place, a piece of Ground is allotted for a Market Place, where all Persons willing to supply the Troops with Provisions or Goods, are invited, and will be encouraged and Protected; Ground for putting up Tents or erecting Booths, will be allowed to every Person, who applies to the Commanding Officer, without Fee or Reward; and all Manner of Things will be permitted to be sold, without Tax or Restraint; it will only be required, that nothing be sold but in the Market Place; and that no spirituous Liquors be brought under any Pretences to Camp. James Robinson, D. Q. M. G.—N. Y. Merc., July 27, 1761.

Aug. Richard Nicholls, the "landwater" (an officer of customs who 1 attends on the landing of goods), petitions for the establishment of fees for his office.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng. 724.

8 Cadwallader Colden, who was appointed lieutenant-governour on March 20 (see March 17), is now sworn into office.—Cal. Coun.
Min., 453. Colden had previously been president of the council and commander-in-chief.—See Aug. 4, 1760.

12 Colden informs the lords of trade that, like Hardy, he is directed in the king's instructions to grant commissions to judges and other officers "during His Majesty's pleasure only." Nevertheless, Clinton while governour, and DeLancey, while lieutenant-governour, granted commissions to the present judges of the supreme court "during their good behaviour." "It is thought, however, that these commissions cease by the demise of the Crown; and are continued by His Majesty's Proclamation."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 468. In October of this year, many prisoners were held without trial because the pauise judges threatened to resign unless their commissions were renewed during good behaviour, "which the Commander in Chief, in obedience to the Royal Instructions, preemptrily & finally refused to comply with." On May 24, 1762, the recently-appointed Chief-Justice Benjamin Pratt reported to the lords of trade that 50 years ago, the chief-justice's salary of £300 would support him better than £400 sterling would now, "such has been the difference in the mode of living, & augmentation of the Expence of supporting a Family with Decency." He, however, is compelled to act without salary, because "The Assembly inflexibly resolved to grant no salary to the Judges, unless their commission were granted during good Behavior, & even then, to grant the Chief-Justice no more than £300 New York Currency; this is 85 or 90 p<sup>c</sup> cent. worse than sterling."—Ibid., VII: 500. One reason why the people of the colony "are so inflamed against commissions during His Majesty's pleasure, or, as they consider it, During the Governor's Pleasure," is that they fear a perversion of power by the governour or chief-justice to satisfy some private end which may be repugnant to the interest of the crown.—Ibid., VII: 501-2. Chief Justice Pratt was granted a temporary allowance out of the quit-rents. Colden was commended by the lords of trade for desiring to adhere to his instructions regarding judges; but they criticised him for giving his assent to a bill for the payment of officers' salaries (including his own), which was "an unprecedented and unjust attack upon the authority of the Crown," and they proposed that the act be repealed.—Ibid., VII: 503-4. This act granted a certain salary for the year ending Sept. 1, 1762, to the judges, "on the express condition that they hold their Commissions during good behavior."—

Ibid., VII: 505. See also ibid., VII: 705-6.

On Jan. 5, 1763, Chief-Justice Pratt died (ibid., VII: 502, footnote); on March 16 (ibid.), Gov. Monckton appointed Daeiel Horsmanden to his place.—Ibid., p. VII: 528. O'Callaghan states regarding Horsmanden: "To his continuance on the bench until his death [in 1778], may be ascribed the introduction of that article in the Constitution of the State of New York, formed in 1777, which limited the duration of the office of Judge."—Ibid., VII: 528.

It is ordered by the common council "that Mr Anthony Ten Eyck have Liberty to Cause the upper end of Queen Street on Cowfoot Hill [see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 965] to Be dug Levelled and Carried Forward as far as the Committee for Regulating and paving the Streets in Mootgomerie ward Shall think proper."—M. C. C., VI: 258.

" The common council orders that the amount paid out by Philip Livingston for filling up Burling Slip and causing a drain to be made be refunded to him.—M. C. C., VI: 258-59. See Aug. 9, 1692; 1730; May 5, 1736; March 2, 1744; 1755; 1797; and
Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 988; Pl. 174, Vol. III.

In a letter to John Sargent of London, John Thurman says:
"The Glaring hopes of Peace, from the Publick Prints seem to be quite Vanished & in the stead of a Sessation of arms a mighty exertion from all Quarters to bend them by Force & Superior Power. I wish we may make a Lasting & Honourable peace or war on to Maintain the Honours we have acquired, & God grant they may Increase to the subversion of French Treachery & Power.
I am glad to hear his majesty sets a proper Estimate on Canady & intend to hold that Valuable Acquisition."—From the "Letter Book of John Thurman, Jr," in Hist. Mag., 2d ser., IV: 287-88.

"Last Week His Honour the Lieutenant Governour was pleased to give Mr. Douglass Permission to build a Theatre, to perform in this City the ensuing Winter."—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 17, 1761. "This was in opposition to the wishes of the Assembly, and of the Mayor (Cruger) who endeavoured, but in vain, to prevent theatrical entertainments, which they looked upon as detrimental to good morals."—Ireland, Rec. of N. Y. Stage, I: 32. The theatre was built on the southwest corner of Nassau and Chapel (now Beekman) Sts.
It was 90 ft. long and 40 ft. wide and constructed of wood by Philip Miller for Douglass at a cost of $1,625. The scenery and wardrobe were worth $1,000. The opposition to the theatre was so great in the beginning that Douglass was allowed a season of only two months, of two nights a week, but subsequently the time was extended and covered a term of more than five months.—Brown, Hist. of N. Y.
Stage, I: 6; Ireland, Rec. of N. Y. Stage, I: 32; Wilson, Mem. Hist.
of New York, IV: 465; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 982. See Nov. 16. For the opening performance, see Nov. 18.

"The New-York Arms, situate near the Oswego Market," is now the meeting-place of the St. Andrew's Society.—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 24, 1761.

The city ordinance intended to prevent the "forestalling" of provisions coming to the markets (see March 30, 1743) is amended

Aug.
12

13

"

15

Aug.

17

116

24

27

1761 to read as follows: "Be it ordained By the authority aforesaid Aug. that (in Regard the Markets are intended for the Benefit of 27 House Keepers who Buy for their own use) the Hucksters and Retailors within this city who buy to sell again shall not enter into any of the aforesaid Markets, to make their provisions and Buy to sell again any flesh, fish, poultry, Eggs, Butter, Cheese, Bacon, or any other sort of market provisions or goods of What kind soever, of any of market people untill the afternoon of every Day to the end the house keepers may Provide themselves in the forenoon of every Day at the first hand with the aforesaid provisions or goods at moderate Rates upon pain that every such Huckster and Retailor shall be for every offence Forfeit the sum of Ten Shillings . . . with Costs of suit." It is also ordained that no huckster or other retailer shall expose for sale any provisions or other goods in the public markets or on the streets.—M. C. C., VI: 260. These regulations were embodied in the new law of Aug. 24, 1763 (2. v.).

Sept. It is ordered that "the Steeple of Trinity Church be Rough 1 Cast and that MF Reade do agree with Persons to purchase and prepare Materials for the doing thereof and pay for the same."—
Trin. Min. (MS.).

2 Colden informs the council and the assembly of his appointment to the office of lieutenant-governour (see March 17), and communicates to them Gen. Amherst's request that they continue in pay, for a longer period, a company of 173 men.—Assemb. Jour., II: 663-64. On Sept. 3, the assembly complied with Amherst's request.—Ibid., II: 665.

5 A bill "to prohibit the acting of Plays or the Entertainment of the Stage" is passed by the assembly and sent to the council.—
Assemb. Jour., II: 666. The latter appears to have taken no action although the bill was sent to them again on Dec. 19.—Ibid., II:
684.

18 "The Rector and Inhabitants of the City of New York &c." (Trinity Corporation) prefer to the common council "a Release or Quit Claim to the Corporation & their Successors of a number of Streets mentioned in a Map annexed to the said Release or Quit Claim." This the board accepts; and orders "that the Clerks enter the Same in the book of Grants belonging to this Corporation."—
M. C. C., VI: 263. The date on the deed is April 9, 1761. The MS.
deed, with the map by Maerschalek annexed (both on vellum), was until recently in the possession of the comptroller, but is now recorded in Liber of Ancient Conveyances, I: 21, register's office, New York. The streets thus released to the corporation were:
Reade, Chambers, Warren, Murray, Barclay, Vesev and Fulton Sts., all from Broadway to the Hudson River; Robinson, the present Park Pl., from Broadway to King's (Columbia) College grounds; Church St. from Fulton St. to Lispenard's land; College Pl. from the north side of the college grounds to Lispenard's land;
also Lumber St. (Trinity Pl.) in Trinity Church land; Rector St., and First, Second, and Third Sts. on Trinity land (streets not now on the map, but corresponding respectively to about the lines of the modern Greenwich, Washington, and West Sts.); also a narrow lane, 50 ft. north of Warren St., from Broadway to the river, a lane not existing on the modern map.

" Benjamin Blass, John Alliner, and Joseph and Daniel Latham give to the city a piece of ground in Montgomerie Ward, 25 x 160 ft., on the north side of Cherry St., bounded on the east and west by land owned by the grantors, and on the north by "the meadow ground Commonly known by [as] Wolfert Webbers's meadow."
It is to be used forever as a public street. The common council accepts it, and orders that the clerk enter it in "the Book of Grants."—M. C. C., VI: 262-63. This became part of Roosevelt
St.—Liber Ancient Conveyances (Register's Office), I: 12-13;
Liber Deeds, XLII: 196; XLVIII: 249; Liber City Grants, C: 273.
See also "Roosevelt Street," Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1008.

" A committee, appointed April 1, 1760, to treat with the executors of John Cruget, Stephen Bayard, and Edward Holland, deceased, the late mayors, and also with the present mayor, "Concerning the Monies Arisen by the stalls and standings during their respective Mayoralties," and to "Consider and settle the form of a plan for the Regulation of the fees Arising from the said Stalls and standings for the future" (M. C. C., VI: 209), makes its report. Its recommendation is that the board accept the offers of the gentlemen concerned in this dispute (which has lasted since March 7, 1751, 9. v.), "to pay to this Board All the Monies in their hands . . .
Received for Lycences to Tavern Keepers deducting one half of the Amount of what the said Stalls and Standings Sold for During their Respective mayoralties;" but that the board should reserve "their Right to all the monies proceeding from the Stalls and Standings in future, Unless an Explanatory Clause to the present Charters Could be Obtained Whereby a Certain sum not Exceeding one hundred pounds per annum Should be appropriated to the use of the mayor for the Time Being and the Remainder to the Use of the Corporation." The common council thereupon orders that the committee

"prepare the said Explanatory Clause to the present Charter of this City and Solicit the passing of it Accordingly."—Ibid., VI: 262.
No such provision appears in the acts of the provincial legislature.—
See Col. Laws N. Y., Vol. IV.

His Majesty's ship "Alcide" arrives with a fleet of transports
"to carry the Troops incamped on Staten Island for two or three Months past to the West Indies on a Secret Expedition under the Command of General Monkton."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV: 1, in N. Y. Pub. Library.

The provincial council receives Secretary Pitt's announcement of King George III's intention to marry Princess Charlotte of Mecklenburg-Strelitz.—Col. Coun. Min., 454. See Dec. 22.

In a letter to the printer, a correspondent gives interesting facts regarding the use of wood-burning stoves in New York. He mentions a recent warning against erecting or continuing to use any stoves, "unless they were so situated as that the End of their Pipe might be put into the Funnel of a Chimney." He refers to their "great Utility" which is "sufficiently known by every one that has used them," adding: "The great difference of the Fuel that is burnt in them, in Opposition to that which is burnt in a common Fire Place ( . . . a small Quantity of Wood will make a Room as comfortable as a Fire Place with three Times the Quantity) would be a Consideration Weighty enough in this Place where Wood is so dear." He describes the advantage of a chimney over "a Pot with Coals." The merchant in his counting-room and the tradesman in his workshop, without a chimney, is obliged to be idle half the time in cold weather, "to the impoverishing of his Family;" or else reduced to the "disagreeable Necessity" of using "a Pot with Coals," by which "his Health is in great Danger of being impaired."
He says "the great Fire in Boston" (see June 10, 1760) was caused by "a Pot of Coals in a Workshop."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Nov. 2, 1761. On Dec. 31, 9. v., an act was passed "for the more Effectual Prevention of Fires and for Regulating of Buildings in the City of New York." This was deemed necessary because many houses were roofed with shingles.—Ibid., IV: 571. See Dec. 1, 1778.

" The trustees of the First Presbyterian Church resolve to purchase "a Proper Parsonage House and take a Deed for the Same in Trust for the Church."—*Proceedings of the Trustees of the 1st Presby.
Ch.* ("Wall Street Church"), Vol. I. On Feb. 25, 1793; "John Murray, et al., Trustees of the Presb. Ch. of the C. N. Y.," conveyed this piece to Stephen van Cortlandt.—Liber Deeds, XLIX: 16 (New York). The parsonage plot is now covered by the western end of the United States Realty building and by the western part of Thames St. adjoining.

Sir Jeffery Amherst is invested with the gold collar and red ribbon of the Order of the Bath, the ceremony taking place in the military camp on Staten Island. The letter from Sec. William Pitt to Maj.-Gen. Robert Monkton, governor of the province, announcing it to be the king's pleasure to make Amherst a knight commander, is read in the presence of several officers of the army. The letter, dated Whitehall, July 17, 1761, expressed the king's pleasure that Monkton should perform the ceremony and that it was "his Majesty's intention that the same be done in the most honourable and distinguished manner that circumstances will allow of . . .
and as may at the same time, mark in the most public manner his Majesty's just sense of the constant zeal and signal abilities which General Amherst has exerted in the service of his King and country."
Amherst, having received the order, responded to Gen. Monkton:
"I am truly sensible of this distinguishing mark of his Majesty's royal approbation."—Universal Mag. (London), Dec., 1761, XXIX:
336. This was the first investiture of the order ever performed in America. The second investiture was upon Sir William Howe, sixteen years later.—Mayo, Jeffery Amherst, 197. See Jan. 18, 1777.

When Gen. Amherst came to town, on this day, he was saluted
"with a Royal Discharge of the Cannon on Fort George."—*N. Y.
Gaz.* (Weyman), Oct. 26, 1761.

Maj.-Gen. Robert Monkton is sworn in as governor, having received on the 20th "His Majesty's Patent" appointing him.
Inasmuch as he was expecting an order from the king (see Nov. 13)
"to Quit the Province, to go on an Expedition, that is fitting out

Sept.
18

Oct.
19

23

24

"

"

25

26

- 1761 here," he merely enters into the necessary formalities of appointment and installation as governor.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 471; Nov. 24
- 26 476; Cal. Coun. Min., 455. See Oct. 30.
- 30 The draft of an address to "the Honourable Robert Monckton, Captain General and Governor in Chief in and over the Colony of New York" (see Oct. 26), etc., is agreed to by the common council. It compliments him upon his "Gallant Conduct and intrepid Behaviour at the Memorable Battle, on the plains of Abraham at Quebec." The draft of "a Freedom" is also agreed to, "with the seal thereto, inclosed in a Gold Box with the City Arms Engraved on the Lid thereof." These, engrossed and "Signed by the Members of this Corporation," were presented on Oct. 31.—M. C. C., VI: 270-72.
- Nov. An advertisement in the Mercury reads: "To be Sold at the 2 House called, The first House built at the North-River, in New-York, Old Indian Corn at 3s. 8 a Bushel, Young Shoots at 3d. per lb. alive; also stout strong Beer in Barrels, equal in Goodness to the very best of London Porter."—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 2, 1761. No clue appears as to where this "first House" stood.
- 11 Benjamin Pratt is appointed chief-justice.—Cal. Coun. Min., 455. See March 16, 1765.
- 13 Gov. Monckton (see Oct. 26) produces in council the king's leave of absence, and redelivers the seals to Colden, the lieutenant-governor.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 476; Cal. Coun. Min., 455. See Nov. 15.
- 15 Gov. Monckton embarks "to take upon him the Command of the Expedition [to Martinique], in which the Publick will undoubtedly join in heartily wishing Him the Blessings of Honour, Glory, and Success." He is "saluted on going off by a Discharge of the Cannon on Fort George, and welcomed by a Discharge of the Ships Guns" when he gets on board.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Nov. 16, 1761. The fleet sailed on Nov. 19 (q.v.).
- 16 A newspaper advertisement reads: "Theatre in Chapel Street [see Aug. 17]. By Permission, by a Company of Comedians, the New Theatre in Chapel Street, will be open'd on Wednesday the 18th Inst. with a Tragedy . . . Call'd the Fair Penitent: And a Dramatic Satyr, call'd Lethe, or Æsop in the Shades . . . No Money will be taken at the Door, nor any Persons admitted without Tickets, which are to be sold by Mr. Gaine, Printer, at the Bible and Crown, in Hanover-Square.—Boxes 8s.—Pit 5s.—Gallery 3s. The Doors to be open'd at 4, and the Play begin precisely at 6 o'Clock. No Person can be admitted behind the Scenes."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Nov. 16, 1761.
- 18 Lieut.-Gov. Colden is sworn in, and presides at the council meeting.—Cal. Coun. Min., 455.
- 19 The fleet, consisting of 100 sail, leaves Sandy Hook for Martinique, under convoy of the "Devonshire" (of 66 guns), the "Alcide" (of 64 guns), the "Norwich" (50 guns), the "Penzance" (44 guns), and the "Prince Edward" (32 guns).—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Nov. 16 and 23, 1761.
- The Gazette of Nov. 23 prints a "List of the principal Officers, and the Regiments embark'd at New-York, on the present Expedition."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Nov. 23, 1761. These names were included in Hugh Gaine's list of all the forces in North America (see 1761). In Smith's Continuation of the Hist. of N. Y., in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1830), V: 298, the date of departure is given erroneously as Nov. 14. In the N. Y. Mercury of Nov. 23, the date of sailing is given as Nov. 18. Smith gives the 19th in agreement with the Gazette.—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), II: 460.
- A painting of the city from the East River, with a fleet of men-of-war, etc., in the foreground, made at this period, perhaps on this very day, is owned by the N. Y. Hist. Society, and is reproduced and described in Vol. I, Pl. 15.
- 23 Although the fleet is well provided with stores, "there are several Vessels in Harbour, which we are told, are preparing to follow, with all Kinds of Necessaries, the better to succour the Expedition."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Nov. 23, 1761.
- " The initial step is taken to light the city with lamps when the common council requests the city members of the assembly to present a bill for raising a sum not exceeding £1,800 "for affixing Lamps in proper places in this City."—M. C. C., VI: 276. For the resulting act, see Dec. 31. For the previous method of street lighting, see Nov. 23, 1697.
- 24 Colden opens the assembly with a speech in which he "informs the House of Complaints against Delays in the Courts of Law & the heavy expence in obtaining Justice . . . This man's [Colden] Enmity to the Law was owing to his Ignorance of it—vain and ambitious of Power he had always found himself in Council of less - Consequence than some other Law-Members, for his opinions wanted weight, because he himself wanted Inform<sup>n</sup>.—When he was Minister of Clinton De Lancy's superior Knowledge exposed him . . . Upon the Death of De Lancy he fell into Circumstances which thro' Imprudence on his Part, necessarily exposed him."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV, in N. Y. Pub. Library.
- The assembly on Dec. 1 replied to Colden that the complaints he mentions "probably arise from the Want of a legal establishment of Fees."—Assemb. Jour., II: 672. This was a direct thrust at Colden according to Smith (q.v. cit.) who states that the office of surveyor-general, which Colden held in conjunction with his son, was thought to be "exorbitant in the Demand of Fees."
- In a message to the assembly, Lieut.-Gov. Colden says: "The excessive Number of Tippling Houses throughout the Province, points out the Utility of a Law to restrain them; they are ruinous to many poor Families that might otherwise be useful to the Community, And Destructive of the Morals of Servants and Slaves, Evils so prevalent and pernicious, as to claim your most serious Consideration."—Assemb. Jour., II: 669. On Nov. 27, a bill was ordered brought in "to regulate the Licencing of Inns and Taverns, and for the Suppression of Tippling Houses."—Ibid., II: 671-72.
- Shakespeare's Hamlet is staged for the first time in New York, at the Chapel St. Theatre (see Nov. 18), "by Permission of his Honour the Lieutenant-Governor."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 26, 1761. Cf. Brown, Hist. of N. Y., Stage, I: 6; Ireland, Rec. of N. Y., Stage, I: 33. On Jan. 25, 1762 (q.v.), Othello was presented.
- The provincial council hears from Lord Egremont that Pitt has retired from office, and that he (Egremont) has been appointed secretary of state for the southern department.—Cal. Coun. Min., 455.
- An advertisement of the London Magazine for the months of July, Aug., and Sept. speaks of "A Description of the City of New York, with a Picture, exhibiting a South East View of it" (copied from the Bakewell view).—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Dec. 14, 1761. This description appears in the August issue and includes the following information: "The streets are irregular, but being paved with round pebbles, are very clean. No part of America has greater plenty and variety in its markets. . . . Oysters are a considerable part of the support of the poor, and that single article is computed to be worth, annually, 10 or 12000 l. some kinds are very large, so that one or two of them fry'd, &c. are a meal for a reasonable appetite. . . . Here are two Dutch, two episcopal, one French, and two German Lutheran churches; one Presbyterian, one Anabaptist, one Quakers, and one Moravian meeting-houses, and one Jews synagogue. The city hall is a strong brick building, oblong, and two stories high, with two wings, at right angles with the centre. The floor below is an open walk, except two goals, and the goaler's apartments. The cellar underneath is a dungeon, and the garret a common prison. This edifice is erected in a place where four streets meet, and fronts, to the south-west, one of the most spacious streets in the town. The eastern wing contains, in the second story, the assembly-room, a lobby, and the speaker's chamber. The west wing, on the same floor, forms the council-room, and a library; and in the middle space, the supreme court is usually held. . . . The city has, in reserve, 1,000 stand of arms, for seamen, the poor, &c. in case of an invasion."—London Mag. (Aug. 1761), 400.
- Colden, in a message to the assembly, says, "It is well known that when the Salary of the Chief Justice was first fix'd at Three Hundred Pounds, about the Year 1715, the Value of the current Money was much higher, and the Price of all Necessaries for the Support of a Family, much lower than at present . . ."—Assemb. Jour., II: 681. The assembly, on Dec. 18, decided that in their opinion the salary allowed the chief-justice was sufficient "to engage Gentlemen of the first Figure."—Ibid., II: 683.
- The Post-Boy advertises for this evening the production of Shakespeare's King Henry IV at the Chapel St. Theatre, with Mr. Douglass taking the part of Falstaff.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 17, 1761.
- The council and the assembly draw up a joint address to the king congratulating him "on his auspicious Nuptials."—Assemb. Jour., II: 685, 686-87; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 727. The marriage of George III to Charlotte, Princess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, had occurred on Sept. 8, and their coronation on Sept. 22.—Robertson, Eng. under the Hanoverians, 220. The news reached New York on Dec. 5.—Cal. Coun. Min., 455.
- Payments made on Sept. 18 and Dec. 28 for repairs to the ferry-house (on Nassau Island) amount to £200.—M. C. C., VI: 262, 278.
- The provincial legislature passes an act to raise £8713 in the city and county of New York to be paid to John Burnet, the present

1761 coroner, who "bath taken (during the space of near four Years)
 Dec. Twenty seven Inquests on the dead Bodies of Poor Persons And 31 Advanced Monies for the said services for which he hath Received No Allowance or Reward."—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 580-81.

" An act of the assembly become effective for levying a tax to provide the city "to the southward of Fresh-Water" with lamps (see Nov. 23) and "Oyl for the same," also for the payment of so many watchmen as the officials "shall think necessary for Guarding the said City And attending the said Lamps."—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 573-74. See Jan. 43, 1762.

Another act of this date is "for the more effectual Prevention of Fires and for Regulating the Buildings in the City of New York."
 It was made necessary by the number of houses roofed with shingles.
 It required that, after Jan. 1, 1766, every building, whether public or private, to the south of Fresh Water Pond "shall be made of Stone or Brick and Roofed with tile or slate." In the case of a house already erected, or built before that date, which shall at any time have to be new roofed, and whose walls are not sufficient to bear a roof of tile or slate, it shall be lawful for the owner to roof it with board or shingles. The final clause referred to the storage at specified places only of "Pitch, Tar, Turpentine, or Shingles," after May 1, 1762.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 571. For a special ordinance concerning the publishing of the final clause, see Feb. 23, 1762. By an enactment of Dec. 23, 1765 (q. v.), the date when this law should become effective was postponed for two years.—Ibid., IV: 869. On Dec. 31, 1768 (q. v.), the law was suspended and an act passed "to indemnify such persons as have incurred the Penalties mentioned in the said Act."—Ibid., IV: 1046. The original act was amended April 1, 1775 (q. v.).

" A commo is appointed by the assembly "to enquire into the Causes of the Complaints of the dilatory Proceedings of the Courts of Law, and the heavy Expence in obtaining Justice within this Colony."—Assemb. Jour., II: 687.

1762

— In this year Livingston and Smith published the colonial laws of New York which had been enacted after 1751, down to and including May 22, 1762.—Evans, Bibliography, No. 9213. There is a copy in the N. Y. Pub. Library. See Nov. 8, 1760, and Dec. 20, 1763.

— A descriptive account of New York written in this year contains the following:

"The militia of New York [State], according to the general estimate, does not exceed 18,000. The whole number of souls is computed at 100,000.

"New York [City] is one of the most social places on the continent. The men collect themselves into weekly evening clubs.
 The ladies, in winter, are frequently entertained either at concerts of music or assemblies, and make a very good appearance. They are comely and dress well, and scarce any of them have distorted shapes. Tinctur'd with a Dutch education, they manage their families with becoming parsimony, good providence, and singular neatness. . . . Their schools are in the lowest orders; the instructors receive no education, and through a long shameful neglect of all the arts and sciences, the common speech is extremely corrupt; and the evidences of a bad taste, both as to thought and language, are visible in their proceedings, publick and private. . . .

"Gentlemen of estates rarely reside in the country, hence few no experiments have yet been made in agriculture. . . . they have not, as yet, entered upon scarce any other manufactures, than such as are indispensibly necessary for their home convenience.
 Felt-making, which is perhaps the most natural of any they could fall upon, was begun some years ago, and hats were exported to the West-Indies with great success, till lately prohibited by an act of parliament. . . . Their exports to the West Indies are bread, pease, rye-meal, Indian corn, apples, onions, boards, staves, horses, sheep, butter, cheese, pickled oysters, beef, and pork. Flour is also a main article, of which there is shipped about 80,000 barrels per annum. . . .

"The logwood trade to the bay of Honduras is very considerable,
 . . . . The exportation of flax-seed to Ireland is of late very much increased. Between the 9th of December 1755, and the 23d of February following, were shipped off 12,528 hogheads. . . .

"The people of New York, both in town and country, are gone into the habit of tea-drinking: and it is supposed they consume of this commodity in value near 10,000 l. sterling per annum. . . ."
 —Am. Gazetteer (London, 1762), Vol. III.

England declares war against Spain.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Jan.
 April 5, 1762; q. Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., VI: 19. See 2
 April 3.

An act is passed by the provincial legislature for the more 8 "Effectual Collecting of his majesty's Quit Rents in the Colony of New York and for Partition of Lands in order thereto."

One of the provisions of the act is that "two true Field books" shall be made "of all Surveys and allotments made by Virtue of this act," and that maps "Specifying the Bounds of every Lott shall be made and the several Lotts laid Down and Numbered on the said map and then signed by the said Commissioners & their survey-9 "One book is to be filed in the county clerk's office and the other in the secretary's office in New York City. An advertisement is then to be published in a city newspaper for six weeks giving notice that the maps have been filed, and appointing a time and place of meeting at which balloting is to take place for the division of the lots among those interested.

The method of balloting is described in detail: the commissioners are to make as many "Tickets as there are allotments with the Number of each allotment on every Ticket, and as many Tickets as there are patentees with the Name of each patentee on every Ticket; The Tickets of Names shall be put into a Box and the Numbered Tickets into another Box, and such other person or persons as the Commissioners shall then appoint shall immediately proceed to Draw a Ticket of the names and then a Ticket of the Numbers and so proceed till all the Tickets are Drawn, and the allotment of the Map bearing the Number of the Ticket drawn next after drawing the Ticket with the Name shall be the separate and divided share of that patentee in the Lands so to be divided."— Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 584-601.

Abraham Lott is directed to revise, digest, collect, and have printed the votes and proceedings of the assembly "from the Revolution to the present Time."—Assemb. Jour., II: 688.

A committee of the common council is appointed "to purchase 13 for the use of this Corporation Such a Number of Lamps and lamp posts as they may Conceive to be Necessary for the Illuminating of this City agreeable to an act of assembly of this province lately made and published for that purpose" (Dec. 31, 1761). To Isaac Stoutenburgh, who had been in charge of the three lamps at city hall since they were placed there March 6, 1752 (q. v.), and who was also overseer of the watch, was given the responsibility of contracting with some one "for lighting such lamps as will Speedily be Erected," and of securing the necessary watchmen.—M. C. C., VI: 278-79. On Feb. 23, a committee was appointed to "Erect Lamps in such parts of This City as they shall Judge most proper and Convenient for the Inhabitants."—Ibid., VI: 283. On May 12, John Lansing was paid £400 "on account of what he hath lately laid out and expended by order of this Board, for the Erecting of Lamp posts and Cost of Lamps, and providing Oyl for the same."—
Ibid., VI: 287. For beginnings of lighting by gas see March 31, 1823. Additional payments were made to Lansing later.—Ibid.,
 VI: 294, 309. Among N. Y. MSS. (1761-1800) in the N. Y. Hist.
 Soc. is this account (strongly flavoured with illiteracy) of appurtenances authorized by Lansing:

"New York May 3<sup>d</sup> 1762.
 Cooperation D<sup>r</sup>

To John Balthas Dasch

By the Order of M<sup>r</sup> Landson [Lansing]

94. New Street Lamps at 11 <sup>s</sup> /p. B. . . . .	£51: 14:
27. Old Lamps Mendet [Mended] . . . . .	3: 8:
78. In Seit [inside] Lamps at 1 <sup>s</sup> /6 <sup>d</sup> . . . . .	5: 17:0
30. Bodem [Bottoms] . . . . .	1: 3:6
5 Gallng Bott [gallon bottles] at 8 <sup>s</sup> / . . . . .	2: 0:0
@ [Yaart Mog Quart Mug] . . . . .	0: 1:6
Rec <sup>d</sup> the above Contents in full of John G. Lansing
John Balthas Dasch	£64: 4:0

Samuel Francis, "Inkeeper," and Elizabeth, his wife, mortgage to Walter Rutherford for £400 and interest, payable in one year,
 "All those two Certain Lotts of Ground Situate Lying and being in the West ward," known on a map of the Church Farm as lots 322 and 323, which lots had been leased by Trinity Church on Feb. 28, 1752, to John Dunscomb and Peter Rushton for 21 years at £4 annually, and by their transferred to James Mills, "Perukemaker." Mills assigned the lots to Mary Alexander and John Provost, and they in turn to Samuel Francis. The dimensions of the lots are given and their boundaries are defined as "Easterly by the Broadway, Northerly by a Street in the said Map Called Warren Street, Wes-

1762 terly by Lott number three hundred and Twenty four and Southerly
Jan. by Lott number three hundred and Twenty one.—Liber Mortgages, 13 l. 268-69. This was the Mason's Arms Tavern, and later Hamden Hall, headquarters for the Sons of Liberty. See March 19, 1759.
15 Samuel Francis acquires the property at Broad and Pearl Sts.
later known as "Fraunces Tavern."—See Addenda.
25 The actors at the Chapel Street Theatre (see Nov. 26, 1761) give a benefit performance of "Othello," to "relieve such Poor Families as are not provided for by the Public."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 25, 1762. The proceeds of this performance were £114:10.—
Ibid., Feb. 1, 1762. These actors gave another benefit performance on April 26 (q.v.).
" Eleven years remaining on a lease of two houses and lots on Trinity Church farm, fronting the Broadway, near the Almshouse, are offered for sale. "The two tenements fronting the Broad Way, may be occupied in one, for a public house, being very convenient for that purpose." Applications are to be made to John Dowers, living on the premises, "at the Sign of King George the III."—
N. Y. Merc., Jan. 25, 1762. This tavern stood at Broadway and Robinson St.
27 Royal instructions to Gov. Monckton are received, and those of the council present are sworn in.—Cal. Coun. Min., 456.
28 The law "to prohibit the Selling or Bringing of Certain fish in the City of New York" during December, January, or February, is repealed.—M. C. C., VI: 279. See Nov. 14, 1758.
Feb. 8 "Scarce a night passes now but some Depredation or other is committed in this city, by a Gang of Fellows yet undiscovered; for besides their several Attempts of Burglary; slipping into Houses in the Evenings, and skulking behind Doors, and under Beds, till the Family is gone to Rest; &c. &c.—they make Nothing of knocking any Person down who refuses to stand and deliver:
. . . As the Necessaries for fixing of Lamps throughout this City, conformable to an Act lately made by the Legislature, is preparing with all Expedition, the good Intent thereof will undoubtedly soon be found to be of the utmost Utility and safety to its Inhabitants; moreespecially as the Watchmen to be provided by the said Act, are to be under much better Orders and Regulations than heretofore."
—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Feb. 8, 1762. See Feb. 11, 1760.
10 Cadwallader Colden resigns the office of surveyor-general (for his appointment, see April 21, 1720), and his son, Alexander, is appointed in his place.—Cal. Coun. Min., 456. Since Jan. 3, 1751 (q.v.), Alexander Colden had been helping with this work. See
June 29, 1774.
22 The "New Course, at Harlem" is mentioned in an advertisement of the "New-York Races," which are to be run for a purse of £100.—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 22, 1762. While the location of this race-course is not defined in this notice, it probably gave the name to the "Race Course tract," a piece of land owned by Adolph Benson, well-known in title records.—See 1737; April 14, 1774.
23 It is ordered by the common council that the last clause in a recent act for preventing fires and regulating buildings (see Dec. 31, 1761) "be published in Two of the next weekly or publick Gazettees of this City."—M. C. C., VI: 282-83. This appeared in the N. Y.
Gazette (Weyman) of March 1, and in the Mercury of same date.
" Inhabitants living near the Meat Market petition the common council for its removal, because it is "of no Real use or Advantage Either to the Community in General or to the inhabitants living near thereto; That Poultry and other Country produce being Generally carried to other Markets, And no Provisions is sold in the Meat Market Except by a Few Butchers who might be as well Accommodated with Standings in other Markets." They complain that it "greatly Obstructs the Agreeable prospect of the East River which those that live in Wall street would Otherwise Enjoy; Occasions a Dirty Street Offensive to the Inhabitants on each side, and Disagreeable to those who pass and repass to and from the Coffee house a place of Great Resort."—From the original petition (MS.) in file 4, city clerk's record-room; and M. C. C., VI: 283. For the result of the petition, see May 12.
Mar. In an address to the council and the assembly, Colden says:
3 "I am, in Obedience to his Majesty's Commands, . . . to recommend that you will provide for the raising of Four Hundred and Seventy Nine Men, . . . Which Number is the Quota of this Province . . . towards completing the regular Regiments which have been sent to America, for the Defence and Protection of the Possessions of his Majesty's Subjects there."—Assemb. Jour., II:
689. For the assembly's response to this request, see March 13.
8 In a message to Colden, the members of the assembly say that at the outbreak of the war with France they had felt the necessity of conquering Canada, "to prevent a total Depopulation of our Country." With the thought "that one strenuous Effort would put an End" to all their "Difficulties and Dangers," they had exerted themselves "beyond what could have been expected." They are now greatly disappointed to find themselves "still involved in so great an Expence," but they will go beyond what can justly be expected, rather than have "the least Shadow of an Imputation" laid on their "Zeal for his Majesty's Service," and in the hope "that a safe and glorious Peace, will soon put an End to all Requisitions."—Assemb. Jour., II: 690-91.

11 As the king "is about to withdraw his regular Forces in North-America, to be employed upon some important Enterprize, against the Enemy," the assembly resolves that provision be made for paying and clothing "so many Men, as with the 173, now in his Majesty's Service in the Pay of this Colony, will make the Number of 1787 Men (Officers included) to be employed during the Absence of his Majesty's regular Forces in securing the Possession of his Conquests in North-America." This proves that the forces of the king (see March 26, 1761) had not yet been withdrawn on this date.
—Assemb. Jour., II: 691-92.
13 In regard to Colden's message of March 3 (q.v.), the members of the assembly resolve that they "cannot, consistent with the Trust reposed in them, provide for the levying of any regular Forces, it being a Custom interwoven into the Constitution of this Colony, for the Inhabitants thereof to provide for defending themselves only by their Militia, and to serve his Majesty in all attacks on the Enemy, by Provincial Forces raised for a limited Time."—Assemb.
Jour., II: 697-98.
15 A race between four horses for a £20 stake, on the Bowery Lane "at the De Lacey's Arms," is announced for March 17. The participants are to start "at Mr John Watts's Gate (the Rose Hill Farm) and to come in at the near Corner of Mr Tiebout's Gate."—
N. Y. Merc., March 15, 1762. For the location of these places, see Pls. 40 and 41, Vol. I, and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 949, 951.
17 St. Patrick's Day is celebrated at John Marshall's, or Mount Pleasant, near the college.—N. Y. Merc., March 15, 1762. This was the Old Bowling Green on the North River. See March 29, 1738.
19 Trinity vestry appoints a committee "for repairing and pointing the steeple of Trinity Church and have it Washed and also to have a Bellcony [sic] built upon the Roofe of the said Church."—Trin.
Min. (MS.). See July 7.
20 The American Chronicle, a weekly newspaper, is started by Samuel Farley.—See Early Newspapers, II: 417. See also the "Bibliography of Am. Newspapers, 1690-1820," compiled by C. S.
Brigham, in Am. Antiquarian Soc. Proc. (1917), XXVII (N.S.): 378.
30 Colden writes to Monckton: "The . . . conquest of Martinique [see Nov. 14, 1761], in so short a time, gives the greatest Joy to every one in this place, as this signal success adds great Glory to his Majesty's Arms, & gains well merited Honour to your self . . . I am now raising the same number of Provincials that were raised last year, & at the same time recruits for the Regulars."
—Chalmers Papers relating to N. Y., II, in N. Y. Pub. Library.
Monckton arrived in New York on June 12 (q.v.).
Apr. The declaration of war with Spain is proclaimed in New York.
3 —N. Y. Merc., April 5, 1762. The declaration was made in England on Jan. 2 (q.v.), with orders for its proclamation on Jan. 4, but did not reach here until Apr. 1.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman) Apr. 5, 1762 (which issue contains a copy of it.) Concerning the proclamation ceremonies, Smith, writes in his diary under this date: "The Lieut Gov<sup>r</sup> & Council, met at the Fort—the Militia were in Array—
Lord Stirling and his Grenadiers drew up just before the House Door—Deputy Secretary Banyar came out and on the steps after a Proclamation the Declaration was read, all Hatts off—Three Cheers
—The Grenadiers advanced—the Constables two by two & then the 2 undersheriffs—thea the sheriff and Clerk of the Corporation, then the Common Council, the Aldermeu the Mayor and Recorder then the Couciel . . . & L<sup>d</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> Tow<sup>r</sup> & some military officers—
They proceeded up the Broad Way to the City Hall between the Lines of Militia—There Declar<sup>n</sup> was read again—three Cheers & they returned to the Fort druk Healths fired the Guns and dispersed."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV, in N. Y. Pub. Library.
See also Cal. Coun. Min., 457.
" Announcement is made by Edward Willett, steward of King's College (see March, 1760), that "On Monday the 26th inst. a school will be opened in King's College to teach 20 Scholars (summer and

Mar.
8
11 13 15
17
19 20 30
Apr.
3
"

- winter) reading, writing and arithmetick."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), April 5, 1762. Cf. Aug. 1, 1763.
- 10 John Jones "Begg Leave to inform the Publick that he is removed to the House which formerly has been kept by Mr. Samuel Francis, at the Sign of the Mason's Arms next Door to Mr. De Grush's in the Fields, where he intends to give the same Entertainment as formerly has been done by Mr. Francis. . . ."—N. Y. Merc., April 10, 1762. This was at Warren St. and Broadway, and De Grush's, next door, was owner of a rope-walk, which extended along the present Warren St. from Broadway to a point beyond Church St. (see Pl. 34, Vol. 1). For a history of the Mason's Arms tavern, see March 19, 1759. Francis (later known as Frances) was now occupying the house in Broad St. (see Jan. 15).
- 13 "This Board agreed with Mr [Nathaniel] Marston for Several Lots of Ground in the Broad Street [Broadway] for the sum of Two thousand five hundred pounds. Containing about one hundred feet in front and one hundred & fifteen feet in length more or less Subject to the Leases by him made."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- 14 The Dutch sloop "Hope" arrives laden with sugar, coffee, and indigo. She was captured by the brig "Mars."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), April 19, 1762.
- 23 On this day, the "Anniversary of St. George, his Excellency Sir Jeffery Amherst, gave a Ball to the Ladies and Gentlemen of this City, at Crawley's New Assembly Room. The Company consisted of 96 Ladies, and as many Gentlemen, all very richly dressed, and 'tis said the Entertainment was the most elegant ever seen in America."—N. Y. Merc., April 26, 1762. Crawley kept the "New York Arms."—Ibid., Jan. 31, 1763; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III, 977.
- 26 "The Committee: or The Faithful Irishman" is presented at the Chapel Street Theatre for the benefit of the "Charity School."—N. Y. Merc., April 26, 1762. "This is the second Play the Company have given this Season to public Uses for the first, see Jan. 25; which, with their unblamable Conduct during their Residence here, and the Entertainment the Town has receiv'd from their Performances, has greatly increas'd the Number of their Friends, and considerably Obviated many Objections hitherto made against Theatrical Representations in this City."—Ibid., May 3, 1762. See May 3.
- 29 It is announced that the printing business under the firm name of "James Parker and Company in New York, Printers" will, after May 1, be carried on solely by John Holt, "who has had the Management of the Business for near two years past."—Parker's N. Y. Post-Boy, April 29, 1762. For the first publication of the Post-Boy by Parker, see January, 1743. See May 6.
- May 1 A Maerschalck survey, bearing this date, of lots "on East side of Road leading from new jail to Fresh Water," is preserved in tube No. 3 in "Real Estate Division" of comptroller's office, Municipal Bldg.
- 3 Ploas of several of the sites of engagements between the French and English forces near Fort Niagara, are advertised as "curiously engraved on two large Copper Plates, by Michael De Bruls, Engraver, and an Inhabitant of this City." De Bruls, himself, is taking subscriptions for these "in the Road beyond the New Goal, on the Hill, where the above engraved Plates may be seen."—N. Y. Merc., May 3, 1762. For De Bruls's proposed views of New York City, see Oct. 11.
- " David Douglass advertises that "A Pistole Reward, Will be given to whoever can discover the Person who was so very rude to throw Eggs from the Gallery upon the Stage last Monday [see April 26], by which the Cloaths of some Ladies and Gentlemen in the Boxes were spoiled, and the Performance in some Measure interrupted." The advertisement is headed "Theatre, in New York."—N. Y. Merc., May 10, 1762. On April 2, 1764 (q. v.), the theatre was advertised for lease.
- " Jacobus Roosevelt and Philip Livingston present a request to the consistory of the Dutch Church, "signed by a great number of members of the congregation, as well as others, together with a request from young men baptized and partly reared in our church," for the services of "a minister using the English language . . . according to the Netherlands Constitution." The president of the consistory, J. Ritema, replies that an answer will be delayed, because "there is a great number of members, to whom they owe no less consideration, who have not signed said petition."—Eccles. Rec., VI: 3817-18. The proposal was considered at meetings of the consistory on May 13, 17, and 18 (ibid., VI: 3819); on July 6 and 12 (ibid., VI: 3826-27); and on Aug. 18 and 26 (ibid., VI: 3828-30). On the last date, 29 of the great consistory consented to the call of an English minister; and on Sept. 19, it was agreed that a subscription should be circulated for his support.—Ibid., VI: 3831. There was some opposition to the plan on Oct. 19 and 29 (ibid., VI: 3837-38); but on Dec. 16, the plan was perfected whereby a minister might be introduced to preach in the English language in the new church on Nassau St. "The eighth article of this plan provided that "If this plan be approved, and such an English minister as above described shall be called, a gallery shall immediately be constructed in the New Church, not only to remove the present great noise [echo?] but also to make more room for those who neither have nor can obtain sittings, and are inclined either to the Dutch or English service."—Ibid., VI: 3838-40; 3859-61. For further action in this connection, see Jan. 6 and 18, 1763. See also "A Journal of the proceedings of the Consistory of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church of the City of New York in Regard to the Petitions of their Congregation for Calling an English Preacher and the Disputes arising therefrom—1762" (MS.), compiled by Theodorus Van Wyck, and preserved by the N. Y. Hist. Soc. Rev. Morgan Dix, D.D., late rector of Trinity Church, quoting Dr. Benjamin F. de Costa, stated that the movement to erect a second "Chapel of Ease" (St. Paul's) for Trinity corporation, which was begun with a resolution at the vestry meeting of April 5, 1763 (q. v.), "may have been and probably was encouraged by the state of things existing in the Dutch congregation." Already preaching in the Dutch language had become unpopular among the younger portion of the Dutch congregation, which, it was thought by not a few, showed signs of diminution. The better portion of the people were now familiar, in some fair measure, with both English and Dutch, and intermarriages were also doing their peculiar work. The young people improved every opportunity of worshipping at Trinity, the "English Church," and there was a loud call for a minister in the Dutch Church who could preach in both languages." He then describes the dissatisfaction in the Dutch congregation following the introduction of English preaching there in 1764, resulting in "a renewed movement in the direction of Trinity Church with which body the Dutch had been on the kindest terms from its foundation. An established Church, too, was in accordance with all their ideas, their own Corporation having been recognized as the establishment down to the occupation of New Netherlands by the English. Therefore the defection could not be stayed, and Peter Van Brugh Livingston said that if the change in the Dutch Church had been made thirty years earlier they would not have met with such losses, but, as it stood, the greater half of Trinity consisted of accessions from the Dutch Church. . . . and the third edifice [St. Paul's] was not commenced any too soon."—Eccles. Rec., VI: 3911, in citing Dix, Hist. of Trin. Church, I: 302-3.
- 4 Colden, in a message to the assembly, refers to the declaration of war with Spain (see April 3) and urges the assembly to provide its quota of men. He thinks the deficiency of enlistments may be "solely imputed to the Reduction of the Bounty, from Fifteen to the Sum of Ten Pounds," and suggests the impressment of deserters and "all others, who having no visible Imployment or Means of Subsistence, are a Burthen, and even dangerous to the Community."—Assem. Jour., II: 700. The assembly answered, on May 5, that the bounty of £10 was more than that paid in any other colony; that 1,200 men had already enlisted, "and near a Month yet to come before the Time for enlisting expires"; and that to impress men "would rather tend to Prejudice the Service."—Ibid., II: 701.
- 5 "Notice is hereby given, That the Post-Office is removed from the Whitehall, to the Corner-House of Mr. Cornelius Fisher, opposite Mr. Joseph Hayne's, in Smith-street."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 10, 1762. It was moved again May 2, 1763 (q. v.). Cf. June 28.
- 6 An act for raising £3,000, "by Way of Lottery," for repairing the city hall receives Colcoen's signature.—Assem. Jour., 701; Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 621-22. The lottery was advertised Sept. 9 (q. v.).
- " John Holt becomes the sole printer of Parker's New-York Gazette; or, the Weekly Post-Boy, and changes its name to The New-York Gazette; or, the Weekly Post-Boy, which was the title it had borne some years earlier (see Jan. 1, 1753). For fuller details, see April 29; Early Newspapers, II: 427; and Am. Antiquarian Soc. Proceedings (1917), XXVII (N.S.): 417.
- 7 This is appointed a day of fasting and prayer, "to implore the Continuance of the Divine Blessing, on His Majesty's Arms, and for restoring and perpetuating Peace, Safety and Prosperity to His Majesty, His Kingdoms and Colonies."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), April 19, 1762.
- "The Regular Forces are daily arriving here from Quebec, 10

1762 Mootreal, &c. and encamping on Governor's or Nutten Island, near May which the Transports are rendezvousing for the readier Reception 10 of the Troops."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 10, 1762. See June 7.
 "Ring-riding for Four Gold Rings, Two on Whitsun-Monday, the 31st inst., May, and two the Day following, being the 1st June.
 Set up for the Entertainment of Lovers of that Sport, by George Barr, at the De Lancey's Arms, in the Bowery, where the best Liquors and Attendance may be had.—Not less than Ten will be admitted to ride for said Rings each Day: The Price to be proportion'd to the Number that ride.

"It is thought this Riding (being a new Thing in this Place) will afford great Diversion."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 10, 1762.

11 A published notice requires the annual meeting of the governors of the college to be held "at the House of John Crawley" (see April 23).—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 3, 1762.

12 Since an act for the more effectual prevention of fires (see Dec.
 31, 1762) orders that "no pitch Tar Turpentine or Shingles, shall or may be put in any place to the Southward of the Fresh Water," the common council decides upon "a Certain place near to the house of Elias De Grusha near the negroes Burial place for the Reception of such pitch Tar Turpentine and Shingles."—M. C. C., VI: 287. See Nov. 12, 1755.

"The common council orders that the Meal Market be removed "and Carried and affixed to the Oswego market."—M. C. C., VI:
 287. The Meal Market was erected about 1709 (see Oct. 4, 1709) where now is the intersection of Wall and Pearl Sts. The Oswego Market, to which some of the material is here ordered to be taken and "affixed" was in the middle of Broadway opposite Crown (Liberty) St.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 959.

"It is ordered by the common council "that Mr Francis Mars-chalk the City Surveyor do Lease out the Several lots by him Lately laid out near Catiemuts [see "Catiemuts Hill" in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 965] lying to the Eastward of the Kings Bridge Road leading from Spring Garden to the Kings Bridge for the Term of Twenty one Years under a yearly rent of four pounds with this Restriction to the Lessee not to assign or make over the Same or any part thereof without the Leave and approbation of the Corporation first had and obtained."—M. C. C., VI: 287-88.

17 "Lawrence Kilbrun, Portrait Painter, Takes this Opportunity to acquaint the Publick, that he is removed to Crown-street, which leads from the Fly-market up to the New Dutch Church, next Door to Mr. Stephany, Chymist, and over against Messrs. Living-ston's Sugar House."—N. Y. Merc., May 17, 1762.

18 Colden informs the assembly that 436 men are lacking to complete the colony's quota of forces, and urges the completion of the levies, "lest after the most signal Proofs of Loyalty, you should expose yourselves to Reproach by slackening your Zeal for the common Good, at this important conjuncture."—Assemb. Jour., II: 702.

19 On account of small-pox in the city, the assembly meets at the house of Mr. Jones in the West Ward.—Assemb. Jour., II: 702;
 cf. March 24, 1761.

24 "This is to give Notice, To all Gentlemen and Ladies, Lovers and Encouragers of Musick, That on Thursday next, being the 27th Instant, will be opened, by Messrs. Leonard and Dieuval, Musick Masters of this City, at Mr. Burnes's Room, near the Battery, A publick and weekly Concert of Musick;" admission, four shillings.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 24, 1762. See May 27.

26 Colden writes to Gen. Amherst: "The Mayor tells me that the Corporation have a house on Bedlow's Island of four rooms each of twenty feet square for the reception of the sick, and another House on the said Island where the Physicians & Surgeons may be accommodated."—Colden Papers in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1876), IX: 210.

"Mr Mayor, in behalf of Oliver De Lancy Esq<sup>r</sup> produced to this Board the Draft of the Survey of a publick Road or high way by him proposed to be Laid out at Greenwich instead of the present one, to Begin from the Road Leading from Cap<sup>t</sup> Clarke's and so to Run of the Same Breadth the Road now is through the Land of M<sup>r</sup> Warren to the Southward of the house and ground of Yellis Mandavells, Its Order'd by this Board that the said Oliver De Lancy have Liberty to alter the Road accordingly in such manner as by him above proposed, provided the same Road do bind to the Southward of the said Mandavells Land the whole length thereof so as to Give him access thereto, from every part of the Southerly side of his Lands and that the said Oliver De Lancy in Consideration of his Carrying the said Road through M<sup>r</sup> Warren Warren Land, have Liberty in her Behalf to Fence in and Inclose the old road Leading to the River as private property."—M. C. C., VI: 288. The above mentioned survey, dated May 24, 1762, was by Francis Maerschalck; it is preserved among the Warren Papers in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. See Sept. 3, 1763. The road made by Oliver De Lancy is shown without name on the Rater Map of 1766 (Pl. 41, Vol. I). It was subsequently the Great Kill Road; to the present day it survives as Gansevoort St. See Landmark Map Ref.

 Key, III: 1000 (Gansevoort St.) and 1001 (Great Kill Road); Pl.
 175, Vol. III. Maerschalck appends to his survey the remark:
 "The New Intended Road is Good Level Land."

See also the following important surveys of Sir Peter Warren's lands: (1) One showing the land between Broadway and Greenwich St., and the grant in the Hudson River; and (2) the "Survey of the Alteration of the Road at Grinage" (Greenwich), the latter being the one above referred to, showing Capt. Thomas Clark's road, Warren's Lane, the old road which leads from Greenwich, and the "New Intended Road which leads from Grinwidge." All of these surveys are preserved with the Warren Papers, in the N. Y.
Hist. Soc. See, further, A. Pl. 5-b, Vol. III.

The Earl of Stirling writes from New York to Lord Romney: 27
 "This part of his Majesty's dominions in North America, though populous and flourishing, still labours under the very great disad-vantage of wanting a proper seminary for the education of youth.
 Some attempts have been made towards establishing one. A College has been founded and partly built, but for want of sufficient funds it is, in some measure, at a stand, and cannot go on with spirit.

"It is an object that seems to me so worthy of the notice of the Society for the encouragement of Arts, Manufactures and Commerce [of which Lord Romney was president]; that I could not avoid recommending it to your Lordship. The bearer, Dr. [James] Jay [see Aug. 19], will present your Lordship with an address from the Governor of the College. They most ardently wish for the countenance of the Society, as it will be the best recommendation they can have to the rest of the world."—From The Life of William Alexander, Earl of Stirling [son of James Alexander], in N. J. Hist.
Soc. Collections (1847), II: 63.

A weekly concert is opened by Messrs. Leonard and Dieuval [see May 24] at "Mr. Burnes' Room, near the Battery."—N. Y.
Post-Boy, May 27, 1762. The tavern of George Burus was at Whitehall and bore the sign of the King's Head.

The merchants of the city, in a petition to Colden, give their reasons for having, up to the present time, continued their "Commercial Intercourse . . . with the French West India Settlements." They now promise "to disavow the trade themselves" and, if possible, "Totally to suppress it, during the Continuance of the Present War in America." They ask that Colden "abate the rigour of that resentment which some of our fellow Citizens at present Labour under, from a Concern in such trade." The petition is signed with more than fifty names.—Chalmers Papers, op. cit., II.

The king's birthday is celebrated "with the usual Demonstrations of Loyalty and Joy, by firing of Cannon, Illuminations, &c."—
N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 7, 1762.

"Most of the Men of War and Transports lately rendezvousing here, has fallen down to the Hook, to proceed on their destined Voyage, which yet remains a Secret."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman),
 June 7, 1762.

A galley of 12 guns, called the "Harlequin," is launched at the ship yards. "She is reckoned a very fine Vessel, and is very well built."—N. Y. Merc., June 14. Another galley of 16 guns, the "Monckton," was launched the following week.—Ibid., June 21.

The last Commencement of King's College under Dr. Johnson, its first president, is held, nine students being graduated with the degree of bachelor of arts. He was succeeded on Nov. 16 by the Rev. Myles Cooper, as acting president, who, on April 12, 1763, was elected president.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 14, 1762; Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 28-29, 42.

Robert Monckton arrives in New York. At his landing at 12 Whitehall he is "welcomed by a Discharge of the Artillery From Fort George, and the Earl of Halifax Packet . . . and received by his Honour the Lt. Governor, the Mayor and Corporation, and as many of the principal Gentlemen of this City, as could be collected on so short a Notice. It was intended that the City Militia, and the Independent Compaies were to have been drawn out on the Arrival of his Excellency, but the Time would not admit thereof."—N. Y. Merc., June 14, 1755. Gen. Monckton was returning

- 1762 from his successful conquest of Martinique (see Nov. 19, 1761) to July begin "with a splendor and magnificence equal to his birth" to act as June governor of New York Province.—Smith's Continuation of the Hist. of N. Y., in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1830), V: 308. On June 15, the common council presented him with an address of congratulation upon the success of the British forces under his command.—M. C. C., VI: 290-92; N. Y. Merc., June 21, 1762.
See Sept. 8.
- 13 The old Coffee House on the corner of Broad and Water Streets, which had been in existence since Sept. 22, 1709 (q.v.), and perhaps earlier, and which had passed into the possession of William Milliner, is on this day mortgaged by him to Philip van Cortlandt.
The mortgage describes the house as in the Dock Ward "on the Northernly side of the Broad Street and fronting the East River formerly Called the Coffee house." It is bounded on the west by Broad St., on the east by ground of Philip van Cortlandt and in the possession of Richard Waldron, on the front by the dock or street, and in the rear by other ground belonging to Milliner and also mortgaged.—Liber Mortgages, I: 304-5.
- 14 Gov. Monckton, in council, receives the seals and public papers.
—Col. Coun. Min., 458.
- 16 Eleven sail of transports arrive at New York from Martinique
"having the Sick and Wounded, Officers and Soldiers on board from that Place."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 21, 1762.
- 17 The "General Monckton Row Galley, of 14 Guns and 28 Oars," is launched.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 21, 1762.
- 25 The provincial council receives a royal mandamus to swear William Alexander (son of James Alexander and "claiming to be earl of Stirling"), as member of the council in place of Archibald Kennedy, resigned; he is sworn in and takes his seat.—Col. Coun.
Min., 458; N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 28, 1765. For his biography, see N. J. Hist. Soc. Collections (1847), II: 61. Although the houseof lords did not pass favourably upon his claim to the title, he was known in America as the Earl of Stirling. At this time (see May 27), he was one of the governors of King's College. He served the American cause in the Revolution as colonel and brigadier-general.
- 28 There are now "fitting out in this Harbour" the following priva-teers, viz., the brigs "Mars" of 18 guns, and "Monckton," 16 guns; the schooners "Harlequin," 14 guns, "Polly and Sally," 10 guns, and "New Harlequin," 14 guns, also the sloop "Dolphin," 10 guns.
"There is also a new ship to be launched next week to carry 18 guns."—N. Y. Merc., June 28, 1762.
- " "The second Fleet of Men of War and Transports are near ready to sail from this Place."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 28, 1762.
- " The post-office is, at this time, on Pot-Baker's Hill (cf. May 5) as appears by the advertisement of William Richards, a dealer in liquors, sugar, etc., whose address is "Pot-Baker's Hill, opposite to the Post-Office."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 28, 1762.
- July 7 During "a violent Gust of Wind and Rain, accompanied with uncommon Thunder and Lightning, the steeple of Trinity Church is struck and takes fire, but "by the timely and usual Vigilance of the Inhabitants [the flames are] happily extinguished, with little Damage." The steeple was under repair at the time.—N. Y. Merc., July 12, 1762. See March 19.
- " Fire destroys the printing-office of Mr. Farley, publisher of the Am. Chronicle, on "the New-Dock."—N. Y. Merc., July 12, 1762.
- 8 Trinity vestry orders "That the Spire of the Steeple of Trinity Church be wholly New Shingled and Scuttles be made with knobs that may be thought proper to go up to the Top of the Spire and that a proper Iron Conductor or Conductors be affixed up from the Spindle of the Cock to Come down into the Ground."—Trin. Min.
(MS).
- " There was a "French Boarding-School" in the city at this time, as we know from an advertisement containing this notice: "The Rev. Mr. Frederic Rothenbuhler, Minister of the Reformed Switzer Church, in New York, is removed to the House of Mr. John Duns-comb, in Oswego-Market Street: He continues teaching young Gentlemen and Ladies the Latin and French Languages as usual, with great Facility, in a short Time, to the utmost possible Perfection. Likewise, young Gentlemen and Ladies may be boarded by him, agreeable to their Rank; to instruct them in whatever is necessary for the finishing of their Education: All at a very reasonable Price."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 8, 1762. During colonial times there were also French boarding schools for girls exclusively (see April 21, 1773, and July 21, 1774). For an idea of the fees charged at this period for teaching languages, see May 19, 1766.
- 15 The common council appoints a committee "to ascertain the Range" on the east side of "Van Clyffs Ship, now Commonly Called Burlings Ship," where Peter Remsen and others possess a corporation grant and where they are "about to build and make some Considerable Improvements."—M. C. C., VI: 293-94.
- 26 Samuel Francis for the first time advertises his occupancy of the house now so well-known as Frances Tavern (see Jan. 15),
"at the Sign of Queen Charlotte, near the Exchange."—N. Y.
Merc., July 26, 1762. See April 11, 1700.
- Aug. 4 A certificate of manumission in favour of Lawrence Broome's
"Molatto Man Slave Called Robbin" is filed with the court of general sessions. Three men appear in court and give bond "in the penal Sum of Two hundred Pounds with Condition to Keep and Save the said Robbin from Becoming a Charge to this City or to any other Town City precinct or Place Within the Colony of New York."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), 1732-1762.
- 19 In this year, James Jay, M.D. (see May 27), was in England
soliciting and collecting subscriptions as agent for King's College; likewise the Rev. William Smith, D.D., in behalf of the college at Philadelphia (the present Univ. of Penn.). King George III issued letters patent (a "Royal Brief," endorsed, on Aug. 19, by Archbishop Secker of Canterbury), "under the Great Seal of Great Britain authorizing the making a collection throughout the Kingdom, from House to House, for the joint and equal Benefit of the Two Seminaries and Bodies Corporate aforesaid." This resulted in a benefit of about £6,000 to King's College, the king giving £400 out of his private purse.—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 31-33; 34.
See also N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 644. Archbishop Secker wrote on Oct. 6 to Pres. Johnson of King's College that Dr. Smith "was well contented with my procuring twice as much from the King for New College, as for Philadelphia, because the former is a Royal Foundation, and hath no other Patron."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 507-8. It was rumoured in New York on May 9, 1763, that the king's gift was £1,000.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 9, 1763.
- A summary of early contributions for the college shows the following items: Five or six acres of the King's Farm (see May 12, 1755) from Trinity Church, said to be worth £4,000 or £5,000, consisting of the four blocks now bounded by Church, Barclay's, Greenwich, and Murray Sts., and which, with the exception of 16 lots on Park Pl., are still held (1904) by the college; £3,202 raised by lotteries authorized by the assembly (see Nov. 25, 1751); £500 per annum out of the excise moneys of the province, for seven years from Jan. 1, 1754 (see July 4, 1753); contributions from the governors appointed by the charter, who subscribed £50, £100, or £200 each, and from other gentlemen of the city; £500 from Gov. Hardy (see Dec. 22, 1755); the bequest of the library of Joseph Murray (see 1757, and May 16, 1763), and his estate worth over £9,000;
the bequest of the library of Rev. Dr. Bristow (see May 16, 1763); £2,041 from Edward Antill; £500 from the Soc. for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts (see July 17, 1764); £50 from Charles Ward Apthorpe; £500 bequeathed by Paul Richard, and £100 by James Alexander; £100 from Gen. Shirley (see Dec. 22, 1755); £300 from Gen. Monckton; 20 guineas from Mr. Tanner, rector of Lowestoff in Suffolk, England; "Generous Donations," for which resolutions of thanks were passed in June, 1763, to the Rt.
Hon. William Pitt, and the two universities of Oxford and Cambridge; and contributions of small amounts, including, as shown by the college records, the picture of Pres. Johnson from Mr. Kilbourn, painter; "a Curious Collection of Ancient Alphabets on Copperplate" from Dr. Morton; books for the library from Mr.
Noel, the bookseller, Bartholomew Crannell, and other gentlemen;
the organ from Jacob Le Roy; and the bell from a person unnamed.
—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 33-35. See, further, Feb. 26, 1767.
- Sept. 8 Gov. Monckton gives "An elegant Entertainment at the Province Arms in this City on Occasion of the glorious Success of His Majesty's Arms [see June 12] in the Reduction of the Havannah." Various toasts are "drank under the Discharge of the Cannon at Fort George."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Sept. 13, 1762.
- 9 A lottery scheme is advertised to raise £3,000 to be applied toward repairing the city hall (see May 6).—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Sept. 9, 1762.
- 13 "To the Publick,
That Benjamin Blagge, of New-York, and William Richards, of New-Port, Rhode-Island, have provided, and properly fitted, two Sloops, to go between New-York and New-Port, Rhode-Island, as Packets, to transport Passengers and Merchandizes, at the under mentioned Rates; to sail, the one from New-York, every Friday, and the other from New-Port, every Thursday, Wind and Weather

- 1762 permitting.—The Masters to be spoke with (when in Port) from 12 'til 1 o'Clock, at the Coffee-House." Letters will be delivered to the post-office for 4d. each. The rate for a cabin passenger is one pistole; a steerage passenger, two dollars, and a two wheel carriage, horse, or cow, one pistole.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Sept. 13, 1762. This appears to have been the first regular transportation service established via Long Island Sound.
- 15 The common council passes "a Law Prohibiting the sale of Hay by measure," which is a method "unequal and uncertain" by reason of the "Unskillfulness" or "Disingenuity" of the "Cartman or Waggoner," and which gives rise to controversy "between the Boatmen and Cartmen" or "between the Buyers and Cartmen." This law requires, among other things, "that proper and Convenient Machines or Engines, and Scales and Weights for Weighing Carts and Waggoners and Hay, shall be made, Erected, furnished and provided at the Three following places"—the south end of the Broadway Market; Whitehall Slip; and the dwelling-house of the widow Van Kuren, in Montgomerie Ward. The Law fixes a price of one shilling and sixpence for the weighing of hay, to be paid to the person appointed to weigh hay, which sum is to be "returned to such Cartman or Waggoner, one half thereof by the seller, and the other half by the Buyer of such Hay." Every "Cartman and Waggoner" is required to weigh his cart or wagon before he shall cart any hay, and the perso appointed to weigh shall mark the weight with a marking-iron "upon the after part of the Shaft, or other place Easily to be Seen."—M. C. C., VI: 298-300.
- Oct. 11 Michael de Bruls solicits subscriptions for "Two different Water Views and two different Land Views" (of New York City) which he proposes to publish. These views will have "References in English, High Dutch and Low Dutch," and are to be "curiously engraved on a Copper Plate, of 21 by 12 Inches each, and printed on best large Paper." There will also be "neatly engraved on another Copper Plate" a plan of the streets "with their respective Names." Along with the prints will be published a pamphlet giving "an exact Accout of the wholsom Climate, pleasant Situation, Products, etc. of this Province, for the Benefit of the Subscribers, which they may chuse either in English, High Dutch or Low Dutch." The subscription price is stated as 20 shillings, "One Half to be paid on subscribing, the other Half on the Delivery of these Five Prints." Each subscriber will "give his Quality and Place of Abode," and subscriptions "will be closed on the last Day of January next." Delivery will be made "on or before the first Day of February next." De Bruls' establishment was "at the lower End of New-Street, Next Door to Col. Thodey."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 11, 1762. In the Expense Account Book (MS.) of Cadwallader Colden (preserved in N. Y. Hist. Soc.), under date of Oct. 31, 1763, appears this item: "Paid De Brules on Subscribing for 2 Sets of his Plans of New York . . . £114.10." Du Simitiere, in his notes on maps, etc. (book 1412 Y, Ridgeway Branch, Library Co. of Phila.), speaks of these views as follows (translated):
 "De Bruyl, a German and good workman but a mauvais Sujet, undertook in 1763 to engrave some views of New York which he had drawn himself. I saw there [in New York] in that year the plates which had been commenced. He took up a subscription, by the terms of which he was to receive half of the sum ($100) at the time of the subscription, but he kept the money and never finished the work."
 "The managers of "the New-York Assembly" advertise its opening on Oct. 28, and state that it will be held fortnightly, during the season, "at Crawley's New Room."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Oct. 11, 1762. This was apparently a dancing assembly.—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 8, 1761.
- 27 A public vendue is advertised to take place on this day of a "Large commodious dwelling-house" with a "famous large garden . . . that with little improvement, might be made the finest garden on the island." The property, which is on a lease of which seventeen years still remain, from March 25, 1763, subject only to a ground rent of £22, is "pleasantly situated on a bank on Hudson's River, near the College (known by the name of Mount Pleasant) . . ." Applications are to be made to Mr. George Harrison, "in the Broad Way."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 18, 1762. For a history of Mount Pleasant, or the Old Bowling Green, see March 29, 1738. On April 18, 1763, the premises were again advertised "To be Sold, or Let" (ibid., Apr. 18, 1763), but by June 20, 1763 (q. v.), John Elkin was in occupation.
- Nov. Sir William Franklin (illegitimate son of Benjamin Franklin), the Governor of New Jersey, writes from "Soberton, near Farchem Hants," to William Strahan (an old friend of his father), stating, among other things, that he desires a portrait of the king to be painted by "Ramsay, one of the King's Painters," and sent to him at New York. He also states: "The Print of Mr. Chamberlayne's Picture of my Father was not done when I came away, but I told him that if the Execution was approv'd of by Mr. Ludwell and Mr. Myers, that I would take too of them."—From the original letter, sold by Henkels, Phila. (no. 108), Oct. 22, 1919.
 "We hear a very handsome Piece of Plate, having proper Inscriptions, and Ænigmatical Representations on it, has been sent over . . . to His Excellency Sir Jeffery Amherst, as a Token, among the Rest his Excellency has received, of the high Sense the Nation has of his great Service in America."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Nov. 1, 1762.
 "Preliminaries for restoring peace" with France and Spain are signed at Fontaiebleau. They were ratified Nov. 22, at which time hostilities were to cease, and from which date the return of ships captured at sea was to be reckoned. On Nov. 26, proclamation was issued at the court of St. James, and, on Jan. 22, 1763 (q. v.), the news had reached New York, and a like proclamation was made.—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 24, 1763. For the peace treaty, see Feb. 10, 1763. By a secret treaty of the same date Louis XV cedes to Spain "that part of Louisiana which lay west of the Mississippi, with the island on which New Orleans is situated. France, therefore, in this desperate crisis, parted with all her American possessions on the main land, and her name nearly disappeared from the map of North America."—Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., VI: 686.
 "The Laws, Statutes, Ordinances and Constitutions, Ordained, Made and Established, By the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty, of the City of New-York are published. They were printed and sold in 1763 by John Holt, "at the New Printing Office, at the lower End of Broad Street, opposite the Exchange."—From The Charlemagne Tower Collection of Am. Colonial Law (pub. by the Hist. Soc. of Penn., 1896), 181. A copy is preserved in the N. Y. Hist. Soc.
 "To be Sold by the Church-Wardens, the Organa in Trinity Church.—The Instrument is large, consisting of 26 Stops, . . . will be sold cheap, and the Purchaser may remove it immediately, (another being expected from England next Spring) but if it is not disposed of, is, on the Arrival of the new Organ, intended to be shipt to England."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Nov. 15, 1762. For the vestry's resolution to buy a new organ, see Jan. 2, 1761.
 George Hopkins, "on the New-Jock," exhibits, at sixpence each person, "A surprizing calf, having 7 legs," etc.—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 15, 1762. Hopkins was a tavern-keeper. A year later (see June 20, 1763) his tavern stood on William St. and bore the sign of the Mason's Arms.
 Trinity vestry resolves that "all the Church Lands that are to be lett for the future be leased for any Term not Exceeding Sixty three nor less than Twenty one years."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
 "Mr. Banyar Deputy Secretary, brought to the House, from his Excellency the Governor, Accounts of Repairs to the Governor's House, &c. in the Fort; amounting in the whole, to the Sum of £523:9:5½."—Assemb. Jour., II: 7715.
 "His Majesty has granted a Royal Bounty of £600, for the joint Benefit of the Colleges lately established in the Cities of New-York and Philadelphia, and has authorised the making a Collection for the same laudable Purpose throughout the Kingdom."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Dec. 6, 1762; cf. Aug. 19, 1761.
 Gov. Monckton having earnestly recommended the settlement of the boundary line between New York and New Jersey (Assemb. Jour., II: 714), a legislative act is passed "for submitting the property of the Lands which are held or Claimed by Grants under the Great Seal of this Colony [New York] and are affected by the Controversy about the boundary or Partition Line between this Colony and the Colony of New Jersey to such a Method of decision as his most Gracious Majesty shall think proper by his Royal Commission or otherwise to appoint and for defraying the Expece to accrue on the part of this Colony on the final settlement of the said Line."—N. Y. Col. Docs., IV: 640. See July 18, 1769.
 A provincial act is passed to "impower and Enable the Mayor Recorder and Aldermen of the City of New York . . . to order the Raising a Sum not exceeding Fourteen hundred Pounds by a Tax . . . for Lighting of Lamps, and providing a Sufficient Number of Watchmen."—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 671. Similar acts were passed annually thereafter during the month of December.
 On this day also another act is passed, which provides that 30 firemen shall be appointed in the city of New York, in addition to 1762 the number already serving. According to a former act said number was not to exceed 42.—Ibid., IV: 673. Still another act of this date was for raising £6,000 by lottery, a part of which was to be used for finishing the light house on Sandy Hook (see May 19, 1761).

11 —Ibid., IV: 667-68.

21 A committee of the common council is appointed "to Treat with a person to act as Master Builder for altering and repairing the old City Hall."—M. C. C., VI: 314. The proceedings which followed are briefly stated in the following summary: On March 8, 1765 (q. v.), the board "having agreed this day with And<sup>w</sup> Breasted to alter & repair the City Hall for the more Commodious Reception of the Several Branches of the Legislature, and for the Holding of Courts, and other publick uses," he was allowed, "as being the principal Carpenter or master workman," the sum of 16 shillings a day for every day in actual service, but he "is to Receive no benefit from those who he Shall employ under him," and he shall "keep the act<sup>s</sup> which Immediately Relate to his Business &c."—Ibid., VI: 323. On April 12 (q. v.), the "Committee appointed to order the Repairing and ornamenting the City Hall" submitted to the board "the draft or plan of Such Alteration or Amendment;" this was approved, and it was ordered "that the Said Committee Cause the same to be repaired and ornamented in such Manner accordingly." At the same time, the "managers of the Lottery appointed in and by an Act entitled an act for Raising the Sum of three Thousand pounds by way of Lottery towards repairing the City Hall" (Assemb. Jour., II: 701),—exhibited "their accounts of the Lottery Monies by them severally-received," and it was ordered that these amounts be paid to Philip Livingston, chairman of the committee.—Ibid., VI: 326. On April 20 (q. v.), it was ordered that the committee "write to Bristol for so much Thatch of Copper as is Necessary to Cover" the city hall (p. 327); on June 16 (q. v.), that they "have power to Raise the same a Story higher" (p. 331); and on July 8 (q. v.), that "the Canopy in the front of the City Hall be brought forward so far into the Street, as to be upon a Range with the two wings thereof" (p. 333). On Nov. 9 (q. v.), the mayor was required to write to Bristol "for so much more Thatch of Copper as will be found Necessary for Finishing the same."—Ibid., VI: 357.

On Dec. 5 (q. v.), it was ordered that the committee have liberty to borrow £500 upon interest "for the use of this Corporation" (p. 360). On May 11, 1764 (q. v.), payment of £500 was made to Whitehead Hicks, alderman of the East Ward, by the city treasurer, "out of the monies paid into his hands by the Church Wardens of this City . . . to be by him applied towards Rebuilding the City Hall," the board agreeing to return the sum "to the said Treasurer or Chamberlain as Soon as the Same shall be by him required."—Ibid., VI: 375-76. On Aug. 29, Alderman Hicks received £300 from the treasurer out of the same fund (p. 386-87). On Nov. 9 (q. v.), it was ordered that he borrow £500 on interest "towards the payment of the Expenses for Enlarging the City Hall" (p. 400); and on May 3, 1765 (q. v.), he received £500 from the treasurer (p. 417). On the same date it was ordered "that Andrew Breasted for the present do finish the Library Room in the City Hall in the most plain and Cheap manner that Can be, and Repair the Stairs as well Leading from below to the Assembly Chamber, as that Leading to the Common Council Room in the Like manner" (p. 418). A number of payments were made on Nov. 20, 1767 (q. v.), for the materials and work done on the repairs.—Ibid., VII: 90-92. The total expense from Dec. 5, 1763, to this date, is estimated to be about £2,061.

11 John Zurricker is paid £15 "for the Cutting of Twelve Cornishes and five Arches for the old City Hall."—M. C. C., VI: 313.

11 It is ordered by the common council that the firemen "appear in leather Caps at any fire which may happen within this City."—M. C. C., VI: 315.

11 The common council orders payment for repairs to the Broadway Market.—M. C. C., VI: 313. For the origin of this market, see April 13, 1738. It was also called the Oswego Market.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 959; De Voe, Market Book, 272.

27 Wm. Elbersen, intending to leave New York, offers for sale, besides his hardware shop at the "Cross Keys and Crown," near the Fly Market, a "new riding chair and single seat, and a negro man, about 20 years old." Elbersen may be seen "at the Whitehall Coffee-house, from the hours of 10 to 4."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 27, 1762.

11 A "good new dwelling-house, and 4 lots of ground, wherein Benjamin Keats now lives, situate in the West-ward of the city of New York" are offered for sale. Applications are to be made to Philip Kissick, of New York, "vintner."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 27, 1762. This was a tavern at the present 253-254 Broadway, later Montague's. See April 5, 1754.

1763

Probably in this year were drawn, by Capt. Thomas Howdell, R. A., two views of New York, one from the south-west and one from the south-east. These views, which were engraved by P. Canot, are reproduced and described in Vol. I, Pls. 37 and 38.

Two separate copies of a map formerly made by Mr. Maerschaldk in this year are on file in Vol. II of "Bayard Deeds" (1780-1845) in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. The original was "either lost or mislaid during the present troubles," a record to this effect appearing on the copies, made by S. Gale on May 6, 1780. The original is described as "A Map of a Parcel of Land Situate near the Hospital in the City of New York—Part of the Estate of the late Reverend Henry Barclay Deceased. Scale Forty Feet in an Inch . . ." This survey shows the location of "The Negroes Burying Ground," "Ground Fronting the Hospital," "Ann St.," "Anthony St.," "Thomas St.," "Katherine St.," etc.

Work on the Atlantic Neptune, a collection of charts, plans, and views of the coast and harbours of North America, was begun in this year. The plates were made under the supervision of Lieut.-Col. Des Barres for the use of the British navy. The work extended from 1763 to 1784, and the printing began in 1774. Editions were printed in 1777, 1780, 1781, and 1784. For a detailed account and a description of the publication, see I: 349-52. Two of the Atlantic Neptune views of New York are reproduced as Pls. 44 and 45a, Vol. I.

In this year, James Beekman erected his mansion-house, "Mount Pleasant."—Liber Deeds, XL: 475 (New York). On the modern map it would stand at the north-west corner of First Ave. and 51st St. The house became the headquarters of Gen. Howe, in Revolutionary days, and it was here that Nathan Hale was condemned to death, as a spy (see Sept. 21, 1776). The house was demolished in 1874.—Liber Deeds, MCLXXXII: 282, 294 (New York). A marble mantel from one of its stately rooms is now in the possession of the N. Y. Hist. Soc. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 948; Pl. 176, Vol. III. For views of the mansion, both exterior and interior, see Man. Com. Coun. (1854), 554; (1861), 496, 498, 502. For an account of the Beekman farm in relation to modern streets, see N. Y. Times, Dec. 6, 1914.

John Brinrer, "Cabinet and Chairmaker, from London, At the Sign of the Chair, opposite Flatten-Barrack Hill, in the Broad-Way, New-York" offers "every article in the cabinet, chair-making carving, and gilding business." He "carves all sorts of chimney pieces, glass and picture frames, and all kinds of mouldings and front-pieces, &c. Desk and book cases, library book cases, writing and reading tables, commode and bureau dressing tables, commode and plain chests of drawers, all sorts of plain and ornamental chairs, sofa beds, settees, couches and easy chairs, . . ."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 3, 1763.

The members of the Dutch Church who opposed the call of an English minister (see May 3, 1762) inform the consistory that they will agree "to the call of such a minister to preach in the New [Nassau St.] Church, . . . retaining one turn for the Dutch on Sunday." In six, eight, or ten years, they think, "another church shall be built on suitable grounds belonging to the church; and this Third Church shall be for the use of the English service; and to the building of which they promise for themselves and others to give liberally." John Hardenbrock is requested "to make a plan of a Gallery in the New Church, according to the eighth Article [see May 3, 1762], and state how much stuff will be required, that the timber may be obtained for seasoning." A committee is appointed "to write to Holland, to such gentlemen as they deem suitable, to look out for such a minister."—Eccles. Rec., VI: 3841-42. A blank call was sent to Holland on Jan. 18 (q. v.) for a minister to preach in English. This letter gave a review of the whole situation which prompted the call. Among other things it stated that "as our New Church is a large edifice, being one hundred English feet long and seventy-five feet wide, it will require a man with a strong audible voice . . ."—Ibid., VI: 3853-56. Regarding the chosen minister, see July 16.

The common council orders that advertisements be published for leasing "the ferry Between this City and Nassau Island the

- 1763 Stalls and Standings in the Severall Marketts and the publick wharfs and Slips of this City," also "the Exchange House now in the possession of Mr Roper Dawson at the Lower End of Broad Street." Jan. 18
 13 —M. C. C., VI: 316. 22
 " The mayor is granted £125 by the common council for his fees the past year in connection with granting "Lycences for retailing of Strong Liquors;" 241 licenses were issued, yielding £359:18.—M. C. C., VI: 317. 26 18 A letter is written by the ministers, elders, and deacons of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church to the Rev. David Longueville and the Rev. James Blinshall at Amsterdam, which reads in part: Feb. 3
 "Being an English Colony and all matters of Government, Courts of Justice, and our trade and Traffick with foreigners Carried on in the English Language has by the Length [sic] of time gradually undermined our Mother Tongue, in so much that there is scarce a principal family in this City and Even of our own Church whose Children Clearly understand the Dutch Language by means whereof we have Daily the Mortification to see the Ospring of the wealthiest members of our own Congregation Leave our Divine worship, not being able to apprehend what is taught And Join themselves to different Societies that are amongst us, and in Such Numbers, that the Respective English Congregations at Present in this City for the greatest part Consists of Persons who are Descendents of parents that were formerly Communicants of our Church, And they daily Leave us not without regret on Account of their not fully Understanding the Dutch Ministers and of Course are more Edified by English Preaching. Our Congregation has therefore been for some Years past a Nursery for all the English Denominations of Christians in this City, and those Chiefly from our Principal people, Whereby most men now in power belong to other Congregations though Liniially Descended from Dutch Parents." 6
 Therefore, they express the desire that an English speaking preacher of the Reformed faith be sent over. They want a "Good Orator Used to Elegant Language, Acquainted with men and Books, to be Orthodox in his principles, Of an Unblemished Character, and Affable in his Behaviour." In a postscript they mention the Rev. Archibald Laidlie, minister at Vlissingen in Zealand, as one whose qualifications they would be pleased to have investigated.—A Journal of the proceedings of the Consistory of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church of the City of New York in Regard to the Petitions of their Congregation for Calling an English Preacher and the Disputes arising therefrom—1762 (MS.), preserved in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Cf. 10
Eccles. Rec., VI: 3854-56, where the letter is erroneously dated. Laidlie was called (see July 16).
 The royal proclamation of Nov. 26, 1762, is issued here, declaring a cessation of hostilities with France and Spain (see Nov. 3, 1762); it is ordered to be reprinted and published.—Cal. Coun. Min., 460-61; N. Y. Merc., Jan. 24, 1763. Peace was concluded on Feb. 10 (q.v.).
 A newspaper advertisement reads: "To be sold at Public Vendue, At the Merchant's Coffee House, on the 26th Day of January Instant the House and Lot of Ground known by the Name of the Whitehall Coffee-House, with house adjoining, being Part of the Estate of the late Col. John. Moore."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Jan. 10, 1763. The Whitehall Coffee-House had been opened on June 14, 1762, by Rogers and Humphrey, who notified the public that they had made arrangements to receive from London and Bristol "all the public Prints and Pamphlets, as soon as published," and to have on hand a "weekly Supply of New-York, Philadelphia, Boston, and other American Papers."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 8 1762. The enterprise was, apparently, a failure.
 A post-rider, James Monkler of Hartford, has for some time been regularly carrying the N. Y. Gaz.; or, the Weekly Post-Boy from New York to Hartford, by way of New Haven.—See a notice by John Holt in the Post-Boy of March 3, 1763.
 Gen. Gage, in a letter to Col. Bradstreet, at Albany, thanks him "for Supplying Fort George with Flower," and informs him that carpenters are to start from New York on the toth, "and, I hope will join those from Boston at Albany."—Gen. Gage's Letters (MS.), 1759-73, in Harvard College Library.
 The Treaty of Paris.—Articles of a peace concluded by England, France, and Spain are signed. By this treaty Great Britain receives control of Canada and all the territory east of the Mississippi, except New Orleans. The French are to have the liberty of fishing and drying on the coast of Newfoundland, and of fishing in the Gulf of St. Lawrence three leagues from the coasts belonging to Great Britain. They are likewise ceded the islands of St. Pierre, and Miquelon.—N. Y. Merc., May 16 and 23, 1763. For the "Preliminaries for restoring peace," see Nov. 3, 1762.
 After the news of the treaty of peace reached America, Benjamin Franklin, then postmaster-general, established a monthly postal service between Canada and New York.—Smith, Hist. of the Post-Office in British No. Am., 1, citing Gen. P. O. Treasury Letter-Book, 1760-1771, p. 95. See April 25, 1772.

CHAPTER III
THE REVOLUTIONARY PERIOD
1763-1776-1783
PART I
1763-1776

CHAPTER III

THE REVOLUTIONARY PERIOD

1763-1776-1783

PART I

1763-1776

- 1763
Feb. 11
- A VERY brief summary of some of the principal events of the Revolutionary epoch in New York City's history, from this date (following the Treaty of Paris—see Feb. 10) through Nov. 25, 1783 (the date of the evacuation of the city by the British), is contained in Chapter III of Vol. I, pp. 301-34.
- 15 John Kingston, James Reade, and their respective wives, release to the corporation "all their Right and Interest of and in Several Streets" laid out through land "Lying a little to the Northward of the fresh water."—M. C. C., VI, 321-22. A map of this land made by Francis Maerschalk, and dated Nov. 21, 1751, is known as the "Kingston Draught." The streets on this tract, above referred to, are the modern Mott, Mulberry, Baxter, and Park Sts., and Mission Pl. See Aug. 15.
- " William Walton, Jacobus Roosevelt, and others living in the eastern part of the city, petition the common council for leave to build a public market house at or near Peck Slip, at their own expense. They find they can more conveniently and cheaply buy produce from the country boats that bring such articles to this slip; but they are prevented from doing so by a city ordinance which requires that provisions shall be carried to and sold only at the public markets.—From the original petition (MS.) in file No. 4, city clerk's record-room. Consideration of the subject being deferred (M. C. C., VI, 321), it was ordered, on March 8, that a certain committee "direct the Same to be made and Erected in such Convenient place thereabouts as they Shall Judge most requisite for the publick Good."—Ibid., VI, 324. The expense for finishing this market was paid on Oct. 28.—Ibid., VI, 352.
- The Peck Slip Market was the first one built of brick in the city. It stood facing Water St., on the westerly side, at the head of Peck Slip, which derived its name from Benjamin Peck; and was in the neighbourhood of fashionable dwellings. For various newspaper references to it, see De Voe's Market Book, 305. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III, 959.
- " The "Hay Machine" (scales) erected by Isaac van Hook (see July 1, 1756) "proved Abortive," but he is paid £79;19;8 for the expense of erecting it.—M. C. C., VI, 322. On May 11, 1764, he was given permission to erect another "in that part of his ward directed by act of assembly."—Ibid., VI, 376-77. See also De Voe, Market Book, 273.
- 28 The members of St. Andrew's Society hold their quarterly meeting at the "Sign of the Province Arms."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Feb. 21, 1763. This was the City Tavern, at 115 Broadway, of which, at this time, John Crowley was proprietor. See May 2, 1754. On April 11, Crowley advertised a vendue, to be held on the 28th at his house, the "New-York Arms," of tavern furniture, which included "three complete Sets of Pyramid Glasses, with Sylabub, Jelly, and Sweetmeat ditto," and announced that he would leave very soon for England.—Ibid., Apr. 11, 1763. By May 16 (q. v.), George Burns had become the new proprietor of the Province Arms. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III, 977.
- Mar. 7 The deacons of the French Protestant Church petition Mookton for a charter, incorporating them "by the name & style of the Minister, Elders & Deacons of the protestant French Church of the City of New York." They review the history of the church in the province.—Doc. Hist. N. Y., III, 295-96. See also June 19, 1703, and July 8, 1704. Regarding the probably unsuccessful outcome of this petition, see the rejection of similar petitions of the Lutherans, Presbyterians, etc., under March 24, and Aug. 26, 1767.
- 8 "This Board having agreed this day with And<sup>w</sup> Breasted to alter & repair the City Hall for the more Commodious Reception of the Several Branches of the Legislature, and for the Holding of Courts, and other publick uses [see Dec. 21, 1762], and for that purpose have allowed him, as being the principal Carpenter or master workman, the Sum of Sixteen Shillings p<sup>r</sup> Day, for every Day he Shall be in actual Service, he the said Andrew Breasted is to Receive no benefit from those who he shall Employ under him, and to keep the acc<sup>t</sup>s which Immediately Relate to his Business &c."—M. C. C., VI, 323. See April 12.
- A committee of the common council is appointed to supervise an addition to the Coenties Market.—M. C. C., VI, 324. This was the fish market at Coenties Slip and Pearl St. See Nov. 16, 1720; Aug. 22, 1771; May 7, 1773; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III, 958.
- 15 Three petitions are presented to the common council regarding new markets on the North River. The first is from a group of inhabitants of the West Ward, "Residing near the slip at the Lower end of Cortlaodt Street," who ask "leave to Erect a public market House there at their own expence." The second is from another group in the same ward, "Residing at the Lower End of Deys Street," who ask "leave to Erect a Market House also there at their own Expence." The third is from certain inhabitants in this ward, "residing at or near the Oswego Market in the Broadway Street," who petition "against Granting the prayer of the above said two Petitions" until they also can be heard.—M. C. C., VI, 325.
- " The originals of the three petitions, still preserved in the city clerk's record-room (file No. 4), reveal several interesting features of the market conditions of that day. The first two groups of petitioners complain of the distance from the North River of "the Crown Market (more commonly called the Oswego Market) in the Broadway" (at the centre of Broadway at the present Liberty St.); because "the Country Produce brought down and across the said River to supply the markets of this City must be carried in Carts from the different slips and wharfs on the North River to the said Crown Market, by which means (together with the Expence of sometimes Storing the same at or near the said wharfs till it can be carted) the Price of the said produce is very much enhanced to your Petitioners and other Purchasers." It is explained by those petitioners who are in favour of Cortlandt St. that "the Produce in general supply'd by the People residing on both sides of the North River, is brought down by Boatmeo, who likewise in a great degree officiate as Factors, but being paid only for the bare Freight of the same, to shun the danger of leaving their Boats exposed in the different Slips with the property of others on board, and the Expence of Cartage, do very frequently dispose of the Produce at the Riverside, in contempt of the Law established by the Worshipful Board to the Contrary, and to the great disappointment of those who daily attend the Public Markets to purchase Necessaries for the immediate use of their Families; That some Boatmeo, fearful of transgressing the good Institution forbidding any Persons to dispose of Country Produce but at the Public Markets, for want of a Proper Market Place, often refuse to take in charge or bring such effectual supplies as they otherwise might do, which must needs occasion a scarcity of the same, and consequently cause that which is brought, to be kept up at an extravagant Price; That the hardship attending the Farmers themselves who attend the Market, is very obvious, on Account of the carting their produce (beside that Expence as by attending the first Load, what remains in the Boat or on the Dock, is liable to be pilfer'd, and many other Casualties, for which reason above they dread bringing at one time to Market more Produce than can be contained in a single Cart, which is another bad tendency towards the supply of the City."
- The petitioners in favour of Dey St. say that "the said Dey Street

- 1763 from the Broadway to the said slip, having lately been dug out and paved by an order of this worshipful Board, is wide and spacious, and has a very gradual, easy and equal Descent in all parts of it, which renders it much the best street leading from the Broadway to the North River as well for Carts Wagons and other Carriages as for persons to walk on foot."
- Mar. 15 The opposition group desire particularly to be heard against the proposal to build a market "at the North River near the Dwelling house of Peter Messier" (see July 16, 1742). Although the two proposals are not again specifically referred to in the records (that for a market at Cortlandt St. was previously rejected—see M. C. C., V: 56), both appear to have been denied.—See Ibid., VII: 331-32.
- 16 Daniel Horsmaaden is appointed chief-justice of the supreme court by Gov. Monckton.—Cal. Coun. Min., 461; N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 528. For the controversy in regard to the appointment of judges, their tenure of office, and salary, see Aug. 12, 1761.
- 21 Trinity Church offers for lease two lots of ground, "joining the Stockadoes, and along the North-River," for the terms of 21, 42, or 63 years.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), March 21, 1763. The stockades or palisades which were built in 1746 (see July 6, 1745) are shown on the Holland Map, Pl. 36-b, Vol. I. See also Sept. 17, 1757, and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 945.
- " Lodewick Bamber, "near the New-English Church, in Beekman's-street," offers for sale rum, molasses, and other commodities, including "waffle-irons," "German flutes," and "large Dutch Bibles with copper plates."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), March 21, 1763. In May, 1775, Edward Bardin, who had been proprietor of Hamden Hall, at Broadway and Warren St., "removed to the house and large garden in Beekman-street, formerly called Chapel-street, . . . lately occupied by Mr. Bamber, and now called Kensington."—Rivington's Gazetteer, May 18, 1775.
- Apr. 4 Martin Prendergast advertises the sale on this day of a "Good new commodious Dwelling House and Lot of Ground, together with another Lot adjoining, both Lots at 6¢ per Annum Quit Rent to the Corporation. . . . It has all the Conveniences fit for a Tavern, is now kept as such . . . at the Sign of the Hurlers; has a very fine Tennis-Court, or Fire-Alley, and lies between the New-Gaol and Fresh Water Hill . . ."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), April 4, 1763. On June 20, 1763, Prendergast again advertised his two houses to lease. He described each house as having "three good Fireplaces, a good Cellar, and renting now £21 each per Annum."—Ibid., June 20, 1763. Again, on April 18, 1764, he announced the sale, on April 29, by public vendue of his tavern, the "Sign of the Hurlers."—N. Y. Merc., April 18, 1764. The location given of this tavern corresponds closely with that of Benjamin Kierstedt, which was taken over prior to March 22, 1756 (q.v.), by Luke Clarke.
- " Samuel Francis opens an ordinary at the "Sign of Queen Charlotte" (see July 26, 1763).—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), April 4, 1763.
- 5 "Ordered that M<sup>r</sup> Reade M<sup>r</sup> Marston M<sup>r</sup> Horsmanden M<sup>r</sup> Harrison and M<sup>r</sup> Desbrosses or any three of them be a Committee to Enquire and look out for a proper and Convenient Lot of Ground in this City whereon to Erect a New Church and report their Opinion to this board with all Convenient Speed."—Trin. Min. (MS.). These proceedings resulted in the erection by Trinity of the second chapel of ease, known as St. Paul's, and still standing, the sole surviving ecclesiastical building of the colonial period on Manhattan Island. The movement was probably encouraged by Trinity's accession of many English-speaking members of the Dutch congregation.—Dix's Hist. of Trin. Church, I: 302-3. See June 16.
- 11 A tavern, with the sign of Admiral Hawke, stood in this year "opposite the New-Market," in Peck Slip.—N. Y. Merc., Apr. 11, Aug. 15, 1763.
- 12 The committee "appointed to order the Repairing and ornamenting the City Hall" (see Dec. 21, 1762) submits to the common council "the draft of plan of Such Alteration or Amendment." The plan is approved and the committee is ordered to put it into effect. At the same meeting the managers appointed in accordance with the provisions of the act for raising by lottery the sum of £3,000 to repair the city hall (see May 6, 1762) make a report of their accounts. The board orders that the "Several Ballances" be paid to Philip Livingston, chairman of the committee.—M. C. C., VI: 326. See April 20.
- " According to a notice published on April 4, the governors of King's College are desired to meet on this day in the college hall.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), April 4, 1763. It is the first date of record of their meeting there. They were announced to meet there again on
- Apr. 12.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 4, 1761. On Aug. 23, however, the announced place of meeting was "the House of Samuel Francis, 12 near the Exchange."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Aug. 15, 1763.
- " The Rev. Myles Cooper, "a Gentleman recommended by his Grace the Arch-bishop of Canterbury for his distinguished Learning, firm Attachment to our happy Constitution, Probity and amiable Character," is unanimously elected president of King's College.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), April 18, 1763.
- 18 Notice is given in the Mercury that "The first of May the Printing-Office at the Bible & Crown, in Hanover-Square [see May 12, 1757], is to be removed to Rotten-Row, next Door to that Corner opposite the Merchants' Coffee House."—N. Y. Merc., Apr. 18, 1763; Ford, Jour. of Hugh Gaine, I: 9. Gaine moved once more on Oct. 3, 1763 (q.v.).
- 20 The committee appointed "to order the Repairing and ornamenting the City Hall" is directed to "write to Bristol for so much Thatch of Copper as is Necessary to Cover the same and place the Expense thereof to this Corporation."—M. C. C., VI: 327. See June 16 and Nov. 9.
- 29 Payment of £15:15:5 is ordered by the common council for repairs to "Coenties pier."—M. C. C., VI: 329. This pier was constructed in 1750 (see April 26, 1750) and is designated as the "Albany Pier" first on the Maerschack Plan of 1755 (Pl. 34, Vol. I). Further payment for repairs was ordered Jan. 12, 1764.—Ibid., VI: 363-64. For the extension of this pier, see March 7, 1765. It is sometimes alluded to simply as "the Corporations pier" (Ibid., VII: 113), not to be confused with the later "Corporation Dock" (Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 989) on the Hudson shore.
- 30 John Wilkes is arrested and committed to the Tower of London for libelling the king in an article published in the North Briton.—See Pol. Hist. of England, X: 6.
- May — It is ordered by the governors of King's College that the committee "to erect the College Ground with a Fence of Posts & Rails."—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1902), 27. See also May, 1764.
- 1 Mrs. Sarah Steele, who had been for a short time proprietor of the "King's Arms" tavern, just north of the corner of Broad and Water Sts. (see Oct. 3, 1748), moves to Whitehall, taking with her this famous old tavern sign.—N. Y. Gaz., May 2, 1763. The large house into which she moved was on the present south-east corner of Whitehall and Bridge Sts., and had been erected as a private dwelling, in 1653, by Cornelis Steenwyck, and occupied by him until his death. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 952, 979; Pl. 174, Vol. III. Mrs. Steele remained here until shortly after Jan. 15, 1767 (q.v.), when she offered the house for sale or lease. On April 4, 1768, the premises, then occupied, probably as a private dwelling-house, by Col. Gabbet, were again offered for rent, "with or without Furniture, as may suit the Tenant." Apparently the house was not re-occupied as a tavern until 1770, when Edward Bardin became proprietor (see Aug. 27, 1770), but before May 13, 1771 (q.v.). Burns had succeeded Bardin, and the house was again advertised for rent. Burns was still here on June 24, 1771, when another advertisement offered the place for lease. It may be presumed, from the frequency with which the premises changed hands, that the old house had fallen into decay and was no longer desirable for tavern-keeping. No record exists to indicate that this site was a popular resort during the next few years. The house was burned during the great fire of Sept. 21, 1776. While Mrs. Steele and others were conducting the King's Arms tavern at Whitehall, another and more popular "King's Arms" was being kept at the upper end of Broadway, the later noted tavern of Montagne, for a history of which, see-March 41, 1754.
- 2 "The Post-Office is removed to Mr. Van Dam's House, where Capt. Pryce lately dwelt, opposite the North-West Corner of the New-Dutch Church."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 2, 1763. For the use of the church itself as a post-office later, see Jan. 27, 1845.
- 5 John Holt offers for sale certain acts of assembly "At the New Printing Office, at the House where Mrs. Steel has for some Years kept the King's Arms Tavern, opposite the Exchange in Broad Street."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 5, 1765. Holt's former location was at Burling Slip (see April 29, 1762).
- " John Holt observes, in his newspaper, that it is much more necessary in New York than in London that names be put on doors, as the inhabitants here move every May Day; and if, with the name of the inhabitant (which might be on a moveable board), the name of the street or place were also affixed to every house, it would en-

- 1763 able people to find one another with little inquiry.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 6, 1763. June
- 6 Pontiac's conspiracy is initiated in an attempt to capture Detroit by treachery.—Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., VI: 690. " "
- 9 It is said His Majesty has been pleased to give One Thousand Pound towards the completing the Colleges erecting at New York and Philadelphia [see Dec. 6, 1764]. He has also been pleased to grant a Brief for collecting throughout Great-Britain, the contributions of the Well-disposed, for such useful Institutions. It is further said, That no Person is to be retained in the Classical Part of Education, but such who are Master of Arts; and that those are all to be sent from England.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 9, 1763.
- 16 An announcement is made public the day before Commencement "that the Governors of King's College, . . . have received a Donation by the last Vessels from London, of no less than Twelve Hundred Volumes, of valuable, well chosen, and useful Books; being Part of the Library of the late eminent and worthy Divine, Doctor Briotour: The Remainder of his Library, consisting of several Hundred Volumes more, is expected every Day . . . And which with the Library of the late Hon. Joseph Murray, Esq; (a Gift also to the College) are immediately to be placed in the College Library, for the Use of the Students, under proper Restrictions and Regulations. . . . The rising Generation will now enjoy a Blessing our Fore-fathers were destitute of. . . ."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 16, 1763. For other donations to the infant college, see Aug. 19, 1762.
- " George Burns, who "lately kept the King's Head Tavern, at the Whitehall, is moved to the Province Arms, in the Broad-Way, . . . He has two excellent Grooms to attend his Stables; and takes in Travellers and their Horses: And will Stable Town Horses by the Month, Quarter, or Year, on reasonable Terms."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 16, 1763. Burns succeeded Crawley (see Feb. 28, 1763). The following month John Graham, proprietor of the Duke of York's Head, also at Whitehall, became tavern-keeper of the King's Head.—Ibid., June 13, 1763.
- " Richard Howard notifies the public that he has "open'd a House of Entertainment the noted and well frequented one wherein Mr. Philip Kaysick formerly, and Mr. Benjamin Keates lately lived, near the College, on the Church Ground; where he keeps the best of Wines. . . ."—N. Y. Gaz., May 16, 1763. This tavern stood at the present 253-54 Broadway. By March 12, 1764 (q.v.), it had been taken over by Edward Bardin, who later became one of the best-known tavern-keepers of New York. See April 5, 1754.
- 23 "Newfoundland, Most commonly known by the Name of the Glass-House, Is now open'd for the Entertainment of Company, where constant Attendance is given, and every thing that is genteel and agreeable provided.
- "N. B. Breakfasting attended from Seven o'Clock in the Morning 'til Ten, and Tea in the Afternoon from 3 'til 6 o'Clock, at 1 S. 6d, a Head, furnish'd with the best Green Tea, and hot Loaves.—Likewise any Gentleman or Lady that are indispos'd, and want to take the Benefit of the Country Air, may be accommodated with a genteel Apartment."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 23, 1763. The "Glass House" had been erected about 1754 (see Oct. 7, 1754), on the North River near the present 35th St., and was, as its name implies, a glass manufactory. Its pleasant situation and popularity as a rural place of interest probably suggested the advantages of turning the house into a tavern. It continued thus for about a decade. Edward Agar, in advertising later for stolen goods, stated that he occupied this establishment, and described it as "near Greenwich."—Ibid., Aug. 29, 1763. See Feb. 8, 1757; Jan. 15, 1759; May 9, 1768.
- 30 St. Andrew's Society meets at the King's Arms Tavern near the fort.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 30, Aug. 8, 1763. These meetings were at the house of Mrs. Sarah Steele, who had moved to Whitehall on May 1, 1763 (q.v.).
- June The 25th anniversary of the king's birthday is observed in New York "with great Demonstrations of Loyalty: His Excellency our Governor, gave a very grand Entertainment to the Gentlemen of the Army, and the principal Inhabitants of this Place, at Burns's."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 6, 1763. This was at the City Tavern, at the present 115 Broadway.
- 6 John Marshall, who had been for a few years proprietor of the tavern and garden at the Old Bowling Green (see Feb. 1, 1759), offers to let the "noted Sun Tavern, On the New-Dock."—N. Y. Merc., June 6, 1763. By Nov. 21 of this year, Marshall was advertising for sale "choice Old Hook in bottles" at the "Upper Corner of Nassau-Street."—Ibid., Nov. 21, 1763.
- "Verdine Elsworth, Who formerly lived near Spring Garden, is removed to the House wherein Mr. John Stout lately lived, almost opposite the Hon. William Walton's, Esq; where Travellers will be entertained in the best Manner. . . ."—N. Y. Merc., June 6, 1763. The Walton house stood at the present 326 Pearl St., at Franklin Square.
- 8 On "behalf of the high Dutch Lutheran church in the Swamp," a petition is presented to the council "to compel John Philipp Leydig and Joseph Hawser to give an accounting of moneys collected for the church in Europe." It is referred to the attorney-general.—Cal. Coun. Min., 461. The "Swamp" Church was completed and opened May 1, 1767 (q.v.).
- " Abraham Delanoy, Jr., "Just arriv'd from London, Takes this Opportunity to inform the Public, that he is now settled at Mr. Turner's in New Dutch-Church-street, near Colonel Robinson's, where he intends to carry on Portrait Painting, Ladies and Gentlemen that please to employ him, may depend on all the Justice in his Power. . . ."—N. Y. Merc., June 8, 1763.
- 9 This advertisement appears: "John Duns, Copper Plate Printer, lately from London; Neatly prints off Silver, Copper, Brass, or Pewter Plates; on Paper, Parchment, Vellum, Silk or Linen, in the neatest Manner at Mr William Post's Painter, at Burling's Slip, New-York."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 9, 1763.
- 13 "William Cobb, Innholder, living at the Sign of the Ship, near the Ship-Yards," notifies the public that he wishes a settlement of his accounts. This tavern was in Montgomery Ward, on the east side of Cherry St., and was owned by John Rivers, who mortgaged the house to John Lake on Oct. 5, 1764. It was described in the mortgage as "in the Possession and Occupation of Will Cobb Tavern Keeper as Tenant."—Liber Mortgages, 1: 456.
- 14 The drawings of the lottery, authorized May 19, 1761 (q.v.), for raising £5,000 to erect a lighthouse at Sandy Hook, begin to-day. They were advertised to be made "under the Inspection of the Members of the Corporation" at the city hall, but because that building was undergoing repair "Mr Burns's Long-Room at the Province Arms" was designated.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 13, 1763. For further reference to the lighthouse, see Dec. 20.
- 15 Archibald Kennedy, the receiver-general, collector of customs of the port of New York, and member of the governor's council, dies at the age of 78 years.—The New-London Summary, June 24, (in Mass. Hist. Soc., and photostat in N. Y. Pub. Library).
- " The New Dutch Church is struck and set on fire by lightning. The fire is soon extinguished. "It is remarkable that in the Course of a few Years, the same Accident has happened to this Church three or four Times."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 20, 1763. See July 20, 1761.
- 16 The common council orders that the committee appointed to repair and alter the city hall "have power to raise the same a Story higher at the Expense of this Corporation."—M. C. G., VI: 331. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 973. A sketch by Du Simitière shows this additional storey.—See A. Pl. 4, Vol. III.
- " Resolved that the Materials be purchased for Building a New Church [see April 5] on the Southern part of the Church lands unless a more Convenient place Can be purchased for that purpose."—Trin. Min. (MS.). The exact location of the church [St. Paul's] was decided upon on Nov. 3 (q.v.).
- 19 "Several Companies of the Artillery Men" embark. They are said "to be ordered Upwards to reinforce the Garrisons."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 20, 1763. They appear to have been intended for protection against the Indians of Pontiac's confederation (see May 6). Several frontier forts had already been compelled to surrender.—Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., VI: 691. See Aug. 1.
- 20 "Spring-Gardens, Near the College, lately belonging to Mr. John Marshall, Now kept by John Elkin, Is opened for Breakfasting, from 7 o'Clock 'til 9. Tea in the Afternoon from 3 till 6.—The best of Green Tea, &c. Hot French Rolls will be provided.
- "N. B. Pyes and Tarts will be drawn from 7 in the Evening till 9, where Gentlemen and Ladies may depend on good Attendance; the best of Madeira, Mead, Cakes, &c."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 20, 1763.
- " George and Edward Hopkins, "at the Sign of the Mason's Arms, on Golden Hill" (William St.), offer for sale "Good Cod

- 1763 Sounds and Toogues, Salmon, Lobsters, Sturgeon by the Kegs."—
 N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 20, 1763. July 16
- 23 An advertisement reads: "Westward Stages, This is to inform the Publick, that a good Stage Boat is kept by John Watson, which on Monday's and Thursday's sets out from New York to Elizabeth Town, where a good Stage Waggon, kept by William Richards, and John Thomson, will be ready to receive Passengers, and proceed directly to New Brunswick; from whence, a good Stage Waggon, kept by Daniel Carson, will proceed on Tuesday's and Fryday's to Mr. Parker's, at Trenton Ferry; where it will be met by a Stage Waggon from Philadelphia, kept by Jonathan Biles; which, after exchanging passengers, will on Wednesday's and Saturday's return for Philadelphia, as the said Carson's Waggon will return to New Brunswick; where it will be met by the said Richard's and Thomson's Waggon; which will set out for Elizabeth Town; where a good Boat will be ready to proceed with Passengers to New-York."—
 N. Y. Post-Boy, June 23, 1763. 19
- " "The noted Ino and Tavern in the Bowry Lane, near the Windmill, At the Sign of the Bull's Head, (where the Slaughter-House is now kept) Lately kept by Mr. Caleb Hyatt, is now occupied by Thomas Bayeux."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 23, 1763. See Dec. 15, 1755. 23
- 25 Gov. Monktoot, intending to go to England, delivers the seals to Lieut-Gov. Colden.—Cal. Coun. Min., 461. See June 28.
- 28 Gen. Monkton sails for England, and the government again devolves upon the lieutenant-governor.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 527. The Gazette of July 4 advertised "To-Morrow at Ten o'Clock, at the Governor's House in the Fort, All Sorts of the best and newest Fashion Household and Kitchen Furniture, Plate, and China Ware" will be sold at auction.—"And on Friday will be sold Saddles, etc, a Curraele, a covered Sled, a fine Set of Globes, and Mathematical Instruments, and a Parcel of valuable Books and Stationary."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), July 4, 1763. See July 23. Aug. 1
- July 8 The common council orders "that the Canopy in the front of the City Hall be brought forward so far into the Street, as to be upon a Range with the two wings thereto, notwithstanding any former order to the Contrary."—M. C. C., VI: 333. "
- " The common council orders the clerk to "prepare an advertisement to be inserted in the publick Gazettes for letting to farm by Publick Out Cry (on the premisses) part of the Common Loads, . . . Known by Inklanbergh" (see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 966). There are 31 lots of 5 acres each, a draft of which may be seen at the clerk's office. July 26 is the date fixed for the sale.—M. C. C., VI: 333. The advertisement appeared in the Mercury of July 11. The length of lease at time of purchase was fixed at 21 years, but, on petition of the lessees "to be eased in their Rents," this was extended to 42 years.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Aug. 29, 1753. Leases "to John Alsop and others for Lands on Inklanbergh" were approved by the board Jan. 12, 1764, and ordered to be delivered to the lessees.—M. C. C., VI: 364. See March 12, 1771. 6
- 11 Benjamin Mecom starts The New York Packet, a weekly newspaper, the last known issue of which appeared on Aug. 22, 1763.—See Early Newspapers, II: 425. This paper should be distinguished from The New York Packet and the American Advertiser, which Samuel Loudon introduced on Jan. 4, 1776 (q. v.). See also the "Bibliography of Am. Newspapers, 1690-1820," in Am. Antiquarian Soc. Proceedings (1917), XXVII (N.S.): 478. 10
- 16 Domine Archibald Laidlie, of the English church at Vlissingen in Zealand, having been recommended by the Amsterdam correspondents of the New York consistory for the position of English minister at New York, the consistory decides to call him to officiate in the "new" Dutch Church (on Nassau St.)—Eccles. Rec., VI: 3873. The call was dated July 20. He was offered £300, New York money, yearly, in quarterly sums.—Ibid., VI: 3878-80. The opponents of Laidlie wrote to the classis of Amsterdam on July 22, stating their opposition to an English preacher (ibid., VI: 3880-81), but the classis maintained its position.—Ibid., VI: 3889. It was recorded in the minutes of the classis of Amsterdam, on Oct. 3, that Rev. Mr. Laidlie had informed them that he had accepted the call.—Ibid., VI: 3893. On the same day the classis wrote to the opponents of Laidlie in New York, pointing out that it was desirable to have an English-speaking minister to hold the allegiance of members of the Dutch Church who have been brought up to use the English language; and so that the charter rights and privileges of the church might be better protected.—Ibid., VI: 3898-99. Rev. Mr. Laidlie was installed by the classis at Amsterdam on Dec. 5, 1763, and signed the "Formulae of Concord."—Ibid., 13
- VI: 3907. For further action, see Dec. 7. He arrived in New York on March 29, 1674 (q. v.). 16
- The king's proclamation for a general peace, dated Mar. 21, 1763, is published in New York. "The Militia was ordered out on the Occasion, which formed a Line from Fort George to the City Hall; and the Peace being first proclaimed in the Fort, His Honour the Lieutenant Governor, with his Majesty's Council, attended by all the principal Gentlemen of the Place . . . preceded by the Company of Greadoiers . . . walked in Procession to the Hall, where the Proclamation was repeated." Thursday, Aug. 11, was ordained as a "Day of Publick Thanksgiving," and the people were urged to "observe the same, by the Performance of such religious Duties as are or shall be appointed for this Solemnity."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), July 25, 1763; Cal. Coun. Min., 462. 19
- "With the close of the war with France and Spain in 1763, began the period of greatest commercial activity in the Colonies."—Stevens, Progress of N. Y. in a Century (1876), 36.
- Jonathan Watts writes to Gen. Monkton: "The Sale of your furniture [see June 28] is over & our Connoisseurs are of opinion has gone off very well, but I believe you will be of a different mind, owing they say to your paying like a Governor—I believe too there is something in that, tho I could observe the peace has cheapened things & lessend peoples keenness, as well as made Money scarce."—Chalmers Papers relating to N. Y., II, io N. Y. Pub. Library. 23
- "We hear the several Regiments just arrived and a great Number of other Men from different Corps are forthwith ordered Up [see June 19] to endeavour to check the further Progress of the Savages."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Aug. 1, 1763. Aug. 1
- The governors of King's College, recognizing the "want of a good and sufficient Grammar School, founded on a proper Plan, and subject to frequent Visitations and Examinations," announce that they have succeeded in "providing a Gentleman of Character, and known Abilities for the Employment, who propose to open the School, as soon as a convenient Room can be procured, which will be in a few days. . . . The School is to be entirely under the direction of the College. . . . Those Gentlemen that intend to send their Sons to the said School are desired to apply to Mr. Cushing, the Master, at the College."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Aug. 1, 1763. See also Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 39, 40, 41. "
- The Earl of Stirling, upon hearing of the appointment of the Earl of Shelburne "to reside at the Board which must have so great a share in the government of a country in which it is my lot to reside," asks permission to send "such hints as occur to me, of measures suitable to this part of the continent. . . . The making of pig and bar iron, and the cultivation of hemp, are two articles that want encouragement greatly. We are capable of supplying Great Britain with both, to a great extent; but the first requiring a large stock to begin with, people of moderate fortunes cannot engage in it; and those of large ones are as yet very few, and their attention is generally given to the pursuit of other objects. . . ."—N. J. Hist. Soc. Collections, II: 75-76. 6
- Gen. Amherst writes to Mayor Cruise: "As I am Fitting out some Transports for Immediate Service; & that the Carpenters Employed on them will not Venture to Work to morrow without a License from You; I should be glad you would give them Permission, as it is of real Consequence to the King's Service, that those Vessells are got Ready with the utmost Expedition."—From facsimile reprint of the original letter (written in New York), pub'd in Man. Comm. Coun. (1869), opp. p. 856. 10
- The Earl of Egremont writes to Sir Jeffrey Amherst "that the King is pleased to grant your request to leave North America, and repair to England, at such time, and in such manner, as shall be most convenient and agreeable to yourself; . . . With regard to your Command in N<sup>o</sup> America, I am to inform you, that his Majesty does not judge proper to determine your commissions at present, but chuses that the powers with which they invest you, should be exercised by Major Gen'l Gage, on whom, as being the next Officer to you, they, of course devolve."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 539. See Dec. 10, 1764. 13
- Payment is made to John Holt (£10) "for Printing Twenty Books Containing the Laws of this Corporation on fine Paper in Gilt Covers."—M. C. C., VI: 335. A copy of these laws, entitled Laws, Statutes, Ordinances and Constitutions, ordained, made and established by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty, of the City of New-York, Convened in Common-Council, for The good Rule and Government of the Inhabitants and Residents of the said City, and 15

1763 bearing the date 1763, is in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. The title-page states
 Aug. that they were "published from the City Hall" on Nov. 9, 1762.
 15 This addition indicates that the custom of having the laws "publicly Read" after their enactment and before their being printed (M. C. C.
 " I, 348) was still in force at this time. See also Feb. 11, 1693.
 " The common council appoints a committee "to Cause the Several publick Streets Lately released to this Corporation by John Kingston and others [see Feb. 15], in the out ward of this City to be Regulated and paved."—M. C. C., VI, 336.
 " The high cost of food supplies is complained of in a petition bearing this date, signed by many of the leading citizens of New York, and addressed to the common council. It states "That in all populous Cities the Regulation of the publick Markets respecting the Price of Provisions hath ever been esteemed a Matter of great Importance to the Inhabitants and worthy the attention of the public. That your Petitioners have for some time past observed with concern that many of the Necessaries of Life have been Sold in our Markets at exorbitant Prices, and that Beef in particular is Sold at a much higher rate as your Petitioners are Credibly informed than in the Neighbouring Colonies. And tho your Petitioners hoped that as well the price of Beef as of other Butchers Meat exposed to Sale in the said Markets would have fallen by the greater plenty of Provisions necessarily consequent on the Conclusion of a peace yet they are Surprised to find that the same Continues as high as it was in times of much greater Consumption and Scarcity. Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray your worshipps so to regulate and Assize the price of Beef that shall be exposed to Sale in the said Markets and of such other Provisions as may be thought to require the like regulations as to your Worshipps shall seem Just and reasonable."—From the original petition in the city clerk's record-room, beautifully engrossed on parchment, and endorsed "filed Aug<sup>7</sup> 9th 15th 1763." The common council appoints a committee "to enquire what Power this Board have and Whether they Can Legally regulate and Assize the price of Provisions and other Necessaries."—
 M. C. C., VI, 336. See the new law of Aug. 24.
 " From this date to Jan. 12, 1764, inclusive, the meetings of the common council, while the alterations in the city hall were in progress, took place at the "New Goal," or the "Exchange," or "the Dwelling House of Walter Brock near the City Hall."—M. C. C., VI, 335, et passim. Brock was an innkeeper.—Ibid., VI, 360.
 19 The administrator's accounting on Adolph Phillipse's estate is filed.—See Addenda.
 24 The common council meets at "the Exchange house."—
M. C. C., VI, 336. See Aug. 15. Regarding the city's ownership of this building, see June 10, 1752.
 " The common council orders that Prince Street in Montgomerie Ward and "Cleft" Street be dug down and levelled.—M. C. C., VI, 337. The name of Prince Street was changed to Rose Street Apr.
 21, 1794 (q. v.). "Cleft" Street was the modern Cliff Street. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 996, 1008; Post, Old Streets, 62.
 " A new law "for Regulating the Public Markets within the City of New York and for Preventing the Forestalling of Provisions Coming to the said Markets," offered by the committee of the common council appointed on Aug. 15 (q. v.), is approved and ordered published. It has the same preamble and some other provisions as the law of Nov. 18, 1751 (q. v.). Every day in the week, Sunday excepted, is to be a market-day, from sunrise to sunset.
 "Country people and others, resorting to the said market's may stand or sit in such part or parts thereof as are not from Time To Time particularly appropriated and Allotted to other person or persons and their [sic] vend their Flesh, fish, poultry, Herbs, Fruit Eggs, Butter Cheese, Bacon and other provisions and commodity's in the publick markets hereinafter mentioned. That is to say, at the markett House or the Slip Commonly called Coenties dock at the Markett House and at near Countess's Key Commonly Called the Countess's Slip and at the markett House in the Broadway Commonly called the Broad way Markett all which are hereby Appointed to be the publick and Common Market's within the said City for the Selling of all Kinds of provisions meal, Corn and Grain of all kinds only Excepted and which are only to be sold at the Broad way Market, and the Old Slip Market Aforesaid." The principal feature of this law is section II, which is intended to prevent the cornering of the food supply by speculators, and the consequent increase in prices charged by them. It is the same as in the earlier law cited above. The hucksters and retailers, "who buy to Sell Again," are not to enter the markets until the afternoon;

they are not to expose their goods or provisions for sale in the markets or streets; and they are not to "forestall" provisions coming to the markets,—that is, buy them before they reach the markets. No unwholesome food is to be exposed for sale. Butter placed on sale in pound rolls, pots, dishes, or other vessels, under six pounds, shall have its weight marked on it, and butter not marked or under-weight shall be forfeited to the poor. Butchers are to pay market fees for their stalls, etc., and for meats they place on sale, to be collected by the "Farmer" (the lessee) of the markets; but country people are allowed to sell meat raised on their farms without paying fees.—M. C. C., VI, 337-42; De Voe's Market Book, 145-47.
 "A Circulating Library; Consisting of several Thousand 29 Volumes of choice Books in History, Divinity, Travels, Voyages, Novels, &c." is opened by Garret Noel, a bookseller, next door to the Merchants Coffee House (Wall and Water Sts.).—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Aug. 29, 1763. On Sept. 12, a large addition to the library was announced and "Conditions for subscribing" were given as follows:
 "1. Each Subscriber to pay Five Dollars a Year, viz. Two Dollars on subscribing, and One Dollar at the Beginning of each Quarter afterwards.
 "2. No Subscriber to take above one Book at a Time out of the Library.
 "3. Any Subscriber losing or spoiling a Book shall pay the full Price of it, or the Set, taking the Remainder.
 "Note.—Books will be delivered out of the Library any Time, except Sundays, and after Store is shut."—Ibid., Sept. 12, 1763; cf.
Keep, Hist. of N. Y. Society Library, 103-7. The last notice to the public about this library appeared in the Post-Boy of Sept. 26, 1765, soon after the re-establishment of the Corporation Library
 (see Aug. 23, 1765).
 In a letter to Gen. Monckton, Jonathan Watts reports the receipt
 3 of £1,015.17.6, a first payment on the sale of Monckton's furniture (see June 28). A balance of £1,027.8.6 was reported as received in another letter, of the 17th. He reported as not sold and in his care a "Silver Urn or Tea thing," that "would not sell any thing near your price. . . . Things seem at present in a deep sleep, the old gentleman [Colden] still in the Country. . . . [I have] paid my subscription to the Greenwich Road [see May 26, 1762] £20, which goes on pretty well."—Aspinwall Papers, 489, 490, 491. In another letter, of Dec. 27, he wrote: "The Greenwich road is ready & a very good one it is."—Ibid., 595.
 Samuel "Francis" now calls his tavern the "Sign of the Queen's 12 Head," and advertises "Sweetmeats."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Sept. 12, 1763; See Dec. 6, 1764.
 14 Colden writes to the Earl of Egremont: "We have a Set of Lawyers in this Province as Insolent, Petulant, and at the same time as well skilled in all the Chicanery of the Law as perhaps is to be found anywhere else." To restrain them, disinterested judges of ability and skill in the law are required. But "the distinguished Families in so small a Country are so united by intermarriages & otherwise" that in few cases can a cause of any consequence be brought before a judge who "is free from connections with those interested either in the Case or in other Cases similar to it."—
Colden Papers, op. cit., 231.
 29 The minister, elders, and deacons of the Lutheran Church petition Colden for a charter. Embodied in this petition is the narrative of an earlier one, of Feb. 8, 1759 (q. v.).—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 297. See also Ibid., III: 258-99. The petition was denied.—
 See July 13, 1764.
 Oct. "Bull-beating" (or baiting) is to be held in the Bowery Lane near 1 the De Lancey Arms Tavern (kept by George Barr).—N. Y. Gaz.
 (Weyman), Sept. 26, 1763.
 3 "Hugh Gaine Acquaints the Publick, that this Day he removes his Shop from Rotten-Row [see April 18] to the House he formerly occupied in Hanover Square."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 3, 1763; Jour. of Hugh Gaine, I: 9 (editorial note). Except for a few weeks (see Sept. 21, 1776), Gaine continued his office here until the publication of the Mercury ceased in 1783.
 "We are credibly informed, That the Merchants of this City expect in a few weeks from Ireland, about 6000 Firkins of best Irish Butter; on the arrival of which, 'tis not impossible the Country
 People who used to supply our Markets, may be obliged to purchase large Quantities of Salt."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Oct. 3, 1764.
 7 Lieut.-Gov. Colden (see June 28) writes from New York to Gen. Monckton: "It may not be improper to observe to your Excellency, that It has been usual to send over a new Great Seal

- 1763 for this Province at the Accession of a New King. It has been
 Oct. longer delayed at this time than usual & may be forgot. The Kings
 7 & Queens Pictures have likewise been usually seet at the same time & some other things.—From the original letter (hitherto unpublished), in N. Y. Pub. Library, filed in thin folio vol. lettered "New 18 York—MSS. Letters & Documents, 1684-1757."
- The German Reformed Congregation in New York having written to Germany for a minister to come over, the Rev. Johano Michael Kern arrives. He preached several times, and on Jan. 25, 1764, received from the consistory the call of this congregation to serve as its minister. Rev. Lambeth De Ronde, of the Dutch Reformed Church, witnessed the installation on Jan. 26.—Eccles.
Rec., VI: 3913. See also Oct. 28, 1763.
- 26 William Johnson advertises to begin on this day a course of experiments and lectures on electricity, "At the Assembly Room at the City Arms."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 24, 1763. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 977. See also Oct. 31.
- 28 It is resolved by the consistory of the German Reformed Church in New York to join the classis of Amsterdam or the synod of Holland, and that the Low Dutch ministers of this city, Ritzeema and De Ronde, be conferred with in order to carry the resolution into effect.—Eccles. Rec., VI: 3901. The necessary credentials for subordination to the classis of Amsterdam were signed on June 18, 1764
(ibid., VI: 3924-25), and the classis was notified by letter of June 21.—Ibid., VI: 3929-30.
- " The common council orders the payment of "the further Sum of £8 . . . towards defraying the Expence of finishing the market House in pecks Slip."—M. C. C., VI: 352. This date, therefore, marks approximately the time of its completion. It was begun on or about Feb. 15 (q. v.). See also De Voe, Market Book, 302.
- 30 Sir Jeffrey Amherst, commander-in-chief of the British forces, is in New York, urging the government of this province to raise 1,400 men for employment on the frontiers.—Assemb. Jour., II: 721.
- 31 At some period prior to this date, the Dove Tavern was established at what is now the north-west corner of Third Ave. and 66th St.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Oct. 31, 1763. Although it was a popular landmark for over thirty years, the names of only two proprietors are known to us,—those of Abraham Rich, who occupied the premises prior to 1773, and Alexander McCauley, who was there for a time prior to 1773 (see Nov. 6, 1787). Near here, Nathan Hale was executed on Sept. 22, 1776 (q. v.). This public house was kept here under the same name as late as 1798.—M. C. C. (MS.), XII: 283.
- " Electrical experiments are advertised to begin at 11 o'clock at the "Exchange." Tickets are sold at "the Gentleman's Coffee House," and by H. Gaine.—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 31, 1763.
- Nov. "Resolved and Ordered that a New Church [see June 16] be 3 built on the Church Ground upon the Corner of Division Street."— Trin. Min. (MS). Fulton Street, west of Broadway, was at this time called Division Street; the church referred to is St. Paul's Chapel.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 934, 998. See April 5, 1764.
- 8 As the city hall is being repaired (see Aug. 15), the assembly adjourns to meet the next day in the common council chamber.—
Assemb. Jour., II: 720.
- 9 "It appearing to this Board that there is a deficiency of Copper wanting for the covering the City Hall—M<sup>r</sup> Mayor is Therefore desired to write to Bristol on Account of this Corporation for so much more Thatch of Copper as will be found Necessary for Finishing the same and to remit to M<sup>r</sup> Henry Cruger in Bristol the Ballance of his Account Against this Corporation for Copper Heretofore purchased of him [see April 20] and Charge the said Sec Remittance to this Corporation."—M. C. C., VI: 357. See Dec. 5.
- 15 Mason and Dixon arrive at Philadelphia from England to run the boundary lines between Pennsylvania and Maryland and between Maryland and Delaware. They were employed on this work until Aug. 1768. On Sept. 9, they sailed from New York for England.—Hist. Mag., 1st ser., V: 199-202.
- 17 Sir Jeffrey Amherst embarks on the "Weazle" for England,
 "under the Discharge of the Cannon on Fort-George."—N. Y.
Gaz. (Weyman), Nov. 21, 1763. He "sailed from the Hook" on Nov. 19.—Mentor's Jour., 253.
- 18 Gen. Thomas Gage arrives in the city from Montreal "to take upon him the Command of his Majesty's Forces in North-America." —N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Nov. 21, 1763; Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist.
of Am., VI: 702; VIII: 463.
- 21 The common council appoints Andrew Maerschalck and Gerard Bancker "public Surveyors of this City."—M. C. C., VI: 358.
- Andrew Maerschalck was the son of Francis (N. Y. Merc., Dec. 22, Nov.
 1763), who was first appointed city surveyor on June 8, 1733 (q. v.), 21 and who died Sept. 6, 1776 (ibid., Sept. 9, 1776).
- The assembly resolves that the corporation of New York City had no right to pass "A Law for repealing a Law, for assizing all 24 Kinds of Victuals to be set to sale in the publick Markets of this City, and for establishing a new Assize for that Purpose."—Assemb.
Jour., II: 729-30. A bill making void this repeal was passed by the assembly on Dec. 14.—Ibid., II: 737. There is no record of its receiving the governor's signature.
- The Gazette reports the death, in Jamaica, L. I., of a very old 28 man, John Cockser. "He often said he was a soldier in the Fort in Governor Laysner's [Leisler's] Time . . . and had often shot Squirrels, Quails, &c. on or near Pot Baker's Hill in this City, which was then a Wilderness."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Nov. 28, 1763.
 Pot Baker's (Potter's) Hill rose from the west shore of Little Collect Pond (see Pl. 58-b, Vol. I). The present hall of records is built on the levelled site of its crest.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 967.
- Patrick Henry argues the "Parsons Case" in Virginia.—Winsor, Dec.
Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., VI: 24.
- The common council orders "That the Committee for Causing 5 the City Hall to be Repaired, have Liberty To Borrow upon Interest for the use of this Corporation the sum of Five Hundred Pounds."—
M. C. C., VI: 360. See May 11, 1764.
- Colden writes to the Lords of trade: "Without doubt much illicit 7 Trade is carried on in this place, and tho' more of it has been detected and punished in this Port, than any of the other Colonies, I am persuaded there is not less among them, in proportion to the Trade. That the officers of the Customs in this Port, are more careful than in the others, I believe from this observation, that the illicit Traders send their vessels to the nearest port to the Eastward or Westward of this Port, from whence they import their cargoes, with proper clearances & certificates that the goods are legally imported . . . .
- "The Merchants in this place complain, that there is not the same care taken to prevent illegal Trade in Delaware River, and to the Eastward that is in this Port, whereby the Merchants in those parts are able to undersell them, and they loose their Trade, and that this place will be impoverished, while the others grow Rich."—
N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 584-85.
- Anticipating the early arrival of Rev. Archibald Laidlie (see 11 July 16), the consistory of the Dutch Church on Nassau St. decides that "the proposed gallery" (see May 3, 1762) shall be constructed.
 The work was entrusted to Messrs. Hardenbrook and Brestede, carpenters.—Eccles. Rec., VI: 3909. On Jan. 8, 1764, it was resolved "That opposite the pulpit it [the gallery] shall be twenty-one feet deep, and not less than eleven feet high. The South gallery to be fifteen feet deep and of the same height." The supporting posts, as originally proposed, were to be of red cedar from Georgia. The committee and carpenters were to provide such posts for the gallery as they deemed best, and "all the other materials necessary."— Ibid., VI: 3909, 3912. In the records of March 8 and 14, a "newly approved plan" is mentioned on the basis of which the consistory was requested to proceed with the work. A committee of three also was appointed "to arrange the benches in the order they now are in relation to the pulpit," and this "improved plan" was presented on March 23.—Ibid., VI: 3915, 3916. On May 1, 1764, the consistory resolved "That the pillars of the gallery be carried through to the roof of the church to support the same," a procedure that made it necessary "to take off the roof." The sum of £600 was borrowed from Gerardus W. Beekman "to complete the New Church."—Ibid., VI: 3921; for other changes, see 3922, 3924; see also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 935, under "Middle Reformed Dutch Church." Referring to the changes made in the interior of the church in 1764, Rev. Thomas De Witt, writing in 1856, stated:
 "The pulpit was removed to the north end and galleries were erected on the other three sides, and the entrances were formed on the north and south sides."—A Discourse delivered in the North Re- formed Dutch Church (Collegiate), in Aug., 1856 (1857), 28-29.
- In a letter to Gen. Monckton, in England, Daniel Horsmanden 10 says: "Our Assembly has been somewhat untoward as to Gen<sup>l</sup> Amherst's Requisition for raising 1400<sup>d</sup> Men, to be employed against the Indians [see Oct. 30], the Reason that the like Application was not made to the Governm<sup>t</sup> to the Eastward: They have provided for Levying half that Number, 300<sup>d</sup>, of which to be under the Command of the General, the rest to guard the Frontiers of

- 1763 Albany, Ulster & Dutchess as the Gov<sup>r</sup> shall direct.—Chalmers 1764
 De. 10 Papers, IV, in N. Y. Pub. Library. —
- In a letter to Gen. Monkton, Jonathan Watts says: "I am sorry the assembly out of dislike to the old Man [Colden] have taken off the £200 they added to your Salary, it looks too unsteady—Genl Gage I believe has made a requisition of all the Colonys for Men to act rigorously in the Spring but has got no Answer . . . We are passing many Bills but sadly puzzled to make a Council & after all to have a whole Branch of the Legislature trusted in the hands of three Men, the majority of five, is too much."—Chalmers Papers relating to N. Y., II.
- 13 A provincial act is passed "to Regulate the Pilots and Establish their Pilotage between Sandy Hook and the port of New York . . ." It provides for the appointment of a master and three or more wardens of this port.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 711. As early as June 10, 1758, a master and eight wardens of the port had been appointed.—Stevens, Chamber of Commerce Records, 1768-1784 (1867), 323.
- 15 There is presented, in the assembly, a bill entitled "An Act to prevent the Practice of Cock-fighting." It had a first and a second reading, but there is no record of its passage.—Assemb. Jour. II: 737.
- 16 The provincial council orders a proclamation to be issued asserting the right of New York Province to consider the Connecticut River as its eastern boundary. It was issued on Dec. 28.—Col. Coun. Min., 463, 593. See, further, July 20, 1764.
- "Capt. John Montresor records: "This day arrived at New York in 26 days from Detroit with Dispatches from Col. Gladwin [commander of the garrison there] to the Commander in Chief."—Montresor's Jour. op. cit., 252-53. Gen. Gage, writing to Col. Bradstreet under date of Dec. 25, also gives the 16th as the date of Montresor's arrival.—Gen. Gage's Letters (MS.) op. cit.
- 20 William Livingston and William Smith, Jr. are paid £117:11:10 for revising the laws of this colony from 1752 to 1762.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 734. The revision was ordered on Nov. 8, 1760 (q. v.) and the laws were published in 1764 (q. v.).
- "A provincial act is passed providing for a lottery to raise £3,000 "to be laid out, in a Bounty on Hemp to be raised in this Colony." Elias de Grusche and John Long are appointed "Inspectors of all Hemp on which a Bounty is to be allowed."—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 737-39.
- "Anticipating the completion of the Sandy Hook lighthouse (see June 11, 1764), an act is passed "to lay a Duty of Tonnage on Vessels for defraying the Expence of the Light-House on Sandy Hook," the money to be applied for buying oil, tallow, coal, etc., and for the services of a keeper.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 741-45.
- "An act is passed to prevent hunting with firearms in the city of New York. Any person "convicted before any member of His Majesty's Council" of shooting a musket, fowling piece, or other firearm without license "shall forfeit and pay for every such offence the sum of Twenty Shillings."—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 748, 749.
- "Colden signs a bill passed by the assembly to punish more effectually idle and disorderly persons who make it a practice to rob and plunder in the orchards, gardens, cornfields, and inclosures, in the Out Ward.—Assemb. Jour., II: 730, 738.
- 26 "At the Sign of the fry'd Oysters and Platter," opposite the Moravian Meeting House, in Fair (Fulton) St., fried and pickled oysters are "used in or out of the House."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 26, 1763. Ten years later this, or a similar sign, hung out from a tavern at Whitehall. See May 20, 1773.
- 1764
- At about this time, Hargreaves invented the spinning-jenny.
- Francis Bernard, in his Principles of Law and Polity applicable to the English Colonies in America, written in the spring of 1764, speaks of the advantage of unifying the administration of the colonies. Bernard presents 97 proposals, among which are these: Representatives should have been called to Westminster, and a convention parliament thus organized should have acted to define constitutional relations of colony and mother country; warnings heard in the colonies in 1764 should be heeded; under existing circumstances the colonies consider that taxation has been sprung on them.—From Bernard's Select Letters on the Trade and Government of Am. (London, 1774).
- The first volume of the Journal of the Votes and Proceedings of the General Assembly of the Colony of New York, covering the period from 1691 to 1743, inclusive, is published by order of the general assembly, "by Hugh Gaïne at his Book-Store and Printing Office at the Bible & Crown, in Hanover Square." The second volume, covering the years 1743 to 1765, was published by him in 1766.
- In an appendix to this Journal, it is stated: "Inasmuch as a few of the Votes and Proceedings of the General Assembly, relative to the Affair of Capt. Jacob Leisler, are missing, and consequently the public not fully informed, as to the Justice or Injustice of his Suffering: It was therefore thought necessary, for the Satisfaction of the Public, and in Justice to the Family and Descendants of the said Capt. Leisler, to publish the following Act of Parliament, relating to that Catastrophe." Then follows the Act of 6-7 Wm. III (1695) for reversing the attainder of Jacob Leisler and others. Leisler was executed 73 years before this publication of the act.—See May 16, 1691.
- By an order of the "Post-Masters General," issued by "James Parker, Comptroller," from the general post-office at Woodbridge, N. J., mail between New York and Philadelphia is to be delivered three times per week, weather permitting. "A Post Rider with the Mail for Philadelphia" will leave New York at one o'clock Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. "Letters will pass from one to the other in less than 24 Hours."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 2, 1764. See also N. J. Arch., 1st ser., Vol. XXIV (Newspaper Extracts, Vol. V), 291.
- "Thomas Brokes advertisements for sale a house and lot in William St., "next Door to the Roe-Back," evidently a tavern.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Jan. 2, 1764. On Dec. 4, 1769, Mr. Le Gry, a fencing and dancing master, proposed to open a school in the house of John Ebert, at the sign of the Roebuck at the upper end of Horse and Cart St.—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 4, 1769.
- "An attack on the jail by soldiers is thus described in the Post-Boy: "On Sunday night last, the City was alarm'd by the Ringing of the Bells, and the Cry of Fire, but it prov'd to be a Riot of a Party of Soldiers, to rescue a Prisoner for Debt [Ma]. Rogers] from the New Goal in this City. . . . In this Riot a few Persons were wounded or hurt, and One Serjeant was killed." According to the prisoners, Mr. Mills, the keeper (see Jan. 17, 1737), refused the soldiers' demand for the keys and struggled with them until he was cut and bruised. Then they broke "all the Locks from the Doors from the Cupola down to the Dungeons, not excepting those where Criminals for the most atrocious Offences were confin'd."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 19, 1764. On Jan. 25, five of the soldiers were found guilty by the general court of "breaking the gaol and rescuing Major Rogers." They declared "the Major was privy to the Design."—Ibid., Jan. 26, 1764.
- "We hear that one Company of the New-York Provincials 16 march'd above a Fortnight ago, another last Sunday, and that the remainder will follow in a few Days. They are all clothed in the most complete manner for the Service."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Jan. 16, 1764.
- The Rev. George Whitefield leaves the city for Boston. "He 17 has spent seven Weeks with us preaching twice a Week to more general Acceptance than ever; and been treated with great Respect by many of the Gentlemen, and Merchants of this Place."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Jan. 23, 1764.
- Jonathan Watts writes again to Monkton: "You have said 31 nothing about the House at Greenwich of course it is supposed to remain with you—Genl Gage is at a Loss for a House & I am sure would be glad of the use of it, till you want it your self."—Chalmers Papers relating to N. Y., II. On March 11 (q. v.), Watts again wrote to Monkton on this subject.
- It is reported that "there are more Horses now to be let, in this City, than have been at any Time for 7 years past." The commerce of the continent is said to be "in a languishing condition; our Debt in Europe increases; our Power to pay it off decrease. . . . To find out the Causes, and point out a Remedy for this growing Evil, is an Object of the most serious Consideration to every Friend to Great-Britain and North America; for which End, the Merchants of this City had published Notice to assemble on Friday last, at M<sup>r</sup> Burns's Long-Room where a very considerable Body of them met, and appointed a Committee to prepare a Memorial to the Legislature of this Province, representing the Decline of Trade, and the Distresses of the Merchants and Traders of this City; praying its Interposition with the Parliament of Great Britain; And as every Gentleman who is a Friend to the Trade of our Mother Country, or has Property in this Province, must conceive himself interested in the Success of this undertaking, it is hoped that they will contribute Feb. 2

1764 thereto, by furnishing such Materials as they may think proper to
 Feb. introduce on this Occasion, by a Direction to the Province Arms, 2 where they will be gratefully received by the Committee, who will fix stated Times to meet; of which the Publick will have Notice."—
N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 2, 1764.

10 The "Committee of the New Goal" is given power by the common council to "Cause to be Erected opposite the said New Goal a Publick Whipping post, Stocks Gate and Pillary" at the city's expence.—M. C. C., VI: 366. See Sept. 3.

" One Turner secures the lease of the "Exchange" for one year at the yearly rental of £80 from May first.—M. C. C., VI: 365.

Mar. "The Merchants of this City are earnestly requested to meet at 5 the Queen's Head, (Mr. Francis's,) near the Exchange, on Wednesday next [March 7], . . . on Business of great Importance to Trade."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), March 5, 1764. See March 8.

8 "Memorial of New York merchants on the sugar act sent to the lords of trade."—Cal. Coun. Min., 464. See also April 20.

9 Colden transmits to the lords of trade "a memorial which the Merchants have ordered their Agent to present to the House of Commons" (see March 8).—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 612.

11 In another letter to Monckton, Jonathan Watts says: "Greenwich stands still empty as it did, people wish you would fill it again, I observe'd before to you, that Gen Gage would like to have it till either you arriv'd or relinquish'd it.—The Merchants send you a Copy of their Memorial on Trade" (see March 8).—Chalmers Papers relating to N. Y., II. For evidence that Gage did occupy the house, see Nov. 3.

12 "Edward Bairden [Bardin], Who Keeps the Sign of the King's Arms, at the upper End of the Broad-Way, facing the Commons, the House wherein Philip Kuyssick formerly lived, and lately Benjamin Keats [see April 21, 1755], Takes this Method to inform the Publick, That he has now open'd said House for the Entertainment of Company, where constant Attendance is given, and every Thing that is genteel and agreeable provided. . . . The best of Madeira Wine, Mead, Cakes, & . . . Pyes and Tarts will be drawn from Seven in the Evening till Nine at Night."—N. Y. Gaz.
 (Weyman), March 26, 1764. For a history of this tavern, which later became famous as Montagne's, see April 5, 1754.

" The London Coffee House, on the new dock, is mentioned in an advertisement. This was probably at Wall and Water Sts.; for, in 1768, when an auction of "New and Old Books" was announced to be held there, the house was described as "opposite the Merchants Coffee-House"—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), March 12, 1764; N. Y. Merc., Oct. 31, 1768. This was evidently the same tavern as the "Duke of Cumberland."

18 Gen. Gage, writing from New York to Col. Bradstreet, says:
 "All I can tell you about the Provincials is, that New-York promises to make up their Troops 500 complete, Jersey has voted four Companys of Sixty each, and I expect 300 from Canada. . . . I press the Governours to have all their People ready by the Time the Navigation is practicable, which I hope will be soon. I can't positively fix everything, till a final Answer is given by the Assembly of Pennsylvania, which must come shortly. The Assembly have presented Some Bills, which the Govt has returned with Amendments.
 This is all we yet know. . . . I believe your Information is wrong about the Desigus of the Massachusetts Governement. They do not chuse to assist, but to throw the Expence on the Governements who are concerned more than themselves, by being more exposed to the Enemy's Incursions."—Gen. Gage's Letters (MS.).

19 Fourteen of the "Indians lately taken by the Party sent out by Sir William Johnson" arrive at New York. They are "properly taken Care of by being lodged and closely confined in separate Appartments in our New Goal, with Iron (instead of Leather) Moccasins at their Heels"—at which they give "a very sneering and insulting Cast of the Features."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), March 26, 1764; Colden Papers in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections
 (1876), IX: 319.

29 Rev. Archibald Laidlie (see July 16, 1763) arrives at New York, to officiate as English-speaking minister in the Dutch Church on Nassau St. He produced his credentials before the consistency on Apr. 1 (q.v.).—Eccles. Rec., VI: 3947; Jour. of the proceedings of the Ref. Prot. Dutch Church, op. cit. He was inducted into the position on April 15 (q.v.). It was his intention to preach occasionally in Dutch. The Dutch Psalms were being translated, "to enable both English and Dutch to sing together."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), April 16, 1764. Regarding the English versification of the Psalms, then in Dutch, see Eccles. Rec., VI: 3921, 3922, 3931.

Writing from New York to Sir William Johnson concerning Apr. 1 the Indian troubles, Gen. Gage says: "The Provincias have been very backward in affording that Assistance so much for their Interest to do. Connecticut however has agreed to raise 250 men, Jersey near the same Number. And I only have to forward those Troops for Colonel Bradstreet to begin his Campaign, And that he may now push on as fast as he pleases, I have put all the Forces from Albany Westward under his Command. The Number of Indians I shall desire of you for this Army, I will mention in my next, when I have settled with Colonel Bouquet, the operations to the Southward. But the Pensylvanians have plaid their old Tricks, voted the men, & then quarrelled with the Governour about the Supplies."—Gen. Gage Letters (MS.).

Rev. Archibald Laidlie (see Mar. 29) produces his credentials before the consistency of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church.
 "As the New Dutch Church was rendered unfit for service by Reason of Turning the pews on a new plan for building three Galleries, it was agreed to Referr Inducting Mr Laidlie into the Congregation untill the Ground pews in the New Church were sett in their proper place."—*Jour. of the proceedings of the Ref. Prot.
 Dutch Church*, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. He was inducted on Apr.
 15 (q.v.). For the account of the remodelling of this church, see
 Dec. 7, 1763.

2 Mr. Huske, American born and educated in Boston, "has lately got a seat in the House of Commons; but instead of standing an Advocate for his injured country. . . . he has officiously proposed in the House of Commons, to lay a Tax on the Colonies, which will amount to £500,000 per Ann. Sterling." He says the colonists are well able to pay the money.—N. Y. Merc., April 2, 1764.

An advertisement reads: "To Be Let, The Play-House at the upper End of Beekman's Street [see Aug. 17, 1761], very convenient for a Store, being upwards of 90 Feet in Length, nigh 40 Feet wide."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), April 2, 1764. The theatre was later reopened for performances (see April 3, 1766). See, also,
 Dec. 10, 1770.

3 It is ordered by the common council "that the Hill nearly opposite the Widow Montanje's in Montgomerie Ward of this City be Dug Down and Levelled."—M. C. C., VI: 374. This was evidently along Queen St., as "the Widdow Montanje's Gate" is there.—
Ibid., VI: 61.

On this day, "the morning being dark and cloudy," there was "some Thunder and Lightning, one smart Flash of which struck the Steeple of Trinity Church, but did no great Damage."—*N. Y.
 Merc.*, Apr. 9, 1764. In reference to this matter Sir William Johnson wrote to David Colden on Apr. 22, asking information about the length and thickness of the conducting rod and whether the occurrence in any way "makes against Dr Franklin's method of preserving Houses and other edifices from Lightning?"—Colden MSS., in N. Y. Hist. Soc.

Answering on May 7, Colden wrote: "The Steeple of Trinity Church is furnished with a Conducting Rod, not less than half an Inch Square—the Point above the Weather Cock is very Long & Gilt, I believe the whole is well executed unless it be the joinings of the parts of the Rod, at each of which there is a large knob of Iron.
 The Point of the Rod is not melted or any alteration made in it, that we can descern from the ground, nor is the Conducting Rod broken in any part. The Lightning Struck into One of the Uros, of which there are four upon the Corners of the Square Column of the Steeple, above which the Conical Spire rises more than a Third of the whole high—the stroke broke off some pieces of wood from the foot of the Urn, but no effects nor its path cannot be traced lower down, which shews it must have been a weak Stroke—Some gentlemen who live near the Church, took notice that the Clouds were remarkably low, & had observed to each other that they appeared considerably lower than the top of the Steeple, just before it was struck. One family were so much alarmed by the nearness of the Clouds & a little thunder, that they orderd the fires in the Houses to be put out, for fear of accidents, before the Steeple was struck Considering the situation of the Urn, which I believe is 50 or 60 feet below the top of the Spire, & not more than 15 feet distant from the Center of the Base of the Spire it appears extremely improbable that the Cloud, from whence the Stroke issued, was above the top of the Spire, and [from] the remark of the Gentlemen who noticed the Clouds, there is great reason to believe the Cloud was really below the Point of the Conductor. And if so, this Instance will not in any degree invalidate Dr Franklin's method of Preserving Houses from Lightning, but shews that in such high Edifices a Point & Con-

- 1764 ductor may be necessary at some place below the extrem highth." Apr.
 Ap.3 —Ibid. 20
- 4 "The Dutch party or faction of the consistory of the Dutch Reformed Church makes proposals for peace in the consistory, respecting English preaching and contributions for the support of the English minister, Domine Laidlie.—Eccles. Rec., VI: 3920-21. See July 16, 1763.
- 5 "Ordered that the Church Wardens or one of them have power to take up upon Interest the sum of One thousand pounds towards building the New Church (see Nov. 3, 1763) upon the best Terms They Can not exceeding Six  $\frac{3}{4}$  Cent Interest  $\frac{3}{4}$  Annum.—Trin. Min. (MS.). On March 20, 1765, the wardens were authorized to borrow for the same purpose a sum not exceeding £5,000.—Ibid. On June 7, 1765, the order was repeated for another £5,000, and on March 7, 1766, a similar one was passed, the sum this time being £2,150.—Ibid. The corner-stone of the church was laid on May 14, 1764 (p. v).
- 6 Parliament passes a measure modifying the Sugar Act of 1733 (see Feb. 21, 1733). The duty "upon all molasses and syrups of the growth, product, or manufacture of any foreign American colony or plantation imported into the British colonies and plantations in America" is reduced from 6d. to 3d. per gallon, while the importation of all rum and spirits from the same source is prohibited. It was especially provided that the revenue accruing from the duties should be reserved and "from time to time disposed of by parliament, towards defraying the necessary expences, of defending, protecting, and securing, the British colonies and plantations in America." The act was to become effective on Sept. 29.—Parliamentary Hist., XV: 1427-30.
- 13 Fourteen Delaware Indians captured by Sir William Johnson are in the jail in New York.—Colden Papers in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1876), IX: 319.
- 15 Rev. Archibald Laidlie's induction takes place this Sunday morning at the New Dutch Church (Nassau St.). In the afternoon he preached to an audience of "about Four thousand souls."—Jour. of the proceedings of the Ref. Prot. Dutch Church.
- 18 The king gives his assent to the bill "for preventing such paper bills of credit, as may hereafter be issued within any of his Majesty's colonies or plantations in America, from being made legal tender in payment of money."—Ann. Reg. (1764), 65. For the action of the assembly, see April 19.
- 19 Having heard that Parliament intends to restrain the paper currency of all the colonies [see April 18], the assembly resolves "that if the said Plan be carried into Execution, it will not only highly reflect on the Credit, Honour, and Punctuality of this Colony, but also reduce it to a State of Bankruptcy." The committee of correspondence is ordered to transmit to the colony's agent in Great Britain "a proper State of the Paper Currency of this Colony."—Assemb. Jour., II: 739.
- 20 The merchants of the city present to the assembly a memorial which they have prepared to be forwarded to parliament. The Memorial states: "That the declining State of the Commerce of this and the other Northern Colonies, from the present rigorous Executions of the Statute of the sixth of his late Majesty George the Second, called the Sugar act [see Feb. 21, 1733], is become an Object of such serious and universal Concern, that the Mercantile Part of the Community who are more immediately interested, would at so melancholy a Juncture, be lost to all Sense of Duty to their Country and themselves, were they to remain silent Spectators of the impending Ruin . . . they have for many Years past, carried on a very beneficial Traffic with several of the foreign Sugar Islands, as well before as since the Act, which by imposing Duties that amount to a Prohibition, would long since have deprived them of the Life and Support of their Commerce and Credit, had they been severely exacted; for your Memorialists conceive . . . that the Suppression of their Trade with the foreign Sugar Islands, by whatsoever Means effected, must necessarily end not only in the utter impoverishment of his Majesty's Northern Colonies, and the Destruction of their Navigation, but in the grievous Detriment of the British Manufactures and Artificers, and the great Diminution of the Trade, Power, Wealth, and naval Strength of Great Britain." The merchants give a detailed account of the general commerce of the northern colonies, and then declare that if "this dreaded Law be revived or continued" it must be attended with the following "Train of Consequences highly prejudicial to Great Britain and ruinous to her Colonies . . . The Incapacity of making good our Payments, already severely felt, must necessarily sink our Credit, and gradually decrease our Imports from Great Britain . . . numbers of Manufactures will remain without Employ, and be obliged to transport themselves . . . to foreign Parts for a Subsistence. . . .
 "The Manufacturing Towns, those Springs of British Opulence, decay. The Rents of Lands, Iron Works, and Collieries, fall, and Trade, in general, languish and decline . . . The Continuation of the Sugar Act will be productive of the double Mischief of impoverishing the Subjects of Great-Britain and enriching those of the several European States, who have dependent Plantations in the Islands of the West-India Sea." The assembly approves of the memorial and resolves to direct the colony's agent in Great Britain "to give all possible Opposition to the Renewal, or Continuation of the said Act."—Assemb. Jour., II: 740-44. News of parliament's action, on April 6 (p. v.), had not yet reached New York. For the action of the merchants at the time of the Stamp Act, see Oct. 31, 1765.
- 21 The legislature passes an act for raising 180 men "to be Employed against the Enemy Indians and other purposes therein mentioned." This law regulates the enlistment of the men, their pay, their equipment, the length of service, and the penalty for desertion.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 757-63.
- 24 It is resolved by Trinity vestry "that a Gallery be Erected on Each Side of the Organ above the present Galleries for the use of the Charity Schollars."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- 30 All the medicines, instruments, and utensils "belonging to his Majesty's Hospital" at the Battery, are to be sold at auction on this day.—N. Y. Merc., April 2, 1764.
- May The governors of King's College appoint a committee "to inclose the Ground fronting the South side of the College within a Board Fence."—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 37-38. See also May, 1763.
- 8 The governors of King's College order "that a conductor be fixed to the cupola of the college, as a security against lightning."—Moores, Historical Sketch of Columbia College, 49.
- 11 "Colden passes "Blundell on Act of Repairs to '90 Fort Colours,"—From Cadwallader Colden's Account Book (MS.), kept by his son, now in the archives of the N. Y. Hist. Soc. Christopher Blundell was the custodian of ammunition and stores at the fort whose salary ceased with the disbanding of the independent companies in 1763. He continued to serve, however, "in hopes of being some how provided for."—From a letter of Colden to Gen. Mookton in Aspinwall Papers, 498.
- " It is ordered by the common council that "Fifty Lamps and Lamp Posts" be purchased and "Erected in some of the most publick Streets in This City, where its Conceivd they will be most beneficial."—M. C. C., VI: 377. Fifty pounds were paid for these on Aug. 15.—Ibid., VI: 384. The following year (Jan. 4), 30 more were ordered.—Ibid., VI: 403. See also Dec. 31, 1761.
- " The city treasurer is ordered to pay £500 to Whitehead Hicks, "out of the monies paid into his hands by the Church Wardens of this City and raised and Collected by Virtue of an Act of the Governour Council and Generall Assembly of this Province Lately made and Published, Entituled an Act to Impower & Enable the Mayor Recorder and Aldermen of the City of New York to order the raising a Sum not Exceeding fourteen hundred pounds for the purposes within mentioned" (Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 717-19). Alderman Hicks is to apply this money "towards Rebuilding the City Hall." The board agrees to return it to "the said Treasurer or Chamberlain as Soon as the Same shall be by him required."—M. C. C., VI: 375-76. On Aug. 29, Hicks was commissioned to receive £300 more for the same purpose.—Ibid., VI: 386-87. See Nov. 9, 1764, and May 3, 1765.
- " Cornelius P. Low, a merchant, petitions the common council for a water lot "fronting his Lot of Ground on the Southwesterly Corner of Burnets Key," in the East Ward. It is described as about 35 feet wide "in Front on said Key" and about 30 feet wide "on the Southwest Side of the said Lott Fronting the Street on the Easterly Side of the Slip in Rotten Row" (Hunters Key—see Vol. I, Pl. 34). He proposes building "a Pier Fronting the said Street and a part of the said Slip," where "Vessels Laying on the West Side of the said Pier will be Entirely Secure from Receiving any Damage from the Ice in Winter Season," and for which purpose the pier will have to be "Built In the most Substantial manner in order To Withstand The Great Quantities of Ice Which in Winter Seasons With The Tide of Ebb Takes its Course Along this Shore." A committee is appointed to make inquiry.—M. C. C., VI: 377-78. Full report by this committee was made on Jan. 25, 1765, stating their approval 1764 of the proposal, and advising that, to prevent the "filling up the May Docks on each side," he should leave "a Vacancy of Forty Foot 11 Between the present Dock and the said Peer so to be Built for the Tides way which vacancy to be Covered with a Strong Bridge for Carriages &c.;" and that he should "Leave Forty one feet at the End of the said Peer and Lott Above mentioned For a Street to be Opened when therunto Required by this Corporation."—Ibid., VI: 405-6. On Oct. 28, the clerk of the board produced "the Draft of a grant of a Water Lott to Cornelius P. Low Lying and being in the East River contiguous to his house and Ground fronting the present Coffee house," and it was approved for execution.—

Ibid., VI: 437-38. See Pl. 34, Vol. I.

On Feb. 27, 1766, Mr. Low, stated in a petition that, "upon Calculating the Expence he shall be put to" in extending a pier into the East River, "and the Risque of having the same Over set or destroyed by the Ice Whirl Building," he found the terms of his grant "very Inadequate to such Expence and Risque." He asked for the "Privilege of the Wharfrage of one Vessel on the Southwesterly side of the said pier as Long as the Soil on that Side shall Remain ungranted with such further Time for Compleating the same pier as this Board shall think Reasonable."—Ibid., VII: 13-14. The action of the board on this petition does not appear in the Minutes; it was probably involved in their consideration of the petition of Robert Murray.—See July 24, 1766.

14 "The Foundation Stone of the Third English Church [St.
Paul's] which is about erecting in this City [see April 5] is to be laid this Day. The Church is to be 112 by 72 Feet."—N. Y. Gaz.
(Weyman), May 14, 1764. The church was opened on Oct. 30, 1766 (q. v.). See also July 21, 1766.

21 The mansion of Charles Ward Athorp is under construction.—
N. Y. Merc., May 21, 1764. "He called the Bloomingdale property 'Elmwood,' and here he dispensed lavish hospitality. He died in the mansion in 1797. . . . The building was beautiful in its architecture. Its recessed portico with Corinthian columns and pilasters and high-arched doorway commanded the admiration of architects even to the time of its destruction" (in 1886, q. v.).— Mott, The N. Y. of Yesterday, 14-15. During the Revolution Howe made his headquarters here.—Lamb, Hist. City of N. Y., II: 128-29. "The plot containing the mansion was sold to William Jucoey, an Englishman and rich merchant, in 1799, with a right of way in Athorp Lane leading from the Road to the river. The Elmwood estate was bequeathed in 1828 to Herman Jucoey Thorne."— Mott, op. cit., 15. See also March 20, 1780. It became "Elm Park," an inn and pleasure resort, in 1860. The location of the Athorp house was south of 91st St., 210 ft. west of Columbus Ave. See 1860; 1886; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 948; Pl. 177, Vol. III;
Mag. of Am. Hist. (16886), XIV: 227, 229; Mem. Hist. N. Y., II: 432.

24 The earliest organized action against colonial taxation by the crown is seen in the instructions given by the town of Boston to its representatives.—Frothingham, Rise of the Republic, 167.

June The lighthouse at Sandy Hook (see March 13, 1761) has been 11 completed and is now lighted for the first time. "The House is of an Octagon Figure, having eight equal Sides; the Diameter at the Base, 20 Feet; and at the Top of the Wall 15 Feet. The Lanthorn is 7 Feet high; the Circumference 33 Feet. The whole Construction of the Lanthorn is Iron; the Top covered with Copper. There are 48 Oil Blazes. The Building from the Surface is Nine Stories; the whole from Bottom to Top, 103 Feet. This Structure, was undertaken by M<sup>r</sup> Isaac Conro, of this City; and was carried on with all the Expedition that the Difficulty attending to and Iron on the Occasion could possibly admit of;—and is judg<sup>d</sup> to be masterly finished."—N. Y. Merc., June 18, 1764. A duty of 3d. per ton was laid on the tonnage of ships to maintain it. This produced for the first year £487:6:9, and the expenses were £431:8:6; for the second year, £415:1:61, and expenses, £407:1:4:6.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), I: 480.

17 In a memorial to the common council, Robert Leake, the "Commissary General of Stores and Provisions for His Majesty's Forces in North America," states that he purchased a lot belonging to Mr. Elleson on the North River on which to build a store-house, and it appears the work on the building is suspended. The surveyors have stated that "the New Dock is laid too far into the Ship." His remedy for this is "to incline farther to the northward."—
From the original memorial (MS.), endorsed "filed June 3rd 1764 1764 (not entered)," in city clerk's record-room.

"We are informed that the New-York Independent Companies, June which have been reduced since the peace, are again to be put in 25 commission on an entire new plan to garrison this Province in their former station."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 25, 1764.

28 An advertisement in the Post-Boy reveals the existence of a ferry across the North River. It was a private enterprise, held in question by the city authorities Sept. 10 of this year (q. v.), and did not become a legal establishment until Feb. 25, 1766 (q. v.). The advertisement reads: "The long wished for Ferry, is now established, and kept across the North-River, from the Place called Powless's Hook, to the City of New-York; and Boats properly constructed, as well for the Convenience of Passengers, as for the carrying over of Horses and Carriages, do now constantly ply from one Shore to the other. The Landing on the New-York Side, is fixed at the Dock commonly called Meesier's Dock; and as Pow-less's Hook, is situated nearly opposite to the said Dock, the Distance between the two Places being about three Quarters of a Mile, and as the Boats may pass and repass, at all Times of the Tide, with almost equal Dispatch; it is thought by far the most convenient Place for a Ferry, of any yet established, or that can be established, from the Province of New-Jersey, to the City of New-York; and what will give it the Preference by far, of all the other Ferries, in the Winter Season, is, that rarely a Day happens, but that Boats may pass at this Ferry, without being obstructed or endagered by the Ice. Constant Attendance is given at Powless's Hook, by Michael Cornelisse. . . . Also, that a Ferry is established, and kept across the Kill Van Kull, and that Boats constantly attend for that Purpose, at the Place formerly belonging to John Beak, and commonly called Moodases, situate near the Dutch Church, on Staten-Island, from whence Passengers are transported directly across to Bergen Point, from which Place there is a fine Road leading directly to the said Powless's Hook; so that a short, safe, easy and convenient way is fixed, by Means of these Two Ferries, for all Travellers passing to the City of New York, from any of the Southern Governments."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 28, 1764. For many of the localities above mentioned, see Pl. 45, Vol. I. For later history of this ferry, see "Paulus Hook Ferry" in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 943.

29 The consistency of the Dutch Church agrees to sell the vacaot pews in the "New" church for the life time of the buyer, at public vendue, on July 10.—Eccles. Rec., VI: 3931. The auction of the pews did not take place until July 16 (q. v.). The remodelling of this church, undertaken Dec. 7, 1763 (q. v.), was now nearly completed. See July 18.

July James de Lancy, "at his House in the Bowery," offers to lease 9 for 63 years "several Lots in a large Square laid out on both Sides of the Road leading from the Bowery Lane to Corlear's Hook . . ."
He offers also "several Lots in a small Square on the Hill near Mr. Jones's Garden."—N. Y. Merc., July 9, 1764.

10 One of the earliest demonstrations against the representatives of the crown occurs. On July 10, "four Fishermen who supply the Markets in this City, were pressed from on board their Vessels, and carried on board a Tender from Halifax, belonging to one of his Majesty's Ships on that Station;" on July 11, "when the Capt. of the Tender came on Shore, in his Barge, a mob suddenly assembled and seized the Boat, but offered no Injury to the Capt., who it is said, publicly declared he gave no such orders, offer'd to release the Fishermen, and going into the Coffee House wrote and delivered an Order for that purpose. Mean while the mob, with great shouting, drag'd the Boat thro' the Streets to the middle of the Green in the Fields, where they burn'd and destroy'd her, and dispersed as suddenly as they met, without doing any other mischief; some of the Company went on Board the Tender with the Captain's Order, & brought the Fishermen on Shore. The Magistrates as soon as they had Notice Sent to disperse the Mob, and secure the Boat, but the Business was finish'd before they could interpose. The Court met in the afternoon, but was not able to discover any of the Persons concerned in the mischief."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 12, 1764.
On March 19, 1765, an order of the king in council had for its aim the prosecution of the persons "concerned in burning, in front of the city hall, New York, the boat belonging to H. M. sloop Chaleur."— Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 753. No further action appears of record.

13 The lords of trade wrote to Colden, that it appears to them there is nothing in the petition of the Lutheran Church for a charter (see Sept. 29, 1763), which makes such incorporation at present either necessary or expedient.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 642-43.

- 1764 There are sold at public auction (see June 29) "in the New Aug.
July Dutch Church 58 pews in the Gallery and 122 below all for a 27
16 Life." The accession of the English preacher, Laidie (see April 15), has been "of the utmost Consequence, and has brought together the "Scattered Congregation" (see Jan. 18, 1761), so that it has "grown so numerous that there was not half Vacant pews enough to Supply the people."—Jour. of the proceedings of the Ref. Prot. Dutch Church.
- 17 In a petition to the king, Sir James Jay, in behalf of the governors of King's College (see Aug. 19, 1762), presents a review of the origin, progress, and present condition of the college. He states some of its charter provisions concerning its government; refers to donations from the assembly, from the Soc. for Propagating the Gospel (£500), and from individuals, and to the necessity of making an appeal for funds in England, which has resulted in raising about £5,000, clear of expenses, including the king's own donation of £400. Still further assistance is necessary "in carry on the design even in its present confined manner much less to render it of more extensive and general utility;" and Mr. Jay continues, "considering that the Universities in Britain and Ireland were liberally endowed with lands, by your Majesty's Illustrious Predecessors and relying on your Majesty's known regard for the advancement of Religion and useful knowledge . . ." he is encouraged to petition that the king "will be pleased to grant twenty thousand Acres of land in the Province of New York, free of the conditions of cultivation and Quit Rents to the Gov<sup>ts</sup> of the College . . . for the use and behoof of the said College, and that the Said Gov<sup>ts</sup> have leave to locate the quantity of lands allowed the said College out of any of the Crown Lands in the said province before any person or persons who have obtained orders for lands in the said province, are permitted to locate the same. . . ."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 643-45.
- 18 The consistory of the Dutch Church resolves "That a Balcony be made on the New Church such as is on the Old English Church."—Eccles. Rec., VI: 394-42. See Dec. 7, 1763.
- 20 The king in council orders that the west bank of the river Connecticut shall be the boundary between New York and New Hampshire.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 754. This was announced by proclamation in New York City on April 10, 1765 (q. v.).—Cal. Coun. Min., 512. On June 15, 1774, Gov. Tryon wrote to the governor of New Hampshire relative to the meeting of commissioners for settling the line.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 805.
- See A. Aug. The house of commons having passed a resolution to the effect that "it may be proper to charge certain duties in the . . . Colonies and Plantations," the Earl of Halifax orders the governors in America to send to England "a list of all instruments made use of in public transactions, law proceedings, Grants, conveyances, securities of Land or money within your Govern<sup>ts</sup>, with proper and sufficient descriptions of the same," so that if parliament should see fit to pass a law in accordance with the above resolution, it may be put into effect "in the most effectual and least burthensome manner."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 646. The Stamp Act was passed on March 22, 1765 (q. v.).
- 15 Inhabitants residing in and near Ferry St. in Montgomerie Ward present a petition to the common council, stating "that they are and have Frequently Been overflooded with Water Occasioned from the Drain or Canal in said Street not Being Sufficient or Large Enough to discharge the Great Confluence of Waters that Descend to it from the Neighbouring Elevated Streets and Lanes." They ask for relief and a committee is appointed to investigate.—M. C. C., VI: 385. On Sept. 10, it was ordered that the city contribute £100 toward enlarging the drain.—Ibid., VI: 388.
- 20 The minutes of the consistory of the Dutch Church of New York state that on this day "A plan of the ground of the High Dutch Church [German Reformed Church, of which Dominie Kern was pastor] was shown." By this, it was found that the German Reformed Church encroached several feet upon ground belonging to the Dutch Church. It was resolved "that these feet be leased to them for fifteen years for a compensation of a shilling a year."—Eccles. Rec., VI: 3946. The German Reformed Church was the covered theatre, built in 1753, and sold to this congregation in 1758. It stood on the site of the present 64-66 Nassau St., on the east side of the street, between Maiden Lane and John St.—See 1758; and description of Pl. 30, I: 265.
- 27 "Mr Elias De Grushie's old Rope Walk [see May 25, 1752], in the Fields, is now in the Possession of Neal Shaw, who carries on the Rope-making Business as usual."—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 27, 1764.
- A new pillory "with a large Wooden Cage behind it" is being erected "between the New Goal and the Work House" (see Feb. 10). The cage is said to be designed "for disorderly Boys, Negroes, &c. who publicly break the Sabbath."—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 10, 1764.
- William Adams, at the Sign of General Monckton, upon the New Dock, "in the House formerly occupied by Mr. Marshall," offers good entertainment. Adams "bath lived two Years with General Monckton; also hath been Steward and Butler to the Hon. James Hamilton." Having lived in the "best Families," he feels that he knows how to "attend Gentlemen in a proper Manner."—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 3. This house was formerly known as the Sun Tavern.
- The subject of a private ferry or ferries to Jersey becomes a matter of official notice. The common council appoints a committee "to take into Consideration Whether those People Residing in that part of Jersey Called powlus's Hook have any Right to ferridge to and from this City."—M. C. C., VI: 388. See June 28, 1764; May 3, 1765.
- The assembly sends an address to the lieutenant-governor, in reply to a message from him. One of the recommendations made by Colden was the renewal of the law granting a bounty on hemp. This the assembly agrees to do, "still hoping that a Stop may be put to those Measures, which if carried into Execution, will oblige us to think, that nothing but extream Poverty can preserve us from the most insupportable Bondage.
- "We hope, your Honour will join with us, in an Endeavour to secure that great Badge of English Liberty, of being taxed only with our own Consent, to which we conceive, all his Majesty's Subjects at home and abroad equally entitled." . . .—Assemb. Jour., II: 750. Colden, in answer to the address said: "The Method you now take is, in my Opinion, improper; however I shall do nothing to prevent your making a Representation of the State of this Colony, which you think best: May your Proceedings tend to the Benefit of the People you represent."—Ibid., II: 752. See Sept. 20.
- "We have received a Piece relating to the great Number of Publick Vendue Houses encouraged in this City, . . . the ill practices made use of at them.—We are assured there is a Remonstrance against them prepariing to be presented to the General Assembly now sitting here, already subscribed by Numbers; the good effects of which it is hoped will soon be found by the fair Trade, in having them put under proper Restrictions by our Superiours."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Sept. 17, 1764. On the following day, merchants, shopkeepers and other inhabitants of New York complained in the assembly, of the "many Evils and Disadvantages," which arise from "the present Methods of selling dry Goods, and other Merchandize, at publick Auction."—Assemb. Jour., II: 753.
- In a letter to the lords of trade, Colden characterizes the assembly's address to him (see Sept. 11) as "undutifull & indecent."—Golden Papers, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1876), 361; Mem. Hist. N. Y., II: 330.
- Andrew Gautier is allowed £1287:23 for "sundry Repairs done to the House in the Fort; to the Battery, Hospital, and red Store House, in the Month of June and October 1763, and in the Year 1764." Wynant van Zandt is allowed £18:18 "for Repairs to the Pumps and Wells in Fort George," from Sept. 4, 1753 to Dec. 14, 1756.—Assemb. Jour., II: 758.
- "Sovereign Sybrandt, Takes this method of informing the the Public, that he has . . . fitted up . . . a new and genteel Stage Wagon, which is to perform two Stages in every Week, from Philadelphia to New York" (Powles Hook)—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 1, 1764. For a more frequent service, see May 28, 1767.
- Obadiah Wells, of New York, in the interest of "a great Number of Spinners," petitions that "a Sum of Money may be raised by a Lottery, or some other Way, to encourage spinning and weaving Cloth, for home Ware."—Assemb. Jour., II: 763.
- The Newmarket Races are to be run on this day "over the New Course, on Hamstead Plains."—N. Y. Merc., July 30, 1764. As early as 1668 (see April 1, 1669), Gov. Nicolls had established a race-course at Hamstead, I. a.—N. Y. Col. Docs., XIV: 620.
- "At a Time, when by anew System of Regulations in Commerce, our Trade is oppressed and restrained, and our Spirits sunk to as low an Ebb, as by natural Consequences our Purses must be by and by, and Pains by nature to alleviate our Pains, by sending Peter Hafenclever, a public and noble-spirited Straeger amongst us, who last Week introduced into this Province, at an immense Expence,

- 1764 above 200 Germans (women included), consisting all of Artificers, Oct.
 8 as Miners, Founders, Forgers, Colliers, Wheelwrights, Carpenters, &c. There never was brought a finer or more valuable Set of people to America, than these."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Oct. 8, 1764.
- 12 Charles Ward Apthorpe conveys a house and parcel of land to Nicholas Jones.—Libor Deeds, XLIII: 415. This house became known as the Nicholas Jones house; it was situated between the present 106th and 107th Sts., 500 ft. west of West End Ave. It was later called "Woodlawn," and was sold by heirs of Jones—William Rogers and Ann, his wife—to Sarah, wife of William Heywood, Oct. 31, 1816.—Mott, The N. Y. of Yesterday, 47. In the battle of Harlem Heights, this house, as the Nicholas Jones house, became somewhat famous.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 981-82; PL, 178, Vol. III. See April 10, 1847.
- 18 The Assembly addresses a memorial to the king, in which it is stated that the members cannot, "without the strongest Demonstrations of Grief, express their Sentiments on the late Intimation of a Design, to impose Taxes on your Majesty's Colonies, by Laws to be passed in Great Britain." The power of taxing themselves, they also say, is "fundamentally interwoven" in their constitution. They have ever abused the power, as their "strenuous Exertions, upon every public Emergency," demonstrate. They have "ever been a People, zealous for the Honour of their Sovereign, sanguine in the publick Cause, ready to strain every Nerve, upon every Occasion;" they have "supported the whole Weight of Savage and Canadian Fury, for near a Century," and have been "as liberal of their Blood as their Treasure." They recommend to the king's consideration the "present ruinous State" of their commerce, and the concern with which they have received the late act of parliament by which all commercial intercourse between the colonies and the West Indies is at an end. The prohibition laid on the exportation of lumber to Ireland has resulted in the diminishing of importations of linen from Ireland; this and other acts of trade have "diverted the public Stream of Justice." The wisdom of their ancestors shone in nothing more brightly, "thao in the Institution of Juries, for the Decision of all Controversies, that concern the Lives, Liberties, and Property of the Subject." Lastly, the want of a paper currency is a great evil, "to which the Colonies, are unhappily made Subject, by an Act of Parliament lately passed for that Purpose." Summing up, they declare "that one of their exclusive Blessings they have to expect, from a Continuance of their respective Right to tax themselves, the Restoration and Extension of their Commerce, the Execution of Law, in the antient and ordinary Method, and the Continuance of their Bills of Credit, will be, their Capacity to do the most faithful and ready Services, to their King and Country, upon every Occasion."—Assemb. Jour., II: 769-73. Similar memorials are sent to the two houses of parliament.—Assemb. Jour., II: 773-79.
- " It is ordered by the assembly that the committee appointed to correspond with the agent (R. Charles) of the colony in England (see April 4, 1761) be also a committee, during the recess of the house, "to write to, and correspond with the several Assemblies, or Committees of Assemblies on this Continent, on the subject Matter of the Act, commonly called the Sugar Act of the Act restraining Paper Bills of Credit in the Colonies from being a legal Tender; and of the several other Acts of Parliament lately passed, with Relation to the Trade of the Northern Colonies; and also on the Subject of the impending Dangers which threaten the Colonies of being taxed by Laws to be passed in Great Britain."—Assemb. Jour., II: 780. Such "Committees of Correspondence" subsequently became an important instrument in effecting American independence. For full consideration of this subject, the history of colonial affairs leading up to it, and its subsequent developments, see The Sons of Liberty, by Henry B. Dawson (N. Y. Hist. Soc., 1859).
- On Nov. 20, 1765, Justice Livingston, from the committee appointed on Oct. 18, 1764, reported that the committee had, with the "Committees from the several Governemnts on the Continent in Congress," come to sundry resolutions and drawn up "Representations to his Majesty and both Houses of Parliament."—Assemb. Jour., II: 783.
- 19 Abraham Lott is allowed £1603:34 for "Chairs, Branches, Oct.
 30 Curtains, and other Necessarys," by him provided, for the Use of the General Assembly."—Assemb. Jour., II: 762.
- 20 A new "Act for Regulating the Militia of the Colony of New York" contains only the fundamental law on the subject without several of the amendments which were temporarily in effect at various times in former years.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 767-77. Compare the acts and amendments in the Chronology under Nov. 27, 1741; Dec. 17, 1743; Sept. 21, 1744; Feb. 26, 1746; Dec. 7, 1754; Feb. 19, 1755. This act expired Jan. 1, 1769; but was provided for by a new Militia Act on March 24, 1775 (p. v.).
- " By an act of assembly "the Mayor, Aldermeo and Commonalty of the City of New York and their successors for ever are Appointed Commissioners to Regulate and keep in Repair the Present Highways and to Lay out Regulate and keep in Repair such other Publick Roads or Highways in the said City and County as shall thereafter be laid out by Act of Acts to be Passed for that Purpose."—M. C. C., VI: 404; Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 838-42.
- " An act is passed to regulate the public pounds in New York. It provides for the appointment of the keepers of the pounds and determines the fees that are to be charged.—N. Y. Col. Laws, IV: 825, 826.
- " By an act "for paying and Discharging Several Sums of Money Claimed as Publick Debts of this Colony, and Other purposes there in Mentioned," the treasurer is ordered to pay the following: £18:18 "for Repairs to the Pumps and Wells in Fort George" from Sept. 4, 1753 to Dec. 14, 1756.
- " £128:7:23 "for Sundry Repairs done to the House in Fort George, to the Battery, Hospital, and Red Store House" in the months of June and October, 1763, and in the year 1764.
- " £165:2 to pay "the Several persons who were aiding and Assisting the Merchants of the City of New York in drawing up a Memorial in Order to be presented to the Parliament of Great Britain complaining of the Hardships the Trade of this Colony Labours under [see April 2c] . . . for Making out several Copies thereof, and for Other Expences attending the same."
- " £765 to Abraham Lott on account "to Enable him to carry on the usefull work of Reprinting and Bidding up the Votes of the General Assembly of this Colony to the Number of three Hundred Books of the first Volume of the said Votes" (see Jan. 8, 1762).
- " £1603:4 "to be employed and applied in providing Chairs, Branches, Curtains and other Necessarys for furnishing a Room for the use of the Council in the City Hall of the City of New York."—Col. Laws of N. Y., IV: 792-94.
- 23 Capt. Montgomery arrives with dispatches for Gen. Gage from Oct.
 30 Col. Bradstreet at Sandusky. These inform him of the treachery and villany of the Seneca, Shawnee, and Delaware tribes of Indians. In a letter to Sir William Johnson, Gage says: "By their Contrivance we are disappointed in our Hopes of settling our Business at the Illinois, in the manner we wished . . . Pontiac has a Letter from the French to tell him that their Fathers are not crushed, as the English would make the Indians believe, and mention a large Fleet coming into the Mississippi. We have just received Letters from Home, that a Spanish Gov<sup>t</sup> & Lieut. Gov<sup>t</sup> were nominated for New Orleans, and have also a Letter from thence to inform me that the Spaniards were soon expected. This therefore must be the Trick of some Villains, to prevent our getting to the Illinois in order to keep the Trade in their hands as long as possible."—Gen. Gage's Letters (MS.), under date of Oct. 23 and 26, 1764. Capt. Montgomery, named above, is probably not the famous Richard, of later days, but his brother Alexander, who was engaged at Quebec in command of a company of grenadiers.—J. Sparks, Richard Montgomery, in Biography Series, Vol. I.
- " A committee of the King's College governors is appointed to cause a porter's lodge to be erected, to level the college yard, and to plant trees along the fence.—Moore, Hist. Sketch of Columbia College, 50. The trees were carried to the college green by Robert Benson, John Jay, Robert K. Livingston, and also (as stated in 1876 by Hon. John Jay of the class of 1836) by Richard Harrison, and were planted by whom when students there.—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 38. Regarding the fical removal of these trees (sycamores), see 1857.
- 26 Charles Ward Apthorpe and John Temple are sworn in as members Oct.
 30 also.—Col. Coun. Min., 466.
- " Oliver de Lancey writes to Gen. Monckton: "Last Week G<sup>d</sup> Nov.
 30 Gage Left Greenwich [see March 11] not in So Good order as when You went away owing to the Worst Set of Servants that ever managed a Family I shall take it as a Great favour if You'll let me know if You shall have any further Occasion for the House and farm which I Truly Wish as Your Return to New York is more Wished for and Your Presence more Necessary Than I shall take

- 1764 the Liberty to Tell You in affairs of Government."—Chalmers
 Nov. 3 Papers relating to N. Y., II.
- 9 A committee of the common council is appointed to "Regulate and pave Roosevelt Street, Queen Street, St. James's Street, and Rutgers's Street in the out ward."—M. C. C., VI: 400. Roosevelt St. is mentioned in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1008; Queen St., modern Pearl St., at pp. 1007, 1008; St. James's St., modern James St., at p. 1003; Rutgers St., at p. 1009. See Pl. 174, Vol. III.
- " Alderman Hicks (see May 11) is directed to "Borrow on Interest for the use of this Corporation the sum of five Hundred pounds towards the payment of the Expences for Enlarging the City Hall."—M. C. C., VI: 400. See May 3, 1765.
- 10 Jonathan Watts writes thus to Monckton: "The Colony is so chagrin'd at the Treatment of their paper Money [see April 18 and Oct. 18], considering how dutifully they have obey'd the requisitions of the Crown, that brought it all upon them, that they would not hear of so much as offering the forty Thousand pounds Act to the Lieut Govt, of Course it goes on sinking & the Government looses the Fund."—Chalmers Papers relating to N. Y., II.
- 23 Capt. John Montrosor, a British engineer who had come to America with Braddock in 1754, and had served under a succession of commanders since, arrives in New York from Albany and reports to Gen. Amherst. Montrosor kept a journal, which is printed in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections for the year 1881. The frontispiece of this printed journal is a portrait of Montrosor. He became chief engineer in America in 1776. His journal reflects his loyalty to the crown and his detestation of the Sons of Liberty. See Feb. 8, 1766, and Pl. 40, Vol. I, for the "Montrosor Plan" of the city, made by order of Gen. Gage.
- Dec. Gen. Gage and some of his officers have formed a scheme of taking a regiment of Indians into British pay; to be partly commanded by their own warriors and uniformed in the English manner. Several Indians, thus equipped, appeared very proud of their new dress; and it was proposed that the uniforms of their chiefs should be very magnificent, with a view to introducing the practice with greater facility.—Upcott Coll., in N. Y. Hist. Soc., II: 229.
- 3 The public is informed that, on account of "the present deplorable State of our Trade," a "Society for the Promotion of Arts, Agriculture and Economy in the Province of New York" has been formed to promote "the true Interest of this Colony, both public and private." An invitation, mentioning "Mr. Van Der Spiegel, the Society's Treasurer," and signed by Benjamin Kissam, Secretary, is extended to "every real Friend . . . to become a Member thereof" and to meet the present members "at the House of Mr. Samuel Francis [see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 978] at Six o'Clock in the Evening of This Day . . . where the Plan of the said Society will be more fully explained."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Dec. 3, 1764. See Jan. 21, 1765.
- 5 Roger Morris is sworn in as a member of the council in the place of John Chambers, deceased.—Cal. Coun. Min., 466.
- 6 Samuel Francis "begs leave to observe that he has completely fitted up his House and long Room at Spring Gardens Vauxhall."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 6, 1764. This is the Old Bowling Green on the North River. See March 29, 1738.
- 8 The council orders that a proclamation be issued declaring peace with the Indians.—Cal. Coun. Min., 466.
- 9 "Orders this day Major General Gage appointed Commander in Chief, General Amherst resigned."—Montrosor's Jour., 321. Cf. Golden Papers, 420.
- 17 Alexander McDougall, commander of the private sloop of war "Tyger," advertises that he will settle all demands for prize money "at Mr. Samuel London's on Hunter's Quay."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 17, 1764.
- 22 "A new Vice-Admiralty Court over all America, having jurisdiction of breaches of the revenue laws wherever the offence might occur in the British Colonies," is established by an act of the British parliament. The Earl of Northumberland was appointed vice-admiral by the king.—Mass. Hist. Soc. Proceedings, XVII: 291.
- 24 "To be Sold Twelve Years Lease of Two good dwelling houses, and lots of grounds situate on the north corner of the Spring Garden, facing the New Goal, and Work House;—the corner house, noted for a well acoustomed Tavern, Keeping the sign of General Wolfe, has four rooms on the lower floor, and is convenient for Lodgers above stairs.—The other is a new house joining the aforementioned . . ." Inquiries are to be made of Michael Hansen, living in the "first above mentioeed Premises."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Dec. 24, 1764. This tavern stood on the present Spruce St. and Park Row. It was again offered for sale on June 8, 1767 (q.v.).
- 1765
- Some time prior to this year, the residence of Nicholas W. Stuyvesant, known as "Petersfield," was erected.—B. R. Winthrop in Man. Coun. Coun. (1862), 693. It stood in the block bounded by 15th and 16th Sts., First Ave. and Avenue A. It was demolished between 1829 and 1832.—Cf. Map 210, register's office; Liber Deeds, CCLXXXIX: 361. This dwelling was on the site of the "Trefelyck Huys," shown on the Manatus Maps, C. Pls. 41, 42, and 42a, Vol. II; see description of Manatus Maps, II: 187-88. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 952; Pls. 10A and 41, Vol. I, and Pl. 175, Vol. III.
- In this year, Division Street was laid out.—Liber Deeds, XLVIII: 364-67 (New York). It was surveyed and regulated in 1790.—M. C. C. (MS.), IX: 426.
- "They write from New York, that two Breweries for pale and brown Beer are now carried on with great Briskness in that City; the former producing a Malt Liquor little inferior to the most-aded Ales imported from England; Several hundred Thousand Bottles of it have been exported to the neighbouring Islands and Colonies in America in the Course of last year."—Upcott Coll., II: 251.
- In this year, William Grigg, an American silversmith, was admitted as a freeman of New York. A description of a sugar bowl made by him may be found in Met. Museum of Art. Cat. of Exhibition of Silver used in N. Y., N. J., and the South (1911), 27.
- In this year, Cary Dunn, silversmith, was admitted as a freeman of New York, where he continued to work for thirty years. In 1786 he was a member of the Gold and Silver Smith's Society. Two pieces of his workmanship are described in Met. Museum of Art. Cat. of Exhibition of Silver used in N. Y., N. J., and the South (1911), 22.
- The wall of the High Dutch Church (German Reformed), on Nassau St. (see Aug. 20, 1764), having given way, so that service cannot be held there without extreme danger, the coisistory of the Dutch Church permits Domine Kero to use the Dutch Church between the times of worship there.—Eccles. Rec., VI: 3971. The injury to the walls of the church (which was the converted theatre, built in 1753, and sold to this congregation in 1758, q.v.) was due to a heavy fall of snow, which caused the walls to spread.—Ibid., VI: 4038-39. The corner-stone of a new church on the same site was laid on March 8, 1765 (q.v.).—Greenleaf, Hist. of the Churches, 26.
- A newspaper contributor states that "a Gentleman in this City appeared (last Sunday Evening) at the Funeral of his only Son, without any other Kind of Mourning, than a Hat Band; and his Bearers without Scarfs." This is cited as a laudable example of economy to be imitated by persons of all ranks "in the present declining State of our Country."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Jan. 3, 1765. Cf. Man. Coun. Coun. (1853), 460.
- "A Very fine Dark Brown Mare" is offered for sale at "Mr. Stout's Tavern-Keeper, at Fresh-Water."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 3, 1765. This tavern was later known as the Plow and Harrow. It stood at what is now the intersection of Doyers St. and the Bowery, where, as early as 1735, a "tavern" had been kept, as is indicated on the manuscript map, Pl. 30, Vol. I. Before July 9, 1772, John Fowler was proprietor. His house, which he called the "Farmer's Tavern," was the starting-point of the stage line between New York and Boston.—N. Y. Jour., July 9, 30, 1772. After the Revolution, Gabriel Furman took the "noted house and stables in the Bowry-lane, before the war kept by John Fowler and of late by Barney and Pell."—N. Y. Packet, Feb. 9, 1784. Furman, having hung out a sign of the "Free American," offered "Geoteel Boarding and lodging."—Ibid., Jan. 4, 1786. By 1792, James Myers was proprietor of the tavern which was once more designated as the "Plough and Harrow."—Daily Adm., Feb. 3, 1792. Hendrick Doyer, a distiller, purchased the property in 1793, and evidently demolished the old house, as he had the land surveyed and cut up into lots in 1797, and Doyers St. cut through the property as it is to-day.—Map 482, Register's Office; Pl. 70, Vol. I; Bancker survey, in box B-F, folder C, MSS. Div., N. Y. Pub. Lib.; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 980; Pl. 174, Vol. III.
- It is ordered by the common council that £300 be raised for laying out, regulatiog, and repairing public roads in the city, the

- 1765 present year as provided by the act of Oct. 20, 1764 (q.v.).—M. C. C., VI: 404. Feb. 6
- 14 The birth-day of the Marquis of Granby, "Master of the Ordnance," is celebrated with "an elegant Entertainment" given by the officers of the artillery. Some "curious Fire Works" are exhibited in the Fields.—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 21, 1765.
- 21 The members of the Society of Arts, etc. (see Dec. 3) decide upon the "Mode of proof proper to be made by the Candidate for premiums" offered for manufactures. This is to be by affidavit of the maker before two justices of the peace in the county where the material has been made, "specifying the quantity; that it was made in this province, and that no part of it had been before offered to them, or any justices, with an intention to receive the premium; nor any part of the quantity inferior to the sample produced."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 28, 1765. For further activities of the society, see Feb. 4.
- 24 "The declining state of business in this city, together with the high Rents and Prices of the Necessaries of Life, having reduced very many Families and poor People to great Distress, especially since the late severe Weather," contributions for their relief have been made by "several humane Gentlemen."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 24, 1765. See Feb. 4.
- 28 A newspaper advertisement reads: "Taken, by Mistake, from Mr. Francis's, at Vauxhall, on Friday Evening last, a new Portuguese Cloak, of fine brown Camlet, lined with green Bays, remarkable for having 3 Caps, &c."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 28, 1765. On the same occasion, and also "by Mistake," was taken a "white Satten flowered Cloak lined throughout with Marten Skins," belonging to Major James, and a "Gold laced Hat" belonging to his servant. At the time, Major James resided "in the Broadway." Vauxhall was the old "Bowling Green" on the North River. See Pls. 26 and 40, Vol. I; and "Vauxhall Tavern and Garden," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 981.
- 29 Capt. John Montross records: "the Hudson's River was froze across so far to make it possible for Sleighs and people to pass to the opposite side from New York." He states that he is "Employed in assisting Cap<sup>t</sup> Henry Gordon Chief Engineer in making a plan of part of North America showing the upper Lakes and Posts thereon together with the several passes, Portages, Ranges of Mountains, sources of Rivers, for the Marquis of Granby, Master General of the Ordnance."—Montross's Jour., 322. The completed plan, "done by the Engineers at New York," was sent to England on March 17.—Ibid., 323.
- Feb. 4 "Several Gentlemen of this City, moved by the Distresses of the Poor in this severe Season have not only contributed themselves to the Relief of the Most Needy, but have gone about the Town to solicit the Benefactions of others for the same charitable purpose; and to find out and relieve the most Necessitous."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 4, 1765.
- "The Society of Arts, etc. (see Jan. 21) agrees that "several Sums of Money . . . be lent to encourage industrious Persons in the Linen Branch" and that "a honorary Gold Medal be given for each of the three first Flax-Mills that shall be erected in this Province." Competitors for the agricultural premiums are to give "particular Account of the Place, Soil, Condition, and Extent of the Ground; the Season, Steps of the Culture; and, as near as may be, an Estimate of the Value of the Labour."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 25, 1765. On June 3 (q.v.), the members decided to establish a flax-spinning school.
- 6 The name "Sons of Liberty" is first used by Col. Isaac Barré "in his off-hand reply to Charles Townsend . . . when George Grenville proposed the Stamp Act in Parliament" on this day. Jareid Ingersoll of Connecticut sat in the gallery of the house as Barré spoke and sent a sketch of his remarks to Gov. Fitch, who published it in the New London papers. "May had not shed its blossoms before the words of Barré were as household words in every New England town. Midsummer saw them circulate through Canada, in French; and the continent rung from end to end with the cheering name of the Sons of Liberty."—Bancroft, Hist. of U. S., III: 99-101; Thornton, Pulpit of Am. Rev., 131; see also Dawson, The Sons of Liberty, 57 et seq. The name appears in a broadside of Feb. 3, 1770, "To the Sons of Liberty in this City," which is reproduced as Pl. 40, Vol. IV. See also Pl. 45, Vol. IV. "Dr. J. H. Trumbull, in a paper 'Sons of Liberty in 1755' published in the New Englander, Vol. XXXV (1876), showed that the term had ten years earlier been applied in Connecticut to organizations to advance theological liberty. It is also sometimes said that the popular party at the time of the Zenger trial [see Aug. 4, 1735] had adopted the name."—Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., VI: 72.
- 11 A house in the Bowery, "Known by the Name of the Sign of Thomas Kouli Khan," is advertised to be let by Peter van Zandt.—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 11, 1765.
- 19 The "Exchange House" is let to Thomas Jackson for one year, beginning May 1, at £60 yearly rental, payable quarterly.—M. C. C., VI: 409.
- "After a decision of the common council (by an 8 to 7 vote) that water lots may be disposed of to certain petitioners at private sale rather than at "publick Vendue," Mayor Cruger observes "that during such time as he presided, the Recorder could not as he Conceived be Legally Entitled to a Vote in this Common Council." A dispute arising on this point, it is ordered, for the governing of future votes, "that Alderman Hicks Do Retain William Smith Junf and John Morine Scott Esq<sup>s</sup> and take their Opinion whether the Recorder has a Right by the Charter to this Corporation to Vote in Common Council During such time as the Mayor presides."—M. C. C., VI: 408-9. Various petitions regarding water lots, docks, etc., were presented on March 7, but voting on them was deferred until this legal opinion was obtained (410-11). On April 22, it was ordered that Alderman Hicks inform the two legal advisers that, should they disagree, "they have Liberty to Call in one other Gentleman of the law for his Opinion so as to make a Majority," and it was agreed that this majority opinion "shall Determine the same and be Carried into president for the future" (415). The decision was rendered on July 30. Smith's opinion was that the recorder "has no voice" when the mayor is present; Scott and William Livingston were of opinion that he had, and their opinion therefore prevailed (423-26).
- 22 Colden writes to the Earl of Halifax regarding what he calls the "dangerous influence" of the "Profession of the Law." He reviews the development of this influence since Gov. Chintoo gave De Lancey the commission of chief-justice "dureing good behavior," at which time an association of lawyers was formed, which has strengthened the popular side of the government and depreciated the powers of the crown.—N. Y. Col. Docs., I: 705-6.
- 28 Trinity Church leases to John Jones, a "Perukemaker," for 63 years, two lots on the south-west corner of Warren St. and Broadway.—Sandford, Chan. Rep., IV: 660. This was the Mason's Arms Tavern (see May 13). See also March 19, 1759.
- Mar. 7 A petition is presented to the common council "to Extend Counties pier [Albany Pier—see April 29, 1763] Two hundred feet farther into the East River." The petitioners offer to advance to the corporation "for Carrying on and Completing the same" £5,000 to be repaid in five years without interest.—M. C. C., VI: 410. While no record appears of the granting of this petition or of the acceptance of the loan "without interest," it is apparent that the extension was undertaken and completed (or nearly so) in 1768, because several payments for the work are recorded: Aug. 13 and Sept. 29, 1767 (ibid., VII: 73, 83); May 12, 1768—three items (ibid., VII: 112, 113), all in connection with "the Corporations pier" or "the Corporation pier"; Sept. 28, 1768—two items (ibid., VII: 124, 125), both for "finishing the addition to the Albany pier." Subsequent payments in 1770, 1771, and 1774 (ibid., VII: 199, 222, 263; VIII: 14), for "work done to the Albany pier" and for the "addition to the Albany Pier" probably suggest finishing touches.
- "A committee of the common council is appointed to inspect "the Road Leading By John Morine Scott's Esq<sup>r</sup> Commonly Called the Tour Road," and to inspect also the Bloomingdale Road and to report plans for widening and repairing them. Following the provisions of an act of the assembly of Oct. 20, 1764 (q.v.), (making the members of the common council "Commissioners to Regulate and keep in Repair the present highways," etc., with power to appoint surveyors, overseers and laborers), Adam Vandenberg is made "a Surveyor or overseer of that Part of the publick Road or high way Leading from this City as far as the Extent of the Bowery Division which Terminates at a Run of water contiguous to the possession of Isaac De Lamater Blacksmith;" Garrit Vandenberg is made "Surveyor or Overseer of the Road Commonly Called Grinage Road, also the Tour Road passing by John Morine Scotts Esq<sup>r</sup> and the Bloomingdale Road;" and Adolph Benson of Harlem is made "a Surveyor or overseer of the Road or high way Commencing from the Run of water where the Extent of the Bowery Division Ends, and so Running from thence as far as the Kings

- 1765 Bridge."—M. C. C., VI: 411, 412-13. The Tour Road is the Lake Apr.
 Mar. Tour Road.—See Pl. 86, Vol. III; Pl. 176, Vol. III (reference nos., 815-1052); Post, Old Streets, 26. See also M. C. C., VII: 16.
- 7 The first stone of a new German Reformed Church is laid, on the 8 site of the former one, at the present 64-66 Nassau St. The builders are Van Dalsen and Peter Hendricks.—Eccles. Rec., VI: 3982. It was a "handsome structure" (ibid., VI: 4037), erected "at a cost of $3000" (ibid., VI: 4039). The cost of construction was probably £3,000 rather than $3,000.—See ibid., VI: 3999. Regarding the location, see 1758. This church was sold in 1822 to the South Baptist Congregation.—Greenleaf, Hist. of the Churches, 246. It was still standing in 1846, converted into an eating-house (cf.
 Greenleaf, op. cit., 27), but was demolished in 1847.—Smith, N. Y. in 1789, 158. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 935.
- 14 The creditors of Robert Evans, an absconding debtor, are notified to meet on this day "at the House of Charles Gilmore, Tavernkeeper, on Cannon's Dock."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 17, 1764. Cannon's Dock was at Broome St. l., between Goreck and Tompkins Sts.
- 21 By a petition of this date and another of March 29, the consistory of the Dutch Church makes application to the common council for 12 lots in "the Vlakte" (an ancient name for the Commons, of which City Hall Park now forms a part) for a burying-ground (see Aug. 1).—Eccles. Rec., VI: 3982-83. The records of the city, county, and state do not reveal any portion of the Vlakte owned or occupied by the Dutch Church, but in olden times many real estate transactions were recorded in the church minutes and not in the register's office. On Jan. 15 1767, the consistory appointed a committee to "request from the corporation a deed for the land bought in the Vlakte."—Ibid., VI: 4080. Again, on Oct. 20, 1768, the consistory resolved "That the seal of our corporation be affixed to the instrument containing the agreement of the Church with this City, for the grounds bought in the Vlakte."—Ibid., VI: 4136.
- 23 The Stamp Act receives the royal assent by commission.—
Ann. Reg. (1765), 171-72. It requires that, after Nov. 1, stamped paper be used for practically all legal documents and customs papers, for appointments to all offices carrying a salary of £20, save military and judicial offices, for all grants of privilege and franchises made by the colonial government, for licenses to retail liquors, for all pamphlets, advertisements, handbills, newspapers, almanacs, and calendars, and for packages of playing cards and dice. The paper is to be printed by the government and sold only by officers appointed for that purpose. No money save silver may be accepted in payment for the stamps. Heavy penalties are to be accepted for forging or counterfeiting stamps, and for using un-stamped paper in cases where it is forbidden by this law. The act is cited as 5 Geo. III, c. 12. It was printed at London in a separate pamphlet, and reprinted by J. Parker in the province of New Jersey. There is a copy in the N. Y. Pub. Library. The full text may be found also in Pickering's Statutes at Large, XXVI: 179-204; for an abridged text, see Macdonald, Documentary Source Book of Am. Hist. (1908), 122-31. The proceedings in parliament may be followed in the Parliamentary Hist., XV and XVI, and in the Ann. Reg. (1765). The fullest account of the debates is in Bancroft, United States (ed. 1852), V. Contrasted English and American views are presented in Frothingham's Rise of the Republic, Chap. 51 Lecky's England in the Eighteenth Century (Amer. ed.), III: 333-75; Mahon's England, Chap. 43, 45. The best-known contemporary expression of American opinion, called out by the proposal of a stamp act, is Otis's Rights of the British Colonies; for a more moderate statement, see Stephen Hopkins's Rights of the Colonies Examined (in R. I. Col. Records, VI). For the expression of the N. Y. press when the news reached America, see April 11. For subsequent events, see Dawson's The Park and its Vicinity.
- 28 "Among the various new Manufactures of late introduced in North America, that for Paper Hangings at New-York is not the least profitable."—London Chron., March 28, 1765.
- Apr. A record is made in England of the "List of Works that will be necessary to be carried on, in the Engineers Department, to make the Forts [at N. Y.] tenable and to keep the Barracks 800 in repair, but which are delayed till such time as His Majesty's Pleasure shall be signified thereon."—Stevens, Catalogue Index of MSS., 1765-1783, in Lib. of Congress, citing Public Record Office, War Office, XVI: 78.
- 10 The provincial council receives a royal order fixing the New York-New Hampshire boundaries.—Col. Conn. Min., 512.
- 11 News reaches America of "the Resolves of the House of Commons relating to a Stamp Duty [see March 21] on printed and written Paper, Parchment, etc. in the Colonies."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Apr.
 11, 1765. The Mercury of April 15 reported "We hear that [during] the Debate in the House of Commons when the Resolves passed, not a man spoke who did not declare his Opinion that America ought to be taxed: Nor would any one introduce a Petition which should impeach the Parliament's Right, even the most interested, and those who are of the Opposition, all refused to present such a Petition."
 Colden writes to the Earl of Halifax: "I have the great pleasure to inform your Lordships, that this Government continues in perfect Traquillity, notwithstanding the continued efforts of a Faction to raise discontent in the Minds of the People & disorder in consequence of it. The most effectual method in their opinion for obtaining their ends. A few of the Profession of the Law continue to publish most Licentious abusive weekly Papers. I have restrained every return or reply to them. They have produced the contrary effect to what the authors design'd, but what I expected. While by malicious Calumny the Authors endeavour'd to asperse the characters of others, they have sunk their own Reputation. No illicit Trade has been discovered of late."—N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1876), 480; Wilson, Mem. Hist. N. Y., II: 350.
- 27 Gen. Gage sends "the small guard of the Fort" consisting of "about twenty of the Artillery Regiment," to the southward.—
N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 759.
- 3 In a letter to Gen. Monckton, Colden says: "I did every thing that was in my power to prevent the public Disputes which have happened, consistently with my duty in supporting the Kings Instruction, & endeavour'd to have had the matter quietly submitted to the Kings Determination. But the Gentlemen of the Law seem to have placed the chief stress of their Cause in raising public Clamour, & therefore all endeavours to prevent it became fruitless. Notwithstanding of this I am fully persuaded the People of this Province will quietly submit to the Kings Determination whatever it be."—Colden Papers (1877), 2; Wilson, Mem. Hist.
N. Y., II: 351.
- " The city treasurer is ordered to pay £500 to Whitehead Hicks
 "to be by him applied towards Rebuilding the City Hall" (see May 11, 1764). At the same meeting the common council directs that "Andrew Breasted [see March 8, 1764] for the present do finish the Library Room in the City Hall in the most plain and Cheap manner that Can be, and Repair the Stairs as well Leading from below to the Assembly Chamber, as that Leading to the Common Council Room in the Like manner."—M. C. C., VI: 417, 418. See
 Nov. 20, 1767.
- " Payment is made by the common council "for Glazing and Amending the Citys Lamps," also "for paving so much of the Broad way Street as the Hay Machine Covered near the Oswego Market."—M. C. C., VI: 417.
- " Archibald Kennedy and William McAdams petition the common council for "an exclusive Grant of the Right of ferriage from this City, across Hudsons River to the Jersey Shore" (see Sept. 10, 1764). Consideration is deferred.—M. C. C., VI: 417. On Oct. 14, Cornelius van Vorst, of Bergen Co., N. J., in a petition to the common council, states that he is the owner of Paulus Hook, in Bergen Co., opposite New York, and has recently set up a ferry there.
 He maintains a causeway nearly half a mile long, and a lane nearly a mile long, as well as keeping open the public road, for the accommodation of travelers. To aid him in meeting the expense involved, he asks the Board to allow him for some time to "take the Benefit of both Sides of the said Ferry, . . . and that then the said Ferry be established and maintained by this Honourable Board, and the Petitioner jointly, the Corporation thereafter receiving all the Profits of Ferriages from, and your Petitioner of those to New York." He also asks "that the Landing in the City might be fixed at Messier's Wharf as being the most convenient Place for that Purpose."—From the original petition in the city clerk's record-room, endorsed "filed the 14th of October 1765;" M. C. C., VI: 436. Both petitions were considered on Jan. 31, 1766, and a committee was appointed to confer with the petitioners. The committee reported on Feb. 25, 1766 (q. v.), and the proposals of Van Voorst were agreed to.—M. C. C., VII: 2, 8.
- 10 The King assents to the bill for rendering more effectual in America the act for punishing mutiny and desertion.—Ann. Reg.
 (1765), 87.
- 13 John Jones advertises for sale the "House, at the Sign of the Mason's-Arms, near the College," which he intends leaving as soon

- 1765 as disposed of. "It is a very convenient House for a Tavern, and has always been occupied as such, where the best Company in Town
May resorted; there is a very commodious Dancing Room of 45 Feet 13 adjoining the same. There it yet 63 Years of the Lease to come . . ."—N. Y. Merc., May 13, 1765. Jones probably wished to devote his time to Ranelagh Gardens, which he opened on June 3 (q. v.), at Broadway and Thomas St. He did not immediately sell the Mason's Arms, and on June 12, 1765, mortgaged the tavern to Roger Morris. By Nov. 14, he had taken over the Queen's Head Tavern from Samuel Francis, renaming it the "Free-Masoo's Arms."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 14, 1765. See March 19, 1759.
- "The house and farm, later famous as the seat of Roger Morris, whose mansion-house still remains, are offered for sale by James Carroll, a butcher, who had purchased the farm on Jan. 29, 1765, from Jacob Dyckman and others.—Liber Deeds, XXVII: 4 et seq. The advertisement describes the place thus: "A Pleasant situated Farm, on the Road leading to King's-Bridge, in the Township of Harlem, on York-Island, containing about 100 Acres, near 30 of which is Wood land, a fine Piece of Meadow Ground, and more may easily be made; and commands the finest Prospect in the whole Country: The Land runs from River to River . . . there is on it a good House, a fine Barn 44 Feet long, and 42 Feet wide, or thereabouts."—Pub. in N. Y. Merc., from May 13 to June 13, 1765.
- Roger Morris, an Englishman, and a soldier in America under Gen. Braddock and later under Wolfe, married Mary Philippe of Yonkers, on Jan. 28, 1758. He retired from the army in June, 1764, in the following summer apparently settled upon the Carroll farm, and built the residence which still bears his name. Morris was a loyalist. His property was confiscated after the Revolution and sold by the commissioners of forfeiture to John Berriau and Isaac Ledyard. For the succeeding history of the Roger Morris Mansion, see July 9, 1784. See Shelton, The Jewel Mansion; also Addenda.
- 16 Samuel Francis advertises the "New Vaux Hall."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 16, 1765. See Jan. 28.
- 27 A news item states: "we have certain Accounts that a Clause is added to the Mutiny [sic] and Desertion Bill [see May 10], whereby Justices of the Peace are impowered to billet Soldiers on the Inhabitants in America, at their Discretion."—N. Y. Merc., May 27, 1765.
- 29 In a communication to the press, a writer ("Publicola") states: "1st. I observe, that many of our most worthy Citizens, and principal Gentlemen, are clad in Country Manufactures or turned clothes, 2dly, That Spinning gets daily more in Vogue, so that we rather want Materials than industrious Hands. 3dly, That the farmers are endeavouring to remedy this Deficiency by the large Quantity of Flax-Seed sown more than usual, and their Intention of keeping more Sheep. 4thly, That little Lamb now comes to Market, as no true Lovers of their Country, or whose sympathetic Breeds feed for its Distresses will buy it. 5thly, That Sassafras, Balm and Sage are come greatly into Use instead of Tea, and are allowed to be more wholesome . . . Lastly, The Fashion of Funerals and Mourning is in general much altered from the late troublesome, ridiculous, and expensive Method; for what could be more absurd, than for a Person, when in Affliction for their dearest Relatives, to be teased about Dress and Ceremonial, and perhaps involved in a large Bill of Costs, when their Creditors are most apt to call upon them."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 30, 1765.
- See A. 30 Joris Brinckerhoff, in his will of above date, orders all his real estate in New York, including his dwelling-house, "with all the buildings thereon, and the house and lot in the rear of the same, and all buildings on the same ground" to be sold at public vendue. Referring to this Pelletreau says: "His dwelling house and lot are now No. 73 Pearl Street, and is the east part of the lot where the Old Stage House, or City Hall, stood in ancient days."—Abstracts of Wills, VII: 198.
- 3 As "there are a great Number of poor Children in Town, whose Parents are incapable, or not in a Situation to teach them Flax-Spinning," the Society of Arts, etc. (see Feb. 4) resolves "to erect a Flax-Spinning-School."—N. Y. Merc., June 10, 1765. Further resolutions in regard to this, were passed on Aug. 5 (q. v.).
- 6 John Jones opens a new pleasure garden called Ranelagh at the old homestead of Anthony Rutgers, on Broadway and Thomas St., which had been built about 1730 (see Feb. 3, 1723). His announcement states that there will be a "Concert of Music" every Thursday evening, and afterwards "a small Fire-Work will be play'd off." As this is the "first attempt of the kind ever known in these parts," Jones hopes for the patronage of all ladies and gentlemen.—N. Y. Merc., June 3, 1765. The second performance, which took place on June 17th, was interrupted by a "Number of disorderly Persons (in a Riotous Manner) breaking into the Garden."—Ibid., June 17, 1765. Later, concerts were given every Monday and Thursday; the gardens were "illuminated every Night," and the "best Entertainment" provided by the proprietor, "notwithstanding the arduous Insinuations of some illmind'd People to the Contrary."—Ibid., June 17, 1765; N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 5, 1765. Admission, at first costing two shillings, was later reduced to one shilling, owing to the "Scarcity of Cash."—N. Y. Jour., Aug. 28, 1766. Jones had given up the Gardens before Feb. 2, 1769 (q. v.), when Rutgers offered the place for rent, his advertisement stating that he would build in the spring a new house, "fit for any Gentleman." Samuel Francis had become the new proprietor by June 8, when he opened the Gardens, which he had "newly fitted up in a very genteel, pleasing Manner."—N. Y. Merc., June 8, 1769. Before the spring of 1772, a Mr. Vassel was in possession of the house, garden, and orchard of Anthony Rutgers, which were again offered for rent.—Ibid., Jan. 13, 1772. Although the place was known as Ranelagh for many years, its career as a pleasure-garden seems to have ended with its occupation by Francis. John Ireland purchased the property on Nov. 2, 1790 (q. v.), and Effingham Embree acquired it on March 20, 1795 (q. v.).
- "Edward Hanby who has a tavern called the "Fortune of War" on Mary St., now Baxter, and near the Fresh Water Pond, advertises that a well dressed man, calling himself captain of a vessel, left at his house "a good Body Coat, two laced Jackets, a Tie Wig, and a bay Mare," which he believes to have been stolen.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 6, 1765.
- 10 "Mrs. Barclay's Old Pye-House, is now reviv'd by Catharine Speice, between the New Dutch Church and the Fly-Market, where may be had every Noon and Evening, Hot Chickens, Pies, &c. Likewise all Sorts of Tarts, after the neatest and best Manner."—N. Y. Merc., June 10, 1765. This was on Crown (Liberty) St.
- "The New-York Gazette (Weyman) is temporarily suspended after the issue of this date (No. 349), on account of the Stamp Act. The following occasional issues appeared later: July 15 (No. 341); July 22 (without a number); Sept. 16 (No. 342). With the issue of Nov. 25 (No. 343), regular publication was resumed. The last issue was that of Dec. 28, 1767 (No. 454) q. v.
- 12 "John Jones of the City of New York Peruke maker" mortgages to Roger Morris the Mason's Arms Tavern (see March 19, 1759), the land being thus described: "two Certain Lots of Ground Situate lying and being in the West Ward of the said City and known and Distinguished in a Certain map or Chart of the part of the Church Farm which lies to the Southward of the Stockadoes by Lots Number three hundred and Twenty two and three hundred and Twenty three which said Lots Contain in Breadth Twenty five foot each the said Lot number three hundred and Twenty two Containing in Length one hundred & ten foot three inches and the said Lot number three hundred and Twenty three Containing in length one hundred and Eleven foot Bounded Easterly by the Broadway, Northerly by a Street in the said Map Called Warren Street, Westerly by Lot number three hundred and Twenty four and Southerly by Lot number three hundred and Twenty one Together with all and Singular" etc. The mortgage calls for the payment by Jones, before June 12, 1766, of "two thousand milled Spanish pieces of Eight or the Value thereof in good and Current money of New York."—Liber Mortgages, I: 511-12.
- 20 The lords of trade submit to the king the draft of a commission constituting Sir Henry Moore governor of New York in place of Monckton.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 745.
- 27 Payment (€39) is made for 24 mahogany chairs made for the use of the common council by their order.—M. C. C., VI: 419. An investigation has failed to produce any further information regarding these chairs.
- July "We hear that Mr. James M'Ever, Merchant, of this City is appointed Commissioner for collecting the Stamp Duties in this Government."—N. Y. Merc., July 1, 1765. See Aug. 30.
- "A poster or broadside, advertising Thomas Merc's "Genuine Country Almanack For the Year 1766," shows the location of the press of William Weyman, the printer of the Gazette, to be "Opposite Synagogue Alley, in Broad-Street."—From an original in N. Y. Pub. Library. Synagogue Alley was a name applied to the little street called, in 1754 (M. C. C., V: 475), Jews' Alley; the first

- 1765 synagogue in New York having been built there. It was the Slyck
 July Steegh of early Dutch days, the later Mill St. and the present South
 1 William St.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1003 (Jew's Alley); 1006 (Mill St.); Pl. 174: 29.
- "The "Exchange" was designated on June 27 as the meeting-place on July 1, for the Society for Promoting Arts.—N. Y. Merc.,
 June 27, 1765.
- 8 Colder writes to Gen. Gage: "As there is no Guard now in his Majesty's Fort in this City, I think it my duty to apply to your Excellency for such a number of Men at least as may be sufficient to secure it against the Negroes or a Mob."—Colden Papers, 23. Gage replied: "A company will forthwith be sent to garrison Fort George in the City of N. Y."—Colden MSS.
- "The small pox are yet in this City, and believe will always remain in it, but they are very thin; so that persons from the Country, who have not had them, come in town as freely as if there were none."—Extract from unprinted letter of Abraham Lott of New York City to John Wendell, among The Wendell Papers in possession of the family.
- "The house of representatives of Massachusetts at their last session appointed "a committee to meet the committees of the assemblies of the whole continent, if they see Cause, at New York, the 1st of October, to unite in a Petition to his Majesty and the Parliament for relief under the insupportable grievance of the Stamp Act, &c." The announcement continued:—"It is hoped neither the Governor of Virginia, or any other Governor on the continent, will think this so improper a step as to dissolve their assemblies to prevent it."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 18. See also N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 759-61. The Stamp Act Congress did not convene until Oct. 7 (q.v.).
- "The provincial council takes cognizance of a resolution of the house of lords (dated March 5—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 753), condemning the exhibition of two Mohawk Indians in London in a public show conducted by a Jew named Myers.—Cal. Coun. Min., 468.
- 22 "All the Vessels coming to this Port from Sea, and even Coast-ers, and some smaller Vessels, have of late been much disturbed by the Hawke Man of War, lying in the Bay, which brings them all to, and takes their Hands. 'Tis strange there should be such a Want of Hands in this Time of Peace. It is thought that this Practice will be a great Discouragement, and Obstruction to the Coasting Trade. One of the Officers who pursued a Vessel to the Town, was pretty roughly treated by some of the Populace."—
N. Y. Merc., July 22, 1765.
- Sec. A. 26 The king decrees that the course of an appeal in New York Province shall be from the inferior courts to the governor and council, and thence "to the King in his Privy Council."—N. Y.
Col. Docs., VII: 803, 762-65, 815-16.
- 29 A proposal is made by Jacobus van Zandt to establish a Latin and English grammar school under the direction of the consistory of the Dutch Church, in which the elements of the religion of this church shall be taught as well as the languages. This is agreed to by the consistory, of which Rev. Archibald Laidlie is president, protem. It also agrees that a voluntary collection shall be taken for the building or hiring of such a schoolhouse. It is reserved for future consideration what site would be most suitable for it,
 "whether on the Harpending grounds, or those which lie along the Old Church" (in Garden St.)—Eccles. Rec., VI: 3999. On Aug. 1, however, "The heading of a subscription to build or hire a suitable school house for the Latin school, etc. . . . was presented" to the consistory for approval; "but for important reasons, the going around with it was delayed until the beginning of September."— Ibid., VI: 4001. Apparently, the plan came to nothing.—For a review of the whole subject of such schools, see Kilpatrick, The Dutch Schools of New Netherland and Colonial New York, in Bull.
 No. 12, U. S. Bureau of Education (1912), 156.
- 30 A company of the "Royal Americans" arrives here from Crown Point and is "now quartered in the Barracks in Fort-George."—
N. Y. Merc., Aug. 5, 1765. See July 8.
- "In a letter of this date from New York, the writer says, that "Trade in this part of the world is come to so wretched a pass, that you would imagine the plague had been here, the grass growing in the most trading streets; and the best traders, so far from wanting the assistance of a clerk, rather want employment for themselves,
 . . . —Upcott Coll., in N. Y. Hist. Soc., II: 280.
- Aug. 1 "The plan of vaults in the yard [see March 21] of the New [Dutch] Church" (at Nassau and Cedar Sts.) is approved. It is
- referred to the church masters, who are to number the vaults.—
Eccles. Rec., VI: 4001. On Oct. 15, twenty-two deeds for vaults sold were submitted to the consistory, and it was ordered that they be signed and sealed.—Ibid., VI: 4013. On Oct. 31, six more deeds of vaults sold were signed and sealed.—Ibid., VI: 4021.
- At a meeting of the Society for Promoting Arts, etc., resolutions are passed, "to encourage two spinning schools [see June 3]
 . . . that Mrs. Gill should teach in one of these schools, in the barracks at the New Goal, and Mrs. Wood in the other, at the Fresh-Water . . . to furnish each scholar with the use of a wheel and chair, while at school, and reels in proportion . . . to encourage by suitable premiums, the merits of those Scholars who distinguish themselves by their industry and skill, and to allow all the scholars the profits of their own Work."—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 12, 1765. See March 21, 1766.
- A letter from London states: "I am very sorry to hear such repeated bad Accounts from America, but at the same Time, I have the pleasure to tell you, that it is generally believed, that the new Ministry will repeal the Stamp Act this next Sessions."—N. Y.
Merc., Oct. 7, 1765.
- Thomas Jackson is appointed by the common council to have charge of the corporation library (see June 27, 1729); he is required to "attend at the Library Room in the City Hall on Mondays and Thursdays, from half after Eleven o'Clock in the morning until one, to let out the Books," and to "keep an exact account of the Income thereof;" also to "make a Catalogue of the same, and cause it to be printed forthwith." The books are to be let out at the following rates: "a folio two shillings, a Quarto one shilling, and [an] Octavio or Lesser Volume six pence per month; and if any Book be detained in the hands of a Borrower Longer than the time Limited, that he pay six pence for a folio, four pence for a Quarto, and two pence for an Octavio per day 'till returned." Mr. Jackson is allowed "four pounds per annum for his Trouble."—M. C. C., VI: 427. On Sept.
 16, the trustees of the "Society Library" also appointed him keeper of their "well chosen Collection of the most useful modern Books, with a considerable late addition, of which a Catalogue will be speedily published. . . . A Share in this Library is now worth £10 10s and is transferable by the Subscribers."—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 16, 1765. Cf. Keep, Hist. of N. Y. Soc. Library, 176-77.
- A committee, appointed "to Cause Robinsons Street [the present Park Place] in the west ward to be Levelled," reports "that the same is to take its Beginning from the Lamp post in the middle of the Broad way one foot above the Ground," and is to be regulated in a specified manner to the middle of Church St., and that Church St. is to be regulated between Robinson and Barclay Sts. It is ordered that this plan be complied with.—M. C. C., VI: 427. This is the first laying out or regulating of these streets. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1008.
- Colder receives a letter from James McEvers, lately appointed (see July 1) "Distributor of Stamps" for this province, resigning the office. He says that "Since the late Riott at Boston, & the Inflammatory Papers lately printed in the Colonies, People of this City are so Incens'd . . . that I find it will be attended with the greatest Risque of my Person and Fortune, to Attempt, & indeed impossible for me to execute the Office . . . and have accordingly wrote to the Commissioners Signifying that I cannot Submit to a Service that will be attended with very dangerous Consequences
 . . . if I had Attempted it, my House would have been Pillag'd, my Person Abused, and his Majestys Revenue Impair'd."— Colden MSS. in N. Y. Hist. Soc. See Sept. 2 and Oct. 28.
- The steeple of the New Dutch Church is again struck by lightning (see June 15, 1763). The lightning is "led down by the Conducting Rod," so that the church sustains "but little Damage."—
N. Y. Merc., Sept. 2, 1765.
- Colder informs Sir William Johnson of the resignation of James McEvers (see Aug. 30) who, he writes, has already "entered into hood before me for the due execution of his office" but is "terrified by the suffering & ill usage the Stamp officer met with at Boston, & the threats he has received at New York."—Colden Papers (1877), 27.
- Geo. Gage writes to Colder: "It must give every well-wisher to his Country the greatest Pain and Anxiety to see the Public Papers crammed with Treason, the Minds of the People disturbed, excited and encouraged to revolt against the Government, to subvert the Constitution, and trample upon the Laws. Every Lye that Malice can invent is propagated as Truths by these Enemies of my Country, to sow Dissention and create Animisities between Great

- 1765 Britain and the Colonys. All this is done with Impunity, and without Aug. any Notice taken of the Printers Publishers or authors of those 31 seditious Papers."—Calden MSS.
- Sept. The King's Collection in the British Museum contains a water-colour sketch entitled a "View of Harlem from Morisania in the Province of New York, Septemr 1765." This view, which is reproduced and described in Vol. I, Pl. 39, shows the second Dutch church at Harlem, the ferry across the Harlem River, etc.
- 2 Golden writes from "Spring Hill," his country house, to Gen.
 Gage advising that a battalion be at once quartered in the city barracks on the Common, to effectually discourage all opposition to the laws, and to prevent the capture of the large quantity of military stores (see March 10, 1766) which are now unguarded at New York.—N. Y. Cal. Docs., VII: 758.
- A news item in the Mercury reads: "We can congratulate our Countrymen upon the late Resignation of the Stamp Officers—and especially the friends and well-wishers of the Gentleman [McEvers] appointed to that office in this City. The Number of his Friends and well-wishers, which was considerable before, is greatly increased by this Resignation; which has entirely cleared his Character from the Imputation of joining in the Design to enslave his Country;
 for we are well assured, as his Appointment was without his Solicitation or Knowledge; so his Resignation was voluntary, and not the Effect of any Menace or Disturbance, nothing of which has yet appeared in this Place. Though it is probable it would be no more safe than honourable for any other Person here to attempt to exercise that Office. It is to be hoped the Commissioners for the Southern Governments will follow the laudable Example of their Brethren, and resign their Commissions also." The writer adds information to the effect that the stamp officer in Connecticut, in order to avoid having "his House pull'd down" promised the threatening multitude that the doors of his house would be open after the stamps arrived, and "they would then act as they thought proper."—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 2, 1765. See Sept. 16.
- 4 "Came accounts of Riots at New Port regarding the Stamp act—pulling down of Houses &c."—Montresor's Jour., 327.
- 5 "This day the Commander in Chief sent for me and requested of me to reconnoitre Fort George and examine its situation and defences and make report for making it more respectable against any intestine Insult as expected. Complied with this Order 2 o'clock P M and completed and presented by 41 just two hours after."— Montresor's Jour., 328. Under the same date, Montresor reports also "Advice of more riots at Boston regarding the Stamp act." On Sept. 6 (q.v.), Montresor sent Colder a copy of his report regarding the fortifications.
- 6 Montresor writes to Colder: "Enclosed is as nearly as I can recollect, the Copy of my report to Genl Gage delivered yesterday afternoon" (see Sept. 5). This concerned "Precautions Necessary to be taken to put Fort George in a proper state of defence, sufficient to preserve it . . . against any intestine Insult, & without any very conspicuous appearance of rendering it more so, so that [than] it is at present. . . . The Works of this Fort being entirely en barbette renders it exposed, & from a rising Ground in its front towards the Town Northerly . . . commends it so as to enflame the whole." The firewood piled up against the front polygon was to be removed and the cord wood in front of the works to be employed as "Merlons for the Guns . . . & constructed so high as to serve for an Epaulement to cover its Guns & Men from the Enfilade . . . The Running Boarded Division . . . to be taken down being now a blind to the fire of the two Flanks. The Artillery to be planted, so as to rake the Avenues, and secure it's Defences. . . . The unnecessary Sorties Blockaded, & those wanted examined, & Repair'd . . . Two Frigates to be so situated as to scour two entire Polygons of the Fort, the North one fronting the Broad Way, & the East one facing Stone Street forming nearly a right Angle, & where the Battery terminates at each end; which are the given positions or stations. The intersecting fir will then be on the North East Saliant, near the Secretary's Office The two other faces of the Work are fronting the water especially the West one.
- "One Frigate opposite to Turtle Bay and if requisite another at the Ordnance Store house on the North River."—Calden MSS.
- The fort had no parapet and was commanded by the neighbouring houses.—Montresor's Jour., op. cit., 120.
- 8 "The Garland Ship of War, sent to the Narrows and the Hawk to the Hook for the security of the Stamps hourly expected. The officers of Artillery very diligent in preparing the artillery and ammunition on the works of Fort George."—Montresor's Jour., 328.
- The general assembly for the province of Pennsylvania selects a committee "to join those from the other Provinces, at a Meeting to be held at New York, the first day of October."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 19, 1765.
- The distributor of stamps for Maryland, who is stopping at the Kings Arms Tavern, is obliged to apply for a lodging in the fort, having fled from a mob in Maryland.—Calden Papers, op. cit.
 (1877), X: 33, 35-36. Cf. Sept. 2.
- The general assembly of the colony of Rhode Island, in its last session, appoints "Commissioners for the intended Congress to be holden in New York in October next, in order to agree on the most probable Methods to obtain Redress for the injured and oppress'd British Colonies on this Continent."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 26.
- Mr. Jackson, who has been appointed keeper of the New York Library and Society Library, both at the city hall, is "Master of the Academy at the Exchange."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 19, 1765.
- Elkana Dease, the coach-maker, was doing business in New York at this time. The ledger of James Beekman contains an entry of this date: "To cash paid Elkana Deane for a new chaise, £68.0.0."—Houghton, Coaches of Colonial N. Y. (1890), 15. The first advertisement of the Deanes, however, did not appear until Feb. 27, 1766 (q.v.).
- The general assembly of the colony of Connecticut appoints commissioners "to meet those of the other Colonies, at the congress, to be holden at New York, the first of October next."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 26.
- Lieut.-Gov. Colder writes to Sec. Conway: "Soon after it was known that Stamp Duties were by Act of Parliament to be paid in in the Colonies, virulent papers were published in the Weekly Newspapers, fill'd with every falsehood that malice could invent to serve their purpose of exciting the People to disobedience of the Laws and to sedition. At first they only denied the authority of Parliament to lay internal Taxes in the Colonies, but at last they have denied the Legislative Authority of the Parliament in the Colonies, and these Papers continue to be published." He adds that "Mayor James of the Royal Regiment of artillery having observed the riotous disposition of the People in this place, after what had happen'd at Boston; and being informed that many of the guns were honey comb, and the carriages rotten, and that there was no powder in the Fort, he order'd in some Field Pieces and Hawitzers, together with a sufficient quantity of ammunition and other stores. Part of the Reliefe for the Regiment of Artillery arriving from England the Day I returned to the Fort, they were brought into it. The garrison now consists of 100 effective privates besides officers and it is secure against any attempt or insult that was apprehended.
- "It is evident that a secret correspondence has been carryed on throughout all the Colonies, and that it has been consented to deter by violence the Distributors of Stamps from executing their office [see Aug. 30 and 31]; and to destroy the stamped paper when it arrives."—N. Y. Cal. Docs., VII: 759-61; cf. Calden Papers, op. cit.
 (1877), 23, 31, 34-35.
- The king having appointed Sir Henry Moore to be governour of New York, the lords of trade submit to the king a draft of instructions for him.—N. Y. Cal. Docs., VII: 762-65.
- Gov. Franklin writes to Colder that the council of New Jersey has requested that the stamps for that colony be kept at Fort George.—Calden MSS.
- There is "just published, and to be sold at the Printing Office at the Exchange" the Poor Roger's American Country Almanack, for 1766. The Post-Boy was printed by John Holt in Broad Street, near the "Exchange."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 26, 1765.
- The delegates from Pennsylvania and Rhode Island to the Stamp Act Congress arrive in the city; "those from Boston and Connecticut are daily expected."—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 30, 1765.
 See Oct. 3 and 7.
- Colder sends to Benjamin Franklin, who is in London, a copy of No. 1 of the Constitutional Courant, Sept. 21, 1765. A number of copies of this paper had been delivered to the post-rider at Woodbridge, N. J. (by James Parker, it is supposed). Colder is trying to discover the printer and thinks that perhaps Franklin "May be able to judge from the Types."—Calden Papers, op. cit. (1877), 38-39.
- "The Commissioners from several Colonies, for holding the general Congress here, on the Common and most important Interest

1765 of America at this alarming Juncture, are come to Town, and the
 Oct. rest daily expected: We hear they have already begun their Con-
 3 ferences [see Oct. 7], which it is supposed will be continued a
 3 sufficient Time to answer the Purposes of their appointment."—
N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 3, 1765.

7 The "Stamp Act Congress" meets at the city hall, New York.
 It is described at the time as "the most important that ever came under Consideration in America." There are 28 delegates from nine of the colonies; four of the colonies did not send delegates, though expressing their sympathy with the movement. The list of "the Gentlemen assembled" was given in the newspaper that week.
 They came from Massachusetts-Bay, Rhode Island, Connecticut,
 New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, "the counties of New Castle, Kent and Sussex on Delaware," Maryland, and South Carolina.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 10, 1765. On Oct. 19, a "declaration of the rights and grievances of the colonists in America," originally drafted by John Dickinson, a delegate from Pennsylv-10 ania, was agreed to. It set forth, in 14 articles, their protest against any taxation by the British parliament in which they were not represented, their right to trial by jury, and the "manifest tendency" of the Stamp Act "to subvert the rights and liberties of the colonists." On Oct. 22, the congress approved an address to the king which reviewed the conditions under which the colonies had been established and the inherent liberties secured to them by the English constitution. It besought the king to take into consideration the distresses of his subjects on this continent caused by "the late acts of parliament imposing duties and taxes on these colonies," and "to afford them such relief as in your royal wisdom their unhappy circumstances shall be judged to require." The memorial to the lords, passed the same day, claimed "one of the most essential rights of these colonists to be trial by jury" and entered formal protest against taxation by the British parliament, especially against the Stamp Act. It entreated them "to pursue measures for restoring the just rights and liberties of the colonists and preserving them forever inviolate, for redressing their present and preventing future grievances." The petition to the house of commons expressed essentially the same dissatisfactions and desires as those embodied in the memorial to the lords. The con-10 gress adjourned Oct. 25 (p. v.).—Niles, Weekly Register, II: 337-42, 353-55. See Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., VI: 74, for a full bibliography; also N. Y. Pub. Library Bulletin, I: 101.

9 The provincial council hears from Sir Henry Moore, the newly appointed governor (see Sept. 24), that he will soon leave England.
 —Cal. Coun. Min., 469. See Nov. 13.

10 A third New York coach-builder (see Jan. 22, 1759; Nov. 10, 1755) advertises his business. This is Samuel Lawrence, "at the Sign of the Chariot and Phatton, opposite St. Paul's Chapel, in the Fields, who, for several Years past, transacted Business for his Brother, James Lawrence [see Nov. 10, 1755] in the Broad-Way:—
 Where Gentlemen, and others, can have made, in the genteelst Taste, and equal to any made in Europe: Coaches, Chariots, Phattons, Chairs, and every other Machine in the Business, not inferior to any imported from London."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 10, 1765; Houghton, Coaches of Colonial N. Y. (1890), 14, 19-20.

11 The following notice appears: "Whereas a great Inconvenience arises, for Want of a particular Place being appointed for the Sale of all Sorts of Home Manufactures, which greatly discourages the Maker from bringing such Things to Town; and when brought, they are obliged to strolc about the Streets with them, in an uncertain and disagreeable Manner. And whereas a like Inconvenience arises to all Persons wanting to supply themselves with such Articles; which the Society for promoting Arts, &c. having considered, at a full Meeting, on Monday the 7th instant October, it was unanimously agreed and resolved to give this public Notice,
 That a Market will be held below the New-Exchange, in the City of New-York, on Wednesday the 23d of this Month: Also on the first and third Wednesday of November and December, and on the third Wednesday of every Month following. That on said Days will be exposed to Sale, All Sorts of Home Manufacture only: And Notice is hereby given, That the following Articles are in great Demand, Linen and Woolen Yarn; Linen and Woolen Cloths and Stuffs, of all Sorts; Tow-Cloth, Stockings wove and knit. It is therefore hoped that the Sellers will conform to this Regulation, so advantageous and convenient to them; and that Buyers will there supply themselves, where they may meet with greater Choice of the Articles wanted. N.B. Most of the Inhabitants of the City have agreed, not to buy any of the above Articles from Hawkers and Strolers."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 17, 1765.

11 Colden writes Sec. Conway that "the inflammatory Papers con-12 tinue to be published, exciting the People to oppose the execution of the Act of Parliament for laying a Stamp Duty in the Colonies."
 The "most remarkable of these" was "distributed along the Post Roads by the Post Riders." The New York post master found that "one or more bundles of them were delivered at Woodbridge, New Jersey, to the Post Rider [see Oct. 1], by James Parker Secretary to the General Post Office in N. America." Colden adds: "Parker was formerly a printer in this place [New York] and has now a Printing Press and continues to print occasionally. It is believed that this Paper was printed by him."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 767.

17 John Holt states in the Post-Boy: "A Meeting of the Friends to Liberty and the English Constitution, in this City and Parts adjacent, is earnestly desired, by great Numbers of the Inhabitants, in order to form an Association of all who are not already Slaves, in Opposition to all attempts to make them so."—N. Y. Post-Boy,
 Oct. 17, 1765.

22 This evening the ship "Edward," which "brought us, last Voyage, the News that the Stamp Act was passed, has now brought the Stamps themselves, . . . They were ship'd so privately, that not a Passenger in the Ship knew of their being on board, till a Mao of War here came on board to take Care of their Security."—N. Y.
Post-Boy, Oct. 24, 1765. Montrossor says that 2,000 people gathered the next day "on the Battery expecting the Stamps would be landed, but were disappointed." They were secretly landed in the night and deposited in the fort. Many placards appeared "threatening the Lives, Houses and properties of any one who shall either issue or receive a stamp."—Montrossor's Jour., op. cit., 336.
 Colden wrote in his "Account Book," under date of Oct. 23:
 "Gave a Saylor belonging to the Garland who brought the first Bail of Stamp'd Papers into the Fort . . . £0004:00."—Colden
MSS.

23 The stamps having just arrived, James McEvers is requested to take charge of them, but he refuses.—Cal. Coun. Min., 469. A letter received from him by Colden on Aug. 30 (p. v.) contained his resignation as "Distributor of Stamps."

" A market for "Home Manufactures" is opened "under the Exchange," the goods being brought here by their makers from their homes in the country. "There was plenty of Women's Shoes of different Makers, which had a quick Sale, and Hose's Make were totally discredited by all the Judicious. Brown bleached Linen and Diaper, Cambrick, Thread Stockings, and Caps, and Woolen Yarn Stockings were quickly sold—And great Demand was made for more of these Articles, and also for Woolen Cloths and Stuffs of all Sorts, New-England Checks, Gloves, and Mittens—And it is hoped, that next Market Day, being Wednesday the 6th of November, the Country Makers will supply the great Demand."—N. Y.
Post-Boy, Oct. 24, 1765. The market days were the first and third Wednesdays of each month. On Nov. 6, there was the same great demand. Everything was "immediately bought up," as all ranks of people took "a laudable Pride in wearing what is made among ourselves." It was hoped "to convince the most incredulous, that we are not so destitute of either Ingenuity, Materials, or public spirit, as has been alleged."—Ibid., Nov. 7, 1765; and see ibid., Dec. 19, 1765; Jan. 2, 1766.

25 The "Stamp Act Congress" at New York (see Oct. 7) adjourns.
 The clerk was directed to make a copy of the proceedings of the congress for the use of each one of the colonies. Two sets were sent to England in different vessels.—See Authentic Account of the Proceedings of the Congress held at New York in MDCCCLV (pamphlet, 1767, in N. Y. Pub. Library). See also The Hist. of Political Parties in the Province of N. Y., 1760-1776, by Carl L. Becker, in Bulletin
 No. 286, Univ. of Wis., April, 1909.

26 James McEvers, the "Distributor of Stamps" having resigned (see Aug. 30), and the care of the stamps having devolved upon the lieutenant-governor, the commissioners of the stamp office, London, are informed by David Colden (son of the lieutenant-governor) regarding the situation in New York.—Colden Papers (1877), 50-52.
 Colden writes to Sec. Conway that he now has "five packages of stamped Paper for this Province in the Governor's House in the Fort, and two for Connecticut, Three more are still on board [the "Edward"], which could not be come at." He thus describes the circumstances of their arrival: "I desired the Captains of His Majesty's Ships of War, now in the River, to protect the ship in which they should come. For this purpose a sloop was placed at

- 1765 Sandy Hook and a Frigate midway between that and this place, while the Coventry layd before the Town. By this care, the ship Oct.
26 Edward, Davis Commander having ten packages of stamp'd papers on board, was brought to an anchor under the guns of the Fort and protection of His Majesty's Ships. . . . The night after the ship arrived, papers were pasted upon the doors of Every public Office, and at the corners of the streets, one [of] which I enclose. . . . The Lawyers who have rais'd the seditious spirit cannot be curbed without proper judges."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 768, 769. A facsimile of this paper is shown in Col. Docs., and reads as follows:
- "Pro Patria
"The first Man that either distributes or makes use of Stamp Paper, let him take care of his House, Person, & Effects.
"Vox Populi;
"We dare"
- Ibid.*, VII: 770.
- A day or two later, "packages of Stamped Papers were landed from His Majesty's Ship 'Garland' at noonday without a Guard or the least appearance of discount among the people."—Ibid., VII: 771. Golden gave his reasons to Sec. Cooway (March 28, 1766) for bringing the stamped papers into the fort instead of putting them on board the "Coventry." In his opinion they would not be safe on the "Coventry" because "The Winter approached when the Ship must be brought to one of the Wharfs in the Town, her guns must be put on shore and the officers could not prevent the men from leaving the Ship."—Ibid., VII: 821.
- 28 The city grants to Augustus van Cortlandt, Oliver de Lancy, and Richard Shucksbury, water lots in the rear of their properties, having a total frontage on the Hudson River of 618 ft. (between the present Rector St. and Battery Place) and extending to a line 200 ft. beyond low-water mark with the obligation that each of the grantees shall make and leave to the city three streets, each 40 ft. in width: First (later Greenwich St.), at high-water mark; Second (later Washington St.), 130 ft. farther westward, at or near low-water mark; and Third (later West St.), across the outer end of the lots.—City Grants, Liber C, 297-318.
- " The new free bridge (see Jan. 2, 1759), which "has for some Time been out of Repair, and dangerous to pass; and is in better Repair than ever, well founded upon Stone, so it is hopeful, the Publick will have a good Bridge for many Years, and will be free of paying that exorbitant Toll as before."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 28, 1765.
- " A news item in the Mercury describes the reception given to the ships in which the odious stamps were brought to New York. "All the Vessels in the Harbour lower'd their Colours, to signify Mourning Lamentation and Woe." Mr. McEvers, who was asked by the governor to take care of the stamps, refused to have anything to do with them (see Oct. 23); it was reported that not one of the persons appointed would execute the office. "The stamps are now a Commodity no Body knows what to do with, and are more abominable, and dangerous to be meddled with, than if they were infected with the Pestilence."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 28, 1765. In the same issue it is reported "that most of the Gentlemen in Town, have entered into a Resolution not to buy any European Manufactures till their Trade is more opened, the Sugar Act altered, and the Stamp Act is repealed. It is hoped this will animate the Country People to make plenty of Linens and Woolsens, as they may be assured of quick Sale, and good Prices."—Ibid.
- 29 Rev. Lambertus de Ronde writes to the classis of Amsterdam "That the large 'New Dutch Church' is, inside and out, almost sumptuously fitted up, while the old building [on Garden St.] is left to decay, just for the purpose of having the upper hand."—Ecdes. Rec., VI: 4031. See Feb. 24, 1766.
- " Peter Rushton, after various bequests, leaves the rest of his estate to his grandson, Peter Rushton Maverick. Referring to this, Pelletreau says: "The house and lot of Peter Rushton was on the north side of Liberty street, 25 feet west of Liberty Place. In 1802 Peter Rushton Maverick sold it to the Quakers, and a meeting house was built. This was afterward sold to the noted Grant Thorburn."—Abstracts of Wills, VII: 83, and appendix, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections.
- 31 Montresor in his journal reports "Several people in mourning for the near issue of the stamps and the Interment of their Liberty." Even the "Bag-gammon Boxes at the merchant's Coffee House" are "covered with Black and the Dice in Crape." A mob went through the streets crying "Liberty," breaking lamps and windows, threatening to bury alive Maj. James of the Royal Artillery "as Commanding the Troops in the Fort for the protection of the Stamps."—Montresor's Jour., 316. Cf. statement of H. B. Dawson, in The Sons of Liberty in N. Y., 88-89, that the mob "quietly dispersed without doing any damage." Colden required Mayor Cruger to investigate the alleged plot "to bury Major James alive," and to do all in his power "to prevent a Mob or Riot." He also requested Archibald Keonedy to send the marines from "his Majesty's Ships to reinforce the Troops in the Fort."—Golden Papers, op. cit. (1877), X: 53.
- " At a general meeting of merchants, held in Burns' "City Arms" (Tavern), an intercolonial committee of correspondence, consisting of five "Sons of Liberty," is appointed to secure the co-operation of the merchants in other parts of the country. Resolutions are also adopted as follows: "First, that in all Orders they send out to Great-Britain, for Goods or Merchandise, of any Nature, Kind, or Quality whatsoever, usually imported from Great-Britain, they will direct their Correspondents not to ship them, unless the Stamp Act be repealed: It is nevertheless agreed, that all such Merchants as are Owners of, and have Vessels already gone, and now cleared out for Great-Britain, shall be at Liberty to bring back in them on their own Accounts, Crates and Casks of Earthen Ware, Griststones, Pipes, and such other bulky Articles as Owners usually fill up their Vessels with. Secondly, It is further unanimously agreed, that all Orders already sent Home, shall be countermanded by the very first Conveyance; and the Goods and Merchandise thereby ordered, not to be sent, unless upon the Condition mentioned in the foregoing Resolution. Thirdly, It is further unanimously agreed, that no Merchant will vend any Goods or Merchandise sent upon Commission from Great Britain, that shall be shipped from thence after the first Day of January next, unless upon the Condition mentioned in the first Resolution. Fourthly, It is further unanimously agreed, that the foregoing Resolutions shall be binding until the same are abrogated at a general Meeting hereafter to be held for that Purpose. In Witness whereof we have hereunto respectively subscribed our Names. [This was subscribed by upwards of Two Hundred principal Merchants.]
- " In Consequence of the foregoing Resolutions, the Retailers of Goods, of the City of New York, subscribed a Paper, in the Words following, viz. We the under-written, Retailers of Goods, do hereby promise and oblige ourselves not to buy any Goods, Wares, or Merchandises, of any Person or Persons whatsoever, that shall be shipped from Great-Britain, after the first Day of January next; unless the Stamp Act shall be repealed—As Witness our Hands, Oct. 31, 1765."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 31 and Nov. 7, 1765. See also Addenda. For the activities of the merchants, in reference to the "Sugar Act," see April 20, 1764.
- " Hendrick Rutgers and James Delancy enter into an agreement "for the settling & establishment of partition Lines between their respective Lands in the Out Ward & for opening & establishing of a public Street or Highway" between their lands.—Liber Deeds, XLVIII: 364-67; M. C. C. (MS.), IX: 175. This agreement was delivered to the common council on Feb. 18, 1789, by Henry Rutgers, the son of Hendrick, and it was ordered that it be recorded.—M. C. C. (MS.), IX: 175. The "public Street or Highway," subsequently laid out and appearing for the first time on Pls. 41 and 42, Vol. I, was appropriately named Division St. (not to be confused with the former Division St.—see July 24, 1761—which is shown on the same plates as Partition St.). Cf. plate description, I: 343.
- " James de Lancy leases to James Ackland a house and parcel of land at Corlaer's Hook.—Recital in Liber Mortgages, II: 381. De Lancy had previously leased this place to one James Elliot, a mariner, who had conducted a tavern here (see April 13, 1761). The place became well known as "Ackland's," a well-frequented waterside tavern, the house standing at what is now the north side of Water St., between Jackson and Corlaers Sts.—See Pls. 40, 41, 42, and 64, Vol. I. Ackland is mentioned in an advertisement as "at Crown Point, near New-York."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 11, 1768. James Ackland died prior to Oct. 9, 1769, when the house, then in the occupation of Mr. Van Den Ham, was offered on a forty-eight year lease.—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 9, 1769. From certain assignments of the lease, the tavern seems to have been turned over to James Devereaux (see Liber Mortgages, II: 381), and, by 1772, was known as the Corlaer's Hook Tavern of John Brandon.—N. Y. Merc., April 27, 1772.
- " A plan of the city is made, "showing the Position of His Majesty's ships" as stationed on this date. The original is now filed

NEW-YORK, July 7, 1799.

AT this alarming Crisis when we sit threatened with a Deprivation of those invaluable Rights, which our Ancestors purchased with their Blood—Rights, which as Men, we derive from Nature; as Englishmen, we fence to us by our excellent Constitution; and, which once torn from us, will as all Probability never be restored. At this important Time, when we are exerting every legal Effort to preferre to ourselves and Posterity the complete and undisturbed Enjoyment of them, it is of the last Consequence to act with Vigilance and Unanimity. It must appear obvious to every unprejudiced Mind, that Supremacies would prove as fatal to us, as a Dictator; and therefore, the more effectually to guard against both—All Parties of the Inhabitants of this City, have determined in Sense and Temperance, to form Ourselves into a Difference in Sentiments, and to be known by the Name of the Society, under the general and honorable Appellation, of the UNITED SONS OF LIBERTY.—and faithfully to adhere to the following RESOLUTIONS,

- I. To hold a general Meeting on the first Monday Evening in every Month, at the House of Mr. De La Montagne.
- II. To convene occasionally if Circumstances occur to render it necessary.
- III. That we will support the constitutional Measures entered into by the Merchants, Traders, and other Inhabitants of this City.
- IV. The grand Design of this Association being to Support the Measures entered into by the Merchants, Traders, and other Inhabitants of this City.—That, we will not in any Manner whatsoever consent that the Deigns of either Committee, but contribute to the effectual Execution of them, by all legal Means in our Power.
- V. That we will not knowingly purchase from, nor sell, to any Person, who shall violate the Non-Importation Agreement.
- VI. That we will remember that Trades to, nor hire them from. That we will not in any Manner share the Agreement, or with such as shall Condescend, their safe Conduct, by dealing with such Persons only, as shall appear best calculated to promote the Good of the Colonies. That the sole End of the Use of a S D N S or LIBERTY, is to secure their common Rights.—That the Object we have principally in View, is a repeal of the Acts imposing Duties on Paper, Glass, &c. and that we will not as a Society under the said Appellation, engage in any other Matter whatever.

N. B. The United Sons of Liberty, are to hold a Meeting on Monday Evening next, probably at Seven o'clock, at the House of Mr. De La Montagne; and do hereby solemnly protest against the said Acts, as being a total Destruction of the said mentioned Trade and Privileg.

Beginning at the North River at the lower end of Murray Street. Then a three sided street across the Common to the West Street. Thence turn the square to King Street. Next the N. E. Street to Queen Street. Next, Street to Bank Street. Thence Bankers Street to St. James Street, then St. James Street to the East River.

What the West Street is

Murray	1300	Murray	1700
Bankers	1100	Bankers	1000
St. James	1000	St. James	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000
St. James Street	1000	St. James Street	1000
East River	1000	East River	1000
West Street	1000	West Street	1000
King Street	1000	King Street	1000
Queen Street	1000	Queen Street	1000
Bank Street	1000	Bank Street	1000

1765 with "Captains Letters, K, IX: 5-34," in the Admiralty Office, Nov. London.—From Stevens's Cat. Index of MSS., 1763-1783, in Lib. of Congress.

Montresor writes that he was "sent for by the Governor with Capt Sowers Engineer, to (again) inspect into the present situation of the Fort. We took down the boarded fences of the wood yard and part of the Garden that screened the fire of the Flank, also removed from the Works, the wood that was piled against them, divided the Crows foot to 4 parts for the Gates & Sorties, fixed the Chevaux des fraises [sic] within the Gate 4 deep & picketed those in the Works, cleared the pile-wood from the left face of the North Polygon to give a raking fire to the right Flank Guns—Made our report to the General. This by request of the Governor & direction from the General."—Montresor's Jour., op. cit., 336-37. The report to the governor in Montresor's handwriting is preserved among the Colden Papers in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. It is endorsed "2d November 1765. Report of the Engineers for the most necessary and expeditions of putting the Fort (George in N. Y.) in an immediate posture of Defence." Further orders concerning the fort were given to Montresor on Nov. 29 (g. v.).

In a long review of current events, published on Nov. 7 (g. v.) in a news letter to be sent abroad, the following account of the stirring occurrences of this day appeared:

"November 1, many Letters were sent and found, and Papers stuck up all over the Town, some of them in a good Stile, threatening Destruction to every Person and his Property, who should apply for, deliver out, receive or use a Stamp . . . or should delay the Execution of any customary public Business without them. About 7 o'Clock in the Evening two Companies appeared, ooe of them in the Fields, where a moveable Gallows was erected, on which was suspended the Effigy of a Man [Coldeo] who had been honoured by his Country with an elevated Station, but whose public Conduct (supposed to aim at the Introduction of arbitrary Power, and especially in his officiously endeavouring to enforce the Stamp Act, universally held by his Majesty's faithful and loyal Subjects in America, to be unconstititional and oppressive) has unhappily drawn upon himself the general Resentment of his Country. The Figure was made much to resemble the Person it was intended to represent. In his Hand was a stamped Paper, which he seem'd to court the People to receive; . . . at his Back hung a Drum, on his Breast a Label, supposed to allude to some former Circumstances of his Life. By his Side hung, with a Boot in his Hand, the grand Deceiver of Mankind, seeming to urge him to Perseverance in the Cause of Slavery. While the Multitude gathered round these Figures, the other Party with another Figure representing the same Person, seated in a Chair, and carried by Men, preceded and attended by a great Number of Lights, paraded through most of the public Streets in the City, increasing as they went, but without doing the least Injury to any House or Person. They proceeded in this Order to the Coach House at the Fort, from whence they took the Lieutenant-Governor's Coach, and fixing the Effigy upon the Top of it they proceeded with great Rapidity towards the Fields. About the same Time the other Party was preparing to move to the Fort, with the Gallows as it stood erect on its Frame, and Lanthorns fix'd on various Parts of it. When the two Parties met, and every Thing was in order, a general Silence ensued, and Proclamation was made that no Stones should be thrown, no Windows broken, and no injury offered to any one, . . . and all this was punctually [sic] observed. The whole Multitude then returned to the Fort, and though they knew the Guns were charged, and saw the Ramparts lined with Soldiers, they intrepidly marched with the Gallows, Coach, &c. up to the very Gate, where they knocked, and demanded Admittance, and if they had not been restrained by some humane Persons, who had Influence over them, would doubtless have taken the Fort, as I hear there were 4 or 500 Seamen, and many others equally intrepid, and acquainted with military Affairs. But as it seems no such Extremities were intended, after they had shewn many Insults to the Effigy, they retired from the Fort Gate to the Bowling Green, the Pallisades of which they instantly tore away, marched with the Gallows, &c. into the Middle of the Green, (still under the Muzzles of the Fort Guns) where with the Pallisades and Planks of the Fort Fence, and a Chaise and two Sleys, taken from the Governor's Coach House, they soon reared a large Pile of Wood round the Whole, to which setting Fire, it soon kindled to a great Flame, and reduced the Coach, Gallows, Man, Devil, and all to Ashes.

"It is probable the Conductors of this Expedition intended the whole Affair should have ended here; but while many of them were attending the Fire, a large Detachment of Volunteers making their Passage thro' the other Side of the Palisades, went on another Expedition, and repaired to the House (lately known by the Name of Vaux-Hall,) and now in the Occupation of Major James, of the Royal Regiment of Artillery: . . . This Gentleman was one of those who had unfortunately incurred the Resentment of the Public, by Expressions imputed to him. It is said he had taken a Lease of the House for three years, and had obliged himself to return it in the like good Order as he received it; it had been lately fitted up in an elegant Manner, and had adjoining a large handsome Garden stored both with Necessaries and Curiosities, . . . and had in it several Summer Houses; The House was genteely furnish'd with good Furniture; cootain'd a valuable Library of choice Books, Papers, Accoutns, Mathematical Instruments, Draughts, rich Clothes, Linen, &c. and a considerable Quantity of Wine and other Liquours. . . . The Multitude burstng open the Doors, proceeded to destroy every individual article the House contain'd, . . . the Beds they cut open and threw the Feathers abroad, broke all the Glasses; China, Tables, Chairs, Desks, Trunks, Chests, and making a large Fire at a little Distance, threw in every Thing that would burn. . . . Drank or destroy'd all the Liquor . . . and left not the least Article in the House which they did not entirely destroy . . . after which they also beat to Pieces all the Doors, Sashes, Window Frames and Partitions in the House, leaving it a mere Shell; also destroyed the Summer Houses, and tore up and spoiled the Garden. All this Destruction was completed by about 2 o'Clock. The imagined Cause of Resentment, operated so powerfully, that every Act of Devastation on the Goods of this unhappy Gentleman was consider'd as a Sacrifice to Liberty . . . Many Military Trophies, even the Colours of the Royal Regiment, were taken and carried off triumphantly.

"The Spirit, of the People, not only of this City and Colony, but of the Neighbouring Colonies, knowing how much depended upon our Behaviour, was highly raised; and great Numbers came from the Country, and Parts adjacent, to attend the important Crisis: Some returned Home satisfied with our Firmness, and determin'd to maintain their Freedom in their respective Places of Residence, and assist us, if their Assistance should be necessary. But many who came from distant Parts, chose to stay till our Affairs were settled into something of Calmness and Security . . . —N. T. Post-Boy, Nov. 7, 1765. It was in this letter, also, that the phrase "The glorious Uncertainty of the Law," since then so often used, was brought into local prominence.

Coldeo's account of this affair is as follows: "On the evening of the first day of this month the Mob began to collect together & after it became dark, they came up to the Fort Gate with a great number of boys carrying Torches & a scaffold on which two images were placed: One to represent the Governor in his grey hairs, & the other the Devil by his side. The scaffold with the Images was brought up within 8 or 10 feet of the Fort Gate with the grossest ribaldry from the Mob. As they went from the Gate they broke open my coach house, took my chariot out of it, & carried it round the Town with the Images & return'd to the Fort Gate from whence they carried them to an open place, where they had erected a Jibbett within 100 yards of the Fort Gate, there hung up the Images. After hanging some time they were cut down, & burnt in a fire prepared for the purpose together with my Chariot, a single Horse chair & two sledges, our usual Carriages when Snow is on the Ground, which they took out of my Coach House. [For description of his next "chariot" see May 12, 1766.]

"While this was doing a great number of Gentlemen of the Town, if they can be called so, stood round to observe this outrage on their King's Governor. The Garrison was at the same time on the Ramparts with preparation sufficient to have destroyed them but not a single return was made in words or otherwise from any Man in the Fort, while this egregious Insult was performing."

He says, further, that Maj. James, also, felt the wrath of the mob. They "broke open his house [Vauxhall—see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 981], burnt all his furniture, wearing cloaths & everything in it to a great value [see Dec. 19, 1766], at the same time threatening to take away his life in the most shameful manner."—From a letter written by Colden to Sec'y Conway, Colden Papers (1877), 54-56. Cf. similar account in a letter to the lords of trade, Dec. 6, 1765, in ibid., 78-82. See, also, the letter dated Nov.

- 1765 8, 1765, from R. R. Livingston to Gen. Moulton in Chalmers
Nov. Strations (MS.), IV, in N. Y. Pub. Library. For a subsequent demor-1 stration against Colden, see March 6, 1766. For the return of Sam. Francis to Vauxhall, see June 16, 1766.
- "A letter addressed to Colden and signed "New York" is posted at the Coffee House and, after remaining there a good part of the day, is delivered "at the Fort Gate . . . by an unknown hand."
N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 774-75; Wilson, Mem. Hist. of N. Y., II: 362. It is reproduced as Pl. 38, Vol. IV. Porteus, who is mentioned in this letter, is undoubtedly Capt. Porteous, of the Edinburgh city watch, who fell under the displeasure of the citizens, in 1736, and was hanged on one of the city gates.—Ibid.
- 2 The following letter, dated "On the Turf" and signed by "John Hamden," is addressed to Holt: "As you have hitherto prov'd your self a Friend to Liberty, by publishing such Compositions as had a Tendency to promote the Cause, we are encouraged to hope you will not be deterred from continuing your useful Paper, by groundless Fear of the detestable Stamp Act. However, should you at this Critical Time, shut up the Press, and basely desert us, depend upon it, your House, Person and Effects, will be in imminent Danger: We shall therefore expect your Paper on Thursday as usual; if not, on Thursday Evening—take Care.
Signed in the Name, and by Order of a great Number of the Freeborn Sons of New-York.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 7, 1765. For Holt's answer, in the form of an announcement, see Nov. 7.
- "The Engineers all on Duty this night to fortify the Fort—its Garrison between 150 and 200 strong.—Montresor's Jour., 337.
A letter of warning to Colden is found, on this date, "in an Oyster Shell at the Fort Gate."—Colden MSS. For a reproduction of the letter, see Pl. 38, Vol. IV.
- "Montresor records in his Journal: "Obligated to spike our Guns on the Battery & also the Ordnance Guns in the Artillery yard.
The Engineers Roster settled Capt Gordon for duty this night—
Garrison 153 Rank & file and near 30 officers. Made lodgements in the Salients of the 4 Bastions with fire wood & picketed it.
Barricaded the front gate with Cord wood being only the wicket.
All the Officers in town were ordered from Head Quarters to attend at the Fort every afternoon at 4 o'clock and those for duty continued there 24 hours. Even the master of the vessel who brought the Stamps his life being threatened, was obliged to fly."—Montresor's Jour., 337-38.
- 4 Capt. Kennedy (vide infra) gives orders not to allow the stamps to be taken on board the mao-ek-swar. "Many stragglers thro'ing in with arms from several parts even, Connecticut, for plunder &c.
The Fort pretty well under cover this night. The Governors Family obliged to seek protection on board His Majesty's Ship the Coven-try."—Montresor's Jour., 338. Colden said that Kennedy refused to receive the stamps because he was aware of the design of the mob "to force him to deliver them by Threatning to destroy the Houses he was posset of in the City, of which he had in his own & his wife's Right more than perhaps any one Man in it."—Golden Papers (1877), 80-81.
- 5 Gage writes to Colden "counselling circumspection with regard to firing at the mob at the Fort."—Colden MSS.
- "The common council records that: "This Board taking into Serious Consideration the Intimation that his Honor the Lieutenant Governor was williog to Deliver the Stamp'd paper now in Fort George to Captain Kennedy [Archibald Kennedy, Jun.] or any other of the Commanders of the Kings Ships in the Harbour, and that Captain Kennedy, in answer to the Earnest Request Signified to him Last night, informs that he Cannot & will not Receive the Stamp'd paper; It is Therefore Resolved that it appears to this Board absolutely Necessary to Remove the present Dissatisfaction and Save the City from the most Distressing Confusion, that a Committee immediately wait upon his Honor, and in most Respectfull manner acquaint him of the present dangerous State of things, and Request that for the ease of the City and the preventing an Effusion of blood he would be pleased to direct that the Stamp'd paper be Delivered into the Care of the Corporation, to be Deposited in the City Hall, and Guarded by the City Watch, And this Board do further Resolve and Engage to make Good all Such Sums of money as might be Raised by the distribution of such of the said Stamps, as shall be Lost, Destroyed, or Carried out of the said Province, and the said Committee having waited on his said Honour with the abovesaid Resolve, Reported to this Board that his Honour accepted of the Same,
and Returned for answer in the words following.
- "Fort George November the 5th 1765 Nov.
"Mr Mayor and Gentlemen of the Corporation 5
"In Consequence of your Earnest Request and Engaging to Make Good all Such Sums of money as might be Raised by the distribution of Such of the Stamps, Sent over for the use of this province as shall be Lost destroyed or Carry'd out of the province, and in Consequence of the unanimous advice of his Majesty's Council, and the Concurrence of the Commander in Chief of the Kings forces, and to prevent the Effusion of blood and the Calamities of a Civil War, which might ensue by my withholding them from you, I now deliver to you the packages of Stamp'd paper and parchment, that were deposited in my hands, in this his Majesty's Fort, and I doubt not you will take the Charge and Care of them Conformable to your Engagement to me.
I am with Great Regard Gentlemen your most Obedient humble Servant,
Cadwallader Coldeo.
- "At which time his honour request that the mayor would give him a Receipt in the words following (which the mayor Executed accordingly in behalf of this Corporation) Vizt Received of the Honourable Cadwallader Coldeo Esq<sup>r</sup> his Majesty's Lieutenant Governour and Commander in Chief of the province of New York Seven Packages Containing Stamp'd paper and parchment all marked N<sup>o</sup> 1 J M E [McEvers] New York, which I promise in behalf of the Corporation of the City of New York to take Charge and Care of, and to be accountable in Case they shall be destroy'd or Carried out of the province, as particularly Set forth in the Minutes of the Common Council of the said Corporation of this day Witness my hand in the City of New York this first [fifth] day of November 1765
"Witness "John Cruger Mayor
"L: F: Cary Major to the 60th
"James Farquhar
—M. C. C., VI: 438-39.
- Montresor writes that placards throughout the city threatened
"the storming of the Fort this Night" unless the stamps were delivered. The seven boxes were taken "to the city Hall in Carts attended by 5000 people." One hundred barrels of powder had been procured by the disaffected. They had intended to "collect the Comm<sup>o</sup> in Chief, also the friends the Government and have marched them in front when they purposed the attempt of attacking the Fort."—Montresor's Jour., 338-39.
- A New York letter says: "The people here are prodigiously discontented, and their actions are but a little way from an open rebellion: They talk publicly of attacking Fort George, and burning the stamps: there are 340 soldiers in the fort, and they are putting it in the best posture of defence in their power. The soldiers have spiked up about 90 pieces of cannon on the battery, to prevent their being turned on the fort. In short, all is in confusion here: and if the Mayor and Aldermen do not Succeed in their endeavours to restore peace and order, many lives must be lost, and great part of the city reduced to ashes."—Upcott Coll., II: 307.
- An undated broadside headed "[No Stamp'd Paper to be had]"
is issued by Hugh Gaine in lieu of the regular issue of the Mercury for Nov. 4. The date of issue was probably Nov. 4; although given by Ford in The Journal of Hugh Gaine, I: 114, as Nov. 5 (cf. p. 43);
while a copy of the broadside, sold at Anderson's Feb. 19-20, 1918, has written in ink at the top "November 7th, 1765." The broadside narrates the rioting of "last Friday Evening on the Commons" (see Nov. 1). It also contains news from Boston (Oct. 28) and from Philadelphia (Oct. 31).—From copy preserved in N. Y. Hist. Soc. There were two subsequent folios printed by Gaine with the same heading before the regular issues of the Mercury were resumed on Nov. 25. They doubtless were in lieu of the issues of Nov. 11 and Nov. 18; the earlier one is preserved in the Yale University Library; the later one in the N. Y.
Hist. Soc. See also Aug. 3, 1752; and Early N. Y. Newspapers,
II: 422.
- "Perfect tranquillity (as to appearances) this day."—*Mont-
resor's Jour.*, 339.
- A manuscript notice addressed "To the Freeholders & Inhabitants of the City of New York," is posted at the Coffee House, and after remaining there a good part of the day, is taken down after night and brought to the governour.—Golden MSS. It is reproduced as Pl. 38, Vol. IV.

1765 Coldea receives a memorial from Maj. James in regard to his Nov. 6 dwelling-house, burned by "a Mob" (see Nov. 1), with a loss of 6 "100 choice Books, a great many of His Majesty's Papers & Plans, besides all his Manuscripts & Curiosities of Antiquity," etc.—
7 Golden MSS. Cf. Montresor's Jour., 337. The assembly compensated
Maj. James for his loss on Dec. 19, 1766 (q. v.).

7 A copy of a long letter to be sent abroad, reviewing the recent events and the present situation in America and particularly in New York in regard to the rights of the colonies, is published in the Post-Boy. It mentions the meeting and activities of the "Stamp Act Congress" (see Oct. 7), the landing of the stamps (see Oct. 26), the general meeting of merchants on Oct. 31 (q. v.), the burning of the governor's effigy, and the attack on Maj. James's residence (see Nov. 1).—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 7, 1765.

" John Holt, printer of the Post-Boy, announces that he "has concluded to continue his weekly Publications, as usual, upon an unstamp'd Paper; which as they have been hitherto, he intends ever shall be sacred to Liberty,—and consequently to Virtue, and Religion, the Good of his Country and Mankind.—And he hopes that Country which he has earnestly endeavoured to serve, and those constitutional Laws, which he has ever obey'd and endeavour'd to maintain, as a faithful Subject to his Majesty, will protect him in any Hazards to which he is exposed by his difficult Situation."
—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 7, 1765. This was probably in answer to the letter addressed to him on Nov. 2 (q. v.).

" In a letter from New York "a young Lady in Town" writes
"to her Friend in the Country" that the women of this City "are resolved to resign the charms of dress and let a horrid homespun covering (which can become none but a country wench) take place of the rich brocade, and graceful sattie."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov.
7, 1765.

" Montresor states that the lawyers here are deemed by the people to be "Hornets and Firebrands of the Constitution. The Planners and Incendiaries of the present Rupture."—Montresor's
Jour., 339.

9 Colden, who has received no instructions up to this time regarding what to do with the stamped paper, writes Sec. Conway:
"Has not the Mayor and Corporation by taking the stamp'd papers voluntarily into their custody assumed the office of Distributor of Stamps? It evidently appears now who were the conductors of the Mob by its immediately ceasing in every appearance as soon as the Packages were delivered to the Mayor and Corporation."

"The leaders of the Mob issued their Edicts from time to time by affixing their Plackarts in the Merchants Coffee House and at the corners of the streets where they remained whole days and nights, I transmit copies of two of the most remarkable of them, the originals I have in my Custody and I preserve them as the handwriting, in both the same, may lead to a discovery. By the last which is a kind of Proclamation of Peace, they disown every Authority that is not derived from their Representatives. On this principle only was the Demand made of having the stamped papers delivered to the Corporation and by this they hope to preserve their influence. . . .

"People in general are averse to Taxes of any kind. The Merchants in this place think they have a right to every freedom of Trade which the Subjects of Great Britain enjoy. But the Inhabitants of the Country are absolutely free of the seditious spirit which rages in this Town."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 773-74.

One of the seditious papers referred to is an anonymous letter addressed to Colden, accusing him of having bound himself by oath "to be the Chief Murderer of their Rights and Privileges," etc. It threatens him with death if he fires upon the town. This paper "was put up at the Coffee House in New York, on Friday the 1st of November, 1765, and after remaining there good part of the day was deliver'd at the Fort Gate in the Evening by an unknown hand."—Ibid., VII: 774-75.

11 The recorder submits to the common council "an Address to his Excellency Thomas Gage Esquire Major-General and Commander in Chief of all his Majesty's forces in North America &c.
&c. Congratulating him upon the Restoration of this City's Tranquillity and freedom from the Impending Evils of a Civil War."
It contains the following brief statement: "It is with the Greatest Joy we Beg leave to Congratulate your Excellency upon the Restoration of the Tranquillity of this City; And as its preservation (under God) was Eminently Owing to your prudence, We think ourselves Bound to tender your Excellency our most Grateful Acknowledgements. As the Destruction of the City and the Effusion of Blood might at this unhappy Conjunction have fed the Spirit of discontent so prevalent in all the Colonies, and involved the Whole Continent in Confusion and distress, that wisdom which Prevented Consequences Not to Be Thought of without horror deserves our Applause and will Never Be Forgotten by His Majesty's Loyal and Faithfull Subjects in this City." The Address is presented to him immediately.

In his answer he states: "The Spirit That has so lately appeared here, was raised to the most dangerous pitch even to threaten Acts of open Rebellion, and your own Minds will have pointed to you the dreadful Consequences which must have ensued: As the peace of the City is for the present happily restored, It becomes the Duty of every loyal Subject and of every good Citizen to exert himself to preserve it, And I assure my self that every Step will be taken by you, that can be conducive to this End, by calming the heated imaginings of the people, and by bringing them back to a sense of their duty, and their wonted obedience to Government."—M. G. C., VI: 440-41. On Nov. 14, the draft of "a freedom" to be "preferred" to Gen. Gage was read, approved, and ordered engrossed on parchment, "the seal of this Corporation affixed thereto to be enclosed in a Gold Box, with the City Arms engraved thereon."—
Ibid., VI: 446.

Sir Henry Moore, the new governor, arrives and attempts to placate the people by dismantling the fort (see Nov. 16) and removing the artillery stores, which Maj. James had placed there.— N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 793-94, 805-7. In a letter to Hillsborough, under date of May 9, 1768, Gov. Moore speaks thus of his arrival:
"On my arrival here I found Mr Colden so much alarm'd that he had thought it necessary to fortify himself in the Fort, and was actually under the daily apprehension of being attack'd; My landing was unexpected, and as I proceeded directly to the Fort was let in at the Wicket, Orders having been given for some time before to keep the gates shut & not to suffer any of the Townspeople to enter; As soon as my Commission was read at the Council Board and the power put into my hands I order'd the Fort Gates to be thrown open, contrary to Mr Colden's opinion, who en-deavour'd to dissuade me from it, and express'd some uneasiness at the Concourse of People which was by this time assembled at the Fort Gate, To this I answer'd: that if any mischief was intended against him I assured him that I would share the same fate with him and sent the Constables out to let the People know that they might come into the Fort and hear his Majesty's Commission publish'd, the few troops we had here at that time which amounted to no more than 160 Men being drawn out on the parade; Great numbers crowded into the Fort upon this occasion, who behav'd with the greatest decency and standing uncover'd kept a profound silence during the whole time the Commission was reading. From the Fort we proceeded to the Town Hall, but Mr Colden was still apprehensive that some indignity would be offer'd to his person notwithstanding what he had so lately seen and desir'd I would excuse his attendance there, which I readily did, as I did not choose to press any thing which would give him pain,
The Procession was made through a very great crowd of People collected on this occasion, and the well tim'd confidence in them I had shew'd so soon after my arrival had such an effect on the Inhabitants, that the Gloom which hang over them in the Morning was totally dispers'd in a few hours, and the evening concluded with Bonfires and Illuminations throughout the City."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 67. For the ceremonies attending the transfer of the government, see N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 14; Assemb. Jour., II: 782; Golden Papers, op. cit. (1877), 66.

The recorder submits to the common council the draft of "an Address" to "his Excellency Sir Henry Moore Baronet, Captain General and Governor in Chief," etc.; it is approved and ordered to be engrossed. The address congratulates the new governor and his family on their safe arrival, and continues: "While we look back upon the Administration of your immediate Predecessor, General Monkton, who governed the Colony with a Spirit of Dignity, Justice and Tenderness, never to be forgotten by the People of this Country, we esteem it a fresh Proof of his Majesties paternal Care over us, that he was pleas'd instantly upon his Removal to Berwick, to make Provision for our Loss, by delivering the Charge of the Colony, to a Gentleman whose Fame promises us so happy a Succession."

1765
Nov.
14

"It is indeed unfortunate to your Excellency, That the Colonies in general, are now groaning under the Burthen of great Grievances, and filled with fearful Apprehensions of the Loss of Some of their most inestimable Priviledges: But it is no small Alleviation of our Grief, that we can assure your Excellency we feel no Abatement of that gracious Protection, which has so gloriously distinguished the Princes of His Majesties illustrious House. And as we do with undissimble Sincerity, profess the utmost Devotion and Loyalty to our Royal Sovereign, So it affords us no small Pleasure that by your Accession to the Government, We again have the Prospect, that the true State and Fidelity of his Subjects in this Colony, will be faithfully represented to the Throne.

"Impressed with the most favorable Sentiments of your Excellency (whose Arrival at this critical Juncture was most ardently wished for) we rejoice in the confident Expectation of the Preservation & Establishment of the publick Peace and Felicity; and Shall always be ready on our Parts, not only to contribute to the Maintenance of good order in this City, but to the Comfort and Ease of yourself and Family."—M. C. C., VI: 444-45. At the same time, "The Draft of a freedom to be preferred to his said Excellency" was approved. The same "Engrossed on Parchment and the Seal of this Corporation affixed thereto" was ordered "to be Enclosed in a Gold Box, with the City Arms engraven thereon." The "Draft of a freedom to be preferred to his Excellency the honourable Thomas Gage . . . was Likewise Read and agreed to."—Ibid., 445-46. The governor was presented with "the said address, as also with the freedom of this Corporation," on Nov. 21 (q.v.).

"John Jones is removed from his House in the Fields, to that of Mr. Samuel Francis, formerly the Queen's-Head, now the Freemason's Arms, near the Exchange: Where he will endeavour to give as elegant Entertainment, as can be had any where else, in America. . . ."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 14, 1765.

15 "The "Minerva" arrives with "stamped paper" (see Dec. 21). The governor declares himself ready to put the Stamp Act into execution, but the council advises against it as impracticable.—Cal. Coun. Min., 470.

Concerning this "second Importation of Stamps," the "Sons of Liberty, ever vigilant for their Country," expressed alarm and were "indefatigable in their Endeavours to have them lodged with in the City-Hall. A respectful Application was made to the Mayor and Corporation, who worthily exerting themselves, they were accordingly landed on Saturday Morning last, and deposited there. The Magistrates cannot be too much praised for their noble Endeavours to preserve Peace, and quiet the Minds of the People, while they can do it without making any Sacrifice to our Liberties to Despotism."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 21, 1765.

16 Montresor records under this date: "Fort George was dismantled by order of the Governor."—Montresor's Jour., 339-40. See Nov. 13.

18 Andrew Elliot, collector, and Lambert Moore, comptroller, of the customs, write to Gov. Moore, asking directions about using stamped paper for cleaning vessels.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 759.

19 Gov. Moore, in his first address to the council and assembly, says: "I flatter myself, that your Zeal for His Majesty's Service, and the Good of your Country, will engage you to carry on your Session with the Unanimity becoming your Station, and the Purposes for which you are convened; Let these great Objects be ever present before you, and have such Influence on your Conduct, as not to be undeserving of that Protection which has been extended by our Most Gracious Sovereign, to His most distant Subjects. My ready Concurrence shall never be wanting in every Measure consistent with the King's Instructions, which can tend to promote the Interests of this Province; and I shall be extremely happy to have it in my Power, as much as it is in my Inclination, to make it the most flourishing Part of His Majesty's Dominions in America."—Assemb. Jour., II: 782. For the assembly's answer, see Nov. 22.

20 "The Dutch Church presents an address of welcome to Sir Henry Moore, the new governor."—Ecdes. Rec., VI: 4023-24.

21 Gov. Moore is the recipient of the address and freedom voted by the common council on Nov. 14 (q.v.), and makes reply as follows:

"Gentlemen,

"I return to you my hearty thanks for this Address, and for your Expressions of Regard for myself and Family. It will be no small Satisfaction to me, if my arrival here can, in any Shape, contribute to the Public Peace & Tranquillity. Nothing on my part Nov. 21 shall be wanting to establish them on a Lasting foundation, and from your assurances of Duty & Loyalty to His Majesty, as well as readiness to maintain good Order in this City, I can have no doubt of obtaining so desirable an End."—M. C. C., VI: 448. A manuscript draft of this answer appended to the address is in file no. 4 in city clerk's record-room.

The Post-Boy of this date expresses itself regarding the governor thus: "The Benignity which appears in the whole Behaviour of our new Governor, endears him to the People of this Colony: His ordering the hostile Preparations at the Fort, to be entirely stopt, and above all, his declaring he had nothing to do with the Stamps, has rid the People of those Fears which Proceedings anterior to his Arrival, had justly suggested to them. . . . The Sons of Liberty, on Friday last, gave him the most expressive Marks of their Joy, by their meeting, in great Numbers, in the Fields, where they erected Pyramids and Inscriptions to his Honour, and one of the grandest Bonfires ever exhibited in this City. They had previously sent him a congratulatory Address on his Arrival, which being dictated by the most sincere Gratitude, was not the less pathetic for being destitute of the Pageantry which often attends those of more regular Bodies. His Excellency received it with the greatest Politeness, and made a complaisant Answer."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 21, 1765.

The common council appoints a committee "to prepare the draft or plan of a Bridewell as also an estimate of the expense thereof and refer the same to this Board with all Convenient Speed for their approbation."—M. C. C., VII: 449. The Encyclopaedia Britannica says that the name "Bridewell is derived from that of a castle situated in the district between Fleet Street and the Thames and long used as the occasional residence of the kings of England." This castle, named "from the well of St. Bride or St. Bridget close by," was, in 1553, made over to the city of London by Edward VI to be used as a penitentiary or reformatory. Since that time the term has become a synonym for reformatory.

The need of a "Bridewell" in New York was suggested as early as May 7, 1727 (q.v.), but nothing had been done. On Nov. 10, 1766, a second committee was appointed to see about its construction; and in the following year, on Oct. 14 (q.v.), it was decided "to fit up "without Delay" two rooms "in the New Goal House (see Dec. 1, 1756, and April 9, 1757) for the use & purpose of a Bridewell."—M. C. C., VII: 46, 87. On Nov. 20, 1767 (q.v.), an arrangement was made whereby William Dobbs, a mariner, was to be keeper of the place until "the first of May Next" in return for £35 and the "profits arising from the Labour thereof." He continued as keeper and was paid for his services and expenses from time to time.—Ibid., VII: 92, 213, 227, 243. Payments were also made for furniture, fuel, etc., for the use of the Bridewell.—Ibid., VII: 98, 99, 100, 102, 103, 112, 120, 125, 134, 193, 245, 267, 269, 282, 337.

On Apr. 7, 1775, a committee, which had been formed to "Enquire into the State of the Bridewell, and Endeavor to fall upon ways and Means for putting the Same upon Some better Regulations," reported that Dobbs would undertake its management for the next year for a salary of £50 and "his Usual Perquisites," and render to the board every three months an account of all the profits arising therefrom. This was approved.—Ibid., VII: 414. But, soon after (July 13, 1773), Dobbs having signified his intention to resign, Alexander Montcrief was appointed keeper, his services to begin Aug. 1 at a salary of £30 per annum.—Ibid., VII: 435.

In Nov. 1774, the first steps were taken for the erection of a bridewell, the last public building commenced by the city (but not finished) before the Revolution. See, further, Feb. 7, 1774.

In answer to the governor's address of Nov. 19 (q.v.), the assembly says: "We have great Reason to rejoice in the Continuance of his Majesty's paternal Care and Tenderness to us, who, when he thought proper to remove our late Governor, General Monkton . . . was graciously pleased to appoint your Excellency to the chief Command . . . The Duties of our Stations, and the Purposes for which we are usually convened, have ever been the great Objects of our Pursuit; and will, we hope, invariably influence our Conduct in a Manner that may ensure our Constituents, his Majesty's unremitting Protection."—Assemb. Jour., II: 784-85.

Sir William Johnson writes to the lords of trade: "The late furious & audacious behaviour of the New Yorkers—excited & supported by several Persons of Consequence there are doubtless laid before y<sup>e</sup> Lordships by every faithful servant who dare write, and is not afraid that his House shall be burned, or himself massacred

- 1765 amongst which small number, I beg leave to assure you I am one, & one disinterested, acting on a principle of regard to the welfare of the Colonies, well knowing the Disorders in which they would be speedily involved, if they were able to effect that Democratical system which is their sole aim, and which they may hereafter compass unless a timely check is given to that spirit of Libertinism & Independence, daily gaining ground thro' the Artifices & unaccountable conduct of a few pretended Patriots but in reality Enemies to the British Constitution."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 790.
- 26 At a meeting of about 1,200 freemen and freeholders, "at the House of Mr. Burns, at the City Arms," the following instructions, addressed to the assembly members of the city and county of New York (John Cruger, Philip Livingston, Leonard Lispenard, and William Bayard), are agreed to:
- "In this distressing State of the Country, burthend with the Weight of new Impositions, which, if continued, may end in the Loss of our most inestimable Privileges, it cannot be unreasonable for your Constituents . . . to express some of the main Grounds for their Anxiety, and urge you . . . to exert yourselves to the uttermost for the common Safety.
- "We think it essential to the Security of the Liberty and Prosperity of Englishmen, that no Taxes be imposed, but of the Gift of the People; and that their be an uninterrupted Enjoyment of the ancient Right of Trials by Jury. . . .
- "It is with great Grief, therefore, that we are obliged to complain of all those Clauses in the Statutes relating to the Plantation Trade, which give the Prosecutor for Penalties and Forfeitures, a Right to sue in the Admiralty Courts, and to compel the Subject, for the Defence of his Property, to attend, at an intolerable Fatigue and Expence, many Hundred Miles from the Place of his Abode; And, above all, of the most dangerous Attempt lately made by Lieutenant Governor Colden to introduce Appeals from the Verdict of a Jury; an Innovation, which, if it obtains, must inevitably ruin this Country.
- "We complain also of the new Duties, imposed, and the present Restrictions upon the Trade of this Continent . . . and the present
- "And to your Astonishment and Terror, we see an Act of the British Parliament, lately passed, to levy an internal Tax upon the Colonies by the Imposition of certain Stamp Duties; an Act not only excessively burthensome at this Juncture and unnecessary to preserve our Dependency; but repugnant to those Principles by which Supplies to the Crown by our Fellow-Subjects in Great-Britain, are denominated their Voluntary Gifts.
- "We do therefore, most earnestly recommend it to you, to insist, to the utmost of your Abilities, in the General Assembly, now sitting, that a full Declaration be made and entered upon the Journals of the House, of the Rights of the People of this Colony, to Trials by Jury . . . and an Exemption from Parliamentary internal Taxations; and that these Claims and the Grievances of the Country be immediately represented to his Majesty and the two Houses of Parliament; and all necessary Relief prayed for, and solicited by proper Agents, in the most respectful and constitutional Manner." This was presented to the representatives on Nov. 27.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 28, 1765. A correspondent sent to the printer an account of the meeting which revealed that there were two factions present and that another address, expressing the people's abhorrence of the Stamp Act and proposing that all business be continued without stamps, had been drawn up, but because it did not meet with the approval of the leaders, had not been presented to the assemblymen.—Ibid.
- 28 Zachariah Hood, stamp officer for Maryland, is known to have fled to this city. Several small parties seek "the Place of his concealment." He is found at Flushing and induced to "sign a resignation from the office of Stamp Officer for Maryland." The company returned "carrying the Flag of Liberty, with the Words Liberty, Property and no Stamps." On Dec. 2, McEvers (see Aug. 30) was compelled to sign a resignation "which would supplement one he had already given to Lieut. Gov. Colden and the Council."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 5, 1765.
- " Peter de Lancy, "Jr.," a native of America, having been appointed one of the inspectors of stamps for America, finds, on his arrival in New York from London, that the stamps are "extremely disagreeable and odious to all Ranks and Conditions" of his countrymen, and therefore resigns.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Nov. 28, 1765. See also Montresor's Jour., 340.
- 29 Montresor writes: "I received Orders from the General by his Aid de Camp to dismantle the Fort and erase its present temporary parapet."—Montresor's Jour., 340. This work was in progress on Dec. 4.—Ibid., 341.
- " An anonymous letter was received on Nov. 26 by the clerk of assembly, with instructions on the envelope to open it in the assembly. On this day it is read, and found to be scandalous and seditious. The text of the letter, which is badly spelled and punctuated, is contained in the minutes.—Assemb. Jour., II: 787. It was signed "Freedom;" and the writer refers to himself as one of the "Sons of Liberty." A proclamation was issued, on Dec. 2, offering a reward for the discovery of the author or authors.—Cal. Hist. MSS. Eng., 760.
- " The provincial council secures legal advice concerning an act of parliament for providing quarters for the royal troops in America.—Cal. Coun. Min., 470. See May 28, 1766.
- Dec. 1 Gen. Gage writes to Gov. Moore, requesting "that provision may be made for quartering the troops, agreeably to the act of parliament."—Cal. Hist. MSS. Eng., 760.
- " Montresor writes: "A son of liberty stabbed with a Bayonet by one of the Royal Artillery."—Montresor's Jour., 341.
- 3 In a message to the assembly, Gov. Moore says: "The Expence of furnishing the King's Troops in America with Quarters, Carriages, and other Necessaries, being by an Act passed the last Session of Parliament, to be defrayed by the respective Colonies, the Commander in Chief of his Majesty's Forces hath in Consequence thereof, demanded of this Province that Provision which the Act requires, for the Troops at any Time quartered within, or marching through it."—Assemb. Jour., II: 788-89. See Dec. 1. On Dec. 13 (p. v.), the assembly passed resolutions relating to this demand.
- 6 Colden sends to England an account of the province. "The People of New York," he says, "are properly distinguished into different Ranks.
- "1. The Proprietors of the Large Tracts of Land who include within their claims from 100,000 to above one million of acres under one Grant . . .
- "2. The Gentlemen of the Law make the second class in which properly are included both the Bench and the Bar Both of them act on the same principles and are of the most distinguished Rank in the Policy of the Province
- "3. The Merchants make the third class many of them have suddenly rose from the lowest Rank of the People to considerable fortunes and chiefly in the last war, by illicit Trade . . .
- "4. In the last Rank may be placed the Farmers & Mechanics. . . . This last Rank comprehends the bulk of the People and in them consists the strength of the Province. They are the most useful and the most moral, but alwise the Dupes of the former, and often are ignorantly made their Tools for the worst purposes."
- Colden then goes on to describe the great power of the lawyers. They "rule the House of Assembly in all matters of importance," and "every man is afraid of offending them and is deterred from making any public opposition to their power and the daily increase of it." The lieutenant-governor tells also about the controversy caused by the Stamp Act (see Aug. 31), his correspondence with Gen. Gage in reference to the defence of the city (see July 8 and Sept. 2), the strengthening of the fort (see Sept. 23), and the events of Nov. 1 (p. v.). In conclusion, he says: "the authors of this Seditious Spirit in the Colonies have extended their views even to Great Britain, in hopes of raising a spirit of discontent among the Manufacturers there They publish in the Newspapers that the importation of British Manufactures are greatly decreased since the duties on the American Trade and that the Colonies are under a necessity of setting up the Manufactures which they otherwise would import from Great Britain . . . What has been published of the Manufactures lately set up, are absolute Falsehoods . . . All the wool in America is not sufficient to make Stockens for the Inhabitants and the severe Winters in North America render the production of Wool, in great quantities impracticable.
- "The Merchants of New York, and some other Places, have entered into an Agreement, not to import any goods from England the next year, unless the stamp act is repealed; this scheme is calculated solely to influence the People in England and should it be executed the people in America will pay an extravagant Price for old Moth eaten Goods, and such as the Merchants could not otherwise sell."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 795-800.
- " A number of the inhabitants, among them many of the Sons of 1765 Liberty, hold a meeting "in the Green opposite the Work House" Dec. and choose a committee "to wait on the Gentlemen of the Law in this Place, and treat them to follow Business as usual, without paying any Regard to the Stamp Act."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 9, 1765. See Dec. 20.

11 Montresor writes: "The Governor proposed to the Assembly to furnish money for getting this Harbour, Towne Environs &c. surveyed &c."—Montresor's Jour., 342.

"The assembly again prepares petitions to be presented to King George III and to parliament (see Oct. 18, 1764). These express their sentiments of love and loyalty for the king and the government but repeat the list of grievances. The colonists complain of the "internal Taxes and Duties on Merchandize for raising a Revenue in this Colony, by Authority of Parliament, the Extension of Admiralty Jurisdictions to causes only cognizable at Common Law, and the granting of Appeals from the Verdicts of Juries." In addition, they declare that "the Restrictions lately laid on our Trade, necessarily tend as well to a most dangerous Monopoly in Favour of our West-India Islands, as to the Ruin of this Continent, by discouraging the Improvement of our Lands," and, in regard to the prohibition of a lawful tender in paper money, "humbly apprehend that the Statute making our Bills of Credit no legal tender for the future, will be found extremely detrimental both to the Crown and the Colony."—Assemb. Jour., II: 795-802.

13 After taking into consideration Gov. Moore's message of Dec. 3 (q.v.), the assembly passes the following resolutions: "That where his Majesty's Forces are quartered in Barracks belonging to the King, they are always furnished with the Necessaries required . . . without any Expence to the Countries in which they are quartered. . . . That as there are Barracks belonging to his Majesty, in this City, and in the City of Albany, sufficient to accommodate double the Number of Forces contained in the Return laid before the General Assembly, an Application to them appears altogether unnecessary at present. . . . That if any Expence should be necessary for quartering Troops on their March, and supplying them with what is required . . . the House ought to consider thereof after the Expence is incurred."—Assemb. Jour., II: 802-3.

11 Colden, having retired to his country house, writes Sec. Conway: "The Fort is dismantled everything which Major James introduced of artillery, artillery stores and Gun Powder removed out of it." "New York by its situation, the great quantity of Artillery in it, and of ammunition and small arms 14,000 in the King's Stores may require the more immediate attention of his Majesty's Ministers. Whatever happens in this place has the greatest influence on the other Colonies. They have their eyes perpetually on it and they Govern themselves accordingly. Sir Jeffery Amherst knows this place well and the People in it, . . .

"The Dependency or independency of the Colonies seems now to be at the crisis whatever resolution be taken on the extraordinary events which have happened in America." He and his family, he says, "must live amongst a people strangely infatuated at this time, by the malicious and virulent papers continually published & dispersed assiduously among them."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 794.

Colden's country house was "about 15 miles from Town," on Long Island.—Ibid., VII: 814, 916.

14 It having been represented to the assembly "that an illegal Attempt has been made . . . to deprive the Inhabitants of this Colony of their ancient and undoubted Right of Trials by their Peers, by bringing an Appeal from the Verdict of a Jury," these resolutions are passed: "That the Trial by Jury, is the Right of the Subject, not only by the common Law, by Statute Law, and the Laws of this Colony, but essential to the Safety of their Lives, Liberty and Property. . . . That an Appeal from the Verdict of a Jury, is subversive of that Right, and that the Crown cannot legally constitute a Court to take Cognizance of any such Appeal. . . . That Cadwallader Colden, Esq., the Lieutenant Governor of this Colony, has, to the utmost of his Power, endeavoured to give Success to that dangerous Macination so naturally destructive of the Security, and Peace of the Subject. . . . That the Conduct of the said Lieutenant Governor Colden, has filled the Minds of his Majesty's Subjects in this Colony, with Jealousies and Distrust, to the great Prejudice of the public Service, and the Repose of the Inhabitants. . . . That it is the Duty of this House immediately to represent Home, the Illegality and the dangerous Tendency of the late Innovation."—Assemb. Jour., II: 786, 803-6.

"The Stamp'd Papers, &c. brought to North-America, has produced nothing but Vexations and Misfortunes to every Person who had any Thing to with them."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 16, 1765.

Montresor begins a survey of New York City at the request of Gen. Gage. He completed it by Feb. 8, in less than two months. The survey was made secretly for military purposes, and numerous inaccuracies bear testimony to the hastiness of its execution. Du Simithiere, writing in about 1768, referred to this survey as "extremely incorrect and full of gross errors." Montresor spent the summer of 1766 in reducing the plan "to the scale," and in surveying Governor's Island and a part of Red Hook. He sailed for England on Oct. 30, where he supervised the engraving of the plan, returning to New York in August, 1767. The first state of this engraving, which bears the date 1766, is now very scarce. The second state was published in 1775. See Pl. 40, Vol. I, and description, I: 339-40; see also Montresor's Jour., 342, 349.

17 Montresor writes: "This night about 8 o'clock the Effigies of Lord Colville Mr Grenville and General Murray were paraded several times through the streets amidst a large concourse of people who halted first where the Governor was in company and gave 3 Huzzas, they were carried to the Common and there burnt."—Montresor's Jour., 342-43.

"An Address to the Inhabitants of New-York," entitled "Liberty, Property and no Stamps" (see Nov. 28) is "dispersed in several Parts of this City." It states, in part: "That the Stamp Act is calculated to bereave us of the most valuable Rights we derive from Nature, and the English Constitution, and will, if it takes place, strip us of Freedom and Property, and reduce us to a State of absolute Slavery; has been, by a great Number of able Writers, most fully and clearly demonstrated.—It is to levy Taxes upon us, and take away our Effects with a high Hand, without our own Consent, given either personally, or by Representatives of our own choosing: It entirely deprives us of Trials by Juries, on any Demand, that may be made under a Pretence of its being for Stamp Duties; and besides, being in many other Particulars oppressive, and contrary to the first Principles of English Government, it will, if it takes place, entirely overthrow the English Constitution, and leave us at Mercy—To have our whole Property taken from us, to be restrained in all our Manufactures, Employments, and Actions, to be sold for Slaves, or even put to Death, at the arbitrary Will of our Brethren in a far distant Land, unaffected by any Burdens laid upon us,—over whom we have no Power or Influence, nor can we have any Opportunity of Remonstrance, or Means of Prevention. Such is the abominable Stamp-Act, which is now attempted to be forced upon us by all the Efforts and deep-laid Contrivances of wicked Power and Cunning. . . . The paper, which was signed "Freeman," was intended to inspire the citizens with courage to resist. It concludes, "let us oppose them with all our Might, even tho' Death should be the Consequence, . . . we should die gloriously in our Duty in the best of Causes. . . ." "Our Business of all Kinds is stopped, our Vessels, ready for Sea, blocked up in our Harbours, as if besieged by an Enemy, great Numbers of our poor People and Seamen without Employment and without Support, . . . many Families which used to live in comfortable Plenty, daily falling to Decay for Want of Business; and our Distress must continually increase till we break these Shackles that are thus forced upon us, both by our Enemies, and by our own Necessities. We may now easily break them, but if we stay till they are rivetted, and our Hands are bound, it will no longer be in our Power."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 19, 1765.

18 The assembly passes resolutions "taking into their most serious Consideration, several Acts of Parliament lately passed, granting Stamp, and other Duties to his Majesty, and restricting the Trade of this Colony." The resolutions declare that the colonists are entitled to the "same Rights and Liberties" as other English subjects and protest against the acts.—Assemb. Jour., II: 807-8.

A suitable order is issued on the application of the mayor and magistrates for a military guard.—Cal. Coun. Min., 470.

19 Companies detailed by Col. Oliver de Lancey and the Earl of Stirling are ordered "to mount guard at the city hall . . . and to put themselves under the direction of the city authorities."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng. 760. A list of the independent companies of the city, with their officers, bears this date.—Ibid.

"Obadiah Wells advertises that he handles on commission articles of home manufacture for the country people who do not choose to attend the market at the Exchange."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 19, 1765.

1765 The "Gentlemen of the Law" resolve "to carry on Business as Dec. usual, without paying any Regard to the Stamp Act."—N. Y.
20 Merc., Dec. 23, 1765. See Dec. 6.

21 Gov. Moore writes to Sec. Conway of the measures he has been compelled to enforce in consequence of the "commotions" raised in regard to the Stamp Act. "As it was not in my power to employ open force, I had no other remedy left but to let the People be sensible of the inconveniences which of course would attend the suspension they so much desired of the Stamp Act, and they begin already to be very severely felt, for all kind of business has stood still since that time. I have absolutely refused the holding of any Courts of Administration or Chancery which together with the Courts of Common Law are now shut up, and as no vessel will be suffered to go out of the Harbour all their Commerce here must be inevitably ruined if they persevere in their obstinacy much longer."

—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 802. See Jan. 16, 1766. The prevailing conditions are depicted in greater detail in the following extract of a letter from New York, appearing probably in a London newspaper of the same date: "Our port is shut; no vessels cleared out; no law and no money circulating; in short, all traffick and trade seems to be at an end. The country people, that are willing to pay, bring their produce to market to raise money, but can scarce sell any thing. Flax-seed, that other years sold at 12s. to 14s. per bushel, not to mention last year when it sold at 18s. to 20s. per bushel, is now no more than 5s. to 6s. per bushel, and but little sells at that.
A great many Merchants that can pay will not, in order to prevent remittances from being made to your part of the world. The people of the Province seem to have such an aversion to taking the Stamp-papers, that they will sooner die than take them. What the event will be is really to be dreaded."—Upcott Coll., in N. Y. Hist. Soc., II: 343.

The Post-Boy states that on this night, between twelve and one o'clock, "a large Number of armed Men went on board the Minerva [see Nov. 15], Capt. Tillet, lying at Rottee-Row, and demanded the Stamp'd Papers, supposed to be on board, belonging to the Colony of Connecticut; but were assured, that they had been on the 11th Instant deliver'd into Fort George; notwithstanding which, they search'd the Vessel in every Part, and finding there was none on board, return'd without doing any Mischief."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 26, 1765.

Several prisoners (debtors) in the new gaol effect their escape by striking down the keepers when the latter are locking up the several wards, thus procuring the keys and unlocking the doors.
The Post-Boy explains: "It is said the Prisoners concern'd in this Escape, have dropp'd Papers about Town, declaring that they should not have formed such a Design, had it not been that Business was at a Stand on Account of the Stamp Act, and they had no Prospect of a Discharge by the usual Methods of the Law."— N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 26, 1765.

23 Owing to the difficulty of obtaining slate, stooe, etc., for building materials, the legislature suspends, until Jan. 1, 1768, the fire prevention statute of Dec. 31, 1761 (q.v.), which required their use, after Jan. 1, 1766, for construction purposes south of Fresh Water.—
Cal. Laws N. Y., IV: 869. See Dec. 31, 1768.

Michel Guillaume St. Jean de Crèvecoeur is naturalized as John Hector St. John by act of the legislature.—Cal. Laws N. Y., IV: 899-900. Crèvecoeur lived in New York at intervals between 1764 and 1790, and during that time took numerous jaunts through the colonies.—Crèvecoeur, Letters from an American Farmer (1904), xiii-xv. For his description of New York City, see 1776.

24 Montresor states that a crowd collected to destroy Capt. Ken-Sec.A. nedy's house but was "suppressed by the Mayor." The mob is 30 now employed "in making Effigies to carry about the last day of this year."—Montresor's Jour., 343.

1766

— Some time prior to this date, a wind-mill was erected on the Rutgers' farm, near the corner of the present Oliver St. and New Bowery. It is shown on Pl. 40, Vol. I, which constitutes the only intimation found as to the time of its building. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 962; Pl. 174.

— In or about this year, Andrew Elliot, the collector and receiver-general, purchased about 13 acres of laud fronting on the Bowery Road, and erected a handsome country-house (the modern site being on the north side of 9th St., 100 ft. west of Broadway), calling it "Mfioto," after an estate in Scotland belonging to a member of his family.—Liber Deeds, XXXVII: 808. This estate was later the property of Robert Richard Randall (see June 5, 1790), who, in 1801, devised it to establish the "Sailors' Soug Harbor."—Ibid., XLVI: 212. See also Man. Com. Coun. (1865), 639-40; Landmark

Map Ref. Key, III: 951.

In a letter to Dr. Abel Stevens, the birth of Methodism in New York City in 1766 is thus described by Dr. G. C. M. Roberts: "A few of them [the Irish Palatine] only were Wesleyans. Mrs. Barbara Heck, who had been residing in New York since 1760, visited them frequently. . . . It was when visiting them on one of these occasions that she found some of the party engaged in a game of cards. . . . Her spirit was roused, and, doubtless emboldened by her long and intimate acquaintance with them in Ireland, she seized the cards, threw them into the fire, and then most solemnly warned them of their danger and duty. Leaving them, she went immediately to the dwelling of [Philip] Embury, who was her cousin.
It was located upon Barrack-street, now Park Place. After narrating what she had seen and done. . . she appealed to him to be no longer silent, but to preach the word forthwith. She parried his excuses, and urged him to commence at once in his own house, and to his own people. He consented, and she went out and collected four persons, who, with herself, constituted his audience. After singing and prayer he preached to them and enrolled them in a class. He continued thereafter to meet them weekly."—Stevens, Hist. of Meth. Epis. Ch. in U. S. I.: 54-55. Soon Embury's house could not hold all who desired to hear, and a larger room not far from the quarters of the British troops was hired. About Feb.
1767, Capt. Thomas Webb "of the King's service, and also a soldier of the cross and a spiritual son of John Wesley" began to help with the preaching.—Buckley, Hist. of Meth. in U. S. I.: 120-21.
The next step was the renting of "the rigging loft," for which, see 1767.

In this year, a petition was presented to the consistory of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church "praying that another Church might be Erected upon some of the Grounds, belonging to the Church for to Establish Likewise an English service in the Afternoon as also to Accomodate numbers of persons with seats who now had none" (see July 16, 1764). For "Carrying on said Building," they declare they will "Liberally subscribe."—Jour. of the proceedings of the Ref. Prot. Dutch Church, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Action on the petition was postponed until the beginning of the following year (see Jan. 1767).

In 1766-7, Lieut. Bernard Raterz made very accurate surveys of the lower part of Manhattan Island, and portions of Long Island and New Jersey, which were embodied in two maps or plans issued shortly afterward; these are reproduced and described in Vol. I, Pls. 41, and 42. The first plan was advertised for sale by Hugh Gainé in the N. Y. Merc., Aug. 21, 1769 (q.v.); the second on Oct.
15, 1770.

A company of the Sons of Liberty meet at the house of William Howard, and adopt resolutions asserting their determination to "go to the last Extremity," and venture their "Lives and Fortunes, effectually to prevent the said Stamp-Act from ever taking Place in this City and Province," etc. They agree to meet at the same place once every fortnight, or more often if necessary.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 9, 1766.

A news item states that "about 12 o'Clock last Night, a Company of arm'd Men went on board Capt. Haviland's Brig, lying at or near Cruger's Dock, and after obliging the People to deliver up the Keys, and get Lights, they opened the Hatches, search'd the Vessel from Stern to Stern, and seized the Stamped Papers for this Province and Connecticut, amounting to 10 Boxes, with which they loaded a large Boat, and proceeded with them up the River to the Ship-Yards, where they broke the Packages to Pieces, and with some Tar-Barrels and other Combustibles, made a Bonfire of them and their Contents. . . . When the Whole was entirely consumed, they all quietly dispersed, without doing any Mischief, or even alarming the City."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 9, 1766.

At a meeting of the council, it is decided to issue a proclamation offering a reward for the discovery of the persons who destroyed the stamped papers. The city magistrates are asked to declare wherever the peace can be maintained by civil authority.—*Cal.
Coun. Min.*, 470.

Montresor says: "Advertisements placarded throughout of the General approbation from the Sons of Liberty to those sons that burnt the Stamps the other night."—Montresor's Jour., 345.

1766

—

—

Jan.

7

9

10

11

- 1766 "The mayor and magistrates are of opinion they can for the future preserve the peace of the city; the people in general disapprove the destruction of the stamps."—Cal. Coun. Min., 470. Cf. Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 752. Jan. 20
- 11 "We have now in our Harbour, 18 ships, 17 snows, 19 brigs, 13 schooners, and 44 sloops; in all 111 sea vessels."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 13, 1766. See Dec. 21, 1765.
- 13 A course of experiments and lectures on electricity, and another on magnetism, are advertised to be held this week at the City Arms.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Jan. 13, 1766. See also Oct. 26, 1765.
- "A proclamation by Gov. Moore is published, in which, after reciting the recent seizure and destruction of the ten boxes of "Stamp Paper and Parchment" (see Jan. 9), he offers a reward of £100 for the discovery of the perpetrators. "All Magistrates, Justices, Sheriffs, and other Peace Officers, within this Province, are strictly charged and commanded, diligently to proceed in their Duty, and to do their utmost for the Discovery of, and apprehending the offenders aforesaid, that they may be dealt with according to Law."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Jan. 13, 1766.
- "We are desired to give Notice, That the Society for promoting Arts, etc. are to hold an extraordinary Meeting precisely at Six o'Clock in the Evening Of This Day; when, besides other Business Persons are to be appointed to adjudge the Premiums [see Dec. 10, 1764] to the several Claimants, who are to produce their Proof on Wednesday for Arts, and the Friday following for Agriculture.—As the Premiums for the Year ensuing will be under the Consideration of the Society at their next stated Meeting, such Persons, as cannot conveniently attend, are requested to send their Proposals or Hints in Writing to the Secretary Benjamin Kissam Esq.
- "N.B. The Market for Home-Manufactures so proper for the Season and which increases in suitable Articles every Market Day holds on the third Wednesday, the 15th Current, under the Exchange."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Jan. 13, 1766.
- 14 Montresor records that "Children nightly trampoze the Streets with lanterns upon Poles & hallowing . . . the Magistracy either approve of it, or do not dare to suppress it."—Montresor's Jour., 346.
- "Colden writes to Secretary Conway describing the domination of the "Faction" in the province, "composed of the Lawyers, & men of enormous Landed Estates who have obtained an absolute influence in the Assembly."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 804-5.
- "Colden asks for a pension, being near 78 years of age and having been over 40 years in the council.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 805. He says he "can not go to town in this cold Season" without danger to his health.—Ibid., VII: 812.
- 16 Gov. Moore, in a communication to Sec. Conway, says: "In my former letters [see Dec. 21, 1765] I have had the honor of informing you that all business was at a stand, and that no courts would be opened as long as this obstruction to the Acts of Parliament was made."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 806. In another letter of the same date, Moore writes to Dartmouth that a ship from England has been forcibly entered, and the stamped papers taken from on board and destroyed. He adds: "the disorders have become so general that the magistracy are afraid of exerting the powers they have [been] vested with, and dread nothing so much as being called upon in these troublesome times for their assistance."—Ibid., VII: 807.
- "The "Weyhawk Ferry house," the corner-house at the lower end of Division St. (Greenwich), is kept by Joseph Fitch.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 16, 1766. This was a great resort for country people.
- 17 "In Testimony of the sincere Regret of every patriotic American for the most interesting Death of the Duke of Cumberland, it is recommended that Gentlemen wear Crapes in their Hats, and the Ladies black Ribbons and Handkerchiefs, as suitable to the present American Spirit."—Suppl. to N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 17, 1766.
- 19 Montresor states that "The Sons of Liberty assembled at night in the Fields & bespoke a very large supper, but upon some disagreement (which is generally the case) they broke up and dispersed as soon as it came on the table."—Montresor's Jour., 347.
- 20 Jonathan Watts, writing from New York to Gen. Monckton, says: "We are just come from Council. The Gov<sup>t</sup> behaves sensibly and coolly, he lets the stamps sleep till he can hear from home. Secretary Conway by his majesty's order has wrote a most excellent letter on the confusions of America, wise, mild, and just."—Aspinwall Papers, in Mass. Hist. Soc. Collections (4th ser.), X: 589.
- "Letters from New York say, that if the Stamp Act should be repealed, the American Colonies will cheerfully carry into Execution the late Resolution of Council, for fitting out a certain Number of armed Vessels, at their own Expense, to act in the nature of Guarda Costas."—London Chron., Jan. 20, 1766.
- "We can assure the Publick from good Authority, that Lord Colvil has lately declared, that he would not interrupt any Vessel without Stamp'd Clearances, until he had received Orders from England for that Purpose."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 20, 1766.
- "Charles Oliver Bruff, "Goldsmith and Jeweller, at the Sign of the Tea-pot, Tankard, and Ear-ring, the Corner of King-street, rear the Fly-market," advertises that he "makes and mends all Manner of stone Buckles stone rings, ear-rings, broaches, seals, solitaires, hair-jewels and plaits all sorts of hair lockets in a curious manner; lockets enamel'd: makes all manner of sleeve-buttoons, mourning rings of all sorts, trinkets for Ladies, rings or lockets plain or enamel'd, gold necklaces or stone of all sorts. . . . Said Bruff makes all kinds of Silversmith's work, mends old work in that way. He hopes for the encouragement of the Gentlemen and Ladies of this City, as he will study to use them well."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 20, 1766. On Feb. 5, 1775, he added that he engraved "all sorts of arms, crests, cyphers, heads and fancies, in the neatest manner and greatest expedition with the heads of Lord Chatham, Shakespeare, Milton, Newton, Pope," etc.—Ibid., Feb. 5, 1775. Stauffer thinks that Bruff employed an engraver for this latter work because "his former advertisements make no mention of engraving." Stauffer further suggests: "As Henry Pursell [see May 29, 1775] advertises at times in the same journal, he may have been the engraver to whom this work was given by Bruff."—Stauffer, Am. Engravers on Copper and Steel, I: 39-31.
- "The linen factory under the management of Obadiah Wells (see Oct. 3, 1764) advertizes for "a large quantity of spinning flax." The industry has been brought to "such perfection, that a piece of green linen made by John Hill of this city, was sold at our Market for eight Shillings per yard."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 23, 1766.
- "For the identity of Hill, cf. M. C. C., VI: 412.
- 28 Benjamin Franklin, who at this time was the London agent for the colony of Pennsylvania, is examined before the house of commons as to the temper of the colonies respecting the Stamp Act. He declares that the people are very discontented, for they consider the act both unjust and unconstitutional. In his opinion, the colonies are really unable to pay the tax, but, even if this were not the case, he feels sure that they would refuse to pay an internal tax under any circumstances.—Memoirs of Benj. Franklin, I: 325-26; IV: 352-88; Parliamentary Hist., XVI: 133 et seq.
- "Montresor writes: "Arrived Cap<sup>t</sup> Chalmer's vessel from London in which came 13 packages of Stamp papers, which were by the Mayor & Corporation secured and lodged in the City Hall." Most of the people here, he says "acknowledge the King, but not the power of Parliament."—Montresor's Jour., 348.
- "The Petition of the Minister Elders and Deacons of the Reformed protestant Dutch Church of the City of New York" is "preferred" to the common council, "Setting forth that their predecessors have for near a Century Past [see March 17, 1701] made use of the Cimetery or Church Yard Adjoining to the Old Dutch Church for the Burying their Dead, which from the Length of time & the Contracted Limits of the Ground is now so full of Dead Bodies that it is hardly Possible to Open the Ground for a Grave without Digging up some of the Corps there interred, a Circumstance very disagreeable and Indecent and therefore praying that this Board would be pleased to Grant unto them and their Successors for Ever a Certain piece of Ground in the Commons near the Sugar House of Mt Henry Cuyler, the East End of which fronts the main Road that Leads to Fresh water and is Comprahended in a Survey lately made thereof by Francis Marschall one of the City Surveyors &c: which said Petition being taken into Consideration by this Board they did thereof Resolve themselves into a Committee to View the Ground prayed for, in Conjunction with the Petitioners to morrow afternoon, and that the said City Surveyor do attend this Board at the same time."—M. C. C., VII: 1. The original petition (MS.), dated March 29, 1765, is in the city clerk's record-room. For locations of streets and landmarks in the description, see Man. Com. Coun. (1866), 606, 609. On Feb. 11, the common council decided to "Grant unto the said petitioners the Aforesaid piece of Ground. (Containing twenty Eight Lots ten of Which Front Northerly to Queen Street, Eight Others fronting Easterly & Southerly upon Thomas Street, and ten Others fronting Westerly

1766 upon George Street some Larger & some Smaller as Appears by a Jan. Survey made thereof By Francis Marschalk one of the City Sur-31 veyors, etc.) This grant was allowed at a rental of £70 per annum.
 —Ibid., VII: 4. The engrossed lease and release from the city was not ready for execution, however, until Oct. 12, 1768.—Ibid., VII:
 130. On Sept. 2, 1790, the church purchased the property in fee for £1,000.—Man. Com. Conn. (1870), 761. See also M. C. C.
 (1783-1812), I: 537. This ground, in 1767 (q.v.), became the cemetery attached to the North Dutch Church.

Feb. The consistency of the Dutch Church resolves "That the Old 2 Church [on Garden St.] be repaired and the old seats be removed with the floor, that an entire solid floor be laid and furnished with seats, and that henceforth no more dead shall be buried there.
 Further the Tower shall be repaired in the best manner, and in place of the old glass, cheques shall be put."—Ecles. Rec., VI:
 402. On May 12, it was questioned whether the repairs should be undertaken; and a committee was appointed to inquire what amount of money would be needed.—Ibid., VI: 409. The committee reported, on June 17, "that the walls would not allow the Tower to be set upon the roof as now, but the new one should be mased up from the ground, outside of the front walls, and extending four or five feet in the church." This was approved by the consistency. It was considered unnecessary to delay the undertaking, as there was a prospect of enough money coming in.— Ibid., VI: 406. On June 26, however, the resolution of June 17,
 "in reference to the building of the Tower at the west end of the church," met with obstacles. It was resolved "to build at the east end, and then to take away the octagon and make the wall straight," and proceed as quickly as possible. Again, on July 2, the committee found difficulty regarding the building of the tower. "So in view of both methods it was at last unanimously resolved to build it where the porch is and to go on with it at once."—Ibid., VI: 406.
 Regarding the plans for alterations, see July 10.

4 At a meeting of the Sons of Liberty, a committee is appointed "to correspond with the Sons of Liberty in the neighbouring Colonies."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 10, 1766.

5 Trinity corporation is "engaged upon a third large new Church-building" (St. Paul's).—Ecles. Rec., VI: 4037. See May 14, 1764 and Oct. 30, 1766.

6 Montresor states that "This night several Children were dispersed by the watchman, (for the 1st time) for parading the streets with 3 effigies and Candles, being about 300 boys, Cryers and newsmongers and carriers patrolling the street and crying aloud
 'the downfall of the Stamp act.'" The Sons of Liberty control the press completely, he says, and declare "they will fight up to their knees in blood rather than suffer the Stamp act to be put in force in this Province and if they can assist even in any other."—Monttresor's Jour., 349.

8 "Finished my survey for the Commander in Chief."—Monttresor's Jour., 349. Thus briefly Capt. Montresor records the completion of the plan of the city which he undertook on Dec.
 16, 1765 (q.v.), at the command of Gen. Gage. The plan is shown in Pl. 40, and described in I: 339-40. See Feb. 14.

11 The common council contributes eight pounds "towards purchasing a Fire Engine for the more Easy Extinguishing of fires on Long-Island."—M. C. C., VII: 3. Such apparent generosity on the part of the magistracy is probably explained by the fact that the corporation owned property at the ferry terminal on Long Island,

13 "The Sons of Liberty hold a meeting upon 'particular Business,' having received from one of their members in Philadelphia a letter stating "that a Bond on stamped Paper, with a Mediterranean Pass, from a Merchant in this city, had been sent to Philadelphia."
 In consequence, the messenger was compelled to give up all the other blanks in his possession, and on the next day these were burned, by the man who received and sent the bond, "before the public Coffee-House, in presence of a multitude of Spectators."
 All the persons concerned in the affair "pleaded their Innocence, by declaring . . . that as no Charge was made for the same, and as it was necessary to enter into bonds for the said Passes, that they did not conceive any ill Effects might ensue therefrom, as favouring the Stamp Act. . . . But notwithstanding their Declaration . . . they were compell'd to stand forth in a public manner and confess their error." The people were so incensed that "it was with the greatest difficulty they were prevailed upon, not to destroy their Persons and Effects."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Feb. 17, 1766. Cf. Montresor's Jour., 349.

Montresor records that he has begun "reducing the large Plan Feb.
 [see Feb. 8] to the scale."—Montresor's Jour., 349. 14

The "Sons of Liberty" are notified to meet on this day "at the 14 House of Richard Howard, in the Fields."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 17, 18 1766. This was the old Mason's Arms Tavern at Warren St. and Broadway.

As their present building is "Altogether Incapable of Contain- 19
 ing the Congregation and the Cimetery too Small for the decent Interment of their Dead," the ministers, elders, and other members of the English Presbyterian Church petition the common council to grant to them "the Angular Lott Adjoining to the Ground lately Called the Vineyard and to the Green for The Erection of a New Church with an Additional Lott Suitable for a Cymetry Subject to such an Annual rent to be rendered for Ever to this Corporation as they in their Great Wisdom and Justice Shall think Reasonable." A committee was appointed "to Enquire into the Allegations," and report.—M. C. C., VII: 5-6. The original of this petition is in the city clerk's record-room. For the report of the committee, see Feb.
 25.

In a petition to the common council, William Walton and other 20 inhabitants of Montgomery Ward state that "at present there is But one Ferry Established. Between this City and Nassau Island," and that the increase in population delays traffic. They ask that the board "will for the Future Either Add or Order two Boats to Land at Ferry or Pecks Slip Being Nearly Opposite the Landing place on Nassau Side;" but the petition is rejected.—M. C. C., VII: 5. The location of the one ferry thus far established to Nassau Island was at Peck's Slip.—Ibid., VI: 247. For an earlier petition, see May 22, 1761.

Gov. Moore informs Sec. Conway that, because of "some out- 20 rages," he has been forced to make "a private Application to Genl Gage for some military Assistance (our present Force here [New York] not exceeding 160 men)."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 811.

A newspaper clipping, apparently from a London paper, reads: 21
 "Very large Orders in the Stationery Branch have this Week been countermanded from North America, where, we hear, one Paper Manufactory has lately been established at New York [see July 14, 1768], and another at Philadelphia, which will soon be able to supply most of the neighbouring Colonies."—Upcott Coll., in *N. Y. Hist.
 Soc.*, 417.

Coldea is of the opinion, he writes to Conway, "that no great 21
 Force will be requisite to reduce the City of New York to obedience.
 After the Fort shall be restored to the state it was in when I left it,
 I believe a thousand men may be sufficient. However it will be best to have such a Force as may destroy all hopes of Resistance. After such Force arrives, I am humbly of opinion, if Proclamation be made that all riotous assemblies, or open disobedience of the Laws shall be treated as Rebellion, the People will submit without opposition and the whole Province will follow the example of the City."
 —N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 813.

The committee appointed to consider the petition of the min- 22
 isters, elders, and other members of the English Presbyterian Church (see Feb. 19), reports that £40 per annum has been offered for the land applied for, which, upon survey, was found to comprise about nine lots, 25 by 100 ft. The members agreed that this ground was the most convenient place to build a church. Annexed to this report was a statement, by the church committee, of their reasons for choosing this site. The only other ground worthy, in their opinion, of consideration was "that opposite to the Old Wind Mill Spot," but that location was rejected by them because, among other reasons, it was inconveniently situated. A church erected there would be endangered by fire from the many wooden buildings in the vicinity, and its nearness to the Dutch Church might cause hindrance to both sects. The petitioners hoped that the rental of £40 per annum would be considered sufficient, inasmuch as Trinity Church had received its land free, and the Dutch Church had paid only about half as much, and because they, having never received a grant from the city, were "proper Subjects for the Bounty and favour of the worshipful Board." The common council, on hearing their committee's report and the Church's annexed statements, unanimously agreed to grant the land at the proposed rental, and ordered a draft thereof to be prepared.—M. C. C., VII: 8-12; City Grants, Liber C: 372. The land was that bounded by the present Nassau and Beekman Sts. and Park Row. The church was opened Jan. 1, 1768 (q.v.). For 30 years after it was built, it was known as "The New Church," but in 1798, when the next Presby-

Feb.
14 18

19 20

21

See A.

22
25

- 1766 terian Church was erected (on Rutgers St.), the name was changed
Feb. 25 to "The Brick Church."—Knapp, Hist. of the Brick Presby. Ch.
of N. Y., 19-23, 70. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 930.
- 25 The first ferry to the Jersey shore under municipal regulation is established (for an earlier private ferry, see June 28, 1764). A common council committee, appointed to confer with petitioners for this ferry privilege (see May 3, 1765), reports that Cornelius van Voorst offers to the corporation £40 per year for seven years,
"they to appoint the rates of ferrage in crossing. . . after the said term of 7 years be expired he would give the Corporation a free landing on his side, they making the most they can from New York there, provided the Corporation would grant him the same privilege from Jersey side to New York; that he was possessed of 3 large and 2 small boats for the use of ferrying, which should always be in repair for that purpose; that the Corporation might settle the place of landing on the New York side, though he would recommend to have it at the same place he now lands at." The proposals were set at ground, and it was ordered "that the landing place be fixed at the ground or pier of Nicholas Roosevelt East of the lower end of Thomas [Thames] Hook."—M. C. C., VII: 8. See Feb. 20, 1767. See also "Paulus Hook Ferry," in Landmark Map
Ref. Key, III: 943.
- 27 There appears in the Gazette an extract from a letter from "a Gentleman in London who is well acquainted with America" to the effect that "the Stamp-Act is in the Way to be repealed. . .
the every possible Endeavour is used that Satanick Malice, Chicane, Obstinacy, or Fraud can invent, yet I apprehend it will be carried through both Houses. . . Mr. Benjamin Franklin has served you greatly: He was examined at the Bar of the House of Commons [see Feb. 3], and gave such clear and explicit Answers to the Questions proposed, and mentioned his own Sentiments with so much firmness and Resolution, as at once did him great Credit, and served your Cause not a little."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman),
May 5, 1766.
- "Elkanah and William Deane, brothers [see Sept. 20, 1765],
"Coach-Makers to Dublin," advertise their partnership. They "have now done to as great Perfection, all Branches of the Coachmaking Trade, as can be imported; such as wood Work, in all its Branches; Carving, Painting, Gilding, and Japanning; Trimming, Harness and Saddle's Work: Likewise Smith's Work of all Sorts, relative to said Trade, even Axletres, and Steelsprings, equal in Quality, if not superior, to any imported from England." The advertisement continues: "As we can now make and finish, (without the Assistance of any out of our own Shop) in the genteelst and best Manner, all Kinds of Coaches, Chariots, Landaus, Pha-tons, Post-Chaises, Curricles, Chairs, Sedans, and Sleighs. We can afford to make any of them on more reasonable Terms than has been yet done by any Person in this City, and as we are determined to contribute as much as in our Power, to the Prosperity of this Country, we are determined for the future, to make and sell any of the above Carriages, Five per Cent. cheaper than they can be imported from England." They further say: "we likewise will warrant and engage all our Work for one Year, (accidents excepted) being the most that any Coach-maker in Great-Britain or Ireland do."
The advertisement closes: "Said Deanes have two Curricle
Chairs, one Chaise, and a Kitteren-Chair, one Double Horse Sleigh, . . . and one Pair of Curricle Harness, with a Steel siding Bar. . . Their shop was "in Broad-Street."—N. Y.
Post-Boy, Feb. 27, 1766. Their business became an important factor in New York trade at this time.—Houghton, Coaches of Colonial N. Y. (1890), 15-16. Their rivals were James Hallett (see Jan. 22, 1750) and Samuel Lawrence (see Oct. 3, 1765). For the meaning and description of the various vehicles mentioned in this advertisement, see Houghton, op. cit., 19. On June 11, 1767, James Beekman paid Deane £991 15s for a "charrriott," and £102 for a phaeton.
—Ibid., 15. For an account of the Beekman coach, now in the N. Y.
Hist. Soc. collection, see ibid., 21.
- 28 Montresor states that Gov. Moore has bought and wears "two Homespun Coats made in the Colonies for the Encouragement of arts in the Colonies as an Example for others."—Montresor's Jour., 351.
- Mar. 6 Upon a supposition that the cannon upon the battery were spiked (see April 6 and 18) by order of Lieut.-Gov. Colden, his effigy is exhibited "sitting upon a piece of ordnance, (properly mounted) with a drill, constructed in such manner as to be continually working." A newspaper account of the affair says that
- "at his back hung a drum, as a badge of his former profession: On his breast was fixed a paper, on which were the following lines,
"I'm decieved by the devil, and left in the lurch;
"And am forced to do penance, tho' not in the church.
"After it had appear'd in the principal streets of the city, attended by many thousand spectators, (altho' it rain'd great part of the time) it was carried to the common, where a fire was immediately made, and the whole consum'd. . . amidst the acclama-tions of the multitude, who dispersed directly after."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 13, 1766; Penn. Gaz., March 20, 1766. Colden had been burned in effigy once before (see Nov. 1, 1765).
- "It being represented to this board that Alderman Roosevelt intended to Propose to the Corporation of the City of New York to grant and Convey to them two Water Lots belonging to him adjoining the Water Lots of this Corporation upon Condition that the Ferry across Hudsons River between this City and Powles hook should be established and fixed from his said Lots but in as much as the said two Lots will not be Sufficient to accommodate the said Ferry without the addition of so much of the water Lots belonging to this Corporation adjoining the said two Lots and of Equal dimensions therewith And this Board Considering the Convenience and advantage arising to the Publick from the said Ferry There-upon Resolve that They will also Grant and Convey to the said City Corporation two of their Lots belonging to this Corporation adjoining the said two Water Lots of Alderman Roosevelt and of Equal Demensions for the use of the said Ferry but for no other use or purpose whatsoever upon Condition that the said
Ferry is to be Established and fixed there for ever but if the said
Ferry is to be removed from thence that than [then] the said Water
Lots so granted by this Corporation for the use aforesaid shall again Revert and be in this Corporation."—Trin. Min. (M.S.).
- 10 Montresor states that there are 1,700 barrels of gunpowder at Turtle Bay and 500 at Prevost's on the East River "lodged in 2 Powder Magazines"; also, that 3,000 tons of ordnance stores are "lodged in a Stone house on the North River exposed, as being without Guard or Defence."—Montresor's Jour., 352. See March 29.
- 18 The king gives his assent to the repeal of the Stamp Act, but it is not to go into effect until May 1.—Ann. Reg. (1766), 77. According to a letter from Bristol, the bill passed the house of commons on March 4, and was sent to the lords on March 5.—N. Y. Gaz., April 28, 1766. Montresor, therefore, must have been misinformed when he wrote in his Journal: "the 29th of January, the Stamp act was Repealed. Upon receiving the accounts 3 or 400 boys tore through the several Streets with the shouts of the Stamp act's Repealed."
—Montresor's Jour., 355.
- Furthermore, on this day, the king gives his assent to the bill for securing the dependency of the colonies on the British crown.
—Ann. Reg. (1766), 77. This act (generally known as the "Declaratory Act") declared that the "Colonies and Plantations in America have been, are, and of Right ought to be, subordinate unto and dependent upon, the Imperial Crown and Parliament of Great Britain; and that the king's Majesty, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Lords . . . and Commons . . .
had, hath and of Right ought to have full power and authority to make Laws and Statutes of sufficient Force and Validity to bind the Colonies and People of America, Subjects of the Crown of Great Britain, in all Cases whatsoever."—Stat. of Gt. Brit., VII: 571.
- Montresor writes that the Sons of Liberty are preparing to have a procession and barn, in effigy, Sir Jeffrey Amherst. They say "he proposed to augment the military forces in America, towards the more effectual forcing the Stamp act." They further propose "erecting a Statue to Mr. Pitt (as a frierd) in the Bowling Green on the Identical Spot where the Lieu' Governor's Chariot was burned [see Nov. 1, 1765] and to name that Green "Liberty Green" for ever."—Montresor's Jour., 353. See June 23.
- "The docking facilities of the city at this time were inadequate to meet commercial needs. A petition to the common council of inhabitants living near Burling Slip states that this slip is frequented
"by New England and Long Island trading Boats, that usually bring their Country Produce to this City for a Market." The petitioners wish the common council to prohibit sea-going vessels from occupying the slip. "Tho' there is no Publick Dock Provided for laying up Sea Vessels," they say, "yet there are many Places about the Wharfs and Keys of this City and in Particular Rotten Row, Sufficient to Contain the Sea Vessels belonging to this City without injury to the Country Trade; That therefore we conceive

- 1766 it to be unreasonable That Sea Vessels should be laid up in said
 Mar. Slip." Another petition to the same effect, endorsed "filed y<sup>e</sup> 18th 18 of March 1766," states that Jeronimus Remsen, the proprietor of the water lot on the east side of Burling Slip, "is now docking out the same, by which means the said Slip is much contracted." The small coasting and trading vessels and boats are crowded out by the sea-going vessels, and the petitioners ask that the latter ships may be prohibited from coming into the slip.—From the original petitions (MS.) in File 44, city clerk's record-room. Neither the petitions nor the action upon them, if any was taken by the common council, is recorded in the Minutes.
- " At a public sale, the ferry between New York and Nassau Island is leased to Samuel Waldron for five years at the annual rent of £660; the wharves and slips to Luke Rooome for three Years at £620 per annum; and the "Stalls and Standings" to Alexander White for two years at an annual rent of £440.—M. C. C., VII: 14.
- " The ministers, elders, deacons, and trustees of the Presbyterian Church petition the king "to grant and confirm the Premises"
 (of their church on Wall St.) to them and to create them "a Body Politick and Corporate in Deed and in name, by the Name and Stile of 'The Ministers, Elders, Deacons and Trustees of the Presbyterian Church of the City of New York according to the Westminster Confession of Faith, Catechisms and Directory, agreeable to the present established Church of Scotland." Attached to the petition was the form of a charter, such as they desired.—Doc. Hist.
 N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 301-3; Cal. Hist. MSS. Eng., 761. See July 29. This petition was denied by the king on Aug. 26, 1767 (q.v.).
- 19 Lieut. Hallam, on board the "Garland," is reported to have said that Holt (prior of the Post-Boy) would be hanged, if he were in England, "for the licentiousness of his Paper." The Sons of Liberty are greatly incensed; they send two of their number on board the "Garland" to demand the lieutenant, but he refuses
 "any intercourse with them," and orders them ashore, the vessel lying close to the wharf. "The Rabble cry'd out 'bring the Lieut' ashore with a Halter about his neck.'" They assembled again the next day, and, the day after that, "resolved to murder him," but they found the vessels too strongly guarded. The lieutenant, however, felt "obliged to confine himself on Board from the threats he had received."—Montresor's Jour., 352-54.
- 21 "The New York Society for promoting Arts, etc., at their meeting held on the 3<sup>d</sup> instant, granted a great number of premiums on the several branches of arts and Agriculture, particularly for raising the greatest quantities of flax, hemp-seed, and barley; to the persons who shall spin the greatest quantities of yarn and thread; Manufacture the best pieces of linen and tow cloth; produce the greatest quantity of potash; make the three first stocking looms of iron; produce the greatest quantity of wove stockings, thread or worsted; make the best two pairs of Women Shoes; or the greatest quantity of good tiles, not less than 50,000 of which were sold in New York in 1766. A medal was given for raising from the quarry, manufacturing, etc. the greatest quantity of good slate, for covering houses; for the first flax-Mill, to go by Water; for the first bleach-field," etc.—Upcott Coll., in N. Y. Hist. Soc., II: 431. The society was in communication with similar societies in other parts of the country in order to compare records of work and progress.—
N. Y. Post-Boy, March 20, 1766.
- 21 It has been "agreed amongst the Sons of Liberty here," says Montresor, "to wait on the Comm<sup>r</sup> in Chief [Gage] that they might be informed of . . . the reason for his ordering Troops to New York." Because the governor has never interfered "during all the tumults and disturbances" the rabble deems this "a sufficient Sanction for them and so daily pursue their disloyal Irregularities; having never till now, ever had the shadow of Opposition to present itself against them."—Montresor's Jour., 354.
- " The provincial council receives royal instructions confirming Daniel Horsmanden, George Clarke, Sir Wm. Johnson, Wm. Smith, John Watts, Wm. Walters, Oliver de Lancey, William Alexander (claiming to be Earl of Stirling), Charles Ward Apthorpe, John Reade, and Roger Morris as members of the council.—Cal. Coun.
Mss., 151.
- 25 A letter of this date from Bristol says: "We now come to beg your attention to three things on which solid and lasting advantages will accrue [accrue] to your-selves. 1. See that your rejoicings be within bounds, and that no person be burnt in effigy.— 2. Let no indecent reflections be permitted to be inserted in any of your news papers against the legislature.— 3. Discountenance & inform government of any illicit trade that may be carried on from the East Country. . . . This very thing has bro't on all that has happened."—N. Y. Merc., May 26, 1766.
- 29 Montresor states that "1000 Barrels of Powder & 12,000 Stands of Arms" (see March 10) are "put on board the men of War for Safety, as not being thought secure where they were stored."— Montresor's Jour., 356.
- 31 Sec. Conway writes from St. James's to the governors in America a conciliatory letter, enclosing copies of two acts of parliament just passed—the first "for securing the dependency of the Colonies on the Mother Country; the second for the repeal of the Act of last session, granting certain stamp duties in America." He explains that "A Revision of the late American Trade Laws is going to be the immediate object of Parliament."—N. Y. Col.
Docs., VII: 823-24. The two laws which Conway transmits were passed on March 18 (q.v.).
- " Montresor states that "Five Ruffians or Sons of Liberty fell on an officer of the Royal Americans on the Common about Dusk, behind his Back and beat him unmercifully and broke his sword, which he had drawn in his Defence."—Montresor's Jour., 356-57.
- Apr. "The Sons or Spawps of Liberty and Inquisition," as Montresor chooses to call them, are "still venting threats and Insulting the Crown & Officers under it." Lieut.-Gov. Coldeo, in particular, are they threatening, "In Case the Stamp act is not repealed."— Montresor's Jour., 352, 357.
- " Announcement is made that "The Twin Rivals" will be presented at the "Theatre in Chapel-Street" (see April 2, 1764) on April 9.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 3, 1766. See April 4.
- 4 "A Grand meeting of the Sons of Liberty to settle matters of moment, amongst the many whether they shall admit the strollers arrived here to act (see April 3), th<sup>o</sup> the General has given them permission. These Heroes of Liberty Keep an office and enter minutes and record them & all their correspondence to their licentious fraternity throughout the different Provinces. . . . Some Stamps as 'tis said found in the Streets were publicly burnt, at the Coffee house, together with some play bills, all to prevent Their Spirits to flag."—Montresor's Jour., 357-58. See May 1.
- 6 Some of the inhabitants begin work on the spiked cannon at the Battery (see March 6 and April 18), hoping to make them useful again. Montresor thinks their efforts will be unavailing, because the guns "are mostly old and honeycomb, the carriages so rotten as scarce to be able to support the weight of metal, the Platforms so totally out of order as to admit the Trucks of the Carriages nearly to their axes. And the checks of the Embrasures choke 'em on every explosion as the Log work is decayed and ill tired."—
Montresor's Jour., 358, 359, 360.
- 7 "Last Week a sloop from Egg-Harbour, brought up to town, a small bundle of stamped paper, that had been found in the wreck of the ship Ellis. . . . As soon as it was known, they were seized by the sons of liberty, and purified at the Coffee-house last Friday [April 4], before a thousand spectators."—N. Y. Merc., April 7, 1766.
- 8 A sale is advertised to be held on this day at the Merchants Coffee House of a "Very pleasant Farm, lying on the North River, about four Miles from this City, Known by the Name of Newfoundland, or the Glass-House, now in the Possession of Matthew Ernest, it contains Thirty Acres and a Half of Land, in good Order
 —There is on the Place a good Dwelling-House with five Rooms, two Cellars, a large convenient Kitchen; also a large new Barn, Chaise-House, Stables, and several Out-Houses—also two good Springs on the Place."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), March 30, 1766.
- 15 The Glass House, a glass manufactory, had been erected about 1754 (see Oct. 7, 1754), and had been turned into a tavern in 1763.
 Gerrard G. Beckman and other inhabitants of Montgomerie Ward living at or near Beckman's Slip state, in a petition to the common council, that the street fronting their houses, Beckman's Slip, and down to Cannon's Wharf, is so narrow that two carts cannot conveniently pass each other, and they offer to widen the street at their own expense by wharving out five feet or more. Consideration of the petition is deferred, and no further action on it is recorded in the Minutes; but, at the same time, a committee is appointed "to Superintend Order and direct the Surveyors of the present high ways in Repairing and Amending the Public Roads or high ways in such manner as they Shall Judge Proper."—
M. C. C., VII: 15.

1766 Benjamin Baker is tried by the supreme court "for spiking up the Great Guns of the Fort and Barracks some time ago" (see March 6 and April 6) and found guilty. He is sentenced to a year's imprisonment and a fine of £200 besides being compelled to furnish securities to the amount of £1,000 "for his good Behavior for two Years to come."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Apr. 21, 1766.

24 Obadiah Wells, who lives "in Mulberry-Street, near Fresh Water," advertises that "A Large Quantity of good well dressed spinning Flax, is wanted for the Factory in New-York." The spinners are notified that flax will be given out by him on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday, and that he will receive yarn in return. Any person who has not been an inhabitant of the city continuously since May last will not be admitted as a spinner in the factory. Wells continues as commission agent at the market in the exchange to sell articles of home manufacture.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 24, 1766.

26 "At 3 o'clock this morning All the Bells of this place rung and . . . made a most hideous Din." Montresor says this was because of a report received the day before that the Stamp Act was repealed. About 8 A. M. the packet boat with the mail arrived and the Sons of Liberty demanded of the captain, when he came ashore, "whether the Stamp act was repealed—he answered in the affirmative, adding Totally. Upon which they fixed him in a chair and carried him and the mail to the Post Office with great acclamations of joy, cheering him all the way." After examining the letters of latest date from London, however, it was found that as yet "the Repeal had not undergone the 3rd reading in the House of Commons. . . . The bells were immediately silenced and great discontent ensued owing to their having been so premature in their rejoicings."—Montresor's Jour., 362. For a similar account, see Upcott Coll., in N. Y. Hist. Soc., III: 79.

28 "The act of Parliament relating to vessels delivering their letters to the Post office are like others held here. The letters are left at the coffee house and are distributed by the news carrier who keeps the advantage."—Montresor's Jour., 363.

29 Montresor states that the city is "alarmed from the approach of the Country levellers called, the West Chester men," and that the militia is ordered "to hold themselves in readiness." Two days later, "Six men (a Committee from West Chester people being 500 men now lying at King's Bridge) came into town to explain matters. . . . The military applied to an account of the Levellers on which they dispersed. Sons of Liberty great opposers to these Rioters as they are of opinion no one is entitled to Riot but themselves."—Montresor's Jour., 363.

30 Gov. Moore writes to Sec. Conway of the spread of discontent. There has been a threat "to set the City on Fire in several different Places at the same time. . . . The Regular Troops as well as the Militia had orders to be in readiness on the Alarm Bell being rung and every other precaution taken which common Prudence would suggest on such an occasion." Hostile inhabitants of other counties (see April 30—"West Chester men") came "within the limits of this Corporation," and "proceeded with an intent of making their Entry into the City last night." The governor offered a reward for apprehending the one in command, and they dispersed.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 825.

" Montresor writes: "Arrived a French vessel, a ship from St Domingo bound to old France put in in stress of weather. She was safely conducted through the Channel by the Pilot and safe within the Narrows into the Bay."—Montresor's Jour., 363. On May 3, he said: "In my opinion the arrival of this French vessel is a mere Finesse. . . . In arriving here they have in all probability gained their point, to know the navigation from Sandy Hook to this place, to know the strength, situation and present position of Defence of this place, and to be thoroughly informed of the minds and pulses of the Inhabitants."—Ibid., 364.

May 1 An advertisement informs the public that, "By Permission of His Excellency the Governor," the comedy called "The Twin Rivals" will be presented at the theatre in Chapel St. on May 5 (q.v.). The performance is to include "a Song in Praise of Liberty." The advertisement contains also the following: "N.B. As the Packet is arrived, and has been the Messenger of good News, relative to the Repeals, it is hoped the Public has no Objection to the above Performance."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 1, 1766. See April 4.

" John Vogel advertises the sale "for 16 Years to come from August next" of a "Very good commedious House and 8 Lotts of Ground, situated in the Bowry, and almost opposite the Wind Mill, being very convenient for a Tavern or Shop Keeper."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 1, 1766.

"Public Notice is hereby given, That the Custom House is removed from the Broad-Way to Wall-street, opposite the House where Mr. Nicholas Bayard lately lived, near the City-Hall."—N. Y. Merc., May 5, 1766.

"The announcement that a play would be presented on this day in the Chapel Street Theatre (see May 1) having given offence to "many of the Inhabitants of this City, who thought it highly improper that such Entertainments should be exhibited at this Time of public Distress, when great Numbers of poor people can scarce find Means of subsistence," a rumour is spread about town that, if the play be given, the audience will meet with "some Disturbance from the Multitude." A newspaper account of the affair says: "This prevented the greatest Part of those who intended to have been there, from going: however many People came, and the Play was begun; but soon interrupted by the Multitude who burst open the Doors, and entered with Noise and Tumult. The Audience escaped in the best Manner they could; many lost their Hats and other Parts of Dress. A Boy had his Skull fractured . . . several others were dangerously Hurt. . . . The Multitude immediately demolished the House, and carried the Pieces to the Common, where they consumed them in a Bonfire."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 8, 1766. Another report states that "those were best off who got out first, either by jumping out of Windows, or making their way through the Doors, as the Lights were soon extinguished, and both Inside and Outside soon torn to Pieces and burnt by Persons unknown about Ten and Eleven a Clock at Night."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 12, 1766. Montresor ascribes the riot to the Sons of Liberty, who, he says, "without any Reason given pulled down the playhouse the beginning of the 2nd act, put out all the lights, then began picking of pockets stealing watches throwing Brick Bats, sticks and Bottles and Glasses, crying out Liberty, Liberty then proceeded to the Fields or Common and burnt the materials. One boy Killed and many people hurt in this Licentious affair."—Montresor's Jour., 364.

"The Post-Office is removed from its former Place, to the House where Beverly Robinson, Esq; lately lived, in Stonestreet, opposite the Fort."—N. Y. Merc., May 12, 1766. See May 2, 1763.

"Lieut-Gov. Colden's "chariot" is shipped from London by his friend and correspondent, Peter Collinson, on board the ship "Hope" (Benjamin Davis, master). The original bill-of-lading, an engraved form filled in, is preserved with the Colden Papers in the archives of the N. Y. Hist. Soc. With it is preserved the original bill for the purchase by Collinson of the "chariot" of Elliott & Jacob, London. The statement reads: "May 9 To a New Post Chariot made of the Best Season timber lin'd with a light Colour'd Cloth trimm'd with a Neat Coffoy laice & a Handsome folding Hammock cloth with 2 rows of fringe 2 fore Glasses Door Glasses and a set of mahogany shutters with rose lights the Glass s[r]tings & Holders Coffoy & pockets to the fore end & Doors lin'd with leather a Nett to the roof an Additional seat with iron work to take off or on a Wainscot box with a lock a Carpet to the bottom steps to slide under with brass handles, Painted a fine Glaz'd Crimson with light Crimson flowers on silver all over the Panels & Gold Ciphers with proper colour'd flowers twisting round them and Gilding the Opus and Beads & Varnish—and a Neat Carriage with iron Axletrees and Good season'd Wheels a Post Budget a set of Bow Ess steel springs & Colour'd and Varnish'd Vermillion and a New Pair of Harness Bridles, & ranes sew'd white & Ornamented with Brass peices & Ciphers engrav'd on the Howings and all things Completed to the Chariot & Harness in the best manner . 90. 0.0

"CC
"N <sup>o</sup> 1	To Packing the Chari <sup>t</sup> & Harness in a Deal Case
	& matt <sup>d</sup> the Carriage all over . . . . . 2:18.0 <hr/>
	£92.18.0
"Deducted 5 th	C <sup>t</sup> prompt payment . . . . . 4:13:
	<hr/> 88:5
"Receiv'd 16	May 1766 the Contents in full for Self & C <sup>o</sup>
	Jos: Jacob"

This "chariot" was evidently intended to replace the one burned by a mob on the night of Nov. 1, 1765 (q.v.). An announcement by William Clajon (see Jan. 26, 1761) reads: 19

1766 "The Minister and Elders of the French Church, desirous to encourage a French-School, have granted me Leave to teach in their Consistory-Room, situate in the Yard that Church, where I purpose to open a public School, on Monday the 26th inst. . . . My terms are as follows, viz. For the French, Latin, and Greek Languages, besides English Grammar, &c. . . 36s. entrance, and 3s. per Quarter: For the French Language, English Grammar, &c. 20s. entrance, and 20s. per Quarter. As I do not presume to teach English Pronunciation, I will not take Children who cannot read English fluently. After public school hours, I will teach at the same place for 24s. per Month, and 24s. entrance, those of riper years, who incline to learn the French Language. My method shall be varied so as to suit the learner's views, age, &c. taking care to give but few rules properly exemplified."—N. Y. Merc., May 19, 1766.

20 "The news reaches New York that the repeal of the Stamp Act obtained the king's assent on March 18 (p. 10). Although such tidings had been expected (see April 26), "a sudden Joy was immediately diffused thro' all Ranks of People in the whole City. Neighbours ran to congratulate each other, and all the Bells in Town were set to ringing, which continued ill late at Night, and began again early next morning."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 23, 1766. The news is published in a broadside which reads:

"Joy to America
 "At 3 this Day arrived here [New York] an Express from Boston with the following most glorious News, on which H. Gainé congratulates the Friends of America.
 "Boston, Friday 11 o'Clock, 16th May, 1766. This Day arrived here [Boston] the Brig Harrison, belonging to John Hancock, Esq., Capt Shubael Coffin, in 6 Weeks and 2 Days from London, with the following most agreeable Intelligence, viz.
 "From the London Gazette.
 "Westminster, March 18.
 "This day his Majesty came to the house of Peers, and being in his royal robes, seated on the throne, with the usual solemnity, Sir Francis Molineux, Gentleman usher of the black rod was sent with a Message from his Majesty to the house of commons, commanding their attention in the house of peers. The commons being come thither accordingly, his Majesty was pleased to give his Royal Assent to "An Act to repeal an Act . . . entitled an Act for granting and applying certain Stamp Duties, and other Duties in the British Colonies and Plantations in America, towards further defraying the Expenses of defending, protecting, and securing the same. . . .
 "When his Majesty went to the House he was accompanied by greater Numbers of People than ever was known on the like Occasion; many Copies of the Repeal were sent to Falmouth, to be forwarded to America; and all the Vessels in the River Thames bound to America had Orders to sail.
 "5 o'Clock, P. M. Since composing the Above an Express arrived from Philadelphia with a Confirmation of the Repeal, and that a printed Copy of it by the King's Printer lay in the Coffee-House for the Perusal of the Publick."—From an original preserved in the N. Y. Hist. Soc.

21 "The first "Flag Staff," later known as the "Liberty Pole," the scene of heated contention between citizens and soldiers, is noted on this date as being on the Common while the celebration of the repeal of the stamp act was being observed. It was probably erected on this or the preceding day. Montresor says there was "a large Board fixed" on the pole with the inscription "George 3rd, Pitt—and Liberty."—Montresor's Jour., 368. He refers to the same again under date of June 4.—Ibid., 321. The N. Y. Journal of March 26, 1767, refers to "the mast erected on the Common, inscribed to his Majesty, M<sup>r</sup> Pitt, & Liberty, on occasion of the Repeal" (see Mar. 18), neglecting to state, however, that the original pole had since been cut down twice (see Aug. 10 and Sept. 23, 1766) and replaced. Contemporary references to this flag staff as a "pine post" or "mast" (see Aug. 11 and Sept. 23) suggest that some old vessel may have been dismantled for this festive purpose. The error of Henry B. Dawson (Man. Com. Coun., 1855, p. 444) and other secondary authorities (also repeated recently in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Quarterly Bulletin, Jan., 1920, p. 109) in ascribing this first flag staff to June 4 may possibly be traced to a misstatement in the Post-Boy of Aug. 14, where its erection is connected with the "public Rejoicing on his Majesty's Birth Day" (June 4), instead of with the earlier rejoicing on May 21.

The ardour of the "Sons of Liberty" on this day was further evidenced in handbills reading:
 "This Day
 "On the glorious Occasion, of a total Repeal of the Stamp-Act, there will be a general Meeting, and Rejoicing at the House of Mr. R. Howard. The Lovers of their Country, loyal Subjects to his Majesty George the Third King of Great-Britain, and real Sons of Liberty, of all Denominations, are hereby cordially invited to partake of the essential & long look'd for Celebration. The City will be illuminated, and every decent Measure will be observed, in demonstrating a sensible Acknowledgement of Gratitude to our illustrious Sovereign, and never to be forgotten Friends at Home and Abroad, particularly the Guardian of America.—Pitt." Prior to the dinner the rector of the Reformed Dutch Church (Mr. Laird) gave a "congratulatory Discourse on the joyful Occasion" and "a Royal Salute of Twenty-one Cannon was fired."
 After dinner "Toasts were cheerfully drank" (see June 3), and the evening concluded with "Bonfires and grand Illuminations, and notwithstanding the transports of our Joy, and the vast Concourse of People which were assembled, the whole transactions of the Day was conducted and finished, with the greatest Loyalty, Harmony, and good Order."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 26, 1766. Per contra, Montresor says: "Night ended in Drunkenness, throwing of Squibs, Crackers, firing of muskets and pistols, breaking some windows and forcing off the Knockers off the Doors."—Montresor's Jour., 367-68.
 A news item reads: "It is imagined by many of the Friends of America, that the Resolution of the Pennsylvanians, in laying aside their present Homespun Apparel, and cloathing themselves anew with English Manufactures, proceeds from their present partial Politicks, and is concluded upon to be done with a View to recommend themselves to the present Administration, as they have long since been, and are, attempting a Change of Government."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), May 26, 1766.
 The provincial council secures legal opinion respecting Gen. Gage's requisition of quarters for the royal troops coming from the outposts.—Cal. Con. Min., 471.
 John Holt begins publication of The New-York Journal, or General Advertiser. Issued sporadically at first, it became a weekly, and during its varied career, until finally discontinued on March 8, 1800, it bore various titles under successive owners. Its career was broken by the Revolution, when it was printed intermittently at Kingston and Poughkeepsie. For these many changes, see Early Newspapers, II: 424; Am. Antiquarian Soc. Proceedings (1917), XXVII (N.S.): 445; N. Y. Pub. Library Bull., Sept., 1920.
 A meeting of St. Andrew's Society is announced, to be held "at the House of Peter Taylor, Vintner, near the Merchant's Coffee-House."—N. Y. Merc., May 12, 1766.
 The common council orders that a warrant for £154:9 issue to Theophilus Hardenbrook for the expense of a bonfire May 21, on the receipt of news of the repeal of the Stamp Act.—M. C. C., VII: 18. See May 20.
 The king's birthday and "Rejoicings for the Authenticated arrival of the Repeal of the Stamp Act" are "blended in one Festival." The men-of-war in the harbour and "some guns placed on Skids in the Fields" fire salutes. Two oxen are roasted whole there and an "Artillery park" is formed. "Beer and Grog for the Populace, and an Entertainment or Dinner provided at the City Arms for the General, Governor, officers military, naval and civil, at the Expence of the Inhabitants and cannon fired at each Toast, accompanied with Huzzas. The Town entirely illuminated."—Montresor's Jour., 371. Cf. N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 2, 1766. The Walton house "was deemed the nonparcell of the city in 1762 [error for 1766] when seen . . . greatly illuminated in celebration of the Stamp Act repealed."—Watson's Annals, 350.
 The Gazette reports that the repeal of the Stamp Act "has produced a universal Jubilee throughout the continent of America; every Province, Town & Parish emulating each other in testifying their joy on this grand event; not from any ostentatious or triumphal principle that they have gained an ascendancy over the British Parliament, but in gratitude to that august legislature, for condescending to re-consider the operation of that most destructive Act, from a consciousness that it had a tendency to alienate the affections of many loyal subjects, & eventually destroy the usefulness of these colonies to the British empire."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 9, 1766.

- 1766 The mayor informs the common council "that William Davis
June of this City Mariner hath lately Delivered to him to be Presented 10 to this Board the picture of the Right Honourable William Pitt Sat in an Elegant and Genteel frame, and this Board in order to Demonstrate the Great value of the eastern they have for the person of so great a Patriot & friend to America as the said William Pitt, herby in return for the Compliment of the said William Davis, order that the Freedom of this Corporation be prepared & presented to him, & that the Clerk prepare one accordingly & deliver the same to Mr Mayor who is desired to present it to the said William Davis with the thanks of this Board."—M. C. C., VII: 20.
- It is ordered that the mayor issue his warrant to the treasurer
"to pay to John Mare Junr the sum of £24 for the Painting of his present Majesty [George III] which he presented to this Corporation."—Ibid., VII: 20.
- "Goldsbrow Banyar, by the governour's command, orders the corporation to have the "barracks on the common" cleaned and prepared "for the reception of the troops."—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 76.
- 12 Gov. Moore, in an address to the council and the assembly, says: "The General satisfaction which has been diffused throughout the Colonies, on the . . . Repeal of the Stamp Act; and the Impressions made on the minds of the People, on receiving such distinguishing marks of his Majesty's favor and Protection, have induced me to give you the earliest Opportunity of making those acknowledgments of Duty and Submission, which on such an Occasion must arise in the Breasts of every Individual . . .
Let it be your concern to undeceive the Deluded, and by the powerful Examples of your own Conduct, bring back to a Sense of their Duty, those who have been misled." In addition he recommends to the attention of the general assembly "the Case of those unfortunate Persons, who from the Licentiousness of the Populace, have suffer'd for their defence to the Acts of the British Legislature
. . . it will be no ungrateful Task for this Province to take the lead . . . and by making a full and ample compensation to the sufferers for their Goods and Effects destroyed, shew to the neighbouring Provinces . . . the sense which is here entertained of the benefits lately received."—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 158-158.
- "We have the Pleasure to assure the Public, that Mr. Nicholas Ray, of London, has given One Hundred Pounds to the Society for Encouragement of Arts, Agriculture, &c. of this City and Province [see Dec. 3, 1764]. Such Benefactions promise Stability to our Infant Undertaking."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 12, 1766.
- 14 The legislative council prepares an address in answer to Gov.
Moore's communication of the repeal of the Stamp Act (see June 12).
After thanking him for the receipt of the news, the council adds: "To undeceive the deluded, and to bring back to a sense of their Duty, the Misguided and Prejudiced, have been the fix'd objects of our Attention . . . And you may be assured, Sir, that nothing shall be wanting on our Part, to inculcate in the minds of the People, a thorough sense of the Obedience they owe, the Dependence they stand in, and the Benefits they receive from their most gracious Sovereign, and their Guardians, the British Parliament." The address was delivered to Gov. Moore on June 16, at which time he answered "I return you my thanks for this Address, as the Sentiments you express therein must so manifestly tend to the Establishment of the Happiness and Prosperity of your Country."—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 1589.
- 19 The "46th Regiment of Foot" arrives from Albany, and "are now quartered in our Barracks."—N. Y. Merc., June 23, 1766.
- "Merchants refusing to take out [let pass] [clearance papers] for vessels outward bound the governour proposes to apply to the men-of-war in the harbor to stop all vessels going to sea without the papers; council needs time to give advice."—Cal. Coun. Min., 471. The opinion of the council concerning the taking out of these clearance papers was indicated in a letter which Gov. Moore wrote to the lords of Trade on Jan. 14, 1767. He said: "I did apprehend that upon the repeal of the Stamp Act, all-kind of business would have returned into its former channel, but in this I have been disappointed, for, as I refused on my entering into the Governr, to issue any papers from my Office which were not stamp'd agreeable to the Act of Parliament, I was oblig'd amongst other things to refuse the granting of Let passes to the Ships clearing out from this Port; they ventured to sail without them and from the indulgence then met with in not being seized, they have since the Repeal of the Stamp Act, constantly gone to sea without Let passes. I
- laid this matter before the Council, and on examination we found that no law had been passed in this Prov<sup>ce</sup> to compel Ships to take out Let passers [sic], as had been done in other Provinces, but that the Custom was founded on a Proclamation of a very old date of the then Gov<sup>r</sup> and issued by advice of the Council before the third branch of the Legislature was established here, which then carried with it the authority of a Law. I apprehended that at this time, it ought to have had the same weight, as it never has been contradicted by any Law since made, but the opinions of the Gentlemen of the Law are so far from being unanimous on this occasion, that I have not been sufficiently encouraged to try the determination of a Court of Judicature by prosecuting the Offenders. I afterwards resolv'd to bring it before the Assembly and to endeavour to get a Law pass'd for that purpose, but upon private enquiry in what manner a Message from me on this head was likely to be received, I found that it would not be attended with the success I desired."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 891.
- The assembly sends a message to the council, asking the latter to join in an address of thanks to the king (see June 12) for the repeal of the Stamp Act.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 76a.
- The assembly has ordered a bill to be brought in "for providing Barracks, Fire Wood, Candles, hedding and utensils for the Kitchen as demanded, but the Articles of Salt, Vinegar, and Cyder or Beer are not to be included in the Bill," because "they are not provided in Europe for his M<sup>ty</sup>'s Troops which are in Barracks."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 831. See July 3.
- The provincial council orders that a proclamation be issued offering a reward for the arrest of rioters. On July 2, it ordered that this be sent to neighbouring governments.—Cal. Coun. Min., 471.
- Following a notice in the Post-Boy of June 19, many citizens meet at the Coffee-House to consider the idea of erecting a statue to William Pitt "in Testimony of the grateful Sense they entertain of his Services to the American Colonies." They instruct their representatives to urge the assembly "to make Provision for an elegant Statue of Brass."—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 19 and 26, 1766.
See also Montresor's Jour., 374.
- Montresor writes in his Journal: "Marched out of town and encamped at Turtle Bay near the Powder Magazine the Detachment of Royal Artillery consisting of 200 men."—Montresor's Jour., 375. See July 4.
- The lighthouse at Sandy Hook is struck by lightning. Twenty "Panels of the Glass Lanthorn" are broken and the "Chimney and Peach [oven] belonging to the Kitchen" knocked down. The people in the house receive slight injuries.—N. Y. Merc., June 30, 1766.
- Certain Frenchmen, on this Sunday, take possession of the French church by force, before the time for service, opposing the officers of the church, and refusing the minister, Rev. J. P. Tetard, admittance to every door. A petition by Tetard to Gov. Moore on Oct. 17, 1767 (p. 20), states that they have "kept possession of the same to the inexpressible Detriment of this Pious Institution, and to the great Scandal of Civil Society as well as Religion."—Doc. Hist., N. Y. (410 ed.), III: 315.
- The general assembly has agreed to these resolutions: "That an Equestrian Statue of his present Majesty, be erected in the City of New York, to perpetuate to the latest Posterity, the deep Sense this Colony has of the eminent and singular Blessings received from him during his most auspicious Reign. That for the many eminent and essential Services done the Northern Colonies by the Right Honourable William Pitt, Esq., but in particular in promoting the Repeal of the Stamp-Act, and to perpetuate to the latest Posterity the grateful Sense this Colony entertains on that Account; Provision might be made for erecting an elegant Statue of him in Brass. They have also ordered, that a Piece of Plate, value £1000 Sterling, be presented to John Sargent, Esq; of the City of London, with the Thanks of the House, for his having cheerfully undertaken, at their request, and to their great Satisfaction, faithfully discharged the Trust of special Agent, and liberally declined any Allowance for his Trouble."—N. Y. Merc., June 30, 1766. See Feb. 6, 1768.
- The common council pays £100 "towards carrying on a building now propos'd in addition to the poor house" (almshouse).—July 2
M. C. C., VII: 21. Further payments were made as follows: Sept.
10, £150 (Ibid., VII: 29); Oct. 22, £100 (p. 43); Nov. 27, £125
(p. 49); and Aug. 13, 1767, £25 "towards Compleating" it (p. 76).

1766 —making a total expense of £500 for this improvement, the par-
 J1.2 ticulars of which do not appear in the Minutes. See April 7, 1769.

A committee of the common council is appointed "to regulate the Oswego street."—M. C. C., VII: 22. On maps of the city prior to 1797 (Pls. 26, 27, 27A, 30, 34, 41, 42, Vol. 1), this street invariably is designated as Crown St. We know from the N. Y. Gazette (Weyman) of Nov. 5, 1759, that it was "commonly called Oswego St." It is to be remembered that the "Oswego Market" stood where Crown St. crossed Broadway (see April 13, 1738).

3 The legislature passes an "Act to make it a Felony without Benefit of Clergy to counterfeit the Bills of Credit of any of his Majesty's Colonies, which pass in Payment in the Colony of New York."—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 906.

On the same day, is passed an "Act to Furnish the Barracks in the Cities of New York and Albany with Firewood and Candles and the other Necessaries therein mentioned for his Majesty's Forces."—Ibid., IV: 901. See June 20. Cf. Montresor's statement of June 23, 1766, that, in reference to their affairs, the assembly addressed the king "but not the Parliament, which they do not acknowledge, regarding their Grievances concerning the late Billenting Act."—Montresor's Jour., 374.

"Philosophical Lectures" (presumably lectures on natural philosophy) are scheduled to begin on this day in the library of King's College.—N. Y. Post-Boy, June 26, 1766.

4 Montresor writes in his Journal: "Some Experiments of artillery practised from the Camp of Royal Artillery at Turtle Bay" (see June 24).—Montresor's Jour., 377.

10 Smith writes that, during the last session of the assembly, "The Vote for a Statute to Mr Pitt was . . . carried on the Motion of Cruger the Mayor, who was afraid of his Constituents, and urged by Instructions from them—The other Members were ag<sup>t</sup> it but durst not speak for Fear of the People—Sargent had in a Letter to me misdressed from that Measure lest it should hurt Pitt . . . if he acted for us only to gain popular Confidence which gave Jealousy to the Royal Breast. . . . After the Vote they were chagrined that they were forced into it. . . . That they might not appear to be influenced they now gave out that they intended to do that & much more and then voted the next Day a Statute for the King and yet this is certain, that if they had not voted a Statute for Pitt, the King would have had none, for in Truth they were disposed to give None, & deliberated much upon taking back the Vote for Pitt."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.

"A plan is presented to the consistency of the Dutch Church for altering the "Old Church" (on Garden St.), and is approved (see Feb. 2). A carpenter and a mason were consulted as to "whether the stairs to the Gallery could not conveniently rise within the Tower." It was decided that this could be done, and also that service could go on "without hindering the inside work." The first stone of the tower was laid by Domine Ritema, the second by Domine De Ronde, and others in succession by all the Consistory.—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4065. An alteration in this plan was made on Aug. 20 (q.v.).

11 Mayor Cruger is paid £22:2:2 to reimburse him "for making a Bonfire in Commemoration of his Majestys Birthday" (see June 4).—M. C. C., VII: 25. This is the last recorded expenditure for a bonfire for an English sovereign.

16 Montresor writes: "No more meetings of the Sons of Liberty since the arrival of the Troops, no more caballing and Committees at every corner of the Street, nor even at present the name of a Son of Liberty Mentioned."—Montresor's Jour., 378.

17 "A few Days ago His Majesty's 28th Regiment arrived here from Albany."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 17, 1766; N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 845-46. See Aug. 13.

21 "A motion we are told is on the Point of being made for a complete Set of 10 Bells to adorn Trinity Church Steeple, partly to be carried in Execution by Way of Subscription, and any Deficiency will no Doubt be made good by the church."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), July 21, 1766.

"At a meeting of Trinity vestry, a letter from Pres. Cooper is read, requesting that "a Sufficient Number of Pews in St Pauls Chappell (see May 14, 1764) might be appropriated for such of the Tutors and Students of the College as Attend the Service of the Church of England." The committee for carrying on the building is thereupon ordered to "allot Such Pews in the Gallery as they shall think necessary for that Purpose."—Trin. Min. (MS.), See Oct. 23 and 30.

Although a permit was granted to Nicholas Bayard on Sept. 12, 1750 (q.v.), to build a slaughter-house near the Fresh Water, and a law was published on Feb. 6, 1752 (q.v.), it was not until 1766 (July 24) that the full text of this law, newly stated or revised, was entered in the Minutes of the common council (M. C. C., VII: 25-26), and, on July 28, published in Weyman's Gazette. This law was altered June 13, 1771 (q.v.).

"The Common Council being Informed of an Encroachment made by Robert Murray on the Slip fronting the Ground he lately Purchased of Cornelius P Low, & noticing that this encroachment is about seven feet, it is ordered that notice be given to remove it.—M. C. C., VII: 25. On Aug. 7, various inhabitants, learning of the board's action in directing Mr. Murray "to remove such & so great a part of the wharf or pier which he hath lately sunk upon the ground or soil belonging to this Corporation, to the westward of the range prescribed & limited by this Corporation in a grant to Cornelius P Low," etc., express the opinion that "the said encroachment would be more convenient to the publick than if the same had not been made," and they petition the board to permit Mr. Murray "to go on in building the said pier or wharf, on the same range it was when sunk," etc. It is ordered that the wharf remain "where it now is and that a beville line be run from the south west corner of the present wharf or pier so far into the said East River as the extent of his present grant or right gives him, so that the same there terminates to a front on the said river of 25 feet only, & that the said Robt Murray in building and erecting the said pier & docking out in front of his water lot do leave a vacancy of 30 feet as well through his own lot as that of the pier, & that the same vacancy be made between the present wharf & pier, & of that to be built by the said Robt Murray, the same to be left open for the tides way, for and during so long time as this Board shall judge necessary and convenient; & that the said vacancy fronting the pier shall be covered with a strong bridge to be made by the said Robt Murray for the use of carriages &c."—Ibid., VII: 27-28. See Pls. 40 and 42, Vol. I.

The king having referred the petition of the officials of the Presbyterian Church (see March 18) to the lords of trade, the latter send Gov. Moore a copy of it and desire him, after considering it in council, to report "the present State and Condition of this Protestant Establishment, and also all the Proceedings upon the Petition alleged to have been presented in the administrations of Mr Delancy, and the Reasons why such Petition did not proceed at that Time."—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 303; N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 846-47. See Feb. 17, 1767.

The lords of trade direct the governors in America to prepare and send to them at once "a particular and exact Account of the several Manufactures which have been set up and carried on within the Colony" under their government since the year 1734, and "of the Public Encouragement which have been given thereto." They are to make also an annual report on the same subject.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 847. Gov. Moore complied with this on Jan. 12, 1767. He described "a small Manufactory of Linen in this City under the Conduct of one Wells, and supported chiefly by the subscriptions of a set of men who call themselves the Society of Arts and Agriculture" (see Dec. 3, and Dec. 10, 1764); also "a general Manufactory of Woolen," one product of which was "Linsey Woolsey;" "a Manufactory of Hats;" and a bankrupt "Glass-house." There is, he adds, also a "little Foundry lately set up near this Town for making small Iron Potts," and "valuable manufactures of Iron and Pot Ash" have been set up by a Mr. Hansenclaver "in different parts of this Country."—Ibid., VII: 888-89. On May 7, 1768, Moore wrote of "great quantities of leather being tanned in this Country" (location not stated); and of "the paper-mill begun to be erected within these few days, at a small distance from the town."—Ibid., VIII: 66.

The consistency of the Dutch Church appropriates £100 from its treasury "for the building of the Old Church" (on Garden St.).—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4067. A further appropriation of £500 was made on Oct. 21 (q.v.).

Jacob Dyckman makes the following appeal to the public: "Whereas the Builder of . . . King's-Bridge, from near the Time of its Erection to about 8 Years ago, had exacted a Toll for every Passage of any Person over the said Bridge . . . And whereas this was justly considered as a grievous Imposition upon the Inhabitants in and near the Island of New-York, and upon the Public . . . I was . . . encouraged to undertake the Build-

July 24

29

Aug. 1

5

6

- 1766 ing of a Free-Bridge near the same Place with the Promises of . . . And Aug. 6 my obtaining a Reimbursement of my Expences. . . . And about 8 Years ago, I did in Company with my Brother-in-Law, Vermilye, build the said Free-Bridge, which is now, and ever has been kept in good Order, and was lately repaired at our Expence, which has cost us a clear Charge of £400 each. Wherefore . . .
I take this Method, humbly and earnestly to request all those Gentlemen who encouraged my building the said Bridge . . . to take our Case into Consideration, and grant us that Relief and Assistance we have Reason to expect from their Promises. . . .
by warmly recommending us to the General Assembly, and soliciting in our Favour for public or private Assistance."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 21, 1766. Dyckman and his associates had made earlier requests for reimbursement (see March 21, 1760). For a probable result of this appeal, see March 5, 1767.
- 9 Shelburne writes to Gov. Moore: "I have His Majestys Commands to acquaint you of the satisfaction he feels in the happiness of His subjects arising from the tender care and consideration of Parliament but I am ordered to signify to you at the same time that as it is the indispensable duty of his subjects in America to obey the acts of the Legislature of Great Britain, The King both expects & requires a dutiful and cheerful obedience to the same, and it can not be doubted that His Matys Province of New York after the Lenity of Great Britain so recently extended to America will not fail duly to carry into execution the Act of Parliament past last Session for quartering His Majestys Troops in the full extent and meaning of the Act without referring to the usage of other parts of His Majestys Dominions where the Legislature has thought fit to prescribe different Regulations, and which can not be altered any more than in No<sup>a</sup> America except upon a respectful and well grounded Representation of the Hardship or inconvenience . . ."
—N. Y. Col. Docs., 848. See Nov. 17.
- 10 The flagstaff on the Common (see May 21) is cut down "by some of the Soldiers, belonging to the 28th Regiment, quartered in the Barracks." As it appeared to have been done "by Way of Insult to the Town, it gave great Uneasiness, and next Day occasioned two Frays between the Town People and the Soldiers."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 14, 1766. See Aug. 11.
- 11 The first blood of the Revolution is shed, due to the friction between the Sons of Liberty and the English regiment of soldiers encamped in the barracks. Describing the incident, Montresor says: "A considerable mob assembled on the Common, consisting of 2 or 3000 chiefly Sons of Liberty, headed by Sears in order to come to an Explanation with the Officers and Soldiers for Cutting down a pine post where they daily exercised, called by them the Tree of Liberty. These Sons of Liberty used the most scurrilous and abusive language against the officers and soldiers present who never seemed to resent it, till a volley of Brick Bats ensued and wounded some, upon which they defended themselves with their Bayonets until an answer could arrive from the General. . . .
The Governor Sir H Moore never Interfered. . . ."—Montresor's Jour., 382. In this last statement, Montresor shows his usual contempt for what he deems the apathy of the government.
The Post-Boy views the fight from the opposite standpoint, and states that "two or three were wounded, and several hurt, by the Soldiers," and that the soldiers were "entirely the Aggressors."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 14, 1766. On Aug. 12, in a deposition made before the common council, Theophilus Hardenbrook put the blame upon the soldiers and described the conduct of a drummer who was particularly offensive.—Ibid., Aug. 24, 1766.
- 12 Montresor states "The Sons of Liberty erected another high post in lieu of the other [see May 21] with 'George, Pitt and Liberty' and hoisted a large ensign thereon."—Montresor's Jour., 382-83. This was the second "Liberty Pole" erected on the Common.
- 13 Montresor writes that the commander-in-chief reviewed on this day the 28th regiment (see July 17). "A party of the Artillery formed the Square for the Service with fixed Bayonets, notwithstanding the mob were for pushing through the Line, saying that the Ground [the common] was theirs."—Montresor's Jour., 383.
- 14 Montresor writes in his Journal: "Proposals handed about for the Inholders & Inhabitants not to have any Intercourse with the military or even to admit them to their houses."—Montresor's Jour., 383. See Aug. 16.
- 16 Montresor records: "Officers and men insulted when in the Fields at Exercise."—Montresor's Jour., 383. See Aug. 14.
- Montresor says the "Sons of Liberty propose that the Market people should not sell any provisions to any officers or Soldiers.
The Mayor insulted in his own Court by the Sons of Liberty for partiality." The next day he adds that they intend to petition the commander-in-chief that "the soldiers shall not be admitted to carry their side arms when off duty."—Montresor's Jour., 383-84.
- 20 Montresor records: "This morning at 5 o'clock the Royal Artillery were reviewed together with their Exercise of Great Guns on a plain about a mile beyond Turtle Bay."—Montresor's Jour., 384.
- " Certain inhabitants of Harlem, in a petition to the common council, state "That the Ground along Harlem River between the North Corner of the Coach House belonging to the Estate of Lewis Morris Esq deceased, to a certain small creek running into a Peice of Meadow Ground belonging to John Bogert Junf Esq has always been Left by the said Town as common Ground for a Landing Place for all Persons crossing the said River between the two Stations aforesaid, and that there is no other proper Place in the said Town for a Landing." They ask to be heard in opposition to a grant of a water lot into the Harlem River adjoining this ground, as it will deprive the public of the benefit of the common landing.—
From the original petition (MS.), in file No. 4, in city clerk's record-room. See Sept. 10.
- " The consistory of the Dutch Church resolves "That the wall of the Old Church [on Garden St.] along the street, which is too weak to stand and must be taken down, should be extended eight feet farther toward the street; and the opportunity thus given should be used to put the stairs leading to the Gallery on the outside of the Tower, and not within."—Eccles. Rec., VI: 468.
- " A contributor to the Post-Boy writes that, on this day, "Two old Maids, to wit Anneke and Hester Van Deursen . . . privately entered the New Dutch Church . . . both with long Cloaks on, under which they concealed a Hatchet." They were hacking, cutting and slashing one pillar of the pew set apart for the accommodation of the corporation when they were discovered by Isaac van Hook. Upon being asked by him what they were about "those Vixens replied, if the Rascals or Scoundrels (meaning the Ministers, Elders and Deacons) had done this, they would have saved us the Trouble." Hester then began to attack the other pillar and "perhaps would have cut it down, had she not been prevented by the said Van Hook."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 24, 1766.
- " In the next issue of the paper, the editor states that by a paper
"subscribed with the names of the two persons mentioned in our last, it appears we have inadvertently mentioned a matter that leads to a long train of dispute, very unfit to be decided in a newspaper. . . . But in order to do what we apprehend impartial justice requires. . . . we shall just mention the general purport of the paper signed as aforesaid—which sets forth, That part of the account publish'd is not true—that the said two persons have been unjustly treated, and that after duly considering the circumstances of the case, as they relate to—it they are intirely justifiable for all they have done.—As we have . . . acted impartially on both sides, we beg to be excused from publishing anything more upon the subject."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 28, 1766.
- 21 The Post-Boy reports that, "respecting the late Disturbances, between some of the Citizens and a Party of Soldiers" (see Aug. 11), the corporal and drum major of the regiment, who appeared to be the "chief Authors of the Disturbances, were bound over to the Quarter Session."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 21, 1766. The court records do not indicate that they were ever brought before the court.
- 23 In a letter to the Duke of Richmond, Gov. Moore says that,
"since the arrival of the 28 and 46th Regiments in this Town (where their presence was much wanted), no means has been left untired by the Populace to make their situation uneasy to them and to excite them to commit some Action, for which public censure might be drawn of [on] them. . . . The great objection here is that of having any Troops at all for while they continue in this Town, those licencious Assemblies of the People [who call themselves the Sons of Liberty and were frequently Committe<sup>s</sup> the Greatest irregularities] must be suppress'd and the hands of the Magistrates so far strengthened that the Laws of the Country must again take Place; nor is it to be wondered that a Mob, which once had so much sway in a Town so as to strike terror into the greatest part of the inhabitants should with regret see a period put to the power they had usurped and abused, and order and regular-

To the Sons of Liberty in this City.

GENTLEMEN,

IT'S well known, that it has been the Custom of all Nations to erect Monuments to perpetuate the Remembrance of grand Events. Experience has proved, that they have had a good Effect on the Posterity of those who raised them, especially such as were made sacred to Liberty. Influenced by these Considerations, a Number of the Friends to Liberty in this City, erected a Pole in the Fields, on Ground belonging to the Corporation, as a temporary Memorial of the unanimous Opposition to the detestable Stamp-Act; which having been destroyed by some dissatisfied Persons, a Number of the Inhabitants determined to erect another, made several Applications to the Mayor, as the principal Member of the Corporation, for Leave to erect the new Pole in the Place where the old One stood. The Committee that waited on him the last Time, disposed to remove every Objection, apprehensive that some of the Corporation might be opposed to the Erection of the Pole, from a Supposition that those Citizens who were for its being raised, were actuated solely by a Party Spirit, offered when the Pole was finished to make it a Present to the Corporation, provided they would order it to be erected either where the other stood or near Mr. Van De Bergh's, where the two Roads meet. But even this, astonishing as it may seem to Englishmen, was rejected by the Majority of the Corporation, and the other Requisitions denied. We question whether this Conduct can be paralleled by an Act of any Corporation in the British Dominions, chosen by the Suffrages of a free People.

And now, Gentlemen, seeing we are debarred the Privilege of public Ground to erect the Pole on, we have purchased a Place for it near where the other stood, which is full as public as any of the Corporation Ground. Your Attendance and Countenance are desired at Nine o'Clock on Tuesday Morning the 6th Instant, at Mr. Crommelin's Wharf, in order to carry it up to be raised.

New-York, February 3, 1770.

By Order of the Committee

A. BROADSIDE ISSUED BY THE SONS OF LIBERTY, REGARDING THE PURCHASE OF LAND FOR THE ERECTION OF THE FIFTH LIBERTY POLE, FEB. 3, 1770. SEE P. 805.

B. "A PLAN OF THE GROUND CONTIGUOUS TO THE POOR HOUSE, SURVEYED THE 22<sup>d</sup> JUNE 1774. BY GERARD BANCKER, C. S.," AND SHOWING THE POSITION OF THE FIFTH LIBERTY POLE. SEE PP. 805, 858.

1766 ity again introduced which had been so long suspended.—N. Y. Sept.
 Ag. 23 Cal. Doct., VII: 867-68. See Addenda, Aug. 26.

30 Tunis Dolson, "the first male person born in this city after it was ceded to the English by the Dutch," dies at Gosben "in the road year of his age."—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 15, 1766.

Sept. 1 Montresor receives orders from Gen. Gage "to make a survey and report of the Islands in the Harbour together with Red Hook in order to shew the Position they bear to each other and what advantages might be made with regard to fortifying them." He finished the survey on Sept. 19.—Montresor's Jour., 386-87. See Pl. 40, Vol. I, and description, I: 339-40.

4 A whale 49 feet long, killed near Coney Island on Sept. 1, is bought by Samuel Waldron for £20, and hauled to the ferry at Long Island, opposite New York.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 4, 1766. Other whales were captured near this city in 1773.—See New Hamp. Gaz., Nov. 5, 1773.

10 The common council considers the petition of certain inhabitants of Harlem of Aug. 20 (q.v.) and orders a hearing on Sept. 22 (q.v.). At the same meeting, a committee appointed on July 2 (though not of record) to view the Bogert farm "in the Township of Harlem in the Out ward of this City binding upon Harlem in the East River opposite Mr Lewis Morris's land & St George Talbot's Island," gives the opinion that Bogert "may have the soil under the water from high to Low water mark beginning 30 links to the North east of his dwelling house, there and so extending south or south west to the end of his land according to a plan thereof made by Mr Francis Marschallk [see Jan. 9, 1750] one of our City surveyors, always reserving a right to this Corporation to build a wharf of the breadth of 20 feet for a publick street at the extent of low water mark if it shall ever be wanted by this Corporation;" and that "he may have the soil from high to low water mark as far to the north of his house as his Land extends there binding upon the said River."—M. C. C., VII: 29.

22 The objections of Bussing and other inhabitants of Harlem to the application of John Bogert, Jr., for a water lot in Harlem River (see Sept. 10) are heard by the common council. Bogert is given until Oct. 10 to present his answer.—M. C. C., VII: 31. Nothing further on this subject appears in the Minutes; but, in 1771, it is recorded that a public road runs through Bogert's land east to the Harlem River. A petition of Bogert to change the course of this road was denied by the board.—M. C. C., 253, 261, 262, 263, 265-66.

" Thirty inhabitants of the city, in a petition to the common council, state "that the proprietors of the Houses & Lots of Ground fronting Rotten Row" (Hunter's Key—see Vol. III, p. 990) have presented a petition for a grant of the water lots fronting their houses; but the present petitioners ask that, if the water lots are so granted, a part may be reserved by the city "for a Publick Edifice, as to this Worshipfull Board shall seem meet." They explain "That as Rotten Row is near the Center of the Town," they are of the opinion "that a publick Edifice Erected there will Contribute Greatly to the Ornament of the City as well as to the Convenience of its inhabitants." If such reservation is not made, "there will be no place left on the East River near the Center of the City," whereon to erect an exchange, market or other public building.—From original petition (MS.), in city clerk's record-room, endorsed "filed Sept. 25, 1766."

23 "The Mast or Flag Staff on the Common, which was lately cut down and occasion'd a good deal of Disturbance" (see Aug. 10 and 11), says the Post-Boy, is cut down again. "The authors of this Insult are not yet certainly known, but some particular Persons are suspected."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 25, 1766.

24 A third "Liberty Pole" is erected on the Common in place of the one that was cut down yesterday.—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 25, 1766. See May 21 and Aug. 12, for the first two poles.

25 Certain "traders in this City" petition the common council to build "a good, Strong and Substantial Dock wharf or pier of two hundred feet to be joied to the South end of the present Citys pier, rangiog with the South west Side thereof." Alderman Brinkerhoff proposes that in case the city advances £1,000 "for extending the said Citys pier two hundred feet farther into the said East River," he will advance £350 as five years' interest on the £1,000; and that as soon as the pier is finished he will pay, for dockage or wharfage at the additional pier, the sum of £100 annually for five years. The board agrees to the proposal, and a committee is appointed to employ workmen, and buy materials for building the pier at an expense not to exceed £1,000.—M. C. C., VII: 32-33.

Whitehead Hicks is appointed Mayor by Gov. Moore, who is at Albany. He was installed on Oct. 14, with the usual ceremony.—Cal. Coun. Min., 472; M. C. C., VII: 40. He was continued in office, some years without reappointment, until Feb. 14, 1776 (q.v.), when he resigned.—Ibid., VII: 85, 131, 184, 231, 318, 381-82, 448; VIII: 57, 110.

Payment of £21:13:6 is ordered by the common council for paving in front of the city hall.—M. C. C., VII: 39.

"Alexander Smith, From the Coffee-House: Has opened the Tavern lately kept by Mr. Howard, in the Fields, for the Reception and Entertainment of those Gentlemen, &c. who may please to favour him with their Company, on the certainty of being served with neat Wines, Punch, Beer, and all other the best of Liquors.—Coffee at any Hour of the Day, and, large and small Entertainments, provided in the most genteel Manner, on the shortest Notice . . ." He also advertises "Mead and Cakes as usual"—N. Y. Jour., Oct. 30, 1766 (incorrectly dated Oct. 23). A similar advertisement is contained in N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman) for Oct. 13, 1766. The tavern referred to is the old Mason's Arms, at Warren St. and Broadway. See March 19, 1759.

On this night between 10 and 12, says the Journal, "a Number of Soldiers with Bayonets, went to several Houses in the Fields, where they were very noisy and abusive, to the great Disturbance and Terror of the Inhabitants. This was occasion'd it is said, by ill Treatment, which some of the Soldiers had received the night before, at some of those infamous Houses, which to the great scandal of our wholesome Laws, are suffered to exist as so many Receipts for loose and disorderly People."—N. Y. Jour., Oct. 23, 1766.

The consistory of the Dutch Church resolves "to take up another £500 [see Aug. 5] to complete the Old Church" (on Garden St.).—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4074.

"Ordered that the Pews [see July 21] in St Pauls Chappell be let at Publick Sale on Monday next and that the Sale begin at Ten o'Clock in the Forenoon to Continue till the whole are lett."—Trin. Min. (MS.). The church was opened on Oct. 30 (q.v.). See also Oct. 29.

29 According to the petition of one George Johnston, of Amboy N. J., in 1778, asking the common council for financial relief, it appears that, on Oct. 29, 1766, he agreed to build an addition to the corporation pier at "Coentys Market," but was unable to complete it within the year allowed in the contract. A certificate or bond accompanying this petition states that the pier was to be built 200 feet beyond the end of the old pier into East River, 30 feet wide, at a cost of £1,200, which was to cover all charges including the cost of timber.—From the original MSS., in box No. 6, city clerk's record-room.

"His Excellency Sr Henry Moore having expressed a desire of Introducing a Band of Musick in St Pauls Chappell at the Dedication thereof [see Oct. 30] and this board being Willing to gratifie his Excellency in his request It is Ordered that the said Band of Musick be admitted accordingly to join in such part of the Service as is usual and Customary in like Cases but that no other Pieces of Musick be allowed but such only as are adapted to the Service of the Church on such Solemn Occasions."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

30 St. Paul's Chapel, "esteemed one of the most elegant Edifices on the Continent," is opened and dedicated with impressive ceremonies. At 10 o'clock the civil and ecclesiastical officials walk in procession from Fort George to the chapel. The services include a sermon by Dr. Auchtmuty and vocal and instrumental music (see Oct. 29).—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Nov. 3, 1766; N. Y. Jour., Nov. 6, 1766. The church was situated on Broadway between Fulton and Vesey Sts. It was designed by McBean, a pupil of Gibbs, the London architect who built St. Martin-in-the-Fields. The location of the church was exceptionally fine. "The grounds sloping down to the Hudson, and the western porch commanded a sweeping view of the harbor and Palisades. . . . The site, however, was considered too far out of town, and the vestry were criticised for its selection. Hanover Square was then the fashionable centre, and Robert Morris tells of walking "into the country" from Queen (Pearl) Street to see St. Paul's."—Wingate, St. Paul's Chapel. The Oldest Public Building & the only Colonial Church Edifice in New York City (1901), 6, 11; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 934; Hist. Mag., 2d ser., V: 70. See Sept. 28, 1767.

Capt. John Montresor embarks for England.—Montresor's Jour., 388.

John Holt, publisher of the N. Y. Journal or General Advertiser,

- 1766 charges Mr. Parker, printer and "Comptroller of the Post Office," Oct. with arbitrarily preventing the post from carrying his papers for 30 New Jersey, and substituting his own—a "stretch of arbitrary Power, that," he believes, "was never ventured in England—where even the Papers that treat the Ministry with the greatest Freedom, are allowed free Passage by the Post. . . ." Holt suggests, if Parker continues to stop his papers, that some other method of conveyance be adopted than the Post.—N. Y. Jour., Oct. 30, 1766 (incorrectly dated Oct. 23). Holt had published a paper for six years called the New-York Gazette or Weekly Post-Boy, but on Oct. 16, having learned that Parker, who originally published the Gazette or Weekly Post-Boy, was about to begin the publication of a paper with this name, he decided to change the name of his paper to the N. Y. Journal or General Advertiser.
- " A "Dancing Assembly" is advertised for this evening and forthrightly thereafter during the season, at Burns's long room.—
N. Y. Jour., Oct. 30 (incorrectly dated Oct. 23), 1766. This was at the City Tavern, situated at the present 115 Broadway.
- Nov. "The season of the year now approaches that requires warm 3 clothing, it is therefore hoped that the humane and considerate, will remember their own industrious poor; the clothing they have made for us is warm, and tho' not so fine, will last better, and reflect more honour on the wearer; but should we despise their labour, to what dependency shall we reduce those that depended on supporting their craving families with their honest industry, and our humanity, if they should see us deck'd out in foreign finery."—N. Y. Merca., Nov. 3, 1766.
- 7 The council declares that "no manufactures have been set up within this Colony . . . or received any public encouragement" since 1734. It also states that the "Manufacture of Wool or Woolen Cloth" is principally "confined to private Families, for their own particular Consumption."—Dec. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), I: 497. Cf. Aug. 1.
- 17 Gov. Moore lays before the assembly Shelburne's letter of Aug. 9 (q.v.). Moore adds: "I flatter myself that on a due Consideration of this Letter no Difficulties can possibly arise, or the least Objection be made to the Provision for the Troops as required by the Act of Parliament."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Nov. 24, 1766.
For the assembly's answer, see Dec. 15.
- " The Gazette, in printing the address of the assembly to Gov.
Moore, makes two "egregious blunders." In the twelfth line,
"never" is substituted for "ever," making the passage read:
"We are confident we shall never be ready to make such returns of Duty and Submission, as may be expected from the most loyal Subjects." The fourth line from the end reads: "your Excellency has done us more than strict Justice," but "no" should have been inserted before "more."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Nov. 17, 1766.
On Nov. 19, Weyman, the printer, upon being called before the assembly and asked "why he had in his . . . Paper, Number 397, reprinted the Address . . . in a Manner very injurious to the Honour and Dignity of this House," answered that he was "innocent of the Alteration made in the said Address, till a Number of his Papers had been distributed: That upon discovering the Mistake he immediately corrected the Press and endeavoured to get back all the erroneous Copies." After considering the facts of the case, the assembly finally discharged Weyman. The latter, in the next issue of his paper, apologized for the "egregious blunders" (traceable to a journeyman, he suspected), and printed the minutes of the assembly proceedings in regard to the affair.—
See A. 28 Ibid., Nov. 24, 1766.
- Dec. The consistory of the Dutch Church agrees with Mr. Breesteden 8 that he shall "finish the inside work of the Old Church [on Garden St.] to the satisfaction of the Consistory for the sum of £60."— Eccles. Rec., VI: 4976. The subject is not again found in the records of the church until April 29, 1771 (q.v.); there is no record to show what work was done in and after 1766, with the large See A. 12 appropriations made on Aug. 5 (q.v.) and Oct. 21 (q.v.).
- 15 The assembly sends this address to Gov. Moore: "We . . . have taken your Excellency's Message of the 17th of November last [q.v.], into our most serious Consideration; and beg Leave to assure your Excellency, that nothing would give us greater Pleasure than to find it in our Power to comply with every Requisition, tending in any Manner, to promote His Majesty's Service [see Aug.
9]. It is therefore with great Concern, that we find it impossible to comply with what is now demanded, consistent with our Obligations to our Constituents. . . .
- "We hope it will be considered, that we are chosen to make such a Provision for the Support of His Majesty's Government in this Colony . . . as is most suitable to the Circumstances of the People we represent; and that we should be guilty of a Breach of that most sacred Trust, if we should load them with Burthens they are incapable of supporting.
- "In the Provision we made last Session, for quartering Two Battalions and one Company of Artillery, we loaded ourselves with a Burthen much greater than any of the Neighbouring Governments lie under for that Service. . . .
- "We beg Leave, further to represent to your Excellency, that by the Act of Parliament, it appears to be the Intention of the Legislature, to provide for the quartering Soldiers, only on a March, but according to the Construction put on it here, it is required that all the Forces which shall at any Time enter this Colony, shall be quartered during the whole Year, in a very unusual and expensive Manner: That by the marching several Regiments into this Colony, this Expence would become ruinous and insupportable: And therefore, we cannot, consistent with our Duty to our Constituents, put it in the Power of any Person . . .
to lay such a Burthen on them . . . we humbly entreat your Excellency, to set our Conduct in the most favourable, that is, in its true Light, by representing that our Noncompliance on this Occasion, proceeds entirely from a just Sense of what our Duty requires."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Dec. 25, 1766. See Dec. 19.
- An announcement of this date appears in the Mercury stating 18 that, on June 20, 1765, a law was passed in New Jersey appointing commissions to run out straight public roads through that province between New York and Philadelphia, and empowering them to raise therefor a sum of money by a public lottery not exceeding £500. Soon after a lottery was set on foot, but from the troubled state of affairs at that time occasioned by the Stamp Act, the proceedings were delayed. "But as it is apprehended that the salutary purpose might now be effected, the managers therein appointed have thought fit for that end to revive the . . . scheme of a lottery, to consist of 2212 tickets, at 4 dollars each; 662 of which are to be fortunate."—N. Y. Merca., Jan. 26, 1767.
- Gov. Moore writes to the Earl of Shelburne: "The letter which 19 I had the Honor of receiving from your Lordship dated the 9th of August [q.v.], was laid before the House of Assembly the 17th of last month [q.v.], accompany'd by a Message and it is with no small mortification that I am now to give your Lordship an account so unsatisfactory of the Proceedings of the House on this occasion.
Yesterday the inclosed address [see Dec. 15] was presented to me in answer to my message by which your Lordship will see that I had but too much foundation for the opinion I ventured in my letter of the 20th of June, and could wish that the behaviour of those Gentlemen had been such, as would have obliged me to retract what I then advanced. Your Lordship will now ask what my reasons were for not dissolving the Assembly . . . and trying the chance of a new Election. To this I must beg leave to answer, that if I could have conceived His Majesty's Service would have been benefited by it, or that there was the most distant prospect of succeeding by a new Election, I should not have made the least hesitation in doing it, but as my Message had been for such a length of time under consideration I had frequent opportunities of making enquiries of what was intended to be done, and found that it never was a question whether they should comply or not, but that the whole of their deliberations related only to the form in which their refusal should appear. . . . The House was unanimous in this opinion and I am fully persuaded that they not only have given their own Sentiments but those of their constituents also, so that in case of a dissolution the same members would have been returned again, a Flame would have lighted up throughout the Country, and not a single advantage derived from it, when I found this to be the case, I endeavored by private conferences with some of the members to bring them to a sense of their duty. . . . How I have succeeded the inclosed address will shew."
- In another letter of the same date, to the lords of trade, he says:
"I have here enclosed the address which I received in answer to my message of the 17th of November, in which I included the letter from the Earl of Shelburne relative to the Quartering of His Majestys Troops here agreeable to the Act of Parliament. I should have been very happy to have sent home a satisfactory account of our Proceedings in relation to this Affair, but their sentiments were unanimous, and determined, so that all attempts made to influence

1766 their conduct on so interesting an occasion proved abortive."— Dec. 19 " N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 883-84. See April 30, 1767.

Because "the Emigration of Protestants from Europe hath conducted greatly to the Settlement of this Colony, and doubts have arisen tending to the discouragement of further Importations of poor Persons," the legislature passes "An Act for the Regulation of Servants." This declares "that every Contract in writing to bind any Infant or other Person to Service for a Term of Years . . . be firm and valid according to the Original and true meaning thereof" and that every servant who shall run away or be absent for more than 24 hours "shall be obliged to serve double the time of such absence after the Original Term specified in the Contract shall be expired."—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 924-25.

" The legislature orders the treasurer to pay:
 £1138:11:104 to Andrew Gautier "for work done and Materials found by himself and others for the Repairs to the House Garden fence &c. in Fort George."

£10:10 to Ann Devisme "for Eighteen pieces of Linnen delivered Mr. Cox for the use of the House in Fort George."
 £166:10 to Robert Andrews and Robert Boyd "for unspiking the Guns on the Battery."

£33:14:6 to Joseph Cox "for finding Paper Hangings and other Necessaries for the House in Fort George."

£60 to Mathew Ernest "for his House for the use of the General Assembly; and Firewood and sundry other Necessaries found them."

Also, an act is passed to recompense several people in the city for the "Losses they sustained" on Nov. 1, 1765 (q. v.). This provides that Major James receive £1,745:15:2½; that Andrew Gautier have £404:6:5, "in full Compensation for the damages done to the House of Samuel Francis"; and that £36 be paid to Jonathan Mallet.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 913-15.

1767

— Some time previous to this date, the whole length of Nassau St. came to be so named.—Pl. 41, Vol. I. Up to 1755, that part of the street north of Maiden Lane was designated Kip St., after Jacobus Kip. See Pls. 23-7, 24-a, 26, 27, 27-a, and 34, Vol. I. See also May 25, 1689; October 17, 1696; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1026, and Pl. 174.

— At some date prior to this year, "Mount Pitt," the residence of the Hon. Thomas Jones, a son-in-law of Chief-Justice James de Lancey, was erected on a site upon the north side of Grand St., on the line of Ridge St.—See the Ratter Map, Pl. 41, Vol. I. Judge Jones, a strong Tory, lost his property in 1755, when it was sold by the commissioners for forfeiture to Morgan Lewis.—Libor Deeds, XLIII: 36 (New York). In 1792, John R. Livingston bought it from Lewis (ibid., XLVII: 376). Cf. Pls. 64 and 70, Vol. I. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 951, and Pl. 175. As Pl. 70, Vol. I, shows Ridge St. cut through to Division St., one might conclude that the house was demolished about the year 1799, but this map of the city is notoriously erroneous, or rather anticipatory. The common council's order for the extension of Ridge St., from Broome to Division St., appears under June 6, 1825.—See M. C. C. (1784-1831), XIV: 522-63; 648-49. For further reference to the house and grounds, see 1807.

The high ground on which "Mount Pitt" was situated was known as Jones' Hill. It was the most prominent landmark on the eastern part of Manhattan Island.—Man. Com. Coun. (1856), 432.

— Among the notes of Pierre Eugène du Simitière, preserved in the Ridgway Branch of the Library Co. of Philadelphia, is a "Catalogue des Edifices Publics civils & Religieux de la ville de la nouvelle York en l'année 1767." He names the following churches: Trinity, "George Chapel," and "Paul Chapel," two Presbyterian, two Dutch, two Lutheran, German Calvinist (together with "a meeting house of Seceders in Little Queen Street"), French Calvinist, Anabaptist, Moravian, "a Tabernacle for one Webb" (Methodist—see 1766), and a Jews Synagogue. He gives the location of most of these with dates of erection. He lists five "Publick Markets," Centies, Old Slip, Fly, New, and Oswego. The fort, he says, is "called fort George in which there is

- "the governors house
- "barracks for Soldiers &c"
- "a battery round the fort underneath on the Water Side
- "a barrack in the battery near the entrance from the Side of White-hall

"the Secretary office under the fort Wall going down from the broad Way toward White hall" 1767

Other buildings included in his list are the city hall, jail, and the barracks behind the same, work house, college, "A Play house," the free school, and the exchange. There are four public squares, he says, Bowling Green, Hanover Sq., "St. George's Square the upper end of Queen Street," and "the commons or fields before the New Goal, Workhouse &c."—From vol. lettered "Papers relating to N. England, N. York etc formerly belonging to Du Simitière," now in Ridgway Branch of the Library Co. of Philadelphia.

Du Simitière was an artist, antiquary, and naturalist, from Geneva, and an extensive traveller. He arrived in New York in 1764 or 1765, and became a naturalized citizen on May 20, 1766.—Penn. Mag. (1889), XIII: 341; see also plate description, III: 863-64. It is apparent that his notes on New York City were made between 1767 and 1772. Some information he gives about the city streets at that time is worth quoting in extenso.

- "William Street is commonly called Cart & Horse Street from an old beer house in that Street with such Sign
- "Princess Street commonly call'd Carner Street
- "Duke Street commonly call'd Bayard Street
- "Crown Street—New Dutch church Street
- "Dyer Street—Bateaux Street
- "Bridge Street—Wynkoop Street
- "Corland Street—Lory Street
- "Ann Street commonly Scott Street
- "Beekmans Street—Chappell Street
- "Hunter's Key—Rotten Row
- "Rodman Slip in the charter is
- "Lyons Slip in the plan now Burling Slip
- "Kingstreet Vesey Street from a minister of that name living
- "that part of Smith Street from Kingstreet to Maiden lane is commonly know[n] by the name of Pot Baker hill."

"Vesey Street next to St Paul was formerly call'd Moor'd Kayl Straat from a hollow at the bottom of the Street near the North River where a murder once was committed.

"flattened Barrack a Street so call'd from Varleth's Bergh varleth was a man So call'd that lived upon that hill See Smith's hist. of New York p. 7.

"the white hall a Street So called now in N York took its Name from a large house so called built Soon after the English Government took place Some Suppose by Gov<sup>r</sup> Dongan [Footnote by Du Simitière:—"it was built by one [blank] he went of [lo]ff & never was heard of Some Say he turn'd Pirate on the coast of Guinea, upon which having lost he heir Gov<sup>r</sup> Dongan appropriated that estate to himself as Derelict Some persons in New York Since have made great inquiries to find an heir but in vain."] as the ground belong to Some of the Same family & name to this day, it Stood as appear by part of the Side walls that are Standing to this day, on the West Side of the Street near the water Side & fronting the east its front was about 45 foot the depth not easily ascertained as most of the walls are pull'd down but what remain is built of rough Stones about two feet thick to the height of ten feet above the ground the interval between the walls in front of the Street is filled with a couple of mean wooden buildings & behind was a large Garden that Reached from behind that house to the South-side of Pearl Street and all the way to the water Side where the battery now is it was called the Vineyard from the grapes growing in it. Some of the family of Gov<sup>r</sup> Dongan ownd that house & the people that live upon that ground pay a quit rent to them they ownd a great part of Staten Island, the first that came over was called Mylord Dongan for his large possession. Some Says he was a Son to the Governor others a younger brother his grand Son is now living."

Included among these papers, is a "Sketch [by Du Simitière] of the State House at New York," which is reproduced and described in A. Pl. 4-a, and plate description, III: 863-64. It is the only known representation of the city hall after the third story was added, in 1763.—Du Simitière Papers, op. cit. For another description of city, in 1767, see N. Y. City during the Am. Rev., 3-40.

During this year, an anonymous pamphlet entitled The Conduct of Cadwallader Colden, Esq; Lieutenant Governor of New-York, appears. The foreword states: "While an angry Faction in the Province of New-York confined their Calumnies of Lieutenant Governor Colden, to a common News-Paper, he did not think that they deserved his Notice. The Malice in those Papers, is so appar-

- ent, they can have no Influence on any Man disinterested in the Dispute. He satisfied himself with laying the Reasons of his Conduct before his Majesty's Ministers, who are the proper Judges of it. But that Faction having influenced the General Assembly to pass a publick Censure on Mr. Colden's Conduct, after he had been succeeded in the administration, by Sir Henry Moore, he thinks himself loudly Called upon, by every Motive which can influence an honest, innocent Man, to vindicate his Character. . . . The pamphlet is an attempt to justify Colden's conduct in regard to judges' commissions, appeals to the king, and the stamp duty.—From a copy of the original preserved in the N. Y. Pub. Library. The assembly made several vain attempts to ascertain the authorship of the pamphlet (see Dec. 30).
- The New York Methodists (see 1766) rent a rigging loft, later known as the historic "Old Rigging Loft," in a building on Horse and Cart St. (now William), between John and Fair (now Fulton) Sts. The Baptists had already held services there in 1753-4 (q.v.). The building, later numbered 120 William St., stood until 1854.—Hurst, Hist. of Meth., II: 13, 14; Seaman, Annals of N. Y. Meth. 1766-1890, 25; A Short Hist. Account of Early Soc. of Meth. in City of N. Y. (1824), 5; Cf. the statement in description of Pl. 43, I: 345, that No. 120 was not demolished until 1900, although the building was remodelled some time between 1846 and 1861. The loft was 60 ft. long and 18 ft. wide. Services were held there three times a week. Embury and Webb preaching alternately.—Buckley, Hist. of Meth. in U. S., I: 62. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 930. The Methodists soon saw the necessity of permanent accommodations. The church they built was dedicated on Oct. 30, 1768 (q.v.). Du Simitière refers with a touch of sarcasm to this church as "a Tabernacle for one Webb [see 1766] a half pay officer & Barrack master in N. Y. in Golden Hill."—Du Simitière MSS., in Ridgeway Branch of Library Co., Philadelphia.
- In this year, Crean Brush built, on the site of No. 343 Broadway (Liber Mortgages, II: 350), an inn and place of entertainment, later called the White Conduit House after a similar resort in London. See April 16, 1775; March 24, 1777; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 981.
1. "In the beginning of this year," the consistory of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church, acting upon a petition of the preceding year (see 1766), "Concluded to Build a Third Church, provided a Sufficient Subscription Could be raised to induce them to undertake the same."—Jour. of the proceedings of the Ref. Prot. Dutch Church, op. cit. See Jan. 15. Over £3,600 had been subscribed by April 27 (q.v.).
1. Among the services required of the grave-diggers of the Dutch Church in Garden St. was "to carry into the Church the foot-stoves, for the Ministers, Elders and Deacons."—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4079.
- " James Parker's name again appears on the Post-Boy as printer.—See Jan., 1743; and Early N. Y. Newspapers, II: 427.
- 8 "Bolton and Segill, Take this Method to acquaint the Public, that they propose to open on Monday next, a Tavern and Coffee-House, at the House of Mr. Samuel Francis, near the Exchange, lately kept by Mr. John Jones, and known by the Name of the Queen's-Head Tavern. Where Gentlemen may depend upon receiving the best of Usage. As Strangers, they are sensible they can have no Pretensions, in the Favour of the Public, but what results from their readiness upon all Occasions to oblige. . . ."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 8, 1767. See also N. Y. Merc., Sept. 7, 1767.
- 12 At a meeting of the Society for Promoting Arts, etc., a committee is appointed to meet on the 19th to consider all claims for premiums offered by the society. Another committee is chosen to meet on Jan. 26, and "receive the Claims on Agriculture. . . . the Premiums on Flax and Hemp, are not to be claimed until the first Monday of May." The society is greatly pleased "with the visible Improvement of the Linen Branch, as appeared from the goodness of the Pieces and Samples produced." One piece is ordered to be bought and sent "with a letter of thanks from the committee of correspondence, to Mr. Nicholas Ray, of London, "in gratitude Testimony of his kind and generous Donations, and . . . the useful Hints and Notices communicated to them in his Letters." Mr. Ray is to be asked "to procure and send here the Models of the Machinery, recommended by him for breaking and dressing Hemp and Flax."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 15, 1767.
- 15 The elders of the Dutch Church are appointed by the consistory as a committee to "ease" (lease) the "vacant lots of Mr. Harpending,"—which this church had inherited under his will, of 1724.—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4080. Two lots on William St. were leased on May 11.—Ibid., VI: 4089. Regarding the disposal of the remaining ones, see June 12.
- The "Gentlemen Officers of the Army" give "a grand Entertainment and Ball" to the "Ladies and Gentlemen of this City," at George Burns' "York Arms." At this reception, there is "the most numerous and brilliant Appearance of both Sexes that ever was known in this Place."—N. Y. Gam. (Weyman), Jan. 19-26, 1767.
- " "To be Let, or Sold, And entered upon the first Day of May next; The House and Lot belonging to Sarah Steel, known by the Name of the King's Arms; it has been a noted Tavern for many Years in this City. The House and Fixtures is every way Complete: Likewise furnished with all Sorts of Furniture suitable for that Business; if the House is not Sold, the Furniture &c. will be given for the Sale.—N. B. To be Sold Tent Wine, Fointack, Madeira, Claret, and Port Wine; Bristol Beer, London Porter, Jamaica Spirits, empty Bottles by the Gross or less Quantity."—N. Y. Gam. (Weyman), Jan. 12-19, 1767. Mrs. Steele had opened this tavern on May 1, 1763 (q.v.).
- Francis Moore, Frederick van Cortlandt, and others "proprietors of houses and lots of Ground fronting the docks Commonly Called the Great Dock and Mrs. Moore's Dock," petition the common council for grants of water lots, and a committee is appointed "to Confer with and receive Such proposals," etc.—M. C. C., VII: 53. Water lots were granted to Frederick van Cortlandt, and others on July 10, 1772 (M. C. C., VII: 366-67).
- The Society for Promoting Arts, etc. orders that the following premiums be paid: £14 for the finest pieces of linen of different lengths; £20 "for the best 100 Sides of Bend Leather"; £10 "for the first Steel Stocking Loom set up in 1766"; and £10 "for the best 100 Pair of Wove Stockings."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 29, 1767.
- 6 The minutes of Trinity vestry show that "Doctor Auchmuty acquainted the board that his Excellency St Henry Moore had made him an offer that if this Corporation would Petition him for a Tract of Land to Erect a Township he would do all in his Power that it should be granted Whereupon it is resolved that a Petition be Prepared Praying a Grant for a Tract of Land for that Purpose and that the Rector with Mr David Clarkson and Mr Kissam be a Committee . . ."—Trin. Min. (MS). The grant was eventually obtained (see March 20, 1770), but the land was soon after lost by transfer of the whole region in which it was situated to Vermont.—Dis. Hist. of Trinity Church, I: 319. For proposed extensive grants to King's College, also, in the "remote wilderness" of the province, see July 17, 1764; Feb. 26, 1767, where the result of such expected acquisitions is explained.
- Four criminals are executed "on a Gallows erected for that Purpose near the Fresh-Water." Three of them had, on Jan. 14, stolen "3 Horses, Saddles and Bridles, with which they were taken about 30 Miles from New York." They were indicted for burglary and horse stealing, and found guilty on both charges. The other one, a negro girl, had been condemned for "stealing sundry Articles out of the House of Mr. Forbes, of this City." Their execution had been suspended a week at the intercession of a minister, who, "finding them all remarkably ignorant, even of the first Principles of Religion, had, ever since their Condemnation . . . been very assiduous . . . in giving them such spiritual Assistance as their unhappy Case required."—N. Y. Jour., Feb. 12, 1767.
- 17 The common council orders payment of £7 "for an Iron Cast Stove furnished for the use of the Almshouse."—M. C. C., VII: 55.
- " As they have been informed that their petition (see March 18, 1766) to the king has been referred to Gov. Moore and the council (see July 29, 1766), the ministers, elders, deacons and trustees of the Presbyterian Church signify their "Readiness to attend the Commands of . . . the Honorable Board," and to bring proof of their statements.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4th ed.), III: 303-4; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng. 767. See March 24.
- 20 The Bishop of Landaff, in a sermon before the Society for Propagating the Gospel, again recommends an American Episcopate. He "referred to the Americans in very uncomplimentary terms; yet the Episcopal clergy in America took occasion thereupon to urge their claims. Petitions were sent to the King, to the Archbishop of Canterbury, and to the University of Cambridge, upon this subject, and printed appeals were made in America. This aroused the Dissenters against any establishment of one form of religion. They feared the system in all its developments, titles, 1767 spiritual courts, canon law, as in England. Yet they did not object

Feb. to Bishops unattended by any temporal powers or dignities. William 20 Livingston addressed a letter to the Bishop of Llandaff, taking exception to his charges against the morals and culture of the colonists.—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4084, citing Sedgewick's *Life of Wm.
Livingston*, 128.

" The common council orders the clerk to "prepare an advertisement to be put in all the publick or weekly Gazettes," to lease "by publick Out Cry to the highest bidder the ferry between this City and powlus's Hook" for the term of four years from May 1.—M. C. C., VII: 57-58. For some reason, not revealed by the records, the seven year agreement with Van Voorst, of Feb. 25, 1766 (q. v.), had terminated. Prior to the day appointed for the "Out Cry," a petition was presented to the common council, March 6 (q. v.), by several citizens residing near the Hudson, and it was ordered that a public hearing be held on March 10 (q. v.). The ferry was leased to Jacob van Vorhis on March 23 (q. v.), for four years at £310 per year.

" The common council pays Walter Brock £219 "for wine & punch had of him at the Sale of the Docks, Stalls & ferry.—M. C. C., VII: 57. Brock's Tavern was directly opposite the First Presbyterian Church on Wall St. It was in earlier years generally referred to as the "Sign of Admiral Warren."—See 1758.

23 Gov. Moore informs Shelburne that Wm. Smith, Sr., "as he is far advanced in years," is willing to resign his seat in council in favour of his son, Wm. Smith, Jr. Moore recommends young Smith in these words: "He is now at the head of the Profession of the Law, and will be of great Service in the Council as his opinions may always be depended on, not only from his knowledge of the Law but his integrity. He is connected with the best families in this Province, is of unblemished Character & high in the estimation of every one here."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 909-10.

26 A committee of the governors of King's College reports that they have petitioned Gov. Moore for 24,000 acres of land, and that the council has advised that the petition be granted. Letters patent making this grant were issued March 14, 1770, which stated that the land was "within the limits formerly claimed by the government of New Hampshire." It was then ordered that the tract "should be erected into a township by the name of Kingsland." On March 20, 1770, the committee of the college governors reported that the lands were in the new county of Gloucester (which had been set off from the county of Albany). After the Revolution, in the settlement of the boundary dispute between New York and New Hampshire, New York State, for $30,000 (of which the college received nothing), surrendered this tract, and also one of 10,000 acres granted to the college by Gov. Tryon in the spring of 1774 (q. v.), both of which were included in the new state of Vermont.—Hist. of Columbia Univ. (1904), 35-36.

" Murray and Smith, having "entered into partnership, for carrying on the business of Vintners, and Victuallers, at the Masons-Arms-Tavern, in the Fields, lately kept by said Smith alone, which is now fitted up in a very commodious manner," offer to "use their utmost endeavours to give general satisfaction, and keep the said house with the same good reputation, as in the time of their predecessor Mr. John Jones."—N. Y. Jour., Feb. 26, 1767. See March 19, 1759.

Mar. A meeting is announced for March 5 of the "Hand in Hand 2 Fire Company." The clerk will give notice of the place of meeting, and "inspect the Buckets, Bags, Belts, Hand-Barrows, Baskets, &c. belonging to each Member, if in good Order and in Readiness for Service."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), March 2, 1767. Costello, in Our Firemen, 49, says that a "Hand-in-Hand Fire Co." was organized in New York on Nov. 1, 1780, without mentioning this earlier organization.

3 Capt. Thomas Randle (Randell or Wrاندell) requests that the common council "Indulge him with Six feet four Inches of the Street Contiguous to the Easterly Side of his dwelling house in the South ward of this City." He offers a plan of the ground desired. The corporation accedes to his request.—M. C. C., VII: 59. Capt.
Randle's house stood at the north-west corner of Pearl and Whitehall Sts., being No. 28 Whitehall St.—See Will of Thomas Randle, dated March 6, 1797, in Liber Will., XLII: 278; cf. N. Y. Directories, 1795-96-97-98; also cf. Liber Deeds, CXIV: 305.

5 John Dyckman (see Aug. 6, 1766), Benjamin Palmer, and Jacob Vermilie have presented a petition to the assembly stating that they have expended more than £1,000 in erecting and repairing the free bridge and have received only about £280 in payment therefor, and asking that the members of the house "grant them such Relief in the Premises, as they in their great Wisdom shall think fit." Attached to this was a recommendation signed by about 100 of the inhabitants of New York, about 100 from Westchester, and about 30 from Harlem. These men attested to the "Truth of the Facts" mentioned in the petition, "the great public Benefit of the said Bridge," and the "Reasonableness of the Petition," and recommended that Dyckman, Palmer, and Vermilie "be allowed such Compensation, Relief and Assistance, as the General Assembly in their Wisdom should think proper." The petition, with its accompanying signatures, is now printed in the Journal, because someone has started a rumour that names of people who have not signed the recommendation have been added without their knowledge. The list of subscribers includes the names of the most prominent people in the city.—N. Y. Jour., March 5, 1767. See

April 18, 1769.

Inhabitants of the city living near the North River petition the common council (see Feb. 20) "that the Purchaser of the Ferry from this City to Powlus Hook may be at Liberty to land at & set off from any Place he shall choose between the Southermost Part of Roosevelt's Dock, and the Northernmost Part of Dey's Dock." They explain that the landing-place on the New York side has been at Mesier's Dock (at foot of Cortlandt St.—see Vol. I, p. 990—and designated in Pls. 41 and 42, Vol. I, as Paulus Hook Ferry) ever since the ferry was established, in 1764, by Cornelius van Vorst, who owned the lands at Paulus Hook; and that the newspapers now announce that the ferry is to be sold at public vendue on March 23; and that they are informed application has been made to fix the ferry at Roosevelt's Dock (at "lower end of Thames St."—See M. C. C., VII: 8). They prefer Mesier's Dock, because it "is more convenient than Roosevelt's Dock, both to the Person who may hire the said Ferry, and to those who may have Occasion to cross the same, particularly for Travellers, since the Street leading to Mesier's Dock runs directly through the City to the Ferry at the East River, and is, from the Broad-Way to that Dock, very wide and convenient; whereas the Passage, leading from the Broad-Way to Roosevelt's Dock, is a meer Lane or Alley, and so very narrow that in many Parts of it two Carriages cannot pass each other without Danger, which must make it very inconvenient."

Peter Mesier offers to convey to the city a water lot fronting his dock, 75 ft. wide and 100 ft. long, and to give £100 towards filling up and docking this lot. The petitioners desire to purchase the ferry, but cannot afford to give anything for it if it is fixed at Roosevelt's Dock.—From the original petition (MS.), in file No. 4, in city clerk's record-room. The common council designated March 10 (q. v.), for a hearing.—M. C. C., VII: 60.

The common council holds a hearing on the question of the New York terminal of the ferry to Paulus Hook (see Feb. 25, 1766).
The petitioners of March 6 (q. v.), as well as Nicholas Roosevelt, are represented by counsel. By a vote of nine to four, the board decides for the petitioners.—M. C. C., VII: 60. This meant that Mesier's Dock (name was changed to Cortlandt's Slip in 1788—see M. C. C.
(MS.), IX: 47-48) continued to be the Manhattan terminal (see Pl. 64, Vol. I). The ferry was leased on March 23 (q. v.).

" That trade organizations were in existence at this period is attested by the "Articles and Regulations of the Friendly Society of Tradesmen, House Carpenters, In the City of New-York," bearing this date. The members who subscribe to these regulations
"Do, out of Christian Love and true Friendship, promise to assist each other as far as in us lies." Every one who desires to join the society "must profess himself a House-Carpenter, free from all bodily Distempers, and between the Age of Forty and Twenty-one Years." The twenty articles provide for the annual election of a president, a secretary, a clerk, and two stewards; the recording of the minutes of the society in a "Book of Transactions;" the holding of monthly meetings; the imposition of fines for non-attendance; the admission of new members; the payment of dues; financial aid for sick members; and the payment of members' funeral expenses.
Besides these, we find the following provisions: "If any Member calls for Liquor without the Approbation of the Stewards, he shall pay for the same himself," and "If any Member presume to curse or swear, or cometh disguised in Liquor and breed Disturbance
. . . or promoteth Gaming at Club Hours, he or they so offending, shall pay to the common Stock, for every such Default, Sixpence."—From a broadside in the N. Y. Pub. Library (and Evans, 2466). For an earlier record of concerted action by tradesmen, see April 2, 1747.

Mar.
5

6

10

"

- 1767 The consistory of the Dutch Church passes a resolution to build, on the grounds of Mr. Harpending, a third church. The minutes of this meeting are not printed in the chronological sequence followed in the Eccles. Rec., VI: 4083, but are referred to incidentally in the minutes of June 12 (q.v.).—Ibid., VI: 4093. The "grounders of Mr. Harpending" consisted of his interest in the "Shoemakers' Field," left to the Dutch Church by his will, which was proved Feb. 7, 1724 (q.v.).
- 18 "A great Number of Gentlemen, who chose publicly to celebrate the Anniversary of the Repeal of the Stamp Act met at the House of Edward Bardin, where an elegant Entertainment was prepar'd." After dinner, "loyal and patriotic Toasts were drank."—N. Y. Merc., March 23, 1767.
- 19 "The Pole erected as sacred to Liberty on the City Parade" is found cut down this morning. (This was the third one so treated; for the other two, see Aug. 10 and Sept. 23, 1766.)
A fourth is "immediately erected in its Stead and cased below with Iron to prevent such another Action."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), March 30, 1767. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 963. "The same Night attempts were made both to cut it down, and to undermine and dig it down—but without Effect. On Saturday Night, the 21st. there was an attempt to destroy it by Gunpowder, by boring a hole, and charging it with Powder, but this also fail'd.—Next Night Sunday—a strong Watch was set by the Citizens, at an adjacent House; a small Company of Soldiers in the Night appear'd with their Coats turn'd, arm'd with Bayonets & Sticks, but no Guns.—Some of the Watch went out, ask'd who they were and their business? But received no satisfactory Answer: They then drew up before the Door where the Watch was kept, but after a few Words thought proper to retire. On Monday about 6 in the Evening, a party of Soldiers march'd by the Post, and as they pass'd by Mr Bardin's Tavern fir'd their Muskets, two of which were pointed at the House; next Morning it was found that a Ball had been fir'd thro' the House, and another into one of the Timbers. On Tuesday about 1 o'Clock in the Afternoon, the same party as it is supposed, took a Ladder from a new Building, which they carried to the Barracks, and were from thence proceeding towards the post—but being seen by an Officer he stop'd and turn'd them back—and notice of this Behaviour of the Soldiers, getting to the Governor and General and the Magistrates of the City,—we hear strict Orders were immediately given and effectual Measures taken to prevent Disturbance, or any the like future Occasion of it; since which all has been quiet, and we hope this Matter, in itself trivial, and only consider'd as of Importance by the Citizens, as it shew'd an intention to offend & insult them,—will occasion no farther Disturbance."—N. Y. Jour., Mar. 26, 1767. See Jan. 13, 1770.
- 23 The Paulus Hook ferry (see March 10) is "Struck off to Jacob Van Vorhis of this City Merchant" for four years at a yearly rental of £3.10. On April 10, the "draft of a Lease" to him was approved and ordered executed; at the same time a warrant was issued to pay Sarah Brock three pounds "in full of her Account against this Corporation for Liquors provided at the Sale of the ferry."—M. C. C., VII: 62, 64, 65. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 943. For complaint of the "extradinary high Rent," see March 23, 1769.
- 24 The committee of the legislative council reports on the petition of the Presbyterian Church (see July 29, 1766). They state that since 1759 petitions for charters have been made by various churches, two of which were submitted, in 1764, to the lords of trade, who answered: "it does not appear to us from anything set forth in their Petition, that such an Incorporation is at present Necessary or Expedient." The committee adds that "Except the Charters granted to the Church of England, all the Instances of such Incorporations within this Province, (four only in Number) are confined to the Dutch, whose Claims to this Distinction, are . . . grounded on one of the Articles of Capitulation on the Surrender of the Colony in the year 1664, by which it is declared "that the Dutch here, shall enjoy the Liberty of their Consciences in Divine Worship and Church Discipline." Also, they can discover "no essential or material Difference in the Circumstances of the Petitioners [the Presbyterians] and the other Protestant Congregations, not of the Communion of the Church of England, whereon to ground any Preference."—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), 304-5; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 767. See Aug. 26.
- 26 Bardin's tavern (later Montagne's), at the present 253 Broadway, is fired upon by several members of a company of soldiers as they pass by.—See Supplement Extraordinary to the N. Y. Jour., Mar. 26, 1767. This happened during the clashes between soldiers and citizens over the liberty pole. Bardin had been proprietor of this tavern since March 12, 1764 (q.v.), when he had hung out the sign of the King's Arms, replacing the sign of the King of Prussia. See April 5, 1754.
The Mercury prints an "Account of Goods exported from the Port of New-York" between July 5, 1765, and July 6, 1766. The list mentions:
5187 Hundred Weight of Naval Stores.
1032 Tons of Pigg and Barr Iron.
102 Tons of Pot and Pearl-shes.
172 Cases, Bundles, &c. of Furrs and Skins.
80 Tons of Copper Ore.
21 Pound Weight of Indigo.
27787 Hundred Weight of Logwood, Fustick and Nicoraga Wood.
5519 Tons of Bread and Flour.
2941 Barrels of Beef and Pork.
1198 Firkins of Butter.
3730 Casks of Fish.
109666 Bushels of Grain.
80 Casks of Cheese.
2398 Boxes of Soap and Candles.
617 Casks of Lard.
116 Casks of Rice.
11037 Hogheads of Flaxseed."
"N. B. Besides what is contained in this list, vessels are frequently filled up with different sorts of lumber, and a great variety of other articles, such as Tallow, Bees-wax, Sarsaparilla, Gammons, Ginseng, Beer, Starch, &c."—N. Y. Merc., March 30, 1767.
A meeting of the creditors of Phillip Smith, an absconding debtor, is announced to be held on this day at the "House of David Grim, known by the Sign of the Three Tons, in Chapel-Street."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 29, 1767. Edward Bardin announced, on May 31, 1770, that he had removed from the King's Arms Tavern in the Fields (Montagne's) and would open "a compleat Victualling-House, the Sign of the Golden Ton, in Chapel-Street."—N. Y. Merc., June 4, 1770. Evidently this was the same house in which David Grim had conducted the "Three Tons." Some time prior to 1774, David Grim had removed to a site at 138 William St., and was keeping a tavern known as the Hessian's Coffee House. See March 18, 1774.
"From private Advices by the last Vessels, we are inform'd that there was the greatest Reason to hope the Restrictions upon the Governors of the several English American Colonies, against passing Money Bills of Paper Currency would be wholly taken off, without any Conditions inconsistent with English Liberty, soon after the setting of the Parliament, which was to meet the 16th of January."—N. Y. Merc., April 6, 1767.
The college gentlemen meet at Burns' tavern.—N. Y. Merc., March 30, 1767.
The king repeals the act passed by the New York legislature on July 3, 1766 (q.v.), "to furnish the barracks, in the cities of New-York and Albany with firewood and candles, and the other necessaries therein mentioned, for his Majesty's forces." The news of this repeal was transmitted to the New York assembly on Dec. 3.—Assem. Jour. (1767-68), 38, 40.
"The Noted Henry Hymes, Lately from Sadler's-Wells," will perform every other evening, excepting Sunday, at the house of Mr. Miller, near the Oswego Market. Hymes was evidently an acrobat and juggler.—N. Y. Merc., Apr. 13, 1767.
A benefit concert for "the Royal American Band of Musick," is advertised to be held April 20 at Burns' assembly-room.—N. Y. Jour., April 16, 1767. See also Nov. 16, 1769.
An advertisement reads: "Whereas it has been the Custom for several Years past, for the Inhabitants of North America to import Fire Engines from foreign Parts; this is to inform the Publick, that they are made in the City of New York, as cheap and as good as any imported from England, by David Hunt."—N. Y. Merc., Apr. 20, 1767, cf. N. Y. Post-Boy, July 31, 1769. His advertisement of July 31, 1769 shows that he "makes, mends and repairs all kinds of fire-engines," and that "this is a branch of the business that has never been carried on here before." At that time, he had "a very good fire engine for sale."—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 31, 1769. The city bought one of Hunt's engines in 1772 (July 10, q.v.).
Flattenbarack Hill is a name now applied to Verlettenberg, 27

- 1767 Apr. 27 A notice in the Mercury states that John C. Knapp has moved "from Rotten Row to the corner of Flattenbarck Hill near the old City Hall in Broad Street."—N. Y. Merc., Apr. 27, 1767. For the location of this hill, see Pis. 27, 27A and 34, Vol. I. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III, 999, 1000.
- " A list of subscriptions, amounting to over £3,600, for the building of a third Dutch Church (see Jan. 1767) is presented to the consistory. A committee is appointed "to obtain plans and a strict estimate of costs." It consists of Pieter Maerschalk, Theodor van Wyck, Isaac Roosevelt, Andrew Maerschalk, and Garret Abel.—Ecles. Rec., VI: 4087-88.
- 30 "We are sorry to take notice, that the Assembly of New York have refused to provide barracks, fuel, &c for the troops quartered in that City, agreeable to an act [see May 10, 1765] passed for that purpose last year by the parliament of Great Britain."—Ann. Reg. (1767), 87. See July 2.
- May 1 The new Lutheran church is "opened and solemnly inaugurated."—N. Y. Jour., Apr. 30, 1767. The congregation having outgrown the old building on Cliff St. (see Mar. 22, 1750), the new stone church, 34 by 60 ft., was built on the north-east corner of Frankfort and William Sts. It was called Christ Church, but, because of its location, was popularly known as "The Swamp Church."—The Oldest Lutheran Church in Am. (1914), 27. The building was low, without a steeple; it had an entrance on King George (later William) St., and a peculiar arrangement of windows of various sizes.—See view in ibid., 28. Rev. Frederick Augustus Conrad Muhlenberg, afterwards speaker of the Pennsylvania assembly and of the national house of representatives, was pastor from 1773 to 1776.—Ibid., 28. For its later history, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III, 929.
- " Trinity Church leases to Abraham Mortier, for the term of 99 years, "part of the Land commonly called and known by the Name of Old Johns Land . . . containing 26 Acres Three Roods & 36 perches of Land under the yearly Rent of Ten pounds current money of New York aforesaid for each acre thereof." For the second period of 33 years he is to pay £3 per acre annually, and for the third period £4.—From a paper marked "Bounds of Farm—Richmond Hill/Trinity Church—Commenced May 1," among the Banker surveys (Box R-W, Folder R) in N. Y. Pub. Library. It was on this property that Major Mortier built his house (see July 1), one of the finest residences of the period, later known as Richmond Hill. The site overlooked the North River near the present Charlton and Varick Sts. In 1776, the house was occupied by Washington, later by Vice President Adams, and still later by Aaron Burr. It is reproduced and described in Vol. I, Pl. 55-a. For an interesting description of the estate, written by Mrs. Adams, see Sept. 27, 1789. See also Stone, Hist. of N. Y. City, Appendix II, Pelletreau, in Abstracts of Wills, VIII: 284, erroneously gives the date of this lease as 1766.
- 11 "It is Ordered by this board that Messrs Francis Marschalk and Gerrardus Banker Do Lay down in the plan (Now Exhibited to this board) of the Several Water Lots Lying between the Counties peer and Mrs Moores Dock, the breadth of the petitioners Lots fronting the said Water Lots, as they Shall appear by their Several Conveyances for the same and that the breadths of Each Respective Lot be laid down at the Extremity of the Grants prayed for, pointing out the Loss which Shall Sustain on Each Lott to the westward of the Exchange."—M. G. C., VII: 68-69.
- 14 An advertisement in the Mercury reads: "A Public School was opened the First Day of this Instant May, at the East-End of Horse and Cart-Street [now William St.], the Second Door from the Corner, near the New High Dutch Lutheran Church: Where the Public may depend upon having their Children taught after a most concise Method, applicable to Business; in Reading, Writing, Arithmetick, &c. with the utmost Care and Dispatch."
"By Peter Sparling."
—N. Y. Merc., May 14, 1767. At this time a "public" school meant merely one which any child might attend; fees were charged for the tuition. See Feb. 27, 1807, for the first grant of money by the state for a free school, and May 1, 1807, for its establishment.
- 15 In a letter to Maj. Gates, John Mauseell (see May 4, 1775) says: "Never was a Country so embarrassed as this, our paper Court almost exhausted: all the Gold and Silver sent home, & trade quite dead, the difficulty to live here is inconceivable, the markets as high as ever, Labour as expensive, & every article in the Same Way. . . . I have retired to a place at Harlem where
- one Laurence lived, on the top of the Hill as you go from Harlem to Kings Bridge, & if I could live on prospect, Surely I should fare well in my present abode as I have a view of the East River meandering for many miles, & a good prospect of the North River all from the Spot I reside on."—Gates MSS., in box 2, N. Y. Hist. Soc. Investigation shows "one Laurence" to have been Lawrence Low, who died in 1755. The property was above the later Fort Washington, and a portion of it, inherited by Marinus Low, was sold in 1766 "to John Mauseell Esq., afterward Lieut.-General in the British Army."—Riker, Hist. of Harlem (1st. ed.), 603.
- Two plans for building the third Dutch Church are presented to the consistory. That of Mr. Bresteele is chosen, "with the observation, that the breadth should be 74 instead of 70 feet, and the pillars should run all the way up so as to support the roof." The consistory directs the committee on plans to "obtain a close estimate of the cost of such a church built of clipstone," so that they may know "what ground there is to go upon in completing it."—Ecles. Rec., VI: 4089-90. Further resolutions were passed on June 18 (q.v.) regarding the plans of the new church.
- An advertisement in the Post-Boy informs the public that the "Stage-Waggons, kept by John Barnhill, in Elm Street, in Philadelphia, and John Mercereau, at the New-Blazing Star, near New-York continues their Stages in two Days, from Powles-Hook Ferry, opposite New-York, to Philadelphia; returns from Philadelphia to Powles-Hook in two Days also . . . The Price for each Passenger is Ten Shillings to Prince-Town and from thence to Philadelphia, Ten Shillings more, Ferriage free . . . Persons may now go from New-York to Philadelphia, and back again in five Days, and remain in Philadelphia two Nights and one Day to do their Business in."—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 28, 1767. For the earlier, probably the first, stage to Philadelphia, see Oct. 1, 1764.
- The common council orders "that Either Abraham De Peyster Esq<sup>r</sup> the proprietor of an unenclosed Lott of Ground Lying to the Eastward of and Contiguous to the dwelling house of Samuel Verplanck in Wall Street, or Thomas Grigg the Tenant in possession, Do forthwith Enclose the same Lott (It being Deemed by this board a publick nuisance whilst open) or that this board will proceed to remove the said Nuisance."—M. C., VII: 69. The house of Samuel Verplanck was on the north side of Wall St., 102 feet east of Nassau St. With its grounds, it had a frontage of 75 ft. on Wall St. Samuel Verplanck inherited it from his father, Gulyne Verplanck.—See the latter's will, dated July 5, 1750, in Libert Vols., XVIII: 68. Samuel's executors sold it, March 27, 1822, to the Bank of the United States.—Liber Deeds, CLIX: 315. It stood upon the site of what was later the United States Assay Office.—See also Vol. I, p. 430. Abraham de Peyster's land was west of the above property, extending to Nassau St.—See Liber Deeds, XXXI: 255; ibid., XL: 417. This was the site of the present United States Sub-Treasury. See description of the De Peyster Garden, I: 238-39.
- 4 "A celebration is held in honour of the king's birthday. It began at 11 o'clock, when "the Detachment of the Train, with the 17th and 46th Regiments were paraded on the Battery, and marched in Order by, and saluted his Excellency General Gage." At about the same time, Gov. Moore and the members of the common council assembled in Fort George, "where his Majesty's, and many other loyal Healths were drank, upon the Discharge of a Royal Salute from the Fort, which was immediately followed by a Salute of 21 Guns from the Liberty Pole, on which was suspended a Union." The vessels in the harbour, with their colours displayed, made a "very grand, and beautiful Appearance." In the evening "the most magnificent Fire-Works ever seen in America, were played off before a very great Number of Spectators." There was a general illumination throughout the city, the gate of the fort and the general's headquarters being particularly brilliant with clusters of lamps placed so as to form a "Regal Crown . . . and . . . the Royal Arms."—N. Y. Jour., June 11, 1767. Cf. N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), June 8, 1767. See also announcement of the celebration in N. Y. Merc., June 1, 1767.
- "An Act granting unto His Majesty the Sum of Three thousand Pounds for furnishing necessaries for the Troops quartered in this Colony" is passed by the colonial legislature.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 947-48; N. Y. Merc., June 8, 1767. See June 18.
- "This is to notify the Public, that the Stage-Waggon, kept by John Rapalje, in Jamaica, opposite the Stone Meeting-House, will continue for six Months, viz. from the 8th of June to the 8th of December. The Waggon to be kept in good Order, and good 1767 Horses; with Sober Drivers." Trips from Jamaica to Brooklyn Ferry will be made Monday and Saturday mornings, returning at 8 three o'clock in the afternoon of these days. "The said Rapalje keeps a civil House of Entertainment for civil Gentlemen and Ladies."—N. Y. Merc., June 8, 1767.

"The tavern known as the "Sign of General Wolfe," at the present Spruce St. and Park Row, is again offered for sale (see Dec. 24, 1764). The advertisement well describes a tavern of this period.

"To be sold at public Vendue, at the Merchant's Coffee-House, on Tuesday the 14th Day of July next; Ten Years Lease, from the first of May Instant, of two Houses and Lots of Ground, situate on the North Corner of the Vineyard, facing, and directly opposite the new Presbyterian Church, the Corner House ooted for a well accustomed Tavern, keeping the Sign of General Wolfe; has four Rooms on the lower Floor, and is convenient for Lodgers Up-stairs.
The other is a new House adjoining the aforementioned, excepting a large Gang-Way between the two, designed for the Use of both; it is two Stories high, has a commodious Room on the lower Floor of 21 Feet long, designed for Dancing, three Rooms above Stairs, and a large Garret; there is a very suitable Stable in the Yard, that will hold four Horses comfortably, and three Loads of Hay in the Loft;
also a large Gang or Cart-way, from the Rope-Walk, out to the East Side of the Corner-House. . . ."—N. Y. Merc., June 8, 1767.
Michael Hansen is proprietor of the tavern, which is owned by John Alsop. See Dec. 4, 1764.

12 The "yearly interest of the seven lots still remaining" (see Jan.
15), which the Dutch Church "had formerly bought in the grounds" of Mr. Harpending, is to "be given for a perpetual income for the ground on which the church is to be built, so that thus the object of Mr. Harpending's will [see Feb. 7, 1724] may be obtained."
—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4093. The church referred to is the third Dutch Church, afterwards known as the North Dutch Church, on the west side of William St., midway between Fulton and Ann Sts.
See June 18.

18 The Earl of Shelburne receives a letter from Gov. Moore stating that the assembly has "declared their intention of making that Provision for the Troops which is prescribed by the Mutiny act" (see May 10, 1765).—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 945. But see Aug. 21.

"The consistory of the Dutch Church "having further considered the length and breadth of the Third Church," resolves "That it should be according to Mr. Bresteede's plans: 100 feet long and 70 broad, within; that the committee should agree with the masons and stone-cutters for the mason work, provide materials, "at least so far that the foundation may be laid this year, buy thick and thin plank, and lay them up to dry." The committee is to pay for these materials out of the subscription list moneys, which Isaac Roosevelt is to receive. The consistory also resolves that the tower of the proposed new church "shall be set 10 feet back from Horse and Cart street, and the breadth of the church or foundation stand in the middle of the designated grounds between the two side streets" (i. e., Fulton and Ann Sts.).—Eccles.
Rec., VI: 4093. See, further, July 2.

29 The king gives his assent to the Townsend Act placing a duty upon glass, red and white lead, painter's colours, paper, and tea (3d. per pound) shipped to America.—Ann. Reg. (1767), 104. See also Stat. of Gt. Brit., VIII: 38-42.

July Nicholas Bayard leases to Abraham Mortier a small parcel of land adjoining the latter's large leasehold from Trinity Church (see May 1), and in this lease mentions "the House now erecting by the said Abraham Mortier," on his land. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 951.

The situation of Mortier's house was at "Zant Berg" or Saod Hill (see p. 187, Vol. II), which is described by Valentine as "an elevated range of hills traversing a part of the city through the Eighth and Fifteenth Wards." He says, further: "There were several prominent points on the Zant Berg. The residence of Abraham Mortier, Commissary in the British Army, was erected, about the year 1760 [error for 1767], on the extremity of this range. This building was subsequently called the Richmond Hill House. The position of this house was near the present corner of Varick and Charlton streets. Andrew Elliot, Esq., erected a country seat near the other extremity of the range. His garden was laid out upon a round hill, having a carriage-way winding to its summit. The last named place was near the present junction of Eighth and Greece streets. To the north of the Zant Berg hills lay a valley, through which ran the brook called, by the Indians, Minetta, and by the whites Bestevaer's Killetp, or Graodfather's Brook, which traced its course, through meadow lands, from the springy marshes occupying the present locality of Washington square; thence winding in a course nearly west, and emptying in the North river, near the present Hamersley street. On the south lay the Zant Berg hills, covered by a growth of forest trees; on the north, the cultivated fields, which an hundred years ago were a part of the farm of Admiral Sir Peter Warren, near Greenwich. . . ."—Man. Com. Coun.

(1856), 475. See Feb. 11, 1768.

The king gives his assent to the bill for restraining the assembly of New York from passing any act until there is full compliance with the act of parliament for furnishing the king's troops with certain necessities.—Ann. Reg. (1767), 106; N. Y. Merc., Sept. 3, 1767 (extraordinary supplement): See Apr. 30. The Earl of Shelburne, in a letter of July 18, informed Gov. Moore of the passage of this act, adding: "This Law . . . was enacted for the purpose of enforcing the obedience of the Assembly of New York to the Terms of the Mutiny Act, but at the same time framed with that singular Temper and lenity as to offer that Assembly an opportunity of rectifying their conduct, and this without involving them in any Disabilities only as the consequence of further disobedience; nor is the Province itself subjected to inconveniences thereby without leaving it in the Power of the People by a proper conduct, and a due exertion of their Privileges, to avoid or remove them."—N. Y.
Col. Docs., VII: 945. See Oct. 3 and Oct. 5. When the news of the passage of this act reached America, it aroused much unfavourable comment in the newspapers. According to one writer, "nothing can more affect the Liberty of the Colonies than such a step, but a compliance with the act itself. If our legislative authority can be suspended whenever we refuse obedience to laws we never consented to, we may as well send home our representatives, and acknowledge ourselves slaves." A boycott of English goods was suggested as one means of denouncing the bill.—Boston Gaz., Aug. 31, 1767. Also
N. Y. Merc., Sept. 14, 1767.

The "first foundation stone" of the North Dutch Church is laid at the north-west corner of William and Fulton Sts. The building plans are given as follows: "Side walls, One hundred foot Long.
Breadth: Seventy foot from outside to outside. The steeple projecting four & half foot out of the Front. The Foundation of the walls five foot and a half thick at Bottom from thence is eight to the water table Nine foot where the wall is Three foot Ten Inches thick from thence Seventeen foot four Inches high to the fascia three foot four Inches thick from thence Twenty foot Less 6 Inches high to the wallplate three foot thick making the Height of the wall from the water Table to the wall plate Thirty six foot Ten Inches. The Gable Ends are from the Wall plate to the Pitch of the Roof Two foot two Inches thick [sic]. The Steple Twenty Three foot square. The foundation six foot thick from thence to the water Table Nine foot high where it is four foot Four Inches thick [sic] From thence Seventeen foot 4 Inch high to the fascia Three & a half foot thick. From thence to the Pediment or Basement above the pedement Twenty six foot 4 inches high. Three foot four Inches thick. From thence to the bottom of the Cornish Nineteen & ½ foot high from thence to the Height it now is 1768
Twenty one foot 2 Inches 2 foot 8 Inch* thick [sic] is 84 foot 4 Inch from water Table Stone work" [Marginal note: "The height of the Steple from the water table, from the water Table [sic] 17 foot 4 Inch to the Fascia, from the fascia to the level of the wall plate 19½ foot from the wall plate to the Basement above the pediment 6 foot 10 Inches, from the Basement to the bottom of the stone Cornise 19½ foot from the Cornice to the height it was brought in 1768 is 21 foot 2 Inches—the whole height from y<sup>e</sup> water table 84 foot 4 Inches."—Jour. of the proceedings of the Ref. Prot. Dutch Church, 182-83. One of the commissioners for building this church, Deacon Garret Abeel, placed under one of the large pillars, in course of erection in the "tile room" or auditorium, a pewter plate,
"well-secured against moisture," on which he had made, in raised letters, a brief record of the building construction. His statement to this effect was one of the historical notes which he inscribed, in 1791-2, in Domine Selyos' manuscript diary (see 1786). This plate, nine inches square, was recovered in June, 1875 (q. v.), at the taking down of the North Church, and a photograph of it is reproduced in Collections of the Holland Society of N. Y. (1916), V:
22 (and Year Book of The Holland Society, 1916, p. 43). The inscription reads as follows:

"This church was built by the Congregation of the Reformed

- 1767 Protestant Dutch Church in the City of New York for English July 2 Service under the Inspection of a Committee of 2 Elders Deacons
 Peter Marschalk Isaac Roseuelt
 Peter Lott Adrian Bancker
 Corn's Bogert Andrew Marschalk
 Theodorus Van Wyck Garret Abel
 "Andrew Bresteed Junr Carpenter and Projector.
 "John Stagg Master Masoo and Alex Bates.
 "The first Stoeve was laid July 2, 1767, by M<sup>r</sup> Jacobus Roseuelt .
 an Elder.
 "The walls built to receive the Roof, June 7, 1768
 "These Pillars Reared June 21, 1768
 "The first English Minister for the Dutch Congregation. the Reud Archibald Laidlie 1764
 "Peace be Within this sacred Place.
 "And holy Gifts and beautifully grace.
 "Tobias van Zandt Clerk G ABeel fecit." An earlier publication of the text on this plate was given in the New Amsterdam Gazette, Vol. I, No. 7 (Jan. 31, 1884), 7. For the next record in the progress of the work of construction, see See A. Nov. 9, 1767.
 6 A remonstrance is addressed to Gov. Moore and the council against English preaching in the Dutch Reformed Church.—Doc.
Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 208-9. On Sept. 23, other members of this church answered this in a representation to the governor, explaining at length "respecting the Call of a Minister to preach in English," which has occasioned an "unhappy Dispute" in that congregation. This was read in council on Nov. 11, 1767, and an order made dismissing the remonstrance.—Ibid., III: 210-14;
Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 769. English preaching was first proposed May 3, 1762 (q. v.), and first regularly introduced April 15, 1764 (see March 29, 1764).
 11 The armed schooners "Earl of Chatham" and "Hawke" leave New York for Jamaica. "They mount 6 Guns each, were built here together by Messrs. Totten and Crossfield, launched together in one Day, off one Set of Weyrs, now sail together, and belong to one Owner; and are so much alike as hardly to be known apart, and are by good Judges esteemed compleat Vessels."—
N. Y. Merc., July 13, 1767.
 20 Jacob van Voorhis (see March 23) and others, in a petition to the common council, state that "the Road across the meadow between Powluses Hook in New Jersey, and the upland is at Some Times Rendered impassable for foot passengers on account of Spring tides overflowing the same to the Great Inconvenience of Travellers," etc. They complain that, as tenants (or lessees) of the ferry, their revenue is lessened, and "they Conceive half a years Rent of said ferry properly applied towards Repairing the Road there would be of publick utility." A committee is appointed to investigate.—M. C. G., VII: 74. See also original petition in File No. 4, city clerk's record-room. No report of this committee appears in the Minutes; but see March 23, 1769.
 "We are informed, that sundry Persons in this City have of late bought Regimental Cloths belonging to his Majesty of several Soldiers in this Place, contrary to the Act of Parliament in that Case made, for which they were carried before Whitehead Hicks, Esq; our Mayor, and fined £5 Sterling for each Offence."
 "We hear that several People in this Place, were lately fined for selling Liquors by retail, not having Licence nor Excise; and we are told, that the Magistrates are determined to put the Laws against such Offenders rigorously into Execution."—N. Y. Merc.,
 July 20, 1767.
 "Andrew Elliot and other residents of the Out Ward, in a petition to the common council, state that Elliot "hath lately purchased Some Land belonging to the Pioros adjoining to the Swamp in the possession of Collonel De Lancy & others," and that they are "desirous that there be a Good Sufficient & Compleat Road in & through the same . . ." This is referred to the committee on public roads.—M. C. G., VII: 73. See Feb. 11 and 23, 1768.
 21 "The consistency of the Dutch Church passes a resolution that "no one shall be taken up as a poor person to be supported by the Church, unless on condition that whatever may be bequeathed to them shall fall to the church."—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4096.
 22 A gentleman in London writes to a member of the Society of Arts et. in New York: "The People of New York, seem to me, to be too infatuated with a foreign Trade, ever to make any great Progress in Manufacture; and unless you sell your Linnen, at least as cheap as they can have it from Silesia, Austria, Bohemia, and Russia, thro' England, Holland or Hamburg, I fear you will not establish an extensive Manufactory;—You live in as plentiful a Country as any, and your People might work as cheap: I don't mean in the City of New-York; Cities are not calculated for Manufactories, since its, always dearer living in them than in the Country."
 —N. Y. Merc., Oct. 19, 1767.
 "The 17th and 46th Regiments are now embarked on board the Traopsters destined for England; and the 28th embarks at Amboy; They have been more than 10 Years in America; and the 17th carries home no more than 60 Men, out of 750, than [that] came to America in it."—N. Y. Merc., July 27, 1767. The transports set sail on Aug. 1.—Ibid., Aug. 3, 1767.
 29 The provincial council of New York orders that a proclamation be issued announcing the appointment of John Wentworth as governor of New Hampshire and surveyor-general of the woods in America.—Cal. Coun. Min., 474. See also July 3, Addenda.
 In this month a medical school was instituted in King's College by the college governors.—Hist. of Columbia Univ., 43. An account of the opening is given by Dr. Cooper in the N. Y. Merc., Nov. 9, 1767, which is referred to in an editorial on "How we Apples Swim," in the Pub. Adv. of May 25, 1811.
 6 During the July term of the supreme court, which ended Aug.
 1, William Johnson was convicted of felony for stealing books out of St. Paul's Church, and ordered to be executed on Aug. 17. Under the name of William Herring, this man had been found guilty, in the October term, on three indictments for grand larceny, but he had been allowed his "clergy" and burned in the band.—N. Y.
Jour., Aug. 6, 1767. On August 14 he was pardoned by the governour on condition that he leave the province.—Cal. Coun. Min., 475; cf. N. Y. Jour., Aug. 20, 1767, and N. Y. Merc., Aug. 17, 1767.
 13 Montrosor embarks at Falmouth on board the "Lord Hyde Packet boat bound to New York."—Montrosor's Jour., 293.
 "The common council orders that the mayor issue his warrant to the treasurer to pay Dirck Briackthoof or order £500, "to be by him laid out in Extending the Albany pier."—M. C. G., VII:
 77. The Albany Pier was situated on the west side of Coenties Slip, at about Front St. It was constructed in 1750 (see Apr. 26, 1750), and is shown on the Maerschalk Plan (Pl. 34, Vol. I). This extension is shown on the Ratterz Map, Pl. 41, Vol. I, and has now (1917) become Pier 6, East River (Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 983; Pl. 174, Vol. III). Additional payments for this extension brought the total cost to £6701172.—M. C. G., VII: 83, 112, 113, 124, 125.
 For a further addition, see Feb. 12, 1771.
 20 An advertisement in the Journal reads: "The New York Air Furnace Company have lately erected an Air Furnace near the City, which after a considerable Expence, they have now got in proper Order, for casting in the neatest Manner, the under-mentioned Goods, which are equal to any imported from England, Scotland, Ireland, or even Holland, either for Shape, Lightness, boiling white, or standing Fire: They therefore hope the Public will encourage the Works, by giving the Preference to what is American-make, especially when the Price is full as low as any can be afforded for, that are imported from Europe." The list of articles includes pots, kettles, skillets, forge hammers and anvils, stoves, weights, and chafing dishes. The advertisement is signed by Peter T.
 Curtenius, Gilbert Forbes, Richard Sharpe, and Thomas Randall.—
N. Y. Jour., Aug. 20, 1767. This furnace caught fire on Nov. 20, 1772 (q. v.).
 21 Gov. Moore writes to the Earl of Shelburne: "At the time I had the honor of forwarding to your Lordship the address of the Assembly [see June 18] in answer to my speech at the opening of the Session I could not entertain the least doubt but that the Provision demanded for his Matys Troops in consequence of the Act of Parliament would have been granted in such a manner as to shew a full compliance with the Act, and on that supposition took upon me to acquaint your Lordship with my sentiments by the Pacquet which sailed before any Bill was brought in for that purpose. This Bill on which I had founded my expectations only made an appropriation of such a sum as was thought necessary to furnish all the articles, but no particular mention was made of them, nor of the money being raised in consequence of the Act of Parliament . . ."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 948.
 24 Beekman's and Peck's Slips in Montgomery Ward "are the two only Slips where firewood and Sundry other Supplies for this

- 1767 part of the town Cao Conveniently be loaded." Beekman's Slip Aug. has become so filled with saad that boats "Cannot Come up by 24 any Considerable Distance to Where they formerly used to do."—
M. C. C., VII: 78. Both slips were ordered filled up in 1772
(see Jan. 7 and July 10, 1772; also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 988, 990).
- 16 On the advice of the lords of trade, the king dismisses the petition of the Presbyterian Church for a charter (see March 18, 1766), because, first, there is doubt whether the king, consistent with his coronation oath (which is founded on "the Act of the 5th of Queen Anne Cap 5, Intituled 'An Act for securing the Church of England as by Law established'"), can create such an establishment in favour of the Presbyterian Church as is now requested; and, second, "it is not expedient upon Principles of General Policy to comply with the Prayer of this Petition, or to give the Presbyterian Church of New York, any other Privileges and Immunities than it is entitled to by the Laws of Toleration."—Doc. Hist. N. Y.
(4to ed.), III: 306-7. The manuscript of this refusal is now in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. among "N. Y. MSS. (1761-1800)." For the later history of the Presbyterian Church, see Jan. 11, 1768.
- " The regiment "now quartered in this City commanded by Col.
Gabbot" is reviewed by Gen. Gage "in a Field near Greenwich."
The soldiers go through their exercises "to the Satisfaction of all present, and 'tis generally thought nothing of the like Nature was ever better performed in America."—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 31, 1767.
- Sept. "It is very sickly here; the bloody-flux rages, attended with 7 little or no fever, and carries off, in six days time, both old and young, 14 to 15 in a day."—Upcott Coll., III: 185.
- 11 The common council agrees "to Grant to the proprietors of Hunters Quey [Key], the water lots fronting their Respective wharfs . . . Saving and Reserving so Much of the Ground & Soil prayed for, fronting the Houses of Doctor Brownjohn, as this board shall Conceive Necessary & Convenient, for a publick Slip there." The rental is to be five shillings per foot.—M. C. C., VII: 80-81. See Pl. 42, and p. 343, Vol. I.
- 17 Abraham de Peyster, Jr., who in 1721 succeeded his father as treasurer of the provinces, dies. On Sept. 19, he was buried in the family vault in Trinity churchyard.—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Sept.
21, 1767; N. Y. Merc., Sept. 21, 1767. For his obituary, and the list of persons invited to his funeral, see Man. Com. Coun. (1861), 567-69. For description of his residence, see April 2, 1760.
- 28 Trinity vestry plans "to borrow . . . the further sum of £600 in order to finish the Portico and Fences of St Pauls Church
. . ."—Trin. Min. (MS.). St. Paul's had been opened on Oct. 30, 1766 (q.v.).
- Oct. The provincial council of New York receives an act of parlia-3 ment granting certain duties in the British colonies, etc., and another prohibiting the governeur from passing acts until necessary for the troops are provided by the assembly.—Cal. Coun.
Min., 475. See Oct. 5.
- " The provincial council receives from England a warrant for the use of a new great seal sent to New York.—Cal. Coun. Min., 475.
- 5 Gov. Moore writes to the Earl of Shelburne acknowledging the receipt of an act of parliament prohibiting the governeur, council, and assembly from passing any acts until provision shall be made for the king's troops (see July 2). He adds: "I have already in a former letter had the honor of informing your Lordship, that the Bill which was brought in for making the provision required had not fully answered the expectations I had conceived of it [see Aug. 21], and gave my reasons for passing it . . . and can only add at present that the troops are supplied with all the articles mentioned in the act of Parliament in as full and ample a manner as if they had been particularly specified in the Bill. Whatever inconvenience the People of this Colony may have to submit to government and return to their duty they will always be encouraged in a different way of thinkg by the Provinces to the Eastward of us."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VII: 980. For a further provision by the legislature, see Dec. 21.
- 9 An itemized statement of certain branches of the city's revenue is entered under this date. The total, £3333:10:4, comprises the following items: dock rent, £620; water lot rent, £345:4:8; ferry rent, £970; land rent, £898; stall rent, £440; house rent, £80:10:8.—
Jour. of City Chamberlain, IV: 4.
- 14 Henry Horneffer, who has lately leased the city lots, Nos. 101, 102, and 103, "Lying on the East Side of the Road or high way that Leads from the Spring Garden towards the Bowery nearly opposite the House of William Creland," applies to the common council for permission to mortgage this land to borrow about £100,
"to Enable him to Carry on and Complete a new Dwelling House Lately Erected on said Lots, or Some of them." Consent is given.
—M. C. C., VII: 88. The permit was renewed March 23, 1769.—
Ibid., VII: 155. The lot numbers in this record refer to numbered lots of the common loads of the city, on a "Map of the Corporation and Contiguous to the New Goal, compiled from different surveys made by Gerard Baocker, C. S., March 22, 1773" (q.v.) in the comptroller's office. The three lots mentioned were on the present Park Row, south of Thomas St., and are now covered by Nos. 97 to 107 Park Row.
- " Two rooms in the new goal are appropriated by the common council for a bridewell.—M. C. C., VII: 87. For account of the establishment of this institution, see Nov. 21, 1765; for the construction of the building called the bridewell, see 1774; and, for its demolition, see 1838.
- 16 An item of New York news states: "Notwithstanding the great complaints of the distressing times, we have here no less than four coaches which were brought hither from London in the last ships."—London Chron., Dec. 10-12, 1767; and Upcott Coll., III: 189.
- 17 Rev. John Peter Tetard, pastor of the French Church, petitions Gov. Moore for redress against the five Frenchmen who, "in a riotous manner," took possession of the edifice on June 29, 1766 (q.v.) and "have most unjustly and illegally kept possession of the same" ever since. Action was deferred.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 315; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng. 770.
- 19 "To be Let, The noted Tavern, known by the Name of the Sign of the Dove. The House is newly repaired, it is in good Order, and an excellent Place for Business, being only 4 Miles from this City on the Road to King's-Bridge. For farther Particulars, enquire of James Mills."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 19, 1767. See Oct. 31, 1763.
Mills again advertised the house for sale in 1770 and 1771.—Ibid.,
Feb. 19, 1770; July 29, 1771. In March, 1773, when an announcement was made that the property would be sold at public vendue on April 1, the place was described as "late the Property of Abraham Rice."—N. Y. Jour., March 25, 1773.
- 22 "The large, new House, and Lot of Ground, on Golden-Hill, owned and occupied by George Hopkins, Tavern-keeper, and known by the sign of the Orange Tree," is to be sold on this day.—
N. Y. Merc., Sept. 28, 1767. On June 13, 1768, Thomas Steele opened a school here.—Ibid., June 6, 1768. Hopkins again offered the house for sale in March, 1769. He then described it as "situate on Golden-hill, next door to Mr. McGennis, tavern keeper. A free-mason's lodge was formerly held in the said house."—N. Y.
Jour., March 2, 1769.
- 26 There is advertised for sale "a large Corner Lot, with three Houses on it, two fronting the Bowery Lane, very convenient, just on the Rising of Fresh Water Hill."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 26, 1767.
- Robert Lewis, "who has, for many Years, kept a Tavern in New-York, known by the Sign of the Spread-Eagle and Three Tuns, has opened a House in the Old Ford at Crown-Point, with the former Sign."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 26, 1767. The "Three Tuns," shorn of the "Spread Eagle," continued to be maintained in New York; the former stood on "Chappel" (Beekman St.—See Nov.
27, 1767. David Grim was the new proprietor as early as Jan. 29, 1767, Lewis evidently having sold out his interest in the tavern in 1766.—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 29, 1767.
- 28 "They write from New-York, that a resolution has been taken to establish public companies of artisans, who were to be endowed with certain privileges, for the benefit of trade and increase of manufactures; and it was said the [that] Boston and Philadelphia would follow the example."—From London news published in the Boston Chron., Jan. 18-25, 1768.
- Nov. The provincial council receives a royal mandamus to swear William Smith, Jr., as a council member, in place of William Smith, Sr., resigned; he is sworn in and takes his seat.—Cal. Coun. Min., 475. See 1757.
- 9 The Mercury announces the passage of a law to raise money for building a new bridewell (see Nov. 21, 1765). The writer states that, until the erection thereof, all "Rogues, Stragglers and idle and suspicious Persons will be apprehended" and sent to the rooms temporarily fitted up in the new goal (see Oct. 14). He reminds the people of the laws requiring that the names of all strangers, entertained in the city or brought here by vessels, be reported to the mayor or justice of the peace.—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 9, 1767.

1767 The consistory of the Dutch Church passes a resolution "That
Nov. the roof of the New Church shall be so made that it will bear to be 9 laid with tiles, if the law should require us so to lay it."—Eccles. Rec. VI: 4104. Heretofore, the "New Church" has meant the Middle Dutch Church, and possibly does so in this instance; but as the last record of alterations in that church was in 1764, it is much more likely that the North Dutch Church, plans for which were completed in June, 1767, is the one here referred to. See also Feb. 22, 1768.

11 The provincial council, in obedience to a royal mandamus received on this day, swears in Henry Cruger, Sr., as one of its members, and he takes his seat.—Cal. Coun. Min., 475.

18 In an address to the assembly, Gov. Moore says: "In laying before you the act passed in the last session of parliament, relative to the legislature of this province [see July 2] . . . I cannot harbor the least doubt, but that the prudent conduct of this house will render the provisions contained in it unnecessary; and that their zeal for his majesty's service, and attachment to his government, will always engage them to caterain a due sense of the blessings which they enjoy under his protection, and the influence of the British constitution."—Assemb. Jour. (1767-8), 4.

20 Final payments are made for the alterations in the city hall.—M. C. G., VII: 90-92. See Dec. 21, 1762.

" The first overseer or keeper of the bridewell (see Nov. 21, 1765) is appointed by the common council. The "Committee of the Bridewell" had been ordered to consider proposals for this office on Nov. 9 (M. C. G., VII: 89). William Dobbs is engaged until May 1, 1768, on the following conditions: The board shall allow him £35 salary to that date, plus "the profits arising from the Labour thereof," the incumbent "finding the tools & Impiments Necessary for Carrying on the Business of a Bridewell," and "promising to Render a Just & True Account to this Corporation quarterly of all the profits that Shall arise."—Ibid., VI: 92. Very many of Dobbs's itemized accounts are preserved during the years of his incumbency (1767-73), some in the city clerk's office, some in the comptroller's office.

The common council was induced, on May 7, 1772 (q. v.), to start an inquiry "into the State of the Bridewell," which resulted (see April 7, 1773) in a new agreement with Dobbs, one clause of which called for a decided reduction in salary.

Dec. The first of the "Farmer's Letters" of John Dickinson appears
2 in the issue of the Penn. Chronicle and Universal Advertiser of this date. They were continued in subsequent issues to Feb. 15, 1768.

7 The first performance at the new John Street Theatre is announced by a newspaper advertisement, which reads: "By Permission of his Excellency the Governor. By the American Company At the Theatre, in John-street, this present Evening, being the 7th Instant December; will be presented, A Comedy, call'd the Strategem . . . To which will be added, a Dramatic Satire call'd Lethe . . . To begin exactly at Six o'Clock. Vivant Rex and Regia."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 7, 1767. The theatre was on the site of 15-21 John St.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 984. In answer to a query concerning its exact location, a reader of the Mag. Am. Hist. wrote that it "stood on lots Nos. 70, 71, and 72, of the divisional map of the Shoemakers' pasture [Pl. 24, Vol. I], as laid out in 1696."—Mag. Am. Hist., XXVI: 396, 476-77. The theatre is shown for the first time on the Ratzler Map, Pl. 41, Vol. I.

" The building was an unsightly object, principally of wood painted red, and stood about sixty feet back from the street, having a covered way of rough wooden material from the pavement to the doors. The stage was of good dimensions, and the dressing room and green room were originally under it, but after the Revolution, they were removed to a wing added for the purpose, on the west side. The auditorium was fitted up with a pit, two rows of boxes, and a gallery, and when full at usual prices would contain 8000."—Ireland, Recs. of the N. Y. Stage, I: 42; Seilhamer, Hist. of Am. Theatre, I: 212. Soon after the opening of this theatre, attacks upon plays and theatres appeared in the newspapers. See Dec. 24.

" On Friday Night, the 27th ultimo, the Lamp was taken from the Lamp-post, at the Sign of the Three-Tons, in Chappel-Street, perhaps by some Persons out of a Joak; if so, they are requested to return the same; if taken away with a bad Design, whoever discovers the Person or Persons guilty of the same, if brought to Justice, shall receive Three Dollars Reward, by applying at the Sign of the Three Tons."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 7, 1767.

10 The petition of Nicholas Bayard, read in the common council and filed on this day, asks for an extension of the lease to the slaughter-house which was granted Sept. 12, 1750 (q. v.), for the term of 21 years, to the late Nicholas Bayard, his father, who devised the slaughter-house to this petitioner. He states that the former grant from the city gave his father power to erect upon his own land in the Bowery Division of the Out Ward, "about eleven or twelve Chains to the westward of the high road or Bowery lane And three Chains to the Eastward of the Fresh Water Pond, three or more good substantial and Convenient Slaughter Houses And one or more good and sufficient Penn and Pinfold." He states that his father erected "the said Slaughter houses" and equipped them with necessary tackle. The present petitioner desires to make additions and improvements, and seeks another 21 years' lease or grant, or such other term as the common council thinks proper, beginning on the termination of the first term, March 25, 1771, and under the same regulations.—From the original petition (MS.), endorsed "Read & filed 7th 10th of December 1767," in city clerk's record-room. The lease was renewed March 24, 1768 (q. v.).

11 Several Cherokee chiefs and warriors arrive from South Carolina. At an audience with Gen. Gage the next day, they "implore" his Interposition of good Offices in directing Sir William Johnson . . . to mediate a Peace between their Nation . . . and the Six Nations of Iroquois: They being deputed hither on an Embassy for that Purpose." The general promised "his Protection in the Business they are employed in; and informed them he would give the necessary Orders for their proceeding in a Sloop for Albany." While in this city, the chiefs, desiring to see a play, attended the theatre (see Dec. 7), where "King Richard III" was staged. They were also "surprised and diverted at the tricks of Harlequin."—N. Y. Jour., Dec. 17, 1767; Penn. Gaz., Dec. 24, 1767. See Apr. 8, 1768.

14 A letter to the printer of the Journal states: "Though I am a Tradesman, and depend upon my daily Labour for the Support of myself and Family, Yet, I comonly read your Paper; and my Neighbours and I have been more amused and instructed by the useful Pieces in it, than with the Articles about the Poles or Corsicans: But I cannot help observing that you have lately had fewer Pieces than formerly on our distressed Situation.—Are our Circumstances altered? is Moeey grown more plenty? Have our Tradesmen full Employment? Are we more Frugal? Is Grain cheaper? Are our Importations less?—not to mention the Play-House and Equipages, which it is hoped one but People of Fortune frequent, or use.—I am afraid every one of these Queries are against us; and yet of these we seem to take no thought, tho' our Neighbours at Boston make such a stir about them! . . . About three Years ago [see Dec. 3, 1764] a Society sprung up among us, which promised much, and indeed was encouraged by all the most eminent and best Friends to their Country; and you can scarce believe how it cheer'd us in our Distress; but alas! its youthful Vigour is over, and many have relaxed or broke thro' some of the Rules of its Institution. Yet we must acknowledge that it has done signal Service among us, by introducing not only Spinning, weaving, and raising Flax, but encouraged many other useful Manufactories, and Growths among us. Notwithstanding their Endeavours, what a dismal Prospect is before us! a long Winter, and no Work; many unpaid with Fire-wood or Money to buy it; House-Rent, and Taxes high; our Neighbours daily breaking, their Furniture at Vendue in every Corner. Surely it is high Time for the meddling People to abstain from every Superfluity, in Dress, Furniture, and Living: . . . If by good Management we can save a little, How loudly will the Distresses of our Neighbours Call for it!"—N. Y. Jour., Dec. 17, 1767. See Feb. 2, 1768.

" The advertisement of the John St. Theatre, announcing the play of "King Richard III" for this evening, advises: "To prevent Accidents by Carriages meeting it is requested that those coming to the House may enter John-Street from the Broad-Way, and returning drive from thence down John Street into Nassau Street, or forwards to that known by the Name of Cart and Horse Street."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), Dec. 14, 1767.

18 A committee of seven is ordered "to Regulate Crown [Liberty] street, in the west ward of this City . . . and make Report thereof to this board with all Convenient Speed."—M. C. G., VII: 97. The committee, on Jan. 14, 1766, submitted its report, but the corporation decided to take the latter into consideration "at some future Common Council, as a Petition of Sundry of the freeholders of said Street was this Day preferred against Regulating the same."

- 1767 —Ibid., VII: 97-98. The original remonstrance against the committee's report is preserved in the city clerk's record-room. On Dec. 18
- 18 June 8, 1769, another committee was appointed for the same purpose.—Ibid., VII: 165. This committee presented its report on July 12, 1769 (q.v.).
- 21 The legislature passes "An Act for making a further Provision of fifteen hundred Pounds for furnishing his Majesty's Troops quartered in this Colony with Necessaries" (see Oct. 5).—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 950-51.
- " Gov. Moore issues a proclamation against the Sons of Liberty, whom he declares guilty of sedition in issuing a paper signed "Pro Patria," which expresses resentment against stamp officers and which urges "every Votary of that celestial Goddess Liberty" to "give them a proper Welcome." The proclamation offers a reward of £50 to any one who shall discover the authors, and promises both the reward and pardon to any accomplice who shall reveal them.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 316; Cal. Hist. MSS. Eng., 770; cf. Upcott Coll., III: 213.
- 24 "Philander," a contributor to the N. Y. Journal, writes urging the inhabitants to be charitable to the poor who are in need of food and clothing. In this connection he adds: "The subject I am upon, naturally leads [me] to take notice of the Play-house [see Dec. 7], which I suspect must become an obstacle to the charity I am recommending. A fondness for the entertainments of the stage, cannot be gratified without considerable expence. The money thrown away in one night at a play, would purchase wood, provisions and other necessaries, sufficient for a number of poor, to make them pass thro' the winter with tolerable comfort . . . I have heard that there has been offered in this city, fifty pounds for a box in the Play-house during the season. The fact is hardly credible, but if it is true, it affords the strongest argument that can be urged to prove the mischievous tendency of a Theatre."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 7, 1768. He continued his opposition to the theatre in later issues of the paper.—Ibid., Jan. 21 and 28, Feb. 4 and 11, 1768. See Jan. 25, 1768.
- 28 The New-York Gazette, William Weyman's newspaper (see Feb. 16, 1759; Aug. 13, 1759), is discontinued.—For fuller details, see Early N. Y. Newspapers, II: 423, and the "Bibliography of Am. Newspapers," in the Am. Antiquarian Soc. Proceedings (1917), XXVII (N.S.): 421.
- 29 An act to prevent the imprisonment of poor debtors is passed by the legislative council and sent to the general assembly for the concurrence of that body.—Jour. Leg. Coun., 1640. In the assembly it was read twice and, on Dec. 30, referred to a committee of the whole house, but there is no record of its becoming a law.—Assemb. Jour., (1767-8) 60-61. Though laws for the relief of imprisoned debtors, and others, by shortening their terms, were passed continually at this period, no enactments for prohibiting such imprisonment were made (Col. Laws N. Y., Vol. IV and V). It seems that as yet it was too early for public sentiment to have crystallized on this matter. Protests against the inhumane treatment of debtors, however, did increase in number and in force, so that the legislature was compelled, in 1817, to pass a law forbidding imprisonment for a debt of less than twenty-five dollars, and, in 1831, to abolish it outright.—McMaster, Hist. of People of U. S., IV: 532-34; VI: 99-100.
- 30 The joint committee of the legislature appointed to inquire into a pamphlet entitled "The Conduct of Cadwallader Colden Esq<sup>r</sup> Lieutenant Governor of New York relating to the Judges Commissions—Appeals to the King; and the Stamp Duty," which had been published anonymously (see 1767), makes its report. The members are of the opinion "that it not only highly reflects upon the Honour, Justice and Dignity of his Majesty's Council, the General Assembly and the Judges of the Supreme Court, but contains the most malignant aspersions upon the Inhabitants of this Colony in General. That it tends to destroy the Confidence of the People . . . to render the Government odious and Contemptible, to abate that due Respect to Authority so necessary to peace and good order, to excite disadvantageous Suspicions and Jealousies in the minds of the People of Great Britain against his Majesty's Subjects in this Colony, and to expose the Colony in General to the Resentments of the Crown and both Houses of Parliament. That immediate and effectual measures ought to be taken, to defeat the malicious designs of the Author and Publisher of the Pamphlet, by a Detection of its Falshoods and Misrepresentations, and a full Clear and Just Vindication of the Colony and Government from the injurious Calumnies therein contained."

They advise that the assembly appoint a committee "to examine and report the unjust Charges, with an ample and satisfactory Refutation, to discover the Author and Publisher, and declare what they conceive to be the most prudent and effectual measures for applying a suitable Punishment, and deterring others from so iniquitous and dangerous an offence."—Jour. Leg. Coun., 1640-41; Assemb. Jour. (1767-8), 64. The pamphlet is preserved in the N. Y. Pub. Library. During January, 1768, a number of suspected people were summoned before the assembly and examined, but no definite information was received. On Feb. 6, 1768, the author not having been discovered, the governor was requested, in case the author should be found, to order a prosecution issued against him, "that such punishment may be inflicted on so great an offender, as the law directs."—Assemb. Jour. (1767-8), 69-71, 73-74, 91.

1768

Presenting a picture of the city at this time, Mrs. Lamb says: "It was then that money commenced to flow in all sorts of channels, and riches, long hoarded, came into prominent view. Houses were built with the rapidity of magic, so to speak, industries bristled with new life, merchants patched extensions upon their warehouses or built new ones, every thing old was mended, and fresh paint took a mad race through the length and breadth of the town . . ." She includes in her picture: "the principal streets and roads; the important men of the period and their residences; the customs and dress of the people in general; Columbia College and its commencement; the governing officials, their election and authority; and the chief churches of the city."—"The Golden Age of Colonial New York," in Mag. Am. Hist. (1893), XXIV: 1-20.

"Among the noteworthy features of New York, in 1768, are its legal holidays . . . It is interesting to note that the custom-house and public offices are closed by direction of the British authorities on New Year's Day, the Queen's birthday, anniversary of King Charles' martyrdom, Shrove Tuesday, Ash Wednesday, Lady Day, Good Friday, Easter Monday and Tuesday, Ascension Day, St. George's Day, King Charles' Restoration, the King's birthday, Whitsun Monday and Tuesday, Prince of Wales' birthday, King George first and 2d landed in Great Britain, Coronation Day, All Saints, Gunpowder Plot, Christmas Day, and three Christmas holidays following. Added to these are the provincial days—General Fast, Thanksgiving, General Election, and Commencement of the College—twenty-seven holidays in one year!"—Ibid., XXIV: 26. After British rule ended there was an opportunity to begin all over again in holiday observance, and for some time the only ones celebrated were "New Years," "Good Friday," "Christmas," "Independence Day," "Evacuation Day" (the British troops left New York Nov. 25, 1783, q.v.), and "Election Day."

In this year, the Scotch Presbyterians replaced their wooden building (see 1756), on the south side of Cedar between Broadway and Nassau St., with one of stone. The new church was 65 ft. long and 55 ft. wide. During the Revolution it was occupied by Hessian troops, and these mercenaries greatly damaged the edifice. On Nov. 10, 1783, an appeal was made for funds with which to repair the broken down sanctuary. In answer to this appeal, £963:13:6 were subscribed, and the building was repaired. In 1794, the gallery was lighted; in 1801, six fire-buckets were provided; and in the same year it was agreed "that the church be whitewashed and well cleaned." It contained a pew for the governor, and a "gallery for persons of color." On Oct. 13, 1836, the building was sold for $99,510. The site is now occupied by the Equitable Life Assurance building.—Wylie, Our Jubilee. The 150th Anniversary of the Scotch Presbyterian Church, New York 1756-1906, 14-15; Smith, N. Y. City in 1789, 153-54; Disoway, Earliest Churches in N. Y., 164. The congregation moved from Cedar St. in 1836 (q.v.).

The Presbyterians open their new brick church, lately erected on the Green (see Feb. 19 and 25, 1766). The Rev. Mr. Rogers conducted the worship and preached the sermon. There was a large audience; and, "by the Solemnity of the Occasion and the Address of the Preacher, the whole Assembly seem'd to be impressed with a Mixture of Seriousness, Gratitude and Joy, more easily conceived than expressed and highly becoming the Dedication of a House to the Worship of Almighty God."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 4, 1768; N. Y. Jour., Dec. 31, 1767. For its final demolition, see May 9, 1857. A sequentianent celebration of the Brick Church was held Jan. 6 and 10, 1918. See 23d Ann. Rep., Am. Scenic & Hist. Pres. Soc. (1918), 575-606.

1768 Peter Hasenclever writes from New York to Sir William Johnson: "The great rudomootades which the Boston people have made have animated some of our citizens to become economists and manufacturers in theory, but little in practice. . . . It is laudable that every father of a family promotes his interest, and every patriot contributes to the public welfare; but this country is not yet ripe for manufactures. Labor is too high—too much land to be settled. To erect fabries [factories] is to ruin the landed interest. The country people must resort to towns and the land will be waste and incult. Fabrics should not be established, then in countries where there are [not] more people than what can be employed in agriculture, and therefore I think the present zeal to establish manufactures is premature."—Clark, Hist. of Manufactures in the U. S., 1607-1860, 217, citing Johnson Papers, X, 69. However, the same observer thought that manufactures of linen might get a foothold in New York during the political disturbances, and that scarcity of money might lower wages so that it would be possible to make other things.—Ibid., 218, citing Johnson Papers, XII, 213.

13 The treasurer of the colony is ordered to pay Barnet Ratzler £200 "for making an actual Survey and Map of the City of New York and it's environs."—Col. Laws N. Y., IV, 963. "The Ratzler Map" is reproduced in Pls. 41, 42, Vol. I. Du Simitière, in his notes, calls it "the largest and the most correct which has ever been made."—Book No. 1412 Y, Ridgway Branch, Library Co. of Phila.

14 The assembly orders that Hugh Gainé be appointed public printer in place of William Weyman, resigned.—Assemb. Jour., 74.

21 A notice appears "That the Committee appointed at a meeting of the inhabitants of the city of New-York [probably on Dec. 29, 1767], to consider of the expediency of entering into measures to promote frugality, industry, and employing our tradesmen and necessitous poor [see Dec. 14, 1767], will make their report on Monday evening next the 25th instant, at six o'clock, at Bolton and Sigel's: And the inhabitants are requested to attend, in order to receive and consider the same. It is hoped that there will be a full meeting, that the intentions of the town may be well known, on matters of such great importance to the community."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 21, 1768. On account of bad weather the meeting did not occur until Feb. 2 (q. v.).—Ibid., Jan. 28, 1768.

" Ship bread bakers complain that "the corn for making of ship bread, brought to this city for sale, is generally coarse and of a very bad quality, so that the bread baked therewith, will not fetch near the same price at foreign markets, as the ship bread of the other colonies doth." They ask for the passage of a law to regulate the inspection of corn similar to that for inspecting flour.—Assemb. Jour. (1767-8), 80. See Feb. 6.

" Coldea writes to the Earl of Shelburne: "I gave your Lordship an account of the extraordinary Proceedings of the Judges of the Supreme Court of Judicature in this Province, in a Pamphlet which was published in England last Spring, in my vindication, and delivered to His Majesty's Ministers and several Members of Parliament, for their information; and to clear my character from the malicious aspersions, which I was informed had been industriously propagated there. This Pamphlet was reprinted in this Place [see 1767] without my privacy, or of any of my friends, as I am now well assured . . . It is certain the Sentiments of disinterested people, have alter'd greatly with regard to my conduct, since the publishing of the Pamphlet here. The notorious truth of the Facts is every Day mentioned by many People."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII, 4-5. On April 25, he sent Hillsborough an account of this matter.—Ibid., VII, 60-63.

" A concert is given at Burd's "Long Room" for the benefit of poor debtors in gaol.—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 11, 1768. This was at the City Tavern, the present 115 Broadway.

" A survey and report on a new road, later called Art St. (now Astor Place), leading from Bowery Lane through the hill toward Greenwich, bears this date.—Map No. 132, Bu. of Topography, Dept. of Pub. Works; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III, 992.

25 "R. S." joins in the attack upon the theatre by publishing the following: "I little thought to have troubled you or the public on the subject of the Play-house, for I never imagined that it could have been so long supported, against the inclinations of all the most sober and respectable inhabitants and the wholesome admonitions you have published [see Dec. 24, 1767] what an enormous tax do we burthen ourselves with? it is computed at least £300 a week . . . Some pretend that good moral instructions are to be learned at a play,—I wish they would give us a list of these plays, for our actors don't seem to hit upon them . . . I shall conclude with summing up some of the evils that this nuisance is productive of amongst us—1st, Cash for a play ticket. —2d, Expences in dressing.—3d, The modest ear is familiarized to obscene discourse.—4th, Promotes a taste for dissipation, or gadding, already too prevalent among the young folks.—5th, It is a rendezvous for many people to adjourn to the tavern.—6th, The mind, with all these accumulated expences, is turned from charitable purposes."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 28, 1768. In spite of this opposition to theatrical performances, the American Company played in New York from Dec. 7, 1767 (q. v.) until June 2, 1768. They returned in 1769, being here from Jan. 16 to June 29.—Sailmaker, Hist. of Am. Theatre, I: 249-50. After June 29, 1769, the John Street Theatre was closed until April 14, 1773 (see April 12, 1773).

" A sale at public vendue is announced to be held on this day at the Merchants Coffee House of "the noted Tavern, bearing the Sign of the Free-Mason's Arms, on the West Side of the Broadway, fronting the Great Square. The House has 12 Fire-places, two Dancing Rooms, and eight other good Rooms, with every Convenience for the Reception of Company. It was formerly kept by Samuel Francis, and since by the Subscriber, and has rented for Eighty Pounds per Annum, besides Taxes. Any Person inclining to purchase at private Sale, may, in the mean Time, enquire of John Jones."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 11, 1768. By March 21, 1768 (q. v.), Roger Morris had acquired the property.

" An advertisement offers to let the "House wherein John Marshall now lives, opposite the late Mr. Beason's Brew-House: It is well calculated for a Tavern-keeper, as it contains, besides a good Kitchen and Cellar, no less than 9 Rooms and 7 Fire Places, one of which Rooms is the whole Width and Depth of the House. There is also a very good Pump of excellent Tea Water, in the Yard. . . ."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 25, 1768. Benson's Brewery was on Pearl St. at Franklin Square. For its location, see Grim's Plan, depicting the city in 1742-4 (Pl. 32-3, Vol. I). This is probably the tavern of which Verdine Elsworth was once proprietor (see June 6, 1763). John Bridgewater, whose claim to recognition was evidently based on the fact that he was "Lately married to the Widow Branson," announced on June 6, 1768, that he had "removed from Cruger's Wharf, to the House wherein John Marshall lately lived, almost opposite Mr. Beason's Brewery, where he keeps a House of Entertainment."—N. Y. Merc., June 6, 1768.

" A news report states that one John Clayton Morris, convicted last week of sheep stealing, "had the benefit of the clergy granted him; was burnt in the head, and discharged."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 25, 1768.

27 The provincial council receives the king's order in council dismissing the petition of the minister, etc., of the Presbyterian Church for a charter of incorporation.—Cal. Coun. Min., 475.

28 A writer in the Boston Gazette, "to pacify those who are perpetually clamouring, that we can't justly expect to come into the Use of Cloths of our own Manufacture till they come to be cheaper than imported," gives this account of a "Web of Homespun":

"Sometime ago I bought 30 lb Sheep's Wool, and paid for it	1/6 per lb which amounted to	£2 5 0
Two lb of Indigo to die it,		1 6 8
For dying and spinning 28. per lb		3 0 0
For Weaving, 4d. per Yard, 30 Yards Ellwide,		0 10 0
Clothier's Bill for Fulling, Shearing and Pressing		1 0 0
	Total	£8 1 0

So that I have 20 Yards of Cloth, three-quarters wide, at 8s. 1d. per Yard. It is equal in Beauty to Broad-Cloth of 16s. twice as wide; and will wear, at least, twice as long."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 28, 1768.

31 Baron de Kalb arrives in New York. He had been deputed by the Duc de Choiseul, the French premier, to report on the condition of affairs in America, as well as in Holland and England. His observations were general rather than local, and are presented in a letter written from New York, on Feb. 24.—Vicome de Colleville, Les Missions Secrètes du Général-Major Baron de Kalb (Paris, 1885), 68-77. Subsequently, De Kalb joined Washington's forces and was killed in the battle of Camden, in 1780.

Feb. Hugh Gainé changes the name of The New-York Mercury to The New-York Gazette; and the Weekly Mercury.—See Aug. 3, 1752; and Early N. Y. Newspapers, II: 422.

1768
Feb.

2

"At a full Meeting of the Inhabitants of this City, the Report of the Committee appointed [see Jan. 21] to consider means for promoting Frugality, Industry, and employing our Tradesmen and Poor, was delivered, approved of, and Directions given for carrying the same into execution."—N. Y. Jour., Feb. 4, 1768. There is preserved in the N. Y. Pub. Library a broadside, bearing no date, but undoubtedly the report of this committee. It recommends the encouragement of home manufactures, restriction of imports, and the disuse of expensive fabrics. The committee also thinks that "the Importation of Negro Slaves, hath on many Accounts been injurious; and in particular, that it hath been a great Means of preventing the better Settlement and Improvement of the Country, and therefore ought for the Future to be discouraged." A draft of a subscription-roll, containing the substance of the report, is submitted for the signatures of the inhabitants. Those who sign this "promise and engage with each other, That we will give all reasonable Encouragement to the Use and Consumption of the Linen manufactured in this City; That we will not after the First day of June next, buy any of the following Articles imported from Abroad; (to wit,) Boots and Shoes, Women and Children's Stays, Men's Gloves, dress'd Deer Skins in any Form, Iron Spades, Sithes, Shovels, Hoes, Axes, Malt Liquors, Cider, Cheese, Wheel-Carriages, Saddles, Bridles and Harness; Gold or Silver Lace, Silk Velvets, Cordage, Deck Nails, Iron Pots, Glue, Starch, Muffs, Tippets, Beaver or Castor Hats, Chairs, Tables or any Kind of Cabinet-Ware, or Apparel ready made, nor any Broadcloth of above the Price of Twenty-five Shillings Currency per Yard.—And that we will lay aside the hurtful Custom of wearing Mourning and giving Scarfs and Gloves, (except to the Clergy) and hot Wine, at the Funerals of Friends and Relations."

4

A contributor to the Journal writes: "As in these Times of general Difficulty and Distress, it is the Duty of each Individual to contribute his Mite to the Public Service; and as the Want of a circulating Medium among us is a general Complaint, and several Schemes have been proposed to remedy the Evil, and none that I know of yet fully concluded upon, I desire you will in your next Paper insert the following

"Scheme to help the City in this Time of Distress.

"Let the Corporation have 100,000 Pounds in Notes of Hand, issued on the Credit of the Corporation from 5*l.* to 10*l.* and let the same out at Interest for 20 Years, at 5 per Cent. The Person who hires 100*l.* to pay the first Year 5 Pounds Principal in Notes of the same he took, and 5 Pound Interest in Specie, and the second year 1*l.* Principal in Notes and 4-15-0 Interest in Specie, and so in Proportion for the whole Time, when the Notes will be all sunk and the Interest in Specie will be 52500-0-0 . . . which will be a noble Fund to help out with the heavy Expence the Corporation is yearly obliged to stand under, and a Part of it may be used to encourage the Poor in manufacturing, &c."—N. Y. Jour., Feb. 4, 1768.

6

The legislature passes an act to provide for the payment of £1,000 for the equestrian statue of George III, £500 for the statue of Pitt, and £100 for the piece of plate for Sargent (see June 30, 1766). The preamble states that Robert Charles, the agent of the province, had been directed to cause the statues and piece of plate to be made as soon as possible.—Col. Latet N. Y., IV: 1002-3. The statues arrived on June 4, 1770 (q. v.).

"

The legislature passes "An Act to ascertain the Size of Casks in which white Bread shall be packed within the City of New York to regulate the Manner in which the same shall be sold."—Col. Latet N. Y., IV: 1021-22.

7

Writing to Lord Barrington, English war secretary, Gov. Bernard of Massachusetts draws a comparison between his province and that of New York, as to difficulty of administration. He says that governors in both places are "liable to be barrast by the Spirit of Jealousy and of Opposition to Government which prevails in both & has for some Time past been whetting itself upon each other. But there is this Material Difference between the two Provinces: in N York that Spirit actuates Men of Rank and Ability, in Massachusetts it works only with Men of Middling or low Rank; in the Latter the Gov<sup>t</sup> has the generality of respectable Men on his Side; in the former they are more generally against Government. Without entering into more particulars, It appears to me that the Administration of N York is more difficult."—Channing, The Barrington-Bernard Correspondence, in Harvard Hist. Studies, XVII: 42.

Feb.
10

"Ordered that the Church Wardens or one of them Pay unto Mr Phinias Mun the sum of Thirty nine pounds five shillings and four pence in full of his demand for Surveying the Lands for which this Corporation have obtained his Excellency St Henry Moores Warrant of Survey."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

11

A circular letter, written by Samuel Adams, is sent to the various colonies by the house of representatives of Massachusetts. The members of the house have considered "the great difficulties that must accrue to themselves and their constituents, by the operation of the several acts of parliament imposing duties and taxes on the American colonies," and as they feel "that the representations of the several assemblies, upon so delicate a point, should harmonize with each other," they hope that the letter will be thought of "in no other light than as expressing a disposition freely to communicate their mind to a Sister Colony, upon a common concern." The letter states that the house has drawn up petitions to the king and his ministers setting forth their allegiance to Great Britain, but insisting "That it is an essential unalterable right in nature . . . that what a man hath honestly acquired, is absolutely his own, which he may freely give, but cannot be taken from him without his Consent . . . That the acts . . . imposing duties on the people of this province, with the sole and express purpose of raising a revenue, are infringements of their natural and constitutional rights; because, as they are not represented in the British parliament, his Majesty's commons in Britain, by those acts, grant their property without their consent." The agent of the colony has been instructed to lay before the ministry a number of other grievances. At the end of the letter, Adams says: "The house is fully satisfied that your assembly is too generous and enlarg'd in sentiment, to believe, that this letter proceeds from an ambition of taking the lead, or dictating to the other assemblies: They freely submit their opinion to the judgment of others, and shall take it kind in your house, to point out to them anything further which may be thought necessary.

"This house cannot conclude, without expressing their firm confidence in the King, our common head and father, that the united and dutiful supplications of his distress'd American subjects, will meet with his Royal and favorable acceptance."—Boston Gaz., March 14, 1768. For the New York assembly's answer, see Dec. 31.

"

"Mr Marshalk one of the Citys Surveyors, Returned a plan of two Roads, which he had made by order of a Committee of this board Leading from the Bowery Lane to the Hill or Sand Bank toward Grinage" (Greenwich). The common council chooses "the widest of the said two Roads," and orders that the clerk of this board "Give notice to those persons who have Lands Contiguous thereto, to Shew Cause on Monday next (if any they have) at the Common Council Chamber in the City Hall of this City, why the same should not be Recorded, and to Remain as a publick Road for ever."—M. C. C., VII: 101. On Feb. 21 (q. v.), no cause to the contrary having been shown, it was ordered "that the same be Accordingly Recorded a publick Road." The plan, filed with the report of the committee, shows that the road "Ruins from the old House fronting the Bowery Lane, North Seventy three degrees & thirty minutes, west Six Chains and Eighty five Links, thence north Sixty four degrees and forty five minutes, west twenty two Chains and thirty Links to the Brook Called by the Indian name, Mionnetta Water."—Ibid., VII: 104-5. This was the Sand Hill Road (see Vol. II, p. 187, and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1001), the continuation of which was the "Road to the Obelisk."—See June 16, 1767. On "The Montresor Plan" of 1766 (see under Feb. 8, 1766), this road appears as the "Road to the Obelisk." A later name was "The Monument Lane" (Pl. 41, Vol. I). See 1761, Cf. "The Wolfe Monument at New York," in 19th Ann. Rep. Am. Scen. and Hist. Pres. Soc. (1914), 121-26, where the latter name (Monument Lane) is mentioned first, the existence of the first issue of "The Montresor Plan" having been forgotten, apparently. For a topographical description of the Sand Hill section of the city, see June 1, 1694, and July 4, 1767. The present Astor Place, formerly known as Art Street (see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 992), was the eastern end of this old road, which was laid out in Dutch times, and led from Gov. Stuyvesant's Bowery to Sapokanica (afterwards called Greenwich Village). It was apparently some alteration in this line that was made at this time.—Man. Com. Coun. (1865), 636-39. See June 1, 1694. The road had been re-surveyed once before.—See June 16, 1767.

Hendrick Rensse, Waldron Blaau, William Milliner, Philip

1768 Philipse, Peter Jay, and Frederick van Cortlandt, who are proprietors, of "all the houses to the east ward of the Exchange, as far as the Corporation Pier" (see March 7, 1765), being desirous of improving the water lots fronting their houses, ask for grants of these lots on the same terms as those recently allowed to the proprietors of Hunter's Key.—From the original petition (MS.), in city clerk's record-room. See Jan. 29, 1767.

15 The common council authorizes the payment to Thomas Shrieve, coroner, of the sum of £7:18:6 "for the Burial of 49 bodys" between Jan. 1, 1764 and Jan. 1, 1767.—M. C. G., VII: 103.

" Fifteen acres of land in the township of Harlem, adjoining the East River, are offered for sale, also 8 acres of good wood land, "lying above the Blue-Bell, adjoining the King's road, and north river, and bounded on the south side by the farm of Adolph Myer, and on the north side by that of John Nagle."—N. T. Merc., Feb. 15, 1768.

20 The following card appears: "Jack Bowling and Tom Hatchway send their Service (damn Compliments) to the Freeholders and Freemen of the City of New York, and beg they would in order to try how the Land lies, take an Observation, and they will find, "ist. That the good People of this City are supported by Trade and the Merchants.

"2d. That the Lawyers are supported by the People. "The Difference here given will plainly point out the Course they ought to steer." The card is dated from the "Ship Defiance."—From an original in the N. Y. Pub. Library. See Feb. 29.

22 The consistency of the Dutch Church resolves "that the roof of the Third Church should be laid with tile, as there is now a good opportunity to obtain them."—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4111. See also Nov. 9, 1767.

23 The common council adopts a plan or survey by Francis Maerschalck, city surveyor, for a road to run "from the old House fronting the Bowery Lane, North Seventy three degrees & thirty minutes, west Six Chains and Eighty five Links, thence north Sixty four degrees and forty five minutes, west twenty two Chains and thirty Links to the Brook Called by the Indian name, Minnetta Water."—M. C. G., VII: 104-5. This was the Sand Hill Road and existed for many years before this date, lying in about the same general direction, following an early Indian trail. The old house mentioned in the minutes as "Rebecca's House" was a tavern (see Landmark Ref. Key, III: 980); and from there (the present intersection of Astor Pl. and Fourth Ave.) this road ran to the Minnetta Brook, the course of which is shown on Ratter's Map (Pl. 41, Vol. I), being there called Bestaver's Rivulet, crossing the stream on a bridge. The road on the other side of the bridge is designated by Ratter as Monument Lane; it ran to the obelisk erected on the DeLancey property to the memory of General Wolfe and others, which stood near what is now the north-west corner of Eighth Ave. and West 14th St. (see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 964).

24 A public vendue is advertised to take place on this day of the "Corner House and Lot of Ground where Mr. Kerby now lives, opposite to St. Paul's Chapel."—N. T. Merc., Feb. 1, 1768. Evidently no sale was made at this time, or if sold, Kerby still continued in occupation, for, on March 12, 1770, the house, still in his possession, was again advertised for sale. It was described as "very convenient for a Shop, or Tavern-Keep, and has been occupied as such many Years."—Ibid., March 12, 1770. This was presumably the old Dover tavern on the south-east corner of Spring Garden.—See Feb. 6, 1768.

25 In a letter to Gov. Moore, the Earl of Hillsborough says: "His Majesty trusted that the ill consequence flowing from a want of Respect to, and Authority in, the Civil Magistrate, so evidently manifested during the late Disorders on account of the Stamp Act, would have induced all men of Rank & Consideration in the Colony to have co-operated with you in every Measure that could possibly tend to secure the Peace, and promote the Happiness of the Community, and to give that strength and consistency to Government, by which alone it can be supported and therefore it was a great concern to His Majesty to find . . . that you had failed in your Expectation of Assistance in this great work from the better sort of People, and more so that their Backwardness should proceed from Considerations so unworthy those whose duty it is, from the Rank they hold in the Community, to make it's welfare & happiness the objects of their Care & Attention . . . His Majesty trusts that the flagitious & inflammatory Publications inserted in printed News-Papers, with the avowed Design to keep up those Antimosi-ties & Divisions between the Mother Country & it's Colonies, which have operated so prejudicially to Both, will be treated, by all wise and sober People, with the contempt they deserve, which will conduce the most effectually to the Disappointment of the Authors. . . ."—N. T. Col. Docs., VIII: 10-11.

At about this time, a broadside, addressed "To the Freeholders and Freemen of the City and County of New York," and signed "Philanthropos," is published as a supplement to the Assembly. The author argues against the election of lawyers to the assembly. He says: "As a Maritime City, our chief Dependence is upon Trade, for which Reason Merchants (who are well acquainted with the commercial Interest of the Colony) are the properest Persons to represent us in the Assembly; not Lawyers, whose sole Study it is, not to increase the Wealth of the State, but to divide the Gain of the industrious Merchant and Mechanick if possible among themselves; and to rise from the Ruin, and Distresses of the rest of the Community; by extorting from them . . . the Price of their Labour, Sweat and Toil." On the reverse appears an address "To the Freeholders and Freemen of the City of New York." This is dated "New Jersey, Feb. 19, 1768," and signed "William Johanas Von Dore Manadus." Manadus tells the New Yorkers that he has heard "that a Dram-shop is opened in your City, and that the Freeholders and Freemen of New-York assemble there to sell their Votes for a Dram." He assails this practice and condemns the behaviour of the lawyers and their friends. In conclusion, he urges the inhabitants not to be "cajoled out of your Senses by a seeming friendly Shake by the Hand, a courtly Bow, or a deceyful Look," but to vote "like Men of Firmness and Honour."—From an original in the N. Y. Pub. Library.

A card, dated from "Tradesman's Hall," is issued, reading: "Mr. Axe and Mr. Hammer being solicited by a Number of their Brother Freeholders and Freemen of the City of New-York, to return their hearty Thanks to their good Friends, Mr. Hatchway and Mr. Bowline [see Feb. 20], have consented,—and think proper to do it in this public Manner;—and to assure them, that their Leather-Aprons (a very respectable Body) are clearly of their Opinion, That it's Trade, and not Law supports our Families . . . So that with many Thanks for your sensible good Card—we all say, as you say,—No Lawyer in the Assembly."—From an original in the N. Y. Pub. Library. See Jan. 14, 1769.

"Wanted, by a Society of Gentlemen in the City of New-York from 2 to 300 Yards of America made Broad Cloth, of blue, grey, and brown Colours, with lining if possible, for the same. Any Person that will engage for the like Quantity, will meet with a Market for it, by applying to H. Gaine, if at a reasonable Price, and proper Time will be allowed to the Manufacturer."—N. T. Merc., Feb. 29, 1768.

The "King's stores" are referred to in an advertisement for the sale of a house and lots "opposite the King's stores, on the North River side, between Leary's-street and Bateaux-street."—N. T. Merc., Feb. 29, 1768. See Pl. 42, Vol. I, where the "King's stores," or arsenal, are shown between Dey and Cortlandt Sts. Bateaux St. was Dey St. (Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 993); and "Leary's-street" was probably Cortlandt St.

A broadside entitled "The Voter's New Catechism" is issued. Mar. — It is directed against New York lawyers in general (see Feb. 25), and against the lawyer candidate for representative (Scott) in particular. The series of questions and answers aims to prove that the lawyers have always opposed the colonists' struggle against Great Britain, and that they have never been in sympathy with the measures taken against the Stamp Act and other oppressive laws. The broadside argues that a lawyer should not be chosen as a representative, because "for the same Person to be both a Maker and Interpreter of the Law, gives him too much Influence. And because in framing the Laws he would be too apt to have an Eye to the Advantage of his own Practice."—From an original in the N. Y. Pub. Library.

The common council agrees to make extensive grants of the water lots at the prominent East River locality called Hunter's Key, between Wall St. and Old Slip (see May 22, 1761), and orders that the clerk prepare drafts to the several petitioners.—M. C. G., VII: 106. On Aug. 12, the board decided that all grants "be under the seal of this Corporation and witnessed by the Mayor and Senior Alderman present in Common Council." The grant of a water lot to Jacob Sarly, the draft of which had been submitted on June 28, was the first one made under this ordinance.—Ibid., VII: 116,

Feb. 25

"

29

"

"

Mar.

2

- 1768 119, 121. Regarding the grants to the rest of the petitioners, and to others later, of water lots at Hunter's Key, from this time until Mar. 1775, see M. C. C., VII: 137, 142-43, 150, 174-75, 178, 179, 201, 212, 214, 217-18, 222-23, 227, 229, 251-52, 372; VIII: 2-3, 7, 8, 85. For the beginnings of the long controversy which culminated in these grants, see April 26, 1750; May 21, 1754; May 22, 1761. See also the MS. of the case in regard to the rights and title to Hunter's Key, originally given by letters patent of George I to John Theobalds and others, on March 27, in the fourth year of his reign; it shows the extent of the grant and history of the case and opinion in 1768.—Filed with N. Y. MSS., 1761-1800, in N. Y. Hist. Soc.
- 5 Gov. Moore writes to the Earl of Shelburne concerning a claim made by the commander-in-chief of the army to superiority over the governors in America on all occasions. He adds that the council has decided that for the civil power to be subordinate to the military would be contrary to the British constitution. In justification of this decision, the governor says, "in many instances the minds of the people here would be so much affected with a Claim of this kind as to make them lose all that respect now shew'd to His Majesty's Civil Governor here." He then describes the ceremony that is customary on the king's birthday [see, for example, June 4, 1767], and adds "A ceremony of this kind . . . would drop at once on the Assertion of a Superiority in the General's Commission."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 15-19. On Aug. 19, Moore wrote again on this subject.—Ibid., VIII: 97-99. Hillsborough, on Oct. 12, answered: "The subject of the Disputes between yourself and General Gage, concerning Rank and Precedence is under Consideration, and I trust such Orders will be given thereupon as may be equally satisfactory to both; in the mean time I am commanded by His Majesty to desire you will continue to act with the same spirit of Prudence and Moderation by which your conduct upon this occasion appears to have been hitherto governed, & which His Majesty does very much approve."—Ibid., VIII: 101. No further record appears; therefore, the presumption is that the claim of Gen. Gage was not sustained.
- 9 "Wanted, A Person to provide Victuals, and to cook, for the College,—Inquire at the President's Chambers. King's College, March 9, 1768."—N. Y. Jour., March 17, 1768.
- 14 William Sloe offers for sale his lease of the house at the North River ferry, of which 11 years are still unexpired.—N. Y. Merc., March 14, 1768.
- 17 "The order of St. Patrick is to meet "at the House of John Marshall, at the ancient Maso's Arms, near the Hoop. William Walton's."—N. Y. Merc., March 7, 1768. The Walton house was at the present 326 Pearl St.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 953. Marshall turned this tavern over to John Bridgewater before May 23d.—N. Y. Merc., May 23, 1768. In 1789, it was the starting-place of the Boston and Albany stages, and was being conducted by Isaac Norton, at "No. 160, Queen-street, opposite Mr. Walton's."—N. Y. Packet, Oct. 3, 1789.
- 18 A New Yorker, writing on March 24 to a friend in London, says that on this day, the anniversary of the repeal of the Stamp Act, "a numerous company of the principal merchants, and other respectable inhabitants of this city, friends to constitutional liberty and trade, assembled at Mr. Jones's and Mr. Bardin's taverns, nearly adjoining, where union flags were displayed, and elegant entertainments provided. When the company had dined, by common consent, the remains of the entertainment were sent to the poor prisoners in the goal, with a suitable quantity of liquor. After dinner many loyal and patriotic healths were drank."—London Chron., May 26-28, 1768; Upcott Coll., III: 229.
- 21 "The noted Tavern, at the Sign of the Freemason's-Arms, on the West Side of the Broadway, fronting the great Square late the Property of John Jones, but now belongs to the Hoop. Roger Morris, is to be let.—N. Y. Merc., March 21, 1768. See March 19, 1759.
- 24 The common council acts favourably on the petition of Nicholas Bayard (see Dec. 10, 1767) and orders the clerk to prepare a lease to him of "the publick Slaught'r house" for 18 years, commencing Sept. 12, 1771.—M. C. C., VII: 107-8. See, further, April 27, 1769.
- 25 The charter of incorporation of Trinity Church appears to have expressed the intention that a convenient dwelling-house should be erected for the residence of the rector. This "has not hitherto been done." With a desire to comply with the charter, and believing that such building would "greatly redound to the Credit and Honour of the said Corporation," the vestry orders "that the present Charity School House be altered and made into a neat and convenient Dwelling House, and set apart for the use and dwelling of the Present Rector of the said Church and his Successors for ever, free from the payment of any rent for the same And that a New School House be erected on Some other part of the Lands belonging to this Corporation."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- In this and subsequent issues of the Post-Boy, articles appear concerning the Church of England—its origin, reformation, and influence at home and in America. One writer remarks that there are many "a civil and religious appendages and annexations, the undoubted rights of the Church of England in England, which Episcopalians in America, cannot, as friends to this country, wish to see introduced. According to this distinction, I am in principle opposed to tithes, bishops, baronies, and a thousand other powers and peculiarities, occasioned by the liberality of popes and princes, and the superstition of the vulgar. . . . With the bishops we shall naturally have the introduction or establishment of spiritual or ecclesiastical courts. . . . The bishop's right to open his court being . . . secured by the common law, and that being universally acknowledged to be the law of the colonies, his lordship will find no difficulty, after his diocese is established, to erect a tribunal, for good reasons long disgusting to the people of England; and which Americans dread to almost the same degree of horror, which they feel at the thoughts of the inquisition itself."—N. Y. Post-Boy, March 28, April 4 et seq.
- "A Letter having lately been received from a Committee of the Merchants of Boston, to be communicated to the Merchants of New-York; they are desired to meet this Evening at Six o'Clock, at Messrs. Bolton and Sigell's [this was later Fraunces Tavern—Vol. III, p. 978] to consult on a proper Answer to be returned to said Letter."—N. Y. Jour., March 31, 1768. See April 7 and 14.
- "Because of a "late Reduction of the Wages of journeymen Taylors" in New York, twenty tailors decide to "strike," and advertise that they will work in families at "Three Shillings and Six Pence per Day," with "Diet." Their "House of Call" is at the "Sign of the Fox and Hounds," in Moravian (Fulton) St.—N. Y. Jour., April 7, 1768.
- "The consistory of the Dutch Church resolves to borrow £1,500 at 6 per cent., which is all that is judged necessary for this year for use in completing the "Third Church" (on Horse and Cart St.)—Ecles. Rec., VI: 411. Regarding further loans for this purpose, see Nov. 4. The next record concerning progress in the building construction is dated June 17 (p. v.).
- "Alexander Ogg revives James Johnson's ferry between Whitehall Slip and Staten Island.—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 4, 1768.
- "The New York Chamber of Commerce is organized. Twenty prominent merchants meet and pass the following resolution: "Whereas mercantile societies have been found very useful in trading cities for promoting and encouraging commerce, supporting industry, adjusting disputes relative to trade and navigation, and procuring such laws and regulations as may be found necessary for the benefit of trade in general; "For which purpose, and to establish such a society in the city of New York, the following persons convened on the first Tuesday in, and being the 5th day of, April, 1768: . . . Who agreed that the said Society of Merchants should consist of A President, Vice-President, Treasurer, Secretary, and such a number of merchants as already, or hereafter may become members thereof, to be called and known by the name of The New York Chamber of Commerce." The officers elected are John Cruger, president; Hugh Wallace, vice-president; Elias Desbrosses, treasurer; and Anthony van Dam, secretary.—Col. Records of N. Y. Chamber of Commerce, 1768-1784 (Stevens), 3-7. The members held their meetings at Bolton & Sigell's (Fraunces) Tavern until they hired a room in the Exchange (see Feb. 15, 1769).—Ibid., 9, 307-8. See also N. Y. Merc., Dec. 12, 1768.
- "This notice appears: "The Advertisement for convening the Merchants of this City on Thursday Evening last [see March 31], in order to consider of a proper Answer to be returned to the letter receiv'd from the Committee of the Merchants at Boston, not having prov'd effectual to bring together so great a Number as was expected; it is thought necessary by those Merchants who favoured the Meeting with their Presence before, to give this further Invitation to all the Merchants in the City, to meet at Bolton and Sigell's, this Evening, at 6 o'Clock; and it is hoped that none will fail giving their Attendance accordingly."—N. Y. Jour., Apr. 7, 1768. See Apr. 8.

To the Public.

THE long expected TEA SHIP arrived last night at Sandy-Hook, but the pilot would not bring up the Captain till the sense of the city was known. The committee were immediately informed of her arrival, and that the Captain solicits for liberty to come up to provide necessaries for his return. The ship to remain at Sandy-Hook. The committee conceiving it to be the sense of the city that he should have such liberty, signified it to the Gentleman who is to supply him with provisions, and other necessaries. Advice of this was immediately dispatched to the Captain; and whenever he comes up, care will be taken that he does not enter at the custom-house, and that no time be lost in dispatching him.

New-York, April 19, 1774.

Proceedings of the Committee of Correspondence in New-York.

Committee-Chairman, July 13, 1774.

P R E S E N T.

- Mr. Goble,
- Mr. Flanagan,
- Mr. B. J. B. B.
- Mr. C. B. B.
- Mr. D. B. B.
- Mr. E. B. B.
- Mr. F. B. B.
- Mr. G. B. B.
- Mr. H. B. B.
- Mr. I. B. B.
- Mr. J. B. B.
- Mr. K. B. B.
- Mr. L. B. B.
- Mr. M. B. B.
- Mr. N. B. B.
- Mr. O. B. B.
- Mr. P. B. B.
- Mr. Q. B. B.
- Mr. R. B. B.
- Mr. S. B. B.
- Mr. T. B. B.
- Mr. U. B. B.
- Mr. V. B. B.
- Mr. W. B. B.
- Mr. X. B. B.
- Mr. Y. B. B.
- Mr. Z. B. B.

Ordered, That the said Mr. Goble, do give notice to the said Mr. B. J. B. B. to appear before the said Committee, on the 20th inst. at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to answer to the said Mr. Goble's charge against him, and to produce such evidence as he shall think proper to support the same.

ORDERED.

That the said Mr. Goble, do give notice to the said Mr. B. J. B. B. to appear before the said Committee, on the 20th inst. at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to answer to the said Mr. Goble's charge against him, and to produce such evidence as he shall think proper to support the same.

RESOLVED. That the said Mr. Goble, do give notice to the said Mr. B. J. B. B. to appear before the said Committee, on the 20th inst. at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to answer to the said Mr. Goble's charge against him, and to produce such evidence as he shall think proper to support the same.

RESOLVED. That the said Mr. Goble, do give notice to the said Mr. B. J. B. B. to appear before the said Committee, on the 20th inst. at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to answer to the said Mr. Goble's charge against him, and to produce such evidence as he shall think proper to support the same.

RESOLVED. That the said Mr. Goble, do give notice to the said Mr. B. J. B. B. to appear before the said Committee, on the 20th inst. at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to answer to the said Mr. Goble's charge against him, and to produce such evidence as he shall think proper to support the same.

RESOLVED. That the said Mr. Goble, do give notice to the said Mr. B. J. B. B. to appear before the said Committee, on the 20th inst. at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to answer to the said Mr. Goble's charge against him, and to produce such evidence as he shall think proper to support the same.

RESOLVED. That the said Mr. Goble, do give notice to the said Mr. B. J. B. B. to appear before the said Committee, on the 20th inst. at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to answer to the said Mr. Goble's charge against him, and to produce such evidence as he shall think proper to support the same.

RESOLVED. That the said Mr. Goble, do give notice to the said Mr. B. J. B. B. to appear before the said Committee, on the 20th inst. at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to answer to the said Mr. Goble's charge against him, and to produce such evidence as he shall think proper to support the same.

RESOLVED. That the said Mr. Goble, do give notice to the said Mr. B. J. B. B. to appear before the said Committee, on the 20th inst. at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to answer to the said Mr. Goble's charge against him, and to produce such evidence as he shall think proper to support the same.

RESOLVED. That the said Mr. Goble, do give notice to the said Mr. B. J. B. B. to appear before the said Committee, on the 20th inst. at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to answer to the said Mr. Goble's charge against him, and to produce such evidence as he shall think proper to support the same.

RESOLVED. That the said Mr. Goble, do give notice to the said Mr. B. J. B. B. to appear before the said Committee, on the 20th inst. at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to answer to the said Mr. Goble's charge against him, and to produce such evidence as he shall think proper to support the same.

RESOLVED. That the said Mr. Goble, do give notice to the said Mr. B. J. B. B. to appear before the said Committee, on the 20th inst. at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to answer to the said Mr. Goble's charge against him, and to produce such evidence as he shall think proper to support the same.

RESOLVED. That the said Mr. Goble, do give notice to the said Mr. B. J. B. B. to appear before the said Committee, on the 20th inst. at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to answer to the said Mr. Goble's charge against him, and to produce such evidence as he shall think proper to support the same.

- 1768 James Durand, "having from his infancy endeavoured to qualify Apr. himself in the art of historical painting, humbly hopes for that encouragement from the gentlemen and ladies of this City and province, that so elegant and entertaining an art has always obtain'd from people of the most improved minds and best taste and judgment, in all polite nations of every age. And tho' he is sensible that to excel, (in this branch of painting especially) requires a more ample fund of universal and accurate knowledge than he can pretend to, in geometry, geography, perspective, anatomy, expression of the passions, antient and modern history, &c. yet he hopes, from the good nature and indulgence of the gentlemen and ladies who employ him, that his humble attempts, in which his best endeavours will not be wanting, will meet with acceptance, and give satisfaction; and he proposes to work at as cheap rates as any person in America . . ." His office is "Near the city-hall, broad-street."—N. Y. Jour., April 7, 1768. Another advertisement of his may be found in the N. Y. Jour., Nov. 26, 1767. For further information, see Dunlap's Arts of Design, I, 169.
- " "To be let from the first of May next, with or without Furniture, as may suit the Tenant; The large Corner House, wherein Mrs. Steel lately kept the King's Arms Tavern, near the Fort, now in the Possession of Col. Gabbett; Inquire of Francis Panton, Hair Dresser, in Broad-Street, near the Exchange."—N. Y. Jour., Apr. 7, 1768. See May 1, 1768.
- " John Bingham, a cordwainer, becomes lessee of the "Stalls and Standings" in the several city markets at £410 for the term of one year commencing May 1st.—M. C. C., VII, 109. For previous lessees, see ibid., VIII, 349 (title, "Markets, public").
- 8 "The Merchants of this City have come to an Agreement [see April 7] not to import any Goods from Great Britain that shall be shipped there after the first of October next, until a certain Act of Parliament is repealed, provided the Merchants of Philadelphia and Boston come into the same Measures."—N. Y. Merc., Apr. 18, 1768. See Apr. 14.
- " The Cherokee chiefs (see Dec. 11, 1767) "lately returned from Albany" entertain the spectators at the theatre in New York with a war dance. They embarked for South Carolina on April 11.—N. Y. Jour., Apr. 14, 1768.
- 11 George Hopkins advertises the sale on this day of the "House on Golden Hill" where he lives. "Tis very convenient, having seven Rooms with Fire Places in each, an excellent Cistern and a good Yard, with a small Stable therein."—N. Y. Merc., Apr. 4, 1768. George and Edward Hopkins were proprietors, in 1763 (see June 20), of the Mason's Arms Tavern on William St.
- 14 A letter of this date to the Journal proposes an introduction to the agreement of the merchants to suspend and stop orders for goods imported from Great Britain. A note follows the letter: "Since the above was fitted for the Press, we find that most of the Merchants and Importers of Goods, have already subscribed a voluntary Engagement to each other, that they will not sell on their own Accounts or on Commissions, nor buy or sell for any Person whomsoever, any Goods, (save a very few enumerated Articles) which shall be shipped from Great-Britain after the first Day of October next, until the Act of Parliament imposing Duties on Paper, Glass &c. be repealed: Provided Boston and Philadelphia adopt similar Measures by the first of June next. The Gentlemen of the Committee of Merchants, appointed at their last Meeting, have found the Inhabitants so very unanimous, that it is thought there is hardly an Importer in the City, but what have subscribed or will subscribe."—N. Y. Jour., April 14, 1768. See Aug. 27.
- 18 "A very beneficial Branch of Trade has been long neglected in this Province, that is, Whaling; but we now have some Hopes of seeing it revived, as Mr. Robert Murray, and Messrs. Franklin's have at their own Expence, fitted out a Sloop for that Purpose, which sailed Yesterday."—N. Y. Merc., April 18, 1768.
- " Inasmuch as the "Ground fronting the Commons" on which it was proposed to build the "New School" (see March 25) is not at present available, Obediah Wells's (see Jan. 23, 1766) lease for the same not yet having expired, it is ordered by the Trinity vestry "that a Temporary School House of Fifty feet in front and thirty feet deep be erected and built on some of the Lots behind Trinity Church and that the same be built of Brick and covered with Tile or Slate."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- 21 The Earl of Hillsborough transmits to the governors in America a "copy of a letter from the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, addressed by order of that House to the Speaker of the Assembly of each Colony" (see Feb. 11). Hillsborough adds: "As his Majesty considers this Measure to be a most dangerous & factious tendency calculated to inflame the minds of his good Subjects in the Colonies, to promote an unwarrantable combination and to excite and encourage an open opposition to and denial of the Authority of Parliament, & to subvert the true principles of the constitution; It is his Majesty's pleasure that you should immediately upon the Receipt hereof exert your utmost influence to defeat this flagitious attempt to disturb the Public Peace by prevailing upon the Assembly of your Province to take no notice of it, which will be treating it with the contempt it deserves."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII, 58-59. For New York's action in regard to the circular letter, see Dec. 31.

The Mercury says that a New Yorker has written in one of his letters: "Let People talk what they will of the Americans establishing Manufactories among them, I do assure you, nothing can be carried into Execution (at least for the present) for the want of Money, which greatly affects all Ranks."—N. Y. Merc., April 25, 1768.

Gov. Moore, in a letter to Lord Hillsborough, states that "great quantities of Leather" are being tanned in this country, and that the business has been carried on for many years (see June 7, 1676). The leather, he says, is "greatly inferior in quality to that made in Europe; and they are not yet arrived to the perfection of making Sole-leather."—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), I, 499.

John Taylor (formerly an upholsterer, at Cow-Foot Hill) now occupies "the Glass-House, at Newfoundland [see Feb. 8, 1757], in the Out-Ward," and advertises to carry on there the business of "a Tavern, and Place of Publick Entertainment."—N. Y. Merc., May 9, 1768. The place had become a tavern five years before.—See May 23, 1763. How long it remained so does not appear in the records. As a farm, the place was advertised for sale during the Revolution by one "William M'Adam, Hanover-Square."—Royal Gaz., April 7, 1779. In 1803, nine acres of the property, called the "old Glass House," were advertised for rent.—Conn. Adv., Feb. 25, 1803. In another advertisement of about the same time, it was described as half a mile above the state prison.—N. Y. Gaz. & Gen. Adv., March 31, 1803.

Moore reports that money is scarce and all ranks greatly impoverished.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII, 72; 96-97. Cf. May 15, 1767.

An advertisement reads: "Charles Shipman, Ivory and Hardwood Turner, Removed from the Corner near the Old-Ship, to the White-Hall, near the Battery, and next Door to Mr. Sweetland's takes this Opportunity of returning his Friends his most grateful Thanks for their kind Favours, and hopes for a Continuance of the same, as he intends carrying on the Turning Business in all the various unmentioned Articles, with the utmost Dispatch, and on the most reasonable Terms, viz. Mahogany Tea Boards, Waiters and Bottle Stands, Mortars and Pestles, Paste Rulers, and round Rulers, Sugar Hammers, Tobacco Sieves, Sand Dishes, Dice and Dice Boxes, Pack Thread, Pepper, Patch, Rosin, Shaving and Washball Boxes; Glove, Drum, and Walking Sticks; Billiard Balls and Maces, Bell Handles, Cups and Balls, Torments, Toothpick Cases, and Scent Eggs, Ivory Nutmeg Graters and Dog Whistles, German Flutes, tipp'd; Cruet Frames repair'd, and many other Articles too tedious to mention.

"N. B. He likewise engraves Copper Plates, Seals, &c."—N. Y. Merc., May 16, 1768; Stauffer, Am. Engravers on Copper and Steel, I, 246.

At the King's College commencement, the degree of M.D. is conferred upon four candidates.—N. Y. Jour., May 26, 1768. Mrs. Lamb mentions this in her article, "The Golden Age of Colonial New York" in Mag. Am. Hist. (1890), XXIV: 13. Pasko, Old N. Y., II: 183, is in error when he says that the first medical degree was conferred in New York on Nov. 22, 1769.

A commission is issued to Samuel Child, of New York, to be surrogate.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 773.

The common council orders that the alderman and councilmen of the South and Dock Wards "Cause the Spurr fronting the West Great Dock in the south ward of this City, to be Repaired, and to be of the breadth of forty five feet Rangeing with the Street Leading from the White hall, easterly so far as the present Spurr now Ruins."—M. C. C., VII: 114. On June 28, they reported that they had entered into an agreement to have the dock made 140 ft. long,

Apr. 21
25
See A. 28
May 7
9 14
16
17 21
June 3

- 1768 12 ft. wide, and 10 ft. deep, for £190, and this was approved.—
 June Ibid., VII: 115-16. Payment of this amount was made Sept. 28; also about £50 for repairs for the dock. The board ordered that the total amount, £239, "shall be Repaid them by the proprietors of the Lots fronting the said west Great Dock before a grant shall pass to them for the said west Great Dock and ground without the same, as the spur now built is laid in such a manner as to serve for a street whenever this board shall think proper to give Grants for said West great Dock."—Ibid., VII: 125. Such grants were not made until Sept. 17, 1772 (q.v.). Payments were made on June 8 and 15, 1769, "for finishing the Spur at the Great Dock."—Ibid., VII: 165, 169.
- 6 The house at the upper end of French Church (Pine) St. "lately occupied by Captain Montresur" is advertised to be let.—N. Y. Merc., Suppl. to June 6, 1768. Montresur was author of the plan of New York City, made for military uses, in 1766, during the Stamp Act riots.—See Dec. 16, 1765 and Vol. I, Pl. 40; also plate description, 339-40.
- 10 John Hancock's sloop "Liberty" is seized at Boston by the customs officers and stationed "under the Guns" of the "Romney" man-of-war. This conduct angers the populace and, in the dispute which follows, the collector, the comptroller of the customs, and the collector's son are "roughly used, and pelted with Stones." Later, "a mix'd Multitude" broke some of the windows of the comptroller's house, attacked the inspector of exports and imports, and, in the evening, burned "to ashes" a large pleasure-boat belonging to the collector.—N. Y. Jour., June 23, 1768. See also Winer, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., VI: 43, 79.
- 16 Samuel Francis advertises the opening of Vauxhall Garden, which, during "his Absence from this City," has been "occupied by Major James."—N. Y. Jour., June 16, 1768.
- 17 The walls of the North Dutch Church under construction (see July 2, 1767) are "finish'd to receive the Roof."—Jour. of the proceedings of the Ref. Prot. Dutch Church, op. cit. See June 21.
- 21 Columns to support the gallery in the North Dutch Church are erected.—See July 2, 1767. Each of these columns had inscribed beneath its capital the initials of the donor.—Chambers, The Noon Prayer Meeting (1858), 25. For other facts in connection with the building of this church, see July 4 and Aug. 23, 1768; March 20 and May 2, 1769.
- 28 A committee of the common council is appointed to determine "the Expence of Laying a peer on the west side of pecks Slip."—M. C. C., VII: 116. A year later, on June 8, 1769, the board agreed "that the water Lott fronting the Ground of this Corporation, on the west side of pecks Slip be filled up and Docked out," and a committee was appointed to prepare a plan and estimate.—Ibid., VII: 164. On June 15, the board ordered "that a peer of the breadth of 18 feet be laid out of said Ground to be filled up adjoining said Slip upon a Raage laid down in a plan now Exhibited to this Board."—Ibid., VII: 169-70, 179. On Dec. 1, payment of £150 was made on account of this wharf, and £44:17:7 "for building a Stone wall at Pecks Slip" (Ibid., VII: 192); and on Feb. 15, £25 more for building the wharf (Ibid., VII: 206).
- " In response to a petition of "Sundry Inhabitants Living and Residing in and near Murrays Street, in the west ward of this City," the corporation orders "that the same Street be Regulated."—M. C. C., VII: 116. The first regulation of Murray St. is recorded under date of May 20, 1775 (q.v.).
- " John Clopper is appointed "a wharfinger of this Corporation to Collect in the wharfage arising from the two Sides of the Corporations additional peer only" (Albany Pier—see Aug. 13, 1767) for one year, beginning July 1, 1768. The common council decides to allow him "the usual Commission, which is Received by Francis Marschall as wharfinger for some of the proprietors of water Lots in the Dock ward."—M. C. C., VII: 116.
- July The following observation was made by Du Simitière, when in New York at this time seeking data for a history of the colonies; it appears in his MSS., Book No. 1412 Yi (Library Company, Phila.): "Paintings in New York July 1768 At M<sup>r</sup> Gerardus Stuyvesante grand Son to Pieter Stuyvesante governor of New Netherland when the place Surrendered to the English in 1664. there is a picture in husto of the Sald Pieter in Oil with a falling band & Tossels [sic] armour & Sash [see June 12, 1663]. Two pictures of his mother & father on board in oil & a conversation piece in a laudskip on board also in oil. two figures Some of his family a Woman Setting with a large ruff about the neck & a man Standing all tolerably well done the decay'd Specially the last in the Windows of the house (which is built in the old dutch taste) are many Sm[all] panes of glass painted representing coat of arms of Several of the iohabitants] of New Amsterdam in those days about 1662. 63 & 64 they were taken out off] the Church that formerly Stood there of which some part of the wall is Still to b[e] Seen but by the ignorance of the glasier misplaced & revers'd most of all the Name of Tonnemane Schout of Amster<sup>m</sup> in N. Nederl<sup>d</sup> 1663 the oames of De Peyster, Van Brug, Backer, & with Some of their Coat of Arms are still to be Seen which Seems to be very authentick pieces to prove the Antiquities of the rank of those families, the present proprietor was born in the year 1692. the church that Stood there had been built by Govero<sup>r</sup> Stuyvesante but the town people finding it too far to go, they built one in towo which is now the old dutch Church & the pulpit that now Stands in it is the Same that was in the former church as the above old gentleman informed me. the place above mentioned is a farm Situated about a Short mile from the tow]o to the right hand Side going out of towo in the main Road "tw]o was call'd the Bo[we]ry] which name all the road has retain'd] to this day it being the dutch word [for] farm at that place the treaty was Sign'd] hertwix the comissioners of Char[les] the 2<sup>d</sup> & Gov<sup>r</sup> Stuyvesante there is a vault upon the Place where the old Governor is Buried as well as Govern<sup>r</sup> Slough-ter." Regarding the painted glass, see Oct. 9, 1656, and March 28, 1662; for the burial of Gov. Stuyvesant, see Feb., 1672; and that of Sloughter, July 23, 1691. For the burning of this residence ("Petersfield"), see Oct. 24, 1778. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 952.
- " The Roof of said Church [North Dutch] was Raised the 4th day of July 1768. being one year & two days from the Laying the first foundation stone" (see July 2, 1767).—Jour. of the proceedings of the Ref. Prot. Dutch Church, op. cit. See Aug. 23.
- 7 In answer to Hillsborough's letter of April 21 (q.v.), Gov. Moore says: "The circular letter wrote by the Speaker of the Massachusetts's Assembly . . . did not arrive here before an end was put to the Session by a dissolution. It is impossible for me to say at present what would have been the effect, if the letter had been receiv'd during the Session, but . . . I do not imagine this Province would have shew'd that forwardness which many others have done on this occasion.
- " The Apprehensions which every Person of property was under during our late Comotions from the Licentiousness of the Populace are not yet forgotten, and I believe they would not willingly see those scenes of disorder renew'd."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 80.
- " Triunity vestry gives power to its committee to borrow funds "to Compleat the Building of the New School House and altering the House intended for a Parsonage House for the Rector" (see March 25). The staircase of the school is to be "Carried up on the Outside of the Building."—Trin. Min. (MS.)
- 13 The governour in council signs a warrant to Henry Holland, Frederick Philipps, John Morin Scott, Wm. Bayard, and Benj. Kissam for expenses in running the New York and New Jersey partition line.—Col. Coun. Min., 477.
- 14 The "New York Paper Manufactory," between Fly Market and Burling Slip, is completed. "All those who have the Welfare of the Country at Heart, are desired seriously to consider the Importance of a Paper Manufactory to this Government, and how much Good they may do it, by preserving the Linen Rags, particularly the fine ones . . . by manufacturing of it here, Numbers of poor People are daily employ'd and the Money still remains in a circulating State." People who desire paper are to send their orders to John Keating.—N. Y. Jour., July 14, 1768. In 1756, the proprietor of the Post-Boy complained of the stamp duty, saying that the "Philadelphians have greatly the advantage of us, they have paper-mills among them" (see N. Y. Post-Boy, Oct. 4, 1756). The paper mill above established, if the first, must have supplied a real need in New York.
- 18 "The Worshipful Mayor, and the other Magistrates of this City, are, we hear, determined to prohibit, for the future, the Butchers of this Place selling any Kind of Provisions on Sunday Morning."—N. Y. Merc., July 18, 1768. It does not appear that any official action was taken.
- 21 Samuel Francis exhibits wax figures at Vauxhall Garden.—N. Y. Jour., July 21, 1768.
- 27 William Weyman, "for many Years past a Printer of Note in this City," dies "of a lingering Illness."—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 1, 1768.

1768 John Taylor, for the convenience of the public, will this day
 Aug. begin to run a regular stage "punctually at 5 o'Clock in the After-1 Aug. noon, from the House of Mr. Vandenberg, Stable-Keeper, in the Fields, near St. Paul's, to the Glass-house," at Newfoundland, (see page 9).—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 1, 1768.

" Abraham van Dyck advertises that a leopard and several other animals may be seen at his house "in the Broad Way," near St.
 Paul's Church.—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 1, 1768. This may have been Van Denberg's house, or one near it. On May 1 of this same year, Israel Waters announced that he had taken over Van Denberg's stable.—Ibid., May 2, 1768. Garret van Denberg, probably a son of Adam van Denberg, was exhibiting, in the spring of 1769, at this same house, "an Ox that cost £100 this Currency."—Ibid., March 6, 1769. Van Dyck contoured to keep tavern, probably in the same place, as late as 1775, when the Military Club met here.
 See June 2, 1775. Cornelius, another member of the Van Denberg family, was at this time proprietor of the Bull's Head in the Bowery.

12 It is ordered by the common council "for the future that all Grants Issued by this board for Lands be under the seal of this Corporation, and witnessed by the Mayor and Senior Alderman present in Common Council." The first grant under this regulation is for a water lot, fronting Hunter's Key, to Jacob Sarly, on this day.—M. C. C., VII: 119, 121.

" The common council orders that Joseph Fairly be paid £30,
 "in part what this board agreed to Give him for Compleating the Road on Incklawbergh."—M. C. C., VII: 121. On Sept. 28, £20 more were paid on this account.—Ibid., VII: 125. The last instalment, £29, was paid on Oct. 12.—Ibid., VII: 128. This road appears to be that subsequently known as the "Middle Road." It is shown without name, as early as 1767, on the "Ratzer Map" (Pl. 41, Vol. I), but finished only as far as the Murray farm. It was evidently continued, in 1768 (as the above cited entries would indicate), about as far south as the present 31st St. Payment was ordered by the common council, on Oct. 12, "for Carpenters work and plank found for the Bridge that Leads across Incklawbergh."— Ibid., VII: 129. This bridge is shown on A. Pl. 9-3, Vol. III, also on the "Map of the Common Lands," surveyed by Ludlam, to be found in Spidman and Brush's maps (1881), 156. It spanned the western outlet of Sun Fish Pond near the present corner of Fourth Ave. and 31st St.—See Pl. 176, Vol. III, and Landmark Map Ref.
 Key, III: 1005, under "Middle Road."

15 The common council orders "that a small addition be made to the Kitchen of the poor House in order to fix an Iron pot, for the Dressing of Victuals."—M. C. C., VII: 123. Further a committee is appointed to "Cause the Room above the assembly Chamber in the City hall to be fitted up for the use of the Council."—M. C. C., VII: 123. On Sept. 27, 1769 (9-11), payment of £141:18:9 was made for work done in finishing the "Council Room in the City Hall."—Ibid., VII: 182.

23 The consistory of the Dutch Church resolves "that a vault be made in the Third Church [the North Dutch Church] for a burying place for the ministers, their wives and children."—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4130.

27 The merchants of the city adopt the following resolutions:
 "I. That we will not send for from Great-Britain either upon our own Account or on Commission this Fall, any other Goods than what we have already ordered
 "II. That we will not import any kind of Merchandize from Great-Britain, either on our own Account or on Commission, or any otherwise, nor purchase from any Factor or others, any kind of Goods imported from Great-Britain directly, or by Way of any of the other Colonies, or by Way of the West-Indies, that shall be shipped from Great-Britain after the First Day of November, until the forementioned Acts of Parliament imposing Duties on Paper, Glass, &c. be repealed; except only the Articles of Coals, Salt, Sail-Cloth, Wool-Cards, and Card-Wire, Grindstones, Chalk, Lead, Tin, Sheet Copper and German Steel.
 "III. We further agree, not to import any kind of Merchandize from Hamburg and Holland, directly from thence, or by any other Way whatever, more than what we have already ordered (except Tiles and Bricks).
 "IV. We also promise to countermand all Orders given from Great-Britain, on or since the 16th Inst. by the first Convoynce, ordering those Goods not to be sent unless the forementioned Duties are taken off.

"V. And we further agree, that if any Person or Persons, Subscribers hereto, shall take any Advantage by importing any kind of Goods that are herein restricted, directly or indirectly contrary to the true Intent and Meaning of this Agreement; such Person or Persons shall by us be deemed Enemies to their Country.
 "VI. Lastly, we agree, that if any Goods shall be consigned or sent over to us, contrary to our Agreement in this subscription; such Goods so imported, shall be lodged in some public Ware-House there to be kept under Confinement until the forementioned Acts are repealed.
 "Subscribed by nearly all the Merchants and Traders in Town."
 —N. Y. Jour., Sept. 8, 1768. See Apr. 14.

Sept. 5 A great number of the tradesmen and mechanics of New York, "Reflecting on the salutary measures entered into by the merchants in Boston, and this city, to restrict the importation of goods from Great-Britain, until the acts of Parliament laying duties on paper, glass, &c. were repealed; and being animated with the spirit of liberty," agree to the following resolutions:
 "First, That we do not, ourselves, purchase . . . any goods . . . imported from Europe, by any merchant, directly or indirectly, contrary to the true intent and meaning of an agreement of the merchants of this city; on the 27th of August last [9-11].
 "Secondly, That we will not . . . buy any kind of goods from any merchant, . . . who shall refuse to join with their brethren in signing the said agreement; but that we will use every lawful means in our power to prevent our acquaintance from dealing with them.
 "Thirdly, That if any merchant in or from Europe, should import any goods, in order to sell them in this province . . . that we ourselves, will by no means deal with such importers . . .
 "Fourthly, That we will endeavour to fall upon some Expedient to make known such Importers or Retailers as shall refuse to unite in maintaining and obtaining the liberties of their country.
 "Fifthly, That we his Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects . . . being filled with love and gratitude to our present most gracious Sovereign, and the highest veneration for the British constitution; which we now unite to plead as our birth-right . . . give it as our opinion, and are determin'd to deem that person, who shall refuse to unite in the common cause, as acting the part of an enemy to the true interest of Great Britain and her colonies, and consequently not deserving the patronage of merchants, or mechanics."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 12, 1768. There is a similar account in the N. Y. Jour., Sept. 15, 1768.

" An advertisement states that "Journey-men Nail-Makers are wanted immediately, such properly qualified will meet with good Encouragement, by applying to William Ustick, at the Sign of the Lock and Key, between Burling's and Beskman's Slip."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Sept. 5, 1768. The nailery was erected by Nov. 17.—N. Y. Jour., Nov. 17, 1768.

9 A letter of this date from Philadelphia states that, a few days earlier, Major Moncrief arrived in New York with dispatches for Gen. Gage from the king. "Immediately on the receipt of them, orders were given to hire transports, as they said, to carry troops to St. Augustine." The merchants of New York, on being applied to, refused to supply any vessels, for they felt sure they would be sent against "their brethren at Boston to enslave them." Notices (see Sept. 28) were posted at the Coffee House and at the corners of every street to the effect that "if any man dared to hire them a vessel, destruction would ensue." As a result, the military authorities could get only one strange ship that lay in the North River.—Boston Chron., Nov. 14, 1768.

20 G. Taylor, of Sheffield, Eng., arrives in New York by "a single horse chair" (chaise) from New Haven, and stops at "the King's arms near the Oswego market." Of New York he writes, in part, that it "contains upwards of three thousand houses, and above eighteen thousand inhabitants."
 "It is pretty well built, extending a mile in length, and about half that in breadth; and makes a beautiful prospect from the sea. The houses in general are built of brick, most of them in the Dutch method. The streets vary irregular, but well paved; . . .
 "Their public buildings are spacious and comfortable: The principal ones are, Trinity church, St. George's chapel, St. Paul's church, Old Dutch church, two new Dutch churches, German Calvinists, two Lutheran churches, one Scotch church, two Presbyterian meeting houses, Seceders, or Scotch Presbyterians ditto, Anabaptists, Moravians, Quakers, Methodists and a Jewish syna-

Aug. 27
 Sept. 5
 9
 20

1768 gogue. The Governor's Palace in Fort George, City-Hall, Exchange, Sept. New Gao, Hospital, Secretary's Office, Barracks, Alms-House; besides five markets, viz. Counties, Old Slip, Fly, Oswego, and New-Market." He describes a trip to Flushing, L. I., by going up East River and taking passage "in the Flushing stage-boat." On East River, he says, "are beautiful plantations; and all along are the country-houses of the City Merchants. Tho' the generality of the land be rocky, it has a fertile soil . . .

"The Dutch, who inhabit the greatest part of this shore, come to market some twenty, some thirty miles down this river in small boats to New-York. The wives generally row the boat, while the husbands sit in an idle posture smoking . . ."—A Voyage to No. Am. (Nottingham), 171.

24 Sir William Johnson's conference with the Indians at Fort Staawik begins, resulting in the drawing of a boundary line between the English colonists and the Indians.—Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., VI: Ch. 8. See map showing the line in ibid., VI: 609.

28 The following proclamation is published by order of Gov. Moore: "Whereas sundry Papers [see Sept. 9] have lately been published, and fixed up in divers Parts of this City, of a seditious Tendency, calculated to obstruct, oppose and impede His Majesty's Service, and containing Menaces and Threats of inevitable Destruction to such Owners or Masters of Vessels, or other Persons as shall engage or charter any Vessels in the Service of His Majesty. In Order therefore to bring the Author or Authors of such seditious Papers to condign Punishment, I have thought fit, by the Advice of His Majesty's Council to issue this Proclamation hereby, in His Majesty's Name, offering a Reward of Fifty Pounds, to any Person or Persons who shall discover the Author or Authors of the seditious Papers aforesaid, so that he or they be thereof convicted: And over and above the said Reward I do hereby promise His Majesty's Most Gracious Pardon, to any Accomplice or Accomplices, who shall discover the Author or Authors of such seditious Papers so published as aforesaid."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 10, 1768; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 77a.

"A committee reports to the common council that it has caused "Van de Water" St. to be regulated and levelled.—M. C. C., VII: 124. A further regulation of "Van de Water" St. was ordered, Aug. 14, 1771.—Ibid., VII: 307-8. The street was laid out prior to 1767.—See Pl. 41, Vol. I.

Oct. The consistency of the Dutch Church passes the following resolution: "Since the condition of the Third Church, now named the North [Church], demands particular care above what is common with the Elders, Deacons and Church Masters hitherto in use" (in office), it is resolved "That two persons be chosen under the name of Trustees, who alone shall have care over the revenues of the church. . . ." Jakobus Roosevelt, Jr. and John de Peyster are appointed the first trustees.—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4136. At this time it was believed the new church was "so far advanced in Building . . . that service might be therein performed on next new years Day."—Jour. of the proceedings of the Ref. Prot. Dutch Church, op. cit. The first service was on May 25, 1769 (q. v.).

30 The Methodist Episcopal Church (spoken of more commonly as Wesley Chapel or "John Street Meeting") on John St. is opened and dedicated by Philip Embury.—Wakeley, Lost Chap. recovered from Early Hist. of Am. Meth., 109; Seaman, Annals of N. Y. Meth., 1766-1890, 41. There are two deeds of sale of the land on which the church was erected; one bears the date March 30, 1768, and the other Nov. 2, 1770. Both of these documents are now in the hands of the trustees of the Eighteenth Street Church.—Seaman, op. cit., 416-22; Wakeley, op. cit., 57-62. The church stood "some distance from the street. Its length was sixty feet, its breadth forty-two, and the walls were built of stone, the face covered over with a blue plaster, exhibiting an appearance of durability, simplicity and plainness. . . The interior was equally plain, and remained many years in an unfinished state. There were at first no stairs or breastwork to the galleries, and the hearers ascended by a ladder and listened to the preacher from the platform. For a long while, even the seats on the lower floor had no backs."—Wakeley, op. cit., 108. "A house occupied as the parsonage stood partly before the front, and was a building in the antique taste of the Dutch; it also contained the Methodist library, and was founded many years before the church. . . To screen the congregation from the passing multitudes in the street, a wooden partition or fence, having a gateway and a small door on one side was put up, and thus formed an area paved with brick, about 30 feet wide."—A Short Hist. Account of the Early Soc. of Meth. in City of N. Y.

(1824), 6. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 930, and Vol. I, pp. 344-46. For a view of the church, see Pl. 43, Vol. I.

35 A second loan of £1,500 is raised by the Dutch Church to go on with the building of the "North Church."—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4136. The first was on March 31 (q. v.).

7 The Trinity vestry orders "that the Street Door leading into the Vestry Room of the New School House be taken away and a Window be placed in the Stead of it."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

8 The assembly orders that a committee draw up "an humble, dutiful and loyal petition to His Majesty, a memorial to the lords and a remonstrance to the commons of Great Britain; praying relief from the grievances His Majesty's subjects within this colony labor under, from the acts of parliament passed in the sixth session of the last parliament, imposing duties in the colonies for the purpose of raising a revenue, and of the several other acts passed by that parliament relative to the colonies."—Assemb. Jour. (1768-9), 16. See Dec. 12.

9 Gov. Moore sends the following message to the assembly: "The sums granted by an act of the legislature, passed the 21st day of December, 1767 [q. v.], for furnishing His Majesty's troops quartered in this Colony with necessaries, having been expended, as directed by the said act, I now recommend to the house of Assembly, to make a further provision for that service."—Assemb. Jour. (1768-9), 18.

14 A report prevailing that the effigies of Gov. Bernard and Sheriff Greenleaf of Boston are to be exhibited in New York, armed troops patrol the streets near the lower barracks in order "to intimidate the inhabitants." However, the effigies "made their appearance in the streets, hanging on a gallows, between eight and nine o'clock, attended by a vast number of spectators who saluted them with loud buzzes, at the corner of every street they passed; and after having been exposed some time at the Coffee house, they were publicly burnt amidst the acclamations of the populace."—Boston Chron., Nov. 28, 1768; N. Y. Merc., Nov. 21, 1768; N. Y. Jour., Nov. 17, 1768. See Nov. 10.

18 Smith records in his diary: "I made a visit to Sr H Moore upon the Subject of Holt's Representation yesterday of the Riot of last Monday [see Nov. 14]—I told him that upon the Mayor's Intimation of the Design last Friday Mr Watts & I met the Magistrates and remonstrated ag<sup>t</sup> it as injurious to the Country & so ill Timed as to disserve the Cause the Rioters meant to promote—that it would induce the government to turn a Deaf Ear to our Petitions and prevent our Friends from urging Relief upon the Inexpediency of the late Duty Act—I added that we advised the Magistrates to patrol their Wards the next Day with two or three respectable Citizens and propagate these sentiments to render Riots unpopular by preingaging the Voice of the discreet Inhabitants—That this was done with Success by the Magistrates for that at a Meeting with 80 Firemen and others on Saturday Evening the Mayor spoke to them and they in general promised to stand by him in preserving the Peace of the City. That this Morning I was informed the Merchants were in a Body to attend the Assembly & ask what was become of the Boston Letters whence I concluded that the Neglect of the late Riot imboldened some designing Persons to awe the Assembly who in the Main have sentiments friendly to the Governor Government and the true Interest of the Province. That there was now a Necessity for animadverting upon the late Riot and that Measures ought to be taken to prevent this Spirit from spreading—The Gov<sup>d</sup> heard me for half an Hour and said that the Mayor left him as he came into speak with me—That he had sent for him to request a Counter Represent<sup>n</sup> in Gaine's Paper to shew that the Riot was promoted by a contemptible Few & ought not to be charged upon the City in General—I told him that as the three Branches were now all together more was necessary—An Order that the Magistrates make Enquiry for the Contrivers & Chief Promoters & that some of the Council be directed to assist them in their Examinations, that a Procl<sup>s</sup> should be issued promising a Reward for Discoveries & that a message should be sent to the assembly for a Provision of money to answer the Promises."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.

19 Gov. Moore issues a proclamation offering a reward of £50 for the discovery of the persons who, on Nov. 14 (q. v.), "suddenly began a Riot at the Northeasterly End of Queen-Street, and, eluding the Vigilance of the Magistrates then assembled in the Out-Skirts of the City, proceeded hastily, with great Noise and Tumult, as far as the Merchant's Coffee-House, and there burnt certain Figures or Effigies, in the Presence of a Rabble of Negroes and Children."—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 28, 1768. There is a copy of

1768 this broadside in the Du Simithère collection in one of the set of Nov. volumes lettered "Matter concerning New York," in the archives of the Library Co. of Phila. (Ridgway Branch); photostat in N. Y. P. L.

21 Gov. Moore, in a message to the assembly, states that some intimations having been given to the mayor and magistrates of New York "of a design to disturb the public peace, by a riot," he had hoped, by the zeal of the magistrates to maintain "the tranquility of the city." However, a few ill-disposed persons, having eluded the vigilance of the magistrates, and attempted to start a riot (see Nov. 14), he had issued a proclamation (see Nov. 10) offering a reward for the conviction of "the authors and chief promoters of this outrage." He now asks the assembly to concur with him "in the necessary steps to prevent the colony from suffering any detriment."—Assemb. Jour., (1768-9), 28. On Nov. 23, the assembly replied that though they felt, in common with the rest of the colonies, "the distresses occasioned by the new duties imposed by the parliament of Great Britain, and the ill-policed state of the American commerce," yet they were "far from conceiving, that violent and tumultuous proceedings" would have any tendency "to promote suitable redress." They assured the governor that the disorderly proceedings were "disapproved by the inhabitants in general and are imputable only to the indiscretion of a very few persons of the lowest class."—Ibid., (1768-9), 30-31. See Jan. 4, 1769.

" In speaking of the opposition in the assembly to the proclamation against the rioters, of Nov. 14 (q. v.), Smith says: "Never did the De Lanceys act with less Craft.—They lost Credit with the Govern<sup>mt</sup> & now gave Proof of what I had told Sir Harry [Gov.
 Moore] of their wanting to Head the Mobb to disturb his administration of which he had given the Council a broad Hint which De Lancey & Watts denied, & affected not to believe.—They lost Credit also with the Weighty Citizens who all disapproved of the Riot—The Mob was now stunned & the Power to disturb the public Repose all over. If they had acted cunningly they should knowing the sense of the House the Night before have absented themselves & not exposed their Weakness but as if infatuated throughout it was at the Request of the Minority that the House divided & the Names were set down in the Journal—James De Laney was cried up as an oracle before by his Friends who wanted him Chief Justice—This Conduct brought him into utter Contempt in and out of Doors."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.

25 Twenty-five thousand dollars are shipped from New York harbour; "they are to be landed at Providence, and from thence to be forwarded by Land for Boston, for the Use of his Majesty's Troops now quartered in that City."—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 28, 1768.
 The "dollars" here referred to are "Spanish dollars" or "pieces of eight," coins in common use throughout the American colonies during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. A Spanish dollar was equivalent to four shillings and sixpence in English sterling money.—Adler, Money and Money Units of the Am. Colonies, 1-2.

Dec. Separate petitions to the king, lords, and commons, are read 12 in the assembly (see Nov. 8) and approved.—Assemb. Jour. (1768-9), 48. The text of the petitions appears in the journal of the next session of the assembly (see April 7, 1769); protests are made against taxation without representation, and against "suspending the legislative power of this colony, until they shall have made the provisions required for quartering his Majesty's troops" (see July 2, 1767). In one paragraph it is stated that "ever since the fatal act for imposing the stamp duties, our confidence in the tenderness of Great Britain seems to have suffered a very sensible abatement; for though the prostrate powers of government revived on its repeal, and we were recovered from the wild distractions occasioned by that destructive law, yet our former general tranquility has never been fully restored; and there is too great reason to fear, that we shall soon fall into miseries more tragical than those from which we have so lately escaped."—Ibid. (1768-9), 11-17.

19 Samuel Francis applies to Trinity vestry for an extension of his lease of Vauxhall Garden (see June 16, 1768) on certain conditions, and a committee is appointed to treat with him.—Trin.
Min. (MS.); Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 981. See March 25, 1769.

28 The assembly decides to allow Coldea, "for administering the government, from the first day of September, 1765, to the thirteenth day of November following, at the rate of two thousand pounds per annum, the sum of £4,050:0:0."—Assemb. Jour. (1768-9), 61, 65. Jonathan Watts wrote to Gen. Monckton, on Feb. 4, 1769, that this payment, "which before had been refused," was finally

 Dec. ordered, but "they could not be prevailed on to pay for the burd 28 chariot" (see Nov. 1, 1765).—Aspinwall Papers, 603.

William Peartree Smith conveys to the city a square of land, measuring 248 ft. on each side, adjoining the garden of the poorhouse, "to the Northward of the Common field of this City near the fresh water, bounded on the west by the Broad way and on the east & north and South sides by Land belonging to this Corporation," for which the city has agreed to pay him £1,713:17:9.—M. C.
C., VII: 141-42.

The colonial treasurer is ordered to pay Elizabeth Vaughton
 31 £28:16:6, "for a Flagg for Fort George," and Joseph Powell £11:4:3, "for making two Book Cases and a large Table for the use of the General Assembly."—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 1027; Assemb.
Jour. (1768-9), 65.

The general assembly agrees to these resolutions: "As it is not only the common hirthright of all his Majesty's subjects, but it is also essential to the preservation of the peace, strength and prosperity of the British empire; that an exact equality of constitutional rights, among all his Majesty's subjects in the several parts of the empire, be uniformly and invariably maintained and supported; and as it would be inconsistent with the constitutional rights of his Majesty's subjects in Great Britain, to tax them either in person or estate, without the consent of their representatives in parliament assembled. It is therefore,

"Resolved, Nimine Contradictio,

"That . . . as his most gracious Majesty is the common father of all his good subjects, dispersed throughout the various parts of the British empire: And as the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, do enjoy a constitutional right of humbly petitioning his Majesty, as the common father of his people there, for constitutional benefits and the redress of grievances. The representatives of this colony, in general assembly convened, lawfully may, and ought to exercise the same constitutional right, when, and so often as to them shall seem meet.

"Resolved,

"That . . . this colony lawfully and constitutionally has and enjoys an internal legislature of its own, in which the crown and the people of this colony, are constitutionally represented; and that the power and authority of the said legislature, cannot lawfully or constitutionally be suspended, abridged, abrogated or annulled by any power, authority or prerogative whatsoever, the prerogative of the crown ordinarily exercised for prorogations and dissolutions only excepted.

"Resolved, Nimine Contradictio,

"That . . . this house has an undoubted right, to correspond and consult with any of the neighboring colonies, or with any of his Majesty's subjects out of this colony, or belonging to any part of his Majesty's realm or dominions, either individually or collectively on any matter, subject or thing whatsoever, whereby they shall conceive the rights, liberties, interests or privileges of this house, or of its constituents, are, or may be affected."—Assemb. Jour. (1768-9), 70-71. These resolutions led Gov. Moore to dissolve the assembly (see Jan. 2, 1769).

Philip Livingston, speaker of the assembly, communicates to that body the circular letter (of Feb. 11) from the Massachusetts colony. An answer is immediately drawn up, which he is ordered to transmit to the Massachusetts house of representatives.— Assemb. Jour. (1768-9), 72. In his reply, Livingston says: "By order of the General-Assembly of this Colony, I am to acknowledge the Receipt of your Letter of the 11th of February last [q. v.]; and am directed to assure you that they are much obliged to your House of Representatives for freely communicating their Sentiments on a Subject so Interesting to all the Colonies; and are so far from considering it as a desire of dictating to the other Assemblies, that they highly applaud them for their attention to American Liberty; and hope the Measures they have taken on this important Occasion, will fully convince them that the General-Assembly of the Colony of New-York harmonizes with those of the other Colonies in their Representations for Redress: They perfectly agree with your House in their opinion of the fatal Consequences which must inevitably attend the Operation of the several Acts of Parliament imposing Taxes and Duties in the American Colonies; and have therefore prepared Petitions to his Majesty and the Lord's Spiritual and Temporal and a Representation to the Commons of Great-Britain [see Dec. 12] praying Relief from the Grievances they labour under: They entertain with your House the Firmest

1768 Confidence in his Majesty's known Clemency and tender regard Dec. for all his Subjects, and the Candour and Justice of the British 31 Parliament, and are not without Hopes that the united Supplications of all the Colonies will prevail on our most Gracious Sovereign and the Parliament to grant effectual Redress, and put a stop to the future to Measures so directly repugnant to the true Interest of the Mother Country and the Colonies . . . P. S. Robert Charles, Esq: Agent of this Colony at the Court of Great-Britain is intrusted to co-operate with the Agents of the other Colonies in their Applications for Redress."—Boston Gaz., Jan. 16, 1769.

" The legislature passes a law to relieve the hardships caused by the fire prevention act effective Jan. 1, 1768 (see Dec. 23, 1765), which is now suspended until Jan. 1, 1774. The scarcity of fireproof building materials is the reason for making non-effective the original statute requiring their use (see Dec. 31, 1761), and for granting exemption of penalties to offenders during the year that the law has been in operation.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 1046. See Oct. 14, 1773.

" The legislature also passes "An Act further to increase the Number of Firemen in the City of New York." It provides that the common council "elect nominate and appoint forty nine more able honest sober discreet Men."—Ibid., VI: 1048-49. The enlarged list of firemen, totalling 119, appears in M. C. C., VII: 144-46.

1769

— During this year the Indian Charity School at Lebanon, Connecticut, is removed to Hanover, New Hampshire, and becomes Dartmouth College.—Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., VI: 322.

— Probably in this year, John McComb, Sr., made drawings of the front and side elevations, and a plan, of the North Dutch Church, the first of which drawings is reproduced in A. Pl. 11-a, Vol. III.

— During the heated election campaign of this year, a broadside giving some "Reasons Against any of His Majesty's Council Voting, or using their Influence in the ensuing Election" appeared.
The reasons offered were:

1. The members of the corresponding body of the British parliament, the peers, were not permitted to vote for candidates to the house of commons.

2. The council already had too much power. It was a legislative body, no appointments to civil and military offices could be made and no pardons granted without its consent, its members were both judges and jury in trials for felonies perpetrated on the high seas, and they were the ultimate judges of all cases under £500 which were brought before them.

3. The people had no check on these powers because the council was dependent solely on the crown.

4. If members of the council were allowed to vote, there would be no valid reason for excepting the governor, and his participation in the election would be "a dangerous Invasion upon the Rights of the People."—From a photostat in the N. Y. Pub. Library (Evans, 11435).

— A sugar-house is built by Henry Cuyler, Jr. (for his heir, Barnet Rynders Cuyler).—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 963.
It stood on the corner of the present Rose and Duane Sts., a four-story building with cellar and loft. John Austin Stevens states from personal recollection that he saw the date 1769 high upon the brick wall in iron figures.—Progress of N. Y. in a Century (1876), 27; The Sun, May 27, 1903. Another authority, who had equal opportunity to observe, placed the date at 1765.—Smith, N. Y. in 1789, 37. See May. It has been supposed (Wilson, Mem. Hist. of N. Y., III: 301) that the building was used as a prison during the Revolution, but this is denied by Stevens and others, who have presented testimony to disprove it.—The Sun, May 27, 1903;
Mag. Am. Hist. (1886), V: 222-23; ibid. (1881), VI: 63; Thorburn, Reminiscences (1845), 166-78, 170. After the peace of 1783
(The Sun, op. cit.), it was known as the Rhineland sugar-house, being owned by William Rhineland, whose dwelling-house was next door, at 21 King George St. (as the upper end of William St. was then called), on the block above Frankfort St.—Smith, op. cit., 37. The site is now (1921) marked by a tablet and barred window on the Rhineland building, the window having been taken from the sugar-house when it was demolished in 1892. Another window from the old sugar-house has been set up in Van Cortlandt Park, back of the mansion.—Kelley, Hist. Guide to N. Y. City (1913), 65, 182; Wilson, op. cit., III: 301.

Jan. 1 "A motion having been made by an honorable Member of our Assembly, for leave to bring in a bill to chuse our Representatives for the future by ballot, it was carried in the affirmative by 18 against 5. And as a law of that nature has been long desired by all the judicious friends to liberty in this City, they were induced to publish a number of advertisements to bring the inhabitants together, to obtain their sentiments on the best means to manifest their approbation of that salutary motion, and to make the Representatives of the city acquainted therewith, in order that they should concur in getting the vote passed into a law. In consequence thereof, a number of them assembled on Thursday last at Liberty Pole; but they were not so considerable as might have been expected.

Therefore . . . it was postponed until the next day. . . . They appointed a Gentleman to propound questions to the people, to know their approbation of the said vote, which was declared by a vast majority. . . . A committee was then appointed to communicate their approbation to the City Members, which was done in writing last Saturday, and delivered to . . . Representatives in General Assembly for New York; wherein they mentioned the above request and appointment, and strongly solicited their utmost endeavours to get the aforesaid bill to pass this House."—Upcott Coll., in N. Y. Hist. Soc., III: 397.

Gov. Moore dissolves the assembly and, in an address of explanation, says: "The extraordinary nature of certain resolves lately entered on your journals [see Dec. 31, 1768]; some flatly repugnant to the laws of Great Britain, and others, with an apparent tendency to give offence where common prudence would avoid it, have put it out of my power to continue this assembly any longer. I observe by your journals that you have prepared representations of the state of the colony, to be presented to his majesty; they claim that respect the supremacy of Great Britain, are of so important and delicate a nature, that every motive of duty and interest, urge you, at this critical juncture, to avoid offence, and conciliate a favorable audience to your petitions. . . . I have steadily aimed at, and shall still continue my endeavors to promote the prosperity of the colony; and I cannot help lamenting, that you have suffered an immoderate heat so far to prevail in your house, that my duty forbids me to countenance your present conduct; for after you had once resolved to lay your case before his majesty, it must evidently appear, that the measures you have since pursued, were not only unnecessary, but in the present exigency of affairs, dangerous to the colony. . . . I do now, in his majesty's name, dissolve this assembly."—Assemb. Jour. (1768-9), 75-76.

At a meeting of the freemen and freeholders of the city, "in order to consult on the Propriety of re-electing the late Members for this City, for their spirited Conduct in asserting and supporting the Rights of their Constituents," John Cruger is nominated in the place of Philip Livingston, who has declined to serve again. The three other former members, De Lancey, Walton, and Jauncey, are also nominated. A motion "that Thanks should be returned the late Members for their spirited Conduct in the late Assembly" is agreed to and the "public Approbation" signified "by three Huzzas."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 9, 1769. These four candidates were elected on Jan. 27, the voting having started on the 23d (q. v.).

Gov. Moore reports to the Earl of Hillsborough "that the remains of that licentious Rabble who during our late disorders called themselves the Sons of Liberty, had formed a design soon after the meeting of the Assembly to disturb the tranquility of the City by carrying the effigies of certain persons thro' the Town in procession, and afterwards burning them publicly."—N. Y. Col.
Docs., VIII: 143. See Nov. 14, 1768.

The following notice is issued in a broadside: "Whereas a great Handle is made against Messrs. De Lancey and Walton, for not agreeing to the Proposal made to them by sundry Persons, who sign Themselves a Committee of Non Episcopalian Denominations in this City.—Of their appointing two Members for the City and County of New-York; and of the Episcopalians appointing the other Two.

"It is necessary the Public should know, that previous to such Proposal, They found it to be the general Sense of their Constituents, that the Four late Members should be re-chosen; and that therefore they conceived it would have been highly improper and ungrateful in Them to consent to any other Junction."—From the reprint in the N. Y. Pub. Library (Evans, 11376).

There are two political parties in the city, who violently oppose each other,—one consisting of the new members chosen into the last Assembly, and the other supposed to be favoured by the Govt"
—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 146.

1769 Philip Livingston, in an address "To the Freeholders and Jan. Freemen Of the City and County of New York," says that he had 7 intended to offer himself as a candidate for the assembly, "if there was a Probability of a peaceable Election." Finding that "no Junction was likely to be formed by the two Parties, and apprehending great Heats would arise," he has told the members of both parties that he would not be a candidate (see Jan. 4). He now gives this public account of his conduct "to prevent the Imputation of any Inconsistency in my Conduct, that might in those heated Times, be insinuated to my Disadvantage."—From a photostat in the N. Y. Pub. Library (Evans, 11311).

9 As Philip Livingston has refused to be a candidate for the assembly (see Jan. 7), and John Cruger has been nominated in his place (see Jan. 4), a broadside of this date, addressed "To the Freeholders and Freemen, of the City and County of New-York," publishes Cruger's acceptance of the nomination, and solicits the inhabitants' votes for him, and for James de Lancey, Jacob Walton, and James Jauncey, who have been nominated for re-election.
 Another broadside with the same date and same caption urges the election of these four.—From photostats in the N. Y. Pub. Library.

11 John Morin Scott issues a broadside printed in German and addressed to the High Germans of the city. Some one has accused him of calling the Germans "feur braende," and, while denying this accusation, he takes the opportunity to solicit their votes for Philip Livingston, Peter van Brugh Livingston, Theodorius van Wyck, and himself, as representatives in the assembly. The broad-side is grossly misspelled and ungrammatical.—From one of the Banker broadsides (lot 101), sold by Henkels, Phila., March 25, 1898. It must have been shortly after that "Zwey Hoch Teutsche" issued the broadside entitled "Nützliche Gegen Nachricht, an die sammtliche Hoch-Teutsche in der Stadt New-York, von zwey Wohlmeinenden Lands Leuten," for this was an answer to Scott's address. It set forth, in German, that Scott and his party were hostile to the Germans, and that, though he might not have called them firebrands, his party, in open assembly, had characterized the Germans as a stubborn, obstinate people. It urged the writers' countrymen to unite against Scott and his colleagues, and to vote, in the coming election, for De Lancey, Walton, Jauncey, and Cruger, because these candidates were men of character and honour. As a parting shot, the "Zwey Hoch Teutsche" suggested that, as there was neither German nor sense in Scott's address, he must have persuaded his laundryman, who could neither read nor spell, to translate something from English into German.—From the photostat (without date) in the N. Y. Pub. Library (Evans, 11390).

12 "A reasonable Advertisement to the Freeholders and Freemen of the City of New-York, and all the real Friends to Liberty, and Lovers of their Country" is issued as a broadside. It reads:
 "As Nothing can be more essential to the Safety of the Country than the conducting of Elections free from Corruption on the one Hand and Threats and Terror on the other. And as a Number of resolute Freeholders and Freemen of easy Circumstances, who utterly abhor and detest such scandalous Practices, are credibly informed, that such Artifices are made use of, to destroy the Freedom of the ensuing Election, they do hereby give Notice to all upon whom any Attempts of that Kind have been, or may be made, that as soon as the Election is over, they will devise a Mode, for laying the Proofs before the Publick, and bringing the Delinquents to due Punishment, for the double Purpose of exposing those atrocious Invaders of the Rights of the People, and to do Honour to those who shall nobly stand to their Integrity. . . . And all Persons are particularly desired to take Notice, whether any, and who of his Majesty's Council of this Province, are concerned in influencing the ensuing Election."—From the reprint in the N. Y.
 Pub. Library (Evans, 11459).

14 The following "card" is issued at "New-York, Tradesman's-Hall:"

"To the Freeholders and Freemen, of this City and County,
 From Messrs. Axe and Hammer [see Feb. 29, 1768], and a number of the respectable body of Leather Aprons, give their Compliments to their Old Friends who have not yet joined them; and beg they will be Staunch and Hearty in hindering a Lawyer, from representing this Commercial City. And beg likewise they would remember . . . That it is trade, and not Law, that supports our Families, as many a Man can testify. . . ."—From an original in the N. Y. Pub. Library.

16 The Free Masons are requested to meet at Burns' coffee-house.
 —N. Y. Merc., Jan. 16, 1769.

In answer to the "card" of Jan. 14 (q. v.), the following is published: "Jack Hatchway and Tom Bowling, return their Service to Messrs. Axe and Hammer, and the respectable body of Leather Aprons, acquainting them, that they keep a good lookout, and hope (with the assistance of their Old Friends, the Men of Straw) to run clear of the Shoals and Mudbanks. . . . As also avoid the Reel of Combination, on which feeds a very furious animal, known by the Name of a certain Candidate and Lawyer [Scott], who watches to overset them; but being experienced Seamen, hope to divert him by throwing over a few empty Water-Casks,
 'till they Weather every Difficulty, and get safe into Port." The "Card" emanates from the "Ship Liberty."—From an original broadside in the N. Y. Pub. Library.

The assembly elections "are now carrying on with great warmth."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 147.

21 In recommending Robert R. Livingston, who is one of the judges of the supreme court, to a place in the council, Gov. Moore states that on the death of Livingston's father-in-law he "must very shortly be the greatest Landholder, without exception, in this province," as he will also soon inherit from his father "a very great landed Estate."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 148. He was the father of Robert R. Livingston, who became chancellor of New York.—
Ibid., VIII: 192 (footnote); Delafield, Chancellor Robert R. Livington of N. Y. and his Family, 3.

23 The four men nominated for the assembly on Jan. 4 (q. v.) are elected. They are "attended from the City-Hall, by a vast Concourse of People, with Music playing, and Colours displayed."
 They proceed "down the Broad-Way, and through the main Street to the Coffee-House, being repeatedly saluted with loud Huzzas, and with every other Demonstration of Joy, that could be shewn upon this happy and interesting Occasion." The number of the principal inhabitants who are in the procession and the "Regularity and good Order" of the whole, make "one of the finest and most agreeable Spectacles ever seen in this City."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 30 and Feb. 6, 1769. See David Grim's mention of the vote, filed with package (1739-1747) in box "New York, 1700-1760," at N. Y. Hist. Soc., see also Addenda.

A broadside headed "Liberty" contains the following sworn affidavit:

"Andrew Marschalk declares, That on the Morning of this Instant, Isaac Sears, came to his Father's House, and in his Hearing told his Father, that if he voted against Mr. Scott, that the Board of Commerce would give him the Inspection of all the Flour they shipped; and that if the ensuing Assembly did not appoint him sole Inspector, they the Board of Commerce would; but if he voted for Mr. Scott, they would not employ him at all, or words to that Effect." The broadside continues: "From the Facts set forth in the above Affidavit, every impartial Man must be convinced of the scandalous Practices made Use of by the Friends of Mr. Scott's Opponents: Practices utterly destructive of the Freedom of Elections and tending to debase the Electors to the most abject State of Slavery and Dependence. . . . And such a Conduct in Capt. Sears is utterly inconsistent with his high Profession as a Friend to Liberty, and the constitutional Rights of his Countrymen, and must necessarily confirm our Suspicions, that his great Zeal in the present Election, is rather to be ascribed to his Party-spirit, than to a real Affection to his Country."—From photostat (original in the Library Co. of Phila.) in the N. Y. Pub.
 Library (Evans, 1132). Sears answered on Jan. 24 (q. v.).

24 Isaac Sears issues an answer to Andrew Marschalk's accusation (see Jan. 23). He denies having promised anything in the name of the board of commerce, and gives this explanation of his visit to Marschalk's house: "I do confess, that I did go to the House of Mr. Marschalk, as a Friend, by way of giving him a Caution, how he voted at the ensuing Election; that most of the Members of the Chamber of Commerce, were in the opposite Interest to Mr.
 Scott, and therefore if he voted for him, I was afraid they would give their Business to some other Person. . . . I do assure the Public, that my Inducement for waiting on Mr. Marschalk, was not to influence his Vote in an unfair Manner, or to be in the least inconsistent with his Freedom of Choice, but only to represent to him the Inconvenience which might possibly attend his voting against the mercantile Interest.—And from the many Acts of Friendship, I had constantly shewn to his Family, I imagined, I might take that Liberty with him, without giving him so high an Offence, as it seems it has done." Sears sees nothing in his conduct which is inconsistent with his "Profession, as a Friend to Liberty,

- and the constitutional Rights of my Countrymen." He adds: "The Rejection of Mr. Scott in the present Competition, I conceive to be evidently expedient, on many weighty Considerations; and I believe in such a Case, no Man can reasonably blame me, for reminding my Friend, that both his private Interest, and the public Good, led him to the same Choice . . . Upon the whole, the Public are left to judge, whether the Party that could condescend to tempt a Man to betray the Confidence of his Friend, and represent an innocent friendly Action, as a blameable one, is most deserving of public Censure."—From a photostat (made from an original in the Library Company of Philadelphia) in the N. Y. Pub. Library (Evans, 11458).
- Feb. Payment is made "for paving about the fort."—M. C. C., VII: 143. Further payments for paving here and "round the Bowling Green" are recorded in 1771 and 1772.—Ibid., VII: 323, 345, 375.
- 2 "To be Lett, The House, and about 18 Acres of Land, belonging to Mr. Anthony Rutgers, known by the Name of Ranelagh-Gardens. A very good new House will be built this Spring fit for any Gentleman. For farther Particulars, apply to Anthoony Rutgers."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 2, 1769. Rutgers added to his advertisement, on March 6, that "Aoy Gentleman inclining to take the above for a Term of Years, may have any reasonable Alterations made in the proposed Plan of the House, provided they apply sooa."—Ibid., March 6, 1769. Ranelagh Gardens had been opened by John Jones on June 6, 1765 (q.v.). Whether the above advertisement indicates that the old Rutgers house, erected about 1730, was demolished, and a new one built in its place, or whether the original house was remodelled, or an additional house put up on the property, we have no way of knowing. The Rutgers house is shown on the Holland Survey, made in 1757 (Pl. 36-b, Vol. D); see also Pl. 37. See further advertisements in N. Y. Post-Boy, April 25, and N. Y. Jour., June 27, 1768; N. Y. Merc., Sept. 2, 1769.
- 4 A committee of the common council is appointed "to Regulate the Road or Street from the House of the said Ald<sup>r</sup> Cornelius Roosevelt to the House now occupied by Caleb Hyatt belonging to Hendrick Rutgers in the out ward."—M. C. C., VII: 149. On March 23, they reported that they had had the road "Surveyed and Regulated agreeable to the plan now filed, and Recommend that the Crooked prickled Line laid down in Said plan which takes its beginning from the Middle of James Street, and runs from thence eastwardly to Corlears hook, be adopted by the Corporation." This is agreed to.—Ibid., VII: 154-55. The street referred to is the former Bedlow, now Madison St.—See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 993, 1005.
- 7 "Alexander McDugal Gent. [with others] . . . Sworn free-men of this Corporation ad ordered to be Registered."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), Feb. 7, 1769.
- 10 Lieut William Jones, of his majesty's ship "Hussar," indicted for "a Riott" and assault, is brought before the court of general sessions and ordered to "pay a fine to our Lord the King of three pounds" and to "Stand Comitted until the Same he paid."—Min. Gen. Sessions of the Peace (MS.), Feb. 10, 1769.
- 15 A committee of the Chamber of Commerce having been appointed on Feb. 7 to apply to the common council for the use of the room over the exchange, which was considered "a decent, large and commodious room to meet in" (see original Minutes of the Chamber of Commerce), the common council leases the "Exchange House" to "Mess<sup>rs</sup> Isaac Low, Thomas Wrangle, William Walton, Isaac Roosevelt, and Lawrence Kortwright," for the Chamber of Commerce, for one year from May first, "on their putting the Same in Good Repair and permitting this Corporation to make use of it as often as they shall Judge necessary."—M. C. C., VII: 149. After that, the Chamber is to pay £20 per annum.—Original Minutes. See Feb. 15, 1770.
- " James Tucker, M.D., who died this day, was "particularly fond of Natural History, in which he had made a very curious and valuable Collection," which he "directed to be deposited in the Library of King's College, as the Foundation of a Museum."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 20, 1769. His will, dated Feb. 6, states: "I leave to King's College, of New York, all my Collection of Insects for ever;" according to Pelletreau, the collection has disappeared.—Abstracts of Wills, VII: 236-37.
- " The common council orders the purchase of three bells, "the one for the New Gaol House, one other for the City Hall, and the other for the Exchange House."—M. C. C., VII: 150. On March 23, payment of £52 was ordered "to Defray the Expence of a Bell & hanging the Same in the Exchange."—Ibid., VII: 155. Payment for the other two bells was made on June 8 (q.v.).—Ibid., VII: Feb 164.
- 15 Two men are "carted round the Town, on a Wooden Horse, besides being whip'd at the Post 39 Lashes, a punishment for Stealing . . . They had each of them Labels pinned on their Breasts, and were surrounded with a Crowd of spectators; and it is hoped this Method of exposing such Criminals, will have a better Effect, than barely Whipping at the Post."—N. Y. Jour., Feb. 23, 1769.
- 20 "To be sold reasonably, the Printing Press, Types, and other Materials, formerly beolging to Henry De Forest, deceased, and lately occupied by Samuel Brown . . ."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 20, 1769.
- 22 John de Peyster, Jr., barrack master, is ordered by the provincial council "to deliver his accounts."—Cal. Coun. Min., 478. His successor was Gerard Bancker, warrants for whose accounts for "necessaries to the troops," repairing the barracks, etc., were issued by the council from time to time.—Ibid., 479, et seq. Evert Bancker became an associate with him in his work, in 1774, and they are then spoken of as "provincial barrack masters."—Ibid., 500, 503; Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 830.
- Mar. On order of Feb. 22 from the provincial council, the barrack-master, John de Peyster, Jr., makes an accounting.—Cal. Coun. Min., 478.
- 13 A meeting of the subscribers to the resolutions (see Aug. 27, 1768) respecting the non-importation of goods from abroad is held at the house of Bolton and Sigel and a committee is appointed to inquire into and inspect all European importations.—N. Y. Merc., Mar. 20, 1769. See June 19, 1769, and June 11, 1770.
- 18 "The Friends of Liberty and Trade, who are inclined to celebrate the Anniversary of the Repeal of the Stamp Act, on Saturday the 18th Inst. at the House of Edward Smith, In-keeper, in the Fields [later Hamden Hall]; are requested to give in their Names to Mr. Hugh Gaine, or the said Smith, [by this Evening] in order that suitable Provision may be made for their Accomodation. N. B. Dinner to be served precisely at two o'Clock, and the Bill called at six."—N. Y. Jour., March 16, 1769. Commenting on this dinner in the next issue of the newspaper, the editor said that a "considerable number of the Genuine Soos of Liberty" met at Smith's, "where an elegant Entertainment was prepared for them; after the Company had dined, the remains of the Dinner, and a quantity of Strong Beer was sent to the New-Gaol, and properly distributed among the Prisoners."—Ibid., March 23, 1769.
- 20 A similar meeting was held at Henry van de Water's on Nassau St., opposite the Brick Presbyterian Church, and on March 1, 1770, almost a year later, a friend of McDougal, now in jail for libel, discussed the two meetings, because reflections had been cast upon the "Old Sons of Liberty, for having deserted the Cause they were formerly engaged in," and he wished to "set the Saddle on the right Horse." When the party at Van de Water's (evidently patronized by McDougal and his adherents) sent to Smith's a committee to drink their healths, a debate arose as to what awsoer should be returned, and "Capt. S" (Sears) and "Mr. J. L." (John Livingston?) opposed any reciprocal drinking of healths, declaring that "most of the Company at Van De Water's, had never ooce appeared in the Cause of Liberty, or amongst her Votaries," and mentioning "Mr. A M'D—[McDougal], and others of the same Stamp, as some of those whom they thought unworthy of being reckoned in their Number." When, a few hours later, a single gentleman from Van de Water's had called to "plead them into a Message favourable to his Partizans," a debate arose at Smith's as to whether he should not be "shewn the Way out of a Widow." This schism between the two factions of the Sons of Liberty, both believing themselves to be the "genuine" brand, was reflected in the accounts of the meetings held on March 18, 1771 (q.v.).
- " A plan of the floor of the pews, and also of the gallery pews in the North Church" is presented to the consistory of the Dutch Church, "with an appraisement of the yearly rent."—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4139.
- 20 It is proposed that the "Arms" of John Harpending in the "Old Church" shall "be copied in an appropriate manner, and the copy bung in the North Church above the pulpit."—Ibid. Dr. Corwin states in a footnote that "This Coat-of-Arms continued to hang over the Pulpit, in this church, until its demolition in 1875, and is well remembered by the writer."—Ibid. The Rev. Thomas de Witt reproduced the "Arms" in his Discourse (1857), opp. p. 34.
- 23 The proprietors of the "Powless Hook Ferry" (see Feb.

1769 23, 1767) having been at an expense of over £200 in making a pier
 Mar. and ferry stairs and a new "Ell," and at an expense of £330 in 23 providing boats, find they have been at a loss of over £150 in one year and ten months from May 1, 1767, after paying these initial expenses, as well as rent to the city, and the wages and board of boatmen. They complain of the "extradinary high rent," and petition the common council for relief.—From the original petition (MS.) in File No. 4, city clerk's record-room; M. C. C., VII: 155. On May 11, an abatement of £150 was ordered "in the Rent of the two last years."—M. C. C., VII: 163.

" Jacob van Voorhis, George Stanton, and Peter Mesier, Jr., petition the common council for a water lot extending 200 feet into North River and from Deys Dock "northward to the corner of Bartly's [Barclay] Street," which they desire to dock out.—From the original petition (MS.) in city clerk's record-room, endorsed "Read & filed the 23<sup>d</sup> of March, 1769." The corporation of Trinity Church having petitioned for the same lot, a hearing of both applicants is appointed for the next meeting of the board.—
M. C. C., VII: 155-56. On Aug. 10, it was decided that a plan of the ground be exhibited and a committee of the board appointed to treat with the petitioners.—Ibid., VII: 175. The report of this committee, with terms, on Sept. 6, shows that the space in question consisted of "Sundry water Lots in the North River from McAdams's Dock to the corner of Barclays Street," and included 400 feet of shore front.—Ibid., VII: 183.

24 Hillsborough writes to Gov. Moore: "It is unnecessary to inform you that the King saw with great concern, the violent and unwarrantable resolutions entered upon the Journal of the Assembly on the 31st December last [q.v.]. When I compare the sentiments of duty and respect for the Constitution and Govern<sup>t</sup> expressed in their address to you of the 23<sup>d</sup> of Nov<sup>r</sup> [q.v.], with the very contrary spirit of those Resolutions, I am at a loss to conjecture what could be the cause of so extraordinary an alteration in the course of six weeks, when no new event whatever had happened . . . I can hardly allow my mind to conceive that there is wickedness enough on this side of the water to write over misrepresentations of the State of Govern<sup>t</sup> here, and arguments of artifice and false policy to excite and induce the Assembly of New York to a departure from that moderation which they had manifestly adopted; nor on the other hand, that there would be weakness enough on your side to allow them to give attention to any such.

"It is however worth the while to make enquiries, and to find out, if possible, whether any methods have been made use of and by whom from this side, to stir up such a spirit as shews itself in these resolutions . . . to the end that his Majestys Servants may be upon their Guard with respect to Men of so mischievous and treacherous a disposition."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 155-56.

25 Samuel Francis leases that part of the "Church Farm" bounded by Greenwich Road, Chambers, Chapel, and Warren Sts.—Bogardus vs. Trinity, Sandford's Chancery Rep., IV: 661. See Dec. 19, 1768.

28 Abraham Mortier, deputy paymaster of his majesty's troops, leaves to his wife Martha the "parcel of land situate in the Out Ward" on which he had erected the mansion later known as "Richmond Hill" (see May 1, July 1, 1767).—Abstracts of Wills, VIII: 284.

29 The consistency of the Dutch Church resolves to send a call to Rev. John H. Livingston, now at Utrecht. This was drafted and approved the following day. It began: "The approaching completion of our Third Church called the North [Church] obliges the Consistory to look around for a suitable minister to perform service there, along with the one [Rev. Mr. Laidlie] now established in the Second, otherwise called the New Church, in English." His salary is to be £500 a year.—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4145. His acceptance is dated Aug. 8; and the consistory, on Nov. 7, wrote him "to come over as early as possible in the ensuing Spring."—Ibid., VI: 4171.
 He was ordained by the synod of North Holland to the ministry for the city of New York on April 1, 1770.—Ibid., VI: 4189. He arrived, Sept. 6, 1770, and was received by the consistory, of which the first English minister, Rev. Archibald Laidlie, was then present.—Ibid., VI: 4191.

Apr. 6 Col. Morris makes the following motion in the assembly: "As the preservation of religious liberty is essential to the growth and tranquility of this colony; and a taxation of protestants of all denominations indiscriminately, for the support of the ministers of any sect in particular, is most palpably partial and unjust; and great discontent has long been occasioned by the ministry acts in the counties of Westchester, New-York, Queens and Richmond, in consequence whereof, the Episcopal ministers are maintained by taxes upon other persuasions, not even excepting their clergy:

 I therefore move for leave to bring in a bill, to exempt protestants of all denominations in the said counties, from the payment of any taxes raised for the support of ministers of a religious persuasion to which they do not belong." Such permission is granted.—Assemb.
Jour. (1769), 10. The bill was passed by the assembly on May 15.
 —Ibid. (1769), 18, 21, 65. In the council, after two readings, it was rejected on May 19, William Smith, Jr., being the only one in favour of it.—Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 1702, 1704, 1706. Another attempt to enact such a law was made during the next session (see Nov. 30).

" A sale at public vendue is advertised for this day, at "the king's Arms Tavern in the Fields," of "Household and Kitchen Furniture, with an excellent good Clock, and double Sleigh, . . . and a great many other Articles too tedious to mention."—N. Y. Merc., April 3, 1769. By April 20 (q.v.), Abraham de la Montague had taken over the house, which became famous as "Montague's Tavern."—
 See April 5, 1754.

7 The assembly votes that the petitions to king, lords, and commons (see Dec. 12, 1768), "transmitted by the late house of Assembly to the agent of this colony at the court of Great Britain, be forthwith entered on the journals of this house, and that the clerk of this house be ordered to deliver copies of the Same to the printer of this colony, that they may be by him inserted in the public newspapers." It is deemed "highly necessary that the inhabitants of this colony should be acquainted with all the transactions of their representatives in general assembly."—Assemb.
Jour. (1768-9), 11.

" The common council orders the payment of £8:14:11 "for a Cast iron Stove" for the "hott house."—M. C. C., VII: 159.
 This "hott house" is mentioned again (see Aug. 10, 1770) in connection with the new jail and alms-house, additions to which had been ordered on July 2, 1766 (q.v.), and Aug. 15, 1768 (q.v.).
 This building was already provided with at least one iron stove
 see Feb. 17, 1767).

" The petition presented by the Trinity Corporation, on Feb. 26, 1760 (q.v.), to the common council is again submitted to that body.
 As a result, a committee is appointed to confer with and receive proposals from Trinity.—M. C. C., VII: 159. There is, apparently, no report of this committee. On June 16, 1772 (q.v.), the petition was finally acted upon.

10 A motion is made and carried in the assembly "That the thanks of that house be given to the Merchants of that city and colony [New York] for their repeated disinterested Public Spirit & patriotic conduct in declining the importation, or receiving of goods from Great Britain until such Acts of Parliament as the Assembly had declared unconstitutional and subversive of the rights and liberties of the people of this Colony, should be repealed." It is also resolved "that no Judge of the supreme Court shall for the future have a Seat or vote as a member of that house."—N. Y.
Col. Docs., VIII: 194-95. This occasioned deep concern on the part of the king (Ibid., VIII: 176-77), and on Dec. 21, the lords of trade urged him to take action regarding such "unwarrantable" proceedings (Ibid., VIII: 194-95). Judge Robert R. Livingston (on Dec. 4) wrote that he opposed the refusal to allow him to sit in the assembly.—Ibid., VIII: 192.

18 In an address to Gov. Moore, the assembly says: "The sums that have been already granted for the support of his Majesty's troops in barracks, are very considerable: the repeated application of monies to that purpose, would effectually ruin a colony, whose trade by unatural restrictions, and the want of a paper currency to supply the almost total deficiency of specie, is so much declined, and still declining, that its distresses, in a very short time, will become so great, that it will be almost equally difficult to conceive, as to describe them."—Assemb. Jour. (1769), 20. But see May 20.

" A bill is introduced into the assembly "to reimburse the persons who have at their expense, erected a public free bridge across Haerlem river, and to charge the future expence of maintaing [sic] the same equally upon the inhabitants of the city and county of New-York and county of Westchester."—Assemb. Jour. (1769), 32-33. On April 20, the bill was committed to the whole house.
 There was no further reference to it in this session.—Ibid. (1769), 35. A similar bill, on Jan. 26, 1770, was ordered "postponed till next session."—Ibid. (1769-70), 100. No such law was enacted prior to the Revolution (see March 21, 1760).

20 Abraham de la Montague, "Having taken and open'd a

Apr. 6

"

7

"

"

10

See A.

18

"

20

- 1769 tavern, at the house lately kept by Mr. Edward Bardin, in the fields, in this City, hopes the gentlemen who used to favour him [Bardin] with their Company, will continue the same favour to his present successor the subscriber, who will use his utmost endeavours to entertain them, and all who favour him with their company, in the most agreeable manner in his power. N. B. He intends as soon as it can be procured, to keep the same sign (the King's Arms) which was kept by Mr. Bardin."—N. Y. Jour., Apr. 20, 1769. See April 5, 1754.
- 24 A committee is appointed "to Regulate Roosevelts Street."—M. C. C., VII: 160-61; see also Nov. 9, 1764. Roosevel St. was extended from Cherry St. to the East River in 1792 (Laws of New York, 1792, Chap. 49); and on March 18, 1793, was continued through the ground lately purchased of Daniel Latham.—M. C. C. (MS.), X: 346.
- 27 On petition of Nicholas Bayard (see Dec. 10, 1767), his lease of the slaughter-house which he built on his own land in 1750-1 (M. C. C., V: 303, 323) is renewed for 18 years, to commence March 25, 1771 (ibid., VII: 161). At one time, complaint was made by 23 butchers, in a petition to the common council, that he had failed to comply with the requirements of his lease, by not supplying the tackle used in slaughtering cattle, or keeping the slaughter-house clean.—See the original, undated petition in city clerk's record-room.
- " The common council orders payment of £6:7:3 "for fixing Irons in the Exchange & fly market, mending the drain and market in Montgomerie ward &c."—M. C. C., VII: 161.
- " The common council orders "that the Neighbourhood between the Coffy House and the fly market have Liberty to Sink a well on the Dock, opposite the house in which James Depeyster now Resides in the East ward."—M. C. C., VII: 161.
- 29 Because some goods have been sent from London "without Orders, and repugnant to the Agreement entered into by the inhabitants of this City," a number of merchants meet and agree "That the said Goods should be stored immediately, without opening any of the Packages."—N. Y. Merc., May 1, 1769.
- May — In some "notes and observations," Du Simitière (see 1767) says: "The oldest date I have been able to discover mark'd by large Irons in the front of the houses in this City, is 1678 it is upon a house Standing on the East side of the broad way & betwixt Stone & marketfield Street, from that date one can almost find Some of Every year to 1701 or 2 in Some part or other of the City, there is certainly Still remaining much older buildings than the above date, but without any & therefore not easily discover'd it seems the fashion dropt after the two or three first year[s] of this [eighteenth] century, for I never Saw one of a more Modern date, except a Sugar house built upon Cowfoot Hill (Pearl Street) in my time in 1763 where the date is in the Same manner." Not without interest, also, is his description of the Kings Farm and the house of Thomas Coker, both of which are mentioned in the Dongan Charter of 1686 (see M. C. C., I: 305).—Du Simitière Papers (MS.), op. cit. For the description of the Vischer series, referred to in Vol. I, p. 145, see 1651.
- 1 The custom-house is moved "from Wall-Street, to the House at White-Hall, fronting the Great-Dock, lately occupied by Mr. Samuel Farmer."—N. Y. Jour., May 4, 1769.
- 4 "The Duty on European Goods imported into this Province last Fall, we are told, amounted to some Hundreds Sterling, but we are credibly informed it does not exceed 400 this Spring."—N. Y. Merc., May 8, 1764.
- 5 Some "boulters and merchants" of New York City inform the assembly "that the wheat brought to this market for sale, is generally mixed with a good deal of foul trash, which tends, in a great measure, to injure the reputation of the flour of this colony at the places it is usually exported to." They ask that provision be made "for the screening of all wheat brought to the city of New York for sale, under a penalty upon the measurer."—Assem. Jour. (1769), 52.
- 8 Alexander and James Robertson start The New-York Chronicle, a weekly newspaper. It suspended before the Robertsons moved to Albany in 1771.—See Early Newspapers, II: 422. See also the "Bibliography of Am. Newspapers, 1690-1820," in Am. Antiquarian Soc. Proceedings (1917), XXVII (N. S.): 386.
- 11 The common council orders payment to Henry Sicksels of £52:1 "toward repaving the Exchange."—M. C. C., VII: 162.
- 13 An act to confirm estates claimed by or under aliens; after having been amended by the council is passed by the assembly.—Assem. Jour. (1769-70), 63; Jour. Leg. Coun., 1701. However, May there is no record of its approval by the governor. See Sept. 5, 13 1771.
- 15 The following is published by order of the committee of merchants: "Whereas in August last [see Aug. 27, 1768] an Agreement was made not to import any Goods from Great Britain . . . that should be shipped after the first of November, until an Act of Parliament laying Duties on Paper, Glass, &c . . . should be repealed . . . And as several Vessels have lately arrived and brought some small Parcels of Goods, most of which on Examination, appear to have been sent contrary to orders . . . it is now hoped that all Persons whatever, the Ladies in particular, whose Conduct may have great Influence, will rouse and show their public Spirit and Virtue, in maintaining the Agreement entered into for the public Good by not having any Connection with any such selfish People; and that they will not buy from them, or any others who may purchase from him or them any Goods that they have now imported, or have on Hand, but deem them obnoxious and hold them in the Contempt they deserve, let their Station in Life be what it will."—N. Y. Merc., May 25, 1769.
- " The treasury office "is removed from Smith-street, to Dock-street, in the house where Charles M'Evors, Esq; lately lived."—N. Y. Merc., May 15, 1769.
- 16 The Virginia house of burgesses resolves that an "humble, dutiful and loyal Address" be presented to the king. The following address appears "in their Journal of the Day after": "We your Majesty's most loyal, dutiful, and affectionate Subjects, the House of Burgesses of this your Majesty's antient Colony of Virginia, . . . beg Leave, in the humblest Manner, to assure your Majesty that your faithful Subjects of this Colony, . . . far from countenancing Traitors, Treasons, or Misprisions of Treason, are ready at any Time to sacrifice our Lives and Fortunes in Defence of your Majesty's sacred Person and Government. "It is with the deepest Concern and most heartfelt Grief that your Majesty's dutiful Subjects of this Colony find that their Loyalty hath been traduced, and that those Measures which a just Regard for the British Constitution . . . made necessary Duties, have been misrepresented as rebellious Attacks upon your Majesty's Government. "When we consider that by the established Laws and Constitution of this Colony the most ample Provision is made for apprehending and punishing all those who shall dare to engage in any reasonable Practices against your Majesty, or disturb the Tranquility of Government, we cannot without Horror think of the new, unusual, and permit us, with all Humility, to add unconstitutional and illegal Mode, recommended to your Majesty, of seizing and carrying beyond Sea the Inhabitants of America suspected of any Crime, and of trying such Persons in any other Manner than by the antient and long established Course of Proceeding. . . "Truly alarmed at the fatal Tendency of these pernicious Counsels, and with Hearts filled with Anguish by such dangerous Invasions of our dearest Privileges, we presume to prostrate ourselves at the Foot of your Royal Throne, beseeching your Majesty, as our King and Father, to avert from your faithful and loyal Subjects of America those Miseries which must necessarily be the Consequence of such Measures."—N. Y. Jour., June 1, 1769. See also Writings of Jefferson, I: 3.
- " On this day, at the annual commencement of King's College, held in Trinity Church, the first medical degrees are bestowed on two candidates. Dr. Samuel Bard (see March 9, 1770), the professor of medicine, takes this opportunity to urge, "with great Pathos and Strength of Argument the Necessity of establishing a regular Hospital in this City, for the Reception of the poor Sick."—N. Y. Jour., May 25, 1769. This appeal meets with immediate response, Sir Henry Moore then and there heading a subscription-list for the proposed hospital.—See Pres. Sheldon's Address at the 150th anniversary of the Soc. of the N. Y. Hospital, in Trinity Ch., Oct. 26, 1921.
- 17 Gov. Moore, in a message to the assembly, says: "A subscription having been very lately set on foot for building an hospital in this city, it has already been attended with so much success from the general approbation of so humane and benevolent a design [see May 16], as to afford the fairest prospect of carrying it into execution: As the contributions of individuals alone, will be inadequate to the plan proposed of rendering it beneficial to the whole province, I beg leave to recommend this useful undertaking to the consideration of the house of assembly, and hope that the advan-

1769 tape to be derived from it . . . may appear in such a light as to be thought a proper object of the attention and encouragement of the legislature.—Assembl. Jour., (1769), 66. See May 19.

17 Joseph Andrews, a seaman, is found guilty of murder and sentenced to death.—N. Y. Merc., May 23, 1769. On May 23, he was executed, "After which his Body was hung in Chains on the most conspicuous Part of Bedlow's Island, in our Bay."—Ibid., May 29, 1769.

19 The assembly after considering the governours message of May 17 (q.v.) resolves "That as this present session is near at an end, and the house not having sufficient time naturally to consider the same; that the further consideration of the said message be postponed until the next meeting of this house, after the first of August next."—Assembl. Jour., (1769), 79. For definite action by the legislature, see March 22, 1772.

20 The legislature passes "An Act for making a further provision of eighteen hundred pounds for furnishing his Majesty's Troops quartered in this Colony with Necessaries."—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 1078.

"On this day it also passes another act "for preventing suits being brought in the Supreme Court of this Colony for any Sums not exceeding Fifty Pounds." As the prosecution of suits in the Supreme Court is necessarily attended with "Great Charge and Trouble," those persons who have "occasion to Sue for Debts and Wrongs" are to take their cases to the courts of record where they may "with small Expences receive Justice according to the Merits of their Causes." The law was to remain in full force until Jan. 1, 1773.—Ibid., IV: 1083. The bill, as first proposed, read "One hundred" pounds instead of "Fifty."—Jour. Leg. Coun., 1704-5.

"Pierre Eugene du Simitiere (see 1767) is naturalized by act of the legislature.—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 1118-19. He took the prescribed oaths on Aug. 4 (q.v.).

25 "The North [Dutch] Church was opened for Divine Service on thursday the 25 May 1769 by the Rev<sup>d</sup> M<sup>r</sup> Archibald Laidlie with a Suitable Discourse to a very Crowded audience, His Excellency Sir Henry More being present."—Jour. of the proceedings of the Ref. Prot. Dutch Church. See also N. Y. Merc., May 22, 1769, and the entry made by Deacon Abel in Selyns' diary (1686), published in Collections of the Holland Society of N. Y. (1916), V: 38. After extensive improvements in 1820 (q.v.), and 1842 (q.v.), this church was taken down in June, 1875 (q.v.).

26 In a letter to Hillsborough, Gov. Moore says: "The dissolution of the late Assembly [see Jan. 2] had occasioned great contests in the subsequent Elections [see Jan. 20], and on the meeting of the house of Assembly, it was but too apparent, how much influence private pique had on their proceedings. Their Journals give the strongest testimony of what I here advance, and the session was protracted to an unusual length for the season of the year, by disputes which could only affect individuals."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 168.

29 Smith says that, before the assembly met on April 4, "Sir Henry Moore saw himself in the Zenith of Power—Four of his principle Enemies were trembling at the Expectation of Obtestment from Home for voting in Council ag<sup>t</sup> the Dissolution of the last House—and the Contests at the Elections & about Bishops & had broke the Son's of Liberty to peices & so divided the People that both Parties stood ready to court his Favor—We never had a Governour in a safer Condition & it was the more fortunate to him as the Times were so critical between us and the Mother Country—He seemed nevertheless to be insensible of the advantageous Ground he had under him."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.

June Du Simitiere (see 1767), advertising to the Montgomery Charter of 1731 (see Feb. 11, 1731), and to the city's division into seven wards, comments on changes that have taken place since that time. For the most part these are printed in connection with the description of Pl. 27 (Vol. I, pp. 257-58). Among his papers is a manuscript copy of the Bradford Map, by which he apparently intended to make his comments intelligible to the reader. In referring to the markets allowed by the charter, he says that the one at Coenties dock "is now call'd Coenties market & in the plan of 1755 [Maerschalk's—Pl. 34, Vol. I] Fish market." He says that "Burgers path . . . goes yet by the same name." Concerning the market "at the Lower end of Wall Street," he says: "this was call'd the meal market but is no more. the coffee house bridge is in the Same place." Concerning "the Long Bridge," he says: "this is no more, the Exchange is built in the Same place."—Du Simitiere Papers.

"This is to give Notice, that Jacob Kemper, has removed to the House of the late Mr. William Burnham, about a Mile out of the City along the New-Road; where he proposes to entertain Gentlemen and Ladies with Breakfast, and Tea in the Afternoon."—N. Y. Jour., June 1, 1769. Burnham failed in this enterprise, and on Oct. 4, 1776, his household furniture, and other effects were sold at public vendue to settle his debts.—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 1, 1770.

3 Moore writes to Hillsborough that the Sons of Liberty have had "very great influence on the Elections of Members [of assembly] for this City."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 170.

5 There is a general review of the "Soldiery in Town." The men go through their exercises "with a great Variety of Movements and Evolutions" and in a manner which is a credit both to themselves and to their officers. Gen. Gage gives a dinner to the prominent citizens and, at night, entertains them with fireworks.—N. Y. Merc., June 12, 1769.

8 Bells for the city ball and the "New Gaol" ordered by the common council on Feb. 15 (q.v.), are paid for. The combined weight of the two bells was 534 lbs. A "Small old Bell" was accepted in partial payment, making the net cost to the city £89:7.—From original voucher in comptroller's office (box No. 1). See also M. C. C., VII: 172.

"A committee is appointed to regulate Crown St. and to make a report thereupon as soon as possible.—M. C. C., VII: 165. The report was submitted on July 12 (q.v.).

"Samuel "Francis" advertises Vauxhall Gardens as "newly fitted up;" he adds that they "would have been opened earlier in the Spring, but on account of the Theatre."—N. Y. Chron., June 5-8, 1769.

15 "The flat copper roof of the city hall is ordered "to be Sodder'd." A bill for the work (£20:5:6) was ordered paid on July 12.—M. C. C., VII: 169, 172.

"The common council authorizes the payment of £4:8:6 to Coroner Shrieve "for the Expence of his Burying Stephen Porter a pirate who hanged himself in Gaol."—M. C. C., VII: 169. The original voucher, preserved in the comptroller's office (box No. 1), says that the man "was buried at the upper end of the Bowery Lane at the Cross Road, with a stake through his body and a sign thereon, agreeable to the judge's orders."

19 "The committee appointed (see March 13) to inspect and inquire into the importation of goods informs the public that Alexander Robertson has, contrary to the spirit of the agreement, "order'd sundry goods from Philadelphia and has attempted to introduce them into this City." He was prevented by the patriotic conduct of a "Gentleman in the Jerseys," who, on examining the packages, and finding they contained goods prohibited by the agreement, "gave Intelligence accordingly."—N. Y. Merc., June 19, 1769. Robertson alleged, in vindication of his conduct, that "as the Philadelphians had acceded to the said Agreement he thought himself at Liberty to purchase Goods from them." On realizing the displeasure of the public, he pretended to send the goods back, but the wagoner testified to having taken back only empty casks, Robertson having emptied them and left the goods in the cellar of the ferry-house to be privately introduced into the city.—N. Y. Jour., June 22, 1769. He was later made to confess and apologize for his actions.—N. Y. Jour., June 29, 1769.

"An advertisement reads: "The Stage Wagon which last year run from M<sup>r</sup> Vandenberg's in the Fields, to the said Glass-house [see Feb. 3, 1757], will now continue so doing from M<sup>r</sup> Holland's the Corner of Chappel-Street, near the new Meeting on the usual low Terms of 1/6 up and down for each person."—N. Y. Merc., June 19, 1769.

20 Among the passengers reported as sailing for London on the "Duchess of Gordon" are "the Lady of his Excellency Sir Henry Moore," and "Master Billy Gage, Son of his Excellency the General."—N. Y. Jour., June 22, 1769. Lady Moore was accompanied by an adopted daughter, and was impelled to return to England because her son was living there, if we may credit the contents of 25 verses entitled "Catherine, and the Little Maiden, or the Sixth Chapter of the First Book of Isaac the Scribe." These verses appear in N. Y. Jour., Oct. 8, 1772, and were written by an anonymous fellow passenger on the "Duchess of Gordon," who, in a letter to Editor Holt (ibid., Sept. 10, 1772), signed himself "A. B." Verses descriptive of other passengers on the ship appeared in five earlier "Chapters" in previous issues of the Journal, and were subsequently republished in a small pamphlet (ibid., Dec. 10, 1772), no copy of

- 1769 which is known to be extant. For further consideration of these June 20 verses and of the possible identity of "A. B." or "Isaac the Scribe," see Oppenheim's "The Chapters of Isaac the Scribe: A Bibliographical Rarity, New York, 1772," in Pub. of Am. Jewish Hist. Soc. (1904), No. 22.
- 27 For stealing a barrel of tar and a cask of "yellow oaker," Thomas Fleming is "exalted on an empty Tar Barrel in a Cart, his Hat painted yellow, with Labels on each Square of it, and on his Breast and Back, expressing his Crime." In this manner he is carted about the city, and afterwards receives "the Mosaic Law; to wit, forty, lack ooe Lashes, well laid on, at the public Whipping-Post."—N. Y. Merc., July 3, 1769.
- 30 Instructions against lotteries are given to the governors in America, because "such practice doth tend to disengage those, who become adventurers therein from that spirit of industry and attention to their proper Callings and Occupations, on which the Publick Welfare so greatly depends." It is further stated that "this practice of authorizing Lotteries by Acts of Legislature hath been also extended to the enabling private persons to set up such Lotteries, by means whereof great frauds and abuses have been committed."
 The governors are not to permit lotteries without the approval of the lords of trade.—N. Y. Cal. Decs., VIII: 174-75.
- " Col. James Robertson, "of the 16th, and Barrack Master General for North America," arrives in the city from Boston. On July 1, Brig-Gen. Pomeroy came also.—N. Y. Merc., July 3, 1769.
- July 7 A broadside appears, emanating from the "United Sons of Liberty," and embodying a series of resolutions to which they propose "strictly to adhere." There is good reason to believe that this is, in effect, the constitution of the Sons of Liberty. Only two copies are known:
 one in the Library Co. of Phila.; the other in the author's collection, from which the reproduction on Pl. 39 was made. See Addenda.
- " A Londoner writes to his friend in New York: "You will hear many Reports and Promises of a Repeal taking place next Session.
 But don't give too much Credit to Men, who would if they dare enslave both you and the People of England; . . . I should tremble to hear that you entertain'd a most distant thought of relaxing in your Firmness and Oeconomy in Consequence of any less being done, than a total Repeal of the Revenue Acts, an Extermination of all the Revenue Officers; and in short, a Redress of every Grievance, and a Security against any future Invasion . . .
 May you not have the Liberty you ask, unless you seize this favourable Moment, and secure it. Your Conduct as yet has been noble and spirited: Depend upon it, you have thereby wrought out your own Salvation—The Union of all America, which has at last taken Place, has extinguished every Spark of Hope which your Enemies had entertained, of reducing you to immediate Revenue Taxation. But unless you take prudent Measures, your Trade will in future be saddled most grievously."—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 7, 1769.
- 12 The committee appointed to regulate Crown (Liberty) St. (see June 8) reports that the street has been levelled by the city surveyor.
 The common council approves the report and orders "that the said Committee take Care that the said Report be forthwith complied with."—M. C. C., VII: 171-72.
- " Inhabitants living near the "Old Slip" complain, in a petition to the common council, "That the Street or Cartway, on each side the Old Slip," is "narrow, inconvenient, & dangerous." They ask liberty to erect a bridge over the slip at their own expense,
 "sufficient for Carriages to pass & repass thereon at the same time, with an Arch sufficient in Breadth & Height for Carts to pass & repass under the said Bridge."—From original petition (MS.), in box 4, city clerk's record-room. Granted.—M. C. C., VII: 171.
- " The provincial council takes cognizance of a demand for payment for quarters for officers for whom there is no room in the barracks.—
Cal. Coun. Min., 479.
- 13 The committee appointed to look into the importations of goods into this city (see March 13) contrary to the agreement subscribed by the merchants, traders, and others, is "under the Necessity of advertising to the Public, that Thomas Charles Willett, Milliner, in Wall Street," confesses to having brought goods from Philadelphia for sale in this city. His excuses "must be submitted to the impartial Public, and the patriotic Ladies of this city, who will undoubtedly treat him accordingly."—N. Y. Jour.,
 July 13, 1769.
- 18 A conference of commissioners begins in New York City to settle the boundary between New York and New Jersey. For an account of the proceedings, and a description of the line decided
- upon, see The Penn. Chronicle and Universal Advertiser, of Oct. 9-16, 1769, where it appears that the decree of the commissioners was pronounced on Oct. 7. Montresor, the British engineer, noted in his diary: "In 1769, I divided the Line between the provinces of New York and New Jersey by astronomical observations, so long a bone of contention, and in Chancery so many years."—Montresor's Jour., 119. See also Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 778; Penn. Chron., Dec. 18, 1768; Penn. Gaz., and N. Y. Jour., Oct. 12, 1769.
- An inscription on a large map published by Wm. Faden, Charing Cross, Dec. 1, 1777, and contained in the Faden Atlas of North America, states that it was drawn from a survey of New Jersey made in 1769 by Lieut. Bernard Ratzer, of the 6th Regt., "and from another large Survey of the Northern Parts in the possession of the Earl of Dunmore by Gerard Banker."—See description of Pl. 41, I: 341.
 The boundary line was confirmed by a provincial act on Feb. 16, 1771.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 792. On Nov. 26, 1771, James Clinton and Anthony Dennis made returns on their survey of the line.—Ibid., 799. On Dec. 1, 1772, proclamation was made of the royal approval of the act for establishing the boundary or partition line between New York and "Nova Cesarea," or New Jersey, and for confirming titles and possession.—Ibid., 822.
- The common council orders that "A Small Shedd he Erected adjoining the poor House to be appropriated as a wash House."—
M. C. C., VII: 173. On September 29, payment of £40 was made toward this object.—Ibid., VII: 183. Subsequent payments (ibid., VII: 195, 196, 197, 198) brought the cost of the "Small Shedd" to over £235.
- An advertisement, "Of greater Importance to the Public, than any which has yet appeared on the like Occasions," states: "It was hoped that the odious Manner in which some late Violators of the Non-importation agreement had been held up to the Public, would have prevented all others from following such detestable Examples.—But, it seems Advertisements alone will not do. . . .
 The Favour or Hatred of the Public begins to be a Matter of the most perfect Indifference. . . . A certain Simon Cooley, Haberdasher, Jeweller and Silversmith, a few Years since from London —and who in that short Space of Time has benefited so much by the Favour of his Customers, and to enable him to purchase and live in a House of his own in this City, hard by the Merchants Coffee-House; betrayed some Marks of Delicacy, and a Disposition to co-operate with his Fellow Citizens, in the Measures thought necessary to be pursued for the Recovery and Preservation of their common inestimable Rights and Liberties.—As the said Simeon Cooley, having been found amongst the first who had imported Goods, contrary to the Agreement aforesaid, pretended they had been sent for and expected to have arrived here long before the Agreement took Place.—This, and his consenting with seeming Cheerfulness to put the Goods in Store, which was actually done, saved his Credit at that Time; and so unsuspecting were the Committee of his knavish Jesuitical Intentions, and so desirous of granting him every reasonable Indulgence; that, on his re-mostrating to them, that his Goods would be intirely spoiled, unless they were opened and well cleaned; they readily consented to it, on his solemn Promise of returning them again after that was done, into the Store, to there to lie as stipulated by the Agreement aforesaid.—The vile Ingrate however, took the Advantage of the Lenity and Credulity of the Committee, and availed himself, Judas like, as it has since appeared, of his fair Pretences in order to get Possession of his Goods, and to avoid the bad Consequences then apprehended, if taken out without Consent.—But he has since plucked up fresh Courage, thrown off the Mask intirely, and now boldly bids them and all their Adherents Defiance.—For—having lately imported other Goods in the Edward . . . he hesitates not to declare, that he has not at any Time with-held his Orders for Goods, that he has already sold Part of those so treacherously and fraudulently obtained out of the Public Store, . . . that he will continue to sell the Remainder, together with those which arrived since, and all such as may arrive hereafter. . . .
 Shall then so contemptible a Reptile and Miscreant as the said Simon Cooley, be suffered to baffle or defeat the united virtuous Efforts, in the Support of so righteous a Cause, not only of this City, but of the whole Continent!—
 God forbid!—Better that all such miserable depraved Wretches were crushed to Atoms, than that the Safety of the most inconsiderable Town endangered."
- "And as the Behaviour of the said Simeon Cooley has been by much the most insolent impertinent, and daring of any Transgressor; the blackest of them having been brought to a Sense

1769 of his Crime, a public Confession of it, a fervent Supplication of July Forgiveness, and a Promise never to be guilty of the like offence,— so it is highly necessary that the Punishment of the said Simeon Cooley should be equally exemplary; and that he be treated on all Occasions, and by all legal Means as an Enemy to his Country, a Pest to Society, and a vile Disturber of the Peace, Police, and good Order of this City.—N. Y. Jour., July 20, 1769. See July 27.

27 "The Conduct of Simeon Cooley, as set forth in the Papers of last Week [see July 20], in contradiction to the general Agreement for the Non-importation of British Goods, in contempt of the public Interest, and Defiance of the Subscribers, and supporters of the said Agreement, having drawn upon him the public Resentment, the Inhabitants of this City sensible of the exceeding great Importance of a strict adherence to the said Agreement, determined (at a general Meeting held last Friday [July 21] for that Purpose) to make Mr. Cooley sensible that the public Displeasure of his Countrymen, upon so interesting an Occasion, was not a Matter of so trifling a Nature as he seem'd to imagine; and that he must not expect the People with whom he lived in Society, would permit him with Impunity, to transgress and violate the Rules and Agreement they had entered into for their Welfare and Security in their highest and most weighty Interests. Two Gentlemen were appointed to inform Mr. Cooley, of the Sentiments of the Inhabitants assembled, to require his immediate Attendance, and assure him that no Injury should be offered to his Person (a Point secured with some Difficulty). He at first refused to attend, saying he did not think he could do it with Safety to his Person; but expressed his willingness to make the Concessions required, from his own parlour Window. Whether he was really influenced to this Answer by his Fears, or by some wrong-headed meddling Adviser, it is uncertain, but it was disagreeable to the People assembled, who immediately proceeded towards his House. He had before this, procured . . . a File of Soldiers to guard his House, who were drawn up and charged their Pieces before his Door: But this Step being . . . highly disapproved by the superior Officers, the Soldiers were soon withdrawn, and Cooley hearing the Approach of the People assembled, thought proper to decamp to the Fort, but soon consented to make the Concessions required of him, the next Day. Accordingly, on Saturday [July 22] at 4 o'Clock in the Afternoon, he attended in the Fields, where he publicly acknowledged his Crimes; implored the Pardon of his Fellow Citizens; engaged to store an Equivalent to the Goods he had sold, together with all those he had in Possession that were imported contrary to Agreement; and so to conduct for the future as not to render himself obnoxious to the Contempt and just Resentment of an injured People.—N. Y. Jour., July 27, 1769. Cf. Cooley's account of the affair, printed in Halsey's The Boston Port Bill (1904), 185-89.

"Jonathan Hampton, "In Chapel-Street, New York," advertises " Windsor Chairs, made in the best and neatest Manner, & well painted, viz. High back'd, low back'd and Sack-back'd Chairs," etc. He sells by wholesale or retail.—N. Y. Jour., July 27, 1769.

31 An advertisement reads: "Mr. Du Simitiere [see 1767], Miniature, Painter, Intending shortly to leave this City, and it being uncertain whether he will return again, if any Gentlemen or Ladies should incline to employ him, he is to be found at his Lodgings, in the House of Mrs. Ferrara, in Maiden Lane.—N. Y. Merc.,
 July 31, 1769.

"During the session of the supreme court which ended on July 29, "John Hennesey, for Felony and Sacrilege, in stealing the Sattin Covering of the Cushions of St. Paul's in this City, . . . received Sentence of Death, and is to be executed the 23<sup>d</sup> of August.—N. Y. Merc., July 31, 1769. He was later pardoned by the governour.—N. Y. Chron., Aug. 24, 1769.

"To be seen At the House of Mr. Abraham De La Montanye, being the King's Arms Tavern, on the Green in New-York, A beautiful Animal, called, A Tiger. Price six pence.—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 31, 1769. See April 5, 1754.

Aug. "Pierre Eugene Du Simitierre [see 1767] . . . appeared in open Court . . . did then and there . . . Subscribe the Text, and make Repeat Swear to, and Subscribe the Abjuration Oath
 . . . [and is] made his majesty's natural born Subject.—*Min.
 Gen. Session of the Peace (MS.)*, Aug. 4, 1769.

7 "Stolen out of the House of James Thompson, at the York Arms in the Out Ward, a Silver Watch.—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 7, 1769.
 The location of this tavern is not known. The "York Arms" was also one of the names by which the City Tavern at 115 Broadway Aug.

 was designated. 7

10 Jacobus Stoutenburgh is paid £16:3:2 "for Cleansing and keeping in Repair ten fire Engines belonging to this Corporation.—
M. C. C., VII: 176.

John Cox, who has been confined for over nine years in the
 "Debtors Gaol" (which is part of the bridewell), having "taken all Methods in the Compass of his power, in order to bring his Creditors to a Composition" but without finding it possible "to obtain a discharge;" and having contributed to the partial support of his wife and eight children by selling liquor in the gaol and by acting as a turnkey or under-keeper for several years, now petitions the common council for appointment as keeper of the bridewell, at the yearly salary allowed to the present keeper. He promises to "find the People confined therein Provisions at his . . . Own Expence, for the benefit of their Work."—From the original petition (MS.), in city clerk's record-room. The petition is deferred for future consideration.—M. C. C., III: 176. Before his imprisonment, Cox had been a constable.—Ibid., VI: 147. On Aug. 24, the present keeper of the bridewell, William Dobbs, replied to the foregoing in another petition. He referred to Cox's "pathetic description of the distress of his Wife and Numerous family and the insufficiency of the privilege he enjoys to support them,—upon which he Solely grounds his Extraordinary request," and added: "Yet this John Cox's tenderness is so wholly absorbed in his own family, that he has not the least consideration for the unhappy State Your Petitioner and his family would unavoidably be reduced to if deprived of the said Employment [Dobbs himself had been a debtor to the corporation.—M. C. C., VI: 79]." He further stated that Cox "has made a purchase some time ago of a valuable concern in this City, for which he paid £500, and from which he receives the Yearly Rent of Eighty pounds. And has likewise Shipped a valuable Cargo of Wine and other Merchandize to Virginia. . . . From these particulars, it fully appears that Mr Cox in the account he has given hath attempted to impose upon your Worships." Dobbs asked that Cox's petition be dismissed.—From the original petition (MS.), in File 4, city clerk's record-room; cf. Peterson & Edwards, N. Y. as an 18th Cent. Municipality, 305, and Appendix XXI (in which the entire petition of Dobbs is printed). The common council must have denied Cox's petition, for records show that Dobbs was not displaced by him (see Nov. 21, 1765).

The ship "Britannia" (see June 4, 1770) is launched from 17 the ship-yards of Messrs. Totten and Crossfield, in the presence of 5,000 delighted spectators. "She glided elegantly from the Stocks, uninterrupted by any Accident. Her Burthen about 333 Tons, Dimensions 81 Feet 9 Inches whole Keel, 28 Feet Beam, 12 Feet Hold, 5 Feet 4 Inches between Decks. . . . She is built for the London Trade. Her Head is a Bust of Britannia, supported on the right by America, and by Hibernia on her left: Expressive of our invariable Affection for, and indissoluble Union with, the Chief of Nations.—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 21, 1769. For the location of the ship-yards where the vessel was probably built, see Pl. 49, Vol. I.

"The Katzen Plan" (see 1766-7 and Pl. 42. Vol. I) is now first advertised for sale: 21

"Just published, and to be sold by H. Gaîne,
 "Price, 16s. coloured, and 8s. plain)

"A Plan of the City of New-York, Dedicated to his Excellency Sir Henry Moore, Bart. The above Plan is done on a Sheet of Imperial Paper, the Streets laid down very exact, with the Names of each, the Wards, Wharfs and all publick Buildings in and about the City properly distinguished, and the whole carried considerably farther than Corlear's Hook.—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 21, 1769.

"Pres. Cooper of King's College writes to John Singleton Copley:
 "I should be very glad if you could persuade yourself to exercise your Art for a few Months in this place [New York]. I am satisfied you would find an unparalleled Degree of Encouragement, notwithstanding the common Complaint of the Scarcity of Money. Any assistance that I could lend you, you might depend on receiving."
 —Letters & Papers of John Singleton Copley and Henry Pelham, 1739-1776, 75-76. On Sept. 24, Copley answered: "I am much obliged to you for the assistance you are so kind to offer me should I visit New-York. Although I cannot at present make that excusion for the exercise of my pencil, I may in some future time.—
Ibid., 76. For Copley's arrival in New York, see June 16, 1771.

Theophilus Hardenbrook and other house carpenters of New York petition the common council for relief against unfair compe- 24

- 1769 tion, claiming "that a Considerable Number of Country Carpen-Aug. 24 ters have for Some years past Come into this City in the Summer Season and followed their Trade and in the fall Return[ed] again to their families without paying any Taxes or assessments," to the prejudice of these petitioners "and the Impoverishment of their families." A committee was appointed to relieve them.— M. C. C., VII: 177. The situation appears to have been settled by private agreement, as the committee made no report of record.
For an earlier account of similar circumstances, see April 2, 1747.
- " The custom of stretching chains across streets under certain conditions is revealed in a payment of this date "for fixing a Chain across the Bridge at the Fly market."—M. C. C., VII: 177. See also 1789.
- Sept. 6 George Lindsay is paid £8:11:12 for 16 milestones which he has supplied to the corporation.—M. C. C., VII: 178. These were the first milestones to be set up in the city; they started from the city hall, at the corner of Wall and Nassau Sts., and continued along the Bowery and Kingsbridge roads. For the several locations, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 960.
- " Samuel Rogers, the tenant of Bedloe's Island, is removed by the common council, and the island is leased to Evert Pells.— M. C. C., VII: 179. See July 23, 1772.
- " A scale for weighing hay was erected some time before this in "the little street back of Mr George Burns's Stable." Robert Leake had petitioned the common council recently that it be removed "to a place beyond the Dock commonly called Deys Dock." Now a petition, reciting these facts and signed by 42 persons, asks the common council that it be kept where it is; this is endorsed "Read & filed Sept. 3rd 6th 1769, but no order made thereon."—From original petition (MS.) in city clerk's record-room.
- 11 Gov. Moore, at the age of 56, dies at Fort George. "We never had a Governor whose Death was more deeply or deservedly lamented." His body was interred, on the evening of Sept. 12, in the chancel of Trinity Church, with full military honours and all the solemnity and respect due his "Rank and Station."—N. Y.
Merc., Sept. 18, 1769. Similar accounts of the governor's death, together with sketches of his life, may be found in the N. Y. Jour., Sept. 14, 1769, and the N. Y. Chron., Sept. 14, 1769. Philip Livingston, Jr., Moore's private secretary, sends the news of the governor's death to the Earl of Hillsborough immediately.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 187. Jonathan Watts, writing to Gen. Monkton on the 12th, said that the cause of the governor's death was "a mortification of the bowels."—Aspinwall Papers, 618. See also Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV, in N. Y. Pub. Library. Lady Moore was not in New York, apparently, at the time of the governor's death, having sailed with her adopted daughter for England on June 20 (q. v.).
- 12 Jonathan Watts informs Gen. Monkton by letter of Gov.
Moore's death, and adds: "Today Mr Colden is expected in town once more to take up to him the administration of the Government: He fairly lives himself into office, being they tell me as hearty as when you knew him. I never saw him since he left the city upon Sir Harry's arrival, and retired to Long Island. A fine mess of portage is left behind for him by his predecessor who had not time to go through with the grand laud matters that were upon the carpet. The old man seems to be the son of fortune in his advanced years."—Aspinwall Papers, 618-19.
- 13 Lieut.-Gov. Colden takes the usual oaths. A proclamation is issued by the council announcing the death of Gov. Moore (see Sept. 11), and continuing all public officers in their posts. Moore's general instructions are delivered to Colden.—Cal. Coun. Min., 479; N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 188.
- 14 According to a news report, two thieves have been given "15 lashes each at the usual place of flagellation."—N. Y. Chron., Sept. 14, 1769.
- 19 Thomas Richardson, a violator of the non-importation agreement, is ordered to appear at a scaffold erected near the liberty pole, and to "satisfy the public relative to his past and future conduct." He had endangered the "Safety of America by exposing his non-enumerated Goods &c. for sale, and that in the most daring and contumacious manner." He obeyed the demand of the inhabitants and, after mounting the rostrum, declared that "he was extremely sorry for the Offence which he had given the community, and asked Pardon." In addition, he promised to store his goods and not to "perpetrate the like atrocity in Future."—
N. Y. Jour., Sept. 21, 1769.
- 21 A newspaper advertisement reads: "Anthony Dodau, Marble-Cutter, At the back of the Old English Church, betwixt Mars-ton's and Laifart's Distilleries. Begs Leave to inform the Public, that he makes all Sorts of Chimney-Pieces in the most Elegant Manner, both of White and Vein'd, (Italian and American) Marble and Red Stones, he also cuts Tomb and Head-Stones."—
N. Y. Chron., Sept. 14-21, 1769.
- " The common council orders that the alderman and assistant alderman of Montgomery Ward, the Out Ward, and the North Ward, be a committee to regulate King George St. in the North Ward, and the street leading from thence toward the Swamp.—
M. C. C., VII: 181. King George St. was the present North
William St. In 1771, the street was being dug out.—Ibid., VII:
323. It was ordered that it be further regulated, Nov. 21, 1771.— Ibid., VII: 330. The street referred to as "leading from thence towards the Swamp" was the present Frankfort St.
- " Payment of £114:8:9 is authorized by the common council for repairs to the city hall. The account includes six days carpenter work "Supporting the Roof with timber to Relieve the weight that bore over the [Council] Room," also "the finishing the Council Room, with Laying New floors, arkitraves, Casings, Dado Round
D<sup>o</sup>, with Cap & base, modelery Cornish, Doors window arkitrave & Casings two windows & Shutters to D<sup>o</sup> and also finishing Side Room."—From original voucher in comptroller's office (Box
No. 1). See Grim's Plan, Pl. 32, Vol. I. A room "for the use of the Council" had been ordered fitted up on Aug. 15, 1768 (q. v.).
- 29 The provincial council orders that a new recorder for New York City be appointed in place of Simoa Johnson, who neglects his duties.—Cal. Coun. Min., 479. On Nov. 17, Thomas Jones received the appointment.—Ibid., 480.
- " The valuation of English, French, and Spanish coins, of gold and silver, is fixed by the Chamber of Commerce in terms of pounds, shillings, and pence.—Cal. Recs. of the N. Y. Chamber of Commerce.
Observations made at the "Flag [or south-west] Bastion" of the fort by David Ritzenhouse and John Montresor, engineers, establish the latitude of the city of New York as 40° 42' 8". This was done by order of the Chamber of Commerce.—Cal. Recs. N. Y.
Chamber of Commerce, 60-62. See June 23, 1817.
- Nov. 1 This being "The Day on which the Inhabitants of this Colony nobly determined not to surrender their Rights to arbitrary Power, however august," a celebration is held at the house of Mr. De La Montagne by the Sons of Liberty.—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 6, 1769.
- 3 John van Cortlandt's sugar-house, at the north-west corner of Trinity churchyard, is destroyed by fire, the stone walls alone remaining.—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 6, 1769. See also 1755.
- 6 "The Hand and Hand Fire Company, Arc hereby Notified,
That there will soon be a Meeting of said Company, of which the Clerk will give Notice. The Members are desired to have their Bags, Buckets, Belts, Baskets, and Hand-Barrows in Readiness."— N. Y. Merc., Nov. 6, 1769. See March 2, 1768.
- 13 "At a Meeting of a Number of Masters of Vessels and other Gentlemen, last Week in this City, They were of Opinion, That a Marine Society established here, would be of infinite Service, and contribute greatly to the Relief of a Number of distressed Sea Captains Widows, and Orphans."—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 13, 1769.
Those interested were invited to meet for organization on Dec.
15 (N. Y. Merc., Dec. 11, 1769). Other meetings were held weekly during the following months (see N. Y. Merc., Jan. 1 and Jan. 15, 1770), and a charter was petitioned for March 7, 1770 (q. v.), and granted April 12, 1770 (q. v.).
- 16 A concert is advertised to be held in Burns' assembly-room.—
N. Y. Merc., Nov. 6, 1769. See also ibid., Jan. 9, 1770; N. Y. Jour.,
Feb. 14, 1771.
- 22 In his address at the opening of the new session, Colden says to the assembly: "By the accounts to be laid before you, it will appear that the monies appropriated for furnishing his Majesty's troops with necessities [see May 20], have been wholly expended, and a large arrear incurred: my duty therefore obliges me, with the other supplies usually granted at this season, to recommend a farther provision for this necessary service."— Assemb. Jour. (1769-70), 4. On Nov. 29, the assembly answered:
"In the present impoverished state of the colony, every requisition for a fresh supply, will demand our most serious consideration."— Ibid. (1769-70), 13. See Dec. 15.
- " William Smith, "one of the Justices of the Supreme Court, and late one of his Majesty's Council for this Province," as well as the father of the author of the first history of New York, dies at the age 1769 of 73. "He was born in England, and arrived here in the Year 1715. Dec.

Nov. He practised the Law with great Reputation, and was esteemed 22 of the most eminent in his Profession. In the Year 1753, he was made one of his Majesty's Council for this Province, which Office he afterwards resigned, and in the Year 1763, one of the Judges of the Supreme Court. He was a Gentleman of great Erudition, and the most eloquent Speaker in the Province; of an amiable and exemplary Life and Conversation, and a zealous and inflexible Friend to the Cause of Religion and Liberty. His Remains were decently interred in the Presbyterian Meeting."—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 27, 1769.

27 "An Hostler, That get's drunk no more than 12 Times in a Year, and will bring with him a good Recommendation, is wanted.
Such a Person will meet with Encouragement, by applying to H.
Gaine."—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 27, 1769.

30 Two somewhat similar bills are introduced in the assembly, one "to exempt protestants of all denominations, from paying to any clergyman by compulsory taxation," the other "to exempt
the inhabitants of the counties of Westchester, New-York, Queens and Richmond from any taxation for the support of the ministers of churches to which they do not belong" (see April 6).—*Assemb.
Jour.* (1769-70), 13, 14, 16, 17. Both bills passed the assembly but failed to pass the council. The opposition to them came chiefly from New York City.—Ibid. (1769-70), 18-19, 24, 75, 94-95, 98, 101, 102; Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 1736. For a complaint against the dilatory proceedings of the assembly in regard to these bills, see Jan. 27, 1770. From the records it appears that no such law was enacted by the legislature prior to the Revolution.

Dec. A number of residents in Montgomery Ward petition for per-1 mission "to erect a Bridge a Cross Beekmans Slip at their own expense." Consideration of the petition is deferred "untill the next Common Council that the Neighbourhood there may in the mean time have an Opportunity of making their Objections to the same if any they should have."—M. C. C., VII: 193. On Dec. 12, some people "Residing Contiguous to Beekmans Slip" requested that the above petition might not be granted, and consideration of the matter was deferred "to some future Common Council."—
Ibid., VII: 197. See Dec. 30, 1771.

4 Colden has hopes "that a more moderate temper, begins to gain ground among the People, and that many incline to avoid, as much as possible, what may irritate or give offence to the parent Country."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 191.

"Mr. Le Gry, fencing and dancing master, proposes to open his school on this day at the house of Mr. John Ebert, at the sign of the Roebuck, at the upper end of Horse and Cart St.—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 4, 1769. This was on William St., often referred to as Horse and Cart St. because of the presence at William near Fulton St.
of the noted Horse and Cart Tavern. In 1786, the "sign of the Roe-Buck" hung out from an inn on the New Road, of which Edward Collins was proprietor.—N. Y. Jour., Sept. 21, 1786.

9 Hillsborough informs Colden that "The King having been graciously pleased to approve of the Earl of Dunmore to be Gov<sup>r</sup> of New York, the necessary instructions are preparing for him, and His Lord<sup>sh</sup> proposes setting out for his Govern<sup>mt</sup> as early in the spring as he can find a safe conveyance."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 193.

10 An extract of a letter from London states: "You have a new Governor appointed, Lord Dunmore, he has the Character of being a good temper'd honest Man; a Soldier, brave and generous.
He does not go over till the Spring. I hope you will all be as happy in him as in his Predecessor."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 26, 1770.

12 The common council appoints a committee "to Confer with the Petitioners for water Lots fronting their Houses Lying to the Eastward of the Exchange between that & the Counties markt and to Receive the proposals of the said Petitioners on the Subject matter of their said Petition and make Report thereof to this Board with all Convenient Speed."—M. C. C., VII: 196. The committee reported on Jan. 10, 1770, but the report is not entered in the Minutes.—M. C. C., VII: 199. In connection with this matter, the common council ordered, on Feb. 15, 1770, that the committee "Do Cause two plans to be made . . . [one of] the Ground from the White Hall Slip to the Counties peer and the other of the Ground opposite the Petitioners Lots; that in the first of the above said plans, they proportion the Loss which each said Lott will Loose, in order that this Board may be the better Enabled to Judge where and in what manner the Broad Street may be farther extended."—M. C. C., VII: 206-7. See May 1, 1771, and Dec.

A. Pl. 5, Vol. III.

In response to Colden's request of Nov. 22 (q. v.), the assembly, by a vote of 12 to 11, agrees "that there be granted unto his Majesty, the sum of two thousand pounds, for supplying the troops quartered in this colony with necessaries for one year."—*Assemb.
Jour.* (1769-70), 38. The act granting this money was signed by the lieutenant-governour on Jan. 5, 1770 (q. v.). The broadside of Dec. 16, 1769 (q. v.) was a direct result of this vote of the house.

A broadside addressed "To the Betrayed Inhabitants of the 16
City and Colony of New-York" is issued by "A Son of Liberty."
It reads: "In a Day when the Minions of Tyranny and Despotism in the Mother Country, and the Colonies, are indefatigable in laying every Snare that their malvevolent [sic] and corrupt Hearts can suggest, to enslave a free People; when this unfortunate Country has been striving under many Disadvantages for three Years past, to preserve their Freedom . . . when the Merchants of this City
. . . have nobly and cheerfully sacrificed their private Interests to the publick Good. . . . It might justly be expected, that in this Day of Constitutional Light, the Representatives of this Colony, would not be so hardy, nor be so lost to all Sense of Duty to their Constituents . . . as to betray the Trust committed to them.
This they have done, in passing the Vote to give the Troops a Thousand Pounds, out of any Monies that may be in the Treasury, and another Thousand out of the Money that may be issued, to put out on Loan [see Dec. 15] . . . Our granting Money to the Troops, is implicitly acknowledging the Authority that enacted the Revenue-Acts, and their being obligatory on us.
. . . . To what other Influence than the deserting the American Cause, can the Ministry attribute so pusillanimous a Conduct, as this of the assembly; so repugnant and subversive of all the Means we have used, and Opposition that has been made . . . to the tyrannical Conduct of the British Parliament? To no other.
Can there be a more ridiculous Farce to impose on the People, than for the Assembly to vote their Thanks to be given to the Merchants, for entering into an Agreement not to import Goods from Britain, until the Revenue Acts should be repealed, while they at the same Time contract it by countenancing British Acts, and complying with Ministerial Requisitions, incompatible with our Freedom? . . . And what makes the Assembly's granting this Money the more grievous, is, that it goes to the Support of Troops kept here, not to protect but to enslave us. . . . This Consideration alone ought to be sufficient to induce a free People, not to grant the Troops any Supply whatsoever if we had no Dispute with the Mother Country, that made it necessary not to concede any Thing that might destroy our Freedom, Reasons of Economy and good Policy suggest, that we ought not to grant the Troops Money. . . .

"Hence it follows, that the Assembly have not been attentive to the Liberties of the Continent, nor to the Property of the good People of this Colony, in particular. We must therefore attribute this Sacrifice to the public Interest, to some corrupt Source. . . . Mr. Colden Knows, from the Nature of Things, that he cannot have the least Prospect to be in Administration again; and therefore, that he may make Hay while the Sun shines, and get a full Salary from the Assembly, flatters the ignorant Members of it, with the Consideration of the Success of a Bill, to emit a Paper Currency, when he and his artful Coadjutors must know, that it is only a Snare to impose on the simple; for it will not obtain the Royal Assent [see Jan. 5, 1770]."

"The Delancy Family knowing the Ascendency they have in the present House of Assembly, and how useful that Influence will be to their ambitious Designs, to manage a New Governour . . .
like true Politicians, altho they were in all Appearance, at mortal Odds with Mr. Colden . . . yet a Coalition is now formed, in order to secure to them the Sovereign Lordship of this Colony. . . .
The Assembly might as well invite the Council . . . to take their Seats in the House of Assembly, and place the Lieutenant Governor in the Speaker's Chair, and then there would be no Waste of Time in going from House to House. . . . Is this a State to be rested in, when our all is at Stake? No my Countrymen, Rouse! . . . What I would advise to be done, is, to assemble in the Fields, on Monday next [see Dec. 18], where your Sense ought to be taken on this important Point. . . . After this is done, go in a Body to your Members, and insist on their joining with the Minority to oppose the Bill."—From a broadside in the N. Y.

- 1769 Pub. Library. For an answer to the broadside, see Dec. 18. The Dec. assembly offered on Dec. 19 (q.v.), a reward of £100 for the discovery of the author.
- 18 The meeting in the Fields suggested by the broadside of Dec. 16 (q.v.) is held at noon. The inhabitants discuss the "Inexpediency, and dangerous Consequences that would result to this Colony and the common Cause of Liberty, by granting Money to support his Majesty's Troops." The questions "Whether they approved of the Vote of the House of Assembly, for granting Money to support the Troops? . . . and . . . whether they were for giving any Money to the Troops, on any Consideration whatsoever?" are carried in the negative by a very large majority. A committee appointed by the citizens delivered to the assembly, on Dec. 19, a report of the meeting but the representatives merely answered "That they were of Opinion the Majority of the Inhabitants were disposed to give Money to support the Troops, and that it was now too late to pay any regard to the above Report of the Committee."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 25, 1769.
- " In answer to the broadside of Dec. 16 (q.v.), appears one headed "A Citizen's Address to the Public," and signed "A Citizen." It states: "I confess myself ashamed, my dear Fellow Citizens, to observe the Attention you paid to those extremely contemptible Papers, which have lately been spread about this City. . . . Certainly you cannot be ignorant of their Motives—you cannot be unconscious of their Absurdity. It is impossible for any Person to be so grossly imposed upon and infatuated, as to be made to believe that those Men whom you so lately applauded as Defenders of their Country, when they voted Half the usual Stipend (that they might obtain a Paper Currency, and relieve the Distresses of Thousands) had therein a sinister Design to enslave you. . . .
- "Who is there amongst you, who professes himself a Lover of his Country, and will declare, That he does not desire the oppressive Duty Acts to be repealed? And where is the Man who would suffer the Assembly to pass uncessured, if at this critical Time, by refusing to grant the usual Supply, they had thrown an insurmountable Bar in the Way of their being repealed, and finally shut the Door against our Hopes? . . . Why is the Propriety of granting Money for the Support of the Troops, so much called in Question at this Time? Why did it escape Scrutiny, when, in a late Administration, some Gentlemen were so marvelously forward and complaisant, that they were for granting Money even before the Requisition was made; although warmly opposed by the Gentlemen who were for granting in the present Case,—that they might thereby obtain Leave for a Paper Currency, and relieve their distressed Constituents? . . . Certainly if granting Money was then pardonable, it is now laudable: We have not, as was then the Case, a suspending Law hanging over our Heads;—we can give our Money in Constitutional Way;—and who is there, in his Senses, but must see the glaring Impolicy and Madness of our using the first Moments of our Freedom in refusing to contribute our Quota . . .
- "I would be glad to know, if there is any remarkable Change in our Politics since the last Session of the Assembly? We were not then on the Eve of having the Duty Acts repealed; we had then the Mortification of being utterly denied a Paper Currency: Yet, granting Money to the Troops was generally thought expedient. Have the Members been instructed since that Time? . . . By what Divination should they find that the Minds of the Inhabitants of this City, are so much changed in so short a Time. . . .
- "Would to God that those Men, who are at present employed in condemning the Measures lately adopted by the House of Assembly, had no Party Ends in view, and were not influenced by their implacable Malice to those worthy Persons whose Misconduct they ardently wish and pray: They would then, like those Gentlemen, receive that Pleasure and Peace of Mind which always results from Actions, whose Object is the public Good."—From broadside in the N. Y. Pub. Library.
- 19 Another broadside is issued, directed "To the Public." It states: "The Spirit of the Times renders it necessary for the Inhabitants of this Colony to convene, in Order effectually to avert the destructive Consequences of the late base inglorious Conduct of our General Assembly; who have, in Opposition to the loud and general Voice of their Constituents,—the Dictates of sound Policy,—the Ties of Gratitude, and the glorious struggle we have engaged in for our invaluable Birth Rights, dared to vote Supplies to the Troops, without the least Shadow of a Pretext for their pernicious Grant. The most eligible Place will be in the Fields, near Mr. De La Montagne's and the Time,—between 10 and 11 o'clock in the Morning; where we doubt not every Friend to his Country will attend."
LEGION."
- N. Y. Merc.*, Dec. 25, 1769.
- The assembly convened the same day and declared both this and the broadside of Dec. 16 (q.v.) "a false, seditious and infamous libel." The lieutenant-governour was asked to offer rewards of £50 and £100 for the discovery of their respective authors.—Assemb. Jour. (1769-70), 42-43. See Jan. 8, 1771.
- 20 Colden issues a proclamation offering a reward of £100 to discover the author of "a certain seditious and libelous Paper," dated Dec. 16, 1769 (q.v.), directed "To the Betrayed Inhabitants of the City and Colony of New York." This action of Colden's is in accordance with a resolution of the assembly on Dec. 19 (q.v.). Also, a reward of £50 is offered to discover the author of the handbill of Dec. 18 (q.v.). Such offers stimulated informers and led to the arrest of James Parker and Alexander McDougal.—Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), III: 321-23. See Feb. 7, 1770.
- 22 By a vote of 18 to 5, the assembly agrees that permission be given for bringing in a bill "that all elections to be held or made, for the election of representatives to sit in general assembly, for the colony of New-York, shall be by ballot only."—Assemb. Jour. (1769-70), 47. See Jan. 4, and Jan. 5, 1770.
- 28 A broadside, addressed "To the Public," and signed by "A Freeholder," says: "As it is generally imagined, the Assembly will (contrary to the known Sentiments of their Constituents) grant Supplies to the Troops,—I would therefore advise my Fellow Citizens, immediately to appoint a Committee, and give them Instructions, (in Case the said pernicious Supplies should be granted) to draw up a State of the Case, and transmit the same to the Speakers of all the Houses of Assembly on the Continent, (New-Jersey excepted) in Order to preserve that Union and Harmony so necessary at this Time to our political Safety."—From the original in Mass. Hist. Soc.
- " A notice calling upon the inhabitants of the city to meet tomorrow at the liberty pole is issued in a broadside by those who are in favour of election by ballot.—From the reprint in the N. Y. Pub. Library (Evans, 11501). See Jan. 4, 1770.
- 29 "J. W. a Squatter on Public Affairs" issues a broadside entitled: "The Mode of Elections Considered." He says that both in Pennsylvania and in Connecticut, representatives are chosen by ballot; that people in those colonies who are ignorant of the English language "are thereby frequently the Means of electing Persons, whom they detest in their Hearts;" and that the method has led to threats and bribery. From these alleged facts, he concludes "that the Mode of Election hitherto used in this Government, (whereby every Elector is at Liberty to declare the Sentiments of his Heart publicly, which is the Glory of the British Constitution) is preferable to either of those before mentioned."—From a photostat in the N. Y. Pub. Library (Evans, 11517).
- " A broadside, addressed "To the Freeholders, and Freemen of the City and Province of New-York," praises the motion that elections be conducted by ballot (see Dec. 22). The writer says that such a law "may be properly stiled, An Act for the Redemption of the Poor, and the Establishment of the Liberties of the Colony. A Law friendly to all but such as are desirous of selling their Birth-Right for a Mess of Pottage; and the Sons of Wealth and Ambition, who thirst after the Power of enslaving the rest of their Countrymen." He shows that corrupt ministers in England have tried to force the election to the house of commons of men favourable to their measures, and points out that what has happened in England may happen in America. He urges the people to realize "that our main constitutional Security, is in the House of Assembly; and if they should ever be in Confederacy with a wicked Governor, that Colony is irrevocably ruin'd." The broadside states that voting by ballot has been successfully tried out in other colonies, and that it is the most "effectual Antidote to Corruption," because "no Man of Opulence will be able to procure a Seat in the Assembly, by an undue Influence upon the Fears of the Electors; nor find it worth his While to spend Money, which he can never be sure will have the wicked Effects for which it was given."—From a photostat (made from an original in the Library Company of Philadelphia) in the N. Y. Pub. Library (Evans, 11497).

C. Van Hook. May 15th 1774.

gentlemen

Your very acceptable Review of the 28th March signed by Mr. Coppe to our Committee came duly to Hand, and the Effect of it would have been carried into Execution, were not the Dispensers of our Tea Ships, had we not been alarmed with Intelligence from England of more Impudence that calls for our utmost Attention and Vigilance. And Secretary Caplan's Congress arrived from London on 27th Days, and brought us the News that General Juge was appointed your Governor, and that he was to sail for your Town in the Week's End; the Day before he sailed, that is not certain of the sailing at the same appointed. By him we have received the following and about all Act of Parliament, that shall up your Town the first of June next, a Copy of which was enclosed to your Secretary by the last Thursday Post, but as it may mislead you here we send several other Copies of it. The most Language is expressed your Return of the additional Act of Intemperance to America, we clearly see that what is to be attended and enclosed by itself trying and including you. This Intelligence would have been immediately communicated to you by Express, but we considered the long Distance of Boston, which had brought you the Intelligence, till before it reached us; therefore we judged it most eligible to put the State of the Intelligence upon some Means to extract you out of your Displeasure, which should be communicated to you without any of them.

any Money guaranteed for him, will be paid by us. We are very sensible that with your Displeasure and our with great Care and Affection your Servant

And very Humble Servant

Isaac Hoag
 Attest: 1774 May 15

Is the common stile of communicating for the Town of Boston

1774
 May 15
 Isaac Hoag
 Attest

We are sensible that immediate Relief cannot be given, yet and we fully apprehend the extent of the Misery intended to your Town by the said Act. Nor are we insensible that it may be said that there who are at Distance from, and do not immunably part the Continuity, may retaliate those who are in contingency, and therefore to bring on our Brethren in opposing the same proposal with common Sense, and in perhaps some the former expressing under the same kind of Opposition they would accept other Measures for their Relief. For these Reasons it becomes us to be very careful in comparing & give any Measure that may seem to justify your Design. And we are persuaded that the several Signals of the Sense of Brethren concerning the Good of the said Act in all its other Branches, and therefore that the Consistency would the Brethren of it will only be a temporary Relief from a particular Evil, which will and must rise in a more general Manner.

Being thus with this a great Number from Brethren with our self to it in the same which with you. And we the Brethren have just it out of your Power, to continue your Study with great Brethren, we have undertaken the Assistance to oppress a hindering & increase Learning as I think, to give you a proportion. You, in opposition, and. An irregular Agreement of Society, & out from Great Brethren, with the common Sense and we not by your order, with the Brethren we may be agreed upon, & Brethren, from the Brethren, from in the first, and a more in a general Example to be held out for their Design, and also to with the Brethren of all Brethren, Brethren, and Brethren to the English Brethren, and to suffer in more of the first Brethren to be required to the Brethren, Brethren then will be sufficient to bring from the Brethren, from and. Brethren for the Brethren Brethren Brethren. We will show the Brethren, from, who are common in the Sense of Brethren, from Brethren - the Brethren of England, their Brethren in the Brethren of the Brethren, Brethren, Brethren, Brethren and Brethren from their Brethren, and the Brethren of all Brethren Brethren cannot just a Brethren and a Brethren in the Brethren, Brethren, and Brethren Brethren of the Brethren, we will retain the Brethren, Brethren, and Brethren a Brethren Brethren to the Brethren Brethren, and we are have no Brethren of your Brethren of their Brethren, we think it may be proper for your Brethren, and we think it Brethren of the Brethren, from Brethren in the Brethren, from of the Brethren of Brethren Brethren, from Brethren Brethren and all the Brethren from that is the Brethren of you, we shall apply to the Brethren of Brethren, from and from that Brethren, from, and we think it Brethren of Brethren Brethren, Brethren. We shall by God a Brethren from our Brethren to Brethren, Brethren, and Brethren of the Brethren of your Brethren. We are with great Brethren, from you, that many Brethren, and we think it in the Brethren, who have Brethren, Brethren, and we think it Brethren, with great Brethren, from the Brethren, Brethren, Brethren, and Brethren, and all Brethren of the Brethren, and you Brethren, and Brethren, the Brethren, to you of your Brethren, Brethren, to the Brethren. And this is the Brethren, from your Brethren, Brethren, which we judge Brethren, Brethren, and Brethren, Brethren, Brethren in the Brethren, Brethren, Brethren. We think it Brethren to with the Brethren, from the Brethren, from Brethren, from Brethren, which the Brethren, from Brethren, Brethren, and Brethren, from, Brethren, to a Brethren, from the Brethren, from Brethren, and we think it your Brethren, from the Brethren, should be Brethren in Brethren

1770

1770

— Maj. Walter Rutherford, a half-pay officer of the British army, erected a residence, at some time prior to the Revolution, possibly about 1770, on the corner of Broadway and Vesey St., opposite St. Paul's, a location which he described as "far up the street with an open square in front, and good air, as there are but few houses in the neighborhood." Here he lived until his death in 1804.—Rutherford, Family Records and Events (1894), 109; and description of Pl. 68, I. 451. Here the corner-stone of the Park Hotel (soon after named the Astor House) was laid on July 4, 1834 (q.v.). See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III, 952.

— The domestic establishment of Abraham Meyer, of Harlem, has been described by Valentine as an illustration of the household property of a respectable farmer on Manhattan Island at this time. The record is an inventory, in Dutch, of his stock and labouring tools, as well as the furniture and utensils in use in his family.—See Man. Com. Coun. (1858), 524-26; and compare with the more elaborate establishment of the merchant De Peyster (see 1760).

— In this year, Walter Franklin, a merchant of the city, erected a house on the site of the present No. 3 Cherry St.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III, 949; Smith, N. Y. City in 1789, 224-25; Pelleureau, Early N. Y. Houses, 38. It became Washington's residence in 1789—(see March 30, 1789), and was demolished in 1856 (q.v.).

— Pierre Eugène du Simitière made a tabulated list of persons who owned coaches, chariots, post-chaises, and phaetons at this time in New York. He made similar tabulations for Philadelphia in 1772, and for Boston in 1768. In New York there were 85 vehicles of this character, namely: 26 coaches, 33 chariots or post-chaises (which were the same kind of vehicle), and 26 phaetons, kept by 62 residents of the city. The original MS., now preserved in the Ridgway Branch of the Library Co. of Phila., has been published by Houghton, in Coaches in Colonial N. Y. (1890), 24-25.

— "The City of New York contains near 3,000 houses, and above 14,000 inhabitants, the descendants of Dutch and English. It is well and commodiously built, extending a mile in length and about half a mile in breadth, and has a very good aspect from the Sea; but it was by no means till lately properly fortified. The houses are built with brick, mostly in the dutch taste, the Streets are not regular but they are clean and well paved. In the [Year] 1770, the number of places of public worship in this city stood as follows: Dutch Presbyterians 3. English do. 2. Scotch do. 1. Episcopalian 3. French Refugees 1. Quakers 1. Baptists 1. Moravians 1. German Calvinists 2. German Lutherans 1. Methodists 1. Jews 1. hence it Should Seem needless to observe that all religions are tolerated here without the least restraint upon any one's conscience.

— "The town has a very flourishing trade, and in which great profits are made. The merchants are wealthy, and the people in general most comfortably provided for, and with a moderate labour at present, the trade of New York must be very considerable as well as advantageous; because being now in our possession, our manufactures are carried there in great abundance, and from thence clandestinely conveyed to different parts of the continent of America."—From MS. entitled "A Concise Description of New York and New Jersey," apparently by Du Simitière; no date or author given, but evidently from early Revolutionary period (He was in New York in 1769); in Du Simitière's "Papers relating to N. England N; York &c.," in Library Co. of Phila.

— Sometime between this year and 1781, St. Jean de Crèvecoeur (see Dec. 23, 1765) wrote a description of New York. As it fits the early part of 1776, it has been placed there in the Chronology.

— In this year, Alexander Chuoq published in London a small volume of letters, entitled The American Traveller: containing observations on the Present State, Culture and Commerce of the British Colonies in America . . . By an Old and Experienced Trader. His "Letter XIV" (undated), 56-58, describes this province thus:

"The next Province, . . . is New York, in every Respect the happiest for Habitation in all North-America; the Healthfulness of the Climate vying with the Fertility of the Soil; which not only produces aboriginally every Necessary of Life, but also brings all the vegetable Productions of Europe, that have been tried there, to perfection, and many of them in a much higher Degree, with little or no Trouble, than they arrive at in England, under the most careful and expensive Cultivation.

" . . . I shall . . . lay before your Lordship the following View of the Trade at present carried on between it, and Great Britain, . . .

"Commodities exported from Great Britain to New York.

"Wrought-Iron, Steel, Copper, Pewter, Lead, and Brass — Cordage — Hemp — Sail-Cloth — Ship-Chandlery — Painter's-Colours — Millinery — Hosiery — Haberdashery — Gloves — Hats — Broad-Cloths — Stuffs — Flannels — Colchester — Bays — Long Ells — Silks — Gold and Silver Lace — Manchester Goods — British, Foreign, and Irish Linens — Earthen-Wares — Grindstones — Birmingham, and Sheffield Wares — Toys — Saddlery — Cabinet-Wares — Seeds — Cheese — Strong-beer — Smoking-Pipes — Snuffs — Wines — Spirits — Drugs — All which cost at an Average of three Years . . .

"Commodities exported from New York to Great Britain, and other Markets.

"Flour and Biscuit, 250,000 Barrels at 20s.	£250,000
Wheat, 70,000 Quarters at 20s.	70,000
Beans, Peas, Oats, Indian Corn, and other Grain	40,000
Salt-Beef, Pork, Hams, Bacon, and Venison	18,000
Bees-Wax 30,000 lb. at 1s	1,500
Tongues, Butter, and Cheese	8,000
Deer, and other Skins	35,000
Flax-Seed, 7,000 Hhds at 40s	14,000
Horses, and Live Stock	17,000
Timber, Plank, Masts, Boards, Staves and Shingles	25,000
Potash, 7,000 Hhds at 40s	14,000
Ships built for Sale, 20 at £700	14,000
Copper Ore, and Iron, in Bars and Pigs	20,000

"The whole at a like Average of three Years £526,000
 " . . . The Success of repeated Experiments has proved that it abounds in valuable Metals. Iron, and Copper, have already been raised in such Quantities, . . ."

— In this year, there was published in London A Brief State of the Controversy between the Colonies of New-York and New-Jersey, Respecting their Boundary-Line, containing an engraved copy of a map made by Bernard Ratzer for the commissioners, which shows the various changes in the boundary.

— In this year, Hugh Gainé printed a pamphlet entitled Rules for the St. Andrew's Society, in New-York. The preface states that "the Natives of Scotland, and those descended of Scots Parentage, in the City of New-York, have agreed to form themselves into a Charitable Society; the principal Design of which is, to raise and keep a Sum of Money in Readiness for the above laudable Purpose; if the application of this Charity is confined, so is the Manner of collecting it; neither will it in the least prevent our acting up to the Principles of universal Charity on other Occasions." The rules, which were adopted on Nov. 30, 1764, provide for regular meetings, admission of new members, election of officers, payment of dues and fines, disbursement of benefits, keeping of accounts, recording of minutes, &c. Besides the rules, the pamphlet contains a list of the officers and the members of the society. Peter Middleton was president, William M'Adam vice-president, and John Ramsay secretary and treasurer. Many prominent New-Yorkers were numbered among the resident and the honorary members. The N. Y. Hist. Soc.'s copy of this publication was reprinted in 1915.

— The Earl of Dunmore is commissioned governor of New York. — N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 209 (footnote). On Feb. 21, Colden was expecting his arrival.—Ibid. On July 7, Duomore's furniture having arrived, Colden wrote that he was retiring to his house in the country, so "that the Gov<sup>r</sup>'s house may be fitted up for his reception."—Ibid., VIII: 217. On July 16, Dunmore was about to leave England for America.—Ibid., VIII: 223. On Aug. 18, he was daily expected by Colden in New York.—Ibid., VII: 245. On Oct. 18, he arrived.—Ibid., VIII: 249. This delay in his arrival raised a dispute between Colden and Duomore regarding the division of the perquisites of office.—See Nov. 10.

— A broadside, directed "To the Freeholders, and Freeman, of the City and County of New-York," gives four reasons in favour of electing representatives by ballot (see Dec. 28, 1769):

"1st. Such a Law, will in a great Measure, prevent Tumults, Riots and Disorders at Elections.

"2d. It will prevent Men of Property, Power, and Tyrannical Dispositions from prostituting their Wealth and Influence, in giving Weight to their Threats, and thereby intimidate the Electors from a free Disposal of their Votes, according to their Understandings

1770

Jan.

2

4

1770 and Consciences.—And effectually Screen all Honest Burgers and Jan. Tradesmen, who may incline to Vote contrary to the Sentiments, of 4 their Employers or Landlords, from their Resentment; and thereby Place them on a Footing with the Richest of their Fellow Citizens in Elections.

"3d. It will in a great Measure, prevent that Dangerous and Detestable Practice of Bribery and Corruption, which has been too successfully practised, and at present threatens the Ruin of our Mother Country.

"4th Nor will it prevent any Man, from boldly declaring, at the Time of Polling, the Names of those for whom he gives his Vote, if he chooses." The broadside adds: "It is therefore Strange, that an Attempt to introduce that useful, tho' secret Manner of Voting so highly approved, after a long Course of Experience in many of our Colonies, should be attributed to so Narrow a Design, as that of Answering the particular private Purposes of certain Persons."

—From a reprint in the N. Y. Pub. Library (Evans, 11883). The views of the opposing faction were presented on the 5th (q.v.) in an address to the New York City and county members of the assembly.

5 At a meeting of the "independent Freeholders and Freeman," an address to the New York City and County members of the assembly is approved. It reads: "As it appears by the Journals of the honourable House of Assembly, that a Motion has been made to alter the ancient and constitutional Mode of Election, and to substitute that by Balloting in its Room [see Dec. 22, 1769];
 we therefore . . . do, for the following Reasons, instruct and direct you our Representatives to oppose, by all legal Means in your Power, the proposed Alteration.

"Because we conceive it to be a dangerous Innovation directly contrary to the old Laws and Customs of the Realm, and unknown in any royal British Government on the Continent.

"Because we apprehend it to be an implicit Surrender of one of the most invaluable Privileges which we enjoy as Englishmen, to wit, that of declaring our Sentiments openly on all Occasions . . .

"Because we conceive that the principal Argument used by the Abettors of the Mode of Balloting is delusive and fallacious;— they assert that this Method will deliver the Poor from the Influence of the Rich, and enable them to vote free and unbiased; in answer to which, we insist, that neither Law nor Reason can suppose that an honest Man will sell his Birthright for a Mess of Pottage and sacrifice to a selfish and mercenary Consideration his Honour, his Judgment, and his Conscience . . .

"Because we apprehend that the Mode of Balloting, so far from preventing Frauds and Imposition, as is pretended by its Advocates, will rather open unto them a wider Door; for as many Persons in this Province are, in a great measure, unacquainted with the English Language, and, particularly with writing it, they will be necessarily exposed to the villainous Arts of crafty Emissaries, who, under a pretended shew of Friendship, offering their Assistance, will often cause them to deliver Suffrage directly contrary to their Intentions and Judgment . . .

"Because it will be dangerous to the Rights and Liberties of the People to intrust in the Hands of a returning Officer, the sole Power of determining on a Scrutiny; which must of Necessity be the Case, if the Mode of Balloting be adopted."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 9, 1770. These instructions were signed by 1,007 inhabitants.
 By Jan. 16, when they were presented to the representatives, the bill for election by ballot had been rejected by the house.—Ibid.,
 Jan. 22, 1770.

11 Lieut-Gov. Colden signs the bills passed by the assembly for granting £2,000 for supporting the troops quartered in New York City, and for emitting £120,000 in bills of credit. The matter had been under consideration since the meeting of the assembly on Nov.
 21, 1769. Colden was anxious to secure funds to support the troops; the assembly was very desirous of securing the power to emit bills of credit; so the two bills were passed. The action of the assembly was obnoxious to the people, and there was a popular protest, while the government in England afterwards rejected the measure for issuing bills of credit and censured Colden for having approved it.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 189-99. See Jan. 9, April 20.

On Jan. 15, Colden and Gage drew up an agreement specifying that the £2,000 appropriated by the assembly for the troops should be spent in the following manner:

- "For a Bed and a Blanket for each Birth amounting in the whole to the sum of . . . . . £3000:00
- "For Firewood for 77 Rooms the sum of . . . . . 1101:00
- "For Firewood for three Guard Rooms the sum of . . . 81:00

- "For Candles for 77 Rooms the sum of . . . . . 83:00 Jan.
- "For Candles for the Guard Rooms the sum of . . . . . 10:00 5
- "For Repairs the sum of . . . . . 20:00
- "For Lodging for such officers for whom there shall not be Rooms in the Barracks, the sum of . . . . . £83:00
- "For Utencil Money the sum of . . . . . 37:00
- "For the Salary of the Barrack Master the sum of . . . 100:00 £1815:00"

The balance (£185) and all that was saved in purchasing the above articles were to be "applied towards the purchasing of Mollasses and establishing a Spruce Brewery for the Soldiers."—Colden Papers (1877), 204-6.

6 Colden sends to Hillsborough a copy of the broadside of Dec.
 16, 1769 (q.v.). He adds: "Tho' some of our Newspapers make the meetings of the sons of Liberty, as they call themselves, on this occasion to be numerous and of consequence, the party was really disappointed. The numbers who appeared were too small and inconsiderable to have any weight, or be of any service to their purpose. They have been further disappointed in three attempts since made. People in general, especially they of property, are now aware of the dangerous consequences of such riotous and mobish proceedings."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 199.

9 Parliament passes an act to enable the governour, etc., of New York to pass an act to emit £120,000 in bills of credit.—*Cal. Hist.
 MSS.*, Eng., 781. Vetted Feb. 14.—Ibid., 782. See April 20.

"Mr. Banyar brings to the assembly from Lieut-Gov. Colden
 "An account of the expences for repairing the house in Fort George, and the barracks, due to sundry persons."—Assemb. Jour.
 (1769-70), 66. On Jan. 24, 1770, £348:9:0 was allowed for repairs to Fort George and the barracks.—Ibid. (1769-70), 90.

"Publica" issues an address "To the Public," in which he explains in detail how voting by ballot is conducted, and then advances several reasons why the reform ought to be adopted in New York. His arguments are practically the same as those given in the broadside of Jan. 4 (q.v.).—From the reprint in the N. Y.
 Pub. Library (Evans, 11829).

11 "Whereas there were Two Tracks of Land lately Located and Surveyed the one for the use of this Corporation and the other for the use of the Corporation of Kings College in this City which the governors of the said College are to have their Election. It is therefore Ordered that Mr Cromelin Mr Desbrosses and Mr Baché or any two of them be a Committee to meet and treat with the Committee appointed by the Governors of the said College respecting the said two Tracts of Land and also to Settle and adjust the Expences Attending the Surveying the said Lands And that the said Committee take such further Steps in behalf of this Corporation for the obtaining their Grant as They shall think expedient and necessary."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

12 The Legislature passes two laws affecting the city of New York; one "to establish the Rates to be taken for wharfrage of ships and other Vessels, and the Rates to be taken for Cranage," and the other "to ascertain the size Casks in which white Bread shall be packed . . . and to regulate the Manner in which the same shall be sold."—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 80-83, 86.

13 The soldiers make an attempt to cut down the "Liberty Pole" on the common, but their endeavours are in vain; "the Pole being So well secured with Iron." Incensed at the facility of their efforts and the taunts of a number of gentlemen standing near Montagne's house, they entered the house "with drawn swords and Bayonets, insulted the Company and beat the Waiter." Not yet satisfied, they "proceeded to destroy every Thing they could conveniently come at. They broke Eighty-four Panes of Glass, two Lamps and two Bowls; after which they quitted the House with precipitation."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 5, 1770; Penn. Gaz., Feb.
 15, 1770, and Boston Eve. Post, Feb. 19, 1770.

15 A New York broadside, bearing this date, addressed "To the Public," and signed "Brutus," protests against employing soldiers instead of inhabitants who want employment; and against taxes and duties for billeting money to support the soldiers, who are "not kept here to protect but to enslave us." The writer says: "I hope my Fellow Citizens will take this Matter into Consideration, and not countenance a Set of Men who are Enemies to Liberty, and at the Beck of Tyrants to enslave. . . . Experience has convinced us, that good Usage makes Soldiers Insolent and Ungrateful; all the Money that you have hitherto given them, has only taught them to despise and insult you. This is evident in a great Number of them, attempt-

1770 ing last Saturday Night to blow up the Liberty-Pole. . . . They had time to Saw the Braces, and bore a hole in the Pole, which they filled with Powder, and plugged it up, in order to set Fire to it, which was discovered by a Person at Mr. Montagnes; They in Resentment broke Seventy-Six Squares of his Windows, entered his House, and stopped him in the Passage with Swords, and threatened if he stirred to take his Life, which so intimidated the People in the House, that they were induced to go out of the Windows. Not satisfied with this atrocious Wickedness, they broke two of his Lamps, and several Bowls, and that they might the better accomplish their Designs, they posted Sentinels in the Roads that leads to Liberty-Pole, to prevent their being discovered. . . .

1770 All the Friends to Liberty that incline to bear a Testimony against a literal Compliance with the Mutiny Act, (otherwise called the Billenting Act) are desired to meet at Liberty-Pole, at Twelve o'Clock, on Wednesday next, which will be on the 17th Instant [q.v.], where the whole Matter shall be communicated to them."—From a broadside in the N. Y. Pub. Library. For a retaliatory broadside, see Jan. 19.

"The leases of two houses in Augustus St., opposite the east barrack gate in New York, are offered for sale by "Mr. Philip Embury, next door to the Methodist Preaching-House," or by Paul Heck, who lives in one of the houses.—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 15, 1770.

"Robert Benson, secretary of the society for "promoting maritime knowledge, and for relief of distressed masters of ships, their widows, and orphan children," announces that a committee of the society will meet every Monday evening from 6 to 8 o'clock at the house of Thomas Doran, to receive donations and admit members.—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 15, 1770. Thomas Doran had himself been a ship captain (see Oct. 11, 1759), and for over a decade had been proprietor of a tavern on the "New Dock," near the Fly Market. His house continued to be a meeting-place of the Marine Society as late as 1776 (ibid., Jan. 8, 1776), and was the house at which, in December, 1774, a sale of imported goods was held under the direction of the committee of inspection.—N. Y. Jour., Dec. 23, 1774. By March 3, 1777, the tavern was in the hands of Loosley and Elms (N. Y. Merc., Mar. 3, 1777), who were paper manufacturers prior to the outbreak of the Revolution and who succeeded in evading militia duty upon the plea that the paper they manufactured was of the utmost importance to the public and private business of the country.—Baylor, Old Taverns of N. Y., 283. Loosley and Elms proceeded at once to lay a foundation for loyalist patronage by renaming the house the "King's Head Tavern." They remained two years, being succeeded in May, 1779, by James Strachan. Loosley and Elms removed to the ferry-house at Brooklyn. Strachan, who called the house the "Queen's Head Tavern," removed on May 1, 1781 (q.v.), to the Old Merchants Coffee House.

17 After their unsuccessful attempts of March 19, 1767, and Jan. 13, 1770 (q.v.), and two subsequent ones of minor importance, the soldiers succeeded to-day in their attack on the "Liberty Pole." They took shelter in a ruined building which stood nearby and "availed themselves of the dead Hour of Night; and at one o'Clock they cut down the Pole, sawed and split it in Pieces, and carried them to Mr. Montagne's Door, where they threw them down."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 5, 1770.

"In response to a handbill that had been sent through the city, about three thousand citizens assembled on the Commons to discuss the granting of money in compliance with the "Billenting Act." The "Liberty Pole" having been destroyed during the night, the people saw fit to declare that it was alarming that "notwithstanding the humane and benevolent Treatment, that the Troops quartered in this City, have received. . . . (altho' we have great Ground to suspect they are not station'd here to protect us) that they should be so ungrateful and insulting to the citizens, as to . . . blow up and cut down the Liberty Pole." They therefore resolved not to employ any soldier on any terms, and that in the future any soldier "found in the night having Arms . . . or . . . such as are found even without Arms, and behave in an insulting Manner shall be treated as Enemies to the Peace of this City." All the inhabitants then signified their "Abhorrence to a Compliance with the Mutiny or Billenting Act" by holding up their hands and by "loud Huzzas."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Jan. 22, 1770. The statement in the 15th Ann. Rep., Am. Sen. and Hist. Pres. Soc. (1910), 412, that the citizens on this occasion erected another "Liberty Pole" is evidently wrong; the fifth pole was erected on Feb. 6 (q.v.).

The hostility between soldiers and citizens, which has been increasing steadily for several days (see Jan. 13 and Jan. 17), culminates in the "battle of Golden Hill." On this day a party of soldiers went about the city paiking up, in conspicuous places, a broadside published by them which attacked the Sons of Liberty and lauded the conduct of the soldiers. Isaac Sears and Walter Quackenbos attempted to prevent the posting of one of these papers at the Fly Market, declaring it a libel against the inhabitants; one soldier drew his bayonet and Mr. Sears struck him with a "Rams Horn." Two soldiers were seized and taken to the mayor's house, where a number of citizens soon assembled. "Shortly after, about twenty Soldiers, with Outlasses and Bayonets, from the lower Barracks [at the Battery—see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 923], made their Appearance." At the mayor's house the soldiers demanded the release of their comrades. "Some of them drew their bayonets, and the citizens, seeing this, ran to some Sleighs that were near and pulled out some of the Runners." The mayor, now appearing, ordered the soldiers to their barracks. They moved away slowly, the citizens following, for it was feared "they might offer Violence to some of the Citizens." When they reached the summit of Golden Hill, they were joined by other soldiers. This addition to their forces "inspired them to re-insult the Magistrates and exasperate the Inhabitants." Upon giving the word of command, "Soldiers, draw your Bayonets and cut your Way through them," they all shouted "Where are your Sons of Liberty now?" and fell upon the citizens "with great Violence, cutting and slashing." The citizens defended themselves as best they could until the arrival of enough of the inhabitants to force the soldiers to disperse. A number of people were wounded in the struggle, one sailor having his head and finger cut, and a Quaker, his cheek slashed. "Several of the Soldiers that were on the Hill were much bruised, and one of them badly hurt."

There were more encounters on the next day; one between soldiers and sailors was stopped, only after much trouble, by the magistrates and citizens; in another, "one of the Citizens was wounded in the Face, and had two of his Teeth broke by a Stroke of a Bayonet: A Soldier received a bad Cut on the Shoulder."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 5, 1770. The same account may be found in supplement to Penn. Gaz., Feb. 15, 1770, and Boston Evening Post, Feb. 19, 1770.

This encounter on Golden Hill is often called the "first bloodshed of the Revolution;" for a contradiction of this statement, citing an earlier occasion, also in New York, see Aug. 11, 1766. In Dawson's Sons of Liberty in N. Y., Storrs's Hist. of N. Y. City, Leake's Life of John Lamb, and the 15th Ann. Rep., Am. Sen. & Hist. Pres. Soc. (1910), 412, the date of this fight is erroneously given as Jan. 18th. Also, according to this last publication, "the soldiers turned and fired on the citizens, killing one, wounding three, and injuring many others;" no contemporary account of the affray substantiates this remark. Stone in his Hist. of N. Y. City, 226-27, quotes a letter from New York, dated Jan. 22, 1770, which appeared in the St. James Chron. (London), Mar. 5, 1770. The writer, in describing this affair, says: "one sailor got run through the body, who since died;" this statement cannot be found in any other newspaper report of the encounter. In his official report of the affair to Hillsborough, Colden speaks of the "ill humour" that had been "artfully worked up between the Towns people and Soldiers, which produced several affrays," until "At last some Towns people began to arm, and the Soldiers rushed from their Barracks to support their fellow Soldiers. Had it not been for the interposition of the Magistrates, and of the most respectable Inhabitants, and of the Officers of the Army, it had become a very dangerous affair—as it was, only a few wounds and bruises were received on both sides."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 208. See Jan. 22 and 23.

A broadside appears bearing the superscription: "Signed by the 16th Regiment of Foot," and beginning with these lines of poetry, "God and a Soldier all Men doth adore, In Time of War, and not before: When the War is over, and all Things righted, God is forgotten, and the Soldier slighted."

The broadside of Jan. 15 (q.v.) is called a "seditious libel," expressing "the most villainous falsehoods against the soldiers." Those who "stille themselves the S—s of L—y," it declares, may more properly be called "real enemies to society." It likens these "great heroes," who think their freedom depends "in a piece of wood," to Esau, who "sold his birth-right for a mess of pottage." It further

Jan. 19

1770 asserts that the regiment has "watched night and day," since its ar-
 19 Jan. 23 rival, "for the safety and protection of the city and its inhabi-19 tants," suffering the "rays of the scorching sun, in summer, and the severe colds of freezing snowy nights, in winter."—From an original preserved in the N. Y. Pub. Library.

"Whereas It hath been reported to this Board that one Certain William Lish of the said City Carpenter, did yesterday Endeavour to Excite and promote a Riot, to Demolish a Certain House in the Commons: Contiguous to the Work House, the property of this Corporation, and did at the same time treat the Mayor, in a very Insolent & Contemptuous manner, who was then in the execution of his Office, Contrary to the Oath the said William Lish hath taken to preserve the peace of the said City as a free-man thereof. It is therefore ordered by this Board, that upon Service of a Copy hereof on the said William Lish, he appear before this Board on Thursday next . . . to Shew Cause why he should not be disfranchised for his Conduct aforesaid."—M. C. C., VII: 200.

"The mayor informs the common council that some of the inhabitants have requested him "to order the House belonging to this Corporation formerly in the possession of John Harris deceased, fronting the Commons to be pulled down as the same is now occupied by a Number of disorderly Soldiers." The board orders "that the said House be not pulled down as Requested, but that the same be Let to such Gentlemen, professors of Physick & Surgery as have the management & Care of the Hospital, as soon as they shall be ready to Receive the Same, upon such Conditions and Terms, as shall hereafter be made by this Board, and that such Soldiers who now occupy the same (Several of which being dangerously Ill) do Continue therein, no longer, untill the said professors of Physick and Surgery shall be ready to receive and take possession of the same."—M. C. C., VII: 200-1. The John Harris property became the site of the last liberty pole erected by the Sons of Liberty.—See Feb. 3.

22 Mayor Hicks issues the following proclamation "To the Inhabitants of this City:"

"Whereas some unhappy Differences have lately happened between the Inhabitants and the Soldiers [see Jan. 19]: I am authorized to inform the Public, That to avoid the like for the future, Orders are issued to the General, That no Soldiers are to go out of their Barracks, off Duty, unless under the Command of a non-commissioned officer, who is to be answerable for the orderly Behaviour of the Soldiers, and take Care that they offer no Insult to the Inhabitants; and this Order will be strictly observed till the Amity and Friendship that should subsist among the King's Subjects, is restored; and in Case the Citizens abuse them, they are to endeavour to discover the Offenders, and report them to Magistrates, that they may be proceeded against according to Law: Therefore when Soldiers are marching about in Numbers, the Inhabitants are not to be alarmed, as it will be in consequence of the above-mentioned Orders. This Precaution it is hoped, will prevent further Evils, restore Peace, and quiet the Minds of the People; and it is expected, that the Inhabitants, on their Parts, will promote every good Intention to preserve Peace and good Order."—From an original preserved in the N. Y. Hist. Soc., reproduced in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Quarterly Bulletin, Jan., 1820.

23 "The Town has been greatly disturbed for sometime past by the Gift of the Bileting Money or Necessaries for the Troops in Barracks & the Attack & Destruction of the Liberty Pole & sundry inflammatory Papers & a Compact not to employ Soldiers have been printed which occasioned Riots and yesterday a Council was called. I advised a diligent Enquiry by the Magistrates or rather the issuing of a Commission of Oyer & Terminer if the Spirit of Rioting was quellable.—If not that the General should be applied to for a Removal of the Regim<sup>t</sup> as the only Means to preserve Peace when the Ordinary Powers of the Law failed. The Paper of the Day ag<sup>t</sup> the Troops was much censured. I joined in it—They talk of attacking the Printer—I advised that the Attorney General's Opinion be first taken and then that we should consider the Spirit of the Times & put the Question in Benefit as the Liberty of the Press might be conceived to be attacked.—In the Result it was determined to do nothing at present the Mayor conceiving that all the Tumult was subsiding & that it was not expedient to make Enquiries after the Rioters nor to issue a Commission of Oyer & Terminer—I found the Council were much ag<sup>t</sup> any Enquiry or the Application to the General before the Mayor came in towards the Breaking up & yet proposed Nothing instead of these Measures—Morris said he was for letting the Disease cure itself & the Sons of Liberty get a Dressing—That upon an Alarm he would not turn out in Aid of the Magistrates—I told him every good Subject was obliged to assist in the Suppression of a Riot & hinted at his peculiar Obligations on the Score of his Office and Oath, but he said he would keep out of Harm's Way—That if the People were mad enough to contend with the Soldiers he would not appear."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.

24 The assembly resolves "that the account of sundry officers of the 16th Regiment . . . for expenses incurred for private lodgings, be disallowed."—Assemb. Jour. (1769-70), 90.

25 William Brownjohn, a chemist, in a petition to the common council, states that he owns "two Lots of Land and Houses on Hunters Quay in this City the one at the Corner of Wall Street and the other adjoining to that;" that he joined with other owners of lots on Hunter's Key in a petition for a grant of water lots fronting their respective lots, and that grants have been made to the other owners to the extent of 1,75 feet into East River but not to him, owing, as he understands, "to a desire of the Corporation to make a Wet Dock there, within the above Extent, owing to the Recess of the Water." He therefore asks a grant of the water lots fronting his lots.—From the original petition, in metal file No. 6, city clerk's record-room. See M. C. C., VII: 201, 227. The petition was granted Dec. 17.—Ibid., VII: 251-52.

27 Lieut.-Gov. Colden assents to "An act declaring certain persons therein mentioned, incapable of being members of the general assembly of this colony."—Assemb. Jour. (1769-70), 105. See Feb. 21. See also Uppcott Col., in N. Y. Hist. Soc., III: 495.

"Because "the Bar Iron exposed to Sale in this Colony is oftentimes of a very bad Quality and not well manufactured, by means whereof the purchasers are deceived and the Exporters of the same suffer Great Losses and the Credit thereof is much lessened at foreign Markets," the legislature passes "An Act to prevent Frauds in Bar Iron exposed to Sale in this Colony."—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 65-66. For a similar reason, an act is passed, at the same time, "for the Inspection of Sole Leather in the City of New York."—Ibid., V: 71-73.

"The assembly resolves to "make provision to the amount of two hundred pounds, for defraying the expense of erecting the statue of his majesty, and railing the same in, when it arrives here."—Assemb. Jour. (1769-70), 103-4. See May 9. This money was paid Jan. 8, 1771 (q.v.). Cf. Nov. 22.

"Shortly after this date, the day on which the assembly was prorogued, "G. B." (?) issued his address "To the Public." He began by saying: "Few are ignorant, that the Assemblymen of this Colony, were anciently induced to consent to tax the four counties of New-York, West-Chester, Queens and Richmond, for the Support of the Clergy" (see Sept. 22, 1693). He then reviewed the proceedings in the assembly when attempts were made to pass bills to exempt Non-Episcopals from contributing to this tax (see April 6 and Nov. 30, 1769), and attacked the members of that house for purposely delaying the progress of the bills. In conclusion, he published a copy of "An Act to exempt the Inhabitants of the Counties of West-Chester, New-York, Queen's and Richmond, from any Taxations for the Support of the Ministers of Churches to which they do not belong," in order that "the Counties concerned and the whole World may know the Scope of this Bill, and judge of the Conduct of both Houses."—From the broadside (without date) in the N. Y. Pub. Library.

30 The following letter is addressed to Mayor Hicks, signed by Jacobus van Zandt, Isaac Sears, Joseph Bull, Joseph Drake, and Alexander McDougal: "A very great number of the Inhabitants are determined to Erect another Liberty pole, as a Memorial of the Repeal of the Stamp Act. They Consider no place so proper for it, as that on which the other pole Stood, But if Contrary to all Expectation the Corporation Should not be disposed to Give leave to have it Raised there, We humbly Conceive that they Cannot have any objection to its being fixed opposite Mr Van Den Berghs near St Pauls Church, a Small distance from where the two Roads meet, which we have Reason to suppose will next to the other place be most acceptable

"If the Board Should not think proper to Grant Liberty for its Erection, on either of the above places, as in that Case, no monu-1770 ment of freedom will appear in the Fields (the most publick Feb.

Jan. place) the people are Resolved to procure it a place in the Fields 30 on private Ground, and as the pole will be finished in a few days we are appointed a Committee to wait on you to request that you would be pleased to Quicken an answer from the Corporation on this Subject.—M. C. C., VII: 203-4. The original letter is preserved in file No. 4, city clerk's record-room. The mayor communicated this letter to the common council on Feb. 2 (q. v.), and the request was denied.

Feb. The letter addressed to Mayor Hicks (see Jan. 30) is com-
2 municated to the common council. "A Debate thereon arose," and by a vote of nine to six the board refused to grant permission for the erection of a fifth "Liberty Pole" at either of the spots suggested.—M. C. C., VII: 203-4. According to a letter written a few days later to the N. Y. Journal, the petition was rejected, not because the board was out of sympathy with the project, but because "it was thought the former Allowance was sufficient; and
... tho' the Corporation did not now give their Consent, which, if they had done, might have been thought by some making themselves Parties in the Act, yet . . . they would not have objected, or been displeas'd, if the Pole had been erected without any fresh Application to them."—N. Y. Jour., Feb. 8, 1770.

" The common council votes that the doors of the "Common Council Chamber" hereafter "be left open" during the sessions.
—M. C. C., VII: 204-5.

3 The decision of the common council, of Feb. 2 (q. v.), evokes a broadside, "To the Sons of Liberty in this City." In this, the belief is expressed that the board's action cannot be "paralleled by an Act of any Corporation in the British Dominions, chosen by the Suffrages of a free People." The broadside is preserved in the N. Y. Hist. Soc., and is reproduced in this volume as Pl. 40. See also Man. Com. Coun. (1855), 485. In the final paragraph of the document the committee authorizes the statement: "We have purchased a Place for it [the fifth "Liberty Pole"—see Feb. 6] near where the other stood." This seems rather loosely worded. The fact is that Isaac Sears acquired in his individual capacity, by quitclaim deed, dated Feb. 3, the "parts or shares, divided or undivided," belonging to Thomas Arden and wife, in "a certain house and plot of ground" in the present City Hall Park, which belonged to John Harris at the time of his death, in 1730.—Liberty Deeds, XXXVIII: 407.

Inasmuch as Mary L. Booth, in her Hist. of the City of N. Y.
(1859), 581, made the statement that this ground (which she erroneously described as on the north-west corner of the City Hall Park) still belonged "to the heirs of the New York Liberty Boys," a statement which has remained unchallenged by later historians, a thorough search of the city's title to the land was undertaken at the present author's request, in 1915-7, by Comptroller William A. Prendergast, and Miss Jennie F. Macarthy, historical expert of the Title Guarantee and Trust Co. This resulted in finding that the city's title has been clear since 1789, when the city bought and paid for Sears's interest.—See June 10, 1789.

This search of title disclosed the exact interest which was acquired by Sears in the Harris property, the quitclaim deed not specifying the interest nor citing the derivation of Thomas Arden's title. The report made by Comptroller Prendergast to the author, Sept. 16, 1915, shows:

"The John Harris property . . . was a plot 248 feet square, with a frontage on the east side of Broadway, the southerly line being just north of Murray street. John Harris in his last will, made August 29, 1730, and probated August 13, 1734, bequeathed it to his wife, Jane (or Janitie) Harris. (Record 12 of Wills, page 192.) Jane Harris, in her last will, made August 3, 1734, and probated August 21, 1741, divided the property into four equal parts, on one of which stood the dwelling. This latter part she bequeathed to her son John, and one further part to each of three of her daughters, with life estates and reversions, a fourth daughter, Jane (Harris) Lynsen, participating merely in the part left to John Harris, in case he died without issue (Record 14 of Wills, page 104). By inheritance and purchase, William Peartree Smith, only child of Catherine (Harris) Pemberton, became seized of a ten-twelfths interest in the property, which he conveyed to the Corporation by Indentures of Lease and Release dated December 28, 1768. (Minutes of the Common Council, Vol. 7, page 141, and Book D of City Grants, page 1.) On September 7, 1769, the Corporation further acquired the interests of three of the six surviving children of Jane (Harris) Lynsen, the said six children having inherited a two-twelfths interest by reason of John Harris's Feb.

death, intestate without issue, some time in 1766. (Liber 38 of 3 Conveyances, page 398.) This made the Corporation the owner in fee of eleven-twelfths interest in the property prior to the time that Sears entered into his title, such as it was."—From the comptroller's letter to the author.

Sears conveyed his interest to the city on Oct. 19, 1785 (q. v.).
The bridewell had been erected on part of this property.—M. C. C.
(MS.), VIII: 217. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 963.
For the erection of the fifth liberty pole, see Feb. 6.

The Sons of Liberty erect their fifth "Liberty Pole" (for the earlier ones see March 19, 1767) on the plot of ground purchased for the purpose on Feb. 3 (q. v.). For the exact location, see Feb. 3, and the following summary. A letter to the Journal describes the ceremony thus: "a hole was dug 12 Feet deep, and a large Pitch Pine Mast erected. The Mast was strongly cased round with Iron Bars, laid length wise, riveted thro' with large flat Rivets and laid close together, so as entirely to cover the Mast for about two thirds of its Length, and over these Bars were driven Iron Hoops, near half an Inch thick at small Distances, from Bottom to Top. On the upper Part, the Bars were not laid quite so close, but riveted and hooped in the same manner, and the Wood between the Bars driven as full of large Nails as it would hold. It was drawn through the Streets from the Ship-yards, by 6 Horses, decorated with ribbands, 3 Flags flying, with the Words LIBERTY and Property, and attended by several Thousands of the Inhabitants. It was raised without any Accident, while the French Horns played, God save the King. It was strongly secured in the Ground by Timber, great Stones and Earth, and is in Height above the ground, about 46 Feet; on the Top of it was raised a Top Mast of 22 Feet, on which is fixt a Gilt Vane, with the Word LIBERTY. No Sort of Disturbance happened during the whole Affair. The Gentlemen of the Army had taken a laudable Care that not the least offence should be given by the Soldiers, many of whom, were present, and neither gave nor received any Affront."—N. Y. Jour., Feb. 8, 1770. This pole is shown in caricature in A. Pl. 4-b, Vol. III. The plate description (III: 864-65) was written with the mistaken conception that this pole was the fourth instead of the fifth, and there is a corresponding error in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 963, under "Liberty Pole (first site)." A more careful study of the drawing in connection with the facts concerning McDougal's imprisonment, which is clearly depicted, fix the date as Feb. 14, eight days after the erection of the fifth pole.

The location of this fifth pole is determined, primarily, from "A Plan of the Ground contiguous to the Poor House, surveyed the 22<sup>d</sup> of June, 1774, by G. Bancker, C. S.," filed in box B-F, folder "Broadway," Bancker Collection, N. Y. Pub. Library, and reproduced as Pl. 40, in this volume. On this plan, it will be seen, the location of this pole has been drawn. The Harris plot (see Feb. 3), 248 feet square, in which Sears acquired his interest, is blocked out on this survey, and is also distinctly shown on the Ratzer Map of 1766-67 (see Pl. 41, Vol. I), where the surrounding present-day streets are shown by name. From the data supplied by these plans, supplemented by that obtained from the following surveys, it has thus proved easy to ascertain very accurately the location of the fifth liberty pole on the modern map:

- a—"Dr. of part of the Commons done for A. Hammond July 20, 1792—Fields—285."
- b—"A survey of the Fields etc. made July 14, 1770 by F. M. [Francis Maerschalck] } C. S. (This is endorsed, "Fields
G. B. [Gerard Bancker] } near Poor House.")
- c—"Survey of the Fields—341."
- d—"The Common or Field."
- e—"The original "Plan of the Corporate Ground from the Park to Chamber Street surveyed April 1, 1804 by Joseph F. Mangin" (known by the number "Acc 121" in the files in room 2100 of the municipal building, office of the president, Borough of Manhattan, bureau of design).

A feature which deserves notice in the Bancker survey is "Barrack Street," now obsolete, which extended east from Broadway within the present Park area between Warren and Chambers Streets.

All these data were gathered and digested by Leonard L. Breit-wieser and Silas B. Tuttle, city surveyors, of the survey dept. of the Title Guarantee and Trust Co., who, at the request of the art commission, and in consultation with the author, prepared a new 1770 survey (dated Feb. 11, 1921) showing the location of the pole in Feb. 6 relation to the present city hall. This survey, a copy of which is preserved in the map room of the N. Y. Pub. Library, shows that the pole stood 103' 1" west of the city hall, and 55' 2 1/2" north of the south-west corner of this building.

This was the last of the pre-Revolutionary liberty poles. The first four poles stood on one site, and the fifth on another site. A summary of the dates of erection and demolition, the description (so far as we know it), and the location, of each, is as follows:

1.—The first liberty pole was erected May 20 or 21, 1766 (q. v.), in celebration of the repeal of the Stamp Act. It was a "mast erected on the Common," inscribed to "his Majesty, M<sup>r</sup> Pitt, & Liberty;" also referred to as a "pine post." It was cut down by British soldiers on Aug. 10, 1766 (q. v.). (A fight ensued, resulting, on Aug. 11, 1766, q. v., in the first bloodshed of the Revolution; although the "Battle of Golden Hill," on Jan. 19, 1770, q. v.—over three years later—is usually referred to as the first.)

The precise location of the first pole, "on the Common" (as the record reads), has not been definitely ascertained; although it is clear from available evidence that "the Common" was the ground between the present Broadway and Park Row south of an east-and-west line about fifty feet above the north line of Murray Street, while "the Fields" were above this line. See Pl. 40, Vol. I, and Pl. 40, Vol. IV.

2.—The second liberty pole, referred to as a "high post," "Mast or Flag Staff," was erected "in lieu of the other" on Aug. 12, 1766 (q. v.). It was cut down on Sept. 23, 1766 (q. v.).

3.—The third liberty pole was erected on Sept. 24, 1766 (q. v.), "on the Common in place of the one that was cut down yesterday." This one was cut down on March 19, 1767 (q. v.).

4.—The fourth liberty pole was "immediately erected in its stead," that is, on March 19, 1767 (q. v.). It was "cased below with Iron to prevent such another Action." This pole withstood repeated attempts to destroy it, until Jan. 17, 1770 (q. v.). Two days later, the hostility between the soldiers and citizens culminated in the so-called "Battle of Golden Hill."

From the context of the foregoing quoted phrases, which are derived from contemporary newspaper and other sources, it is readily seen that the first four poles were on one and the same site.

5.—Our knowledge of the fifth and last liberty pole, its history, location, and description, is detailed and complete. The effort of the "Sons of Liberty" to erect this pole was commenced by a few of their leaders,—Van Zandt, Sears, Bull, Drake, and McDougall,—who wrote to Mayor Hicks on Jan. 30, 1770 (q. v.), asking the consent of the common council to erect a pole in one of two locations, either at the place "on which the other pole stood," or, if the corporation would not allow this, then "opposite M<sup>r</sup> Van Derberghs near S<sup>t</sup> Pauls Church a small distance from where the two Roads meet." The "Liberty Boys" added that, in the event of the board's opposing both of these locations, they would erect the pole "in the Fields on private grounds." The vote of the common council, on Feb. 2 (q. v.), stood nine to five against granting permission to erect the pole on "either of the above places,"—that is, either of the two locations on city property. A letter in the N. Y. Journal of Feb. 8 (see Feb. 2) said that the petition was rejected, not because the board was out of sympathy with the project, but because "it was thought the former Allowance [permission] was sufficient; and . . . tho' the Corporation did not now give their consent,—which, if they had done, might have been thought by some as making themselves Parties to the Act—yet . . . they would not have objected, or been displeas'd, if the Pole had been erected without any fresh Application to them."

Isaac Sears, in his individual capacity, bought by quitclaim deed, on Feb. 3, 1770 (q. v.), an undivided interest in a plot of ground for the pole "near where the other stood." An examination of records, undertaken by Comptroller William A. Prendergast, and Miss Jennie E. Macarthy, historical expert of the Title Guarantee & Trust Co., in 1915-7, revealed the fact that Sears's purchase was an interest in the large block of land which belonged to one John Harris at the time of his death in 1730. This was "a plot 248 feet square, with a frontage on the east side of Broadway, the southerly line being just north of Murray Street." As was said in the Journal letter, above cited,—"after the Corporation had refused, many who were Promoters of the Design of erecting a new Pole, were unwilling to fix it where the other stood. And yet to answer the End, it was necessary it should stand near the same Place. The Business was therefore for a while at a stand, till a lucky Expedient was thought of and adopted. A small slip of Land, 11 Feet wide and 100 Feet long, an undivided Right, near the Place where the former Pole stood, was found to be private Property, and immediately purchased for the Purpose."

Inasmuch as the fifth liberty pole was "near where the other stood," the earlier site probably was not so far south as the post-office, as heretofore generally believed, certainly not so far south as the bronze table erected in the corridor of this building, near its southern entrance, to mark its site.

The "Sons of Liberty" erected their fifth liberty pole, on Feb. 6, 1770 (vide supra). It remained until Oct. 28, 1776 (q. v.), when removed by the British after their capture of the city in September of that year. On the same spot where this pole stood, there was erected, on "Flag Day," June 14, 1921, a new "Liberty Pole," with appropriate ceremonies, by the Sons of the Revolution and the N. Y. Hist. Society.—N. Y. Times, June 15, 1921.

On the testimony of one Cummins (see Jan. 8, 1771), James Parker, printer of the Post-Boy, and all his apprentices, are arrested and examined. Their confessions reveal that the broadside of Dec. 16, 1769 (q. v.), was printed in Parker's shop, and that Alexander McDougall was the author. The latter's arrest followed.—From a letter of McDougall printed in N. Y. Jour., Feb. 15, 1770. See April 25. Colden wrote to Hillsborough, on Feb. 21 (q. v.), that "One Alexander McDougall is now in Jail."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 268. See also Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV, in N. Y. Pub. Library, under date of Feb. 7.

The "House of Mrs. Wragg opposite the Coffee-House" is the scene of a meeting of the "Knights of the Order of Corsica."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 5, 1770.

A true "Female Friend to American Liberty" presents Capt. McDougall with a fine saddle of venison, "marked with the important No 45, in Allusion to the 45th Page of the Votes and Proceedings of our House of Assembly, in which the paper that furnished the Occasion for that Gentleman's Commitment is printed at Length. . . . Most People are of Opinion that his Case is similar to that of Mr. Wilkes, in Instances more important than the No. 45, and even in this Similarity, many think there is something providential. Capt. M<sup>r</sup> Dougall is so warmly espoused, that in the two first Days of his Confinement, he was visited as a true Son of Liberty, by upwards of two hundred of the Friends of American Liberty of all Ranks."—N. Y. Jour., Feb. 15, 1770. See Feb. 14.

This being the forty-fifth day of the year, "forty-five Gentlemen, real Enemies to internal Taxation, by, or in obedience to external Authority, and cordial Friends of Capt. McDougall [see Feb. 7], and the glorious Cause of American Liberty," dine with him on forty-five pounds of beef steaks, cut from a bullock of forty-five months old, and drink a variety of toasts "expressive not only of the most undismembered Loyalty, but of the warmest attachment to Liberty, its renowned Advocates in Great Britain and America, and the Freedom of the Press."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Feb. 19, 1770. For the significance of the number 45, see Feb. 10; also, Lamb, Hist. City of N. Y., I: 747. Cf. A. Pl. 4-b, and pp. 864-65, Vol. III. See also Addenda.

On behalf of the governors of King's College, James Duane and Thomas Jones petition the provincial legislature for leave to lease and demise that part of their land which fronts the North River, to the extent of 200 feet "from the same" for the term of 99 years.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 782.

An announcement in the Journal reads: "Whereas Mr. Abraham De La Montaigne was applied to for his House, that the Sons of Liberty in general, might there commemorate the Anniversary of the Repeal of the Stamp-Act, on the 19th Day of March next, But it appearing that his House was engaged for a certain set of Gentlemen, . . . A Number of the Sons of Liberty in this City, were under the Necessity of purchasing a proper House for the Accommodation of all Lovers of freedom on that Day, and for their Use on future Occasions, in the Promotion of the Common Cause. This is therefore to give Notice, that the House so purchased, is the Corner House in the Broad-Way, near Liberty-Pole, lately kept by Mr. Edward Smith." Montaigne must have let his house to the "friends to Liberty and Trade," for a notice of their intended meeting there on March 19 (q. v.) is printed in the paper.—N. Y. Jour. Feb. 15, 1770; N. Y. Merc. Feb. 19, 1770. Cf. Man. Com. Conn. (1855), 452. The house purchased by the "Sons of

- 1770 Liberty" was formerly occupied by Edward Smith, on the Feb. south-west corner of Broadway and Warren St.—Liber Mortgages, 15 I: 268, 511 (New York); Stone, Life of Sir Wm. Johnson, II: 332; Henry Bicker was the landlord.—Bayles, Old Taverns of N. Y., 238.
- " The common council appoints a committee "to Cause to be made two large Chairs for the Common Council Chamber the one for the Mayor and the other for the Recorder."—M. C. C., VII: 207. The chairs were paid for on July 13.—Ibid., VII: 222.
- " The members of the Chamber of Commerce (see April 5, 1768) petition Lieut.-Gov. Colden for a charter.—Col. Recs. N. Y. Chamber of Commerce, 1768-1784, 75-77. For Colden's favourable answer, see March 6.
- 19 "The Merchants of this City have received many Letters by the Packet, relative to publick Affairs, some affirming that all the Acts we complain of will be repealed soon after the Parliament meets; others asserting the Contrary; but it seems they all agree, the Duty on Tea will not be taken off on any Account."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 19, 1770.
- 21 Colden writes to Hillsborough: "The Session of Assembly ended the 27th of January to general satisfaction, notwithstanding the assiduous endeavours of a party in opposition to Government to embarrass affairs. A great number of Bills were passed at the Time . . . none of them of consequence to deserve your Lord<sup>sh</sup>'s attention, except . . . One entitled 'An Act declaring certain persons therein mentioned incapable of being Members of the General Assembly of this Province' [see Jan. 27] . . . By this Act, the Judges of the Supreme Court, and some other officers of Govern<sup>t</sup> were made incapable of being elected Members of Assembly. The Council amended the Bill by striking out all the other Officers of Govern<sup>t</sup> to which Amendment the Assembly agreed. "The reasons given for this Bill are: "1st That none of the Judges in Great Britain or Ireland are allowed to sit in the house of Commons. "2nd That in good policy, Legislation and the Execution of the Law, ought not to be in the same person. "3rd That in all Elections the Judges must have an improper influence on the Electors. "Lastly: It has been observed, that in former Assemblies where the Judges have had seats, they became attached to, or Leaders of Parties or Factions in the House, this gave a suspicion, that they were often byassed in their Judgement on the Bench, in favour of a party interest, all cause of jealousy of this kind ought to be avoided."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 206-7. This act received the royal veto June 6 (q. v.). This "general satisfaction" with the actions of the late assembly is not shared by "A Freeholder of Lilliput," who publishes three letters "to the Majority of the General Assembly of Lilliput," denouncing much of their work. Letters "Number II" and "Number III," both without date, are preserved in the N. Y. Pub. Library; no copy of Number I is known to exist. The extant letters take particular exception to the disabling act above mentioned, and to the rejection of the bill for electing by ballot (see Dec. 22, 1769). "Your absurdities may be excused," says the writer in letter "Number III," "by the ignorance of their authors, and your blunders pardoned for the misirth they occasion. But when your actions have a more serious tendency, when from ridiculous they become hurtful, they can no longer be view'd with indifference, or mentioned with contempt.—When you impede the course of justice, when you imprison without proof of guilt, when you rob us of our most valuable rights, and sap the foundation of our happy constitution, the most inconsiderate mechanic will express his displeasure, and the whole people of Lilliput declare their indignation."—From broadsides, "A Freeholder of Lilliput," in N. Y. Pub. Library.
- " Colden writes to the Earl of Hillsborough: "In my letter of January 6th No 8. I enclosed a printed copy of a libel [see Dec. 16, 1769] directed 'To the Betrayed Inhabitants of the City and Colony of New York' with a proclamation I issued . . . offering a reward of £100 for the discovery of the author. One Alexander McDougal [see Dec. 13] is now in Jail; committed on the oath of the Printer and his Journey Men, as the author and publisher of that Libel. He is a person of some fortune, and could easily have found the Bail required of him, but he chose [sic] to go to Jail, and lyes there imitating Mr Wilkes [see Feb. 16] in everything he can. When he comes to his Tryal it will appear what dependance we may have on a Jury of this place; the most respectable persons in the place openly declare their opinion, that he highly deserves punishment."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 203.
- "The 16th Regiment now here are ordered to be got ready to embark for Pensacola; and we hear they are to be replaced by the 14th Regiment now in Boston."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 26, 1770. The 16th embarked on March 25.—Ibid., March 26, 1770. The transports sailed on March 27.—Ibid., April 2, 1770.
- "The common council authorizes the payment of £14,461:4 for the building of "a fire Engine House [see Sept. 27, 1769] &c for this Corporation."—M. C. C., VII: 208.
- "In a bill rendered to the common council by Hugh Gaîne (bearing date of April 26, 1771), is an item of this date for "a plan of the City coloured," at 16 shillings. In a bill rendered by John Watson (bearing date of May 8, 1770, and endorsed "filed July 13th 1770"), is an item for "a plan of 7<sup>e</sup> City framing" at five shillings. Another item in the latter bill is for "2 large Mohogony Arm'd Chairs Carv'd with Compass Backs, Calf skin Botts," at £8.—From the original, in file No. 5, in city clerk's record-room.
- "The provincial council appoints Whitehead Hicks, James Duane, and Thomas Jones to be assistants to the attorney-general in the prosecution of Alexander McDougal for libel.—Cal. Coun. Min., 481.
- "At about this time, "A Merchant" issues a broadside in favour of appropriating money for the support of the royal troops, and denouncing the American patriots. He remarks: "May it not from what has happened, be justly suspected, that the frequent Notices to meet at Liberty Pole, the violent Rage and Resentment which some People have endeavour'd generally to excite against Soldiers, pretended to proceed from a Love of Liberty, and a Regard to the Interests of the Poor; do all tend to the same End, although the Pretences have been so very different.—May not,—No Money to the Troops;—whoraw for Ballotting,—employ no Soldiers,—All mean the same Thing?—Liberty is the Pretex.—But, it may be interpreted thus; if we cannot breed a Disturbance, and kick up a Dust in one Way, we must in another. . . . And if we cannot render Mr. Colden's Administration odious, and breed Dissentions and Antinimities amongst the People; and 'frighten the Assembly' . . . all our Hopes in a future Election will be blasted."—From an original, without date, in the N. Y. Pub. Library.
- "The "Boston Massacre" occurs.—Boston Gaz., March 12, 1770. The news was first published in New York on March 19 (q. v.).
- "Pres. John Cruger reports to the Chamber of Commerce that Colden, on receiving their petition (see Feb. 15), said: "I think it a good Institution, and will always be glad to promote the Commercial Interests of this City, and shall deem it a peculiar happiness that a Society so beneficial to the General good of the Province is incorporated during my administration."—Col. Recs. N. Y. Chamber of Commerce, 1768-1784, 78-79. The charter was granted on March 13 (q. v.).
- "Several members of the Marine Society (see Nov. 13, 1769) petition for a charter of incorporation.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 783. This was granted on April 12 (q. v.); Charter of the Marine Society (1788), 3.
- "Fire starts in a large wooden building, the meeting-place of St. John's Lodge of Masons, in Scotch St. (a name sometimes applied to Ann St.—see June 29, 1772). The inhabitants, "with their usual Alertness on such Occasions," as well as many soldiers and sailors, tried to extinguish the flames, "but found their Efforts much baffled by the Narrowness of the Streets, a scarcity of Water, being far from any of the Rivers, and the great Difficulty of getting to the Fire." The flames soon extended across the street, and the fire "burnt with great Fury, carrying every Thing before it, being all Wooden Houses." Finally, after seventeen houses in the vicinity had been completely destroyed, the fire was "happily subdued."—N. Y. Merc., March 12, 1770; N. Y. Jour., March 15, 1770.
- "Drs. Peter Middleton, John Jones, and Samuel Bard, having petitioned for a charter of incorporation for the proposed hospital (see May 16, 17, 1769), are permitted by the provincial council to submit a draft of it for the board's approval.—Coun. Min. (MS.), 371 (Albany). See May 29, 1771.
- "A royal charter (see March 6) is granted to the Chamber of Commerce.—Col. Recs. N. Y. Chamber of Commerce, 1768-84, 89-97. This instrument is on record in the office of the secretary of state, Albany, as well as in the minutes of the Chamber. The original has been lost. On Nov. 20, 1848, Mr. Prosper M. Wetmore, secretary of the Chamber wrote to Hon. Charles King: "In my search for objects of interest connected with the past history of the Chamber my attention was naturally directed to the 1770 original charter . . . which I knew had been in existence some Mar. few years previously. Every effort in my power was made at 13 the time, and has been continued since, but as yet without success, for the recovery of this interesting link in our historical chain.

"There is a bit of history, also, connected with this old charter. Some five-and-twenty years ago, Admiral Walton, of the British Navy, succeeded by inheritance to the property of his family in this city; and on taking possession, among a vast accumulation of miscellaneous lumber, boxes, baskets, and chests, articles of domestic economy, dragoon saddles and Hessian muskets, in the spacious attic of 'Walton House' in Pearl street, was found the original charter of the Chamber of Commerce. It was very large, about three feet in width, with the massive waxen seal of the crown, six inches in diameter, attached, and the whole carefully encased in tin and enclosed in mahogany. The Admiral immediately made known the discovery to Mr. Platard, who took possession of the document.

"Secretary Van Dam was known to have been an intimate friend, probably a relative, of the Walton family. William Walton had once been President of the Chamber. These facts may account for the situation in which the charter had been found, and we must therefore believe that this instrument had lain undisturbed in the recesses of Walton House for the period of nearly half a century.

"On the night of the great fire, the mahogany case containing the charter, was seen in the room occupied by the Chamber at the Exchange. As everything portable was supposed to have been removed from the building before its destruction, I indulged for some time a confident hope of being able to recover the old charter. To this, I regret to say, I have been disappointed. If it was saved from the fire, it has ever since been so carefully guarded that the most diligent research has not been successful in tracing its whereabouts. Like the old seal [see May 5, 1772], it may yet turn up in some unexpected manner, and then our memoirs of an existence of four-score years will be complete."—Ibid., 326-27, 371. See April 2, 1771.

14 James Parker, printer of the "libel for which Alex<sup>r</sup> McDougall is being prosecuted," is pardoned by the council.—Cal. Coun. Min., 481. See Feb. 7.

"The provincial council approves a draft of letters patent to the governors of King's College.—Cal. Coun. Min., 548.

19 The anniversary of the repeal of the Stamp Act, falling on Sunday, is celebrated on Monday at the tavern of Abraham de la Montagne, Broadway, south of Warren St., at Samuel Waldron's at the L. I. ferry, and at "Capt. Beckors, (where Mr. Jones and Smith formerly lived, within a few Doors of Mr. Montagne's)," on Warren St. and Broadway. This latter tavern was now known as Hamden Hall. At Montagne's house, 230 "of the principal Inhabitants of this City, Friends to Liberty and Trade, dined on an elegant Entertainment which was prepared for them."—N. Y. Journ., March 22, 1770. Montagne's tavern was at the present 253-254 Broadway, formerly Bardin's "King's Arms Tavern," while Jones' and Smith's was Hamden Hall, on the corner of Warren St. and Broadway. A more particular account of the meeting at Hamden Hall is given in the issue of the Journal for March 29: "A Company of about 300 Gentlemen, Freeholders and Freemen of this City (real Friends to Liberty) met at the former, in order to celebrate that memorable Deliverance from the Chains which had been forged for the Americans, by a designing and despotic Ministry. A decent and plentiful Entertainment was provided. Before they sat down to Dinner, the Company nominated Ten of their Number to dine with Capt. McDougall, at his Chamber in the New-Goal, where a suitable Dinner was also provided: After both Companies had dined, a Committee was appointed to send two Barrels of Beer and what was left of the Dinners, to the poor Prisoners, in the Gaol, which was received with great Thanks." Forty-five "loyal and patriotic Toasts were drunk," forty-five being at this time a particularly popular number both in England and America among the devotees of liberty; it having been the number of Wilke's condemned paper (see A. Pl. 4, Vol. III). One of these toasts, probably with the company at Montagne's in mind, was "Unanimity among all the Sons of Liberty in America, and Perseverance in the glorious Cause." In the same issue of the Journal, an anonymous writer declares that only about 126 dined at Hamden Hall, and that McDougall was regarded by most of the gentlemen composing the Chamber of Commerce as "insignificant, self-conceited," and "utterly incapable of writing the scandalous Paper laid to his Charge." Henry Bicker, landlord of Hamden Hall, replied with an affidavit that to the best of his knowledge 300 dined at his house on March 19.—N. Y. Journ., Apr. 5, 1770. The critic replied with a reiteration of his statement that there were only 126 at Hamden Hall, and that he had not only "counted noses," but had confirmed this number "by a secret conference with the cook."—Ibid., Apr. 12, 1770. In the meantime, while this petty bickering was going on between the two parties of the "Sons of Liberty," soon to unite in one common cause, the tavern of Henry Bicker was attacked by British soldiers who had been attempting to cut down the "Liberty Pole." See Mar. 24, 1770.

"The news of the "Boston massacre," which occurred on March 5, is published in New York.—The N. Y. Merc., March 19, 1770. A fuller account was printed, on March 26, in the supplement of Parker's N. Y. Post-Boy. See also Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., VI: 49, 85.

Smith writes that, at a council meeting, "A Draft was now proposed for a Charter to the Seamen under the Name of the Marine Society & It was said to be in pursuance of a Petition preferred on the 7 Inst [q. v.] & that they had Leave to offer a Draft . . . on reading it we committed it . . . I moved this to gain Time for I do not think these Measures will be of public Utility but rather increase the Wantonness of the Populace." On April 11, he recorded that he had not attended the last two meetings, but he had heard that "the Marine Society got their Charter." Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV. See April 12.

A number of soldiers attempt to take off and carry away the top-mast and vane of the liberty pole, but are frustrated in their design by a few young men. When the citizens heard of this, "14 or 15 Persons came up to the Green, and going to the Pole, were there surrounded by about 40 or 50 Soldiers, with their Cutlasses drawn; upon which 4 or 5 of them retreated to the House of Mr. Bicker [Hamden Hall], and were followed by Part of the Soldiers, who immediately called out for the Soldiers from the Barracks; upon which they were joined by a very considerable Body that came over the Barrack Fence." While they were trying to force the doors and windows, some of the people who were in the house, got out by the back way and ran to alarm the citizens. "The Chapel Bell was immediately rung, upon the hearing of which, the Soldiers retreated precipitately." Thereafter the pole was "nightly guarded" by the inhabitants until the transports sailed, so that the soldiers "were disappointed in effecting their Desires against it, altho' they positively Swore they would carry off some Part of it with them."—N. Y. Post-Boy, April 2, 1770.

"Ordered that the Reverend Doctor Auchmuty together with Mr David Clarkson, Mr Marston, Mr Desbrosses and Mr Kissam or any three or more of them be a Committee to apply for and take out the Patent for a Tract of Twenty five thousand Acres of Land lately offered to be granted to this Corporation by the Governor and Council [see Feb. 6, 1767], and to wait upon the Several Officers of Government through whose hands the said Patent must pass and agree and Settle with them with respect to their several Fees of Office in the best manner they can And also that the said Committee have full power to Transact and do every thing that they shall think expedient and necessary for the Settling and Improving the said Tract of Land in such manner and upon such Terms as they shall think best and most for, the Advantage of this Corporation."—Trin. Min. (MS.). Concerning the result of such extensive grants, see Feb. 6 and 26, 1767.

A proposal to insure individuals against losses by fire originates at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. It is said to be "the desire of a number of the Inhabitants of this City to have their Estates Insured," and it is proposed "that the Chamber take into consideration some plan that may serve so good a purpose."—Cal. Recs. of N. Y. Chamber of Commerce, 82. At subsequent meetings, May 2 (p. 99) and June 25 (p. 101), 1770, consideration was postponed, and no such organization was perfected in the colonial period. The first fire insurance company was established June 15, 1787 (q. v.).

The common council authorizes the payment of £5 "for divers Quantities of liquor Delivered out at the late fire to those who appeared to stand Greatly in need of the Same being very Cold and Wet &c."—M. C. C., VII: 211. This is the first record of expenditure for such a purpose; many similar items appear subsequently. —Ibid., VII: 213, 269, 394; VIII: 14, 15, 24, 26.

Samuel Francis, at Vauxhall Gardens, advertises for sale a "Couple of grand looking glasses, two carved frontis-pieces for a

Mar. 19
"
21
24 30
Apr. 3
7
9

1770 fire place, and five very elegant gerandoles.—N. Y. Merc., Apr. 9, 1770. Vauxhall Gardens were earlier known as the "Old Bowling Green." See March 29, 1738.

12 The king assents to the repeal of the Townshend Act, leaving a tax merely on tea.—Ann. Reg. (1770), 91; Stat. of Gt. Brit., VIII: 108.

" A charter is given to certain persons, constituting them a corporation under the title of "The Marine Society of the City of New-York, in the Province of New-York, in America." This society was formed (see Nov. 13, 1769) for the purposes of "improving maritime knowledge, and for relieving indigent and distressed (and the wives and orphan children of deceased) masters of vessels."—Charter of the Marine Society (1788), 3-12; The Picture of N. Y. (1807), 112.

17 A four-page broadside is issued, entitled "No 3. The Dougliad. On Liberty. Humbly inscribed to the Graod Jury for the City and County of New-York." This condemns McDougall's address of Dec. 16, 1769 (q.v.), and his later conduct. The writer claims that McDougall's refusal to give bail was "A weak Artifice, to acquire Popularity; exhibit himself as a Spectacle of Compassion; and countenance the Cry of Oppression." He contends that, since the members of the assembly are the representatives chosen by the people, it is the duty of all good citizens to uphold the decisions of the house, and not to make it "the Subject of Scorn and Contempt." The broadside ends thus: "It must not be understood, that the conduct of the Assembly is admitted to have been in the least Degree reprehensible; they did their Duty, and consulted the State, and true Interest of the Colony. If any differed in Opinion, they were to blame themselves, that they did not, when the Requisition was under Debate, present their Instructions. . . . All I now aim at is to shew, that even if they had erred, and their Proceedings be subject to just Exception; Mr. M'Dougall is not the less culpable; and that his Prosecution, is no Invasion of the Liberty of the Press; or of any Privilege of the People; on the Contrary, the Honour, Interest, and Safety of the Community, call aloud for his Punishment, if he is really the Publisher."—From photostat (from an original in the Library Co. of Philadelphia) in the N. Y. Pub. Library (Evans, 11638).

20 "Yesterday the Packet arrived—a Council now met—The Kings Disallowance of the Act to emit £120,000 passed on 5 Jan<sup>y</sup> last [q.v.] was read & ordered to be published—I ask'd Colden the Reason—He read the Secretary of State's Letter of the 17 Feb<sup>y</sup> but would not put it on the Minutes—it was vastly severe—asserted the Act to be contrary to the Statute ag<sup>t</sup> Paper Money & the Kings Instructions and his Conduct very exceptionable as a similar Bill was under the Royal Consideration—it reminded him of the Danger he exposed himself to from the Terms of the Statute—Informed him that his Majesty could not approve of his compliances with the popular Voice at the Expence of his Instructions—testified that his Majesty was pleased in the Grant of Money to the Troops & intimated that a Motion would be made to give us Leave to strike Money by Act of Parliam<sup>t</sup>.—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV. See Jan. 5 and 9.

" Abraham Montagne opens a tavern at the present Nos. 253-254 Broadway, where Edward Bardin had kept the King's Arms.—N. Y. Jour., April 29, 1769; cf. Liber Deeds, CCXX: 370. See also June 23, 1785; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 979-80.

23 The "Gentlemen of the English Nation, residing in this City, and those descended from English Families," give an entertainment to Gen. Gage and Lieut.-Gov. Colden, "in Commemoration of St. George, their tutelar Saint." The day is celebrated "in true Mirth and perfect Harmony, every Heart being delighted with the festive revival of a Custom much neglected in this City."—N. Y. Merc., April 30, 1770.

25 The grand jury finds an indictment against Alexander McDougall "for publishing a Libell against the Govern<sup>t</sup> . . ."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 213. See Feb. 7 and Dec. 13.

May 1 Bolton, who has been associated with Sigel for three years as a joint proprietor of the Queen's Head Tavern, at Broad and Pearl Sts. (see Jan. 8, 1767), announces his removal to the New York Arms.—N. Y. Jour., April 19; N. Y. Merc., May 7, 1770. Under Boltoa the Province Arms, or City Tavern, which stood at the present No. 115 Broadway, seems to have enjoyed its usual patronage. It was the meeting-place of the "antient and most benevolent Order of St. Patrick" on June 18, 1770 (ibid., June 11, 1770), and of St. George's Society in 1771 (ibid., Apr. 29, 1771); here various other entertainments of note were given during the short period of Bolton's occupancy. Nevertheless, Bolton appears to have been unsuccessful, and had given up the house before Nov. 11, 1771 (q.v.), when Robert Hull announced that he would "open" the tavern in Broadway "lately kept by Richard Bolton." Hull maintained the house, which was almost always designated as "Hull's Tavern," until 1778, when he left New York for Englaud.

" Bolton, after notifying the public of his removal to the New York Arms on Broadway, offers the house he occupies for rent for two years from May 1. He states that "most of the Rooms are new painted, paper'd, &c. &c.," and that the house "will be found well adapted for a Merchant."—N. Y. Jour., Apr. 19, 1770. This was the Queen's Head Tavern of Samuel Francis, who had temporarily removed to Philadelphia. No one seems to have occupied the house after Bolton's departure until Sept. 20 (q.v.), when Francis himself re-opened it, after having fitted up the tavern, as he announced, in the "most genteel and convenient Manner."—Ibid., Sept. 13, 1770.

2 The provincial council issues a warraot for payment to Michael Cummings of a reward for discovering the publisher of the paper signed "Son of Liberty."—Cal. Coun. Min., 481. See Feb. 7.

9 Anticipating the arrival of the statue of the king (see Feb. 6, 1768), the provincial authorities request the common council to permit the erection of the same "in some part of the Bowling Green, fronting the fort." Permission is given by unanimous vote.—M. C. C., VII: 212-13. The statue arrived on June 4 (q.v.), and was set up on Aug. 16 (q.v.). An appropriation for its erection had been made on Jan. 27 (q.v.).

" The common council authorizes the payment of £7:8:6 "for oioe Speaking Trumpets, Sundry Lamp frames &c. made for the use of this Corporation," and the payment of £5:19:11½ "for the loss of 58 pails delivered out at the late fire at Lambert Garrison's and for Brandy and Geneva delivered out at the fire in Scotch Street [see March 8] to Sundry people who appear'd to stand Greatly in need of it."—M. C. C., VII: 213.

" Archibald Kennedy presents a petition to the common council claiming that "he is entitled to a Certain Message and Lott of Ground in the City of New York in the Street oow Called the Square [Hanover Square—see Pl. 49, Vol. I] . . . and also the Dock in the Rear thereof." As he is desirous of carrying out a dock from his present boundary into the East River, he requests a grant of the "Soil and water" from his ground into the river. His petition is granted, and the clerk is ordered to prepare a draft.—M. C. C., VII: 214-15. The grant was sealed and signed on Sept. 14.—Ibid., VII: 229.

10 A news item in the Post-Boy reads: "It being publicly known here, that Nathaniel Rogers (one of the Boston Merchants who has all along refused to come into the Non-Importation Agreement) was in Town, and it being suspected that his Design in visiting this City, was to use his Endeavours to prevail on the Merchants here, to break thro' and put an End to their Agreement; his Effigy was exhibited (last Thursday Evening) hanging on a Gallows, with Labels on the Back and Breast of it expressing his Crime. It was attended by some Thousand Spectators, who after parading through Part of the City went from the Coffee-House to his Lodgings, about 9 o'Clock, in order to pay their Respects to himself, in which they were disappointed, as he din'd out of Town and had not yet returned.—They then proceeded through several of the principal Streets to the Common, where the Effigy and Gallows were committed to the Flames, amidst the joyful Acclamations of the People, who immediately after dispersed. . . . About 12 o'Clock, a Number of Persons call'd at his Lodgings again . . . and left a Letter which was soon after forwarded to him; upon the Receipt of it . . . he immediately ordered a Servant, about 2 o'Clock in the Morning to bring out his Carriage and Baggage, and decamped for Boston." The following is a copy of the letter: "Whereas you have hitherto acted in opposition to your Fellow Merchants of the Town of Boston . . . and as you have by such, your infamous Conduct, rendered yourself obnoxious to the respectable Inhabitants of this City; a great Number of them called at your Lodgings this Evening to know the Reasons for your Conduct in this Matter; and as they had not the Pleasure of seeing you, they take this opportunity to inform you, that it is their Pleasure you depart this City within Twenty-four Hours from this Time, or you may depend upon being visited in a more disagreeable Manner, by "The Sons of Liberty."

—N. Y. Post-Boy, May 14, 1770; N. Y. Merc., May 14, 1770. See

1770 also, N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 244. "The Dying Speech Of the May Effigy of a wretched Importer, which was exalted upon a Gibbet, 10 and afterwards committed to the Flames, at New York, May 10, 1770," is the curious caption of a broadside preserved in the N. Y.
 Pub. Library. The effigy is supposed to say: "You who are assembled on this solemn occasion, to behold the tragical end of an unhappy stranger, exult not at my misfortune; but consider, that there are some people among yourselves, as culpable as me, and who's exit (if justice is done them) will be equally ignominious.
 As it is usual for criminals to give, at the place of execution, some accounts of their parentage, birth, education and manner of life &c. I shall in hopes that it may redound to your advantage, give you an account of mine. My father was one of Oliver Cromwel's descendents, and my mother was only forty-five generations removed from the Witch of Endor, they both drew their first breath in New-England, as did also their unhappy son—your buzzing prevents me from saying any more, only that I acknowledge the justice of my sentence, and sincerely wish that all that are guilty of the crime for which I suffer, may be ninety-two degrees more severely punished than me. I die in the presbyterian persuasion, and in hopes that the spectators will demolish each other's noses with my legs and arms, after my dissolution."—From broadside in N. Y. Pub. Library. Another broadside, without date, from the pen of "Brutus" (see Jan. 15) "To the Free and Loyal Inhabitants of the City and Colony of New-York," having as its purpose the cooperation of merchants, mechanics, and "the virtuous of all other Ranks," in the maintenance of the "Noo-Importation Agreement" concludes with "O! ye Betrayers of the glorious Cause, remember the Boston Importer, Rogers, I say, remember him and tremble."—From broadside in N. Y. Pub. Library.

15 "A Son of Liberty" issues a broadside headed "The Salvation of American Liberty. To the Public." He traces the political history of the colonies since the imposition of the stamp duties and shows the growth of the non-importation agreement. He argues that a strict adherence to this agreement is the only weapon the colonists have to force parliament to repeal the tax on tea in addition to the duties on paper, glass, etc. (see April 12).—From a photostat (made from an original in the Library Company of Philadelphia) in the N. Y. Pub. Library.

16 Colden informs Hillsborough that "The Merchants in this Place and in Philadelphia have under consideration, whether to import goods from Great Britain or not," but he adds: "The party in opposition to the present administration join with the people of Boston in measures to prevent importation." After mentioning the attack on the Boston importer (see May 10), Coldeo continues:
 "The Magistrates knew nothing of the design till it was too late, otherwise I believe it would have been prevented.—Tho' the parties are much exasperated against each other, I hope the public peace will be preserved, and the issue will be favourable to the Govern<sup>t</sup>."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 214-15.

17 The subscribers to the non-importation agreement are requested to meet at the Exchange, on May 18, "to consider of a Letter received from Philadelphia, relative to the Non-Importation Agreement; and as it is a Matter of great Consequence, it is hoped that every Subscriber will punctually attend."—From a photostat (made from an original in the Library Company of Philadelphia) in the N. Y. Pub. Library (Evaos, 11780).

22 The governors of King's College again petition the common council, as they did on Jan. 7, 1767 (M. C. C., VII: 51-52), for the water lots fronting their ground in the West Ward, free of any quit-rent. They state that "the Earth is daily wasting away," and it is necessary to improve these water lots without delay. In case the board has reason to alter their former "indulgent Sentiments" in favour of this projected improvement, the petitioners ask for a grant of these water lots 200 feet into the river, "on such moderate Terms and quit Rents as may with Confidence be Expected by an Infant Seminary of useful Knowledge from a publick body who have the power and means thus to Contribute to its promotion, without Charge or Expence to themselves." The petition is granted.—Ibid., VII: 215-16. Drafts of these water lots were shown to the board by the city clerk on June 25, and approved (ibid., VII: 220-21), and the engrossed grant was executed on Aug. 16 (q. v.).—Ibid., VII: 226. On Dec. 5, a committee of the college governors formally thanked the common council.—Ibid., VII: 248.

" A petition from the grandchildren of Jacob Boelen, one of the original grantees mentioned in the grant of Hunter's Key, states that "the said Jacob Boelen, in his last Will and Testament, devised unto Hendricus Boelen (the father of the said Petitioners) the House & Ground on Rotton Row situated at present between the houses of David Provost and Captain Kennedy." The petitioners, "being the Surviving heirs," request a grant of the water lot "adjoining their upland, on the same Conditions the other Water Lots there have been granted." The petition is granted.

 —M. C. C., VII: 217-18. The "Engrossed Grant" was signed by the mayor on March 1, 1771.—Ibid., VII: 268.

A considerable number of inhabitants meet in the city hall in response to an advertisement that was posted in public places and carried through the city. "The present alarming Crisis," reads the notice, "renders it necessary for the Inhabitants of this City and County to be convened, in order to deliberate on Measures to support the Liberties of the Country, which have been invaded by a tyrannical ministry. This is therefore to give Notice to the Friends of Liberty of all Ranks, that a Meeting for the above salutary Purpose, is to be held this Evening, (being Wednesday) at 6 o'Clock, at the City Hall, where a Matter of the utmost Importance to the People of this colony is to be communicated, and deliberated upon. . . . Every Friend to his Country is requested to attend." At this meeting the merchants of Newport were accused of violating the "Non-Importation Agreement" and were declared enemies of the liberty of North America. It was resolved to have no trade with the merchants of Rhode Island until they take oath to abide by the above agreement and it was also resolved to try to influence the other colonies to abandon Rhode Island trade. "Such Rhode Island boats as are in port are desired to depart within twenty four hours without unloading any of their cargo. Goods imported from Glasgow are to be exported to Great Britain." It was further resolved "That we will, to the utmost of our Power, by all legal Means, preserve the Non-Importation Agreement inviolate in the City and Colony, until the Act aforesaid is totally repealed; and that we will not buy any Goods, from any Person or Persons who shall transgress that salutary Agreement, and that we will use our utmost Influence to prevent others from purchasing Goods from them."

The committee of merchants resented the action taken at the above meeting, and published an advertisement to the effect that the meeting was called without the knowledge of the committee appointed to inquire into the importation of goods and that resolves were passed "on a Matter settled the Evening before to the entire Satisfaction of the Person chosen for that Purpose; by which irregular Proceeding, they considered themselves no longer a Committee." The inhabitants were requested to meet at the Coffee House next day to choose another committee. At this meeting it was agreed that the committee should continue in office, and they were given a vote of thanks for their "upright Conduct, in supporting the Non-Importation Agreement; which the Inhabitants of this Province are determined strictly to adhere to."—N. Y. Jour., June 7, 1770. See June 11.

" Ordered . . . a Committee to Cause the Several Streets on the Church Laods to be regulated and paved . . ."—Trin. Min.
 (MS.).

Simon Johnson informs the consistory of the Dutch Church that he has received from England "a Clock with all its appurtenances for the North Church." This he offers as a gift "to be hung in the tower thereof." He is thanked, and a committee is appointed to receive the gift.—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4185.

President Cooper of King's College having applied in London to the lords of trade for the privileges of a university for the college, they answer, asking time for fuller consideration of the question, when they shall have received data to be sent over by Dr. Cooper on his return to America.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 296-98. See, further, Aug. 4, 1774.

The "Britannia" has arrived with statues of George III and William Pitt (see Feb. 6, 1768). On the same ship is brought "a large handsome Bell with its appurtenances," a gift of Simon Johnson to the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church (see May 30).
 —N. Y. Post-Boy, June 4, 1770. See June 25 and Aug. 16.

An act declaring certain persons therein mentioned incapable of being members of the general assembly (see Jan. 27) receives the royal veto.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 785.

A broadside, entitled "The Speech of the Statue of the Right Hon. William Pitt, Earl of Chatham. To the Virtuous and Patriotic Citizens of New-York," is published. It reads: "After a tedious passage over the Atlantic, I am at last arrived in this Land 1770 of Liberty [see June 4]. My own merit out of the question, I June imagine the respect you have for my mettle companion, will in-June 6 sure me a welcome reception amongst you. Sons of Liberty, foes to Tyranny, glorious Non-Importers, disinterested Merchants, Guardians of the Liberties of America!—To you I call, and a with friendly voice—Listen attentively to the words that shall proceed from my marble mouth, and treasure them up in your unfeeling hearts—I have belaboured you both in the lower and upper house of the British Senate until my guts are wore to fiddlerstrings, and the extremities of my body, thro' the excruciating pain of the gout, are petrified to stone.—Your views and mine have been always similar. The distress of my country was the occasion of my emerging from my original obscurity—had England never bled I had never been a Peer—had the Highland Thane never been a prime minister, I had never been a patriot.—Be advised by me to take care of your own interest, and be convinced from my experience, that the most successful fishing is carried on in troubled waters—Let the mechanics cry puny faith, take no notice of them.—Let the Plebians murmur, and if the French and Indians are now too pacific to take off their scalps, you can starve them, which will answer the same end.—Be outrageous my friends, Does not hemp grow in your country, and is not my statue for ever with you? I shall say more when properly fixed upon my pedestal” (see Sept. 7).—From a photostat in the N. Y. Pub. Library

(Evans, 11868).

7 The common council grants permission to the inhabitants of Montgomery Ward and of the Out Ward “to fill up the Slip adjoining the Lott of Anthony Shackerly on one side and the Lott of Peter Earl on the other side, so far as to Range with Cherry Street.”—M. C. C., VII: 219. Cf. Pls. 42 and 64, Vol. I.

11 A number of merchants and mechanics call upon the committee appointed (see March 13, 1769) to inspect into the importation of goods. It is apparent that they are not in sympathy with the views of the citizens who met on May 30 (q. v.), because they request that the “sense of this city should be taken by subscription, whether an alteration should not be made in our non-importation agreement in consequence of which a meeting was called the same evening . . . and persons appointed to go through the different wards, and to each Inhabitant propose the following questions. Do you approve of a general importation of goods from Great-Britain, except tea and other articles which are or may be subject to a duty on importation? Or, Do you approve of our non-importation agreement continuing in the manner it now is? Subscriptions were taken in accordingly, when a majority appeared for importation . . . this Agreement shall not take place until we desire the Concurrence of Boston and Philadelphia, and receive their Answer by return of Express, when if this Agreement should be rejected by the other Colonies, the Sense of this Town will be again taken.”—N. Y. Merc., June 18, 1770. See July 5.

12 This notice is published in New York: “Whereas a Number of Persons, who are immediately interested in the Importation of Goods from Great Britain; have entered into a Scheme, to frustrate the laudable Endeavours of those Patriotic Merchants, and Inhabitants of this City, who are determined to continue, and support the Non-Importation Agreement, if carried into Execution, will not only entail infamy upon this Colony, (for so base a Desertion of the other Colonies, at this critical Juncture) but will undoubtedly be the Means of enslaving the whole Continent.—It is therefore requested that every Friend to the Liberties of his Country, will not fail to meet in the Fields, at 12 o’Clock this Day, in order to fall upon a proper Method to counteract such a Design.” “N. B. The Public are cautioned not to sign any Paper, ‘till a general Determination upon this Matter.

“Done at the Request of a large Number of the Inhabitants of this City.”—From photostats in the N. Y. Pub. Library made from originals in the Library Co. of Phila.; Evans, 11783 and 11784.

An agreement regarding importation also bears this date.
Whether it was drawn up by the meeting in the Fields, or by an opposing faction, does not appear. The subscribers to this paper promise to import, after Dec. 1, all the articles which are made free of duty by the act of April 12 (q. v.), but not to import any tea until the tax shall be taken off. “If any Goods shall arrive contrary to this our former Agreement, they shall be re-shipped immediately. And any Persons, Masters of Vessel or others, that shall import, or receive a Consignment of any dutiable Goods shall be deemed Enemies to the Colonies, and treated accordingly.”

The concluding paragraph states: “But that this Agreement shall not take Place until we desire the Concurrence of Boston and Philadelphia, and receive their Answer by return of Express, when if this Agreement should be rejected by the other Colonies, the Sense of this Town will be again taken.”—Ibid.

A vendue is advertised to be held on this day at the Merchants’
Coffee House, of “69 Years Lease of the Wind-mill in the Bowery-Lane, near this City, with five Lots of Ground, two Houses thereon, and a good Garden . . .”—N. Y. Merc., June 11, 1770.

An “Academy of the Liberal Arts,” under the tuition of William Adams, is advertised to open at Harlem on this date.—N. Y. Merc.,
June 11, 1770.

The 27th regiment of foot is reviewed by Gen. Gage, who is “much pleased with their Behaviour on the Occasion.”—N. Y. Merc.,
June 25, 1770.

Mayor Hicks communicates to the common council that the city members of the assembly and the governor’s council desire the statue of Pitt [see June 4] to be erected in Wall St., “opposite to the Houses of John Thurmaa and Evert Baecker, nearly where the pump [see July 25, 1827] now stands.” The board gives permission for its location there.—M. C. C., VII: 220.

James Parker dies in Burlington, N. J., and is buried at Woodbridge, N. J.—N. Y. Jour., July 2, 1770. His birthplace was Woodbridge. For a sketch of his life and work, see footnote by O’Callaghan in N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 221. Besides his professional concerns, he was engaged in various public employments, including that of “Comptroller and Secretary of the General Post-Office for the Northern District of the British Colonies.”—Ibid., citing Thomas, Hist. of Printing in Am. (1810), II: 121-22.

A Virginia writes to a friend in New York: “I am sorry to find the noble Cause of America likely to be betrayed by its pretended Friends with you [see June 11]; can it be possible that Men who have soar’d so high as to attract the Admiration and Esteem of all the virtuous Part of Mankind should at once sink so low as to become the Contempt and Derision of every Individual! But I hope it is not possible, that for a Mess of Potage you should sell your invaluable Liberties and entail the Curse of Slavery upon your Descendants forever, when Perseverance but for a little longer, secures the prize and makes your Names immortal.

“We are all Patriots here, and will hold no Intercourse or Connection with you, if you basely desert the Cause.”—N. Y. Merc.,
July 16, 1770.

A news item in the Journal reads: “We hear that Answers to the Proposals [see June 11] from this City for altering the Non-Importation Agreement, and opening the Trade to Great Britain, except for Tea or other Articles, on which a Duty is exacted, have been received from Boston, Philadelphia, &c. And that they have unanimously and absolutely rejected the said Proposal,—being resolutely determined firmly to adhere to the Non-Importation Agreement as it stands; and that the People of Connecticut and New-Jersey have determined to have no further Dealings with this Place, unless the said Agreement is strictly maintain’d. And as the Condition upon which the People here sign’d for the proposed Alteration, was that Boston and Philadelphia approved and came into the Measure, their refusal puts an End to the Measure proposed, so that the Non-Importation Agreement remains in full force, and will doubtless continue so, till the End is obtain’d.”—
N. Y. Jour., July 5, 1770. See July 10.

Lieut.-Gov. Colden, writing to the Earl of Hillsborough, says “Soon after it was known that the Parliam<sup>t</sup> had repealed the duties on Paper, Glass etc. [see April 12] the Merchants in this place sent to Philadelphia that they might unitedly agree to a general importation of every thing except Tea [see June 11]. They at first received a favourable answer, and their agreement to the proposal was not doubted; but soon after a letter was received at Philadelphia from a Gentleman in England, on whom the Quakers is that place, repose the greatest confidence, advising them to persist in non-importation, till every internal Taxation was taken off, this changed the measures of Philadelphia [see July 5]; but the principal Inhabitants of this place continue resolved to shew their gratitude, for the regard the Parliament has in removing the grievances they complained of. As their still remains a restless Faction, who from popular arguments, rumours and invectives, are endeavouring to excite riots and opposition among the lower class of people a number of Gentlemen went round the Town to take the sentiments of Individuals [see July 10]. I am told, that 1770 1180, among which are the principal Inhabitants, declared for im-July portation, about 300 were neutral or unwilling to declare their 7 sentiments, and a few of any distinction declared in opposition to it.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 217; broadside issued at New York, Dec. 20, 1773. Alexander Colden, on July 11, described the secretary to the postmaster-general, on July 11, described the resulting occurrences in New York.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 218-21.

" Gen. Gage orders Alexander Colden to detain the packet for two or three days "in order to give time to the Merchants of the place to make out orders to their Correspondents at home for such British Merchandise as they shall severally want, being on the point of breaking the nonimportation agreement."—*N. Y. Col.
 Docs.*, VIII: 220-21. The packet sailed on July 11 (p. v.).

" This notice, "By Order of a Number of the Inhabitants," is issued: "Whereas a small Number of Persons met last Night in a private Manner, at the House of Mr. Bolton, in order to nominate Persons to take the Sense of the Inhabitants,—Whether an Importation shall take Place, notwithstanding the Merchants and Inhabitants of Boston, Connecticut, Jersey, and Philadelphia, have, in the most solemn Manner, declared their firm Determination to abide by the Non-Importation Agreement, until the Act imposing a Duty on Tea, is repealed: And as this is a Matter of the utmost Importance to the Liberties of North-America, no private Set of Men have a right to determine on a Mode, by which the Citizens are to give their Voices, on a Question, pregnant with the most dangerous Consequences to the Freedom of Americans.—This is therefore to notify every Friend to this Country of all Ranks, to meet at the City-Hall, at 12 o'clock this Day, (being Saturday) in order to determine, whether the Sentiments of the People is to be taken, and in what Mode, on the above Subject.—In the mean Time, every Friend to the Cause of American Liberty, is cautioned against signing Papers that originated from an inconsiderable Number."—From a photostat (made from an original in the Library Co. of Phila.) in the N. Y. Pub. Library (Evas, 11785).

" A disturbance arises between the two factions of the Sons of Liberty. This affair was described by "A Citizen," who, from the character of his letter, must have had strong loyalist tendencies, and whose absolute fidelity may therefore be questioned. He says that when a number of gentlemen, appointed to ascertain the sentiments of the citizens respecting the importation of such goods as were subject to duty, went about the city, they were obstructed in their work and abused by citizens who feared the prevailing sentiment would be for importation, and who were averse to this.
 After insulting and abusing these gentlemen, this contingent met at the city hall and resolved to refuse to accept the opinion of the city. They assembled later at the tavern of Jasper Drake, where they erected a flag as a signal of rendezvous, and, "after carousing and drinking very plentifully, and heating themselves with liquor, in the glorious cause of liberty, as they call it, they sallied out in the evening to put their project in execution, carrying with them music, colours, and staves, upon which were labels fixed with the inscription of Liberty, and Non-importation, headed by a number of that faction." Elias Desbrosses, a city magistrate, and others, attempted to disperse the mob, who used sticks, clubs, and stones; the magistrates, according to this writer, being unarmed except for a few walking sticks.—N. Y. Merc., July 23, 1770.
 Another meeting was held on July 25 (p. v.), at Hamden Hall to protest against the conduct of "those who have broke the Non-Importation Agreement." This protest was left "at the House of Mr. Jasper Drake," where signatures were desired.—Ibid.,
 July 30, 1770.

The same issue of the Mercury contains a thrust at the conservatives in the form of an announcement from the inhabitants of the city of Philadelphia (see July 30). Jasper Drake's tavern, the headquarters for the more aggressive faction of the "Sons of Liberty," was, in 1774 (see Mar. 14), on the East River near Beekman Slip.

9 A New Yorker writes that a "great majority" of the people in the city have voted to resume importation from Great Britain except in regard to tea (see July 7), and that "the inhabitants will govern themselves accordingly." He adds: "it is expected they will give strict orders to their correspondents, masters of vessels, and others, not to ship or take on board any tea or other article whatsoever subject to duty for the purpose of raising a revenue in America."—Upcott Coll., in N. Y. Hist. Soc., IV: 59. See July 11.

10 The committee of merchants in New York writes to the committee of Philadelphia: "we are directed to acquaint you, that the Sense of our Inhabitants has been again taken [see June 11 and

July 5] . . . and as there appeared a great Majority for importing every Thing, except such Articles as are, or may hereafter be subject to Duty for the Purpose of raising a Revenue in America [see July 7], and, in Consequence thereof, many Orders for Goods may be sent by the Packet to sail To-morrow or next Day; we are ordered to give you the most early Advice of this Event by another Express, that if your Merchants should chuse to send any Orders, they may avail themselves of a Vessel, which, we hear, will be ready to sail from your Port for London, on Saturday next."
 —N. Y. Jour., July 19, 1770. For answers to this, see July 11.

11 An unsuccessful effort is made by loyalists to break the non-importation agreement (see July 9). Colden writes that "the principal Gentlemen and Merchants have been at great pains to show the unreasonableness of abiding by the non-importation agreement (after the Legislature of Great Britain had been graciously pleased to repeal the Act relative to laying duties on sundry articles, except that on Tea)." A "number of Merchants met at a Tavern and then agreed at all events to send their orders by the Packet to send them goods as usual, except Tea. The Faction being informed of this Resolution published an inflammatory anonymous advertisement the next morning, desiring all the Inhabitants to meet that day at 12 o'clock at the City Hall, where the Faction & their Cahal (such as they were) met accordingly," among them being Isaac Sears and Capt. McDougall. They proposed an opposition to importation. Sears publicly declared that if any merchant, or number of merchants, "presumed to break through the non-importation agreement till the several Provinces had agreed to do the same, he would lose his life," etc.—*N. Y.
 Col. Docs.*, VIII: 218-20.

The merchants of Philadelphia write in answer to the letter from New York (see July 10): "We are sorry to find . . . that a Majority of your City have determined to break your Non-Importation Agreement; a Measure which we think will be prejudicial to your own, and the Liberties of all America.—Arguments are now vaia—To Posterity, and to your Country, you must answer for the Step you have now taken. . . . You have certainly weakened the Union of the Colonies, on which their Safety depends, and will thereby strengthen the Hands of our Enemies, and encourage them to prosecute their Designs against our common Liberty. We cannot forbear telling you, that however you may colour your Proceedings, we think you have, in the Day of Trial, deserted the Cause of Liberty and your Country." A letter from Princeton, dated July 12, stated that when the students received news of the action of New York, they went "in Procession to a Place fronting the College, and burnt the Letter by the Hands of a Hangman, hired for the Purpose; with hearty Wishes, that the Names of all Promoters of such a daring Breach of Faith, may be blasted in the Eyes of every Lover of Liberty, and their Names handed down to Posterity, as Betrayers of their Country."—*N. Y.
 Jour.*, July 19, 1770. According to a letter from Connecticut, dated July 6, 1770, the people there thought it very astonishing that New Yorkers, who had been the first to sign the agreement and had been very sharp in their reproof of all delinquents, should now "flinch, turn back, and be the first and foremost to break the measure so interesting and important, and thereby enslave all America with themselves."—N. Y. Jour., July 19, 1770.

The "Earl of Halifax," packet-boat, sails with the mail for Falmouth. "She carries Orders from the Merchants here for a general Importation of Goods, except the single Article Tea, (on which the Duty laid by the Parliament for raising a Revenue in America remains unrepaid) and for all other Goods on which a Duty for the like Purpose may be laid. These Orders are in consequence of a late Alteration in the Non-Importation Agreement, which, since the People of Boston and Philadelphia have refused their consent to, has been made, upon the subscription [see July 7] of about 800 of the Inhabitants, which the opposite Party, who were against the Alteration, say is but about a fourth Part of the People who had a Right to vote upon this Occasion; but who thinking the Proceedings irregular, refused to sign on any Side. They intend to publish a protest [see July 25] with their Names subscribed, as also of the principals on the other Side."—N. Y. Merc.,
 July 16, 1770.

14 In the Bancker Collection, in N. Y. Pub. Library (box B-G, folder 59, C), are four drafts of surveys of the Fields, one bearing this date and one 1792, by "F. M." (Marschall), and "G. B." (Bancker); they show the first almshouse, gaol, and bridewell.
 See also June 22, 1774.

- 1770 Hillsborough, writing to the Earl of Dunmore, says: "As His Majesty's ship Tweed, which is destined to carry your Lord<sup>p</sup> to New York is (I understand) now ready for the Sea, I enclose to your Lord<sup>p</sup> His Majesty's Instructions for your guidance and direction in the administration of that Govern<sup>t</sup>; and I am to signify . . . that you should prepare to embark with as much dispatch as your Health and private affairs will permit.
- "I have the satisfaction to acquaint your Lord<sup>p</sup> that His Majesty hath been graciously pleased to direct . . . that a Salary of £2000 per annum should be paid to your Lord<sup>p</sup> from the date of your Commission, out of the Revenue arising in America by the duty upon Tea; and I am to signify . . . His Majesty's commands, that you do not accept any Salary, or any gift or allowance whatsoever from the Assembly of New York . . . and it is His Majesty's pleasure that a moiety of the perquisites and Emoluments of the Govern<sup>t</sup> of New York be accounted for and paid to your Lord<sup>p</sup> from the date of your Commission to the time of your arrival."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 223.
- 23 A notice in the Post-Boy states that, as the letter from the committee of merchants in New York to those in Philadelphia (see July 10) has asserted that the people here are in favour of importing goods, "the friends of the non-importation agreement, submit the matter to the public as the most proper judges in a case which concerns American liberty in general. . . . To enable the world to determine whether the resolution to import goods from Great Britain is founded on the opinion of a majority of the inhabitants of this city it will be proper to observe, that . . . the militia roll of this city and county amounted, in the year 1776 to 2300 . . . it is therefore highly probable that at this day, could we be favoured with a [sic] militia act, the number of effectives would amount at least to 3000. And yet the public will be surprised, when they are informed, that notwithstanding the greatest pains taken to induce numbers to prejudice so important a cause . . . not more than 794 . . . have acceded to the resolution to import." The paper published the names of those for and of those against the agreement.—N. Y. Post-Boy, July 23 and July 30, 1770.
- 25 In accordance with a printed advertisement for the purpose, a number of inhabitants meet at Haden Hall where a protest against the conduct of those who have broken the non-importation agreement (see July 11) is read, unanimously agreed to, and signed. "It is hoped that the Counties, will likewise Protest; as it will be the only Means to preserve the Reputation of the Colony which has been meanly prostituted to serve the vile Purposes of a Party."—N. Y. Jour., July 26, 1770.
- 30 The following "Card" appears in the Mercury: "The Inhabitants of the City of Philadelphia, present their Compliments to the Inhabitants of New-York, and beg they will send them their Old Liberty Pole, as they can imagine they do, by their late Conduct [see July 11] have no further Use for it."—N. Y. Merc., July 30, 1770.
- Aug. 10 A committee appointed by the common council "to Examine the State of the New Gail & Alms house" reports upon the need of certain alterations and repairs. Among those proposed is "That the west end of the new building is very convenient to erect Cells for the mad people instead of the Cuddys [lockers] taken out of the hot house" (see April 7, 1769).—From the original report in metal file labelled "Filed Papers, 1769-1806," city clerk's record-room. "Agreeable to a Report filed this day," the board appoints a committee to make the repairs.—M. C. C., VII: 223.
- " Inhabitants of the city who live in and near "Hannover Square" state in a petition to the common council that they conceive "The Alley Leading from Hannover Square to the Sloat [see Pls. 34 and 64, Vol. II] as a very Great Nuisance . . . as the Lives of many of the Inhabitants are often endangered in passing through the said Alley occasion'd by frequently meeting Cattle running through the same." They ask that the board consent to buy land along the west side of the alley, which Archibald Kennedy is willing to sell, to "make a good and Convenient Street".—From the original MS., endorsed "filed Aug<sup>o</sup> the 10th 1770," in box No. 6, in city clerk's record-room. At the meeting of the board on the same date, it was agreed, "in Case a purchase of said Sloat should take Effect," to contribute £100 toward said purchase.—M. C. C., VII: 224-25. No further record appears, however. It was not until 1830 that Hanover St. was formally opened.—M. C. C. (MS.), LXXII: 36.
- " The common council orders that the treasurer pay Peter Curtenius £12, "to be by him applied towards assisting several poor Inhabitants in defraying the Expence of regulating & paving of Crown [Liberty] Street [see July 12, 1769] in the West ward."—M. C. C., VII: 223. See, further, June 13, 1771.
- Aug. 10 Samuel Insee & Anthony Car become printers of the Post-Boy, having leased the paper from Samuel F. Parker.—See Early N. Y. Newspapers, II: 427; and "Bibliography of Am. Newspapers" in Am. Antiquarian Soc. Proceedings, XXVII (N. S.), 418.
- 16 An equestrian statue of George III (see June 4) is erected in Bowling Green. In its report of the occasion, the Mercury said: "This beautiful Statue is made of Metal, richly gilt, being the first Equestrian One of his present Majesty, and is the workmanship of that celebrated Statuary, Mr Wilton, of London."—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 20, 1770. In the account as given by the Post-Boy the sculptor is said to have "used as his model the equestrian statue of Marcus Aurelius in Rome."—N. Y. Post-Boy, Aug. 20, 1770. Colden, describing the occasion to Hillsborough under date of Aug. 18, said: "I was attended on this occasion by the Gentlemen of the Council and members of the Assembly then in town. The Magestrats of the City, the Clergy of all denominations and very large number of the principal inhabitants. Our loyalty & firm attachment and affection to his Majesty's person was expressed by drinking the King's health & a long continuance of his Reign, under a discharge of 32 pieces of cannon & band of musick playing at the same time from the Ramparts of the Fort. The General and the officers of the Army gave us the honor of their Company on the occasion. The whole Company walked in procession from the fort round the statue while the spectators expressed their Joy by loud acclamations the Procession having returned with me to the Fort & the Ceremony concluded with great cheerfulness and good humor."—Colden Papers (1877), 226; N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 245. For the railing subsequently erected around Bowling Green, see Nov. 22. For improvements in the vicinity, see Oct. 24, 1771. For the demolition of the statue, see July 9, 1776. This statue and that of Pitt (see Sept. 7) were the first statues erected in New York City.
- " The city grants to King's College the water lots extending from the rear of its land, between Murray and Barclay Streets, to a line 200 feet beyond low-water mark, with the obligation that it shall make for the city a street along each side to be the extensions of Barclay and Murray Streets into the Hudson River the whole length of the lots, also First Street across the lots at high-water mark, Second Street at low-water mark, and Third Street fronting the 200 feet limit.—City Grants, Liber D: 86.
- 27 The society of cordwainers petitions for a charter.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 787.
- 28 During a storm, the "Philadelphia Stage Boat . . . lying at Anchor back of Nutten Island" is struck by lightning and her mast shattered.—N. Y. Jour., Sept. 6, 1770; Upcott Coll., IV: 75. For the "Stage-Waggons" to Philadelphia from Paulus Hook with which such a "Stage Boat" doubtless connected, see May 28, 1767.
- 30 Edward Bardin, who "for several Years past kept Tavern in this City," notifies the public that he has "taken the large commodious House, known by the Name of the King's-Arms Tavern, near White-Hall, long kept by Mrs. Steel, which he will again open as a Tavern" on this date.—N. Y. Jour., Aug. 23, 1770. His stay was brief. Before Dec. 10, 1770, Bardin had left and the house was again advertised to be let or sold. It was described as "furnished with excellent fixtures, viz. in the Kitchen a large good copper boiler, well fixed; a new metal perpetual oven, with proper shelves, tables, stoves, &c, a good yard, pump and cistern; also a set of bells well hung; and if left to a tavern keeper, there stands a fine new barr, with a hundred sash-lights in it. For particulars, enquire of the printer, or of Mr. Carleton, in Broad street."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 10, 1770. Burns succeeded Bardin, but, by May 13, 1771 (q. v.), he was offering the house for rent, having failed of success with the tavern, as had Bardin before him. The latter, on June 13, 1771, opened a tavern at St. Eustatia in the West Indies, "commonly known by the name of Denison's tavern."—N. Y. Merc., July 8, 1771.
- Sept. 3 A public vendue is advertised to take place on this day at the "Sign of the Fighting-Cocks, Whitehall."—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 3, 1770. Evidently this tavern sign was removed from the old house on Water St. to the new site some time after 1762. See May 24, 1756.
- 6 Dr. John H. Livingston, from the Academy of Utrecht, arrives in New York, and is received by the consistory of the Dutch Church, by whom he has been called to be minister, in the English 1770 tongue, in the North Dutch Church.—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4191; see Sept. 6 also March 29, 1769.

In a box of MSS. relating to churches in New York City, in the archives of the N. Y. Hist. Soc., is a volume endorsed: "Book containing a State of the Revenues Income And Estate belonging to the Corporation of the Dutch Reformed Protestant Church in the City of New York at different Periods Viz<sup>t</sup> 1770-1786. 1784 & 1786. Examined and made out by Garret Abeel then Elder of said Church; by order of the Consistory." It contains important data relating to the North Dutch Church, school, and other properties, including the measurements of the Harpending bequest of land to the Dutch Church corporation (see Feb. 7, 1724); and expenses after the Revolution (1784 to Nov., 1786), for repairing the North Church, schoolhouse, parsonage-house, burying-ground, etc.

7 The statue of William Pitt (see June 25) is "fixed on the Pedestal erected for it in Wall-Street.—N. Y. Jour., Sept. 13, 1770. A clipping in the Du Simitière Collection in Library Company of Phila. (Ridgway Branch) reads thus:

"New-York, September 13, 1770.

"Last Friday the Statue of the Right Hon. William Pitt, Esq; Earl of Chatham, was fixed on the Pedestal erected for it in Wall-Street, amidst the Acclamations of a great Number of the Inhabitants. The Statue is of a fine white Marble, the Habit Roman, the right Hand holds a Scroll, partly open, whereon we read, ARTICULI MAGNA CHARTA LIBERTATUM [the Latin here is open to criticism]; the left Hand is extended, the Figure being in the Attitude of one delivering an Oration. On the South Side of the Pedestal, the following Inscription is cut on a Table of white Marble.

THIS STATUE OF THE RIGHT HONOURABLE
WILLIAM PITT
EARL OF CHATHAM
WAS ERRECTED

AS A PUBLIC TESTIMONY OF THE GRATEFUL SENSE
THE COLONY OF NEW-YORK RETAINS OF THE MANY EMINENT SERVICES HE RENDERED AMERICA, PARTICULARLY IN PROMOTING THE REPEAL OF THE STAMP-ACT
ANNO DOM. M.DCC.LXX."

The statue was mutilated by British soldiers on Nov. 30, 1777 (q.v.). After many removals from place to place (see March 7 and July 16, 1788; Aug. 3 and 12, 1811; 1841; 1843; April 26, 1847), the headless trunk was finally presented, on March 1, 1864 (q.v.), to the N. Y. Hist. Soc., where it is still preserved.

14 The committee appointed for building the pier at Peck's Slip (see June 28, 1768) is empowered "for the preservation of said pier to build a Block of 20 by 30 feet to the said wharf, by way of a Bulk head, the widest part to front the River" provided the expense does not exceed £130.—M. C. G., VII: 228-29. See Dec. 5, 20 Samuel Francis announces his return to the Queen's Head Tavern, "As the best Clubs, and the greatest Entertainments in this City, were at the above Tavern, in the Time of the Subscriber, he flatters himself the Public are so well satisfied of his Ability to serve them, as to render the swelling of an Advertisement useless. . .

"N. B. Dinners and Suppers dressed to send out, for Lodgers and others, who live at a convenient Distance; also, Cakes, Tarts, Jellies, Whip Syllabubs, Blaumage Sweet-Meats, &c. in any Quantity; cold Meat in small Quantities, Beef Stacks, &c. at any Hour; Pickled Oysters for the West Indies or elsewhere."—N. Y. Jour., Sept. 13; N. Y. Merc., Oct. 1, 1770. Francis first opened the Queen's Head Tavern in the old De Lancey mansion, at Broad and Pearl Sts., which he purchased on Jan. 15, 1762 (q.v.). He had rented the house, first to John Jones (N. Y. Gaz., Nov. 14, 1765), and later to Bolton & Sigell; who had been proprietors since Jan. 12, 1767. After 1770, Francis continued keeping tavern at the Queen's Head until the outbreak of the Revolution. For a brief history of his tavern, see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 978.

29 "This Day the City Elections were conducted with great Heat. Oliver De Lancey Mr Cruger Mr White voted at them—Cruger gave his Voice in the East Ward for a Constable &c—I was impowered by Mr J V Cortlandt My Brother & Mr Nick Bayard to vote for Mr Alderman Lott but absolutely refused tho' Oliver De Lancey had already voted ag<sup>t</sup> him—I frankly declared that I thought it mean in the Council to interfere in those Elections,

& that it was unfriendly to Liberty for them to attempt to give an Influence in any of the popular Pollings—This gave some offence to People friendly to me and I foresaw it."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.

Oct. 5 Lieut.-Gov. Colden writes to Hillsborough: "In my preceding letter [see July 7] I informed your Lord<sup>sh</sup> of the steps that had been taken to introduce a general importation of goods from Great Britain, and of the opposition which had been made to it, by that party who have in every other instance endeavoured to embrace the measures of Govern<sup>t</sup>. It gave me particular satisfaction to find this party entirely defeated last week, in a violent struggle to turn out such of the Elective Magistrates of this City, as had distinguished themselves any way in favour of Govern<sup>t</sup>.

"I believe your Lord<sup>sh</sup> will be pleased to know that the Members of His Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Council, with a single exception, and the Representatives of this City in General Assembly have zealously exerted themselves for a dissolution of the nonimportation agreement in New York . . . Mr Ludlow, whom I appointed one of the Puisne Judges of the Supreme Court, in the room of Mr Smith deceased, was very useful. He has many Friends among the Merchants, and they were the foremost in declaring for importation. He has at all times been a Friend to Govern<sup>t</sup>; is a Man of genius and of application, and I doubt not will distinguish himself in his station.—No particular person has been more distinguished on this occasion, than Mr Banyar Deputy Secretary of this Province. He took great pains to excite and preserve a proper spirit in others. He has likewise been very useful to me in every part of my Administration. . . . He has faithfully discharged every confidence placed in him by Govern<sup>t</sup>, and has so well established the opinion of his Integrity and honour for upwards of twenty years past, that every Gov<sup>t</sup> in that time has placed a particular confidence in his advice, Sir Henry Moore only excepted. Perhaps My Lord, you may expect that I mention the persons who have opposed the salutary measures of Govern<sup>t</sup>. Though every Man conversant in public affairs, be well assured in his own mind, who are the Leaders and Conductors of the opposition to Govern<sup>t</sup>, yet as they do not appear publicly, but work by their Tools of inferior Rank, no legal evidence I can produce against them. I must therefore beg to be excused from naming any person."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 248-49.

"The common council authorizes the payment of £2717:6 "for 200 Loads of paving Stone furnished for the use of the yard belonging to the New Goal."—M. C. G., VII: 233.

8 At some time prior to this date, John Simmons had opened a tavern on Wall St., where he had hung out the "Sign of Sir Peter Warren," the old name of Brock's Tavern, which stood on the opposite side of the street.—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 8, 1770. Simmon's tavern, which stood on the north-west corner of Wall and Nassau Sts., was a small frame building adjoining the First Presbyterian Church. It is shown on Pls. 105 and 111, Vol. III. The house was frequently used for committee meetings of the common council, of the vestry of Trinity Church, and of independent societies. On Feb. 7, 1784 (q.v.), James Duane was installed mayor of the city at a special meeting held here. The house seems to have acquired the patronage given in former years to Brock's tavern which, until 1773 stood on the opposite side of the street (see May 29, 1758). Meetings were still being held at "Simmons' Tavern" in 1792 (see March 8). The innkeeper was so portly a man that at his funeral, it is said, the doorway had to be enlarged to admit the passage of his coffin (Smith, N. Y. City in 1789, 120-121; Bayles, Old Taverns of N. Y., 341). After his death his widow continued to keep the house.—Ibid., 341. Later, David King, a well-known tavern-keeper, was for many years proprietor of this little tavern.—Ibid., 455. In 1811, the house was known as "Randolphs tavern (late King's) No. 9 Wall street."—The Columbian, Oct. 7, 1811.

14 The sundry branches of the city's revenue for the past year were: ferry rent £970; dock rent £699; rent of water lots £464:9; land rent £374; rent of market stalls £250; licenses £230:1:9; house rent £60; fines 11s; total £3039:2:6.—Jour. of City Chamberlain, IV: 45.

"The Ratzler Map" (see 1766) is for the first time advertised, 15 in the Mercury of this date, the insertion reading:

"To be sold by the Printer hereof,

"A Plan of the City of New-York, and its Environs, surveyed and laid down in the Years 1766, and 1767, with a South Prospect of the same, taken from the Governor's Island. In this Plan is taken in Povlis-Hook, Red-Hook, the Long Island Shore, and the Islands in our Bay &c. &c."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 15, 1770.

- 1770 The Earl of Dunmore, the new gouverour, who had been appointed on Jan. 2 (q.v.), arrives in New York.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 249; N. Y. Jour., Oct. 25, 1770; Assemb. Jour. (1770), 3. Smith describes his arrival thus: "The Tweed Frigate arrived with the new Governor John Earl of Dunmore one of the 16 Peers of Scotland. Colden and several of the Council met him just after his Landing near the Whitehall Slip about 4 P M—We shook Hands in the Street & accompanied him to the Fort; where we were reintroduced & then went with him to Dinner at Bolton's."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.
- 19 Dunmore's commission as gouverour is published with the usual ceremonies.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 249; Gal. Coun. Min., 483. Describing the occasion, Smith writes: "He took the oaths first—then we—There was a great Crowd attending without—We accompanied him to the Town Hall—The Populace shouting all the Way—His Commission was read from the Balcony, where he shewed himself to the People—This Day we dined again at Bolton's at the Lieut Gov<sup>r</sup>s Expence."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.
- 22 A fortnightly dancing assembly is held at Bolton's assembly-room.—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 22, 1770.
- 25 The consistory of the Dutch Church presents an address of welcome to the new gouverour, the Earl of Duamore.—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4193.
- 27 An address to Gov. Dunmore, prepared by Recorder Jones, is approved by the common council and ordered to be engrossed. It is voted also to grant him "the freedom of this Corporation."—M. C. C., VII: 239-41. The presentation was made on the 29th; the gouverour replied as follows:
"Gentlemen:
"I am infinitely obliged to you for this kind Address. I hope to Confirm you in the Good opinion you Conceive of me, by making the franchises and Immunities of this Corporation the Objects of my particular Care and Attention. With your assistance I am not under the Least doubt of Seeing the most perfect order and Tranquility Reiga throughout this City."—Ibid., VII: 241. On Jan. 2, 1771, the common council authorized the payment of £38:7 for the gold box in which the gouverour's "freedom" was enclosed; also the payment of £25:7:6 "for an Entertainment . . . provided by order of this Board, for his Excellency Governour Dunmore."—Ibid., VII: 253.
- Nov. "On Tuesday next, according to Act of Assembly, begins one of the Fairs, to be held in this City, on the first Tuesdays in April and November, yearly, and continuing till the End of the Friday following, being in all 4 Days each, inclusively; when all Persons are authorised to expose and sell all Sorts of Cattle, Horses, Mares, Colts, Grain, Victuals, Provisions, and other Necessarys, together with all Sorts of Merchandize, &c."—N. Y. Jour., Nov. 1, 1770.
- 5 In an address to the new gouverour, the officers of the Marine Society acknowledge their indebtedness to "the Patronage of our worthy Lieut. Governour" (see April 26), and express satisfaction that they "can securely rely on your Lordship's Countenance and Protection."—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 5, 1770.
- 10 Colden writes to Hillsborough regarding his uneasiness when Dunmore demands of him "a moiety of the perquisites and Emoluments of the Govern<sup>t</sup> of New York . . . from the date of his Commission [Jan. 2] to the time of his arrival" (see July 16). Colden reviews the precedents to show that "Every oldest Councillor or Lieut<sup>t</sup> Gov<sup>t</sup> has received and retained the whole profits of Govern<sup>t</sup>, from the death of one Gov<sup>t</sup> to the arrival of another," and points out to Hillsborough the bad effect which such demand will have on the minds of the people.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 250-52; 257-58. Regarding Colden's claim to "the whole profits of Government from the Death of one Governour until the arrival of another," see the voluminous papers in the case among Golden Papers, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Collections (1877), X: 232-329. On Jan. 18, 1771 (q.v.), Dunmore refused to accept compensation from the assembly "after the rate of £2000 per annum" beginning with the date of his arrival, Oct. 18, 1770 (q.v.). In the middle of March, 1771, he submitted his case to the judges of the supreme court, and about a month later they decided against him.—Golden Papers, op. cit. (1877), 322. Notwithstanding this opinion, Dunmore thought he had a clear case. He finally determined to send the papers to the ministry.—Ibid., 325. No decision appears of record. In this case William Smith (Jr.), was counsel for Dunmore, and, among the Smith MSS. in the N. Y. Pub. Library, are the following documents relating to the case:
Abstract of the bill, "Attorney General ag<sup>t</sup> Cadwallader Colden," and abstract of Colden's demurrer, 6 pp. folio.
Argument of James Duane, counsel for Colden (and New York's first mayor after the Revolution—see Feb. 5, 1784), in support of the defendant's demurrer, 53 pp. folio.
Dunmore's letter to Hillsborough, of June 11, 1771 (copy), with reference to his dispute with Colden, 1 p. large folio.
"Extracts from the State of Lord Dunmore's Case laid before Counsel in England, 1773," 6 pp. folio, in Smith's handwriting.
Opinion of Mr. Dunning (an English attorney retained by Colden) "on Lord Dunmore's Case ag<sup>t</sup> L<sup>d</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> Colden 12 Aug<sup>t</sup> (1773)."—Wm. Smith MSS., folio 178, in N. Y. Pub. Library.
"Ordered . . . a Committee to meet and Confer with the Committee of the Governours of the College in order to apply to have the Quitt rent remitted that is reserved in the Letters patent for the Lands lately granted for the use of this Corporation."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See, further, Oct. 14, 1771.
The governours of the college give an entertainment in honour of Gov. Dunmore.—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 26, 1770.
The common council orders that "a Temporary fence be forthwith made Round the Bowling Green of post and Rails, not to exceed five Rails high."—M. C. C., VII: 244-45. A payment of £13 to Henry Fielding "for sundry posts & Rails" for this fence was ordered on Jan 2, 1771 (ibid., VII: 254). Manifestly this temporary wooden fence was to protect the king's statue recently placed on the Green (see Aug. 16), and to prevent the littering up of this space.—See May 3, 1771. Ultimately the expense for permanently "railing in" the king's statue was met by the assembly (see Jan. 27, 1770, and Jan. 8, 1771). For the contract to erect the iron fence, which still stands, see May 3, 1771.
The corporation decides "that the Common Council do for the future meet on the first Wednesday in every Month to Issue Warrants, for discharging such debts as shall be due from this Corporation."—M. C. C., VII: 245.
The common council orders "that the Committee of the Bridewell and Alms house, provide three Iron Stoves, two for the use of the Bridewell and one for the use of the Alms house."—M. C. C., VII: 245. See June 6, 1771.
The principal lawyers of the city organize "The Moot," a club for discussing legal questions. William Livingston is elected the first president, and William Smith vice president. The Moot continued in existence until January, 1775. During that time it "materially influenced the judgment of the Supreme Court."—Sedgwick, Life of William Livingston (1833), 151. In the discussions, which were conducted with great regularity and order, Peter van Schaack "took a conspicuous part, and to him was intrusted the keeping of their records. Some of these are still preserved and are matters of curious reference for a modern lawyer."—Van Schaacks, Life of Peter Van Schaack (1842), 13. The "Social Club" was in existence at about the same time. It met "Saturday evenings at Sam Francis', corner Broad & Dock Streets, in winter: in summer dined at Kips Bay, where they built a neat large room for the Club House." The members of the club "dispersed in December 1775 & never afterward assembled."—From a transcript of a manuscript found among the papers of John Moon, written during the American Revolution, including "List of Members of the Social Club—to which he belonged," preserved in N. Y. Hist. Soc. Another club, said to have been organized before the Revolution, was the "Friendly Club." When this organization went to pieces, in the clash between its Federalist and Anti-Federalist members, some of them participated in the founding of the "Drone Club," in 1792.—Wilson, Mem. Hist. of N. Y., IV: 233.
Smith receives a visit from Col. Bradstreet, who describes the feast of the Sons of St. Andrew. Smith says: "Bradstreet exclaimed horribly ag<sup>t</sup> my Lord Dunmore who took the Chair—He swears that he is a damned Fool—Says he is a silly extravagant Buck, & that he has done for his Reputation forever. He grounds all upon his being noisy and clamorous in giving the Toasts to Watts at the lower End of the Table—That he sank himself by the vilest . . . Heaths—That his Friend Col<sup>o</sup> Reid was struck into silent Astonishment, and the Company ashamed of him—Is sure that he will be lampooned and dispised." Smith adds: "Henceforth I shall be more shy for Fear of involving my own with a Character that will be disreputable among all Sorts of People, & perhaps expose what I give him in Confidence."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.
The common council authorizes the payment of £59:15:1 1/2

- 1770 "for materials found & work done to the Coffy House Bridge, fly
Dec. Market & ferry Stairs," and the payment of £27 "for the Costs 5 Charges & expences of additional work done at pecks Slip of the use of this Corporation . . . & also the further Sum of £65 in full of all Demands against this Corporation for Building & finishing the Wharf of pecks Slip" (see Sept. 14).—M. C. C., VII: 247.
- 6 Colden, in a letter to Hillsborough, states that commerce between Great Britain and the colonies has been renewed, largely through the influence of New York merchants who had his personal encouragement.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 257.
- "Dunmore writes to Hillsborough of the defenseless condition of the city.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 259.
- 10 "Alexander Colden, Esq; of this City, is appointed Secretary and Comptroller, of the General Post Office for the Northern District of North-America, in the Room of James Parker, Esq; Printer, deceased."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 10, 1770. Alexander, who was the eldest son of Lieut.-Gov. Cadwallader Colden, continued to be post master of the New York District until his death in 1775.
He had served as deputy post master as early as July 30, 1753 (q. v.).
- "A newspaper advertisement reads: "To be sold at public venue, at the Merchant's Coffee-House, on Monday the 31st day of December inst. the lease of a certain lot, piece and parcel of ground, whereon the theatre or play house now stands, together with the buildings thereon now erected, containing in length on both sides, ninety two feet, and in breadth in front and rear forty eight feet, all English measure."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 10, 1770.
The dimensions given above tally so closely with those of the Chapel St. Theatre (see Apr. 2, 1764), as to lead to the belief that this advertisement refers to the same theatre. Some portions of the building apparently escaped demolition, on May 5, 1766 (q. v.).
- 11 "In his first address to the assembly, Gov. Dunmore says: "I esteem myself peculiarly fortunate in having been appointed to the command of this province, whose example has been the happy means of renewing that mutual intercourse between the mother country and her colonies [see July 11], which is so much the interest of both to preserve uninterrupted; this salutary reconciliation effected by the people of this province, cannot fail of endearing them, in a particular manner, to our most gracious Sovereign."— Assemb. Jour. (1770-1), 3-4. On Dec. 18, the assembly answered:
"The representatives of the people regard with the highest satisfaction this peculiar mark of his Majesty's paternal attention to the welfare and happiness of this faithful colony, in the appointment of a nobleman of your lordship's distinguished rank to preside over us, while your lordship's amiable character affords the most pleasing prospect of a happy administration."—Ibid.
(1770-1), 13.
- "Hillsborough informs Dunmore of the latter's appointment by the king as governor of Virginia in the place of Lord Botetourt, deceased.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 260.
- 13 Alexander McDougall (see Feb. 21) is ordered to appear before the general assembly to answer a charge that he was the author of the broadside of Dec. 16, 1769 (q. v.). He contends that he can not reply to the question, "whether or not he was the author or publisher of the same," since "the grand jury and house of Assembly had declared the paper . . . to be a libel . . . Secondly, that as he was under prosecution in the supreme court, he conceived it would be an infraction of the laws of Justice, to punish a British subject twice for one offence." These words are deemed "a contempt of the authority of this house," and McDougall is therefore ordered to be taken into custody.—Assemb. Jour. (1770-1), 7-8.
On Dec. 14, the sergeant at arms reported that he had "conveyed Alexander McDougall, to the common goal of the city."—Ibid.
- "The public is informed that "John Anthony Beau, Engraver and Chaser, Proposes to teach any Ladies or Gentlemen that incline to learn, the Art of Drawing, in all its Branches. He engraves and does all Sorts of chisel Work, at the most reasonable Rates.
Whoever will favour him with their Commands, are desired to apply to Mr. Lewis Fueter, Gold and Silver Smith, opposite to the Coffee-House."—N. Y. Jour., Dec. 13, 1770. "He was evidently an engraver upon silver-plate; though like many others of his trade, he may have engraved upon copper."—Stauffer, Am. Engravers on Copper and Steel, I, 19.
- 17 "A motion is made that the board "either rail off the Common Council Chamber or shut the Doors, during the sitting of the Common Council, as formerly." By a vote of 8 to 5, the council decides that the doors "for the future he Shut during their Sitting." Dec.
—M. C. C., VII: 252.
- The assembly resolves that "Edmund Burke, Esq. of London, be and hereby is appointed agent for this colony at the court of Great Britain, in the room of Robert Charles, Esq. deceased, and that for his services as such, there be allowed to him . . .
five hundred pounds per annum."—Assemb. Jour. (1770-1), 48.
Prior, in his Memoir of the Life and Character of the Rt. Hon.
Edmund Burke, 142, erroneously states that this appointment was made in November 1771. Sparks says that the correspondence of Burke with the assembly of New York during his agency is not known to exist in the United States, except one letter on the Quebec hill in the archives of the N. Y. Hist. Society, and that such correspondence has been "studiously excluded from all the publications of his writings in England."—Sparks, Gouverneur Morris, I: 51 (note).
- Smith writes: "from all my Experience hitherto, the Govt' is a very weak Man in Matters of Business."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV. On Jan. 16, 1771, he added: "This poor Creature exposes himself daily—How can the Dignity of Government be maintained by so helpless a Mortal, utterly ignorant of the Nature of Business of all Kinds."—Ibid.
- 22 Capt. McDougall issues a statement to the public in which he reviews the facts of his case. He mentions the publication of the broadside (see Dec. 16, 1769), the lieutenant-governour's proclamation (see Dec. 19, 1769), the examination of Parker and his apprentices (see Feb. 7), his own refusal to give bail, and consequent imprisonment (see Feb. 21), and his experiences before the general assembly (see Dec. 13).—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 24 and 31, 1771.
- 28 "The "Long Room in the Exchange" is designated as the place for the annual meeting, on Jan. 14, of the "Marine Society of the City of New-York."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 3, 1771.

1771

The population of the city and county of New York is 21,863, of whom 18,726 are whites. The population of the province is 168,017, of whom 148,124 are whites. Gov. Tryon gives authority to the census by his signature.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 457; Doc. Hist. N. Y. (4to ed.), I: 474. This was the last census of the city and county of New York before the Revolution.

The item from the British Admiralty Records cited in the description of Pl. 50, I: 364, as of this date, has been entered in the Chronology under its exact date, April 17, 1776 (q. v.).

Warrants are ordered to be issued for the payment of £93:14 to John Watts "for Lodging four Indian Chiefs from the 14th of September last to the 24th of October following," and for the payment of £13:15:10<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> to John McComb "for paving at the End of the Coffy house Bridge & for paving Stone & Sand found."
—M. C. C., VII: 254.

Several lessees of "Common Land at Inclinarack" (see July 8, 1763) file a petition with the common council, for a deduction in rent. They claim they have been "much deceived" as to the "Quality" of their lands and "their Capacity for receiving Manure and Cultivation." Furthermore, "with the Rain and Springs about the Land, the Cellars are filled with Water, and the Land rendered almost unfit for profitable Use, for about Six or seven Months in the Year." They ask the board to "mitigate" half their rent from the time of their taking their leases, and to extend their term.—From original petition in metal file No. 6, city clerk's record-room, endorsed "Read & filed March the 1st, 1771;" M. C. C., VII: 267. For the action of the board, see March 12.

"To every admirer of Real Curiosities, The noted William Partridge begs leave to acquaint the ladies, gentlemen, etc. that he has taken a large and commodious room at Mr. Mc Dougal's at the Sign of Lord John Murray in Orange Street, Golden Hill, fitted up in a genteel Manner, where he proposes to divert the Company every Monday—Wednesday and Friday, by exhibiting his Art of Dexterity of Hand after a new Method different from other Performers. Likewise he will make it his chief Study to divert the Company by introducing Mr. Punch and his merry family, with new Alterations every Evening. Likewise his Italian Shade, so much admired in Europe. He has taken proper Care to have the Room well aired and all Accommodations for the Reception of those who chuse to favour him with their Company.

"N. B. Gentlemen and ladies that chuse to have a private Performance, by giving timely Notice will be waited on."—N. Y.

- 1771 Merc., Supplement, Jan. 7, 1771. Duncan McDougall had a tavern with the sign of Lord John Murray on "Fair or Nassau-Street, near the Moravian Meeting," in 1769, when the house and two lots were offered for sale.—Ibid., May 15, 1769. The site of this tavern is fixed still more clearly by an advertisement of Isaac Garner's, in 1771, of the sale of a house and lot on Golden Hill, and in Nassau St., "opposite the sign of Lord John Murray, and the house where the Free Masons formerly kept their lodge."—Ibid., Jan. 14, 1771.
- " An advertisement reads: "To the Publick. Likenesses Painted for a reasonable Price, by A. Delaney, jun. who has been Taught by the celebrated Mr. Benjamin West, in London. N. B. Is to be spoke with opposite Mr. Dirck Schuyler's, at his Father's."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 7, 1771. In Dunlap, Hist. of Arts of Design (Goodspeed ed., 1918), I: 191-92, there is a short account of Delaney and his work.
- 8 Pursuant to a resolution of the assembly, Jan. 27, 1770 (q. v.), the sum of £200 is paid towards the expense of erecting and railing in his Majesty's statue (see Nov. 22, 1770).—Assemb. Jour. (1770-1), 24.
- " Michael Cummings (see Feb. 7, 1770) is paid £100, the reward offered on Dec. 19, 1769 (q. v.), for discovering the author (McDougall) of a "certain seditious libel."—Assemb. Jour. (1770-1), 24. See also Cal. Coun. Min., 481. The libel referred to was a broadside which appeared on Dec. 16, 1769 (q. v.).
- 10 After considering a petition of David Provost for the grant of two water lots "fronting his Houses & Ground on Hunters Key" (see Pl. 42, Vol. I), and a petition of Cornelius Wynkoop for the same lots, the common council decides "that the granting the prayer of either of said Petitions will be very Injurious to the publick, . . . that vacancy being the only Avenue for Wood and Boats Coming to the markets in that part of this City." The board therefore rejects the petitions and resolves that the two water lots be reserved "for the use of the publick, & appropriated to no other use or purpose whatsoever."—M. C. C., VII: 255.
- 17 The assembly resolves "that there be allowed unto his Excellency the Right Honorable John, Earl of Dunmore, for his administering the government of this colony" from Oct. 18, 1770, to Sept. 1, 1771, "at the rate of £2000 per annum."—Assemb. Jour. (1770-1), 35. For Dunmore's action in regard to this, see Jan. 18.
- 18 Gov. Dunmore sends this message to the assembly: "Seeing, by the proceedings of your house yesterday [q. v.], that a sum was voted for my salary as Governor of this province, I must acquaint you, that his Majesty has appointed me a salary out of his treasury [see July 16, 1770], in consequence of which, I am not at liberty to receive it from the Assembly; therefore, I desire, that the article which relates to it, in your resolves, may be omitted."—Assemb. Jour. (1770-1), 41.
- " The board having agreed to lease without public bidding the Nassau Ferry for three years, Samuel Waldron, the present lessee (see March 18, 1766), appears before the common council to treat for it. He is informed that he may have the lease at the rate of £550 per annum, and asks leave to consider the offer.—M. C. C., VII: 256. See Jan. 24.
- 23 Gov. Dunmore, in a message to the assembly, writes: "I have ordered an estimate to be laid before you of the expence that will attend some alterations, which I cannot dispense with being made, for the accomodation of my family, within and about the Fort; and I am induc'd to hope you will take this matter into your consideration, as I think they are only such that you will easily perceive to be requisite."—Assemb. Jour. (1770-1), 47. For the further action of the assembly, see Feb. 16.
- 24 The mayor produces before the common council an indictment found by the last supreme court "against the Oswego Market as a Nusance." The indictment recites that this market-house, 156 feet long and 20 feet 3/4 inches broad, stands "in the middle" of Broadway, whereby this thoroughfare "is greatly obstructed, Narrowed Straitned & spoiled," so that the king's subjects cannot "go return pass ride & labour with their horses Coaches, Carts & Carriages as they ought & were wont to do, without great Danger of their lives To the great Damage & Common Nusance, & to the endangering, the lives of all the liege Subjects of our said Lord the King. . . ." The attorney-general having moved for a writ to the sheriff "to prostrate without Delay the Oswego Market, as a Nusance," and the mayor having sought time to consider whether the city would defend the indictment, it was ordered by the supreme court, on motion of the attorney-general, "that unless the said Indictment is traversed within twenty Days, that a Writt
- to abate the Same Nusance do issue to the Sheriff of the City & County of New York." On motion of the mayor, the common council agrees "to Traverse" the indictment, and appoints a committee "to employ M<sup>r</sup> Duane as Council in Defence."—M. C. C., VII: 259-60. See, further, Jan. 29. See also "Oswego Market (first site)," in Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 959; De Voe, Market Book, 274; and Min. Supreme Ct. (M.S.), 1769-1772, p. 318.
- " Permission having been given on April 6, 1773 (q. v.), by the common council to the inhabitants of the West Ward to build a public market-house "in Some Convenient Place in Thurmans Slip," a petition is presented to the board by Peter Meiser, John Thurman, Jun., and others, stating that they are ready to carry the grant into execution, and asking that a committee be appointed "to direct the Same."—From original petition, endorsed "Read & filed Jan<sup>y</sup> 24th 1771 & deferred for further Consideration," and filed in metal file No. 6, city clerk's record-room. Accompanying this is a copy, attested Jan. 4, 1771, of the Minutes of April 6, 1773, showing the earlier grant. This action of the common council is recorded in M. C. C., VII: 261. On Sept. 12, the petition was denied.—Ibid., VII: 312.
- " Samuel Waldron, the lessee of the Nassau Ferry (see March 18, 1766), accepts the common council's offer of the ferry for an additional three years at the annual rent of £550 (see Jan. 18)—M. C. C., VII: 260-61. Waldron died before the first year of his new lease had elapsed, and Nicholas Bogert succeeded him as lessee (see April 10, 1772).
- " Samuel Francis offers for sale his house called Vauxhall, with the gardens and stables, the property consisting of 363 lots of ground on lease from Trinity Church, of which 61 years still remain. Francis describes the house as containing "4 good rooms on a floor, with a large entrance and other conveniences, an excellent cellar, a very good Kitchen, and a large room 26 by 56 feet adjoining the house, with an arched ceiling, a convenient music gallery, two fire places and two entrances. . . . He is unable, he says, to attend both his houses "in the manner he could wish," which is his reason for offering the house for sale.—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 24, 1771. Francis was proprietor, also, of the Queen's Head Tavern, on Broad and Pearl Sts. He did not succeed in disposing of Vauxhall Gardens until Nov., 1773, when he removed his collection of wax works to the Queen's Head Tavern.—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 22, 1773. Erasmus Williams succeeded him, and renamed the resort Mount Pleasant. See June 6, 1774.
- 29 Mr. Duane having informed the mayor by letter that he "declined being Concerned for this Corporation in defence of the Indictment lately found by the . . . Supreme Court against the Oswego Market as a Nusance" (see Jan. 24), Samuel Jones is offered the office of counsel and accepts.—M. C. C., VII: 262. See July 29.
- " A storm does great damage to some of the wharves of the city. "The Whitehall Ferry Stairs is almost carried away, and the Wharf from thence to the first Corner Eastward, is entirely destroyed, as also part of Coenties's Dock and Cruger's Wharf."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 11, 1771.
- 11 Trinity vestry appoints "a Committee to make a final Settlement of the agreement entered into between a former Committee of this Board and the Lutheran Congregation relative to a piece of Ground adjoining the Parsonage House and the Lutheran Church and that the Seal of this Corporation be affixed to any Deed or Instrument that may be necessary for that purpose." It is further ordered that "Alderman [Elias] Desbrosses [also a warden of the church] have power to employ M<sup>r</sup> Hampton to repair the damage that was done to the Roofe of St Pauls Church by the falling of the covering from the Tower and also to new Cover the same."—Trin. Min. (M.S.).
- 12 A city ordinance is passed forbidding butchers, bucksters, and retailers from occupying the tables and benches in the Fly Market intended for the use of the country people.—M. C. C., VII: 264-65.
- " A payment of £62:16:11 is authorized by the common council for an "addition to the Albany Pier" (see Aug. 13, 1767).—M. C. C., VII: 265. For this pier as it appeared in 1772, see A. Pl. 5, Vol. III. For the construction by the municipality of the first North River pier, see Oct. 7.
- 15 Andrew Maerschalck presents a bill to the common council for £3:16, for surveying "the Breadth of the Road at several places at the Black Horse [tavern on Smith (later William) St.—see Vol. III, p. 976] and upwards;" "the Road on Sand hill [see June 1, 1771 1694] 3 Different times" and "the Road from New York to Kings Bridge."—From the original bill, in file No. 5, in city clerk's record-room. The bill was ordered paid May 1.—M. C. C., VII: 279.

16 An act is passed by the legislature "for making a further Provision of two thousand Pounds for furnishing his Majesty's Troops quartered in this Colony with Necessaries for one Year."—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 178-79.

" Gen. Gage applies to the provincial council for money to pay for quarters of the troops; referred to the assembly.—Cal. Coun. Min., 484. See Feb. 25.

" The legislature passes "An Act to confirm certain ancient Conveyances and directing the Manner of proving Deeds to be recorded."—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 202-4.

" The legislature passes an act "for the better Regulation of the Election of Officers in the City of New York chosen by virtue of the Charters granted to the said City, and other purposes therein mentioned."—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 228-36. See Sept. 14.

" The legislature passes another act "to prevent the taking and destroying of Salmon in Hudson's River."—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 211-12.

" Because, "from the great Decay of Trade, and the insolvency of the late Treasurer, and other Difficulties a Deficiency has arisen in the Public Funds. And . . . also there is a great Want of Specie or other Medium of Trade in this Colony whereby the Inhabitants labour under insupportable Difficulties," the legislature passes an act for emitting £120,000 in bills of credit "to be put out on Loan and to appropriate the Interest arising thereon to the payment of the Debts of this Colony, and to such Public Exigencies as the Circumstances of this Colony may from Time to Time render necessary."—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 149-70. Facsimiles of this paper money, showing denominations from five shillings to five pounds, appear in Man. Com. Coun. (1859), opp. p. 216. Other facsimiles are in ibid. (1856), opp. p. 534.

" Because "some evil minded and Mischievous Person or Persons have of late made a Practice of Breaking glass Windows, Porches, Knockers of Doors, and committing other Trespasses and Enormities and damaging Signs," the legislature passes "An Act for the more effectual Punishment of Persons who shall be guilty of any of the Trespasses therein mentioned in the Cities of New York and Albany, and Township of Schenectady."—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 237-39.

" The treasurer of the colony is ordered to pay: £808: 6: 7 to James de Lancey and Jacob Walton "for Monies advanced by them for the freight of the Statues of his Majesty [see Aug. 16, 1770] and Lord Chatham [see Sept. 7, 1770], and for erecting the same in this City." Orders are also given him to pay £100 to Cadwallader Colden, "for Money paid to Michael Cummins [see Feb. 8] for discovering the Publisher of the Paper signed a Son of Liberty" (see Dec. 16, 1769); and a sum not exceeding £1,275 to John Cruiger, "to be laid out in the necessary Repairs about Fort George in this City, the House therein, and for Removing the Barracks out of the said Fort, and erecting them on some other place."—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 183, 184, 185. The last payment was in response to an appeal made by the governor on Jan. 23 (p. v.). For later repairs, see June 6, 1773.

" By an act passed by the legislature "for the payment of the Salaries of the several Officers of this Colony, and other purposes therein mentioned," the treasurer is ordered to pay Jacob Walton £1,000 "for purchasing Timber and Plank, and for making Gun Carriages, and Platforms for the Guns in the Fort and Battery."—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 183. On March 9, Gov. Dunmore informed the Earl of Hillsborough of this matter.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 264.

25 "Captain M'Dougall, who was charged for a Contempt of the House of General Assembly [see Dec. 13, 1770], remains still in the New-Goal, as the Assembly was not prorogued, but adjourned."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 25, 1771.

" Maerschalck and Bancker, city surveyors, make "A Survey of the Calk or Fresh Water Pond on the Ice by Order and in the presence of a Committee of the Corporation."—From the original in the Bancker Collection, N. Y. Pub. Library (box B-G, folder 74). See also check-list of some of the more important plans in this collection, in Vol. I, p. 358.

" The governor's message, recommending that provision be made for quartering troops (see Feb. 16), is read in the provincial council.—Cal. Coun. Min., 484.

Mar. — Although unrecorded in the Minutes, inhabitants of the city present a petition to the common council that, in the event of the Oswego Market being removed, they may be given leave to erect a new market in the Fields at their own expense. That location they prefer to the North River as more convenient for them and others, "by being more in the Center of the City, the City's Tenants residing at and about Incklam Barrack."—From the original MS., in box No. 6, in city clerk's record-room. See also De Voe, Market Book, 275.

Likewise, a large number of earnest and other inhabitants, in a petition to the common council, dated "1771," state that they are informed the Oswego Market is to be removed, and that a petition has been presented "praying Liberty to erect a Market at the North River;" that they "daily receive money from the Country People for Cartage of their Produce to the said Market," and that "a Market being fixed at the North River will entirely deprive them of that Benefit." They claim that a market at the North River will be a detriment "to far the greatest part of the City;" and ask that the common council "will be pleased to grant Liberty to Erect a public Market at a proper place in the Fields pursuant to the prayer of a former Petition."—From original petition in metal file No. 6, city clerk's record-room.

Another petition, in five parts (undated), is circulated and signed by hundreds of the inhabitants of the city, asking "that if the Oswego Market is To Be Removed that there may Be a Market in the Fields Instead Thereof."—From the original papers (MS.), in File 4, city clerk's record-room. For the result of these petitions, see Aug. 19.

In a letter to Hillsborough, Gov. Dunmore says: "I transmit to Your Lordship the proposal of a number of German People settled in this Province, for the forming themselves into a company, to serve in conjunction with the Militia of the Colony, in case of an emergency; I presume Your lordship will think it right to give encouragement to their zeal and spirit; the emulation, which is observed to actuate all bodies of men, serving with others, never fails to produce good effects, & there cannot be the same objection made, which is common to Auxiliaries, these being established to the Country and their interest concerned in its safety."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 265-66. In May 4, Hillsborough replied to this: "The spirited proposal of the Body of German Protestants in the City of New York . . . could not fail of being pleasing to the King, and although there is not now any occasion for their service in the Military Line, you will signify to them his Majesty's approbation of the Zeal, and the satisfaction it gave his Majesty to receive from so respectable a Body such declaration of sincere affection to his Royal Person and Government, and earnest desire to assist in the defence of his Majesty's possessions."—Ibid., VIII: 269.

12 Several leasees "of certain Common Lands of this Corporation in Incklawbergh" (see Jan. 6) are allowed a deduction of one-half their rent "from the Date of their respective Leases." This deduction, furthermore, is to continue "until the Expiration of their said Leases, provided they pay into the hands of the Chamberlain the Balance of such Arrears immediately, & discharge for the future all such Taxes & impositions, as the said Premises shall from time to time be chargeable with."—M. C. C., VII: 270.

18 The anniversary of the repeal of the Stamp Act is celebrated "at the House of Mr. De La Montague," where a "great Number of the principal Inhabitants of this City, Friends to Liberty and Trade, dined on an elegant Entertainment which was there prepared." Thirty toasts were drunk.—N. Y. Merc., March 25, 1771. This tavern was at the present 253-54 Broadway.

On March 25, poor debtors in prison thanked the "friendly brothers of St. Patrick" for their contribution sent to Mr. Coxso this day "to be laid out on necessities for their relief." They also thanked the "Sons of Liberty" who assembled at De La Montagne's for provisions and a "barrel of strong beer," and the "Sons of Liberty" who met at Hamden Hall and sent provisions.—Ibid., March 25, 1771.

20 The committee appointed to investigate the encroachments made upon corporation lands by some of the inhabitants of Harlem make their report. They had sent letters to the offenders arranging for a conference, at which most of them had made no claim to the lands but offered to lease them. One man had declared "that he was willing to agree with the Corporation as soon as the Line should be agreed upon & run between the Township of Harlem & the Corporation." (For an earlier discussion of this

- 1771 subject, see July 12, 1750.) As a result of this, the committee had written a letter to "the Trustees and Freeholders of the Town of Harlem relative to the Settlement of the Boundaries between their Town and the Corporation of this City," and in answer the town of Harlem had made certain proposals which, in the opinion of the committee, ought to be adopted. The board thereupon orders "that the Committee Carry into Execution the several Matters by them recommended . . . as soon as possible, & Report to this Board what progress they shall make therein, with all Convenient Speed."—M. C. C., VII: 272-75. For the next report, see Jan. 9, 1772.
- Apr. The Chamber of Commerce votes "to request the favour of Mr. Colden to sit for his Picture to be put up in the Chamber as a Memorial of their gratitude." The lieutenant-gouverneur had secured the charter for the institution (see April 5, 1768).—Col. Recs. N. Y. Chamber of Commerce, 126. Payment for the picture was made on Nov. 3, 1772 (q.v.).
- 15 The provincial council is notified that additional quarters for the troops are needed.—Cal. Coun. Min., 485. See Feb. 16 and 25.
- 17 The council appoints Montagne inspector of potash, although John Abeel has been strongly recommended by the governor for the position. Smith writes of this: "How weak the Gov[er]n—This Candidate is the Inkeeper of the House formerly Barden's in the Fields where the De Lancey Party meet—a Low Fellow, ignorant and a Fool Barden was the House where all the Riotous Liberty Boys met in 1765 & 66—There they celebrated the Repeal of the Stamp Act last March, Oliver De Lancey & Apthorp pres—Allcock is to be Montagne's Assistant in the writing Part—This Man was one of the Kings of the Mob in 1765 & 66."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.
- Capt. Stephen Kemble, of the British army, sends from New York to John Singleton Copley, in Boston, a list of those in this city who have subscribed to have their portraits painted by that artist. The list includes "Mrs Gage, Mr. Ogilvie [probably the Rev. John Ogilvie], Miss Johnson, Captain Gabriel Maturin, [Jonathan?] Mallet, Mrs. [Roger?] Morris, Captain ad Mrs. [John] Montross, Mr Barrow, Mr [Miles] Sherbrooke, Mrs. [James] McEvers, Mrs [Abraham] Mortier, M. Hust and Lady, Mr [John Taber] Kemp."—From "Letters and Papers of John Singleton Copley and Henry Pelham 1739-1776," in Mass. Hist. Soc. Collections (1914), LXXI: 114, 179. For Copley's arrival in New York, see June 16.
- 22 "Such great Quantities of Pigeons were brought to Market last Week, that no less than 60,000 were sold off in one Day."—N. Y. Merc., April 22, 1771.
- "Abraham Skillman advertises "The new Flying Machine." His card reads: "This is to inform the Public, That Abraham Skillman, hath erected a Flying Machine, or Stage Waggon, to go once a Week, and return again, from the City of New-York to the City of Philadelphia; to set out from Powles Hook Ferry, every Tuesday Morning, beginning the 30th Instant."—N. Y. Merc., April 22, 1771.
- 23 The "Anniversary of St. George" is celebrated at Bolton's tavern by about 120 prominent residents of the city, including Gov. Dunmore and Gen. Gage.—N. Y. Merc., April 29, 1771.
- 24 Jonathan Lawrence and others, owners of estates near the Oswego Market, in a petition to the common council, refer to "the late Indictment of the Graad Jury" (see Jan. 24) against this market; and, believing that the market is to be removed, they offer to contribute £500 toward purchasing "One third of Conros Lott," and conveying the whole of the ground to the corporation, "with covenants that it shall for ever remain a place for a publick market," provided the corporation will contribute the balance of £200 on the purchase price.—From original petition in metal file No. 6, city clerk's record-room. The petition is endorsed "Read & filed April 24th 1771 and Referred for further Consideration." It is recorded in M. C. C., VII: 278. See also De Voe, Market Book, 275.
- 29 The consistency of the Dutch Church appoints a committee "to see what is necessary to be done to the Tower, the roof and other parts of the Old Church. They are to take with them a couple of carpenters, and to bring in a plan of the Tower, and an exact estimate of the cost, as also of the other repairs."—Eccles., VI: 4200. This subject was considered in 1766, but apparently no work was done at that time. The committee reported on May 6 (q.v.).
- A motion is made "that as applications have been made to this Corporation for the Grants of Water Lots fronting the Great Dock, this Board will previous thereto fix the Course of the Street, to be Extended from the Exchange into the East River upon a Straight line." After a debate on the question, the motion is carried.—M. C. C., VII: 280.
- In order that the Bowling Green, on which the King's statue has been erected (see Aug. 16, 1770), may not become "a Recepticle of all the filth & dirt of the Neighbourhood," the common council contracts with Richard Searpe, Peter T. Curtenius, Gilbert Forbes and Andrew Lyall "to fence in the same with Iron Rails & a stone foundation . . . for the consideration of £300."—M. C. C., VII: 281. Payments for the same, totalling £343, were ordered on June 20, 1771, and Jan. 31, 1772 (ibid., VII: 299, 346), the final part payment on the latter date being "for making an Iron Fence [fence] Round the Bowling [Green], Sundry Lamps Irons & fixing them &c." A temporary wooden fence had been erected earlier (see Nov. 22, 1770). Among N. Y. MSS.: (1761-1800) in N. Y. Hist. Soc. is a "Plan of the Ground as laid out to be railed round the King's Statue. Scale 30 feet per Inch." It is endorsed "King's Statue." See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 968. For further improvements in the neighbourhood, see Aug. 22.
- "A committee is appointed "for preparing the draft of a plan for docking out the water Lots between Countesses Key [Fly Market Slip] and Beekmans Slip."—M. C. C., VII: 280.
- 6 Francis Maerschalk and Henry Bogart, inspectors of flour, notify farmers and millers that, as there are frequent complaints of New York flour "being of a dark and brown colour, occasioned chiefly by the wheat not being well cleaned," hereafter all flour not made of "good clean wheat, and properly ground" will be condemned.—N. Y. Merc., May 6, 1771.
- "The committee of the consistency of the Dutch Church appointed April 29 (q.v.) submits "a plan of a New Tower" and of repairs for the "Old Church" (on Garden St.). These will cost at least £900; but there is "no money in the Treasury," and the consistency is not in a position to borrow any. It is therefore resolved "That if the congregation will supply sufficient funds," the consistency is disposed to execute the plans. Domine Ritzen is requested to draw up the heading of a subscription paper. This was prepared and approved on May 19.—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4200-1. Regarding the sun subscribed, see June 9.
- "Cornelius Vandenberg notifies the public that he "continues keeping a publick house, for the entertainment of all gentlemen travellers," at "the sign of the Bull's Head, in the Bowry-Lane." He also offers pasture for horses, "at 1s. per night."—N. Y. Merc., May 6, 1771. For a history of the Bull's Head Tavern, see Dec. 15, 1755.
- 13 "Resolved and Ordered that for the future all the Water Lotts behind Trinity Church be leased for Sixty three years at the rent of three pounds 3/4 Lott Ann Num for the first Twenty one years four pounds for the next Twenty one years and five pounds for the last Twenty one years with the usual Covenants."—Trin. Min. (MS.)
- "The House formerly kept by Mr. Bardin, but now occupied by Mr. George Burns, near the Fort," is advertised to be let. "Tis very convenient for a Tavern."—N. Y. Merc., May 13, 1771. Burns was evidently here until June 24, after which his advertisement disappears from the paper. He had kept tavern in New York for over twenty years, but from this time on his name does not appear. His predilection for the "King's Arms" sign, which he carried from tavern to tavern, indicates loyalist tendencies, which may account for his unpopularity at this time.
- 16 A plan or "draft" of Turtle Bay (on the East River shore—see Pl. 59, Vol. I), and of the neighbouring roads and landmarks, bearing this date, is made by Francis Maerschalk. It has the following inscription: "At the request of the Recorder Thomas Jones Esq<sup>r</sup> Chairman, & the other Gentlemen of the Committee, I have Surveyed the Farm commonly called Turtle Bay, granted by William Keist [Kieft] 23<sup>d</sup> of April 1646 unto George Holmes & Thomas Hall, and find the same to be agreeable to the above Draft."—From the original plan, in metal file labelled "Filed Papers, 1700-1800," city clerk's record room. The map is reproduced in facsimile in Man. Com. Coun. (1860), opp. p. 570.
- A letter from Oxford says: "I must not forget to tell you, that the Colony of New-York is in great Esteem in England, at least with all wise and good Men, for her prudent and loyal Conduct."—N. Y. Merc., May 20, 1771.

- 1771 Trinity vestry appoints a committee "to regulate the Street
 May and secure the Bank before Samuel Francis's House [Vauxhall—27 see Jan. 24] in such manner as They shall think proper."—Trin.
Min. (MS.). For the petition of Francis, see April 10, 1772.
- 29 A charter is granted to the Society of the Hospital in the City of New York (see March 9, 1770)—Cal. Coun. Min., 554; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 954. For the king's approval see June 13.
- June A fire breaks out in the house of Mrs. Wright, "the ingenious 3 Artist in Wax-Work, and Proprietor of the Figures so nearly resembling the Life, which have for some Time past been exhibited in this City to general Satisfaction." With the help of the neighbours and the fire-engines, the flames are extinguished, "with little damage to the House; but tho' most of the Wax-Work was destroyed . . . yet she was so fortunate as to save the curious Pieces of the Reverend Mr. Whitefield, the Pennsylvania Farmer, and some others which she still continues to exhibit."—N. Y. Merc., June 10, 1771. See Aug. 5.
- 6 The common council authorizes the payment of £22:2:10 to "Messrs Sharpe Curtenius & Company [see Aug. 20, 1767] . . .
 in full of their acc<sup>t</sup> for two large Stoves & bars for the Bridewell & and one other for the Corporations house [the Hospital] that formerly belonged to John Harris."—M. C. C., VII: 282. See
 Nov. 22, 1770.
- " The committee appointed to regulate the streets in Montgomerie Ward reports that Queen Street has been regulated.—M. C. C., VII: 283. For earlier regulations of this street and other streets in the same ward, see July 9, 1755. At the same meeting the committee appointed to regulate the streets in the West Ward (see ibid., VI: 381) makes a report on the regulation of Warren St.—
ibid., VII: 283.
- " The clerk produces "a Bond from this Corporation under their seal to the Marine Society of the City of New York . . . in the penalty of £1000, with Condition to pay on the 7th of May next the Sum of £500 with Interest at 5 p<sup>ct</sup> Cf from the 7th of May last."
 The Mayor is ordered to sign it. This bond discharges "a Bond from this Corporation to William Peartree Smith." Six other bonds for varying amounts are ordered signed at the same time.—
M. C. C., VIII: 284-85.
- 9 Dominic De Ronde and Mr. Stockholm report to the consistory of the Dutch Church "concerning their going around with a subscription list for the Tower and repairs of the Old Church" (see May 6). The result does not exceed £100. "The Consistory was, therefore, compelled to suspend the work for this year, doing only what was indispensable."—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4201.
- 10 "The House commonly called and known by the Name of The Merchant's Coffee-House," with an adjoining small tenement, is advertised for private sale. It is described as "Situated at the lower End of Wall-street, and now occupied by Mrs. Mary Ferrara, Widow."—N. Y. Merc., June 10, 1771. For a history of this tavern, see June 19, 1728. See also description of Pl. 69, I: 453.
- 11 A significant incident occurs which indicates the aggressiveness of the British soldiery and the spirit of the times. It is reported in the press by two of the principal participants as follows:
 "On Tuesday the 11th Instant, we the Subscribers, Jacob Mills and Jeremiah Mulford, of Brookhaven, on Long-Island, having taken Lodgings at the House of Mr. William Milner near the Exchange, in New-York, about 9 o'clock in the Evening we went from his Door into the Piazzas of the Exchange, where three Soldiers who entered immediately after us, and the Centry who stood there before, without the least Provocation on our Part, furiously attack'd us with drawn Bayonets, both by thrusting and striking, whereby we were both wounded in many Places and one of us dangerously in the Head, Face, Hands and Body, and then forcibly carried us away to the Guard House, and there confined us. . . .
 They accused us of throwing Stones at the Centry in the Exchange.
 . . . We declared and offer'd to prove our Innocence, of the Charge. . . . But all in vain, we were hurried to the Guard House, and after several Hours Confinement, were told that if we would pay 45s. they would release us; we expostulated on the Injustice of the Demand, but one of us being faint thro' loss of Blood, and being in Danger of bleeding to Death, in Order to get our Wounds dressed, and out of such Hands, we consented to deliver the Money, which when they had received they suffer'd us to depart,
 "Next Day, being advised, that the shortest Means of Redress, would probably be by Trial before a Court Martial, we applied accordingly to Advice, and on Thursday the 13th a Court Martial being called, the 4 Soldiers were brought before them for Trial, We had several Witnesses to prove that we were not the Persons who threw Stones at the Centry, that we had but just left the House of Mr. Milner, and had not meddled or concerned ourselves with them at the Time they attack'd us. On the other Hand, 3 or 4 Soldiers, in Behalf of the Prisoners, appeared as Witnesses, who declared that we had thrown Stones at the Centry, and that the Money we paid for our Release was not extorted from us, but voluntarily offer'd and press'd upon the Soldiers in Order to induce them to release us, that the Affair might drop without further Inquiry. . . .
 "Upon the whole, we could obtain no Manner of Redress, and have since understood that the Soldiers were cleared. We have also been advised, that having first chosen this Kind of Trial, we can now obtain no Satisfaction in any other Court, either for the Loss of Money, or Injury to our Persons." The 45 shillings were later returned to Mills and Mulford.—N. Y. Jour., June 20, 1771.
- 13 The king incorporates certain persons under the title of "The Society of the Hospital in the City of New York in America" (see May 29)—From Papers relating to New York Hospital, among the Jay Papers, in N. Y. Hist. Soc. The common council showed its approval of this society on Sept. 12 (q. v.). The name of the corporation was changed by legislative act on March 9, 1810 (q. v.).
- " A committee of the common council reports on the surveying and regulation of Crown (Liberty) St.—M. C. C., VII: 288. Its regulation was ordered, July 2, 1771.—Ibid., VII: 291-92, 315.
 See March 11, 1793; April 21, 1794; and Landmark Map Ref.
 Key, III: 997. For a protest against the committee's report, see
 July 15.
- " The ordinance regulating public slaughter-houses, passed July 24, 1766 (q. v.), is altered and amended. It is now provided that any person dwelling in certain parts of the Out Ward (carefully defined in the law) may slaughter on his own property, "without being subject or liable to the payment of any sum or sums of money . . . to Mr Nicholas Bayard."—M. C. C., VII: 287-88.
- " Robert R. Livingston and others apply to the common council for permission "to lay a Block into the East River 20 feet in front of their several Wharfs, lying between the Whitehall Slip and the old Crane of the late Col<sup>o</sup> Moore in order to secure their said Wharfs, against North Easterly storms." Such permission is granted.—M. C. C., VII: 289.
- 16 Copley writes from New York to Henry Pelham: "We are now fixed in a very commodious House in this City. We arrived here on Thursday night. . . . Our Journey was not attended by the least unpleasant surcumstance, but was delightful beyond all expectation. Our Horses held out wonderfully well and brought us with great spirit forty Miles the last Day of our Journey. . . .
 I believe you will think I have done pretty well to be able to begin Mrs. Gages portrait [see April 17, 1771] tomorrow, which I propose to do. . . . The City has more Grand Buildings than Boston, the streets much Cleaner and some much broader, but it is not Boston in my opinion yet. I have seen the Statues of the King and Mr. Pitt, and I think them hoath good Statues. I find it so expensive keeping horses here that I think to send the Mare back. . . .
 I want my Crayons much and Layman and Drawings. . . .
 Cloath there is enough here."—Letters & Papers of John Singleton Copley and Henry Pelham, 1739-1776, 116-17; Dunlap, Hist. of Arts of Design, I: 121 (footnote). See June 20.
- 17 "For the Safety of Vessels coming into and going to Sea from the Port of New-York—The Master and Wardens of the said Port, did last Week place a large Can Buoy on the South West Spit of the East Bank, in eighteen Feet Water at low Water, bearing from the Light House on Sandy-Hook—N. W. and by W. half W. and from the Bluff of Staten Island, making the Narrows S. half East. Vessels going down must keep in 5 Fathom Water, till they open the Buoy with the Point of Sandy-Hook, which will clear them of the Spit."—N. Y. Merc., June 17, 1771. During the following winter, the buoy was carried away by the ice (see Feb. 17, 1772).
- 20 In a letter to Henry Pelham, Copley says: "I have begun three portraits already, and shall as soon as time permits fill my Room which is a very large one. We have experienced great civility from several people, as well from those to whom we were recommend[ed] as others into whose knowledge we have fallen here."—
Letters & Papers of John Singleton Copley and Henry Pelham, 1739-1776, 120. See July 14.

1771 William Tryon, the new governor, arrives in New York.— N. Y. Merc., July 15, 1771. Smith writes, under this date, that 8 "L<sup>d</sup> Dunmore was absent in Jersey on a View of Lands sold by L<sup>d</sup> Stirling to Drummond—Oliver De Lancey was with him. They took a Row Boat at Powlius Hook & went down to the Narrows, and about Noon came up with Tryon & his Wife in an Oyster Pettauger—No Gentlemen attended their Landing—One Carrier offered three Cheers which ½ Doz People joined in—a salute was fired at the Battery & about a Doz People joined in the Huzza
 . . . My L<sup>d</sup> conducted them to the Fort where they saw No Body (tho' many came) except my Brother John, who found L<sup>d</sup> Dunmore walking the Room & reading a Newspaper & Tryon another, and M<sup>rs</sup> Tryon neglected in a Couch or Sofa. In the Evening we had a Summons to Council for to Morrow [q.v.], & thus find that the Earl is disappointed in his hope that Gov<sup>r</sup> Tryon would defer the Publ<sup>d</sup> of his Com<sup>ns</sup> till the Packet arrived, by which he hopes to hear of Tryon's appointment to Virginia [it was Dunmore himself who was appointed to Virginia—see Aug. 29], tho' his Letters pressing such a Change, arrived a Month before the last Packet sailed from England."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV. In a letter to Hillsborough, Tryon states that he arrived on July 7, and received his commission the next morning.—N. Y. Col.
 Docs., VIII: 278. All other sources give July 8. Cf. Dunmore's letter to Hillsborough.—Ibid.; also Assemb. Jour. (1772), 3; Cal.
Coun. Min., 485.

9 The administration of the government is transferred to Gov.
 Tryon in the usual manner. Gov. Martin of North Carolina is in town at the time.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 278-79; Cal. Coun.
Min., 485. Smith thus describes the events of the day: "Pursuant to a Summons of last Night [q.v.] we met this Morning in Council for the Publication of M<sup>r</sup> Tryon's Com<sup>ns</sup>—L<sup>d</sup> Dunmore was amongst us & kept the chair till all the Oaths were taken by the New Gov<sup>r</sup> except the Chacellor's—He then gave up the Seal and retired—Upon Rec<sup>d</sup> of it M<sup>r</sup> Tryon said to him I wish your L<sup>ds</sup> much Health and Prosperity in your new Governm<sup>t</sup> To which the other . . . only answered with a Bow, & turning to the Council invited them all to dine with him. . . . We then went & republished the Com<sup>ns</sup> at the City Hall—The Crowd was not great nor was there any Signal of Joy—Not a Huzza till after the Com<sup>ns</sup> was read & tho' the Mayor ordered it, yet the Town was very partially illuminated—My Lord took too Cheerful a Glass & forced it upon his Company—I escaped by a Cold for which he excused me —but the Company did not part without Blows—His L<sup>ds</sup> struck Aphorpe & Col<sup>o</sup> Fanning the New Gov<sup>r</sup>s Sec<sup>ys</sup>—called Tryon a Coward who had never seen Flanders, and ran about in the Night assaulting one & another . . . he was heard to say "Damn Virginia—Did I ever seek it?—Why is it forced upon me? I ask'd for New York—New York I love, & they have robb'd me of it without my Consent"—This was a Drunken Soliloquy, but shews exactly the true State of L<sup>d</sup> Dunmore's Mind at that Moment."— Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV. On the same day the common council convenes, not at the city hall according to regular custom, but "at the Dwelling House of Samuel Frances in the Dock Ward."—M. C. G., VII: 292. It is safe to assume that the board was combining business with pleasure. Almost the entire business of the meeting related to the new governor—the reception to him, the freedom, and the address. Also there appears, in the records of Aug. 22 (M. C. G., VII: 305), the authorization of the payment of £48:16:4 to Samuel Francis "for an Entertainment by him provided by order of this Board for his Excellency Gov<sup>r</sup> Tryon."

14 Copley, writing to Henry Pelham, says: "There is so many that are impatient to sit I am never at a loss to fill up all my time.
 My large Chamber is about 9 feet high and 20 feet long and near as broad, with a good room adjoining it, the light [is] near north. I have begun 4-½ lengths 6-½ peaces i Kicat . . . We have not found the wether uncomfortably hot; a great deal of rain has injured the hay. We have been at Long Island. It is pleasant tho the soil [is] not very good naturally the ferry is about a mile over.
 Most of the provisions came that way. . . . We have been at Bloumingsdale twice at the widow McEvers's (about six miles out of this City), and this week are to go up to Mr. Aphorpe's that is about a mile farther. I believe you will think we take a good share of pleasure, but I find I can do full as much Business as in Boston, having no interruptions and very Long forenoons, and punctually attended."—Letters & Papers of John Singleton Copley
and Henry Pelham, 1739-1776, 127-28. See Aug. 3.

Certain residents in Crown St. complain to the common council that the plan, adopted on June 13 (p. 26.), for the regulation of that street, will be "Extremely burdensome to many of the said freeholders." They request the common council to adopt a former plan which will be "far less expensive, but the board decides that, as the plan of June 13 "appears to be of more public Utility," the "prayer of the said Petition ought not to be granted."—M. C. G., VII: 293-94. The plan adopted seems to have been modified somewhat (see Sept. 14). For earlier action in regard to the regulation of Crown St., see June 8 and July 12, 1769. See also Aug. 22, 1771.

" The consistency of the Dutch Church presents an address of welcome to William Tryon, the new governor.—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4203.

Gov. Tryon receives from the common council an "Engrossed Address" and the freedom of the city (see July 8). In the address he is complimented highly on his administration of the colony he "lately presided over" (N. Carolina) on his "hazardous though necessary service, in Supporting the Laws of the Country, and the Quelling a daring Insurrection." "Favourable Countenance and Protection of this Corporation in the full Enjoyment of all its Franchises and Privileges" is entreated.

The governor replies that the testimony "from the Mayor Aldermen and Commonalty of this antient Corporation" in regard to the "necessity of that Service" which he rendered recently
 "affords as much inward satisfaction to my mind, as it does me publick honor." The corporation may be confident, he says, "of every possible Countenance & Protection from me, in all its franchises & privileges . . . their studious endeavours to promote the Success of my Administration will meet with all suitable returns of Respect & Gratitude."—M. C. G., VII: 294-97. The manuscript of the governor's reply is in file No. 4, city clerk's record-room.

22 James de Lancey and other residents of the Out Ward petition the common council "to grant for their use the fee simple . . . of a certain Tract of unimproved Lands lying in the out ward of this City" (see June 26, 1772, for a description of the tract), which is "very properly situated to Erect a Church & School on, which will relieve them from the Inconveniences they now labour under."
 They therefore ask that it may be granted to "the Rector and the Inhabitants of the City of New York in Commuon of the Church of England as by Law Established," to be used for a church, a school, and a burying-ground. It is ordered that the committee for the Out Ward have a plaad made of the ground by one of the city surveyors, and that the subject be considered later by the common council.—M. C. G., VII: 298-99. See Dec. 12.

" Michael Bechades, "From Paris," informs the public that he "Teaches antient and modern Languages in the most elegant and expeditious Manner, and has the choicest Set of French Books of every Kind, and a particular Method by which a Person may in three Months speak it with Ease. . . . He is to be spoke with at his Academy at the Widow Hayes's, facing the Hon. John Watts, Esq; in Dock-street."—N. Y. Merc., July 22, 1771. For a list of some of the French books probably used by Bechades, see Oct.
 28.

24 Lord Dunmore leaves for Albany. On passing the fort, he is "saluted with 15 Guns."—N. Y. Merc., July 29, 1771. He returned on Aug. 29 (p. 92).

29 The corporation's counsel, Samuel Jones (see Jan. 29), delivers an opinion that "it would be most advisable for the Corporation to Remove the Oswego Market, as the Indictment found against it [see Jan. 24] Cannot be defended." However, the board decides "not to take down or remove the same, but to let the Court proceed therein" as it shall judge proper.—M. C. G., VII: 300.
 Though there is no record of it in these Minutes, the market must have been removed between this time and Jan. 7, 1772, for on the latter date there is a reference to "the Inhabitants who reside near where the Oswego Market stood." See Aug. 3, 1771, Addenda.
 De Voc. in The Market Book, I: 276, says that, upon its removal, the "Bear Market" (see Aug. 19) was created.

In a letter to Henry Pelham, Copley says: "I have been Aug. 3 Painting to the amount of 3 hundred pounds Sterg, shall take four more and than Stop. We experience such a Disposition in a great many People to render us happy as we did not expect. . . ."—
Letters & Papers of John Singleton Copley and Henry Pelham, 1739-1776, 136. See Nov. 6.

- 1771 Aug. 5 Mrs. Wright has been "so assiduous in repairing the Damage done to the Wax Work by the late Fire in her House [see June 3] that the Defect is not only supplied by new Pieces . . . but they are executed with superior Skill and Judgement . . . The Murder of Abel by Cain, and the Treachery of Delilah to Samson, are two principal Subjects of their last performance."—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 5, 1771. On Jan. 30, 1772, Mrs. Wright was ready to sail for England.—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 30, 1772. An account of her life and work is in Dunlap, Hist. of Arts of Design, I: 150-56.
- 6 In a private letter to Mayor Hicks, W. M. McAdam states that the proprietors of Dey's Dock are ready to pay when required £150 toward building a market there, believing it will increase the value of their lots. The location is between Vesey and Division Sts.—From the original letter in file No. 4, city clerk's record-room. This letter is not recorded in the Minutes, but is doubtless one of the petitions considered by the board at the next meeting.—See Aug. 19. See also March 15, 1763, when the Dey St. locality was first presented for consideration.
- " Another petition of this date is one in which several butchers who "have served the Oswego Market" protest to the common council against the proposal to erect a market at the North River instead of the Oswego Market (on Broadway), which "is now almost immediately to be removed." They recommend the Fields as more convenient for the public, "being nearer to the growing part of the City, and more accessible to the Farmers, Gardiner's and others who come from the Bowery."—From the original MS., in file No. 5, city clerk's record-room. See, further, Aug. 19.
- " The common council orders the payment of £27:6 "for Candles to illuminate the City Hall."—M. C. C., VII: 300. The occasion was the welcome to Gov. Tryon.—Ibid., VII: 292. See July 9.
- 7 Trinity vestry passes the following resolution: "Whereas the Oswego Market now Standing in the Broad way is ordered to be removed and it is proposed that a New one be erected on part of the Lands upon Hudsons river belonging to this Corporation for which purpose a Subscription paper has been exhibited as well by a Number of the Church Tennants as others to the Northward of division Street who have engaged to raise about Three hundred pounds towards erecting the said Market—Whereupon it is resolved and agreed that this Corporation also contribute the sum of Two hundred pounds towards building the said Market and will release their Right and Claim to the Ground on which the same is proposed to be built for the use of a Market for ever upon Condition that the Mayor Aldermen and Commonalty of this City will grant and confirm to them the Water Lots agreeable to the prayer of their petition now before the said Mayor Aldermen & Commonalty for that purpose."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- 13 A remonstrance to the common council, bearing this date, and signed by 71 inhabitants of the city, states that they will be great sufferers by the removal of the Oswego Market; that "the Inhabitants in Crown Street will be put to a very considerable expense by putting new foundations under their houses occasioned by the regulation of said street;" that they consider the "most convenient place along the North River" to build the new market "would be from Messier's slip unto Commissary Lakes." The owners of the lands fronting the street have offered "the ground fronting the river to erect a Market on (exclusive of the street) & to have it built by Voluntary subscriptions." A grant "for erecting a Market at or near Thurmans slip was given to the former Petitioners, . . . In consequence of which they conceive themselves Intitled to the preference of having the grant here prayed for."—From original petition in metal file No. 6, city clerk's record-room. See, further, Aug. 19.
- 19 The common council considers "the Subject matter of the several Petitions preferred by sundry Inhabitants of this City relative to the erecting of a Market at the respective places therein mentioned, namely, Messier's Dock, Dies Slip and the Commons; & . . . on some of the Lots belonging to this Corporation, lying to the Northward of Dies Dock." See March; Aug. 6 and 13. The vote of the board is against the Commons or Fields, and in favour of "Dies Slip" rather than "Messier's Dock," on the North River; but, on the question "whether the Market should be placed at Dies Slip?" the vote is almost unanimous against it. The next ballot is in favour of "the Corporation's Lots to the Northward of Dies dock," as against "Messier's Dock," and it is ordered that, "if a Market be Erected by the Neighbourhood at the place now agreed upon, that the same do not exceed two hundred & ten feet in Length & thirty feet in breath [see Aug. 22]; that a stone foundation be laid under the whole, and that the building of the same be under the entire Direction of this Corporation."—M. C. C., VII: 302-4. The site fixed upon was the west side of the present Greenwich St. between Fulton and Vesey Sts.—De Vos, The Market Book, 307. The market was first known as "Oswego Market" (a part of the materials of the old Oswego Market—see July 29—having been employed in its erection), later as the "Corporation Market at the North River," and finally as the "Bear Market." For origin of the name, see Ibid., 308-11. See also Pl. 64, Vol. I; and Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 958, 959. For the building of this market, see Aug. 22, 29, 31; Oct. 28.
- 22 A plan for the new market to be erected "on the Corporation's Lots to the Northward of Dies Dock" (see Aug. 19), to be 166 by 28 ft., is submitted to the common council and approved. A committee is appointed "to superintend the Building of the same, & see that it be Completed by the 1st of November next."—M. C. C., VII: 306. See, further, Aug. 31.
- " Inhabitants of the Dock Ward petition the common council to appoint a committee to complete an addition to "Coentjes Market . . . on a range with the Old Market," for which a certain sum has been subscribed. They also ask that the board allow the country folk to sell meal there, "to which no Certain place is Affixed since the Removal of the Meal Market." The petition calls attention to the fact that the board gave leave for such addition at the time John Lawrence Esq<sup>r</sup> was Alderman, & Dirck Brinckerhoff, Assisanti," but that nothing was done at that time.—From the original MS., in box No. 6, city clerk's record-room. The petition is granted, "so far as relates to the Enlargement of the said Market, provided the Petitioners be at the Expence thereof."—M. C. C., VII: 305. See also Nov. 16, 1720; March 15, 1763; April 16 and May 7, 1772; July 1, 1780; Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 958; De Vos, Market Book, 116.
- " The common council appoints a committee "to Cause the Pavement fronting the Fort to be taken up, & the ground there to be repaved."—M. C. C., VII: 306. Manifestly, this is a further effort to improve the vicinity of Bowling Green (see May 3). When, on Oct. 14, the committee was increased from three to five, its purpose was noted to be "for Regulating and Causing to be paved the Streets, near the fort Bowling Green & Battery." The committee made report of their progress on Oct. 24 (q. v.).—Ibid., VII: 322-24. Payment for the work was ordered on three subsequent occasions.—Ibid., VII: 323, 328, 345. For a further improvement, see April 10, 1772.
- " The inhabitants of Crown St. (see July 15) are given "Liberty to fill up the Street belonging thereto."—M. C. C., VII: 306. See Sept. 14.
- 28 Lieut.-Gov. Colden is sworn in.—Cal. Coun. Min., 486.
- 29 Lord Dunmore arrives in New York from Albany (see July 24); "and we hear sets out for his Government of Virginia in a few Days by land."—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 2, 1771. See also N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 289.
- " John Stagg, a bricklayer, is appointed by the corporation to receive the money subscribed for the building of the new market (see Aug. 19).—M. C. C., VII: 308.
- 30 "Ordered that in all the Church Leases that are granted for the future a Covenant be added that the Lessees shall be obliged to pave the Street before their respective Lots when ever it shall be required of them by the City Corporation."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- 31 The first stone of the new market (see Aug. 19 and 22), which is known at first, as the old one was, as the Oswego Market, and which is "now erecting on the Corporation Ground at the North River," is laid by the mayor, and the second stone by the recorder. The market is to be finished "with all Expedition."—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 2, 1771.
- Sept. 2 The "Macaroni Purse" of £100 is to be run for on this day in a horse-race in the "New Market Races . . . over this course." Any member of the "Macaroni Club" may start a horse for the purse.—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 26, 1771.
- 4 The committee appointed to superintend the building of the new market (see Aug. 22) is ordered "to Cause the water Lots there to be docked [cut] at the Expence of this Corporation."—M. C. C., VII: 309.
- " The common council orders the payment of £319, the sum "this Board agreed to allow the Marshall & Constables for watching this City on New Years Eve last."—M. C. C., VII: 309.

1771 Royal orders are published by proclamation confirming the Sept. New York act enabling aliens to hold real estate (see May 13, 5 1769).—Cal. Coun. Min., 557.

7 The managers of the New York air furnace answer inquiries regarding the price of casting shot for Fort George.—Cal. Hist.
MSs., Eng., 796.

12 "The Institution of a publick Infirmary or Hospital [see June 13] within this City, being not only a laudable but usefull Undertaking, having for its object the Relief of the indigent & diseased and founded upon the most extensive and generous Principles;
This Board being truly sensible of the same, and willing to patronize and encourage so benevolent an Establishment, have agreed to grant all the right and Interest they have in and to the westernmost half of the Lot formerly belonging to John Harris Decd & others but now to this Corporation . . . for the purpose of building the said Hospital thereon."—M. C. C., VII: 311. On June 16, 1772 (q.v.), £1,000 was donated in place of this land.

14 In accordance with the act of Feb. 16 (q.v.), for better regulating the election of city officials, the common council appoints the following persons as "Returning Officers" of the election in this month, and names the place of election in each ward, as follows:

Wards	Persons	Places
"West Ward	John Wetherhead	the Broadway Market
"South Ward	John Harris Cruger	the Exchange house.
"Dock Ward	Dirck Brinkerhoff	the Coenties Market
"East Ward	John Alsop	the Coffee house Bridge
"North Ward	Nich <sup>s</sup> W <sup>m</sup> Stuyvesant	the City Hall
"Montgomery Ward	Joseph Bull	Pecks Slip Market
"Outward [sic] Ward	Peter Stuyvesant	the House of John Fowler

—M. C. C., VII: 313-14. For later regulations of this kind, see ibid., VII: 373-74, 443-44, 446; VIII: 52-53, 103-4.

"The survey made by Andrew Maerschalck and Gerard Bancker,
"Concerning the Amendment of a Late Regulation of Crown Street in the West Ward" (see June 13), is read and approved by the common council.—M. C. C., VII: 315.

"The common council authorizes the payment of £20 to Henry Dufour "in Consideration of the damage he has sustained by the digging down of Crown Street" (see June 13).—M. C. C., VII: 301, 314. On Sept. 25, 1772, Dufour received an additional £10.
—ibid., VII: 377.

Oct. The first of several payments is ordered by the corporation "for 7 building a Wharf & Pier in front of the New [Oswege] Market at the North River."—M. C. C., VII: 319. This wharf was at the foot of Fulton St. at Greenwich St., and is shown on Pl. 64, Vol. I.
See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 989, under "Corporation Dock." Subsequent payments show the total cost of construction was £356:7:15.—ibid., VII: 328, 345, 352-53. The dock was ordered to be repaired on June 20, 1774 (q.v.).

14 "Whereas it is proposed that a street be alaid [sic] out in a Direct line from the Broad way to Hudsons River between the south Bounds of the Lands of Mf Anthony Rutgers and the North bounds of the Church Farm agreeable to a plan thereof made by Gerard Bancker and now produced to this Board It is thereupon Ordered that Mf Desbrosses, Mf Renaudet, Mf Bache, Mf Van Dam and Mf Kissam or any three of them be a Committee to Confer with Mf Rutgers about laying out the said Street and to prepare Such Deeds or Instruments as may be necessary to be executed between this Corporation and the said Mf Rutgers, to be laid before this board at some future meeting."—Trin. Min.
(MS.). This is the present Reade St., which appears as Reads St.
on the Ratzler Map, Pl. 41, Vol. I.

"Ordered that an Address or Petition from this Corporation be prepared to his Majesty Praying a Remission of the Quit Reet reserved in a late Grant for a Tract of Land to this Corporation
And also that a Letter be wrote to the Archbishop of Canterbury and another to the Bishop of London desiring their Countenance and Interposition for that purpose."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See Nov.
15, 1770; Dec. 29, 1772.

15 From Oct. 15 to 18, a general convention was held in New York City of representatives of the Reformed Low Dutch Churches in the provinces of New York and New Jersey, "for the purpose of procuring Peace and unity to said Churches." "Articles of Union" were adopted, also "The Church-Order, or Rules of Ecclesiastical Government."—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4208-27. A second convention, to ratify the "Union," was held June 16-18, 1772.—Ibid., VI: Oct.

4242. 15

Persons living around the Fly Market petition the common council for permission to build an addition to that market at their own expense, to serve as a shelter for the country people "that Resort to the said Market with provisions; . . . and are Obliged to stand Exposed in the Open Street with their produce in all Weathers which is not only a Hardship on them but Inconvenient to some of the petitioners by having the Streets before their doors Obstructed." The market now built there is entirely occupied by butchers. These petitioners ask "leave to build a Market in the Middle of the Street to begin opposite the House formerly poss'ed by Tho<sup>s</sup> Kendal & to Extend to wards the river as far as the Smiths Shop now possessed by John Roome." The petition is endorsed
"Read & filed Oct<sup>r</sup> 23<sup>d</sup>, 1771."—From the original MS., in box
No. 6, in city clerk's record-room. The record is entered in the Minutes on Oct. 24.—M. C. C., VII: 324. On Oct. 28, permission was granted to enlarge the market.—ibid., 326. See also Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 958.

Agreeable to an order of the common council, the streets near the Bowling Green have been regulated, and the committee recommends "that Beaver Street be paved on a regular Ascent from a Pump opposite to the House of M<sup>r</sup> Van Vorst to the upper part of the foundation of the Railing round the Kings Statute" (statue), the distances and mark-stones being described in the report.—M. C. C., VII: 324-25. Payment of £80 was made Nov.
14, 1771, on this work (ibid., VII: 328), and the balance on Jan. 24, 1772 (ibid., VII: 345).

A committee is appointed "to Cause such of the Streets in the West Dock & South wards [as they] shall judge necessary to be Regulated and paved."—M. C. C., VII: 323. On Oct. 28, the chairman of the committee reported that "the Street [Whitehall St.] leading from the Custom House Corner, to the Whitehall Slip" had been regulated.—ibid., VII: 325.

The following "Return of Deficiencies in the Barracks of New York," by Lieut.-Col. Dudley Templer, 26th Regiment, is perhaps worth quoting: 28

"Eighty of the mens Blankets at the allowance of one Blanket man are old & wore out.

"The Stairs in the upper Barracks are so much out of repair that severals of the men has been hurt by falling through them.

"The Room floors are broke in several places and wants repairing.

"Several of the forms are broke and unrepairable

"The Barrack Tables for the Soldiers are all old & too Small

"The most of the mens rooms wants Candle sticks

"The most of the Botoms are wore out of the Officers Chairs & some of them good for nothing.

"Both the gates at the upper Barrack are fallen down & the Fences round the square wants repairing."—From the original among the Bancker accounts (in folder marked "Accounts of British Garrison in New York") in N. Y. Pub. Library.

A petition to the common council, signed by a large number of citizens, and endorsed "Read & filed 28th Oct., [1771]" states that since their petition of last March, the "Oswege Market has been removed, and another Market erected on the Dock, at the North River," and that the new market is very inconveniently located; they now renew their former petition that one be erected in the Fields at their expense.—From the original petition in metal file No. 4, city clerk's record-room. See Nov. 27.

A petition from "a Considerable Number of Inhabitants" having been made to the common council on Oct. 24 (M. C. C., VII: 324), asking that a committee be appointed "to Carry into Execution a former Order of this Board, relative to the Erecting of a Market at Thurmans Slip in the West ward" (see April 6, 1733), it is now taken up for consideration, with "two other Petitions each Subscribed by a very Considerable Number of Inhabitants of this City, the one praying leave to Erect a Market in the fields, and the other also praying leave to Erect a Market at the head of Maiden Lane Street, on part of the Ground formerly occupied by Mf Conora, at their own Expence." The board defers action on all three petitions.—M. C. C., VII: 326. Final action was taken on Nov. 27 (q.v.).

In a petition to the common council, William McAdam and others set forth "that they have lately at the Expence of five hundred pounds Erected a Market, on the Corporations Ground in

- 1771 Complyance with a late order of this Board, which is now opened and much Resorted to." This is the Bear Market.—See Aug. 19.
- Oct. 28 The petitioners complain "that they have since heard with much surprise of a late application [vide supra] to this Board for Leave to Erect another Market within two hundred yards of the one they have Erected." They ask that, "in Consideration of the Great Expence they have been at, this Board will not permit any other Market in that Neighbourhood to be Erected, as the one they have lately set up, will for many years to Come be sufficient for every purpose of a publick Market in that quarter of the City, But should this worshipfull Board nevertheless authorize a Market, to be Erected within the distance aforesaid, of the one they have Erected; that in such Case, they Rely on the Equity of this Board that they will repay them the money they have so Expended on the Good faith of this Corporation." The common council postpones consideration of this petition also.—M. C. C., VII: 326. See, further, Nov. 27. The Bear Market survived the Revolution.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 958; De Voe, Market Book, 313.
- " An advertisement reads: "Those who teach, or want to learn the French Language, may be supplied at Noel and Hazard's Book-Store, next Door to the Merchant's Coffee-House, with Boyer's and Perrin's Grammer, Chambaud's and do's Exercises, Perrin's Spelling Book, do's Guide, do's Vademecum, do's Verbs, being a Collection of French Verbs, both regular ad irregular, disposed in Alphabetical Order and conjugated; they are all comprized in one Sheet of Paper."
- " Boyer's, D'Alembert's and Nugent's Dictionaries; French Testaments, Epistolary Correspondence in French and English, Telemaque, Oeconomy of Human Life, &c."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 28, 1771. There were at this time several French schools in the city.
- 31 A horse-race, "round the new course at Powles Hook," is advertised to be held on this day between "Booby, Mug, Bastard, and Quackiliver." The match is for 30 dollars, the horses to run twice round to a heat; to "carry catch riders, and start precisely at two o'clock."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 14, 1771.
- Nov. 6 In a letter to Henry Pelham, Copley says: "We long much to see you all. I work with extrem application to hasten that happy time which will be by Christmas at farthest, for I now see all my work before me. But it takes up much time to finish all the parts of a Picture when it is to be well finishd, and the Gentry of this place [New York] distinguish very well, so I must slight nothing. I believe you will think I shall do very well to finish the amount of thirty Busts in 20 Weeks, besides going to Philadelphia which took up 2 Weeks of the 20; and this I shall do by the time I mention . . . I have been obliged to refer a great deal of Business here and in Philadelphia. I have done some of my best portraits here, particularly Mrs. Gage's [see June 16, 1771], which is gone to the Exhibition. it is I think beyond Compare the best Lady's portrait I ever drew."—Letters & Papers of John Singleton Copley and Henry Pelham, 1739-1776, 173-74. See Dec. 15.
- 11 Robert Hull who "intends in a few days to open the well-known and established tavern in the Broadway, lately kept by Richard Bolton," announces his house on the "corner of the Jew's-alley, in Broad-street" to be let.—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 11, 1771. See May 1, 1770.
- 13 Barrack-master Gerard Bancker is ordered to repair the barracks.—Cal. Coun. Min., 487. On April 29, 1772, he was instructed to pay the accounts of Gavin Lourie "for repairing barracks and lodging officers of the 26th regiment."—Ibid., 489. The accounts of Evert and Gerard Bancker as barrack-masters of New York prior to the Revolution are preserved in the MSS. Division of the N. Y. Pub. Library.
- " One William Davison, sentenced to death for picking pockets, is pardoned."—Cal. Coun. Min., 487.
- 21 The common council orders that the platform at the end of the Fly Market be arched.—M. C. C., VII: 329.
- " Joseph Haviland is appointed "to the Office of a Measurer of Mahogany." Before he enters upon his duties, he is to take "an Oath well and truly to Execute said Office."—M. C. C., VII: 330.
- 27 The common council denies the petition "of John Thurman Junf and others [see Oct. 28], relative to the Building a Market at Mesiers Dock." The "Several other Petitions preferred to this Board praying leave to Erect Markets at the respective Places therein mentioned" (see Oct. 28) are likewise voted down in one inclusive motion.—M. C. C., VII: 331-32. See, however, Jan 7, 1772, for the favourable action finally taken by the city as a result of the initiative taken by the projectors of the market at Mesier's Dock.
- " Since the laudable Design of improving the Streets of this City, has lately been begun; a Gentleman who is a Friend to the Arts, and a Well-wisher to his Fellow-Citizens begs leave to give the Publick the following Particulars; and to recommend them to the Attention of those, who are capable by their Importance and Influence, of carrying' them into immediate Execution, as an Extension of the Plan for a further Accommodation and Improvement of the City.
- " They are copied from the Rules established for lighting the Streets of the City of London.
- " The Lamp to be ten Feet high.
- " The Distance from each other, fifty Feet.
- " Their Distance from the Houses four Feet.
- " The Diameter of the Globe Lamp, ten Inches."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 2, 1771.
- " The "Chamber of Commerce," at its last meeting, "determined on the mode of Tonnage to be adopted from and after the first Day of May next."—Col. Recs. N. Y. Chamber of Commerce, 146. This report (dated Sept. 3, 1771) appeared in the Mercury of Jan. 27, Feb. 24, and March 2, 1772.
- " The "Union Library Society" is organized. A twelve-page pamphlet of "Articles" was issued, the preamble of which declared that "the private purchase of books is attended with an expence too heavy for many persons whose inclinations lead them to improvement." The establishment of a "public Library" is thereby justified. A treasurer and 12 directors were provided for, to be elected annually. The directors were to hold monthly meetings and were entrusted with entire management, even to removing the treasurer for incompetence or neglect. The cost of a share was 20s, and the annual payment, 10s.—From the original pamphlet entitled Articles of the Union Library Society of New York, preserved in N. Y. Soc. Library. Cf. Keep, Hist. of N. Y. Society Lib., 112-18. The library was opened Jan. 7, 1772 (q. v.).
- 12 John Freebody, Jr., of New York City, writing to Christopher Champin, says: "Tea is expected to rise daily as their is a very strick look out kept, by the Men of War, and Custom House Officers, who have this day seis'd 19 Chest: at Flushing, and yesterday a Parcel in a store in this City."—From "Commerce of Rhode Island," I: 383, in Mass. Hist. Soc. Collections, 7th ser.
- " The committee appointed, on July 22 (q. v.), "to view the Ground" in the Out Ward desired for a church, school, and burial-ground, presents its report, which, however, is not of record. The common council orders a copy of it to be served "on the Corporation of Trinity Church in order that their Sentiments may be known Respecting the taking a Grant upon the Conditions mentioned in the said Report."—M. C. C., VII: 336. For Trinity's action, see June 26, 1772.
- 14 The soon "Mercury" is launched at New York. "She is intended for the fifth Packet Boat between this and Falmouth, and is allowed by Judges to be the best Vessel of her Burthen that ever was built in this Province. She will have the best Accommodations for Passengers of any Packet on this Station; and will sail with all Expedition, in order to bring out the next April Mail."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 16, 1771.
- 15 Copley, writing to Henry Pelham, says: "At last I can inform you this Week finishes all my Business, no less than 37 Busts; so the weather permitting by Christmas we hope to be on the road." After a six and a half months' residence in New York (see June 16), he set out for Boston on Dec. 25.—Letters & Papers of John Singleton Copley and Henry Pelham, 1737-1776, pp. 179, 183-84. See Dec. 25.
- 18 Obadiah Wells and John Brooks each secures from the city a lease for the long term of 35 years commencing May 1, 1771 for land "on Inclawbergh."—M. C. C., VII: 338.
- 23 A meeting of the college governors is appointed for this day at Hull's tavern.—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 16, 1771.
- 30 Permission is given by the common council to several petitioners "to lay a Bridge over Beekmans Slip [see Dec. 1, 1769], at their own proper Costs and Charge." A committee named to superintend its construction was to make sure that it was "done without any Obstruction or prejudice to the said Slip."—M. C. C., VII: 339. See Jan. 7, 1772.
- " The common council authorizes the payment of £1:11 for the passage of one Mrs Frasier and her Child from this Port to England."—M. C. C., VII: 339. The city authorities frequently paid 1771 the transportation of unfortunates out of town (see May 9, 1721), De.30 but deportation back to England was unusual.

The common council decides that "the Petition and the Proceedings had thereon Relative to the Granting of the Water Lots prayed for . . . between the Exchange and the Corporation Pier" be taken into consideration on Jan. 7, 1772.—M. C. C., VII: 34c. On the latter date, the board agreed to grant the lots as laid down on a plan dated Oct. 3, 1766, ad made by Maerschalck and Bancker. The petitioners were to pay a yearly rent of 18d. a foot and to "build them a Bason at the End of the ground prayed for similar to the present one."—Ibid., VII: 341.

1772

About this time, "Aristides" issued a broadside addressed "To John Cruger, James Jauncey, James Delancey, and Jacob Walton, Esqrs; The Representatives in General Assembly, for the City and County of New-York." This remonstrated against the over-taxation of New York City. "Aristides" claimed that the city, "notwithstanding its growing and intolerable poor tax," was subjected to the "unreasonable proportion" of one-third of the entire provincial assessment, due to "a confederacy of all the country members against the citizens." He adds: "The city has been stung by a serpent, she feels the poison in her veins . . . Let it not be to the shame of your posterity; you are charged with the welfare of a great trading city, that bids fair to be the grand emporium of the new world. Her Merchants are too sensible, rich, and independent to be any man's or any families dupe or slave.—Her citizens too, even below the order of Mechanics know their rights, and are giving flagrant proofs of their courage and zeal for their preservation . . . A day of reckoning will come, and woe to the man, who deservedly feels, either their indignation or their contempt. Be it your study then to assert the rights of commerce, to expand its wings, to advance . . . the general felicity of the colony; and above all things to restore concord to a town too long gulled and abused by faction, and to deliver the poor citizens of this metropolis, from the grievous burdens under which they groan."—From an undated original in the N. Y. Pub. Library.

Jan. 1 The butchers who formerly had their "stalls and standings" in the Oswego Market, and, since its removal, have procured similar accommodations in the new Bear Market, complain, in a petition to the common council, that, "hoping, in the honest exercise of their trade there, to gain a Comfortable maintenance for themselves & their Families," they have been "greatly Deceived in their expectations." Nevertheless, because they have usually exercised their trade in the western part of the city, and being unwilling to lose their customers, they have, at great loss, continued their attendance in the new market. Customers at this market are so few that the butchers are often compelled "to carry their meat unsold Home again by which it depreciates upon their Hands." They are compelled to desert the new market, and express their confidence that a public market-house directly below the place where the Oswego Market stood (in Broadway, at Liberty St.), but adjoining the river, would be "attended with a great concourse of buyers and sellers, and tend much to promote the public convenience." They add the announcement "That the persons who have erected, at their own cost, a large, convenient building there [see Jan. 7], are willing to devote the same to the use of a public market." They therefore pray that the board "will permit them to erect their stalls in said market-house."—From the original petition, in city clerk's record-room. See also De Voe's Market Book, 309, where it is printed in full. See, further, Jan. 7.

7 The library of the Union Library Society (see Dec. 3, 1771) is opened "at the House of Captain John Berrien at Burling's Slip." The public notice, issued "By Order of the Directors, Joshua Watson, Sec'ry," declared that new subscriptions would be received and the printed "Articles" distributed, and further, that "The Founders of this Institution flatter themselves with the Prospect of a speedy Advancement of so useful an Undertaking, as they conceive it founded upon Principals of Freedom and general Utility."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 30, 1771. See Jan. 14, 1773.

" The common council grants to Gerrard G. Beekman and other petitioners permission to fill up Beekman's Slip (see Aug. 24, 1767) "as far as the Corner of Frederick Bassets."—M. C. C., VII: 341-42. In giving this permission, the board revoked an earlier action (see Dec. 30, 1771), wherein they granted to other petitioners "leave to lay a Bridge over Beekman's Slip." On June 16, the board allowed £20 "towards Defraying the Expence of filling up Beekman's Slip in Such manner as to Carry off the Water without a drain."—Ibid., VII: 365. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 988. The slip was ordered to be filled again on March 9, 1807 (q. v.). See also July 16, 1793.

Abraham Meiser and others inform the common council that they have erected a market-house at the North River, and desire to convey it to the city for the use of the public.—M. C. C., VII: 341. This was in conformity with the original permission to build given in 1733.—See summary under April 6, 1733, for the long history of this grant. This was the Crown Market, in Liberty St., west of Greenwich St. It was sometimes known as Meiser's or Thurman's Market.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 958. For the city's acceptance of it, see March 31. On Jan. 14, 1773, an advertisement, signed by Adriaan Rutgers, Richard Sharp, John Morin Scott, and Benjamin Kisser, for the sale of part of the estate of the late Petrus Rutgers, refers to the lots as "situate at the North River fronting Thurman's Slip, near the new market."—Rivington's Gazetteer, Jan. 14, 1773. The Crown Market was destroyed by fire in September, 1776 (q. v.).—De Voe, Market Book, 329.

" The inhabitants who reside near where the Oswego Market formerly stood, who petitioned "some time ago . . . for leave to erect a Public Market on the Lott known by the name of Conoro's Lott" (see April 24, 1771), petition again for reconsideration of their former petition, believing that it was not favourably considered because the place asked for was not "put Separately" in their petition,—that is, not specifically asked for.—From original petition, in metal file No. 6, in city clerk's record-room, endorsed "Read & filed Jan'y the 7th 1772 & Referred for further Consideration." See also M. C. C., VII: 340. This petition came up again on March 26 (q. v.).

Gov. Tryon says, in a message to the assembly: "The injuries of time and storms have so defaced the fortifications of this city, that they require a thorough repair, as soon as the season will admit."—Assemb. Jour. (1772), 44; Jour. Leg. Coun., II: 1801. See March 13.

9 The committee appointed for carrying into execution the matters recommended on March 20, 1771 (q. v.), makes another report, which is approved. The board resolves "That the proposals . . . from the Town of Harlem to this Corporation Relative to the Settlement of the Boundaries between them & this Corporation, by Commissioners, meet with the approbation of this board . . . they do therefore on their part name William Nicoll . . . and Thomas Hicks . . . as Commissioners for that purpose, and that they in Conjunction with two other Commissioners to be Chosen by the Town of Harlem do name a fifth person, which five persons Shall be Commissioners for finally Settling the aforesaid Boundaries . . . And it is further ordered & agreed to, that Mr Recorder be desired to prepare a Bill to be laid before the General assembly [see March 24] investing the said persons . . . with full and absolute power to settle effectually the controversy aforesaid."—M. C. C., VII: 343-44. See also Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 803-4.

" A committee is appointed "to view the place proposed as a Bason, in front of the Ground agreed to be granted to the Proprietors of the houses fronting the East Great Dock & Cause a plan to be made of the same and prefer it to this Board with all Convenient Speed."—M. C. C., VII: 343. The plan was submitted to the board on April 10, and approved. The clerk was ordered to prepare "the Draight of Grants to the petitioners accordingly they the said Petitioners Obliging themselves therein to Compleat the said Bason by the first of August 1773."—Ibid., VII: 353.

16 The assembly resolves, by a vote of 13 to 7, "that no person is capable of being elected a representative to serve for any city, county, town, borough or manor, in this or any future Assembly unless he be an actual resident, and shall continue to reside in such place for which he shall be so elected, and hath resided for at least six months before the test of writ of summons."—Assemb. Jour. (1772), 17.

A fire in the house of one John Burns, on the dock near Coenties Market, endangers the city, there being stored in the adjoining building, or near by, a large quantity of gunpowder.—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 23, 1772.

Whitehead Hicks issues the following proclamation "To the Inhabitants of the City of New York:"

"Considering the extreme Daoger of storing Gunpowder in

Jan. 7

"

"

8

9

"

16

18

- 1772 this City which must be manifest to every thinking Person; and
 Jan. 31 that the Practice is in direct Violation of a Law of the Corporation, 18 and it is truly astonishing that any should be so regardless of their own Safety, as well as that of their Fellow Citizens as to expose both to such imminent Hazard. Did we not see it exemplified in Fact, one would scarcely imagine it possible that the Love of Gain (and a paucity Saving it is) should so far extinguish the Sentiments of Humanity, as to prompt a Man to expose the Lives of Thousands of his Species, rather than comply with a most salutary Law, and pay for the Storage of his Powder.
- "I am desired by some of the principal Firemen of the City
 . . . to issue this Hand Bill, in order to acquaint the Inhabitants how much they are alarmed upon this Occasion, and to intreat them not to presume, for the future, to store any Powder in the City, but in Magazines prepared for the Purpose: That if they do, they must not expect their Assistance in Times of Fire, as they cannot think of running headlong into inevitable Destruction, but are determined to resign their Offices. What a deplorable State this City must then be reduced to is easily to be conceived—Should any Persons, not duly impressed with a Sense of the Danger arising from such Practices, have any Powder stored in the City, I must beseech them forthwith to remove it, and thereby prevent the perilous Consequences to which, in the mean Time, he exposes his Fellow Citizens."—From an original in the N. Y. Pub. Library.
- 21 Gov. Tryon urges the assembly to appropriate money towards the establishment of a hospital, which has been "planned by a society lately incorporated" (see June 13, 1771) "for the reception of the poor, debilitated by age, or oppressed with infirmities."— Assemb. Jour. (1772), 22.
- 23 Trinity vestry "taking into Consideration the requisition of the governors of the Hospital or Infirmary for Two Acres of Ground on the North side of John Keatings Paper Mill It is thereupon Resolved That this Corporation will Lease to the said Governors Two Acres of their Ground for the Term of Ninety nine years for the sole purpose of Building a Hospital at the Annual Rent of Twenty pounds."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See Jan. 31.
 Keatings' "Paper Manufactory" (see July 14, 1768) was between the "Fly-Market, and Burling's Slip."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 4, 1770.
- 24 "In a message to the assembly, Gov. Tryon says: "By an extract of the King's instructions . . . I am required and directed to apply to you to pass a law for collecting a powder duty; and upon inquiring into the state and condition of the ammunition for the defence of this province, I find there are but few barrels remaining for the public service. I am therefore to recommend to you to frame such a law as will correspond with his Majesty's wishes, and be most effectual in furnishing a constant and regular supply of ammunition."—Assemb. Jour. (1772), 27. On March 13, the assembly resolved not to present such a bill.—Ibid., 97.
- "The account of William Winterton for "Paving round to Bowling Green," totalling £301:9:4 and ordered paid by the common council on this date, includes an item "To pulling out the Stumps £2-10."—From original voucher in comptroller's office, box No. 1.
- 31 "Application having been heretofore made to this Corporation
 [see Jan. 23] by the Honorable John Watts and Whitehead Hicks Esquire [then Mayor] Two of the Governors of the Hospital appointed a Committee for that purpose for two Acres of Ground between the Paper Mill [see Jan. 23] and Mr Lisenard's House for the use and purpose of Building a Hospital or Infirmary which being taken into Consideration It was unanimously Resolved that this Corporation will lease to the Governors of the said Hospital Two Acres of Ground on the North side of Keatings Paper Mill for the only use of a Publick Hospital or Infirmary for the Term of Ninety-nine years at the Annual Rent or sum of Fifteen pounds."—Trin. Min. (MS.). Such an arrangement was not acceptable to the governors (see Feb. 13). For a different location, see May 20.
- "A copy of an Order of the Common Council of the City of New York reciting a Report of a Committee of that Corporation founded upon the Petition of James DeLauncey Esq<sup>r</sup> and others praying a Grant of a Piece of Land in the Out Ward of this City in Trust to this Corporation for the Erecting and building a School House, Church and Parsonage house and for the use of a burying Ground, being Produced and read And the same being taken into Consideration by this Board It was thereupon Resolved and Ordered that Mr [John Tabor] Kempe, Mr [Edward] Laight and
- Mr [Theophilact] Bache be a Committee to Confer with the Jan.
 Common Council of the City of New York upon the Subject of the 31 said order and to apply for a Plan of the Proposed Building And finally to agree with the said Corporation upon the Terms and Conditions on which this Corporation will accept of the Proposed Trust."—Trin. Min. (MS.). See June 26.
- Andrew Elliot was at this time the receiver-governor, as appears Feb.
 by a memorial of his bearing this date.—Cal. Coun. Min., 489 5 (see also 470, 478). He later became lieutenant-gouverneur.—See
 May 23, 1781.
- "As the Distresses of the Prisoners confined in the Goal of this 6 City, appear to be very great, they being in want not only of Firing but even the common Necessaries of Life, Charity Sermons for their Relief will be preached next Sunday Morning at Trinity Church, St. George and St. Paul's Chapels; and the charitable Donations of the respective Congregations will be most thankfully received, and deposited in the Hands of a worthy Gentleman, who will take the trouble of supplying them with Such Necessaries as they are in immediate want of."—N. Y. Jour.,
 Feb. 6, 1772.
- William Smith, in a letter to Dr. Achmuty, says that the 13
 "committee for the Hospital . . . cannot think one moment of erecting Buildings upon Ground in which they are not to have a permanent Estate."—From a copy of the letter among the original Smith MSS., folio 195.
- A petition, emanating from New York City, to allow Isaac 15
 Teller "to administer medicines in the Indian method" is rejected by the assembly.—Assemb. Jour. (1772), 51.
- "It may not be amiss to inform the Publick, That we are 17 told the Buoy lately fixed on the S. W. Spit of the East Bank, near Sandy Hook [see June 17, 1771], is carried away by the Ice."
 —N. Y. Merc., Feb. 17, 1772. Later, the buoy was found and set up again.
- Tryon sends this message to the assembly: "The present Secre- 21
 tary's office being wholly inadequate to the purpose of preserving the public records, and as the accidents to which they are liable in their present situation, must be justly alarming to every person who is interested in the security of property; I cannot avoid recommending these considerations as highly deserving your attention. To erect a new building I consider as the best expedient. In which, besides the apartments necessary for the transaction of the ordinary business, there may be one room so constructed as to afford all possible security against fire or other casualties. A plan of such a design accompanies this message, the estimate of the expence of which, in brick work, amounts to eleven hundred pounds, currency. Should the same meet with your approbation, I flatter myself, you will make provision for carrying it into execution."—
Assemb. Jour. (1772), 61. For the assembly's action, see March 13.
- "The treasurer of the colony, Abraham Lott, having used the 22 funds of the colony in commercial speculations, rather than let them lie idle in the treasury, and having been asked by the assembly to account for the moneys, it is resolved that Lott's action was imprudent but not dishonest. However, as the precedent might become dangerous, the house resolves that in future no money shall be issued out of the treasury except upon lawful authority."— Assemb. Jour. (1772), 62.
- The legislature passes "An Act for making a further Provision 26 of two thousand Pounds for furnishing his Majesty's Troops quartered in this Colony with Necessaries for one Year."—Col. Laws
N. Y., V: 271-72.
- Tryon tells Smith that he is "determined to be drawn into Mar.
 dangerous Measures," that he means "to be independent," and 5 that he intends "to consult the Interest of the Province" and not to "steer by the Popular Voice nor be a Dupe to the Assembly or Council."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.
- "From this Day I predict that the De Lanceys will begin their 7 Measures to harass this Governor, but they will proceed slowly thro' Fear of his Temper."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.
- In response to the governor's message (see Jan. 8), the assembly 13 resolves "that there be allowed a sum not exceeding £1000, for making the necessary repairs to the fortifications of this city."— Assemb. Jour. (1772), 97.
- The assembly resolves that the matter of building a new secre- 14
 tary's office, recommended by Tryon in his message of Feb. 21 (p. v.),
 "be postponed till the next sessions."—Assemb. Jour. (1772), 97.
- The anniversary of the repeal of the Stamp Act is celebrated at 18

1772 Montagne's Tavern (now 253-254 Broadway) and at Protestant Mc.18 Hall on Long Island.—N. Y. Merc., March 23, 1772.

24 An act "to revise digest and print the Laws of this Colony" is passed by the legislature, because the laws "are at present irregularly bound up, and not properly digested, which often occasions Difficulties and Inconveniences." The act directs that Peter van Schaack collect, arrange, revise, and index all the laws passed since the "happy Revolution" (of 1689-91), and that he receive, upon the completion of his work, £250. Hugh Gainé is empowered to print the laws "on the best paper and large Folios, and with the usual Types for such Work and to deliver one printed Book thereof completely Bound in Calves Skin to the Governor or Commander in Chief for the time being, one other for the use of the Council and four for the use of the General Assembly." For this, Gainé is to receive 20 shillings "for every Sheet of paper in the said printed Books."—Col. Laws N. Y., IV: 355-57. Publication of all the laws enacted from 1691 down to and including March 8, 1773, was made by Hugh Gainé in 1774. The subsequent laws, of 1774 and 1775, were also published by Hugh Gainé.—Ibid., "Explanatory Note," I: v-vi.

" By a new Militia Act, the provisions of which, in the main, follow those of the act of Oct. 20, 1764 (q.v.), the draft age is fixed between 16 and 50 years of age inclusive, instead of 16 and 60 as formerly. Persons between 50 and 60 years of age, in case of alarm, invasion, or insurrection, are obliged to appear under arms under the captain or commanding officer of the district where they dwell. While the dress of the trooper is provided for, as in previous acts, neither this act nor any other militia act of the province has yet prescribed the dress to be worn by foot-soldiers, although his equipment is particularly specified. This act was to remain in force until May 1, 1774.—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 342-51. Another similar Militia Act went into effect on April 1, 1775 (q.v.).

" The legislature passes an act "to settle and establish the Line or Lines of Division between the City of New York, and the Township of Harlem, so far as concerns the right of Soil in Controversy" (see Jan. 9). This names the commissioners who are to have charge of the dispute and provides that each place shall pay half of the total cost.—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 432-37; Assemb. Jour. (1772), 64, 85-86, 96, 113. This law was approved by the king (see Dec. 1, 1773). Regarding the new line, see Apr. 11, 1773.

" The legislature appropriates, "for defraying the Expence of making the necessary Repairs to the Fortifications in this City," a sum of money not to exceed £1,000. The treasurer of the colony is ordered to pay this to the commissioners, James Jaucney and Jacob Walton, "in such proportion as . . . the Governor . . . by and with the Advice and Consent of his Majesty's Council shall think necessary."—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 340.

" The legislature passes an act "for the better support of the Hospital to be erected in the City of New York for Sick and Indigent Persons" (see Sept. 3, 1773). This provides that "the Treasurer of this Colony . . . shall out of any Fund in the Treasury pay . . . unto the . . . Society of the Hospital in the City of New York in America [see June 13, 1771], the sum of eight hundred Pounds annually . . . during the Term of twenty years . . . which Sum . . . shall become chargeable upon the Duty of Excise laid or to be laid on Strong Liquors" (see June 11, 1774).—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 367-68. See also April 11, 1792 (q.v.).

" The legislature passes an act "to prevent the Danger arising from the pernicious Practice of lodging Gun Powder in dwelling Houses Stores or other Places within the City of New York or on Board of Vessels within the Harbour."—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 363-66. For an earlier ordinance, see Jan. 10, 1729.

" The legislature passes an act "for the Inspection of Flax in the City of New York." The preamble states that this is necessary because "the cleaning of Flax in this Colony to prepare it for spinning and Rope Making has become an Object of some Importance, and . . . abuses are committed in the sale of Flax altogether unfit for the said purposes, to the great Damage of the purchasers."—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 361-63.

" The treasurer of the colony is ordered to pay Anthony van Dam £357:3 "for a Flag for Fort George and Repairs."—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 340.

26 A number of inhabitants of the Out Ward, in a petition to the common council, state that, "Since the Removal of the old Oswego Market," they "have Brought their Greases and other Produce to the New Oswego Market; That upon Tryal, they find that their great Loss they are not able to sell one half the Quantity of their Truck they used to do in the old Oswego Market which they conceive is owing to the Remote Situation thereof, it being so Thorough fare and so far from the Centre of the City, that few people frequent it and those that do, come chiefly from the Church ground, and the Bulk of those are of the poorer sort of People, who can't Purchase much, Besides this, many of them have also Gardens; . . . your Petitioners have attempted to get Relief by going to the Fly Market, but it is so crowded that they can find no room to stand with their Produce." They ask the common council to give permission "to erect a Public Market on the Lott Commonly Called Conoro's Lott," which they think would be as convenient for the public and themselves "as if it was where it formerly stood."—From original petition, in metal file No. 6, in city clerk's record-room, endorsed "filed in C: Council March 26: 1772." See also De Voe, Market Book, 309-10. The board orders "that this and the other Petitions relative to the Building of Markets" be considered on March 31 (q.v.).—M. C. G., VII: 348-49; De Voe, 330.

A large number of farmers of Orange and Bergen Counties, in a petition to the common council, state that they "bring to New York considerable quantities of Rie Indian & Wheat Meal, Poultry Poark Butter Veal & other country produce," to "the New Oswego Market" (Bear Market—see Aug. 29, 1771), since the removal of the old one; that sales have diminished because the market is situated "where there is no thoroughfare." They explain that "the Oswego Market is what is commonly call'd a Tide Market;" and "having tryed both the old Market in the broad way & the New down at the North River," they experience both loss of time and money at the new location. They add: "That it may be objected by the Citizens, if we get a low price for our produce it is a saving to the City which objection would hold good, if all was bought by housekeepers, but that is not the case for as soon as the price of Meal & butter the two principal articles are a little under the price, the Meal sellers & Hucksters purchase all we have (after Twelve a Clock) & afterwards sell it for an advanced price to their fellow Citizens so that the advantage centers in a few Individuals whereas if we could get a living price so as to pay us for our expence & trouble in coming down, It would encourage us to bring our produce to market & lay out our money freely where we sell our produce, but if we must sell so as not to be paid for our trouble to come to town, we would rather sell our Meal & butter to the Country shopkeepers who are glad to take these articles of us & when it gets in their hands they pack them in Casks & firkins send them to the stores in N York where they lay for a market & then the Citizens are obliged to pay an advanced price besides paying for the casks which is all lost. This is also the case with Poark in the fall of the Year.

"That your petitioners have understood that a lott is purchased by Individuals near where the Old Broadway Market stood." They ask that the board give leave for the erecting of a public market on this lot.—From the original petition, in metal file No. 6, city clerk's record-room, endorsed "Petition . . . to Erect a Market House on the lot formerly occupied by M<sup>r</sup> Conaro, filed March 31st 1772." See also De Voe's Market Book, 310-11. For the board's further action, see below.

The common council decides to accept the market-house presented to the city on Jan. 7 (q.v.), the order being "that the said Building so lately Erected at the North River by the said John Thurman & others be accepted of by this board for the use of a publick Market House and this Board Do hereby Establish the same Building as a publick Market House accordingly, provided the proprietors of the Ground on which the said Market Stands, do in some short time, Release the said Ground to this Corporation & their Successors."—M. C. G., VII: 348, 350-51. This was the Crown Market.—See Jan. 7.

It is also ordered "that permission be Given to the said Petitioners [see Jan. 7, and March 26] Residing in the Out Ward, for leave & Licence to Erect & Set up a Market House on the aforesaid Lot of Ground, formerly Occupied by the said M<sup>r</sup> Conaro Situate on the West Side of the Broadway Street, in the West Ward of this City, provided the proprietors of the said Ground do Release as above."—Ibid., VII: 350-51. This was the new Oswego Market. It was finished by May 15 (q.v.). Its situation, however, was not, as stated in the Minutes, on the west side of Broadway, in the West Ward, but, as shown by the deed, was in the bed of the present Maiden Lane, just east of Broadway, and extending to the corner,—

Mar. 26

31

11

- 1772 that is, between the north-east and south-east corners of Maiden
Mar. Lane and Broadway.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 958, 31 959. See also sketch entitled "Bounds of Oswego Market at Maiden Lane," with Bancker Papers (Misc.), in N. Y. Pub. Library. This was the second site of the Oswego Market, and the third market that bore that name.—De Vos, op. cit., 330. See, further, May 15.
- Apr. The committee of the common council appointed "to Regu-10 late & pave the Street before the fort and about the Bowling Green" (see Aug. 22, 1771) is now ordered "to Raise the said Bowling Green four Inches & a half, or so high as to Carry off the Water that usually remains there after every Considerable Rain."—M. C. G., VII: 353. A payment of £20, ordered on July 23, was for this improvement, doubtless.—Ibid., VII: 368.
- "The common council orders "that the Alderman & Common Councilman of the West Ward Do Cause that part of the Broadway Street whereon the Late Oswego Market Stood to be Regulated & paved, this board only finding the Stone & Labour."
—M. C. G., VII: 353. See description of the Montresor Plan, I: 340.
- "A committee is appointed to consider a petition of Edward Nicoll, "praying Leave to Erect a Store house, or Dwelling house on the Water Lot in front of his Dwelling House adjoining the West Great Dock in the South Ward."—M. C. G., VII: 351.
The committee reported, on June 11, that Nicoll had proposed that he be granted "the Breadth of his Lot & Seventy feet in Length, in such Manner as not to Incommode the Street nor to Build before his Neighbours, nor to take in any Part of his Neighbours Ground." As the members of the committee found "that the west Great Dock Diminishes as it Runs out," they thought Nicoll should receive, instead of the "full Breadth of his Present Dwelling house," only his proportion of the same, as shown on a plan submitted. The board agreed with the committee and ordered the draft of the grant prepared accordingly.—Ibid., VIII: 366-67.
- "Samuel Waldron, to whom the ferry to Nassau Island had been leased Jan. 24, 1771 (q. v.), has died, and the ferry is now leased to Nicholas P. Bogert upon the same terms except that the lease is to be continued for five years "in addition to the Unexpired Term of the Said Samuel Waldron."—M. C. G., VII: 352.
See, however, April 16.
- "The Petition of Samuel Francis was read praying that some recompence may be made him for the Damages he has sustained by Lowering the street in front of his House [auxhall—see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 981] Whereupon it is Ordered that the same Committee that was appointed to regulate Warren Street be a Committee to view the Premises and report to this Board an Estimate of what they conceive will be the expence of Erecting a Wall for Securing the Foundation of his House."—Trin. Min.
(MS.). See also May 7.
- 13 "As appears by the following advertisement a dwelling and storage were part of the John St. Theatre property: "For sale:
The lease of three years to come from next May, of the dwelling house and store house, situated in John Street, being part of the lot where the Play-house stands on."—N. Y. Gaz. (Weyman), April 13, 1772.
- 16 "The "Nassau Ferry" is leased to Adolph Waldron on the same terms provided in the lease to Nicholas P. Bogert (see April 10), the latter having "declined taking the same."—M. C. G., VII: 354.
- "The common council appoints a committee "to Examine and View what Condition the Counties Market is in and whether any Necessary ought to be made, and how much."—M. C. G., VII:
354. This appears to be the action taken in response to an undated petition asking the board to give financial assistance in rebuilding and enlarging Counties Market for the use of country people.—See the original in metal file No. 4, city clerk's record-room. The committee reported on May 7 that necessary repairs would cost £20, and recommending that this sum be so expended, or be contributed "towards building a New Addition to that part, of the Market lately Erected there." The board ordered that it be allowed "towards the Repairs."—Ibid., VII: 357.
- "A house occupied by Crean Brush (later called the White Conduit House—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 981), "in the upper end of the Broadway, opposite the Fresh Water Pond," is offered for sale; ". . . a road passing the front of the house and garden [extension of Broadway] will be opened in the spring to Greenwich lane. . ."—N. Y. Jour., April 16, 1772. This seems to prove that, contrary to the statement on p. 558, Vol. III, the extension of Broadway beyond Canal St. was under way in 1772, and was completed and opened as far north as the Sand Hill Road (Greenwich Avenue) in the spring of 1773. See also Nov. 23, 1775.
- The "Scheme of a Lottery" is advertised. "For raising the Sum of £720 to build a Pier, or convenient Harbour on the North River, at the Wharf of the Estate of Nicholas Roosevelt, Esq; deceased. As a Convenience of this Sort is much wanted, it is hoped, that the Owners of Crafts, Boats, Vessels; Boatmen, Farmers, and Merchants, trading on the North River, will use their utmost Endeavours to facilitate and encourage a Plan, of such general Utility.
"Timely Notice will be given of the precise Time and Place of Drawing. To consist of 4000 Tickets, at 3 Dollars each, is 12000 Dollars. Subject to 15 per Cent Deduction. . . .
"The greatest Care will be taken to see the Lottery fairly managed, by Persons of Integrity and the Prizes punctually paid."
—N. Y. Jour., April 23, 1772. See June 9.
- That postal service is now extended to include Quebec (see Feb. 10, 1763), is shown by the following: "His Majesty's [Deputy] Post-Master General, intending to establish a Weekly Post to Quebec, any Person willing to undertake the riding work, between this City and Albany, (setting out every Wednesday Morning, on the arrival of the Post from the Southward, and that can give sufficient Security for his faithfully delivering the Mail at the Post-Office in Albany, every Saturday at 12 o'Clock, to be dispatched from thence on Saturday Evening, and return with the Canada Mail to this Office, on Tuesday Evening) will please to send his Proposals in writing, to this Office as soon as possible.—Alexander Colden, Secry General Post Office, New-York."—N. Y. Merc., May 18, 1772.
- Mrs. Ferrari removes from the old, and opens "the spacious elegant new Coffee-House on the opposite cross corner" (south-east corner Wall and Water Sts.). Her regular customers assemble and are "unexpectedly and gently regaled with arrack punch, wine, cold ham, tongue &c." The two insurance offices are likewise moved from the old to the new Coffee House.—N. Y. Merc., May 4, 1772. Mrs. Elizabeth Wrang succeeded Mrs. Ferrari as proprietor of the old Coffee House.—Ibid., May 18, 1772. In 1773, the old Coffee House was occupied by Nesbitt Deane, a hatter.—Rivington's Gazetteer, April 22, 1773. This building was demolished in 1792, and the Tentative Coffee House erected on its site.—Landmark Map Ref.
Key, III: 981. See also Vol. I, p. 453.
- "Corlear's Hook Tavern, in the Out-ward of this City, late in the Occupation of James Ackland, deceased, now of John Brandon: It is a pleasant Walk from Town, the House and Gardens fitted up in a neat commodious Manner, for the Reception of all those who may please to Favour him with their Company; the best of Wines, Arrack, Rum, Taunton Ale, Porter and other Liquors are provided. . ."—N. Y. Merc., April 27, 1772.
- The 26th Regiment is reviewed by Gen. Gage. The officers and soldiers make "an elegant appearance." Rumour says that the regiment "is to go to Montreal in about a fortnight."—*N. Y.
Merc.*, May 4, 1772. They embarked on May 24 (q. v.).
- The provincial council issues an order on application for quarters and transportation for troops marching from Quebec to New York and vice versa.—Cal. Coun. Min., 490.
- Between two and three o'clock in the morning, a fire breaks out
"in or near the Distillery back of Mr. Benjamin Hildreth's in St George's Square. . . . The wind being at about N. W. the Flames soon reached the Wooden Buildings adjoining and carried all before them to the Front of Water Street." Notwithstanding all the efforts of the inhabitants, seven houses on the north side of Water Street, one house on the south side of Water Street, and two houses
"in a narrow Street to the Eastward of where the Fire originated" were burned.—N. Y. Merc., May 4, 1772; N. Y. Jour., May 7, 1772.
The common council, on Dec. 23, paid 20s. for liquors "delivered out" at this fire.—M. C. G., VII: 395. St. George's Sq. was the present Franklin Sq.—Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1009.
- "John Cox, (Late a Prisoner confined in Gaol in this City upwards of twelve Years, as a Debtor) Begs Leave to inform the Public, that by the Assistance and Encouragement of a Number of Friends, he intends to open a Tavern on Monday the 11th Instant, at the House lately occupied by Mr. Henry Bicker, in the Fields, being the Corner House above where Mr. Abraham De La Montagne now lives." He has laid in a "Quantity of the best Madeira Wines, Spirituos Liquors," etc., and, "as he is no Partisan, nor does he intend to Keep a Party House, hopes for the Encouragement of the Public in general."—N. Y. Merc., May 18, 1772. This was Hamden

- 1772 Hall, a rendezvous for the "Sons of Liberty," at the corner of Warren St. and Broadway. See March 19, 1759.
- My. 4 Thomas Bayaux offers country lodging at his home, "generally call'd the Glass-House," which hereafter will not be "open'd for publick entertainment."—N. Y. Merc., May 4, 1772. Bayaux succeeded Taylor, who left the house in 1770. See Oct. 7, 1754.
- 5 "Proposed—That seven Guineas be paid to Capt. Isaac T. Winn in addition to the ten Guineas already paid Mr. Bach, late Treasurer, for a Seal of this Corporation."—Col. Recs. N. Y. Chamber of Commerce, 156. This seal was made in London, and brought out by Capt. Winn, commander of a trading vessel. It bears the date of the royal charter of the chamber, 1770, and is of solid silver about three inches in diameter and about one inch in thickness. It bears the motto, "Non Nobis Nati Solum" ("Not born for ourselves alone").—Bishop, Chron. of 150 Yrs. Chamber of Commerce of the State of N. Y. (1768-1918), 14. The seal disappeared during the Revolution and was recovered by marvellous chance a few years later. A gentleman interested in the affairs of this country was looking over the collection of a curiosity-shop in London when he came across it; he at once restored it to the custody of the president, who was the designated custodian of the seal by resolution of June 2, 1772. It seems probable that the last colonial president, Mr. Isaac Low, took it with him on his retirement with the British troops in 1783, and that it afterwards found its way into the shop from whence it was rescued. The seal is in fine preservation, in the custody of the secretary, and is still used in the authentication of documents.—Colonial Records of the N. Y. Chamber of Commerce, 160, 325-26.
- 7 Trinity vestry orders "that the Water Lots No. 46,47, behind the Church be Leased to Daniel Coe of Orange County Shopkeeper for the Term of Forty two years from the Twenty fifth Day of March last at the Annual Rent of Six pounds for the first Twenty one years and Nine pounds for the last Twenty one years he being also obliged to Erect and build a Good and sufficient Wharfe within six Months from the Commencement of his Lease."—Trin. Min. (MS.).
- " "Resolved and Ordered that the Street in the Map of the Church Land called Greenwich street be extended in breadth to Sixty six feet and to be continued in a Direct Course through the Church Ground from the Corner of the North side of Chambers Street to the Oswego Market."—Ibid.
- " The situation of Samuel Francis's "Vauxhall" on the line of Warren St. (see Landmark Map Ref. Key, III; 981) is indicated in a vestry order which requires "that the Committee appointed to regulate Warren Street [see April 10] have also power (if they think proper) to build a Wall on the North West side of Samuel Francis's House to Support the Foundations of the said House."—Ibid. See May 20, 1773.
- " The common council orders the recorder and the several aldermen to be a committee "to Enquire into the State of the Bridewell, and Endeavour to fall upon ways & Means for putting the Same upon Some better Regulation."—M. C. C., VII: 356. This committee failed to present any report until April 7, 1773 (q.v.). For the early history of the bridewell, which name was, as yet, only applied to a few rooms set apart in the "New Goal," see Nov. 21, 1765; regarding the keeper's income, see Nov. 20, 1767.
- " A committee is appointed "to remove two of the fire Engines now under the City hall, & fix one in the West Ward and the Other in Montgomery Ward."—M. C. C., VII: 356. A payment of £21 was authorized, on Nov. 13, to be "applied towards Building a fire Engine House in Montgomery Ward."—Ibid., VII: 389. See Dec. 23, 1773.
- 15 The manner of raising money to pay for the new market, now completed on Conaro's lot (see March 31), is set forth in a "Scheme of a Lottery:" "For raising the sum of three hundred pounds, towards discharging the expenses of a market lately erected at the corner of Maiden-Lane, near the place where the old Oswego-market stood, in the Broad-Way. The Lottery to consist of two thousand five hundred tickets, at two dollars each. . . . N. B.—Not two blanks to a prize; Tickets to be had of Nicholas C. Bogert, Henry Roomo, Jonathan Lawrence, and all the neighbours about the market."—N. Y. Jour., June 25, 1772. The lot was purchased by a neighbourhood subscription, with bonds to secure the full amount.—M. C. C. (1784-1831), I: 463; De Voce, Market Book, 330.
- 20 A survey of this date in the Banker Collection in the N. Y. Public Library bears the title, "Plan of a parcel of Land situate and lying in the West Ward of the City of NY purchased from Mr Anthony Rutgers by the Governors of the Hospital to be erected May said City." The ground had a frontage of 440 feet on the west side of Broadway, between the present Duane and Worth Sts., and extended 340 ft. west to Church St. The corner-stone of the building was not laid until Sept. 3, 1773 (q.v.).
- 24 The last four companies of the 26th Regiment (see April 28) embark for Albany, "in order to proceed from thence for their Station in Canada. To do Justice to the Officers and private Men of this Regiment, we can affirm, that during their Residence in this City, they have behaved with such Order and Decorum, as gave universal Satisfaction to the Inhabitants."—N. Y. Merc., May 25, 1772.
- 25 "Since our last [ ] arrived here from Philadelphia, a Detachment of his Majesty's 21st Regiment of Foot or Royal North British Fuzileers."—N. Y. Merc., May 25, 1772.
- " Samuel Francis, in advertising this Queen's Head Tavern, also announces "that his gardens at Vaux-Hall, . . . are now open for the Summer season. . . ."—N. Y. Merc., May 25, 1772.
- 27 This is the date on a survey entitled "Plan of a parcel of Ground together with the Buildings erected thereon lying between Maiden Lane and John Street in the North Ward of the City of New York surveyed at the Request of Mr Anthony Rutgers." The places marked include a "Brick Stove," the "New Brick Coach House & 3," the "Kitchin," the "Brewery," and the "Dwelling House."—From the original in the Banker Collection, in the N. Y. Pub. Library (box G-N, folder 98). This is the present 43-59 Maiden Lane.—Description of Pl. 46 A-B, I: 358.
- 29 The provincial council receives a legal opinion concerning a letter from Thos. Sowers, captain of engineers, concerning the fortifications of New York City.—Cal. Coun. Min., 490.
- June 2 The 21st Regiment (see May 25) is reviewed near the city by Gen. Gage. "The Exercise was continued for several Hours, and exhibited a great Variety of Manœuvres and Modes of Attack, Defence, Advance and Retreat, &c. with Firings and Movements suitable to every Occasion in actual Service; all which were performed with surprizing Dexterity and Exactness, to the great Delight of every Spectator, but cannot be described, with Justice and Propriety, by a Person not Master of the Subject."—N. Y. Merc., June 8, 1772. Part of the regiment left on June 4 (q.v.).
- 3 Three companies of the 60th Regiment (Royal America's) arrive from Quebec.—N. Y. Merc., June 8, 1772. More of the regiment came on July 1 (q.v.).
- 4 The king's birthday is observed with "great Solemnity," but there is "every Demonstration of Joy . . . that could be expressed by a loyal People to a gracious Sovereign."—N. Y. Merc., June 8, 1772.
- " The first division, consisting of 3 companies of the 21st Regiment (see June 2), embarks for Albany, "on their way to Quebec."—N. Y. Merc., June 8, 1772. The last division embarked on June 19 (q.v.).
- " The provincial council orders that the account of John Faulkner, for making chairs for the council room, be paid out of the contingent fund.—Cal. Coun. Min., 491.
- 8 At midnight, a number of people in boats board the armed schooner "Gaspee" at Providence, Rhode Island, bind the crew, and send them ashore, and then set fire to the vessel. A pistol is "discharged by the Captain of the Schooner, and a musket or Pistol from one of the Boats," by which the captain is wounded. The ship is totally destroyed.—N. Y. Merc., June 22, 1772. This event "is considered by Rhode Island writers as the earliest aggressive conduct of the patriots."—Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., VI: 90. "The affair created a great sensation in England, and it was ordered that those engaged in it should be sent to England for trial. For this purpose the home government appointed colonial commissioners [see Dec. 29], who sat at Newport from the 4th to the 22d January, 1773, to inquire into the matter. At the end of their deliberations they required Watoon, the governor of Rhode Island, to arrest the offenders, for trial in England. He appealed for directions to the Assembly, as did Stephen Hopkins, the chief-justice of the highest court. That body referred the matter to the discretion of the chief-justice, and he accordingly refused to arrest, or to allow the arrest of, any person for transportation. Nothing came of the order except ill-humor in England and indignation in the colonies, where it was regarded as an invasion of their constitutional right of trial by their peers."—Ibid., VI: 53.
- 9 In a horse-race at Powles Hook, for a purse of £90, "Mr. Bud's Horse Liberty" beat "Mr. Cornell's Horse Tulip, and Capt.

1772 De Lancey's Horse Poppet." On the 10th, a purse of £50 was June won by "Mr. Water's Horse Auctioneer," which outover "Mr.
 9 Cornell's Horse Richmond, Mr. Elsworth's Horse Quicksilver, and Mr. Cornell's Horse Columbus."—N. Y. Merc., June 15, 1772.

11 Two companies of the "Royal Regiment of Artillery" march from the city "to encamp on Hempstead Plains for the Summer Season."—N. Y. Merc., June 15, 1772.

15 Gov. Tryon is informed that he has been elected a member of the Marine Society, because "The benevolent Sentiments which your Excellency was pleased to express when this Society had the Honour of addressing you, have laid them under an indispensable Obligation to give the most public Testimony in their Power, of the high Sense they entertain of your humane Disposition." On the 18th, Colden, who is alluded to as "their Founder" (see April 26, 1770), was similarly honoured.—N. Y. Merc., June 22, 1772.

16 "This Board having heretofore agreed to Grant to the Governors of the Hospital in the City of New York in America, the westernmost half of a Lot of Ground formerly belonging to John Harris, in order to erect a Hospital on [see Sept. 12, 1771], Since which the said Governors have purchased a Lot of Ground in Some more convenient place [see May 20], and now request the board to Contribute of a Sum of Money in Lieu thereof; Order'd therefore that this board Contribute to the said Hospital the Sum of one thousand pounds, to be in Lieu and Stead of the Grant of the aforesaid Ground."—M. C. C., VII: 364. A receipt for the £1,000 was presented to the board on Dec. 17, by the treasurer of the society.—Ibid., VII: 397.

" The Trinity Corporation again petitions the common council for the "Land and Soil fronting their Land on Hudsons River, beginning on the North Side of Vesey Street" and extending as described in the original petition (see Feb. 26, 1760, and April 7, 1769). This time the request is considered and agreed to. In payment, the corporation of the city is to receive forever "the Yearly Quit Rent of one Shilling p<sup>r</sup> foot for every foot so to be Granted them fronting Hudsons River," from the date of the grant.—
M. C. C., VII: 363. The water lots thus granted lay between Vesey and Barclay Sts., between Murray and Warren Sts., and between Warren and Chambers Sts. On June 22, Trinity Corporation received the report of its committee, announcing the favourable action of the common council.—Trin. Min. (MS.).

19 The last division of the 21st Regiment embarks for Albany.—
N. Y. Merc., June 22, 1772. See June 4.

22 "The Committee that was appointed to apply to the City Corporation [see June 16] for a Grant of the Water Lots fronting the Church Lands reported that the said Corporation had agreed to grant to this Corporation so much of the Water Lots fronting the Church Lands as lay between Vesey Street and Barclay Street also between Murray Street and Warren Street and between Warren Street and Chambers Street at the Rate of one Shilling p<sup>r</sup> foot.
 Ordered that the same Committee apply for the Grant accordingly."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

24 An advertisement informs the public that "The Stage Coach between New-York and Boston which for the first Time sets out this Day from Mr. Fowler's Tavern . . . at Fresh-Water, in New-York, will continue to go the Course between Boston and New-York, so as to be at each of those Places once a Fortnight, coming in on Saturday Evening and setting out to Return, by the Way of Hartford, on Monday Morning. The Price to Passengers, will be 4d. New-York, or 3d. lawful Money per Mile, and Baggage at a reasonable Rate. Gentlemen and Ladies who choose to encourage this useful, new, and expensive Undertaking, may depend upon good Usage, and that the Coach will always put up at Houses on the Road where the best Entertainment is provided. . . ."
N. Y. Jour., June 25, 1772. A New York penny was worth only 2/3 of a Boston penny because in New York eight shillings were reckoned equivalent to a Spanish dollar, and in Boston six shillings were so reckoned. Boston money was called "lawful" because its ratio to English sterling money had been regulated by law.—
Wright, Currencies of the Brit. Colonies in Am. (1765), li, lxxi;
Adler, Money & Money Units of the Am. Colonies, 1-3.

26 The common council orders the clerk to prepare the draft of a grant to the "Rector & Inhabitants of the City of New York in Communion with the Church of England" for a triangle of ground in the Out Ward of the city at the end of Bowers Lane (see Jan. 31), bounded by the road leading to Kingsbridge, the Bloomingdale Road, and the fence of Benjamin Nicoll, and terminating in the south where the Kingsbridge and Bloomingdale Roads separate.

This is to be used as the site for a church, school, and buryingground.—M. C. C., VII: 298-99; 365. This triangular plot of ground may be readily located on Pl. 41, Vol. I. It is now part of Madison Square. It was never actually granted to Trinity, the projected action never having been consummated (see Nov. 1, 1786, March 12 and Aug. 20, 1788, and June 24, 1789). Part of this triangle came into use, towards the latter part of the eighteenth century, as a burying-ground for the poor, or potter's field; but this use of the ground ceased in 1797.—M. C. C., (MS.), XII: 170.
 Part of the tract was granted, in 1807, to the United States Government for an arsenal.—Ibid., XVI: 262-64; XVII: 360. The arsenal later became the first home of the Society for the Reformation of Juvenile Delinquents—the House of Refuge. This was in the year 1824.—Ibid., L: 146-49.

The public is assured that the lottery "for raising a sum of money for building a safe and convenient harbour (so necessary for preserving the crafts, vessels and property of traders in general) on the North-River [see April 23], has met with great encouragement, and will certainly be drawn on the 15th of July next."— N. Y. Merc., June 29, 1772. No evidence appears that the drawing actually took place, or that the improvement contemplated was carried out.

" Scotch Street, for which one searches in vain in any plan of the city, can be identified as Ann St. by an advertisement in the Mercury: "To be sold at public Sale. . . . A House and Lot of Ground lying in Ann Street, commonly called Scotch-street, two Stories high, with a good Brick Wall all round."—N. Y. Merc., June 29, 1772. For earlier mention of this street, see March 8, 1770.

July The remainder of the third division of Royal Americans (see 1 June 3) arrives in the city.—N. Y. Merc., July 6, 1772. The regiment was reviewed on Aug. 8 (p. v.).

6 One of the attractions of Vauxhall Gardens, as announced by Mr. Francis, is "a number of Wax Figures as large as life, dressed in the newest and most elegant manner, representing their present Majesties, King George and Queen Charlotte, sitting on the throne, with their usual attendants, several of the nobility, &c. properly disposed in a large apartment genteely fitted for the purpose, and proper persons to shew the same, from eight in the morning till ten in the evening."—N. Y. Merc., July 6, 1772. Before July 27, Francis had added to his collection of wax figures the "Banquet in Macbeth, with the Appearance of Banquo's Ghost, and a large Gallery filled with Spectators," also "Harlequin and Columbines," finished "in a very pleasing Manner."—Ibid.,
 July 27, 1772.

10 The common council appoints a committee "to cause a Cover to be made over the fish market at Countesses Slip."—M. C. C., VII: 366. A payment of £201194 was ordered by the board on Dec. 2 in settlement of an account "for Building a fish Market;"
 and £10:17:14, a year later, for work done there.—Ibid., VII: 393, 462. Cf. April 16; and see De Voe, Market Book, 117. See also, regarding Centies (or the Great Fish) Market, Landmark Map Rei. Key, III: 958.

The engrossed grants to Augustus and Frederick van Cortlandt John Vredenburg, Joris and Henry Remson, Henry Holland, Waldron Blau, and William Milliner, "for the Water Lots in front of their Respective Dwelling Houses in the Dock Ward" are approved and signed by the mayor.—M. C. C., VII: 366; City Grants, Liber Deeds, I: 23; 28-38. These lots were situated on the south side of Water St., extending south into the East River, between Broad St. and Centies Slip.—See Jan. 29, 1767.

" The common council grants a petition for filling up Peck's Slip (see Aug. 24, 1767) "at the Expence of the Petitioners." This action followed the consideration of two petitions, one for filling up the one and the other against it.—M. C. C., VII: 365, 366. To compare the shore line before and after the filling, see Pls. 42 and 64, Vol. 1, the first depicting the city in 1766-7, the last, in 1796. On July 23, the board voted to contribute £15 "towards making the front wall across Peck's Slip."—M. C. C., VII: 368. The expense necessary "to Extend the drain" was also assumed by the board.—Ibid., 366, 397.

" Alderman Gautier lays before the board "an Account of the Cost of two fire Engines, belonging to Thomas Tiller—the largest of which this board agreed to purchase." He is "requested to purchase the Same."—M. C. C., VII: 366. On July 23, the board ordered that William Shipman be paid £137:11 for a fire-engine.—Ibid., VII:
 368. A committee was empowered, on Sept. 9, to buy an engine from Davis Hunt.—Ibid., VII: 373. Hunt was paid £90 on Sept.

1772 25.—Ibid., VII: 377. The city's first fire-engines were bought in 10 London (see May 6, 1731).

23 The board gives Elias Stilwell permission "to take into his Possession their Island Commonly called Bellows Island, and to occupy the Same until an order shall Issue from this board to the Contrary."—M. C. C., VII: 368. See Sept. 6, 1769.

Aug. 8 Gen. Gage reviews the first battalion of the Royal Americans (see July 1), in a field near the city.—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 10, 1772.
 See Sept. 7.

19 The ship "Grace" (220 tons) is launched from the yard of Messrs. Totten and Crossfield. "This Ship is esteemed one of the most complete Vessels, of her Burthen, that this Port has produced, even by the masterly Hands of these Builders, who seem continually to improve upon their own Work-Manship, and to attain still higher Degrees of Perfection."—N. Y. Merc., Aug. 24, 1772.
 The "Britannia" had been launched from the same yards three years earlier (see Aug. 17, 1769).

" A committee is appointed "to Confer with & Receive Proposals from the Proprietors of the Houses and Lots of Ground fronting the West Great Dock in the South Ward of this City relative to the Terms of their Obtaining Grants of said West Great Dock."—M. C. C., VII: 371. For the board's action in regard to this, see
 Sept. 17.

Sept. 7 "Since our last 6 Companies of his Majesty's 60th or Royal 7 American Regiment [see Aug. 8], embarked here for Elizabeth-Town, Amboy, and New-Brunswick, in New-Jersey."—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 7, 1772. The second battalion embarked on Oct. 31 (q. v.).

" The "Parsonage House," where Mr. Treat, the Presbyterian minister, lives, is in need of repair. The "Roofs of the Dormant [sic] Windows are in Bad Repair; and the Fence wants a Board added to its Height; and a Post put down."—Proceedings of the Trustees of the First Presby. Ch. ("Wall Street Church"), Vol. I.

8 The provincial council provides a charter of incorporation for a public library to Wm. Smith, John Watts, Robert R. Livingston, Whitehead Hicks, Wm. Livingston, Goldsboro Banyar, Samuel Jones, Peter van Brugh Livingston, Peter Keteltas, Walter Rutherford, David Clarkson, and Samuel Bard.—Cal. Coun. Min., 567.
 See Oct. 12.

9 Mayor Hicks communicates to the common council a request received from William Walton and Stephen de Lancy "for the Loan of some of the Citys Arms. . . . to discipline their Respective Companys." De Lancy and Walton have promised to "Give Security for the return of the same when required." The board accedes to the request.—M. C. C., VII: 373.

" The place in the West Ward designated for this month's municipal elections is "in the west end of the Market that fronts the Broadway" (see March 31 and May 15).—M. C. C., VII: 374.
Cf. Sept. 14, 1771. This order was changed at the next meeting to "the Southmost Market at the north River Commonly Called Messers Market."—Ibid., VII: 375.

" The common council gives orders for the erection of a "Stone Stoop" in front of the "New Goal," provided the expense for the same does not exceed £30. Payment of £30:12 for the same was authorized on Dec. 2.—M. C. C., 373, 393.

17 Water lots are granted by the common council to "the Proprietors of the Houses & Lots of Ground fronting the West Great Dock" (see June 3, 1768). Five shillings quit-rent yearly they are to pay to the city "for every foot they Shall hold upon the River."—M. C. C., VII: 376.

29 John Harris Cruger is appointed "Treasurer or Chamberlain to this Corporation" by the common council. The board made this choice after "taking into Consideration the Advanced Age and bodily Infirmities of Isaac De Peyster Esq<sup>r</sup> their Present Chamberlain; and also considering that greater Activity and Diligence is required for the punctual Discharge of the said Office than can reasonably be expected [expected] of him." De Peyster had served "upwards of Twenty Years successively," and the thanks of the board are tendered him "for his Loog and faithful Service."—M. C. C., VII: 379-80. De Peyster, it seems, was disinclined to retire, for though he was ordered, on Oct. 14, to deliver in his accounts and, on Nov. 13, to appear before the board in relation to them, he did not settle matters until Feb. 17, 1773.—M. C. C., VII: 383-84, 390, 402. Cruger's name is mentioned as associated with the office of chamberlain as late as Feb. 28, 1776 (Ibid., VIII: 130), and he was doubtless serving at the time when municipal government was disrupted by the military operations of the Revolution (see May 24, 1776).

The provincial council approves the draft of a charter for the Society Library.—Cal. Coun. Min., 567.

12 On this date Gov. Tryon administered oaths to the municipal 14 officers at his house "on the Hill near Grinage."—M. C. C., VII:
 381-82. This was Richmond Hill house, formerly occupied by Abraham Mortier. See Nov. 23.

" Alderman Blagge, who has served on the board several years, and by virtue of his office is also justice of the peace for the N. Y.
 County, has recently been appointed county coroner by the governour. The board now votes to seek the opinion of several "Gentlemen of the Law" as to the legality of his holding both offices.—M. C. C., VII: 383. A legal decision was never rendered. Blagge resigned as coroner, and Gov. Tryon appointed Blagge's son, John, to the office.—Ibid., VII: 419.

19 Under this date there is recorded in the Minutes a list of 158 firemen belonging to the several fire-engines. They are listed by wards and are said to be "under the Command of Jacobus Stouten-burgh Engineer and Isaac Stoutenburgh, George Staaton & Jacob Rhome Assistants."—M. C. C., VII: 385-87. A legislative act, of Feb. 6, 1773 (q. v.), provided for an increase of 20 men.—*Cal. Laws
 N. Y.*, V: 456-57.

21 The provincial council makes an allowance for firewood for the Royal Artillery camping on Nassau Island.—Cal. Coun. Min., 493.

31 The second battalion of the 60th Regiment embarks "on board the Transports destined for the Island of Antigua." Since their arrival in the city (see June 3), the soldiers "have conducted themselves greatly to the Satisfaction, and deserving the Applause of the Inhabitants of this City, which certainly the good Conduct of the Gentlemen Officers contributes very much to their own Honour, and the Behaviour of their Inferiors."—N. Y. Merc., Nov.
 9, 1772. See also Sept. 7.

Nov. The Chamber of Commerce orders a payment of £37 to Mr.
 Pratt "for taking Governor Colden's portrait" (see April 2, 1771).
 A committee is appointed to have it framed and "placed in the Chamber," where it still hangs.—Col. Recs. N. Y. Chamber of Commerce, 169.

5 Judge Robert R. Livingston writes to the Earl of Dartmouth that he has been "five times chosen Representative for the Manor of Livingston in General Assembly," but that the members have excluded him on the ground that "no Judge of the Supreme Court should sit or vote in the House." He considers "this assumption of power in the Assembly . . . injurious to His Majesty's just authority," and feels it his duty to lay the case before Dartmouth.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 318-20.

7 John Montresor buys Belle Isle, in the East River, formerly known as Little Barn Island, and then as Talbot's Island.—Montresor's Jour., 126. See Feb. 3, 1668.

9 Gov. Tryon grants a charter to certain "loving subjects" of the king as "The Trustees of the New York Society Library."
 They are commissioned to erect a public library which shall "for ever hereafter be called by the name of, The New-York Society Library."—*Charter, Bye-Laws and Names of Members of the N. Y. Soc.
 Library* (1789), 3-11.

10 A plan of the ground between Coenties Slip and Whitehall Slip, showing the Albany pier and basin and the exchange at this time, and bearing this date, is reproduced and described as A. Pl. 5-a, Vol. III.

13 A petition, endorsed "Read & filed November the 13th 1772," is presented to the common council by "the proprietors, and Inhabitants, adjacent to White Hall Slip," declaring that this slip is "rather a Nuisance, than a Conveniency," and asking "That liberty may be given, that the said Slip may be filled up, as far to the Souther'd, as the house of Mf John Martin, and from that in a line, to the Battery, or in such manner, as to the Worshipful Board, shall appear most convenient."—From the original petition filed in metal file No. 6, in city clerk's record-room. The board orders that the petitioners be permitted "to fill up said Slip, as far to the South ward, as to Range with the Corner of the Street, that adjoins the House of John Martin & no farther."—M. C. C., VII: 389. A manuscript list, dated July 19, 1773, of subscribers who promise to pay the city for filling up a part of Whitehall Slip "and running a wall across" is preserved in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. A later record (see April 27, 1774) shows the corporation itself expending £100 in completing the work.

20 The "Air Furnace belonging to Messrs Sharp and Curtenius [see Aug. 20, 1767], in the West-Ward of this City," is almost totally destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at about £400.—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 23, 1772.

1772 "The Gov<sup>t</sup> sent for me to the Hill (formerly Mortiers Country Nov. House). . . . In coming Home a Foot with Fanning—He told me that the Gov<sup>t</sup> had such Dejections at Times, that he was obliged to give up his Government That he found it impossible to 23 please—That the Spirit of Party deprived him of confidential & agreeable Friendships, as the Jealousy he was obliged to oppose to the Jealousy of Parties for the Dignity of Govern<sup>t</sup> obliged him to be shy.—That he was obliged to act as it were alone.—That he could get no Credit with any Body.—That he had insolent Requests from both Parties—That there was a painful Vigilance to be maintained & that the Business he had to do was various and immense—That his Temper would not permit him to neglect any Thing, & that Nothing but a Fear of Expeince in England prevented his Return Home.

"I advised him to cast his Labour upon the Council, to continue indifferent to both Parties—to live more temperately by keeping less Company, & assured him that his Conduct had not only preserved Peace, but that he stood in high Reputation all along the Continent as a spirited able Gov<sup>t</sup>—That he had nothing to Fear, & that the Parties favored his Power as both courted his Smiles.—That he could do what he pleased

"From the whole I begin to apprehend that there is a struggle between his Pride, which is great, & his Fears which are the Effect of ill Health—I wish the latter may not gain strength, & falling in with an Indisposition to Business, induce him to cast himself upon the Council, who are as yet . . . with the De Lanceys."— Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.

Dec. 1. Gov. Tryon writes to the lords of the committee of the privy council: "It is not uncommon, My Lords, to find in New or Infant Colonies, several distinct offices engrossed by one person, and it is owing to the low State of their business; but when the increase of the Country takes away the necessity of these Monopolies, their inexpediency must be very manifest, the public becomes ill served, and the Govern<sup>t</sup> weakened . . . I think it my duty therefore to apprise your Lordships of the nature and variety of the employments exercised here by Mr [George] Clarke [Jr].

"He is Clerk of the privy Council, Clerk of the Legislative Council, and Clerk for the Court for appeals in Error. He is Secretary, and as such, all civil Commissions, Grants, patents, pardons, and every instrument passing the great seal goes thro' and returns to his hands to be recorded. . . . He is also Clerk of the Supreme Court. . . . Mr Clarke alone has the keeping of all the minutes pleadings and Records that belong to this Court with the Custody and all the profits of the seal, for he is sole Clerk of all that immense variety of business which in three of the Great Courts of Westminster is parcelled out to so many different officers. . . .
He is therefore . . . Prothonotary, Chief Clerk, Clerk of the Crown, Secondary Filazer, Chirographer Examiner, Clerk of the Judgements, Clerk of the Dockets, Clerk of the enrolments, Clerk of the Essoins, and has some other offices of less consideration.

"I am not able to inform your Lordships of the amount of the income of these employments, which have been in the hands of the Petitioner and his Father or their Deputy . . . for near seventy years."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 326-27. Valentine asserts that the emoluments were considered as lucrative as those of the Governor.—Man. Com. Coun. (1864), 572. For an earlier reference to Clarke, see June 24, 1738.

"Lieut-Gov. Colden, now 85 years old, writes to the Earl of Dartmouth (the new secretary of state for the colonies) that he has not yet been reimbursed for his losses of Nov. 1, 1765 (q.v.), and has been put to expense in defending himself against the suit of Duomore (see Nov. 10, 1770). For reparation, he now asks a salary as lieutenant-governour from Oct. 18, 1770, the date of Duomore's arrival.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 327-30. This was refused.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 347-48.

"The common council authorizes the payment of £116 "for liquors delivered out at one of the late fires."—M. C. C., VII: 394.
As shown by the Minutes both before and after the Revolution,
it was a prevailing custom to furnish workmen with liquor.

"The Governor's Guards, Grenadiers, Light-Infantry, Rangers, &c. (being the Independent Companies of this City)" are publicly reviewed for the first time. Newspaper reports of the occasion say:
"His Excellency Governor Tryon, and the other superior Officers, with a splendid Assembly of the principal Ladies and Gentlemen, appeared in the Field. The Officers of the several Companies, perform'd their Parts, in their respective Departments, with great Skill and Regularity; and the Meo went thro' the different Exercises and Manoeuvres, with an Order and Dexterity, which did them much Honour. In fine, the Neatness of their Uniforms, the Readiness and Grace with which the various Evolutions were performed, and the Propriety observable on the whole, gave much Satisfaction to the numerous Spectators, and must be agreeable to every one who wishes to see a well disciplin'd Militia amongst us. After the Business of the Day was concluded, a splendid Entertainment was given to the Officers, by their worthy Commander the Governor."—N. Y. Merc., Dec. 7, 1772; N. Y. Jour., Dec. 10, 1772. Cf. N. Y. Merc., Dec. 14, 1772 and Tryon's letter to Dartmouth in N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 341-42, which give the date of the review as Dec. 7. The independent companies were formed by "some Gentlemen of the first families and distinction" who had received commissions for that purpose from the government "On condition, that they clothed, armed & accoutred them at their own expense."—Ibid.

An advertisement states that "James Gilliland, Near the Old City Hall, Teacher of Writing, Merchants Accounts, Navigation, Dialing, Gauging, Surveying, and Measuring in general, &c. according to the most Modern and approved Methods; will open a Night School, on Monday the 4th of January next."—
N. Y. Merc., Dec. 14, 1772.

A report is made of the furniture in the New York barracks.—
Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 812. See ibid., 806 (May 6).

"We can with Confidence assure the Public, That about 28 10 Days ago, there was at one Time, in the different Slips of this Harbour, no less than 600,000 Oysters for Sale."—N. Y. Merc.,
Dec. 28, 1772.

Daniel Horsmanden, chief-justice of the supreme court of New York, and Fredrick Smyth, New Jersey's chief-justice, sail for Rhode Island "to execute the Commission lately arrived for Enquiring into the Burning of the Gaspay Schooner last June at Providence [see June 8]—Horsmanden informed me a week before, that they were to send Home the Accused as Traitors, & report concerning the Conduct of the Colony . . . Oliver De Laency upon hearing the Nature of the Com<sup>d</sup> discovered his Disgust at it.
I conclude that the Party will again set up the Cry of Liberty;

"I to regain Credit with the Multitude

"2 And by that to acquire Courage to reduce the Spirit of the Gov<sup>t</sup>, who is too independent" to please them."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV. See Jan. 4, 1773.

"Resolved that the Thanks of this Board and also a piece of Plate of the Value of Thirty-Guineas be presented to the Reverend Doctor Myles Cooper 2d Pres. of King's College for his services in procuring a Remission of the Quit Rents on the Tract of Land lately granted to this Corporation. . . ."—Trin. Min. (MS.).

A list is prepared of the books, etc., in the provincial secretary's office.—N. Y. Col. MSS., Vol. XCIX (Albany), lost in capitol fire.

1773

At about this time (probably shortly before) was drawn the large Atlantic Neptune View of New York from the south-west (the engraved title reads from the north-west). This view, which shows very clearly the fort and the buildings which it contained at this period, as well as Trinity and the other churches, extends as far north as the ferry to Paulus Hook, and is one of the finest, rarest, and most important views of the city. It is reproduced and described in Vol. I, Pl. 44.

Pres. Myles Cooper, of King's College, thus described the college as it was at this time: "The College is situated on a dry gravelly soil, about one hundred and fifty yards from the bank of the Hudson river, which it overlooks; commanding from the eminence on which it stands, a most extensive and beautiful prospect of the opposite shore and country of New Jersey, the City and Island of New York, Long Island, Staten Island, New-York Bay with its Islands, the Narrows, forming the mouth of the Harbor, etc., etc.; and being totally unencumbered by any adjacent buildings, and admitting the purest circulation of air from the river, and every other quarter, has the benefit of as agreeable and healthy a situation as can possibly be conceived."—Moore, An Historical Sketch of Columbia College (1846), 56.

In this year, it is not unlikely that the Post-Boy suspended publication.—See Early N. Y. Newspapers, II: 427; cf. however, the "Bibliography of Am. newspapers," in Am. Antiquarian Proceedings (1917), XXVII (N. S.): 445-47.

In this year, Caleb Hyatt erected his tavern (Liber Deeds, XLIV: 169; Liber Mortgages, XX: 119) at what is now the west

New-York, Sunday 23d April, 1775.

The following interesting Advices, were this Day received here, by two Vessels from Newport, and by an Express by Land.

SIR,
THIS evening intelligence hath been received, that about 1200 of the regular troops, have proceeded from Boston toward Concord; and having fired on the inhabitants, and killed a number of them, at Lexington, are now actually engaged to butchering and destroying our brethren in the most inhuman manner. The inhabitants opposed them with zeal and courage, and numbers have already fallen on both sides. Reinforcements were on their way, at 10 o'clock from Boston, and the provincials were alarmed, and mustering as fast as possible. It appears necessary therefore, that we immediately make some provision for their assistance, and his honour, the lieutenant governor, desires your immediate attendance, to advise and order in that behalf; he being very ill, occasions my writing in his behalf. We shall impatiently wait your arrival, as numbers are ready, and wait only for orders to proceed.

The country's friend and yours,
signed

STEPHEN HOPKINS.

Providence, Wednesday night, (19th) 10 o'clock.

Providence, April 9, 1775.

Having received advice that our brethren in Massachusetts-Bay, are attacked by a body of regular troops, and that many of our friends are slain: There are to request your honour, that you will be pleased to call the General Assembly of this colony to meet together as soon as possible, on Monday next, at farthest, that they may make such necessary provision for the common defence, as shall be thought necessary.

We are your honour's obedient servants,
To Governor Wanton.

Signed by 20 of the principal inhabitants of Providence.

Watertown, Wednesday near 10 o'clock, 19th April, 1775.

TO all friends of American Liberty, be it known, that this morning, before break of day a brigade, consisting of about 1000 or 1200 men, landed at Phips's farm, at Cambridge, and marched to Lexington, where they found a company of our colony militia in arms, upon whom they fired without any provocation, killed 6 men, and wounded 4 others.

By an express from Boston, we find another brigade are on their march from Boston, supposed to be about 1000.—The bearer, Israel Biddel, is charged to alarm the country quite to Connecticut, and all persons are desired to furnish him with fresh horses, as they may be needed.—I have spoke with several who have seen the dead and wounded; pray let the Delegates from this colony to Connecticut see this, they know Col. Foster of Brookfield one of the Delegates.

J. Palmer, one of the Committee of S.

A true copy taken from the original, per order of the committee of correspondence for Worcester, April 18th, 1775.

Brookline, Thursday, 11 o'clock. The above is a true copy, received per express, forwarded from Worcester.

Attell. Daniel Tyler, jun.
Norwich, Thursday, 4 o'clock. The above is a true copy as sent by express from Mr. Tyler.

Attell. Christopher Leflingwell.

New-London, Thursday evening 7 o'clock. A true copy of express. Richard Law, Samuel H. Parfoss, Nathan Shaw, jun. William Coit, committee.

Lyme, Friday, Morning 10 o'clock. A true copy as received per express.—John Laynd, John McCurdy, William Noyes, Samuel Mather, jun. committee.

Saybrook, Friday morning 4 o'clock. A true copy as received per express. Samuel Field, John Cochran, Richard Dickinson.

Killingworth, Friday morning 7 o'clock.—Forwarded as received per express. George Elliot, Samuel Gale, committee.

East Guilford, Friday morning 8 o'clock.—Forwarded as received per express. Timothy Todd, Isaac Knight, committee.

Guilford Friday morning 10 o'clock. Forwarded as received per express. Samuel Brown, and ——— Landon, committee.

Branford, Friday at noon. Received and forwarded by Samuel Barker, one of the committee.

New-Haven, April 21. Received and forwarded upon certain intelligence, per Samuel Bishop, Joseph Munson, Timothy Jones, David Aulstis, Isaac Doolittle, Daniel Lyman, committee.

Fairfield, Saturday 2nd, 8 o'clock. Forwarded as per express from New-Haven. G. Selleck Silliman, Thaddeus Burr, Job Bartram, Andrew Rowland, Jonathan Sturges, committee.

Since the above written, we have received the following by second express.

SIR, Thursday 3 o'clock afternoon. I am this moment informed by express from Woodstock, taken from the mouth of the express, that arrived there at two o'clock P. M. that the contest between the first brigade, that marched to Concord, was still continuing this morning at the town of Lexington, to which town the said brigade had retired: That another brigade, said to be the second, mentioned in the letter of this morning, had landed with a quantity of artillery, at the place where the first did.—The provincials were determined to prevent the two brigades from joining their strength, if possible and remain in great need of succour.

N. B. The regulars, when in Concord, burnt the court house, took two pieces of cannon, which they rendered useless, and began to take up Concord bridge, on which Captain ——— (who, with many on both sides, were soon killed) then made an attack upon the King's troops, on which they retreated to Lexington.

I am, your humble servant, Eb. Williams.

To Col. Obadiah Johnson, at Canterbury.

P. S. Mr. Tarland, of Camfield—merchant, has just returned from Boston, by way of Providence, who conversed with an express from Lexington, who further informs, that about 4000 of our troops had surrounded the first brigade, abovementioned, who were on a hill in Lexington; that the action then continued, and there were about 900 of our men killed, and 120 of the regulars, as near as they could determine, when the express came away; it will be expedient for every man to go, who is fit and willing.

The above is a true copy as received per express from New-Haven, and attested in by committees of correspondence, from town to town. Attell Jonathan Sturges, Andrew Rowland, G. Selleck Silliman, Thaddeus Burr, Job Bartram.

- 1773 side of Broadway, opposite the opening of Muscoota St. This well-known road-house remained here at least until 1819, as it is shown on Rand's Map of that year, Pl. 86, Vol. III. Muscoota St. is at the upper end of Mahattah Id. near Kingsbridge.—See Landmark Map, Pl. 180, Vol. III.
- William G. Forbes, admitted as a freeman of New York in this year, was one of the early American silversmiths. Records show that he was a member of the Gold and Silver Smiths' Society in 1786, and of Mechanics' Institute in 1802. Two smelts basins and a bowl made by him are described in Met. Museum of Art Cat. of Exhibition of Silver used in N. Y., N. J. and the South (1911), 24-25.
- Jan. This being New Year's Day, a royal salute is fired "under the Ramparts of Fort George . . . with two Brass Field Six Pounders, by the first Royal Artillery Independent Company of Militia of the City of New-York." As all the officers and men perform "their Duty with great Expertness and Regularity," they meet with "the general Approbation of all the Spectators."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 4, 1773.
- " Gov. Tryon presents, "through the Hands of Doctor Auchmuty . . . a complete Set of rich and elegant Hangings of crimson Damask for the Pulpit, Reading Desk, and Communion Table;—a Folio Bible, and several Folio Prayer Books, with a full Service of Plate, &c. for the Administration of the Lord's Supper, for the Use and Service of St. George's Chapel. Such a generous Donation must endear his Excellency to every Friend of Religion and Virtue."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 4, 1773.
- 4 " An extract of a letter from "a Gentleman of Character in London," printed in the Mercury, reads: "I hear your Militia are put on a good Footing, and that you are marching and counter-Marching: It is well; but I am most desirous you should fortify; as sure as you live if you do not, the Town will be burnt about your Ears in the next War; and in a couple of Years, or sooner, such an Event is like to take Place."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 4, 1773.
- " Smith records in his diary: "Schuyler dined in a Family way with the Gov<sup>t</sup> who expressed his Uneasiness about the Rhode Island Affair [see June 8, 1772]—The Spirit of Party in the Province . . . He is sickly and fearful—I foresee a Storm, and certainly the De Lancays will lead or drive . . . He complained of a Want of Friends."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.
- " In this and several subsequent issues of his paper, Hugh Gainé advertises "Ratser's large and small Plans of the City of New York [see Pls. 41 and 42, Vol. I], to be sold very cheap."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 4, 1773. The plans had been advertised separately at earlier dates (see Aug. 21, 1769, and Oct. 15, 1770).
- 6 Gov. Tryon, in a message to the assembly, says: "I have been obliged to order considerable repairs to be made to the mansion house in Fort George to make it habitable; the estimates of which shall be laid before you." He adds that "The sum of money voted the last sessions, for repairing the battery in Fort George, has been appropriated to such necessary, useful and ornamental purposes, as afford the clearest demonstration of the expediency and propriety of that vote, and cannot fail of giving satisfaction to the public."—Assemb. Jour. (1773), 4. On Feb. 18, the assembly resolved to allow him £1,764:14:2 "for sundry repairs in Fort George, and the Mansion house therein, and on the battery."—Ibid., 69. See also Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 814 (Jan. 26).
- 8 The trustees of the New York Society Library advertise that they have received a charter of incorporation (see Nov. 9, 1772), and will now admit new members upon the payment of £5 each.—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 11, 1773. Cf. Jan. 14.
- 13 Smith says that Tryon "has an Assembly who fear him as they will be ruined by a Dissolution, & a Council who will lose their Power if they lose the Assembly."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.
- 14 The directors of the Union Library Society inform the public "that the Subscription Money which gives a Right in their Society, is fixed at the small Sum of Thirty Shillings; tho' the Library consists of near One Thousand Volumes, and is continually receiving new Additions." There were then 140 members in the society.—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 14, 1773. See April 11, 1774.
- " "Henry William Stiegel, Proprietor of the first American flint-glass manufactory, in Pennsylvania, is just arrived in this city, and opened a warehouse near the Exchange, the corner opposite to Mr. Waldron's, . . ." He announces that his "stay in town will be very short, . . ."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 14, 1773. Stiegel Jan. 14
- will be very short, . . ."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 14, 1773. Stiegel glassware, which was finer and possessed more beauty and originality than any glass hitherto manufactured in America, is well known to modern collectors. It was manufactured at Manheim, Pennsylvania.
- Gov. Tryon sends a message to the assembly regarding the hospital.—Cal. Hist. MSS., Eng., 813.
- 18 "At Mr. Cox's Long-room near the Liberty pole, to-morrow Evening the 19th inst. will be exhibited, the celebrated Lecture on Heads, with singing . . . Tickets 5s. each."—N. Y. Merc., Jan. 18, 1773. This was at Hamden Hall, corner of Warren St. and Broadway. On Jan. 28, an "Exhibitor" (probably the same lecturer) announces a lecture on the 29th on the same subject, and gives a long list of his illustrations. This was to be "At Mr. De la Montagne's Long Room, At the King's Arms, near the Liberty Pole."—N. Y. Jour., Jan. 28, 1773. See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 979.
- In a message to the assembly, Gov. Tryon says: "The increase of inhabitants in this colony, as well as the extent of its settlements since the late war, having necessarily multiplied the business of the courts of law, and rendered the duty of the judges proportionably burthensome and expensive, an addition to their salary is become essential to the advancement of justice, and proper for the due support of the honor of government."—Assemb. Jour. (1773), 41-42.
- 5 A committee of the assembly suggests that, to remedy the evil of counterfeiting the paper currency of the colony, some device difficult to imitate be engraved, and copies of it pasted upon the bills. This device, in their opinion, might represent "an eye in a cloud,—a cart and coffin,—three felons on a gallows,—a weeping father amid mother, with several small children,—a burning pit,—human figures forced into it by fiends, and a label with these words, "Let the name of a Money Maker rot."—Assemb. Jour. (1773), 50. See March 8.
- " "The De Lancays are certainly uneasy under him [Tryon], & mean either to ensnare him for the Introduction of L<sup>d</sup> Dunmore or Sir Wm Draper, or to hoist a bloody Flag to intimidate him."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.
- 6 The legislature passes an act "to increase the Number of Firemen in the City of New York." This provides that 20 men shall be added to the existing number.—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 456-57. See Dec. 31, 1768, and Oct. 19, 1772.
- " The legislature passes an act "to prevent the Defacing the Statues which are erected in the City of New York." This provides that anyone found damaging the statues of George III and William Pitt (see Aug. 16 and Sept. 7, 1770) shall be fined £500.—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 457.
- " The act of May 4, 1754 (q. v.), empowering the "Mayor Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New York, and their Successors to prevent & remove the particular Nusances within the same to the Southward of Fresh Water," is by the legislature extended to the Out Ward.—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 455-56.
- 7 Tryon writes to the Earl of Dartmouth that almost every great seal sent from Great Britain arrives in this country "defaced and reduced to a small Lump of wax." This is due, he says, to "its being chiefly composed of Rosin which is reduced to powder by the friction of the voyage;" but if the seals were "formed of a proper mixture of Bees wax and Turpentine without any Rosin, they would arrive uninjured." The validity of instruments, such as commissions, has been doubted when the great seal is defaced.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 349.
- 8 Gov. Tryon, in a letter to the Earl of Dartmouth, says: "The Governors, My Lord, of His Majesty's Colonies on this Continent, meet with many Thorns in the Paths of their Administrations, and if they are not allowed on extraordinary emergencies, to put a liberal interpretation on his Majesty's instructions, and the Kings Ministers as liberal a construction on the Governor's Conduct, the most faithful servant of the Crown in that Station, cannot long keep his ground, or preserve his Govern<sup>t</sup> in peace."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 350.
- 15 A prospectus in the form of a broadside announces that "James Rivington, Bookseller, Printer, and Stationer, In New-York. Proposes to publish a Weekly News-Paper, every Thursday, differing materially in its Plan from most others now extant; He has been honoured with Encouragement from the first Personages in this Country, and now begs Leave to solicit the public Patronage in Behalf of Rivington's New-York Gazetteer; or The Connecticut,

- 1773 New-Jersey, Hudson's-River and Quebec Weekly Advertiser. He will communicate the most important Events, Foreign and Domestic. . . . The New Inventions in Arts and Sciences, Mechanics and Manufacturers, Agriculture and Natural History, together with a regular Journal of the Proceedings in Parliament, and the Speeches . . . shall be constantly inserted. . . . In short, every Particular that may contribute to the Improvement, Information and Entertainment of the Public, shall be constantly conveyed through the Channel of the New-York Gazetteer. . . . Subscriptions for this Paper, at Twelve Shillings, New-York, Currency, a Year, are taken at Mr. Nicholas Brooks's, near the Coffee-House, in Market-Street, where a Book is open for that Purpose.—From the photostat in the N. Y. Pub. Library (Evans, 12982). Under date of March 8, Rivington published the same announcement in the N. Y. Merc. of March 15 and 18. For his first issue of the new sheet, see April 22.
- 15 " There is advertised: "To be Let, (And enter'd upon the first day of March next) The country seat (situated about four miles from this city) at present occupied by his Excellency General Gage; it contains about 20 acres of laod, under fine improvement; the garden affording in abundance almost every vegetable, together with a fine collection of fruit, and the meadow produces yearly upwards of thirty loads of clover, besides an improved spot of lucern. The house, kitchen, barn and stables in good order; a full prospect down the East River to Corlears Hook, from the house; an excellent landing which admits a boat that will carry eight or ten cords of wood, to the dock. It is without dispute quite an elegant situation. For particulars, apply to Mrs. Provost, on Golden-Hill, next door to Benjamin Kissam's, Esq."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 15, 1773. The house was still being advertised on April 26.—Ibid., April 26, 1773. Gage departed for England on June 8 (q. v.).
- 16 Gov. Tryon sends this message to the assembly: "As there is not among his Majesty's ordnance belonging to this province any field artillery, and as such may be extremely necessary upon emergencies, I would recommend to you to make provision for obtaining a few short brass field pieces.
- "At the same time I must apply to you for a supply of gun powder, as the small quantity remaining in Fort George when I arrived in the province is now expended."—Assemb. Jour. (1773), 62. These matters were provided for on March 8 (q. v.).
- 17 The new city chamberlain (see Sept. 29, 1772) is authorized by the common council "to sue for all such Debts as now are, & shall hereafter Grow due & belong to this Corporation."—M. C. C., VII: 403.
- 20 Mr. Walton lays before the assembly "sundry accounts of monies" expended by himself and Mr. Jauncey in repairing the battery in the city of New York, and "making carriages for the guns therein."—Assemb. Jour. (1773), 75. See March 8.
- 22 The common council complains (cf. "IV" under March 6), in a petition to Gov. Tryon, that Benjamin Blagge, an alderman and justice of the peace of the city and county of New York, was commissioned last October, under the great seal of the province, as a coroner,—an office which, under the laws of England and the charter of the city, he could not occupy while holding the other two. They ask that, as his appointment to the office of coroner is void, the governor will appoint another person to fill the office.—M. C. C., VII: 405-8. The original draft of this petition is preserved in metal file No. 6, city clerk's record-room. The governor replied, on May 3 (q. v.), that he had nominated Blagge's son, John, to succeed to the office of coroner, the father having resigned.—Ibid., VII: 419.
- An advertisement informs the public that "Sharpe Curtenius, and Lyle, Have rebuilt (at a considerable expence) The New-York Air-Furnace [see April 20, 1767] In a more completer manner than before it was burnt down [see Nov. 20, 1772], and as they have provided themselves with a sufficient stock of pig metal, &c. they propose to carry on the foundry business in all its Branches with great diligence, and flatter themselves that the friends of America will encourage them, by preferring goods manufactured in their own country, especially when they are as good, and sold as cheap as they can be imported from Europe."—N. Y. Merc., Feb. 22, 1773.
- The harbour is so full of ice that many people walk "over the East River to Long-Island, and back again."—N. Y. Merc., March 1, 1773.
- The following resolutions are passed at a town-meeting in Mendon, Mass.: "Z. Resolved, That all Men have naturally an equal Right to Life, Liberty and Property. Therefore,
- "2. Resolved, That all just and lawful Government must necessarily originate in the free Consent of the People.
- "3. Resolved, That the Good, Safety & Happiness of the People is the great End of Civil Government; and must be considered as the only rational Object, in all original Compacts & Political Institutions.
- "4. Resolved, That a Principle of Self-preservation, being deeply planted by the God of Nature in every Humane Breast, is . . . necessary, not only to the well-being of Individuals; but also to the Order of the Universe . . . Therefore
- "5. Resolved, That a voluntary Renunciation of any Powers or Privileges, included in, or necessarily connected with a Principle of Self-preservation, is manifestly acting counter to the Will of the great Author of Nature, the supreme Legislator. Therefore
- "6. Resolved, That a Right to Liberty & Property (which are natural Means of Self-preservation) is absolutely unalienable; and can never lawfully be given up by ourselves, or taken from us by others."—Bryant & Gay, Popular Hist. of U. S., III: 472; Am. Antiquarian Soc. Proceedings (April 27, 1870), 13. Winsor thinks these are probably the earliest "ebullitions" of independence.—Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., VI: 257. For the "Mecklenburg Resolves," see May 31, 1775.
- "Last Week his Excellency our Governor ordered 100 Cords of Fire Wood to be distributed amongst the Poor of this City, the greatest Part of which the indigent have already received from his bountiful Hand."—N. Y. Merc., March 1, 1773.
- "The Tan-Yard, at the Fresh-Water, belonging to the Estate of Mr. John Robins, deceased" is offered for lease.—N. Y. Merc., March 7, 1773. See March 23.
- Dartmouth writes to Gov. Tryon: "A well regulated Militia is certainly a very constitutional establishment and it will be a satisfaction to me to find that the act passed by the legislature of New York for that purpose has been framed in such a manner as to be liable to no objection; at the same time it does not appear to me that this is in the present moment, so much an object of attention as to require any new or particular managements, that may either induce the necessity of greater burthens upon the people, or divert them from the pursuit of those more useful arts, which ought to be cultivated in times of so great public tranquility."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 356.
- The assembly resolves that a sum not exceeding £400 be applied in repairing the barracks in the city of New York.—Assemb. Jour. (1773), 88. Gov. Tryon had requested £590 for that purpose.—Ibid., 83.
- "We have had a long Session of the Assembly ever since the 7 Jan<sup>y</sup> . . . It has had and will have lasting Effects. I date from it the Abatement if not the Ruin of the Power of the De Lancey Family, and the Waltons & Crugers. . . . They have lost their Influence in Town, in the Assembly and in the Council, unless by some unforeseen Event they can restore it—Many Causes contributed to it—I will enumerate such as I recollect—
- "I The People have discovered in the 3 Families a Rage for Offences. . . .
- "II The Detection of a Design to govern the Gov<sup>r</sup> or drive him away for the Return of L<sup>d</sup> Dunmore—Tryon was popular and the High Church particularly attached to him. . . .
- "III The Merchants turned upon the City Members for cheating them in a Bill to amend the Flour Act. The Affair appeared to stand thus.
- "Our Flour had got into Repute in the West Indies, and the Chamber of Commerce had formed a Design to amend the Law, agreeable to that in Pensilvania, resolving to have but one Inspector—Notes were given to the City Members for the Purpose. . . . Cruger the Speaker had promised nevertheless to bring in two Bakers for Inspectors, & the Bill when it came up amounted to nothing else—All the Coffee House was in an Uproar & an open Quarrel ensued. . . .
- "IV—Much about the Same Time the Common Spirit appeared in the Re Election of Benj<sup>s</sup> Blagge, the New Coroner as Alderman for Montgomerie Ward in Spite of all the Interest that could be made for W<sup>m</sup> Walton—This taught both the Assembly & People without Doors that the old Despotism was broke, & the Members had hourly Experience of it in losing Bills Motions &c in spite of their Aid" (see Feb. 22).—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.

1773 The sum of £1,000 is granted by the legislature "for furnishing Mar. 8 his Majesty's Troops quartered in this Colony with Necessaries to the first Day of January next."—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 493-94.

" The legislature passes an act "to remedy the Evil this Colony is exposed to from the great Quantities of counterfeit Money introduced into it" (see Feb. 5). This provides that a number of commissioners "cause such plate or plates, and Device or Devices to be formed and engraved, as they shall judge to be most difficult to be imitated and counterfeited . . . and forty thousand Copies thereof to be struck off upon thin paper to be pasted, glued or affixed" to each of the bills of credit. These plates or devices were to cost not more than £200.—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 510-13. The expenses for engraving and printing actually amounted to £254.—Assemb. Jour. (1775), 32.

" A law is passed by the legislature providing that the excise on spirituous liquors be appropriated for 20 years as follows: £800 (part of the £1,000 to be raised by excise in the city and county of New York) is to be paid annually for 20 years to the governors of the hospital (see March 24, 1772) which is to be built; and the remaining sum of £200 is to be paid for the first five years to the corporation of the Chamber of Commerce, "for encouraging a Fishery on the Sea Coast for the better supplying the Public Markets of the City;" during the remaining 15 years this sum is appropriated for repairing public roads.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 453; *Col. Laws
N. Y.*, V: 500-10.

" The provision concerning fisheries was worked out by the Chamber of Commerce in a system of bounties to the owners and crews of fishing boats who succeeded in supplying the New York markets with the largest quantities of fish of various kinds.—Riv-ington's Gazette, April 29, 1773; De Voë, Market Book, 117-19.

" The legislature passes an act "for the settlement and relief of the Poor" in the city of New York. This provides that the justices of any city, upon complaint made by the overseers of the poor, shall have the right to send any people whom they think may become a burden to the city back to the place where such people were last legally settled.—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 513-22.
A similar bill was introduced in the assembly in 1771, but failed to pass.—Assemb. Jour. (1770-1), 21, 26.

" Because "great Damages are frequently done on the Eve of the last Day of December, and on the first and second Days of January by Persons going from House to House with Guns and other Fire Arms, and being often intoxicated with Liquor, have not only put the Inhabitants in great Terror, but committed many Mischiefs," the legislature passes an act "to prevent the firing of Guns and other Fire Arms within this Colony."—*Col. Laws
N. Y.*, V: 532-33.

" The legislature passes acts "to regulate the Sale of Bricks within the City and County of New York," and "to prevent the Sale of Goods at Night by Vendue Auction or Outcry in the City of New York."—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 546-48.

" The treasurer of the colony is ordered to pay the following amounts for the objects specified:

" A sum not exceeding £300 to Gov. Tryon "to purchase Brass Field pieces (see Feb. 16) to carry Ball of six pounds weight, with proper Carriages," and also "such a Sum as will be sufficient to purchase one thousand Weight of Gun Powder for the use of Fort George and the Battery in the City of New York."

" £26:9:4 to Jacob Walto "for a Ballance due to him for providing Carriages for the Cannon on the Battery."

" £94:6:6 to Jacob Walton and James Jauncy (see Feb. 20) "for a Ballance due to them for repairing the Battery."

" £3:1:9 to James and Alexander Stewart "for repairs to the Flag in Fort George."

" £63:5:10 to Daniel Ebbets "for sundry Repairs at Fort George, the Store House, and Fences" from 1768 to Feb. 4, 1773.
—Col. Laws N. Y., V: 498-99.

" After proroguing the assembly, Gov. Tryon makes a speech
"of the following Import" to the council: "We have now done Business together for two Sessions, and it is very proper we should know each other for our future Regulation. I wish to promote the Interest of the Province, and find it very disagreeable to me to be crossed by your Parties. I know no good End that Party Spirit can serve—I perceive no Difference between one Sort of Man and another—You are equal to me—The People of this Country are all loyal Subjects as far as I know and I will make no Difference—
I will take no sides myself, and desire that I may not be dealt with or crossed for Party Purposes—If you will maintain Parties keep the Party Spirit to yourselves—I mean to visit all that visit me, whether of one Party or the other, without exciting any Man's Jealousy—I will act from no Party Views, & nothing that is of a Party Nature will recommend the Man or the Measure to me. If I can't manage the affairs of the Province, I will quit it—My own Ill Health makes the Attachm<sup>t</sup> to my Continuance here set very light upon me, But yet I will submit to the Duties of my Station, as long as I can serve it, with Honor to myself or advantage to the King or the Province—There have been Schemes to draw me into Parties—Projects to disgrace & degrade your Chief Magistrate —You ought to interpose and prevent them. I perceive that if the Council will not stand between the Gov<sup>t</sup> & the People, he can neither be useful nor happy . . . Party there is and I am rendered constantly uneasy by it. It is this that may perhaps induce me to speak warmly, but I mean the public Good, & when ever

I find that my Intentions to serve the Province are generally ill taken, I will take myself away, I will do Business with every Body
—I will do the Public Business with those whom your Parties force me to act with if it must be so, but I wish you would put an End to your Parties."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.
Smith ventures the opinion that "this Address was doubtless to break the De Lancey Dominion (already tottering) in the Council, as essential to his own safety, for he could not but have perceived,
that they meant to depose him."—Ibid.

" The bakers of New York, operating under a law passed 25 years ago, complain in a petition to the common council that they are unable to support themselves and families on account of the increased expense of baking, and they ask a new assize for loaf bread. Regarding their expenses, they state that when the law was made "the Bakers bought their Wood for Ten Shillings, but now must give Twenty Shillings or upwards, per Cord;" that the bakers could then "get one Pail of good Yeast for three Shillings, but now must give Three Shillings for two or three Quarts thereof, and they are very often, in the Summer Season, obliged to throw it away by means of its being made so very bad;" that then "every Body could buy in the Markets &c as much for Two Shillings as now can be bought for Four Shillings;" that "the Wages of Journey-men are now greatly increased;" that "the Bakers are now obliged to give one Loaf of Bread to the Retailers on every twelve Leaves they sell them, for their Incouragement;" and that "the Bakers at the Time of the Making of the said Law could buy Flour from twelve to sixteen shillings per Hundred, but now must give Twenty Shillings and upwards for the same, and therefore must have more mooney." They must thus be "discouraged from Buying good Flour," and "be obliged to seek their reasonable Profits in buying the cheapest: Which they look upon as not only Losing the Character of having good Bread in the City of New York, and being hurtful to the Citizens thereof, But also as being prejudicial to the Sale of the Flour of this Province at foreign Markets." They ask for an assize which will relieve them, and will give them "a reasonable Increase of Profit."—From the original petition (in metal file No. 6, city clerk's record-room), endorsed "Read & filed March the 17th 1773." The petition is referred to a committee for consideration with instructions to prepare a new table for the assize of bread.—M. G. C., VI: 411. See July 1, for their report.

" At a consistory of the Dutch Church it is suggested that "Since Mr. Nicholas Welp, our free school master, has died, it is highly necessary to appoint another to instruct thirty poor children, in reading, writing and cyphering, both in English and in Dutch."
The members decide to offer the position to Mr. Peter van Steen-berg, resolving to allow him, besides a house and garden, £60 for teaching the children, £8 for firewood, £5 for books, paper, etc., and £8 for kindling fires and lighting candles. "The present schoolhouse [see Aug. 15, 1748] and Consistory Chamber is also so decayed that it cannot stand much longer." A proposal is therefore submitted "whether it would not be advisable to take down the old school-house at once, and put up a new one, several feet longer, and several feet broader than the present; and also make it one story higher for a Consistory Chamber and Catechising Room. Thus would the dwelling house and the new building be brought under one roof. The building should be a frame building, with a brick front, which can be built before the new school-master can be ready to come." A committee is appointed to superintend this matter.—Eccles. Rec., VI: 4260. On March 20, Mr. Van Steenberg accepted the position of schoolmaster upon the above terms.—Ibid., VI: 4261. The treasurer was ordered, on May 3, to "furnish such sums as may be necessary, from time to time, for the

Mar.
8

17

19

- 1773 building the said school house, provided the amount does not exceed four hundred pounds."—Ibid., VI: 426f. On Aug. 6, the new schoolhouse being ready for the reception of the children, the consistory adopted rules for the admission of scholars and for the operation of the school.—Ibid., VI: 426-65.
- 22 A city survey is prepared, with the title: "Map of the Corporation and Contiguous to the New Gaol, compiled from different surveys made by Gerard Bancker, C. S., March 22, 1773." It is now preserved in the comptroller's office (filed in tin tube No. 3, in division of surveys, department of finance, Borough of Manhattan).
- 23 A survey bearing this date and the title "A plan of the Tan yards Near Fresh Water Surveyed and Divided March 23, 1773 by Frances & Andrew Marchall Copied (from one annexed to a deed to Jacobus Quick by A Hardenbrook George Shaw Abram Meseir Hugh Gaine) by Evert Bancker Jun Sept 9. 1785," is preserved in the Bancker Collection in the N. Y. Pub. Library (box B-G, folder 74). Cf. plate description, I: 358, in which some inaccuracies appear in the spelling of names.
- 27 "Every Day affords new Proofs of the Declension of the De Lancy Interest—The Zealous Episcopalians are very free & almost universally so in . . . Censures of their Politics—I believe that Family has arrived at its ne plus ultra in this Country, & that they begin to perceive the Folly of their Opposition to the Dissenters—and the Non Importing Compact, as well as of their Junction with Colden in Sep<sup>r</sup> 1769, the subsequent Vindictive adm<sup>n</sup> & their own Rapacity for Offices—They want such a Leader as the late L<sup>d</sup> Gov<sup>r</sup> De Lancy—a man who laid deep Foundations for Power in his Popularity—who except in the affair of the College studied to please all Sects, and made the Dissenters confident of his Protection. It is true, the Times are greatly altered—There is more Knowledge among the People—Property is divided—Men of Opulence live more independently—& above all the Independency of the Gov<sup>r</sup> renders Popular Sway less useful. A Demagogue who led the Assembly held the Gov<sup>t</sup> & Council at Defiance—With Power to starve the Gov<sup>t</sup> he had the whole Province at Command.—This James De Lancy knew, & this Sway he held."—Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV.
- Apr. The major part (four names out of a possible seven are subscribed to the report) of the committee appointed concerning the bridewell (see May 7, 1772) finally render a report, which is to the effect that a new agreement has been made with Capt. Dobbs, the keeper. The essence of the agreement is that the keeper consents to a decided reduction in salary, i. e., from £70 per year to £30.—M. C. C., VII: 414. Dobbs was soon succeeded by Alexander Mootcriff, who accepted a smaller salary still (see July 13).
- "The common council contributes £150 toward completing the new road "leading from Anthony Rutgers's farm to Grinage" (Grewich).—M. C. C., VII: 416.
- 11 The Harlem line, as newly established (see March 24, 1772), is described in the Bancker surveys (folder marked "Harlem") in the N. Y. Pub. Library. It bears this date. The line began on the east side at what is now 74th St., crossed Second Ave. at what is now 79th St., and Third Ave. at 81st St., and reached the Hudson River at the present 129th St.—Peterson & Edwards, N. Y. as an 18th Cent. Municipality, 346. There is a summary of the controversy concerning this line in ibid., 344-46. The line is shown on A. Pl. 9, Vol. III. Cf. Jan. 9, 1750; and Pl. 36, Vol. IV.
- 12 The American Company of players has returned to New York after an absence of almost four years (see Jan. 25, 1768). An advertisement of this date reads: "Theatre. By Permission of his Excellency the Governor. By the American Company, on Wednesday next, being the 14th of April, the Theatre in John-Street, will be open'd with A Comedy, An occasional Prologue, A Farce, and Entertainments, Which will be express'd in the Bills for the Day. It may be necessary to inform the Public, that as the Season is so very far advanced, it will not be possible to keep the House open longer than the end of May."—N. Y. Merc., April 12, 1773. Contrary to the latter part of this notice, the company gave performances until Aug. 5.—Seilhamer, Hist. of the Am. Theatre, I: 318. See May 3.
- 13 An extract of a letter from Dublin says: "No one is to succeed General Gage, but Gen. Haldimand [see June 14]; nor is it likely there will be any other. The Naturalization Bill was pass'd for the Purpose of giving him the Command, with Propriety."—N. Y. Merc., May 31, 1773.
- 19 An advertisement addressed "To the respectable Publick" reads: "Samuel F. Parker and John Anderson, Of this City, Apr. Printers, Have entered into Partnership together, for the carrying on that Business in all its Branches; and propose in August next to publish the New-York Gazette, or the Weekly Post-Boy, which was published for many Years by said Parker's Father, and esteemed to be a paper of as good credit and Utility as any extant since the first Commencement thereof. . . ."—N. Y. Merc., April 19, 1773. No issues of this paper are known to exist.
- "Simeon & Catherine Lugin, Beg to inform the public that they have taken the house at present occupied by Mrs. Daubeny, situated in French Church-Street, a few doors from Mrs. Beau's boarding school, where they intend to open a Boarding and Day School for young ladies . . . where they will be politely and tenderly accommodated, and instructed in reading after the best grammatical rules, with elegance and propriety, writing, arithmetic by a short method, needle and tambour work; the polite French language, which is constantly spoken in the family, being now-a-days part of the education of young ladies; will likewise be taught grammatically by Mr. and Mrs. Lugin, with that accent and pronunciation peculiar to the natives of France."—Rivington's Gazetteer, April 21, 1774. A writer, in 1788, said: "In America, female education should have for its object what is useful. Young ladies should be taught to speak and write their own language with purity and elegance; an article in which they are often deficient. The French language is not necessary for ladies. In some cases it is convenient but in general it may be considered as an article of luxury. As an accomplishment, it may be studied by those whose attention is not employed about more important concerns."—Am. Mag., May, 1788, 367-74, cited in "The Teaching of French in Colonial New York" in Romanic Review, Oct.-Dec., 1919, p. 376.
- "The provincial council pays an account of Theophilus Hardenbrook for repairs in Fort George, in the mansion-house, and on the battery.—Cal. Coun. Min., 496.
- 22 The first issue of Rivington's New-York Gazetteer; or Connecticut, New-Jersey, Hudson's-River, and Quebec Weekly Advertiser, appears (see March 18). It is "Printed by James Rivington, facing the Coffee-House Bridge."—Rivington's Gazetteer, Apr. 22, 1773. In his issue of Oct. 13, 1774, Rivington states that "The weekly impression of this Gazetteer is lately increased to Three Thousand Six Hundred, a number far beyond the most sanguine expectations of the Printer's warmest friends; as the presses of very few, if any of his brethren, including those in Great-Britain, exceed it. This paper is constantly distributed thro' every colony of North-America, most of the English, French, Spanish, Dutch, and Danish West-India islands, the principal cities and towns of Great-Britain, France, Ireland, and in the Mediterranean."—Rivington's Gazetteer, Oct. 13, 1774.
- Its Tory tendencies, however, subjected it to various attacks. Early in 1775, committees of inspection or corresponding organizations in Rhode Island, New Jersey, and Ulster County, N. York, adopted resolutions denouncing Rivington and advising subscribers to stop their papers; the last mentioned committee went so far as to say: "for we do believe he is a Ministerial hireling, an enemy to his Country, and a traitor to the British Constitution."—4 Am. Arch., II: 12-13; 35-36; 50-51. A royal commission, granted to Rivington to be his majesty's printer (see April 5) added fuel to the flame and, on May 10 (q. v.), he was the victim of a mob attack. Although, as a result of this, the editor was absent for nearly a month, the Gazetteer appeared regularly and its publication continued until Nov. 23, 1775 (q. v.), when a second mob, by destroying his presses and carrying away the types, ended the paper's existence for the time being.
- Rivington soon went to England, and when the British regained possession of the city he returned with new presses as king's printer. On October 4, 1777 (q. v.), he issued a paper under the original title but in two weeks changed the name to Rivington's New York Loyal Gazette, and again, on Dec. 13, to The Royal Gazette. It was printed on a sheet of royal size with the royal arms in the title. The derivative term "Rivington's lying Gazette" was often applied to it, even royalists censuring its publisher for his disregard of the truth.
- At the close of the war, the royal appendages were dropped and the name was again changed to Rivington's New York Gazette and Universal Advertiser. It was, however, suspected of being a "wolf in sheep's clothing," and lack of support led to its discontinuance with the issue of Dec. 31, 1783.—Thomas, Hist. of Print-

1773 ing in Am., II: 120-24, in Am. Antiq. Soc. Collections. See also Apr. Early N. Y. Newspapers, II: 428; and the "Bibliography of Am.
 22 Newspapers, 1690-1820," in the Am. Antiquarian Soc. Proceedings (1917), XXVII (N. S.): 488. Rivington's paper was considered by S. N. D. North the best specimen of the typographic art that appeared in the colonies before the Revolution.—The Newspaper and Periodical Press (1880), 18, 398.

" A house is advertised to let "in Broad-Way, now George St."
 —Rivington's Gazetteer, April 22, 1773. This doubtless refers to the upper section of Broadway, subsequently called Great George St.
 See Nov. 11; also Landmark Map Ref. Key, under "Broadway,"
 III: 994-95.

26 Neshitt Deane advertises for sale hats "Manufactured by the Advertiser, (residing in the Old Coffee-house [see June 19, 1728] facing the new built one), to exceed in Fineness, Cut, Colour and Cocks; And by a Method peculiar to himself, to turn Rain, and prevent Sweating of the Head damaging the Crown; Encouragement to those who huy to sell again. . . ."—N. Y. Merc., April 26, 1773.

29 "Just arrived from London, six game Cocks, warranted good,
 To be sold at the widow Ryan's, Cork-Arms, on the New Dock—where any gentleman may apply, to engage for the best breed of Cocks yearly.—Likewise to be disposed of, at Mr. George Campbell's, in Irish street, a thorough bred staunch Pointer, just brought from London. . . ."—N. Y. Jour., Apr. 29, 1773. What was generally referred to in these years as the "New Dock" was the water front in the vicinity of Maiden Lane. The identity of "Irish street" has not been ascertained by the author.

May The manager of the American Company, which is giving per-3 formances at the John Street Theatre (see April 12), issues this notice: "The repeated Insults, which some mischievous Persons in the Gallery have given, not only to the Stage and Orchestra, but to the other Parts of the Audience, call loudly for Reprehension, and since they have been, more than once, ineffectually admonish'd of the Impropriety of such a Conduct in a public assembly, they are now (for the last Time) inform'd, that unless the more regular and better dispos'd People, who frequent that Part of the Theatre, will interpose, either by turning out the Offenders, or pointing them out to the Constables, who attend there on purpose, that they may be brought to Justice, The Gallery for the future must be shut up."—N. Y. Merc., May 3, 1773.

5 The "Play of the Tempest, or the Enchanted Island, written by Shakespear, and altered by Dryden," is performed "at [the John Street] Theatre in this City, to a numerous and brilliant Audience with universal Applause; the Machinery is elegant, and the whole is allowed to be one of the most pleasing Pieces that has made its Appearance on the American Theatre."—N. Y. Merc., May 10, 1773. See May 11.

7 Gov. Tryon informs the provincial council of his intention to go to Hartford to attend the meeting of the New York and Massachusetts boundary commissioners.—Cal. Coun. Min., 496. See
 May 18.

11 Josiah Quincy of Massachusetts, who is stopping for a short time in New York City, records in his diary under this date: "Went to the theatre in the evening,—saw the Gamester and the Padlock performed. The actors make but an indifferent figure in tragedy,— → much better in comedy. Hallam has merit in every character he acts. I was however, upon the whole, much amused;—but as a citizen and friend to the morals and happiness of society, I should strive hard against the admission, and much more the establishment of a theatre, in any state of which I was a member."—Memoir of the Life of Josiah Quincy Junr. of Massachusetts (1825), 138-39.

18 An agreement regarding the dividing line between New York and Massachusetts is consummated at Hartford by representatives of both colonies. On Jan. 12, 1774, a copy of this was sent, by Gov.
 Tryon, to the New York assembly and entered upon the journals of the House.—Assemb. Jour. (1774), 5-6. Mass. Gen., May 27, 1773. For a history of the case since 1719, see Cal. Hist. MSS.,
Eng., 447, 603, 610, 612, 613, 616, 617, 634, 650, 671, 682, 750, 769, 770; Assemb. Jour., I: 559, 756, 762-63; II: 341, 343, 344, 345, 351, 781; (1767-68), 61; (1773), 82; Jour. Leg. Coun., 4560, 1616, 1618, 1623; Doc. Hist. N. Y., III: 759, 774, 796; IV: 550. Tryon informed Dartmouth about the agreement in his letter of May 31 (q. v.).

19 A convention of "Episcopal Ministers of the Provinces of New-York and New-Jersey" is held in the city.—N. Y. Merc.,
 May 24, 1773.

20 The common council votes to purchase of Samuel Verplack

"three Lots of Ground belonging to him, in the rear of the City Hall" for £450.—M. C. C., VII: 420.

A committee of the common council reports regulations for "Streets in the Vicinity of the College,"—viz., Murray, Robinson, and Warren; the report is approved and orders are issued to "the Rector & Inhabitants of the City of New York, in Communion of the Church of England" to "Cause the said Several Streets . . . to be Regulated."—M. C. C., VII: 421-22. Although orders were given by the common council for the regulating of Murray St. as early as June 28, 1768 (q. v.), the regulation of that street is first recorded at this time. The Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 1066, gives 1785-6, as the earliest regulation of Murray St., overlooking the record of this date. For a later regulation of the street, see
 July 25, 1786.

The mayor produces to the common council a list of 396 names of persons who took out "Licences for Retailing of Strong Liquors within this City from the 25th of March 1772 to the 25th of March last." The amount received from the same totalled £593:14; of this amount the mayor is ordered to retain for himself
 4s. for each licence, plus £125 for his fees as "Clerk of the Markets" for the year ending May 1. He was further ordered to pay to the clerk 5s. for each licence issued. The residue, £290:14, was paid into the city treasury.—M. C. C., VII: 420-21.

Mrs. Brock, widow of Walter Brock, who for many years had maintained a tavern on Wall St., opposite the First Presbyterian Church (see 1758), announces that she has moved "to that elegant and pleasant situated House of Mr. Martin, at the White-Hall, opposite the Battery, at the Sign of the fry'd Oysters."—N. Y.
Jour., May 20, 1773. Elias Pelletreau had formerly been proprietor of this tavern.—N. Y. Merc., May 31, 1772. In less than two years Mrs. Brock moved from Whitehall to the house of David Prevost, nearly opposite the Coffee House.—Ibid., March 6, 1775.
 This was near Wall and Water Sts. Timothy Day, "from the country," was the new proprietor of the Whitehall tavern.—N. Y.
Jour., Feb. 6, 1775.

"To be Sold, at private Sale, the convenient and well situated Dwelling House of the Subscribers, being in Crown-Street, formerly called Oswego-Street; the House is two stories High, having proper and convenient Rooms, with a good Cellar and Kitchen, three small Tenements Back, and a good Cistern in the Yard: It is very convenient for a Tavern, which has been kept there some Years, and is, now as such, being in the Possession of David Gregg.
 . . ."—N. Y. Jour., May 20, 1773.

Elias Pelletreau, informs the public that he has "set up at his House on Golden-Hill, at the Sign of the Dish of fry'd Oysters, a place for cutting of Whale Bone."—N. Y. Merc., May 24, 1773.
 The whale bone business seems to have flourished in this neighbourhood ever since; the last "manufactory" in New York—in Ann Street—closed its doors in 1920.

Washington arrives in New York from Mt. Vernon to take his "son-in-law [error for stepson] Mr. [John Parke] Custis, to King's College;" he lodges "at a Mr. Farmer's," and passes the evening at Hull's Tavern. The following evening, May 27 (q. v.), he was present at Hull's Tavern "at the entertainment given by the citizens of New York to Gen'l Gage." On the evening of May 29, he was again at Hull's with the "Old Club." He was entertained at dinner during his stay by James de Lancey and Maj.
 Bayard. He returned to Mt. Vernon on May 31.—Writings of Washington (Ford ed.), 380-83. Regarding young Custis's short career at King's College, see Hist. of Columbia Univ., 43.

Mayor Hicks reports that Gov. Tryon desires "the Pond opposite the Barracks on the Battery" to be filled up, on the plea that "the same is at present but a Nuisance." The common council so orders.—M. C. C., VII: 423-24. The expense for this improvement totalled £220.—Ibid., VII: 440, 442, 454, 455; VIII:
 63. This pond is clearly shown on Pl. 40, Vol. I.

The common council orders "that Alderman Blagge have permission to Erect a Hay Machine at such place Near the Corporation/Market at the North River [the Bear Market] as shall be Judged most proper by the Alderman & Assistant of the West Ward."—M. C. C., VII: 423. The committee "fixed on the South end of the Oswego Market [the same market], opposite to the Middle Post there."—Ibid., VII: 427. See also De Voe's Market Book, 311.

The council approves unanimously the agreement regarding the boundary line between New York and Massachusetts (see May 18).
 —N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 371.

May 20

"

"

"

24

26

"

"

"

- 1773 The provincial council directs the sheriffs of New York and My 26 Albany to send in the census returns.—Cal. Coun. Min., 496.
- Sentence of death of one John Burn for burglary is confirmed by the provincial council.—Cal. Coun. Min., 496.
- 27 An "elegant entertainment" is given by the "merchants and a great number of the inhabitants, at Hull's tavern to his Excellency General Gage on occasion of his approaching embarkation for England; . . ."—Rivington's Gazetteer, June 3, 1773. Washington was present.—See May 26. See June 4, for the return entertainment given by Gen. Gage.
- "The Plover and Harrow, a tavern kept by John Fowler, is advertised.—See Landmark Map Ref. Key, III: 98.
- 31 Gov. Tryon writes to Dartmouth: "I returned to this City from Connecticut the 22<sup>d</sup> inst., and have the pleasure to inform your Lord<sup>p</sup> that the Commissioners who met at Hartford have amicably and unanimously agreed upon a line of partition between the Govern<sup>ts</sup> of New York and Massachusetts Bay, and the Gov<sup>t</sup> Hutchinson and myself assented to and approved of the same [see May 18]; one of the originals of this agreement with an actual survey of that Part of Hudson's River, which lies opposite, upon a medium course, to the dividing line, I have the honor herewith to transmit to your Lord<sup>p</sup>. As the earlier the Royal decision is had upon this matter, the happier for both Govern<sup>ts</sup>. I am satisfied that single reflection will be a sufficient motive with your Lord<sup>p</sup> to press forward this business. It is very probable the parties may not agree to run the line until the Royal confirmation is obtained. I laid the above agreement before the Council Board the 26th when it was unanimously approved."—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 371.
- "The Scenery, Decorations, Dresses and Machinery of the Opera of Cymon, to be performed this Evening, are allowed by the most critical Judges of Theatrical Splendor, to be more Magnificent than could be expected at so early a Period, on the American Stage. During its Run at Philadelphia, several Gentlemen from London, attended the Representation, and made Comparisons much to the Honour of our Infant Western Theatre. We are informed that as it is so very late in the Season, it can only be performed one Night."—N. Y. Merc., May 31, 1773.
- June 1 Gov. Tryon writes to the Earl of Dartmouth: "The nine independent Companies formed last year in this City, were not embodied under any express clause of the Militia Law, except one of the Cadet Companies, but purely in virtue of the delegated prerogative of the Crown. And as this Town, by its Situation lies extremely open to the insults of an Enemy, I thought, times of public tranquility were the most leisure (and best) season to form a body that might in time of occasion be of public service."—
N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 372. Tryon sent this justification of his conduct in this matter because of the criticism contained in Darmouth's letter of March 3 (q. v.).
- 2 Tryon sends to Dartmouth "An Abstract of the State of Militia in the Province of New York, shewing the Number of Regiments Battalions and Companies with the Number of Colonels, Lt. Colonels, Majors, Captains and Subalterns in each County."
 The record shows that New York County has 1 regiment, 1 battalion, 14 companies, 1 colonel, 1 lieutenant-colonel, 1 major, 14 captains, 28 lieutenants, and 14 ensigns, besides a troop of light horse and 9 independent companies.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 377.
- "Jacob Bates, after a tour of Europe, advertised on May 31 to perform feats of horsemanship on this day. "At the Bull's Head, in the Bowery-Lane."—N. Y. Merc., May 31, and June 7, 1773.
 For portrait, and account of the career of this famous English equestrian, see Greenwood's The Circus (1909), 26, 61. The location chosen for his exhibition was south of the wind-mill, about 200 feet north of Bayard St., on the west side of the Bowery. His last appearance was on Aug. 3, prior to which time the boards forming the "Riding Yard" or "Manage" (menage) were offered for sale.
 —Ibid., 63; and N. Y. Merc., Aug. 2, 1773.
- 4 Special effort is manifest in the brilliant celebration of the king's birthday. The events of the day include a review by the governor of the militia on the Commons, followed by the drinking of toasts to the king at the fort, and an entertainment there in the afternoon. The decorations included many curious devices, and in the evening the "City was illuminated in a more superb and general Manner than was ever known before. . . . From one of the Bastions at the Fort, and from the Bowling Green, before the Gate, some very curious Fire Works were played off; particularly the Representation of an Engagement between two Ships at Sea, which after a furious alternate Discharge, ended in the Destruc- tion of one of them; gave Great Entertainment to a vast Multitude of People. The most elegant Part of the Entertainment was the brilliant Appearance of Ladies at the Fort, which must have been delightful to his Majesty himself, had he been present—and would have convinced him, that, as America vies with Great Britain, itself in Loyalty and Affection to his Person and constitutional Government,—so it rivals its parent Country, in the Charms of Beauty and Female Attentions."—N. Y. Jour., June 10, 1773.
- An interesting bit of evidence as to the extent of the illuminations on this occasion is afforded in the account of Francis Child, the keeper of the jail, dated June 16, 1773. Against the date June 4, he writes: "To Cash paid for 36<sup>lb</sup> Candles to illuminate the Goal on His Majesty's Birthday (by order) . . . 1: 11: 6."—From the original bill preserved in city clerk's record-room. In the evening, Gen. Gage gave a grand entertainment to a number of merchants and military gentlemen at Hull's Tavern "in the Broad-Way."— Rivington's Gazetteer, June 10, 1773; N. Y. Jour., June 10, 1773.
 Gen. Gage left for England June 8 (q. v.). Hull's was also the meeting-place of the "Sons of St. George," on Apr. 23d.—Ibid., May 3, 1773. Under Aug. 20, 1774 (q. v.), John Adams records his arrival in New York from Philadelphia, and stopping at "Hull's a tavern the sign the Bunch of Grapes." The City Tavern, or Province Arms, or "Hull's Tavern," as it was generally called under Hull's management, was known during its long existence by many names, but this is the only reference to it as the "Bunch of Grapes," if, indeed, it ever bore such a sign. Stephens, in an article on "Famous Taverns," in the N. Y. Herald of March 18, 1894, calls this an error.
- The common council waits upon Gen. Gage to present him with an address and the freedom of the corporation, "the Seal of the said Corporation being enclosed in a Gold Box and annexed thereto."—M. C. C., VII: 426. The box had the city arms engraved upon it (ibid., VII: 425), and cost £30:6 (ibid., VII: 427).
 An "elegant entertainment" marked the event, which cost the city £61:10:6.—Ibid., VII: 428; N. Y. Gaz., June 14, 1773. The account of Robert Hall of this date for "Corporation Dinner to his Excellency General Gage" is preserved in the comptroller's office;
 there were 60 at the banquet, and the liquors itemized are "Renish," "Madeira," "Claret," "Porter," "Spruce," "Cyder," and "Ale."
- 8 Gen. Gage and his family embark for London. The general is attended by the chief military officials "to the Water-Side, at Murray's Wharf, near the Coffee House, where a Company of the Royal Artillery, under Arms waited his coming. As soon as the Ship got under sail, he was saluted by 19 Discharges of 2 Field Pieces, belonging to the Artillery; and as he passed the Battery, by a like Number from thence."—N. Y. Jour., June 10, 1773. On Feb. 15 (q. v.), his country seat (about four miles from New York) had been advertised for rent.
- 9 A transport of Royal Welch Fusiliers arrives in the city. Two more came on June 12.—N. Y. Merc., June 14, 1773. The last transport arrived on June 16.—Ibid., June 21, 1773. The regiment was reviewed on June 30 (q. v.).
- "His Excellency General Holdmain [see April 13] we hear has taken the House on Broad-Street, lately occupied by General Gage."—N. Y. Merc., June 14, 1773.
- 14 "To be Sold at public Vendue, on the Premises, The first day of September next, or at private Sale any Time before, The large commodious and well fitted House and Gardens, in the Out-Ward of this City, wherein Col. James formerly lived, and is known by the name of Vauxhall. The situation is extremly healthy and pleasant, commanding an extensive prospect up and down the North-River: The House has four large rooms on a floor, twelve fire-places, most excellent cellars, and adjoining the house is built a compleat room, 56 feet long and 26 wide. . . . under which is a large convenient kitchen and other offices, with a coach-house and stables, a well of the very finest water, pump, cistern, pigeon-house, &c.
- "The gardens are large, and laid out in a neat, genteel manner.
 The upper garden is planted with the very best fruit trees of different sorts; flowers and flowering shrubs all in great perfection:
 The lower garden is plentifully stocked with vegetables of every kind, sundry fruit trees, and every other necessary for the family use.
- "The premises contain twenty seven lots and an half of ground, held under lease from Trinity Church, of which there are now 61 years to come. Further particulars may be known, by applying to Mr. Samuel Francis, at the gardens, or at his house the Queen's 1773 Head tavern, near the Exchange, in Broad-Street, who will accept June of half the purchase-money paid down, and security for the re-14 mainer.

"Until the premises are sold, there will be the usual genteel accommodations, Tea, Coffee, Hot Rolls, &c. &c. and the elegant Wax-Work Figures to be seen at all hours in the day."—N. Y. Merc., June 14, 1773. See May 16, 1765. The sale was not effected on Sept. 1, as appears from a later insertion in the Gazetteer, advertising the auction of Vauxhall for Sept. 29, at the Merchant's Coffee-House, at which time a sale will be "positively made."—Rivington's Gazetteer, Sept. 23, 1773. First advertised in May (ibid., May 13), it was purchased by Erasmus Williams (see Oct. 25).

17 Richard Varian is appointed "keeper of the Publick Pound standing on a Farm of Mr Bayard's in the Bowery Lane, now in the Possession of the said Richard Varian."—M. C. C., VII: 428.

24 "Ready for engraving, and to be published by subscription, the following select pieces, consisting of a compleat sett of church service, viz. A Te Deum laudamus; Jubilate Deo; Benedicite omnia opera Domini; Cantate Domino; and Deus miseretur; a burial service, and an anthem for any grand funeral; a compleat and well adapted anthem to be sung at the time of any charitable contribution; a grand chorus, Hosanna to the Son of David, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord, &c. proper to be sung at any meeting, or convention of the clergy, of any denomination; as also an anthem 133d Psalm, for any grand meeting of Free and Accepted Masons: . . . Subscriptions are taken in by Messieurs Rivington, Gain and Holt, printers in New-York; Michael Hillegas, Esq; and J. Dunlap, printer in Philadelphia; Mr. R. Draper, printer in Boston; Mr. Southwick, in Rhode-Island; Mess. Purdie & Dixon, printers in Williamsburg, J. Hamilton, Esq; for Baltimore and Charlestown, in Maryland, and Mr. Green, printer in Annapolis. . . .

"N. B. There never was any compleat set of church service made public, nor can any be procured but by friendship and a great expence; neither is any burial service of the kind to be purchased, unless it be that in Dr. Croft's anthems, which is sold for Two Guineas."—Rivington's Gazetteer, June 24, 1773.

30 "The 23d Regiment of Welch Fusiliers (see June 9) is reviewed "in the Plain, near the Ship-Yards" by Gen. Haldimand and Gov. Tryon. "The Soldiers wore Sprigs of Oak Leaves in their Caps, which we hear distinguished them at the Battle of Mioden, in which, under Prince Ferdinaud, this Regiment greatly distinguished themselves."—N. Y. Merc., July 5, 1773. The regiment was reviewed again on Oct. 29 (q. v.).

July "We hear that Richard Colden, Esqr. is appointed Surveyor
1 and Searcher of this Port, in the room of his Father Alexander Colden, Esqr; resigned."—Rivington's Gazetteer, July 1, 1773.

"A table for the assize of bread, formulated in response to the baker's petition of March 17 (q. v.), is adopted by the common council. On every 100 pounds of flour, the baker is allowed from seven shillings to seven shillings, one copper, to cover cost of wood, yeast, and his profit."—M. C. C., VII: 434.

"A street in the "Meadows," leading from Queen Street to "James's, Street," in front of the house of John Woods, is complained of in a petition to the common council. It has become a nuisance by cattle sheltering themselves there, and by water settling there, so that several houses and lots have "become as it were little Islands especially in a showery time."—From the original MS., endorsed "filed July 1st 1773," and "no order made bereof, as the s<sup>d</sup> Street is already regulated," filed in box No. 6, in city clerk's record-room. The street alluded to as running from Queen to James St. seems to be Bankers (now Madison) St.—See Pl. 42, Vol. I.

13 Alexander Montriff is appointed by the common council as keeper of the bridewell to succeed Capt. Dobbs on Aug. 1, the latter having "Signified to Several of the members of this board his Intention of giving up said Office." Montriff's salary is to be £30 per year.—M. C. C., VII: 435. Montriff's original petition is preserved in city clerk's office, also many of his itemized bills, most of the latter in the comptroller's office. The one large item which appears repeatedly is for feeding vagrants; e. g., the account of July 31, 1774, gives a list of such, committed from May 1 to July 31, with a total of 2,529 days' care. In another account, of the same date, the charge for "work done" (see Nov. 20, 1767) totals £2:5:10, and includes the spinning of cotton candle wicks and the picking of "oocum."—From original MS. in comptroller's office.

The large number of vagrants in the city at this period probably explains an action of the common council of this date whereby constables or marshals were "Allowed the Sum of two Shillings for Every Vagrant that they shall apprehend Waudring in and about this City," provided an order be obtained from a justice of the peace for the removal of the vagrant to the place where such person "hath Gained a Legal Settlement."—M. C. C., VII: 435. This may serve to explain many charges for "ferriage" in the accounts of the bridewell keepers.

An account of Messrs. Burras and Creamer of this date contains the item: "To their time & trouble in going to Newhaven to bring darcus who stole the Governors Cubs [Cups] . . . £8:16:0."—From original bill preserved in comptroller's office.

22 Anthony Fiva announces that he "Continues teaching grammatically, at his house in Dutch Church Street, opposite Captain Berton's, the French, Spanish, and Italian Languages, in their greatest purity on moderate terms: He also attends ladies and gentlemen in their own houses at any convenient hour; likewise translates from any one of said languages into the English, or either of the two others, with accuracy dispatch and secrecy for attorneys, merchants, &c. and as Mr. Fiva has had an academical education, and resided many years in Paris and Madrid, he is therefore able to resolve any question that might puzzle his scholars, and entirely ground them both in the true accent of these polite languages, and all the rules of the syntax."—Rivington's Gazetteer, July 22, 1773. Fiva was still teaching in the city on Dec. 22, 1774.—Ibid., Dec. 22, 1774.

The common council orders that "the Long Bridge at the North End of the Exchange be plankd, and that the Carriage Way, that is now Arch'd be Continued, not to Exceed fourteen feet."—M. C. C., VII: 437. Payments for this work are recorded.—Ibid., VII: 440, 442. For a further order, see Sept. 22.

"The American Company" (see Apr. 12) advertises for this evening a benefit performance for "the Hospital to be erected in New-York." The presentation announced is "a Tragedy call'd The Loodon Merchant: Or the History of George Barnwell . . . to which will be added, a Dramatic Tale, call'd Edgar and Emmeline." The people are urged to "countenance this Play with their Presence; or otherwise contribute their Mite towards so Good a Work as the providing a Receptacle for the Sick and Needy. It is hoped by the Friends of the Hospital, that the Moral of the Play to be acted will have some Influence with those who are, otherwise, no Friends to the Theatre."—N. Y. Merc., July 26, 1773; Aug. 2, 1773. See Oct. 20, 1774. An advertisement appears also of a forthcoming presentation at the same theatre of "Dr. Goldsmith's new Play, called, She stoops to conquer, or The Mistakes of a Night: An excellent dramatic Piece, lately brought on the Stage under the Patronage of Dr. Samuel Johnson, Author of the Rambler, &c. This Play is intended to recover the expiring Art of writing true English Comedy . . ."—Ibid., July 26, 1773.

In this year and month Gerard Bancker, city surveyor, made "A Map of the Lands belonging to the Estate of the Late Sir Peter Warren, lying at Greenwich in the Outward of the City of New York." This interesting and finely executed drawing shows the old Warren mansion, later known as the Van Nest house, and also Abington Road, Bowry Lane, Fitz Roy Road, Old Greenwich Lane, Great Kill Road, Skinner Road, Greenwich Street, etc. It is reproduced in A. Pl. 5-b, Vol. III. See also Land-mark Map Ref. Key, Addenda, Vol. V.

In this month, S. F. Parker & John Anderson became printers of the Post-Boy.—See Early N. Y. Newspapers, II: 427; and "Bibliography of Am. Newspapers," in Am. Antiquarian Soc. Proceedings, XXVII (N. S.), 418.

John Simmons, tavern-keeper, is paid £2:9:6 by the common council "for Liquor found for the jury who sat to enquire of the Death of Mary Murphy."—M. C. C., VII: 440. Simmons's tavern was at Wall and Nassau Sts. See Oct. 8, 1770. For other expenses incurred by the city at this tavern, see ibid., VIII: 19, 79, 98, 103, 105, 112, 132, 139.

Lieut.-Col. John Reid, late of the 43d or Royal Highland Regiment, Henry Erley, and others report to the provincial council oew outrages by Seth Warner, Remember Baker, Ethan Allen, and others. The council orders that the troops be called upon to assist the civil authorities.—Cal. Coun. Min., 497. See Sept. 3. "To be seen, At Mr. Allen's Stables, near the Fly Market; . . . A remarkable fine young Elk, an animal hardly before seen in this city."—Rivington's Gazetteer, Sept. 2, 1773.

The first stone of the New York Hospital (see June 13, 1771)

July 13

20

22

23

26

Aug.

—

24

31

Sept.

3

- 1773 is advertised to be laid on this day by Gov. Tryon. The governors Sept. of the hospital intend to assist "in laying the Foundation of that 3 truly charitable Asylum of the Distressed, who will have Reason to remember with Gratitude and bless the benevolent Founders, through a long Succession of future Generations."—N. Y. Jour., Sept. 2, 1773. The building thus started occupied a part of the Anthony Rutgers estate, Ranclagh, and was destroyed by fire on Feb. 28, 1775 (q.v.). For summaries of the hospital's history, see plate description, III: 570-71; Daily Adv., July 21, 1794; Man.
Com. Coun. (1845-6), 257-61; and E. W. Sheldon's Historical Address (Oct. 26, 1921).
- " The provincial council takes cognizance of Gen. Haldimand's refusal to send regular troops against the New Hampshire grants rioters, thinking the militia ought to be called out. Opinion of counsel was obtained on the 8th. On Sept. 29, Gen. Haldimand was to send 200 men to Crown Point and Ticonderoga for the suppression of the rioters, but declined as too late in the season.—
Cal. Coun. Min., 498. On Dec. 15, Mr. Duane, of counsel for the New York patentees, was granted access to the papers relating to the riots.—Ibid., 499. See Feb. 8, 1774.
- 6 A "very large and remarkable Sea Tortoise, of a Species before unknown here," is brought to the city. It weighs about 800 lbs., is 7 ft. long, 3½ ft. wide, and 15 in. thick. "The Fish is probably as good as any other Sea Tortoise, but as it is an Unknown Animal, no Body seems inclinable to eat it."—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 13, 1773.
- 13 An advertisement reads: "To Be Seen, At the house of John Rawdon, hair-dresser, facing the Post-Office, in Broad-Street:
The Wonderful Electrical Fish: It is a native of South-America, has never before, that we know of, been seen in the northern parts of America or Europe."—N. Y. Merc., Sept. 13, 1773.
- 15 "The Committee appointed to View the Church Lands and report what part was proper to be appropriated for a Burial Ground for the Negroes belonging to the Church Reported as their Opinion that the Block or piece of Ground bounded by Church Street, Reade Street, Chapple Street and the Ground of Anthony Rutgers was proper for that purpose. Ordered that the said report be confirmed and that the Same Committee have the said piece of ground (or such part thereof as they shall see fit for the present) fenced in, and also to report to this board what fees they think reasonable to be paid for the ground for a grave and for digging the same."—
Trin. Min. (MS.).
- " Trinity vestry approves the draft of a grant from the city of certain water lots fronting the church's lands on the Hudson.—
Ibid. Cf. June 16, 1772; Nov. 18, 1773.
- 17 A beautifully written statement of account of Abraham Mesier for work done for the city shows a total of £3609:4½, of which the balance due him is £210:9:4½. The work is chiefly in connection with the streets, one item, of Nov. 29, 1772, reading "Cash pd for Cart<sup>y</sup> Stumps from Broadway. . . £0:6:0". From the original, in the comptroller's office. Cf. M. C. C., VII: 443.
- 22 As this is the anniversary of the king's coronation, "His loyal Subjects, the Militia of this City, consisting of 7 Independent Companies," assemble on the green, near the liberty pole, and go through their "Exercise, Firings and various Evolutions."—N. Y.
Merc., Sept. 27, 1773.
- " It is ordered by the common council that "the Committee for the Long Bridge [see July 23] cause 20 feet of the same to the southward of the Exchange to be arch'd and to Board the Remaining part to the End thereof & also that a Number of Posts be fix'd at such places near the said Bridge as the said Committee may think sufficient to prevent Carts from passing over & injuring the same."—M. C. C., VII: 445.
- 29 The governor appoints Thomas Jones to be justice of the supreme court in place of David Jones, resigned.—Cal. Coun.
Min., 498.
- Oct. Andrew Brestede presents his account to the consistory of the 4 Dutch Church "for making the glass windows in the Old Church"
(on Garden St.). The treasurer is ordered to pay it.—Eccles.
Rec., VI: 4267.
- 7 Robert Livingston has been appointed recorder in the place of Thomas Jones (see Sept. 29).—Rivington's Gazetteer, Oct. 7, 1773.
- 13 "A new Flame is apparently kindling in America—Within a Fortnight . . . we have Intelligence that the East India Company resolved to send Tea to America to be sold they paying the Duty on Importation—That the Philadelphia, Newyork & Boston Captains had refused to ship it—That Mr. Pigon of London had then chartered a ship to carry 300 Chests to Boston 600 to N Y &
- as many to Philadelphia—That W<sup>m</sup> Kelly had ingaged Abraham Lott the Treasurer to be their Factor . . . The Fact is that ever since the Duty of 3<sup>d</sup> per Pound had been laid, by the [statute] 7 Geo III [see June 29, 1767], all Tea had been Smuggled from Holland, to the great Detriment of the India House—and now the Sons of Liberty & the Dutch Smugglers set up the Cry of Liberty —At New York it opened Wednesday the 6th with a Paper stilled the Alarm No. 1. Saturday we had No. 2 & yesterday a Paper arrived from Philadelphia, being a Letter to the Commissioners appointed by the East India Company for the Sale of Tea in America, holding up the Factors as another Species of Stamp Masters, & penned to inspire Terror into those Factors, & animate the Populace ag<sup>t</sup> them. Virtue and Vice being thus united, I suppose we shall repeat all the Confusions of 1765 & 1766.—Time will show the Events. Our Domestic Parties will probably die, & be swallowed up in the general Opposition to the Parliamentary Project of raising the Arm of Government by Revenue Laws."—
Wm. Smith's Diary (MS.), IV. See Oct. 15.
- "We are desired by the Magistrates of the city of New-York, to inform the inhabitants, That the act of this colony for the more effectual preventing of fires, and for regulating of buildings in the city of New-York, will be in force on the first day of January next [see Dec. 31, 1768]: By which law every dwelling-house, and other building whatsoever, whether public or private, thereafter to be erected within the said city, to the southward of Freshwater, is to be made of stone or brick, and roofed with tile or slate, under the penalties mentioned in the said act."—Rivington's Gazetteer, Oct.
14, 1773.
- " A list of titles of the music imported and sold by Rivington indicates the character of the music of the period. The catalogue includes, among others, Handel's voluntaries, Garth's sonatas, Bach's sonatas, for the "Harpischord, Spinnet, Piano Forte & Organ;" Bacherini's duets, Bach's symphonies, for the violin;
Magherini's trios, Giordani's chamber concertos, Bach's
"quartettos," Patoni's sonatas, Dutch minuets for the flute; and various selections for the guitar. He also advertises English operas with all the songs. Musical instruments and equipments are listed, and he offers to furnish tutors or musical instructors. Forte pianos are priced at £27 to £32.—Rivington's Gazetteer, Oct. 14, 1773.
- " Samuel Francis advertises that he has fitted up a "large commodious room in the lower part of his house [Queen's Head Tavern, near the Exchange in Broad St] for the reception and entertainment of such persons, who may choose to regale themselves with fine Ale of this country produce, equal to any imported;" etc. At any time "in the day or evening beef stales, mutton or pork chops, veal stales or cutlets, fry'd oysters, &c."
- "The elegant Wax-Figures, . . . are removed to the above house from Vaux-Hall [see June 14], and proper attendants to shew the same any hour of the day or evening."—Rivington's Gazetteer,
Oct. 14, 1773.
- 15 In response to a handbill sent through the city, a large number of citizens meet at the Coffee House to signify "their Thanks to the Captains of the London Ships belonging to the Port, and the Merchants to whom they were addressed, for their patriotic Conduct in refusing . . . a Quantity of Tea, on which a Duty laid by the British Parliament was made payable in America on Importation." The following address is drawn up, read, and unanimously approved by the citizens:
"Gentlemen,
"Your prudent Conduct in refusing the Freight of the India Company's Tea, justly merits the Approbation and Applause of every Well-Wisher to the Liberties of this or any other Country.
"The invidious Purpose of levying the Duty in America, and taking off a much greater in England, is equally manifest and detestable; being nothing less than to establish the odious Precedent of raising a Revenue in America. But it is a Happiness to the Inhabitants of this Colony, and we trust to every other on this extensive Continent, that Stamp Officers and Tea-Commissioners will ever be held in equal Estimation.
"The Tribute, therefore, of our most grateful Thanks is most justly due, and is now hereby most heartily rendered to the truly patriotic Merchants and Masters of Vessels in London, who by their virtuous Example contributed so eminently to Discounten-ance a Measure which ought to be opposed by all good Men, as contrary to every principle of British Liberty, and therefore cannot but incur the just Indignation and Resentment of the much injured

1773 Americans.—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 25, 1773; cf. Rivington's Gazetteer,
 Oct. 21, 1773.

16 The "first public demonstration against the project of the East India Company for transporting their accumulated stock of tea to America" occurs on this date, when a "very considerable Meeting" is held at the state-house in Philadelphia, and these resolutions are adopted:

"1. That the disposal of their own property is the inherent right of freemen; that there can be no property in that which another can, of right, take from us without our consent; that the claim of Parliament to tax America is, in other words, a claim of right to levy contributions on us at pleasure.

"2. That the duty imposed by Parliament upon Tea landed in America, is a tax on the Americans, or levying contributions on them without their consent.

"3. That the express purpose for which the tax is levied on the Americans, namely for the support of government, administration of justice, and defense of his Majesty's dominions in America, has a direct tendency to render assemblies useless, and to introduce arbitrary government and slavery.

"4. That a virtuous and steady opposition to this ministerial plan of governing America, is absolutely necessary to preserve even the shadow of liberty, and is a duty which every freeman in America owes to his country, to himself, & to his posterity.

"5. That the resolution lately entered into by the East-India Company to send out their Tea to America, subject to the payment of duties on its being landed here, is an open attempt to enforce this ministerial plan, and a violent attack upon the liberties of America.

"6. That it is the duty of every American to oppose this attempt.

"7. That whoever shall, directly or indirectly, countenance this attempt, or in any wise aid or abet in unloading, receiving, or vending the Tea sent, or to be sent out by the East-India Company, while it remains subject to the payment of a duty here, is an enemy to his country.

"8. That a committee be immediately chosen to wait on those gentlemen, who, it is reported, are appointed by the East-India Company to receive and sell said Tea, and request them, from a regard to their own characters and the peace and good order of the city and province, immediately to resign their appointment."—Penn. Jour., Oct. 20, 1773; Winsor, Nar. & Crit. Hist. of Am., VI: 57, where the date is erroneously given as Oct. 18, 1773.

25 "By Letters from London, and from good Authority, we are assured that the East-India Company have determined upon sending their Vessels with Tea, one of them for Boston, another for Philadelphia, and the third for this Port, and it is most confidently asserted, that no Duty will be paid upon those Teas in America."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 25, 1773. See Dec. 6. For Tryon's account of the receipt of this news, see Nov. 3.

"Several Days last Week a considerable large Whale was seen in the North as well as the East-River, near this City."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 25, 1773.

"Erasmus Williams advertises that he has purchased "the large, elegant, pleasant and healthy situated House and Gardens of Mr. Samuel Francis, called Vaux-Hall [see June 14], and intends fitting it up for a Lodging-House."—N. Y. Merc., Oct. 25, 1773. For a change in the name of this place, see Dec. 27.

27 A slight earthquake, "preceded by violent rain, and immediately succeeded by very awful lightning, and tremendous peals of thunder," shakes the city. It alarmed the inhabitants but caused only "a motion of china ware, glasses &c. &c."—Rivington's Gazetteer, Oct. 28, 1773.

29 The "Royal Regiment of Welch Fusiliers [see June 30], and the 4th Battalion of the Royal Regiment of Artillery" are reviewed by the commander-in-chief "in a Field on the Right of his Excellency our Governor's House, on the Road to Greenwich, facing the North-River."—N. Y. Merc., Nov. 1, 1773.

Nov. Gov. Tryon writes to Dartmouth: "It is with real regret, I acquaint your Lord<sup>d</sup> of the ferment the minds of many of His Majesty's subjects have been in since the late arrival here, of some of the Country ships in the London Trade which brought intelligence of the East India company's intention to ship Tea on their own account to America [see Oct. 25]; and the refusal of the masters of those Vessels to take it on Board." He adds that several publications, "calculated to sow sedition, and to support and make popular the cause of those who are deepest concerned in the illicit Trade to Foreign Countries," have been issued.—N. Y. Col. Docs., VIII: 400-1. See Nov. 5.

